UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 81ST CONGRESS SECOND SESSION

VOLUME 96—PART 8

JULY 12, 1950, TO JULY 31, 1950
(PAGES 9967 TO 11446)

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE, WASHINGTON, 1950

AUTHENTICATED
U.S. GOVERNMENT
INFORMATION
GPO

MAR 14 1950

United States of America

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 81st CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1950

(Legislative day of Saturday, July 1, 1950)

The Senate met at 12 o'clock meridian, on the expiration of the recess.

The Chaplain, Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Our Father God, amid the dismaying circumstances of these days, in the tension of the present and anxiety about the future, with deep concern about ourselves, our Nation, and our world, we turn to Thee who only art our strong tower and sure defense in the flood of mortal ills prevailing. In the agony of the world we hear Thy solemn summons to discipline, toil, and to ceaseless prayer, for we, too, are soldiers in the front line arrayed against the common foe. In Thy name we set up our banners. And though the air be tremulous with anguish and foreboding, yet will we not fear; though an host encamp against us in this will we be confident: Thou makest the devices of the wicked of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of His heart to all generations. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

On request of Mr. LUCAS, and by unanimous consent, the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of Tuesday, July 11, 1950, was dispensed with.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT—APPROVAL OF BILLS

Messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Miller, one of his secretaries, and he announced that the President had approved and signed the following joint resolutions:

On July 10, 1950:

S. J. Res. 170. Joint resolution to provide for the transfer of the paintings, The Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, and The Chasm of the Colorado, from the United States Capitol to the Department of the Interior.

On July 11, 1950:

S. J. Res. 171. Joint resolution transferring the plaster cast of the statue of George Washington from the United States Capitol to the Smithsonian Institution.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 8083) to amend the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended (59 Stat. 526, 666; 61 Stat. 130), to vest in the Export-Import Bank of Washington the power to guarantee United States investments abroad, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

The message also announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills and joint resolution, and they were signed by the Vice President:

S. 381. An act for the relief of Low Way Hong;

S. 557. An act for the relief of the McCormick Engineering Co. and John E. Price, an individual doing business as the Okeechobee Construction Co.;

S. 587. An act for the relief of Sister Stefania Cuprys;

S. 848. An act for the relief of Lorenzo Buira Sarrate;

S. 1086. An act for the relief of the Dixie Margarine Co., a Tennessee corporation of Memphis, Tenn.;

S. 1304. An act for the relief of Nicolae G. Caranfil and his family;

S. 1347. An act for the relief of Jose Da Silva;

S. 1869. An act for the relief of Marcantonio Doria d'Angri and his wife, Sonia Stampa d'Angri;

S. 2079. An act for the relief of Mrs. Lydia L. Smith;

S. 2086. An act transferring management of certain public lands from the Agriculture Department to the Fort Sill Indian School in Oklahoma for agriculture uses;

S. 2227. An act to amend the act approved July 18, 1940 (54 Stat. 766; 24 U. S. C., 1946 ed., sec. 196b), entitled "An act relating to the admission to St. Elizabeths Hospital of persons resident or domiciled in the Virgin Islands of the United States," by enlarging the classes of persons admissible into St. Elizabeths Hospital and in other respects;

S. 2231. An act for the relief of Marco Murolo and his wife Romana Pellis Murolo;

S. 2349. An act for the relief of Ho Paak-Sui;

S. 2462. An act for the relief of Ruzina Skalova;

S. 2575. An act for the relief of Yayoko Kobayashi and June Kobayashi, and for other purposes;

S. 2658. An act to establish rearing ponds and a fish hatchery in the State of Kentucky;

S. 2662. An act for the relief of Evzen Syrovatka and his wife;

S. 2682. An act for the relief of Naum Ionescu and his wife;

S. 2735. An act for the relief of Mrs. Vernon B. Rasmussen;

S. 2745. An act for the relief of Marie De Champourcin;

S. 2795. An act for the relief of Fortunato Giulio Torre;

S. 3007. An act for the relief of Stefanie Pfister and Hildegarde Weber;

S. 3582. An act to authorize revision of the procedures employed in the administration of certain trust funds administered by the Veterans' Administration;

S. 3635. An act to enable the governments of Alaska, of Hawaii, of Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands to authorize public bodies or agencies to undertake slum clearance, urban redevelopment; and low-rent housing activities including the issuance of bonds and other obligations, to amend the low-rent housing enabling statutes for Alaska and Hawaii, and for other purposes;

S. 3876. An act to provide free postage for members of the Armed Forces of the United States in specified areas; and

S. J. Res. 180. Joint resolution to suspend until December 31, 1950, the application of certain Federal laws with respect to attorneys employed by the Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare in connection with the study and investigation ordered by Senate Resolution 140, Eighty-first Congress.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. LUCAS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hickenlooper	Martin
Anderson	Hill	Maybank
Benton	Hoey	Millikin
Brewster	Holland	Morse
Bricker	Humphrey	Mundt
Bridges	Hunt	Murray
Butler	Ives	Myers
Byrd	Jenner	Neely
Capehart	Johnson, Colo.	O'Mahoney
Chapman	Johnson, Tex.	Robertson
Chavez	Johnston, S. C.	Russell
Connally	Kefauver	Saltonstall
Cordon	Kem	Schoeppel
Donnell	Kerr	Smith, Maine
Douglas	Kilgore	Smith, N. J.
Dworshak	Knowland	Sparkman
Eastland	Langer	Stennis
Ecton	Leahy	Taft
Ellender	Lehman	Thomas, Okla.
Ferguson	Lodge	Thomas, Utah
Flanders	Long	Thye
Frear	Lucas	Tydings
Fulbright	McCarran	Vandenberg
George	McCarthy	Watkins
Gillette	McClellan	Wherry
Graham	McFarland	Wiley
Green	McKellar	Williams
Gurney	McMahon	Young
Hayden	Magnuson
Hendrickson	Malone

Mr. MYERS. I announce that the Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'CONOR] is absent by leave of the Senate on official business, attending the sessions of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, Switzerland, as a delegate representing the United States.

The Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER] is absent because of the death of Judge Curtis Waller, a personal friend, whose funeral is being held today.

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR] and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY] and the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present.

TRANSACTION OF ROUTINE BUSINESS

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators may be permitted to introduce bills and joint resolutions, present petitions and memorials, and submit routine matters for the RECORD, without debate and without speeches.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following letters, which were referred, as indicated:

REPORT ON LEASES ON REAL PROPERTY NEGOTIATED BY DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY

A letter from the Secretary of the Army, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on leases of real property negotiated by the Department of the Army, as of June 1, 1950 (with accompanying papers); to the Committee on Armed Services.

LAWS ENACTED BY MUNICIPAL COUNCILS OF ST. THOMAS AND ST. JOHN AND ST. CROIX, V. I.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, copies of laws enacted by the Municipal Councils of St. Thomas and St. John and St. Croix, V. I. (with accompanying papers); to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

Petitions, etc., were laid before the Senate, and referred as indicated:

By the VICE PRESIDENT:

A telegram in the nature of a petition from William H. Pynchon, of Fort Lewis, Wash., relating to the waiving of physical examination for men on active duty who will increase their national service life insurance; to the Committee on Finance.

A resolution adopted by the National Organization of Masters, Mates, and Pilots of America, San Francisco, Calif., protesting against the attack on South Korea by Communist-led North Korean forces, and so forth; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

A resolution adopted by the National Council of Young Israel, at Fallsburg, N. Y., protesting against the enactment of legislation which would change the present calendar; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

A letter in the nature of a petition from the Congress of Industrial Organizations, Washington, D. C., signed by Philip Murray, president, praying for a favorable vote in the Senate on the motion for cloture, relating to FEPC; ordered to lie on the table.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S FOREIGN POLICY—RESOLUTION OF ORANGE COUNTY (N. Y.) DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, I have received a resolution adopted unanimously by the Democratic Committee of Orange County, N. Y., at a convention held on June 29, 1950, expressing their confidence in and support of President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson, in their handling of our Nation's foreign relations in this critical time. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be printed in the RECORD, and appropriately referred.

There being no objection, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY ORANGE COUNTY DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE IN CONVENTION ASSEMBLED, THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1950, AT THE COURTHOUSE, GOSHEN, N. Y.

Whereas President Harry S. Truman, with the counsel of his military and foreign-policy advisers, has acted firmly in the face of deliberate Communist aggression in Korea; and

Whereas the Department of State, in the face of irresponsible and unfounded criticism, has been exerting itself to the utmost to maintain peace by containing the Soviet Communist threat all over the world: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we commend the brave and statesmanlike action of President Truman in backing up the United Nations by the commitment of United States Armed Forces in the Korean situation, and that we express our confidence in and support of our Secretary of State, Hon. Dean Acheson, in his handling of our Nation's foreign relations in this critical time.

APPROPRIATION FOR POINT 4 PROGRAM—TELEGRAM FROM FOREIGN MISSIONS CONFERENCE OF NORTH AMERICA

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, representing 32,000,000 Protestant church members, has sent me a copy of a telegram addressed to members of the Appropriations Committee in support of a full appropriation for the point 4 program. This mission conference, being intimately acquainted with the needs and requirements of foreign countries, describes the proposed cut as a "grave blunder." I ask unanimous consent that the text of the telegram be printed in the RECORD and appropriately referred.

There being no objection, the text of the telegram was ordered to lie on the table, and to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The Foreign Missions Conference of North America, representing 67 denominational bodies and 99 mission boards and a constituency of 32,000,000 Protestant church members, has gone on record favoring a technical-assistance program as envisaged by point 4 legislation. Its point of view was elaborated at hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. The undersigned secretaries of the area and functional committees of the Foreign Missions Conference protest strongly the proposed cut in appropriations and restrictions reported in the daily press. We believe any present attempt to limit the provisions of the modest point 4 program as already passed by both Houses of Congress would be a retrogressive step. To cut the agreed-on appropriations of $35,000,000 would be false economy. Better living conditions for the underprivileged people in the underdeveloped countries will not be won by a fighting war. Peace will never come in a hungry and poverty-stricken world. We call special attention to the needs for technical assistance to the countries of middle Asia such as India and Pakistan. Failure to meet minimum responsibilities in implementing technical-assistance program of United Nations and bilateral understandings would have most undesirable effect on countries desiring and needing our help. To undercut this constructive program at this time and to discourage the governments and peoples of these countries would be a grave blunder and would further weaken the confidence and belief of underprivileged nations that we are sincerely concerned with their problems. We dare not sidestep our Christian responsibility.

Signed by Rowland Cross, joint committee on Far East, including China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines, and southeast Asia; Emory Ross, Africa; Helen Eklund, Latin America; Sue Weddell, India and Pakistan; Russell Stevenson, Near East; Wayland Zwayer, Europe; Alfred Moore, literacy and literature; Douglas Forman, medical mission; John Reisner and Ira Moomaw, rural missions; and Wynn Fairfield and Sue Weddell, chairmen, secretarial council of the conference.

CUTS IN POSTAL SERVICE—EDITORIAL FROM NEW YORK TIMES

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, the New York Times, which is a strong and firm supporter of sensible Government economy, yesterday published an editorial about the recent cuts in postal service. The Times finds evidence that these cuts have not accomplished economies consistent with the loss in public service. I find it an excellent editorial and bears on the pending bill. I ask unanimous consent to insert it in the RECORD at this point in my remarks.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE AIRPLANE AND THE TURTLE

When Postmaster General Donaldson announced economy curtailments in the postal services last May many of us thought that the public would not be seriously inconvenienced. The National Association of Mail Carriers vehemently objected, but since perhaps 10,000 of the carriers were about to lose their jobs, and the remaining ones would have to tote heavier loads, this attitude was understandable. A little more serious is the statement made this week by the association's national secretary, Jerome J. Keating, that mail is piling up in post offices, that some first-class mail is scrambled up with stores of undelivered third-class mail, and that in general the condition of the mail is the worst in the history of the country. Mr. Keating could be exaggerating. Still, it might be wise to look into the situation and find out if the $25,000,000 a year the Post Office Department is supposed to be saving is really saved and really an economy.

A postal deficit of $500,000,000 is admittedly too large, but we should remember that the Department has rarely made a profit; only 15 years during the past 100 has it taken in more than it put out. A slapdash reduction of service is not true economy. The country does not profit when letters that used to take 2 days to reach the recipient take three or four. One might guess that the present slowdown costs businessmen and others many times the possible saving. It becomes supremely ridiculous when we fly mail at one-third the speed of sound and deliver it at the speed of an aging and discouraged turtle.

The Hoover Commission made recommendations which, it was estimated, might ultimately save $200,000,000 a year in the Post Office Department without cuts in services. Some of these recommendations have been acted on; others, including a plan to take 20,000 postmasterships out of politics, await action. Congress might do something here, instead of trying to enforce economy by lopping funds out of the appropriations.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. McFARLAND, from the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs:

S. 815. A bill to authorize and direct the Secretary of the Interior to issue to Mrs.

Avena M. Chips-White Bull a patent in fee to certain land; with amendments (Rept. No. 1947);

S. 816. A bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue a patent in fee to Mrs. Anna Richard Lone Dog and other heirs of James Richard, deceased, to certain lands; with amendments (Rept. No. 1948);

S. 1064. A bill to authorize and direct the Secretary of the Interior to issue to Mrs. Iris Huebner Marak a patent in fee to certain land; with amendments (Rept. No. 1949);

S. 1222. A bill authorizing the issuance of a patent in fee to John Lone Dog; with amendments (Rept. No. 1950); and

S. 1457. A bill to authorize and direct the Secretary of the Interior to issue to George C. Estes a patent in fee to certain land; with amendments (Rept. No. 1951).

By Mr. ECTON, from the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs:

S. 1426. A bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue a patent in fee to James Brown; with amendments (Rept. No. 1952).

By Mr. HOLLAND, from the Committee on Public Works:

H. R. 5628. A bill to direct the Secretary of the Army to convey certain land to the State of Rhode Island; without amendment (Rept. No. 1953).

By Mr. McCARRAN, from the Committee on the Judiciary, without amendment:

S. 459. A bill for the relief of Cornelis Ruhtenberg, also known as Cornelis Ruhtenberg Helmsing (Rept. No. 1954);

S. 918. A bill for the relief of Clara Sogor (Rept. No. 1955);

S. 946. A bill to permit credit, for purposes of parole, for time served in a Federal penal institution under an illegal conviction or sentence in the case of a person who is subsequently legally convicted and sentenced for the same offense (Rept. No. 1956);

S. 1344. A bill for the relief of Gerda Moller Uldall and her son, Mikkel Moller (Rept. No. 1957);

S. 1420. A bill for the relief of Antonio Garcia Jiminez (Rept. No. 1958);

S. 2253. A bill for the relief of Dr. In Sung Kwak (Rept. No. 1959);

S. 2347. A bill for the relief of Freidoun Jalayer (Rept. No. 1960);

S. 2401. A bill for the relief of Elizabeth Martha Haug (Rept. No. 1961);

S. 2576. A bill for the relief of Jeno (Eugene) Kupferstein (Rept. No. 1962);

S. 2599. A bill for the relief of Arturo Benetti (Rept. No. 1963);

S. 2780. A bill for the relief of Jaime Riel (Rept. No. 1964);

S. 2791. A bill for the relief of Jarmila Zitnikova (Rept. No. 1965);

S. 2844. A bill for the relief of Biagio Poidimani (Rept. No. 1966);

S. 3005. A bill for the relief of Olga Haddad (Rept. No. 1967);

S. 3189. A bill to provide that the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois, Northern Division, shall sit at Peoria and Rock Island (Rept. No. 1968);

S. 3238. A bill for the relief of Dr. Frederick Daniel McDade (Rept. No. 1969);

S. 3611. A bill for the relief of Dorrance Ulvin, former certifying officer, and for the relief of Guy F. Allen, former chief disbursing officer (Rept. No. 1970);

S. 3612. A bill for the relief of M. S. Davis (Rept. No. 1971);

S. 3613. A bill for the relief of certain Chinese stewards of the United States Navy (Rept. No. 1972);

H. R. 1626. A bill for the relief of Mrs. A. H. Hill (Rept. No. 1973);

H. R. 1854. A bill for the relief of Kenneth Everard Hadfield (Rept. No. 1974);

H. R. 2264. A bill for the relief of C. H. Bolling (Rept. No. 1975);

H. R. 3169. A bill granting permanent residence to certain Spanish physicians residing in Puerto Rico (Rept. No. 1976);

H. R. 3305. A bill for the relief of the estate of Jose Salgado Santos (Rept. No. 1977);

H. R. 3535. A bill for the relief of William A. Cross (Rept. No. 1978);

H. R. 4309. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Nellie K. Marlowe (Rept. No. 1979);

H. R. 4343. A bill for the relief of J. P. Acker (Rept. No. 1980);

H. R. 5252. A bill for the relief of W. M. Tindal (Rept. No. 1981);

H. R. 5470. A bill for the relief of Joseph A. Haddad (Rept. No. 1982);

H. R. 5799. A bill for the relief of the Acme Finance Co. (Rept. No. 1983);

H. R. 5947. A bill for the relief of Alfio Batelli (Rept. No. 1984);

H. R. 6225. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Aimee Hoyningen-Huene (Rept. No. 1985);

H. R. 6606. A bill to provide that the district judge for the eastern, middle, and western districts of Pennsylvania shall become a district judge for the middle district of Pennsylvania alone when the first vacancy occurs in that district (Rept. No. 1986);

H. R. 6969. A bill for the relief of Ralph E. Brown (Rept. No. 1987);

H. R. 7016. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Margaret O'Donnell and Mrs. Arlene R. Shannon (Rept. No. 1988);

H. R. 7046. A bill for the relief of C. W. Jacobs (Rept. No. 1989);

H. R. 7074. A bill for the relief of Hiroko Fujiwara Matsuoka and Mimiyo Matsuoka (Rept. No. 1990);

H. R. 7078. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Eiko Yamada Nagatoshi, Edward Takeo Nagatoshi, and Frances Yoko Nagatoshi (Rept. No. 1991);

H. R. 7428. A bill to admit Mrs. Erna Tvedt to the United States for permanent residence (Rept. No. 1992);

H. R. 7564. A bill for the relief of Maria Margareta Ries and Konrad Horst Wilhelm Ries (Rept. No. 1993);

H. R. 7608. A bill for the relief of Mitsuko Morita (Rept. No. 1994);

H. R. 7629. A bill for the relief of Fumiko Arakawa and her child, Rie (Rept. No. 1995);

H. R. 7706. A bill for the relief of Ayako Jurihara (Rept. No. 1996);

H. R. 7899. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Michiko Nogami Cotter and Katsumi Cotter (Rept. No. 1997);

H. R. 7944. A bill for the relief of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chandler (Rept. No. 1998);

H. R. 7961. A bill for the relief of Chiyoko Yano (Rept. No. 1999);

H. R. 8119. A bill for the relief of Midori Ohta (also known as Mary Stephen) (Rept. No. 2000);

H. R. 8125. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Hisae Kawauchi Kelly (Rept. No. 2001);

H. R. 8180. A bill for the relief of Parue K. Tsugami (Rept. No. 2002); and

H. R. 8519. A bill for the relief of the estate of Archer C. Gunter (Rept. No. 2003).

By Mr. McCARRAN, from the Committee on the Judiciary, with an amendment:

S. 289. A bill for the relief of Tania Ipolo and Lana Bouianovsky (Rept. No. 2004);

S. 297. A bill for the relief of Ruggiero DiCostanzo (Rept. No. 2005);

S. 305. A bill for the relief of Julio Laffitte (Rept. No. 2006);

S. 490. A bill for the relief of Frank Miller (Rept. No. 2007);

S. 1171. A bill to prevent unauthorized acceptance or wearing of foreign decorations by officers of the United States (Rept. No. 2008);

S. 1277. A bill for the relief of Athanasios Elias Cheliotis (Rept. No. 2009);

S. 1289. A bill for the relief of Collins Sterling Smith (Rept. No. 2010);

S. 1568. A bill for the relief of Anna Rajmann (Rept. No. 2011);

S. 1819. A bill for the relief of Azy Ajderian (Rept. No. 2012);

S. 2954. A bill for the relief of Agnes Biro and Anna Biro (Rept. No. 2013);

H. R. 2225. A bill for the relief of William B. Buol (Rept. No. 2014);

H. R. 3464. A bill to record the lawful admission for permanent residence of alien John Michael Ancker Rasmussen (Rept. No. 2015);

H. R. 3805. A bill for the relief of Yuk Onn Won (Rept. No. 2016);

H. R. 4188. A bill for the relief of Dr. Ferdinando Schiappa (Rept. No. 2017);

H. R. 6066. A bill for the relief of Cheng Sick Yuen (Rept. No. 2018);

H. R. 6616. A bill to provide for the expeditious naturalization of former citizens of the United States who have lost United States citizenship through voting in a political election or in a plebiscite held in Italy (Rept. No. 2019);

H. R. 7228. A bill for the relief of Kazuko Kamada (Rept. No. 2020);

H. R. 7812. A bill for the relief of Martha Aporta Strickland (Rept. No. 2021); and

H. R. 8117. A bill for the relief of Yoshiko Emory (Rept. No. 2022).

By Mr. McCARRAN, from the Committee on the Judiciary, with amendments:

S. 2173. A bill for the relief of Giuseppe and Edward Moschetti (Rept. No. 2023);

S. 2929. A bill to amend section 32 of the Trading With the Enemy Act of 1917, as amended, so as to permit the return under such section of property which an alien acquired, by gift, devise, bequest, or inheritance, from an American citizen (Rept. No. 2024);

H. R. 1991. A bill for the relief of Alexander Stewart (Rept. No. 2025);

H. R. 6461. A bill for the relief of Jirina Zizkovsky (Rept. No. 2026); and

S. J. Res. 150. Joint resolution designating the third Sunday in September of each year at Children's Day in Sports (Rept. No. 2027).

By Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce:

H. R. 3906. A bill to amend the Federal Aid to Wildlife Restoration Act, as amended; without amendment (Rept. No. 2028);

H. R. 6533. A bill to provide that the United States shall aid the States in fish restoration and management projects, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2029); and

S. J. Res. 193. Joint resolution to amend section 14 of the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946, as amended, for the purpose of correcting an error in Public Law 591, Eighty-first Congress; without amendment (Rept. No. 2030).

By Mr. McCLELLAN:

From the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments:

S. 3850. A bill to authorize the President to determine the form of the national budget and of departmental estimates, to modernize and simplify governmental accounting and auditing methods and procedures, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2031).

From the Committee on Pubic Works:

H. R. 6971. A bill to authorize the transfer of funds allocated for expenditure in cooperation with the New Jersey State Highway Department on State Highway Route No. 100 to State Parkway Route No. 4; without amendment (Rept. No. 2032).

SUSPENSION OF DEPORTATION OF CERTAIN ALIENS

Mr. McCARRAN. From the Committee on the Judiciary, I report an original concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 97), and I submit a report (No. 2033) thereon.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The report will be received and the concurrent resolution will be placed on the calendar.

The Concurrent Resolution (S. Con. Res. 97), was ordered to be placed on the calendar, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Congress favors the suspension of deportation in the case of each alien hereinafter named, in which case the Attorney General has suspended deportation for more than 6 months:

[redacted], Taylor, Sidney Norman (formerly Tatelman, alias Samuel Norman Taylor).
[redacted], Laks, Joseph Lyndel.
[redacted], Fuhrmann, Michael.
[redacted] Triantafilos, Georgios (alias George Triantafilos).
[redacted] Safani, Ezatollah Hashem.
[redacted], Safani, Fakhre Moluk (nee Mahboubian).
[redacted], Salzman, Salomon.
[redacted], Salzman, Necka or Necha (nee Hartmann).
[redacted], Thout, Henri.
[redacted], Thout, Mathilde Lucienne (nee Four).
[redacted], Van Sant, Helen Josefna (nee Helen Gavrilkina or Helen Josefna Smith).
[redacted], Wattinne, Emmanuel Andre.
[redacted], Wattinne, Genevieve (nee Dubart).
[redacted], Cohen, Theodore, or Theodor Cohen or Theodor Moscovitz.
[redacted], Cohen, Zeev.
[redacted], Ramirez-Calvillo, Basilio.
[redacted], Ramirez-Munoz, Anastacia.
[redacted], Ramirez-Munoz, Francisco.
[redacted], Ramirez-Munoz, Reynalda.
[redacted], Gawronski, Marian.
[redacted], Mercader, Antonio Jimenez, or Jimenez Mercador.
[redacted], Schwarz, Maria or Werner (nee Reiner).
[redacted], Schwarz, Morris, or Ceza Gabriel Werner.
[redacted], Kroog, Fritz Heinrich Konrad, or Fred Henry Conrad Kroog or Fred Fischer.
[redacted], Cavaco, Francisco Da Silva or Frank Silva.
[redacted], Cohen, Eva.
[redacted], Cohen, James Irving.
[redacted], Cohen, Morris.
[redacted], Daschek, Franz Ludwig.
[redacted], Daschek, Marie Antonia (nee Sustr).
[redacted], De Castro, Joaquin Fernandes, or Luis Vedro or Jack Valaria.
[redacted], Dimos, Isidoros, or Isidoros Nicolaou Dimos.
[redacted], Gerolimatos, Dionisios, or Denis Nicholas.
[redacted], Goncalves, Antonio.
[redacted], Gonsalves, Maria (alias Maria Anna Celina Parental, alias Marie Anna Parent, alias Mrs. De Courville).
[redacted], Jimoyjanis, George C., or Georgios Chris Jimoyianes or George Christ Jimos.
[redacted], Katechis, Constantine Spiros.
[redacted], King-Yien, Laai.
[redacted], Kliglich, Bronislaw.
[redacted], Krol, Joseph, or Joseph Carl Krol.
[redacted], Labdas, Demetrios, or James Constantine Lavdas.
[redacted], Livanis, Michael Panagiotis, or Michael Peter Livanis.
[redacted], Lombardi, Ciuliano, or Dominic Lombarde.
[redacted], Loussedes, Basilios Antonios (aliases William Anthony Loussedes, William Anthony Loussedos, Vassilios Lousidis).
[redacted], Maglish, Efim Jim.
[redacted], Mandarakas, John, or John Mandas.
[redacted], Moscos, Georgios Giannes, or George Moskos or Moschos.
[redacted], Mo-Yien, Laai.
[redacted], Pagiou, Panagiotis Christov (alias Panayiotis Christov Pagio alias Pete Pagiou).
[redacted], Palffy, Frank, or Ference Palfi or Frank P. Baker.
[redacted], Paparizos, Regas Antonios, or Regas A. Paparizos.
[redacted], Perez Estelle Ruby Curtis (nee Goodalle, alias Goodall alias Estelle Ruby Curtis Martin).
[redacted], Plesman, Alma Emelie Francoise (nee Berner).
[redacted], Plesman, Cornelis.
[redacted], Run, Wong Look, or Wong Luk Run or Wong Din or Pee Wee or Run Luk Wong or Run L. Wong.
[redacted], Suan, Aw Tee, or Hong Fong or Fong Hong.
[redacted], Sui-Laan, Loh, or Mrs. Laai Yi-Faai.
[redacted], Yang, Ho Ching, or Yang Ho Ching.
[redacted], Yang, Von Sung (nee Von Sung Soung).
[redacted], Yi-Faai, Laa.
[redacted], Aikaterines, Demetrios, or James M. Katerinis.
[redacted], Ali, Kubaiyat, or Kalafi Ali.
[redacted], Bisenz, Rudolf, or Rudolf Bisentz.
[redacted], Bisenz, Suzanne (nee Hoffman).
[redacted], Bufi, Giuseppe.
[redacted], Calamaras, Peter, or Panagiotis Calamaras.
[redacted], Chow, Shu Ping.
[redacted], Coveris, Emanuel Stamatiou.
[redacted], Gianiotis, George Gregorios, or John Kordonas.
[redacted], Gifford, Joseph.
[redacted], Hallas, Sotirios, or Sam Hallas or Sotirios Halas.
[redacted], Kakouris, Matheos, or Mathaios Kakouris or Mike Coris.
[redacted], Kantsos, Angelos Angoniou, or Angelo Anthony Kantsos.
[redacted], Kriticos, Evangelos Georgious, or Angelos Kriticos.
[redacted], Lybarger, Gladys Maud, or Gladys Marjorie Lybarger or Gladys Marjorie Turner or Gladys Marjorie Glend.
[redacted] Pagoulatos, Spironilolaos, or Nicholas Pagoulatos.
[redacted], Palazzo, Berardino, or Berardino Palazzo Di Antonio.
[redacted], Pinto, John.
[redacted], Said, Abdul, or Reefat Ullah.
[redacted], Scuglia, Domenico.
[redacted], Sikoutris, Evangelos Nicolaus.
[redacted], Stef, Nicolae, or Nick Stef.
[redacted], Young, Chin Kung (alias George Chan, George Chin, Chin Gene Pong).
[redacted], Iacono, John George Dello.
[redacted], Yamagiwa, Hanako.
[redacted], Tsai, Mark, or Mark Chai.
[redacted] Freel, Pansy Muriel, or Pamela Mur'l Freel.
[redacted], Sun, Dr. Kuei-shu.
[redacted], Didner, Samuel.
[redacted], Mrak, Joseph or Joe Mrak.
[redacted], Folitis, Petros Andrea.
[redacted], Kia, Ghodsee Zaman nee Albor
[redacted] Wyss, Maria Luling or Maria Milagros Luling Wyss.

INCREASE IN LIMIT OF EXPENDITURES BY COMMITTEE ON INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, reported an original resolution (S. Res. 308), which, under the rule, was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration, as follows:

Resolved, That the limit of expenditure contained in Senate Resolution 50, agreed to April 11, 1949 (authorizing the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to investigate problems relating to the airline industry, the United States merchant marine, domestic land and water transportation, and radio, telegraph, and telephone communications), hereby is increased by $75,000, and the time within which the committee may complete the said investigation hereby is extended to March 1, 1951.

REPORT ON PERSONNEL AND FUNDS BY COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS

Pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, the following report was received by the Secretary of the Senate:

JULY 1, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Everard H. Smith, chief clerk	$10,846.00	$5,422.98
Cecil H. Tolbert, assistant chief clerk	10,512.73	5,256.36
Herman E. Downey, professional staff member	10,512.73	5,204.51
Earl W. Cooper, professional staff member	9,932.07	4,966.02
Thomas J. Scott, assistant clerk	9,268.45	4,634.22
Harold E. Merrick, professional staff member	9,268.45	4,634.22
Francis S. Hewitt, professional staff member	8,770.74	4,385.34
Kimball Sanborn, professional staff member	8,770.74	4,385.34
Edmund T. King, professional staff member	8,770.74	4,385.34
Adelbert F. Teague, assistant clerk	8,521.88	4,260.90
Lawrence H. Wendrich, assistant clerk	7,194.65	3,597.30
Mamie L. Mizen, assistant clerk	6,326.94	3,163.44
Richard C. Venne, clerical assistant	4,415.10	2,207.52
Bernadine Wassam, Jan. 1 to Apr. 12, 1950, clerical assistant	3,719.87	1,053.93
Mary K. Yanick, clerical assistant	4,415.10	1,975.76
Lois C. Joy, clerical assistant	4,241.29	1,990.26
Corinne Bryan, Mar. 30 to June 30, 1950, clerical assistant	3,719.87	940.27
Doris M. Elliott, Mar. 30 to June 30, 1950, clerical assistant	3,719.87	940.27

KENNETH MCKELLAR,
Chairman.

JULY 1, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report in addition to the statement showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Miscellaneous expenses

Unexpended balance of amount authorized by S. Res. 129, June 26, 1947, as of July 1, 1949	$36,987.73
Amount expended July 1, to June 30, 1950	12,836.24
Balance unexpended as of June 30, 1950	24,151.49
Unexpended balance of funds authorized by Reorganization Act and S. Res. 126, 81st Congress, as of July 1, 1949	13,265.97
Funds authorized by S. Res. 185 and 293, 81st Congress	20,000.00
Total	33,265.97
Amount expended July 1 to June 30, 1950	18,027.18
Balance unexpended as of June 30, 1950	15,238.79
Funds authorized by Legislative Appropriation Act, 1950 (Public Law 118)	50,000.00
Amount expended July 1, 1949, to June 30, 1950
Balance unexpended as of June 30, 1950	50,000.00

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION PRESENTED

The Secretary of the Senate reported that on today, July 12, 1950, he presented to the President of the United States the following enrolled bills and joint resolution:

S. 381. An act for the relief of Low Way Hong;

S. 557. An act for the relief of the McCormick Engineering Co. and John E. Price, an individual doing business as the Okeechobee Construction Co.;

S. 587. An act for the relief of Sister Stefania Cuprys;

S. 848. An act for the relief of Lorenzo Buira Sarrate;

S. 1086. An act for the relief of the Dixie Margarine Co., a Tennessee corporation, of Memphis, Tenn.;

S. 1304. An act for the relief of Nicholae G. Caranfil and his family;

S. 1347. An act for the relief of Jose Da Silva;

S. 1869. An act for the relief of Marcantonio Dora d'Angri and his wife, Sonia Stampa Doria d'Angri;

S. 2079. An act for the relief of Mrs. Lydia L. Smith;

S. 2086. An act transferring management of certain public lands from the Agriculture Department to the Fort Sill Indian School in Oklahoma for agriculture uses;

S. 2227. An act to amend the act approved July 18, 1940 (54 Stat. 766; 24 U. S. C., 1946 ed., sec. 196b), entitled "An act relating to the admission to St. Elizabeths Hospital of persons resident or domiciled in the Virgin Islands of the United States," by enlarging the classes of persons admissible into St. Elizabeths Hospital and in other respects;

S. 2231. An act for the relief of Marco Murolo and his wife, Romana Pellis Murolo;

S. 2349. An act for the relief of Ho Paak-Sui;

S. 2462. An act for the relief of Ruzina Skalova;

S. 2575. An act for the relief of Yayoko Kobayashi and June Kobayashi, and for other purposes;

S. 2658. An act to establish rearing ponds and a fish hatchery in the State of Kentucky;

S. 2662. An act for the relief of Evzen Syrovatka and his wife;

S. 2682. An act for the relief of Naum Ionescu and his wife;

S. 2735. An act for the relief of Mrs. Vernon B. Rasmussen;

S. 2745. An act for the relief of Marie De Champourcin;

S. 2795. An act for the relief of Fortunato Giulo Torre;

S. 3007. An act for the relief of Stefanie Pfister and Hildegarde Weber;

S. 3582. An act to authorize revision of the procedures employed in the administration of certain trust funds administered by the Veterans' Administration;

S. 3635. An act to enable the governments of Alaska, of Hawaii, of Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands to authorize public bodies or agencies to undertake slum clearance, urban redevelopment, and low-rent housing activities including the issuance of bonds and other obligations, to amend the low-rent housing enabling statutes for Alaska and Hawaii, and for other purposes;

S. 3876. An act to provide free postage for members of the Armed Forces of the United States in specified areas; and

S. J. Res. 180. Joint resolution to suspend until December 31, 1950, the application of certain Federal laws with respect to attorneys employed by the Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare in connection with the study and investigation ordered by Senate Resolution 140, Eighty-first Congress.

BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION INTRODUCED

Bills and a joint resolution were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred as follows:

By Mr. LANGER:

S. 3902. A bill to amend the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, so as to include immigrant inspectors within the provisions thereof relating to annuities of personnel engaged in hazardous occupations; to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

(Mr. DOUGLAS introduced Senate bill 3903, to provide for a study of the mental and physical consequences of malnutrition and starvation suffered by prisoners of war and civilian internees during World War II, which was referred to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, and appears under a separate heading.)

By Mr. GRAHAM:

S. 3904. A bill for the relief of Brant Bonner; and

S. 3905. A bill for the relief of Gerrit W. Poley; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

(Mr. McCARRAN introduced Senate bill 3906, to amend the War Contractors Relief Act with respect to the definition of a request for relief, to authorize consideration and settlement of certain claims of subcontractors, to provide reasonable compensation for the services of partners and proprietors, and for other purposes, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and appears under a separate heading.)

(Mr. MAGNUSON (for himself, Mr. TYDINGS, Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, Mr. MCFARLAND, Mr. BREWSTER, Mr. O'CONOR, Mr. MORSE, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. TAYLOR, Mr. DOWNEY, Mr. MURRAY, Mr. GILLETTE, Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, Mr. CAIN, Mr. LEHMAN, Mr. SPARKMAN, Mr. KILGORE, Mr. IVES, Mr. MYERS, Mrs. SMITH of Maine, Mr. HENDRICKSON, Mr. HILL, Mr. LONG, Mr. MCMAHON, and Mr. SALTONSTALL), introduced Senate bill 3907, to direct the survey and repair of certain vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and appears under a separate heading.)

By Mr. FLANDERS:

S. 3908. A bill for the relief of Edith Winifred Henderson; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HUMPHREY (for himself, Mr. ECTON, and Mr. FREAR):

S. 3909. A bill to amend section 16 of the act entitled "An act to reclassify the salaries of postmasters, officers, and employees of the postal service; to establish uniform procedures for computing compensation, and for other purposes," approved July 6, 1945; and

S. 3910. A bill relating to the assignment of surplus clerks in the Postal Transportation Service; to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

By Mr. FLANDERS:

S. J. Res. 194. Joint resolution to provide that the housing developments known as Westview and Southview in the town of Springfield, Vt., shall for the purposes of the seventeenth decennial census be treated as a part of the village of Springfield, Vt.; to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

STUDY OF MALNUTRITION SUFFERED BY PRISONERS OF WAR AND CIVILIAN INTERNEES, WORLD WAR II

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I introduce for appropriate reference a bill to provide for a study of the mental and physical consequences of malnutrition and starvation suffered by prisoners of war and civilian internees during World War II, and I ask unanimous consent that a statement in explanation of the bill, prepared by me, be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The bill will be received and appropriately referred, and, without objection, the explanatory statement presented by the Senator from Illinois will be printed in the RECORD. The Chair hears no objection.

The bill (S. 3903) to provide for a study of the mental and physical consequences of malnutrition and starvation suffered by prisoners of war and civilian internees during World War II, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

The statement presented by Mr. DOUGLAS is as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR DOUGLAS

Mr. President, the bill I have introduced would provide for a study of the mental and physical consequences of malnutrition and starvation suffered by prisoners of war and civilian internees during World War II.

The purpose of such an inquiry, as stated in the bill, would be to determine the proper standards to be applied to the diagnosis of the mental and physical aftereffects of prolonged abuse of health and its resultant influence on life expectancy. A further objective would be the determination of whether there is evidence to sustain a conclusive presumption of service-connection in favor of prisoners of war for purposes of veterans' hospitalization. Moreover, in the event additional claims of American civilian and military personnel are recognized, the results of the study would serve as a criterion in determining the extent of such claims.

Mr. President, the spadework for this inquiry was initiated by the War Claims Commission as a result of the directive in section 8 of the War Claims Act of 1948. The President of the United States in his message of May 3, 1950, transmitting the Commission's report to the Congress, emphasized the inadequacy of time allowed for the preparation of this aspect of the Commission's work. The President recommended that a more comprehensive study be conducted.

The War Claims Commission's report discloses that many former prisoners of war, both military and civilian, assert emotional and physical disability which may be ascribed to the malnutrition and other hardships of their imprisonment by the enemy—afflictions which gain little recognition due to the lack of knowledge on the peculiar problem. According to information furnished to the Commission, it is the almost unanimous view of physicians and medical specialists on nutrition that the disabling aftereffects of imprisonment are almost universally found among former prisoners of war, and that medical science is presently unprepared to cope with the problems presented.

This past month, there was conducted at the University of Minnesota a conference on the residues of nutritional insult. The internationally recognized experts on nutrition who participated in that conference gave serious consideration, among other things, to the related problems of former war prisoners. On the basis of the discussion conducted and the finding of the conferees, recommendations were drafted concerning necessary future steps to be undertaken in the field of nutritional insult. In this regard, it should be noted that among the tentative recommendations of the conference is one calling for a study of the type provided for by this bill.

AMENDMENT OF WAR CONTRACTORS' RELIEF ACT

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, I introduce for appropriate reference a bill to amend the War Contractors' Relief

Act, which was vetoed by the President. This bill is a substitute for House bill 3436, which the President vetoed on June 30—CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, pages 9602–9603. In returning the bill without his approval, the President stated one specific objection to it and took the unusual course of specifying in some detail the type of a measure he would approve. In order to comply with the President's suggestions, I am introducing this bill and ask unanimous consent that it be printed in full at this point in the body of the RECORD, together with a statement by me explaining the bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The bill will be received and appropriately referred and, without objection, the bill and statement will be printed in the RECORD.

The bill (S. 3906) to amend the War Contractors' Relief Act with respect to the definition of a request for relief, to authorize consideration and settlement of certain claims of subcontractors, to provide reasonable compensation for the services of partners and proprietors, and for other purposes, introduced by Mr. MCCARRAN, was received, read twice by its title, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act of August 7, 1946 (Public Law No. 657, 79th Cong., ch. 864, 60 Stat. 902), as amended (sec. 37 of the act of June 25, 1948, ch. 646, 62 Stat. 869, 992), is hereby amended by adding the following section thereto:

"SEC. 7. Within the limitations stated in this act and no others:

"(1) For the purposes of this section and except as otherwise provided by paragraph (5) hereof, all departments, agencies, or the heads or duly designated representatives thereof authorized to consider, adjust, and settle claims under this act are hereby directed, on request filed not more than 60 days after the effective date of this section, and after affording claimants reasonable opportunity to amend or supplement their claims, to reconsider claims heretofore filed in accordance with the provisions of this act and rejected or disallowed in whole or part.

"(2) Notwithstanding anything in section 3 of this act with reference to the necessity of a request for relief filed on or before August 14, 1945, claims otherwise payable under this act shall be allowed to the extent that they include losses with respect to which in a writing submitted to a department or agency concerned on or before August 14, 1945, the claimant (a) requested relief available under the First War Powers Act, (b) demanded payment thereof, or (c) gave notice of such sustained or impending loss; but nothing in this paragraph shall be taken to limit or exclude other requests for relief otherwise sufficient under section 3 of this act.

"(3) Claims otherwise payable under this act, as amended, shall include those of subcontractors on the same basis as the claims of prime contractors if the request for relief, demand for payment, or notice of sustained or impending loss required by section 3 of this act or defined by paragraph (2) of this section was submitted in writing by such claimants on or before August 14, 1945, to either (a) a department or agency concerned or (b) the prime contractor or other subcontractor involved.

"(4) Claims otherwise allowable under this act, as amended, shall include reasonable compensation for the services of working partners and proprietors of unincorporated claimants during the period of performance of the contracts or subcontracts involved.

"(5) The jurisdiction of courts over suits now pending under this act is hereby preserved and, notwithstanding paragraph (1) of this section, no plaintiff in such action shall be required either to present his claim again to the department or agency concerned or to begin his action in court anew; but nothing in this act or amendment shall prevent any department or agency, in agreement with the plaintiff claimant, from reconsidering any claim for the purpose of paying it or entering into an agreement for the compromise or settlement of the whole or any part thereof and, to the extent that hereafter such payments are made or such settlements are executed pursuant to any such agreement, court actions shall thereupon be limited accordingly or dismissed as the case may be.

"(6) Where necessary to effectuate the purposes of this section the court in any case heretofore filed under this act shall, upon motion filed by the plaintiff not more than 60 days after the effective date of this section, (a) permit the plaintiff to amend his claim or pleadings, (b) vacate any adverse judgment or ruling, or (c) revive the action; but nothing in this paragraph shall be deemed to require any plaintiff to seek any such action where it is unnecessary for the preservation of his rights under this act and section in accordance with the existing practice, procedure, or course of judicial proceedings.

"(7) As used in this act, as amended, the terms 'contractors,' 'subcontractors,' and 'materialmen' include individuals, partnerships, joint ventures, business associations, and corporations and mean with respect to partnerships, joint ventures, or business associations, the partnerships, joint ventures, or business associations themselves, and not the individual members thereof."

The statement presented by Senator MCCARRAN is as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR MCCARRAN

The bill would amend the War Contractors Relief Act (60 Stat. 902, as amended by 62 Stat. 869, 992). S. 873 and H. R. 3436, previously introduced in the present Congress, were similar. The Senate Judiciary Committee reported the latter on May 14 (Rept. No. 1632), but limited and rewrote its language. As so reported the bill was approved without objection by the Senate on June 8 (CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, 8291) and by the House of Representatives on June 15 (id. 8659).

PURPOSE OF THE LEGISLATION

The previous report of the Senate Judiciary Committee on H. R. 3436, cited above, fully discusses the general situation and the remedial purposes of the present legislation. The War Contractors Relief Act was adopted in 1946 in order to afford recourse to small contractors who, without fault or negligence on their part, had incurred losses in the attempt to assist in the war effort. The larger contractors and manufacturers, because of the greater volume of business they had done with the Government and the various methods of relief permitted and secured by them under the First War Powers Act or otherwise as their work progressed, do not qualify under the act. But almost no relief has been secured by the smaller contractors under the act despite the fact that it has been on the books for several years. This has been due mainly to technical and restrictive interpretations of the phrase "request for relief" in section 3 of the act. This prerequisite "request for relief" is there broadly stated. It was intended by Congress, of course, that it should include relief through a change of contract terms as authorized by the First War Powers Act. That act permitted, and thereunder contracting agencies of the Government accorded, various types and forms of relief. The purpose of the War Contractors Relief Act is to afford reimbursement to those contractors who made claims or requests for relief, but did not secure relief acceptable to them; and for that purpose it is now expressly provided in the present act that even "a previous settlement under the First War Powers Act, 1941, or the Contract Settlement Act of 1944 shall not operate to preclude further relief otherwise allowable under this act."

THE POSITION OF THE PRESIDENT

The sole specific objection stated by the President in his veto message was "the inclusion of interest on working capital as a basis for allowing relief." Since clarification on this point was a minor object of H. R. 3436 as passed by both Houses of the Congress, it is omitted in the presently revised form of the bill.

The President also expressed concern that the practical effect of the previous bill might be to write into law a principle of government insurance against all wartime losses. But both H. R. 3436 as passed, and the present bill, leave intact the original provision of the War Contractors Relief Act to the effect that only losses incurred "without fault or negligence" shall be compensable (section 1).

The President expressed further concern that the amendment sought through H. R. 3436 would authorize the founding of a claim upon "any kind of notice and regardless of whether the notice was filed with the Government." Such was not the intent of the bill but, in any event, the veto message acceptably specifies types of notice and requests for relief which the President deems it proper to include expressly.

In concluding his veto message the President states that—

"It is unfortunate, and I deeply regret that there has been uncertainty and, in the opinion of the supporters of this measure, controversy between the Congress and executive agencies as to the intent of the War Contractors Relief Act. * * *

"In spite of my objections to the scope of H. R. 3436 and the principles which I believe it would write into law, I am convinced that agreement can be reached upon what the Government has a clear-cut obligation to do. To that end, I wish to repeat that I shall be glad to approve a bill which limits its amendment and interpretation of the War Contractors Relief Act as suggested in this message. * * *

"Prompt enactment of such legislation will make it possible for the executive agencies and the courts to discharge the responsibilities which I am convinced they cannot equitably discharge under the measure that I am returning without my approval."

In making these statements the President specified and numbered seven respects in which the act might be fairly and acceptably amended. The present bill proposes that these shall be properly written into law.

THE PRESENT BILL

The present bill would add a new section 7 to the War Contractors Relief Act. Its seven subsections or paragraphs include the seven provisions listed by the President in his message as meritorious and unobjectionable. They have, of course, necessarily been couched in appropriate legislative language and tied in with the previous sections and provisions of the existing act. In so doing, the introductory clause of the new section 7 provides that, under the proposed amendment, cases shall be reviewed and determined "within the limitations stated in this act and no others." In other words, the bill first emphasizes that, except as relaxed by this amendment, the previous conditions upon relief stated in the War Contractors Relief Act shall apply in every case. For the same reason it is made plain that no other limitations are intended by the present act or this amendment. The presently existing coverage of the act is not impaired.

1. The President's message states that he has no objection to a bill which would "authorize reconsideration of the claims filed in accordance with the provisions of the original War Contractors Relief Act." This means administrative reconsideration, because his later points 5 and 6 preserve court jurisdiction where cases have been brought. Accordingly, the first subsection of the new section 7 reads that—

"For the purposes of this section and except as otherwise provided by paragraph (5) hereof, all departments, agencies, or the heads or duly designated representatives thereof authorized to consider, adjust, and settle claims under this act are hereby directed, on request filed not more than 60 days after the effective date of this section and after affording claimants reasonable opportunity to amend or supplement their claims, to reconsider claims heretofore filed in accordance with the provisions of this act and rejected or disallowed in whole or part."

It is to be noted that such reconsideration is to be limited to "the purpose of this section" as hereinafter explained.

2. The President states that an appropriate amendment should "remove the basis for technical rejection by permitting either a request in writing for relief under the First War Powers Act, or a written demand for payment of losses, or a written notice of sustained or impending loss, if timely filed, to be accepted as a basis for claim." Accordingly, the present bill provides by its second paragraph that—

"Notwithstanding anything in section 3 of this act with reference to the necessity of a request for relief filed on or before August 14, 1945, claims otherwise payable under this act shall be allowed to the extent that they include losses with respect to which in a writing submitted to a department or agency concerned on or before August 14, 1945, the claimant (a) requested relief available under the First War Powers Act, (b) demanded payment thereof, or (c) gave notice of such sustained or impending loss; but nothing in this paragraph shall be taken to limit or exclude other requests for relief otherwise sufficient under section 3 of this act."

Thus, as here stated, the provision validates a relief request in writing of any one of the three types listed by the President. No special forms are required so long as, in substance, the requests sought a type of relief available under the First War Powers Act, or demanded payment of the losses for which reimbursement is sought under this act, or gave notice of such losses sustained, accruing, or impending. The latter portion of the paragraph is inserted to make it plain that—by providing that these types of relief requests, demands, or notices shall be sufficient—other forms or types of requests for relief otherwise sufficient under the existing section 3 of the act are not thereby to be deemed excluded.

3. The President, thirdly, has stated that acceptable legislation should "authorize consideration and settlement of the claims of subcontractors on the same basis as the prime contractors if the same kind of written request, demand, or notice was filed with a Government agency, a prime contractor, or another subcontractor prior to August 14, 1945." Accordingly, the third paragraph of the new section 7 added by this bill reads as follows:

"Claims otherwise payable under this act as amended shall include those of subcontractors on the same basis as the claims of prime contractors if the request for relief, demand for payment, or notice of sustained or impending loss required by section 3 of this act or defined by paragraph (2) of this section was submitted in writing by such claimants on or before August 14, 1945, to either (a) a department or agency concerned or (b) the prime contractor or other subcontractor involved."

Paragraph (2), to which reference is made, is explained above.

4. The President's veto message states, next, that acceptable legislation should "permit reasonable compensation with respect to partners and proprietors, thus affording them the same treatment accorded corporations." Accordingly, the fourth paragraph of the proposed new section 7 reads as follows:

"Claims otherwise allowable under this act as amended shall include reasonable compensation for services of working partners and proprietors of unincorporated claimants during the period of performance of the contracts or subcontracts involved."

The language "during the period of performance of the contracts or subcontracts involved" is taken from H. R. 3436 as previously passed by the Congress.

5. The President has stated in his veto message that, fifthly, the legislation should "preserve jurisdiction of the courts over suits now pending and not require any claimant to start over again in the presentation of his claim." Accordingly, the fifth paragraph of the bill states that—

"Jurisdiction of courts over suits now pending under this act is hereby preserved and, notwithstanding paragraph (1) of this section, no plaintiff in such action shall be required either to present his claim again to the department or agency concerned or to begin his action in court anew; but nothing in this act or amendment shall prevent any department or agency, in agreement with the plaintiff claimant, from reconsidering any claim for the purpose of paying it or entering into an agreement for the compromise or settlement of the whole or any part thereof and, to the extent that hereafter such payments are made or such settlements are executed pursuant to any such agreement, court actions shall thereupon be limited accordingly or dismissed as the case may be."

The latter portion of the paragraph is added to make it plain that, by preserving court jurisdiction, agencies are not precluded from settling such cases in agreement with the claimants.

6. As his sixth point the President states that such legislation should "permit a reasonable time, perhaps 60 days, for amendment or revival of any claim." Accordingly, the sixth paragraph of the proposed new section 7 provides that—

"Where necessary to effectuate the purposes of this section the court in any case heretofore filed under this act shall, upon motion filed by the plaintiff not more than 60 days after the effective date of this section, (a) permit the plaintiff to amend his claim or pleadings, (b) vacate any adverse judgment or ruling, or (c) revive the action; but nothing in this paragraph shall be deemed to require any plaintiff to seek any such action where it is unnecessary for the preservation of his rights under this act and section in accordance with the existing practice, procedure, or course of judicial proceedings."

The language enabling any court to vacate any adverse judgment or ruling is inserted as necessary because, under the present Rules of Civil Procedure and particularly rule 60 thereof, in most cases that may be the appropriate remedy rather than a technical "revival" of an action. The latter part of the paragraph is added to make it plain that no plaintiff shall be required, by this provision, to amend his pleadings or take any other action indicated unless necessary for the protection of his rights.

7. Lastly the President states that appropriate legislation should "include the clarifying definitions of section 7 of H. R. 3436." Accordingly, the seventh and last paragraph of the new section 7 reads as follows:

"As used in this act, as amended, the terms 'contractors,' 'subcontractors,' and 'materialmen' include individuals, partnerships, joint ventures, business associations, and corporations and mean with respect to partnerships, joint ventures, or business associations, the partnerships, joint ventures, or business associations themselves, and not the individual members thereof."

Except for the phrase "as amended" this language is, as the President suggested, taken in its entirety from section 7 of H. R. 3436.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Nevada for introducing the bill as a substitute for H. R. 3436, in line with the suggestions with respect to the kind of bill he would sign made by the President in the veto message. To my way of thinking, this is a most important bill, affecting some very representative people, who have been denied, without any reason whatever, it seems to me, compensation for certain damages, to which they are absolutely entitled. I am very happy that the Senator has taken this position, and I hope the bill will be reported to the Senate as soon as possible.

SURVEY AND REPAIR OF CERTAIN VESSELS IN NATIONAL DEFENSE RESERVE FLEET

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, on behalf of myself, the senior Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS], the Senator from Colorado [Mr. JOHNSON], the Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCFARLAND], the Senator from Maine [Mr. BREWSTER], the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'CONOR], the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR], the Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY], the Senator from Montana [Mr. MURRAY], the Senator from Iowa [Mr. GILLETTE], the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH], the senior Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the junior Senator from New York [Mr. LEHMAN], the junior Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KILGORE], the senior Senator from New York [Mr. IVES], the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. MYERS], the junior Senator from Maine [Mrs. SMITH], the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. HENDRICKSON], the senior Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. MCMAHON], and the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL], I introduce for appropriate reference a bill to direct the survey and repair of certain vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet.

The bill (S. 3907) to direct the survey and repair of certain vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet, introduced by Mr. MAGNUSON (for himself and other Senators), was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator from Washington tell us briefly the purport of the bill?

Mr. MAGNUSON. The bill is to provide $25,000,000 to be expended immediately for ship repair work on certain types of ships, 134, to be exact, which have been designated by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to be important insofar as the naval and maritime auxiliary is concerned—hospital ships and LST's. It passed the Senate almost unanimously, last time, but was not passed by the House. There are several other Senators who are interested, but I got as many names as I could.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I thank the Senator.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I ask unanimous consent that an explanatory statement of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR MAGNUSON ON INTRODUCTION OF BILL FOR REPAIR OF 134 VESSELS IN NATIONAL DEFENSE RESERVE FLEET

The bill which we are introducing today, calling for the repair of 134 vessels of the national defense Reserve Fleet at a cost not to exceed $25,000,000 is in the nature of a directive from the Congress.

Last year the Senate gave its approvel to such a program, but the House did not concur.

The tragic events in Korea today underscore the weight of the arguments made at that time. The requirement for having these vessels in readiness is not something on which we can afford to match pennies. These vessels may be needed at any time. We cannot afford to take the chance they will not be necessary.

Last year many of the same members who have joined me in sponsoring this bill assisted in this effort. More than 50 Senators were pledged in support of the measure. The Senate added this program to the Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1950, but the ship-repair program was lost in conference.

The list of vessels includes transports, hospital ships, cargo attack vessels, attack transports, towing vessels, provision ships, and motor torpedo-boat tenders, among others. It is estimated that the average cost of putting them in a condition of readiness is $180,000 per vessel, plus some administrative and moving expenses. Replacement cost of these ships would be about $5,000,000 each, and they cost originally about $3,000,000 each, when we built them under the emergency conditions of World War II.

This bill would direct the Secretary of Commerce to undertake the repair of a selected list of 134 of these vessels as a minimum program. The vessels would be designated jointly by the Secretary of Defense. In selecting them, effort would be made to get reasonable distribution by geographic areas. In order to get the program underway, one section would authorize and direct the RFC to make advances not exceeding a total of $15,000,000 for the work.

The Ship Sales Act of 1946 directed that the Maritime Commission should place such vessels as the Secretaries of War and Navy designated in a National Defense Reserve. Such a reserve was established, but it was hardly a moth-ball fleet, as many of these auxiliary-type vessels were laid up without preservatives and without repairs.

In a restricted memorandum on March 22, 1949, Gen. Omar Bradley, on behalf of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, gave the Secretary of Defense the views of the Joint Chiefs as to the need for an immediate program on a limited number of the vessels in the National Defense Reserve. The Joint Chiefs urged that a program of similar repairs be carried out on an annual basis until such time as 439 military auxiliary vessels in the then Maritime Commission reserve fleet were placed in condition.

It would serve no purpose to dwell on the reasons which have brought about delay. The all-important requirement is that we get these vessels in a state of repair in the shortest possible time, in full realization that the need for this fleet may become a a matter of the highest urgency.

The vessels which were in mind for repair, and presumably would be the ones repaired under this program, are moored at various locations on the Atlantic, in the Gulf, and on the Pacific coast.

On the Atlantic, there are 62 berthed in the James River, 1 in the Hudson, and 1 at Wilmington, Del. In the Gulf, 14 are at Mobile, Ala., and 3 at Beaumont, Tex. On the Pacific coast, 34 are berthed at Suisun Bay, Calif., 10 at Astoria, Oreg., and 9 at Olympia, Wash.

The important element of repair as a matter of insurance against deterioration of the reserve fleet has not changed, and in fact becomes more cogent every hour.

Additionally, the value of having an active and skilled force at work in our shipyards as a nucleus hardly need be emphasized in the light of the Korean conflict and existing international ruptures.

ADDITIONAL PERSONNEL FOR COMMITTEE ON LABOR AND PUBLIC WELFARE

Mr. THOMAS of Utah submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 309), which was referred to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare:

Resolved, That the authority of the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, under S. Res. 215, Eighty-first Congress, agreed to February 9, 1950, is hereby continued until August 31, 1951.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS—AMENDMENTS

Mr. KEFAUVER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. THYE submitted two amendments intended to be proposed by him to House bill 7786, supra, which were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma (for himself and Mr. KERR) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them, jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. SALTONSTALL submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. MAGNUSON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

HOUSE BILL PLACED ON CALENDAR

The bill (H. R. 8083) to amend the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended (59 Stat. 526, 666; 61 Stat. 130), to vest in the Export-Import Bank of Washington the power to guarantee United States investments abroad, was read twice by its title, and ordered to be placed on the calendar.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session,

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations, which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(For nominations this day received, see the end of Senate proceedings.)

EXECUTIVE REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

As in executive session,

The following favorable reports of nominations were submitted:

By Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce:

Harold G. Bradbury and Roy L. Raney, for promotion to the permanent grade of rear admiral in the Coast Guard; and John S. Merriman, Jr., and sundry other persons, for permanent commissioned teaching staff of the Coast Guard Academy.

By Mr. KILGORE, from the Committee on the Judiciary:

William Holroyd McGinnis, of West Virginia, to be United States marshal for the southern district of West Virginia.

By Mr. GRAHAM, from the Committee on the Judiciary:

Ford S. Worthy, of North Carolina, to be United States marshal for the eastern district of North Carolina.

CHINESE MARKETS—A BIG STAKE—ARTICLE FROM THE MAGAZINE PREVENT WORLD WAR III

[Mr. MURRAY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled "Chinese Markets—a Big Stake," published in the March-April, 1950, issue of the magazine Prevent World War III, which appears in the Appendix.]

AGRICULTURAL REFORM—WHEN?—ARTICLE FROM THE MAGAZINE PREVENT WORLD WAR III

[Mr. MURRAY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled "Agricultural Reform—When?", published in the March–April 1950 issue of the magazine Prevent World War III which appears in the Appendix.]

THE NO. 1 PROBLEM—STEEL—ARTICLE FROM THE MAGAZINE PREVENT WORLD WAR III

[Mr. MURRAY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled "The No. 1 Problem—Steel," published in the March–April 1950 issue of the magazine Prevent World War III, which appears in the Appendix.]

CHEESE: CORNERSTONE OF WISCONSIN DAIRY INDUSTRY—ARTICLE FROM THE GLENWOOD CITY TRIBUNE AND ADDRESS BY SENATOR WILEY

[Mr. WILEY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article from the Glenwood City Tribune, a list of officers of the Wisconsin Cheese Makers Association, and an address delivered by him, which appear in the Appendix.]

DECISION TIME FOR AMERICA—EDITORIAL FROM THE WASHINGTON EVENING STAR

[Mr. THYE asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an editorial entitled "Decision Time for America," published in the Washington Evening Star of July 11, 1950, which appears in the Appendix.]

CAPITAL INVESTMENT IN THE PHILIPPINES—ADDRESS BY GERALD WILKINSON

[Mr. LEHMAN asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an address on the subject of capital investment in the Philippines, delivered by Gerald Wilkinson before the Manila Rotary Club on June 15, 1950, which appears in the Appendix.]

FOREIGN LETTER-WRITING CAMPAIGN—RELEASE FROM COMMON COUNCIL FOR AMERICAN UNITY

[Mr. LEHMAN asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD a release by the Common Council for American Unity, on the subject Letters From America, which appears in the Appendix.]

MEMPHIS FIGHTS BACK FOR FREEDOM—ARTICLE FROM THE MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL

[Mr. MUNDT asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled "Fighters for Freedom Carry Campaign to Save Democracy to Schools' Future Citizens," published in the May 7, 1950, issue of the Commercial Appeal, of Memphis, Tenn., which appears in the Appendix.]

THE VOICE OF AMERICA—TELEGRAM FROM SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Mr. BENTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert in the body of the RECORD a most moving and indeed eloquent telegram which I received this morning from Mr. Samuel Goldwyn, the world famous producer of motion pictures. I am sure the Senate will join me in gratitude for the assurances he gives me of the support of the motion-picture industry in this crisis. The industry made most notable contributions in the last war, and Mr. Goldwyn's telegram shows that it is again prepared to put its shoulder to the wheel in the dangerous and difficult crisis we now face. I urge the Senate to heed Mr. Goldwyn's solemn warning, and I welcome the testimony he gives, which brings still further support to the unanimity of testimony of distinguished American citizens before Senator Thomas' subcommittee. I am urging the State Department to take leadership at once in following up on Mr. Goldwyn's suggestion, and I am urging them to give the motion-picture industry the chance to serve the country, as indicated by Mr. Goldwyn, and as suggested by me yesterday when I said that "in this supreme crisis, we should immediately mobilize the creative genius of our motion-picture industry to the constructive use in this international crisis of this most powerful medium of communication. The motion picture is, to all of us who have worked closely with it, admittedly and by far the greatest potential means by which ideas can be quickly and forcibly communicated."

There being no objection, the telegram was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. WILLIAM BENTON,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR: Thank you for telling the Senate of my recommendation that at least $1,000,000,000 must be spent yearly for the Voice of America in telling our story. I have just returned from a trip through Europe and find that the Russian Communists are winning everywhere with lies, while we have the greatest story of good in the history of the entire world. The masses of people in Europe know little of the fact that their food and rehabilitation have been made possible in large part by the greatest aid program man has ever undertaken. Why is it? We have the power of truth on our side and truth can always overcome lies if people only know that truth. It is so dangerous for our country to quibble about dollars at a time when we are at the threshold of tragic events, some of which sadly enough are taking place right now in Korea where our men are dying once more; largely because the Communist lies have succeeded in their persuasion there while our truths have rested dormant. I say the Voices of America, plural, because no one voice of America is enough these days when cold war is no longer cold. Words are ideas and their projection to the world are weapons of war. Unless we permit our country properly to tell its story, it is no better than to deprive our fighting men in Korea of tanks, guns, or ammunition. This is a modern world. If we learned anything at all from our horrible experience with Hitler, it was that Goebbels was able for so long to sell lies to millions of people. The Russians have now taken over Goebbels' work most effectively. Are we again, for dollars, going to forget every lesson we have learned? War is only a violent means of attaining political ends. This is basic in any warfare. Are we Americans the only ones that have not learned that? I hope that you will rest at nothing to try to get something done to tell our story properly to the world. General Eisenhower in his testimony made it clear that even so great a military leader who knows the Russians and their methods, feels that there can be no limit to what we should expend in the war of ideas if we can save even one American life that way. You suggest that I produce a documentary film on the Korean situation. I am sure that every member of our film industry, as in the past, will be ready to serve our country in any way possible. If Congress will listen to the voices of people they must be undertaking a truly great program for the Voices of America.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN.

AMENDMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2591) to amend the Public Health Service Act to support research and training in arthritis and rheumatism, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and blindness, and other diseases, and for other purposes, which were, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the purpose of this act is to improve the health of the people of the United States through the conduct of researches, investigations, experiments, and demonstrations relating to the cause, prevention, and methods of diagnosis and treatment of rheumatism and arthritis, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, other neurological diseases, poliomyelitis, blindness, leprosy, and other diseases; assist and foster such researches and other activities by public and private agencies, and promote the coordination of all such researches and activities and the useful application of their results; provide training in matters relating to such diseases; and develop, and assist States and other agencies in the use of, the most effective methods of prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of such diseases.

ESTABLISHMENT OF ADDITIONAL INSTITUTES

SEC. 2. (a) The heading of title IV of the Public Health Service Act (42 U. S. C., ch. 6a) is amended to read "Title IV—National Research Institutes."

(b) Title IV of such act is further amended by adding immediately after part C the following new part:

"PART D—OTHER INSTITUTES

"ESTABLISHMENT OF INSTITUTES

"SEC. 431. The Surgeon General is authorized with the approval of the Administrator to establish in the Public Health Service one or more additional institutes to conduct and support scientific research and professional training relating to the cause, prevention, and methods of diagnosis and treatment of particular diseases or groups of diseases (including rheumatism and arthritis, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, other neurological diseases, poliomyelitis, blindness, and leprosy) whenever the Surgeon General determines that such action is necessary to effectuate fully the purposes of section 301 with respect to such disease or diseases. Any institute so established may in like manner be abolished and its functions transferred elsewhere in the Public Health Service upon a finding by the Surgeon General that a separate institute is no longer required for such purposes. In lieu of the establishment of an additional institute with respect to any disease or diseases, the Surgeon General may expand the functions of any existing institute established under this act so as to include functions with respect to such disease or diseases and to terminate such expansion and transfer the functions given such institute elsewhere in the Service upon a finding by the Surgeon General that such expansion is no longer necessary. In the case of any such expansion of an existing institute, the Surgeon General may change the title thereof so as to reflect its new functions.

"ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL ADVISORY COUNCILS

"SEC. 432. Upon the establishment of an institute pursuant to section 431, the Surgeon General may, if he finds it necessary, also establish a national advisory council to advise, consult with, and make recommendations to the Surgeon General on matters relating to the activities of the institute. Any such council shall consist of the Surgeon General ex officio, and of 12 members appointed without regard to the civil-service laws by the Surgeon General with the approval of the Administrator. The 12 appointed members shall be leaders in the field of fundamental sciences, medical sciences, education, or public affairs, and 6 of such 12 shall be selected from leading medical or scientific authorities who are outstanding in the study, diagnosis, or treatment of the diseases to which the activities of the institute are directed. Each appointed member of the council shall hold office for a term of 4 years except that any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term and except that, of the members first appointed, three shall hold office for a term of 3 years, three shall hold office for a term of 2 years, and three shall hold office for a term of 1 year, as designated by the Surgeon General at the time of appointment. None of such 12 members shall be eligible for reappointment until a year has elapsed since the end of his preceding term. Every 2 years the council shall elect one member to act as chairman for the succeeding 2-year period. In lieu of appointment of an additional advisory council upon the establishment of an additional institute or upon expansion of the functions of an existing institute, the Surgeon General may expand the functions of an existing advisory council established under this act so as to include functions with respect to the particular disease or diseases to which the activities of the new institute or the new activities of the existing institute are directed. In the case of any such expansion of an existing council, the membership thereof representing persons outstanding in activities with which the council is concerned may be changed or increased so as to include some persons outstanding in the new activities.

Such new council or expansion of an existing council may be terminated by the Surgeon General at, before, or after the termination of the new institute or expansion of the existing institute which occasioned such new council or expansion of an existing council. In the case of any such expansion of an existing council, the Surgeon General may change the title thereof so as to reflect its new functions.

"FUNCTIONS

"SEC. 433. (a) Where an institute has been established under this part, the Surgeon General shall carry out the purposes of section 301 with respect to the conduct and support of research relating to the disease or diseases to which the activities of the institute are directed (including grants-in-aid for drawing plans, erection of buildings, and acquisition of land therefor), through such institute and in cooperation with the national advisory council established or expanded by reason of the establishment of such institute. In addition, the Surgeon General is authorized to provide training and instruction and establish and maintain traineeships and fellowships, in such institute and elsewhere, in matters relating to the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of such disease or diseases with such stipends and allowances (including travel and subsistence expenses) for trainees and fellows as he may deem necessary, and, in addition, provide for such training, instruction, and traineeships and for such fellowships through grants to public and other nonprofit institutions. The provisions of this subsection shall also be applicable to any institute established by any other provision of this act to the extent such institute does not already have the authority conferred by this subsection.

"(b) Upon the appointment of a national advisory council for an institute established under this part or the expansion of an existing institute pursuant to this part, such council shall assume the duties, functions, and powers of the National Advisory Health Council with respect to grants-in-aid for research and training projects relating to the disease or diseases to which the activities of the institute are directed."

NATIONAL ADVISORY COUNCILS

SEC. 3. (a) Subsection (b) of section 217 of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The National Advisory Health Council shall advise, consult with, and make recommendations to, the Surgeon General on matters relating to health activities and functions of the Service. The Surgeon General is authorized to utilize the services of any member or members of the Council, and where appropriate, any member or members of the national advisory councils established under this act on cancer, mental health, heart, dental, and other diseases, in connection with matters related to the work of the Service, for such periods, in addition to conference periods, as he may determine."

(b) The heading of section 217 of such act is amended to read as follows: "National Advisory Councils."

(c) Subsection (c) of section 208 of such act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) Members of the National Advisory Health Council and members of other national advisory councils established under this act, other than ex officio members, while attending conferences or meetings of their respective councils or while otherwise serving at the request of the Surgeon General, shall be entitled to receive compensation at a rate to be fixed by the Administrator, but not exceeding $50 per diem, and shall also be entitled to receive an allowance for actual and necessary traveling and subsistence expenses while so serving away from their places of residence."

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 4. (a) Section 406 of the Public Health Service Act is amended to read as follows:

"OTHER AUTHORITY

"SEC. 406. This title shall not be construed as limiting (a) the functions or authority of the Surgeon General or the Public Health Service under any other title of this act, or of any officer or agency of the United States, relating to the study of the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of any disease or diseases for which a separate institute is established under this act; or (b) the expenditure of money therefor."

(b) Section 209 of such act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) The Administrator is authorized to establish and fix the compensation for, within the Public Health Service, not more than 30 positions, in the professional and scientific service, each such position being established to effectuate those research and development activities of the Public Health Service which require the services of specially qualified scientific or professional personnel: Provided, That the rates of compensation for positions established pursuant to the provisions of this subsection shall not be less than $10,000 per annum nor more than $15,000 per annum, and shall be subject to the approval of the Civil Service Commission. Positions created pursuant to this subsection shall be included in the classified civil service of the United States, but appointments to such positions shall be made without competitive examination upon approval of the proposed appointee's qualifications by the Civil Service Commission or such officers or agents as it may designate for this purpose."

(c) Sections 415, 425, and 426 of the Public Health Service Act are hereby repealed.

And to amend the title so as to read: "A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to support research and training in matters relating to rheumatism and arthritis, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, other neurological diseases, poliomyelitis, blindness, leprosy, and other diseases, and for other purposes."

Mr. THOMAS of Utah. Mr. President, I move that the Senate disagree to the amendment of the House, ask a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that the Chair appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to, and the Vice President appointed Mr. MURRAY, Mr. PEPPER, Mr. NEELY, Mr. TAFT, and Mr. SMITH of New Jersey conferees on the part of the Senate.

FEDERAL FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICE ACT—CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, as Members of the Senate know, under the parliamentary situation, at 1 o'clock today the Senate will vote upon the motion for cloture which was filed by 44 Members of the Senate on Monday last. There has been little said with respect to this cloture motion by any Member of the Senate, primarily because a few weeks ago a motion was made to consider Senate bill 1728, known as the FEPC bill, which is before the Senate at the present time, and a week or 10 days of debate was had upon the motion at that time. It must be obvious to everyone that in debating the merits of a motion to consider a pending measure it becomes necessary to debate the merits of the measure itself if debate is to be kept running for that length of time.

Under the parliamentary situation it was possible at that hour, had the Senators decided to do so, to wait until a certain amount of business had been transacted during the day, and then a second cloture motion would have been in order. In view of the fact that only 54 Members of the Senate voted on the cloture motion, it was plain to be seen that the filing of another such motion at that time, or immediately following the vote on the first cloture motion, would have resulted in practically the same vote.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. RUSSELL. I understood the Senator to say that only 54 Senators voted on the cloture motion. Fifty-four Senators voted in favor of the motion. I believe the Senator is in error in stating that only 54 voted on the motion.

Mr. LUCAS. The Senator is correct.

Mr. RUSSELL. As a matter of fact, 86 Senators voted.

Mr. LUCAS. The Senator is correct. Fifty-four Senators voted in favor of the motion to invoke cloture. Thirty-two Senators voted against it.

I should like to say to the Senate that since that time I have interviewed Senators on the Democratic side of the aisle and have talked to Members on the Republican side of the aisle with respect to filing a second cloture motion. I have done everything I thought was necessary, insofar as my persuasive powers are concerned, to advise, discuss, and debate this question with Members on the Democratic side of the aisle with the view of attempting to convince them that, irrespective of how they may feel about the merits of the measure, at least the Senate should be given an opportunity to discuss the measure by voting for cloture to take up the bill itself. In other words, we are now about to vote on the question of invoking cloture on a motion to take up the bill. Surely, Mr. President, Members of the Senate on both sides of the aisle should not deny the Senate of the United States the opportunity to consider the bill. That is all we are trying to do at the present time. Senators who sincerely, wholeheartedly, and tenaciously disagree on the merits of the bill itself should not deprive the Senate, in the first instance, of an opportunity at least to vote on the merits of the bill at a later time. In other words, Mr. President, if this motion should prevail, by having 64 Senators vote to take up the bill, as every Senator knows, under the parliamentary situation which would then exist, it would be necessary again to file another cloture motion, because Senators who are opposed to FEPC would immediately begin a debate, and I am sure a long debate, on the measure. The merits of the bill could be discussed from every conceivable angle. No motion for cloture, of course, would be filed until the merits of the bill itself had been thoroughly discussed and every Senator had been given an opportunity to state his position. That would be the second step, if we should reach the point where it became necessary to file a second motion for cloture upon the bill itself. It is at that point that it seems to me Members of the Senate who are definitely opposed to the Fair Employment Practices Commission Act should exercise their right of veto, so to speak, by voting against any motion for cloture.

Mr. President, all we are considering is a cloture motion relating to a motion to take up the bill. It seems to me that irrespective of how one may feel about the final outcome of the bill, or how he may feel about the merits of the bill, the Senate of the United States should not be deprived of an opportunity to consider the bill by the Senate voting against a motion to take it up. I appeal especially to my Democratic friends on this side of the aisle at least to give us an opportunity to take up the bill itself, and debate the merits of it pro and con.

Mr. President, it seems to me there never was a more propitious time in the history of our country than at this particular moment when a measure of this kind should be considered seriously by the Senate. I say that for the reason that men of our country are fighting and dying in Korea at this very time. When an individual went to the enlistment office and joined the Army, the Navy, or the Marine Corps in the District of Columbia, or at any other place throughout America, the officers did not ask him whether he was black or white, whether he was a Jew, a Catholic, or a gentile. If he had the mental and the physical stamina, they took him into the Army, the Navy, or the Marine Corps, and he may now be in Korea doing his duty, fighting for freedom and justice as we here in the United States understand those terms. The enactment of a bill of this kind at this hour would demonstrate to the countries of the world that, after all, we in America are in favor of legislation which has for its purpose the elimination of economic discrimination.

The bill is not aimed at my friends from the South. There is discrimination in the North; there is discrimination in my own State of Illinois; there is discrimination in the East and discrimination in the West, so far as minority groups are concerned.

Mr. President, I repeat words I spoke on the floor of the Senate sometime ago quoting a prayer that was offered by Chaplain Gittelsohn at burial services on Iwo Jima, when he said:

> Here lie officers and men, Negroes and whites, rich men and poor—together. Here are Protestants, Catholics, and Jews—together. Here there are no quotas of how many from each group are admitted or allowed. Among these men there is no discrimination. Theirs is the highest and purest democracy.
>
> To this, then, as our solemn, sacred duty, do we the living now dedicate ourselves: To the right of Protestants, Catholics, and Jews, of white men and Negroes alike, to enjoy the democracy for which all of them have here paid the price.

Mr. President, those were the words of a great man of the cloth. They express the kind of a feeling that exists in time of war when men, in defense of liberty and freedom and independence, are buried alike in cemeteries throughout the world.

So, Mr. President, at this particular time and hour it seems to me that by our actions here in the Senate, we should be able to demonstrate to the peoples of the world who are on our side that we shall not give the Communists in the Kremlin at Moscow an opportunity further to propagandize those whom we are attempting to keep on our side in this crisis by insinuating that we here in America discriminate from the standpoint of economic opportunity when it comes to the hiring of persons to do the work of the country.

Mr. President, I sincerely hope that when the yeas and nays are called we may have the necessary number of votes required to take up the bill itself.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I was not in attendance on the Senate at the sessions from May 8 to May 19, when the debate was held on the motion of the majority leader to consider the FEPC bill. However, I have checked the record of the debate for that week, and I have asked the Library of Congress to prepare for me an analysis of the amount of debate which was held on that particular motion during that week. That analysis has been prepared, and I ask unanimous consent to have it inserted at this point in the RECORD, as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the analysis was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Fair Employment Practices Act—Senate debate on S. 1728, May 8–19, 1950, statistical summary of space consumed in daily Congressional Record

Date and subject	Page Nos.	Inches
May 8, 1950: FEPC	6682-6706	213¾
May 9, 1950:
FEPC	6769-6775	75
Roll call	6775-6775	8
Kern nomination	6776-6777	32
President's western tour	6777-6783	176¾
FEPC: Peril of imported oil	6786	6
FEPC	6786-6797	109
May 10, 1950:
FEPC	6871	21¾
Reorganization Plan No. 12	6871-6889	479
May 12:
FEPC	7072-7073	36
Program for next week	7073-7075	45
FEPC	7075-7080	126
May 15:
FEPC	7090-7102	38
Message from the President	7102	6
George Washington Carver National Monument	7102	3
Unemployment in industries, Government spending	7104-7109	162
Soviet aggression plans	7109-7110	13
FEPC	7110-7112	72
May 16:
FEPC	7176-7193	459
Message from House	7193-7194	7
FEPC	7194-7201	189
Reorganization plan—
No. 7	7201	7
No. 4	7201	34
FEPC	7202-7216	351
May 17:
FEPC	7233	19
Confirmation of John W. Kern	7233	7½
FEPC	7234-7245	918
Reorganization Plan No. 7	7245-7268	1,690
Order of business	7268	6
UNESCO, etc	7268	12
FEPC	7268-7269	11
Assault on American competitive system	7269	18
Death of Mrs. James E. Murray	7269-7270	15
FEPC	7270-7274	96

Fair Employment Practices Act—Senate debate on S. 1728, May 8–19, 1950, statistical summary of space consumed in daily Congressional Record—Continued

Date and subject	Page Nos.	Inches
May 18:
FEPC	7292-7295	98
Call of the roll	7295-7296	7
Nominations in the Army and Marine Corps, FEPC	7296-7305	235
Domestic agricultural give-away programs	7305	18
Order of business	7305-7307	49
FEPC	7307-7313	159
ECA Act of 1948—amendment	7313-7317	109
Reorganization Plan No. 4	7317-7330	363
FEPC	7330-7331	24
May 19:
FEPC	7386-7388	69
Transaction of routine business	7388-7393	118
FEPC (vote on cloture)	7393	21

RECAPITULATION

Total:
On FEPC		3,414
On other matters		2,835

Typical page 27 inches; average column 9 inches

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, a further analysis shows that the majority, individual, and minority views were filed on May 5, the same day when the Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS] moved to have the Senate take up the FEPC bill, S. 1728. Debate began on Monday, May 8, and the FEPC bill was discussed for a total of 9 days.

I now ask the unanimous consent to have incorporated at this point in the RECORD, also as a part of my remarks, this additional analysis of the statistics of that debate, showing the number of Senators who voted for and the number of Senators who voted against the motion made by the majority leader.

There being no objection, the analysis was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Supplementing the statistic on FEPC debate in May supplied by the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, the following may be useful.

Majority, individual, and minority views were filed on May 5, the same day that Senator LUCAS moved that the Senate take up the bill, S. 1728.

Debate began on Monday, May 8, and FEPC was discussed a total of 9 days, viz: May 8, 9, 10, 12, 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19. Vote on the cloture petition came on May 19, and cloture failed of the necessary 64 votes by a vote of 52 to 32.

A total of 10 Senators spoke in favor of the motion to take up (really in support of the bill) Senators THOMAS of Utah, IVES, BENTON, LEHMAN, FERGUSON, SALTONSTALL, HUMPHREY, LUCAS, HENDRICKSON, and MYERS.

A total of 8 Senators spoke against the motion. Senators RUSSELL, HILL, JOHNSTON, GEORGE, HOLLAND, LONG, STENNIS and MAYBANK.

According to somewhat rough calculations, the proponents of the motion and bill used 146 columns of the RECORD (35 percent) while the opponents used 274 columns (65 percent) out of the 420 columns devoted to the subject.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, knowingly, at least, I have never run away from an issue in my life. I would be less than honest if I did not frankly confess on the floor of the Senate today that the present parliamentary situation puts me in a very embarrassing as well as a difficult position, because I believe that the filing of a cloture motion in advance of an actual filibuster on the floor of the Senate is a misuse and an abuse of the cloture rule.

However, I am also aware of the fact that, as the Senator from New York [Mr. IVES] pointed out in the debate the other evening, considerable discussion has taken place in the Senate on the question of whether the FEPC bill should be considered. Although I should have preferred that no cloture motion be filed on that question in advance of an actual filibuster, yet I am frank to confess that I have to agree with the Senator from New York that there has been full debate on the procedural point as to whether or not the bill should be taken up.

Accordingly, although I do not like the idea of filing a cloture motion in advance of a filibuster, I will today vote for cloture.

However, Mr. President, I wish to say an additional word about the situation in which we find ourselves, because I have no intention ever of "kidding" the minority groups in the country. I am satisfied that for the most part this cloture petition is a grand political gesture. I think it is well known in the Senate at this very moment that there is not a snowball's chance of getting this particular cloture motion adopted. I am not interested in merely building up political records. I am interested in accomplishing what the Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS] so eloquently spoke about a moment ago, namely, some civil rights legislation, because in my opinion, civil rights legislation passed by the Congress of the United States at this session would have a powerful effect the world around in this great contest for men's minds, in this great battle around the world as to whether or not——

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, it is quite immaterial to me whether or not there is order in the Senate at this time. I wish to save time, and I shall finish my remarks over the humdrum of conversation, if necessary.

The VICE PRESIDENT. However, it makes a good deal of difference to the Chair.

Mr. MORSE. I realize that, and I appreciate the Chair's courtesy.

Mr. President, it will make a great deal of difference in the world, in this fight for freedom, whether or not the democratic forces here in the United States put into effect the full meaning of the Constitution of the United States. Let me say that the full meaning of the Constitution will never live in the United States until the President's civil-rights program becomes law.

What is the road block which prevents the passage of civil-rights legislation? Let me say to my friends on the Republican side of the aisle that it is my judgment that the road block to the passage of civil-rights legislation by the Congress is the Wherry resolution, which requires a so-called constitutional two-thirds vote for the application of cloture in the Senate. Let me say that, in my judgment, the Republican Party has an obligation to the American people, if the Republican Party really wants civil-rights legislation enacted, to repeal the Wherry resolution. Until the Wherry resolution is stricken from the rule book of the Senate we shall have an insurmountable road block which will prevent the passage of civil-rights legislation in the Senate. The kind of political gesture which is taking place in the Senate today will not produce civil-rights legislation.

Mr. President, let me also make clear that I am not interested in any arrangements that any coalition may work out in the Senate for the passage of some minor phase of a civil-rights program. I am interested only in putting into legislative effect what I consider to be the spirit and intent of the constitutional guaranties of equality of opportunity and equality of justice for all persons in America, regardless of race, color, or creed. In order to accomplish that objective, we must look to the rules of the Senate. The rule we must remove from the books is the Wherry resolution, which requires the presence on the floor of the Senate of 64 Senators voting for a civil-rights program. We are not going to get a civil-rights program, in my judgment, so long as that rule is on the books.

Therefore, Mr. President, I say to my Republican friends that at this session of Congress we have another opportunity to demonstrate to the minority groups in the United States whether or not we want an effective cloture rule in the Senate. If we want an effective rule, then we must get rid of the so-called constitutional two-thirds requirement, in order to end debate on civil-rights legislation.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, first I should like to ask the Members of the Senate to understand the absolute facts about the vote which was taken recently in the Senate on the question of invoking cloture. Earlier today the distinguished majority leader [Mr. LUCAS] said that the vote which occurred at that time was 54 in favor of the cloture motion, and he also stated the number of Senators who were in attendance at that time.

Actually on that date 84 Senators voted on the cloture motion. Of that number, 52 voted in favor of the cloture motion, and 32 voted in opposition to the adoption of the cloture motion to end debate. Those are the facts before the Senate today.

Mr. President, the distinguished junior Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE] objects to the present cloture rule, and states that it is the reason for the failure of the Senate to pass proposed civil rights legislation. He has a perfect right to his opinion, because he believes that a majority in the Senate should determine whether or not a cloture motion should be adopted, either on the question of taking up proposed legislation or on the question of the final vote on it. He thinks that issue should be determined by a majority of the Senate. I think he was numbered along with approximately 7 or 8 other Senators who voted in favor of majority rule in that connection, when that question was before the Senate.

Of course he can continue to argue about the so-called Wherry rule, and he can continue to argue that it is the one hurdle which prevents the passage by the Senate of proposed civil rights legislation. However, the fact is that on the vote taken the last time this question was before the Senate, when only 52 Senators voted in favor of the adoption of the cloture motion, it made no difference whether the rule was the Wherry rule for a constitutional two-thirds or a rule requiring the favorable votes of two-thirds of the Senators then present and voting—in short, the rule we had prior to that time, which did not apply to a motion to consider a measure and which, therefore, was ineffective for closing debate.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nebraska yield to the Senator from Ohio?

Mr. WHERRY. So I say that is ample evidence and justification to refute entirely the position taken by the junior Senator from Oregon. The only way in the world he can get what he wants is to adopt a majority rule. I should like to say that he has a perfect right to endeavor to change the rule at any time he wants to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nebraska yield to the Senator from Ohio?

Mr. WHERRY. It has been several months—in fact about a year—since the old rule was changed, and if any Senator wants to change it, he has a perfect right to offer a resolution proposing to change it.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nebraska yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield.

Mr. TAFT. If the Wherry rule had not been adopted, and if the voice of the distinguished majority leader had been followed and the entire matter dropped, today we could not even have a cloture motion, and could not vote on a cloture motion. Prior to the so-called Wherry rule cloture could not be invoked on the question of a motion to take up. So, it seems to me that the argument of the distinguished Senator from Oregon is absolutely and completely unsound. There would be no cloture today. The Wherry resolution, for the first time since I have been in the Senate, has given us an opportunity to vote for cloture on a motion to take up a measure such as the FEPC bill.

Mr. WHERRY. I thank the distinguished Senator from Ohio for his observation. I should like to go further.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a brief answer?

Mr. WHERRY. I shall be glad to yield, but I hope the Senator will not take up all my time between now and 1 o'clock. He has made one speech already.

Mr. MORSE. The Senator may put the watch on me for 20 seconds. I should like to ask the Senator from Ohio, What good is a rule which permits cloture on a motion to take up, if there is attached to the rule the requirement of a vote which it is impossible to get in the Senate of the United States?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I do not agree with that statement at all. This is the first time the test has ever been made. Undoubtedly there will be others as time passes.

That brings me to my second argument. We hear the distinguished Senator from Oregon complaining about the Wherry rule. Under any rule whereby cloture can be employed to end debate, certainly those who advocate proposed legislation should rise on the floor and argue its merits. If the distinguished Senator from Oregon wants to have a cloture motion adopted, whether it be on the basis of a constitutional two-thirds majority, or a two-thirds majority of those present and voting, or a constitutional majority, it is his office to convince the Members of the Senate that the bill he supports has sufficient merit, if you please, to take care of any debate under a cloture motion. Yet, I ask Senators to search the RECORD. Where was the junior Senator from Oregon when the motion was made? Where was the junior Senator from Oregon, and where is he now? Has anyone come forward with a constructive, meritorious argument in favor of this proposed legislation? Has anyone tried to aid in getting sufficient votes to make up the two-thirds majority required under the cloture rule? Oh, no. Look at the record.

If I am asked why I have not done it, my answer is—and I am going to be brutally frank with the minority—that I do not believe in the FEPC legislation in the form in which it is now before the Senate. I am sincere about that. But I will state that I believe the time has come when we should terminate debate and agree to a motion to take up. I think, however, that the Members of the Senate should write an FEPC bill which will be acceptable in the four corners of the United States. On that basis, I am perfectly willing to vote for cloture, in order to bring the measure before the Senate, and enable it to perfect such a bill. That is my position, and it is as sound as the Rock of Gibraltar.

Those who are now complaining and trying to hide behind the requirement for a constitutional two-thirds majority come, I think, all too late to argue about taking up the bill they have not discussed, or put forth any constructive effort to convince the Members of the Senate that it is at least beneficial legislation. That is the point at issue this morning.

Of course, as the distinguished majority leader has said, this is only a question of applying cloture to a motion to take up. But in order to take up the bill, the debate has to run further than merely to the motion; the debate must run to the merits of the bill, so that Senators may be induced to vote for cloture on the motion to take up the measure, in order that it may be considered and, if possible, passed. I refer to the bill that is to come before the Senate.

So, Mr. President, the junior Senator from Oregon can continue to condemn the Wherry rule if he so desires, but I want to say to him that he has not offered an amendment to change it, and, furthermore any Senator who proposes such an amendment should make up his mind that in order to have it adopted it will be necessary to break a filibuster in the United States Senate. There was nothing about the Wherry rule which changed the meaning of the rule in a manner to accomplish the purpose for which the Senator from Oregon is now contending, and behind which he is now hiding; not at all. If it is desired to pass an FEPC bill Senators must make up their minds that they must break a filibuster, and I am one who will assist in such an effort, if the Senate will constructively undertake it.

In closing the third argument I want to advance is the argument which was advanced by the distinguished Senator from Ohio [Mr. TAFT]. For the first or second time in all the years of the Senate's history, we now have an opportunity to end debate upon a motion to take up.

I am for a rule requiring the affirmative votes of two-thirds of those present and voting on a cloture motion. With the distinguished Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN], I, as a member of the Committee on Rules and Administration, sponsored a resolution providing such a change in the rule; but we were not able to have it adopted by the Senate. We obtained the best rule that could be adopted in the face of a filibuster which, it seemed, could not be broken. We have not yet broken it, and I doubt whether it can be broken. But if that can be done, the rule can be amended, in my opinion, so as to provide on a cloture motion for a two-thirds vote of those present and voting. Until such a change is made, we today have a better rule than we ever had before. We have a chance to get up for consideration proposed legislation which is meritorious, to debate the issue on the floor and perfect the bill, and, if possible, pass it. So we have the best rule from the standpoint of workability that can be obtained under the circumstances.

I am perfectly willing to join any other Senator who wants to reduce the requirement of the constitutional two-thirds to two-thirds of those present and voting; but until that time comes, I am perfectly willing to work along with a constitutional two-thirds majority, because it gives us an opportunity, if legislation is meritorious, to end debate on a motion to take it up, and thus get the issue before the Senate.

The junior Senator from Oregon, instead of kicking the Wherry rule and sabotaging it, should lend his support to making the rule workable, so long as it is on the books, and until it can be modified in a manner that will suit his views.

So, Mr. President, I join the majority leader, who, I believe, has done his level best in the effort to get a vote on the motion to consider the FEPC bill. I am ready to vote today or tomorrow or next week or any other time on a cloture motion, in order that this proposed legislation may come before the Senate, if it possibly can be brought before the Senate. I only hope—and I say this sincerely, and devoid of any politics, in any way, shape, or form—that the time has come when it would please the American people if the Senate of the United States would perfect an FEPC bill which would be acceptable not only to the Congress but to all the segments of the population of the United States.

Mr. RUSSELL obtained the floor.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for an insertion in the RECORD?

Mr. RUSSELL. I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania for the purpose of making an insertion in the RECORD, without jeopardizing my right to the floor.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have inserted in the RECORD at this point in my remarks a statement which I have prepared, urging agreement to the pending cloture motion.

There being no objection, the statement of Mr. MYERS was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR MYERS URGING CLOTURE ON FEPC MOTION

Periodically, Mr. President, I remove from the unfinished business files in my office a heavy stack of folders labeled "Civil Rights—FEPC."

There is a folder for each session of Congress, and the entire file runs back for a number of years. These files record the story of what is perhaps the most persistent legislative battle ever waged before the Senate. Page after page of debate, carefully clipped from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, packs these folders. There are also summaries of roll-call votes—the few that we have had bearing on the issue of FEPC—summaries which break down, by Republicans and Democrats, the votes for and the votes against, the limitation of debate.

The folders contain, too, scholarly articles describing the experience obtained under FEPC programs in operation on State and local levels. And there are, as well, innumerable copies of letters, telegrams, and newspaper accounts which throw light on some of the many phases of this complex issue.

I am certain, that to many Americans, the story recorded in these files is a story of failure. It is the story of a search for freedom not yet found. It is a length and unfinished chapter in the long history of men's struggle to achieve the brotherhood of man.

Until the FEPC chapter of that history is brought to its close, many will continue to regard it as a story of failure.

We who serve in the Senate today have it within our power to put many of the finishing touches on the FEPC chapter. A total of 64 of the 96 of us, voting together to invoke cloture on this much-debated issue, can do the trick.

When I look back over the material in my files on FEPC, I find myself going over, not once, but repeatedly, the previous votes we have taken where efforts have been made to bring FEPC to a vote squarely on its merits.

In terms of this Eighty-first Congress, I have invariably taken as my starting point the historic vote of March 11, 1949, when 41 Senators—25 Democrats and 16 Republicans—voted to sustain Vice President BARKLEY's interpretation of the then existing Senate Rule XXII. I realize, of course, that of the 41 Senators who believed the term "pending measure" meant any matter before the Senate, there were at least two Senators who, though they agreed with the Vice President's interpretation, would not have voted for FEPC legislation.

Assuming, then, that 2 of the 41 Senators who supported the Barkley ruling would not subsequently agree to limit debate on FEPC, I have started with what I would regard as a hard core of 39 Senators who, through thick or thin, will stand steadfastly behind attempts to get FEPC enacted.

I am of course aware that among the 46 Senators who did not agree with Vice President BARKLEY'S interpretation of rule XXII there were quite a number of Senators who indicated at the time that they did support FEPC, but that they did not believe the term "pending measure" applied to any matter before the Senate. I am sure that the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] was among the foremost in that group who supported FEPC, but nonetheless felt impelled to vote against the Barkley interpretation. The Senator from Michigan made his position in this quite clear: He firmly believed that the old rule XXII was limited in its application to matters which had become the pending business of the Senate—and that no cloture petition would lie on a motion to take up a measure. He also stated his belief that the Senate rules should be changed to broaden the scope of the cloture rule—but he felt this should be done by wearing out a filibuster, rather than through what he regarded as a stretched construction of the old Senate rule.

I want to make it clear right now that I respect the integrity of the Senator from Michigan in this matter completely, and I respect those who sided with him for the same reasons. On the other hand, I did not agree with his interpretation. I believed, and still believe, the old rule XXII did cover any matter that came before us.

However this may be, 45 other Senators voted with the Senator from Michigan, and the interpretation given the rule by the Vice President was not agreed to. As I indicated earlier, some, at least, of the 46 who opposed the Barkley ruling indicated their support of FEPC legislation.

Thus, from a starting point of 39 Senators who were certainly behind FEPC, it was clear that an unknown number of the 46 who voted against the Barkley ruling would agree to limit debate on FEPC when the issue was brought squarely into focus. The revised rule XXII, adopted 6 days after the vote on the Barkley ruling, cleared the air in several important respects.

First, it established the definite requirement that 64 affirmative votes were needed to limit debate in the future. This meant that in addition to the 39 votes that could be relied upon as a consequence of the vote on the Barkley ruling, there were 25 more votes required.

In the second place, the new rule clarified the matter of interpretation which led to the famous vote on March 11 of last year. Henceforth, cloture may be applied on any "measure, motion, or other matter pending before the Senate, or other unfinished business." But the new rule contained one all-important exception: There was no means whatsoever by which the Senate could hereafter change its rules without facing the prospect of an unlimited debate. A further change in Senate rules was placed in a special, sacred category—and if we ever seek in the future to lower the present requirement of 64 affirmative votes to apply cloture, we will be compelled to break a filibuster in order to do it.

From the moment the new cloture rule went into effect, there was much conjecture as to its effectiveness. Many, including myself, regarded the new rule as a retrogressive step. For one thing, the old rule required no fixed number of votes in order to limit debate. It merely required that two-thirds of those voting could impose a limitation on further debate.

There have been 20 instances altogether in which the Senate has voted on cloture petitions. The most recent of these occasions occurred May 19 of this year on a cloture petition comparable to the one now before us. I do not need to remind any Member of the Senate that the vote of 52 to 33 in favor of cloture was insufficient to meet the new requirement of 64 votes—nor do I need to dwell on the point that the recent vote failed to meet the old requirement of two-thirds of those voting.

The remaining 19 cloture votes in the Senate applied under the rule XXII as it previously existed. All told, cloture has been applied successfully in only four instances. In 1919, debate was limited on the Versailles Treaty by a vote of 78 to 16; in 1926, by a vote of 68 to 26, cloture was applied on the World Court issue; the following year, 1927, saw the last two cases in which debate was limited—by 65 to 18 on the branch banking bill, and 55 to 27 on a bill creating a Bureau of Customs and a Bureau of Prohibition.

It is noteworthy that there has been no successful cloture vote now for 23 years, and it should also be pointed out that in no instance has cloture been successfully applied to any civil-rights issue.

I want to return for a moment to the vote taken on May 19. This was the historic test of the revised rule XXII. This vote came, as everyone knows, after the Senate and the Nation had been put on notice of the date and hour that the cloture vote would occur. Our goal was 64—and we fell short by exactly a dozen votes. It is true that the figure of 52 votes in favor of cloture on FEPC represents the high-water mark in terms of the number of Senators willing to limit debate on this issue—the highest previous cloture vote on civil rights occuring in 1946 when 48 Senators voted for limiting debate on FEPC and were opposed by 36—thus failing to obtain the necessary two-thirds.

But, Mr. President, our attempt on May 19 of this year to bring FEPC to an unobstructed vote on its merits fell shy by 12 votes of the goal set last year at 64. We will, in a few short minutes, test once more the effectiveness of the new rule XXII. Our goal—as it was on May 19—is to obtain a total of 64 votes in favor of cloture.

I have gone over the voting record of May 19, not once, but many times, since that occasion. I have added and subtracted names from the columns of yeas and nays. I have sought in every way I knew how to find some way in which, on this occasion, we could wipe out our deficit of 12 votes needed to make FEPC the pending business of this body.

At this point, I am compelled to say that I can see one way—and one way only—that we can bring to a successful close the FEPC chapter in the history of our efforts to bring about the brotherhood of man. The way to success lies squarely in the hands of a minimum of 12 Members of the Senate.

Therefore, I address my appeal to you—you 12 Senators—who can, by joining with the 52 of us who supported the cloture petition in May, enable us to reach the goal of 64 votes. If you did not vote on May 19—because you may have been ill or absent on necessary business—I pray that you are now restored to health and that you will be here, standing with us, when the cloture vote is taken.

If you were 1 of the 33 Senators who voted against cloture this spring, I beseech you to reexamine your earlier stand. Are you sure? Do you question at all the position you took on May 19? In addressing those of you who have opposed cloture in the past, I intend no implication that you are insincere in the stand you have taken. I know you as my friends. I know you to be men of integrity and men devoted to your duty. I know you to be men who reason your way carefully through to the stand that you take on this, or any other issue.

But on the issue of FEPC which is now before us, there are implications of national, and for that matter, world-wide importance at this time. We understand this. Few matters have been so thoroughly debated as the one now before us.

As we meet here today, forces of the United Nations with many Americans among them are engaged in the vital task of putting down a grave threat to the future freedom of mankind. This same freedom, in which all of us so ardently believe, is much involved in the question now before us. Freedom is not a piecemeal affair. Freedom is the whole fabric.

We stand now in a position to strike a telling blow for the opportunity open to a substantial number of Americans, in all sections of the country—Americans of many origins.

So, Mr. President, I pray that when we stand up to be counted this afternoon that there will be a sufficient number among the ranks of those who, by sincere conviction, believe we must take the step of putting into practice a policy which will in the course of time remove from millions of our people the curse of second-class citizenship.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, it is seldom indeed that I can agree with any statement made by the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE] with respect to what I regard as being the misnamed civil rights program. I can, however, heartily agree with his criticism of the unusual—indeed, the bizarre procedure that is taking place on this floor today in the name of a vote on a motion to end a debate in the United States Senate that does not exist. There has been no debate whatever upon the motion except the statement made by the distinguished Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS], who reiterated in large part a speech which he made upon another occasion.

Mr. President, the opposition to taking up the bill and making it the unfinished business of the Senate is not capricious and arbitrary. Any Senator who has any knowledge whatever of the question knows that the entire procedure, not merely the debate today, has been shot through and through with politics. Here we have a bill of the most revolutionary character, a bill which will impose controls on American industry and business at a time when the Nation stands, perhaps, upon the threshhold of dangers greater than we have ever before known, and yet the bill has been reported to the Senate without a single hearing, without having allowed anyone an opportunity to offer amendments, and without any recommendation of the committee which considered it. This is contrary to the custom and the rules respecting all proposed legislation. Never before during my tenure in the Senate has a bill of this magnitude been brought before the Senate and seriously proposed to the American people, far-reaching as it is in its effect, without permitting those who would be affected by it an opportunity to come before a committee and enjoy the right of petition which the Constitution of the United States seeks to assure to all our citizens.

The procedure today, Mr. President, is not only political, but it strikes at the very fundamentals of the rights of free men, by distorting the system of parliamentary procedure of the Senate in order to bring before the Senate and to push through without allowing us to debate the issue, a bill which is, perhaps, as controversial as is any other issue before the American people.

Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Illinois made the emotional appeal that men of all colors, of all creeds, and of all races are dying today in Korea. I do not dispute that. He says that unless we pass legislation of this kind we are furnishing an argument to the Communist philosophy which threatens to engulf the entire world, including our own beloved country. That may have an appeal to the emotions, but it does not address itself to common sense. Carried to its last analysis it might be inferred that upon their return the boys who are going overseas to fight should be given absolutely equal economic status in this Nation. The effect of such argument is to say, "Let us introduce a bill to divide up equally all the wealth and all the blessings of the United States equally among all our people."

I submit, in all seriousness, Mr. President, that we cannot reach any other conclusion if we follow to its logical end the argument of the Senator from Illinois.

No, Mr. President; men are fighting and dying in Korea in order to preserve the institutions of free men. The hallmark of the American system of free enterprise is the right to own and control property. If we pass a bill of this kind which permits a Federal agent to take over the property of men, which they have accumulated through their own efforts, and tell them who shall operate the property, not only whom they shall employ, but whom they shall promote, who shall manage the property—indeed, he might go even further than that and say who shall sit upon the board of directors of an institution—we shall be striking down the American system just as though we were supporting the entire Communist philosophy.

It is most unfortunate that this bill had to be brought forward again. The Senator from Illinois several weeks ago made a motion to proceed to its consideration. Notice was served repeatedly by the majority leader and the minority leader as to the time the vote would be taken. All Senators were apprised of the fact that the vote would be taken. Indeed, under the very nature of the cloture rule, every Senator has 48 hours' notice as to when a vote will be had. There is practically no place in the world today from which Washington cannot be reached within a period of 48 hours. Notice was served and a vote was had. The bill was laid aside. Now another motion has been made to proceed to its consideration. In the interim no hearings were held on the bill. The time was not utilized to give the American people an opportunity to express their opinion. It was not used, Mr. President, to permit Members of the Senate to present amendments to the committee so that they might be carefully considered. Instead, we are presented again with this naked bill containing many pages of language capable, in many instances, of devious construction, which was reported by the committee without consideration, without hearings, and without offering an opportunity to consider amendments.

Mr. President, we are right back where we were before, so far as the merits of the measure are concerned.

I am aware of some of the forces behind this bill. I realize that they are strong enough and possess the political power to bring it up again within a few days if they see fit to do so. I know that if we remain in session for as long as 3 or 4 weeks, and if some persons in this country wish to have another cloture vote upon this compulsory, jail-sentence FEPC bill, we shall undoubtedly have another cloture vote.

The political implications involved should not blind us to the fact that all the procedure which has been followed in connection with the bill is in derogation of our parliamentary system. It is calculated to take away the rights of free men, not only with respect to this proposed legislation, abolishing, as it does, the right of trial by jury, giving to little Federal bureaucrats greater power than that which has ever before been enjoyed by them, even in time of war, but it will interfere with our industrial system and cause unspeakable confusion at the very time when we are likely to be called upon for greater production of arms and implements to defend America. All these considerations, Mr. President, will be waved aside if the minority groups behind this bill come forward and demand another opportunity for another vote.

No reason has been offered to cause those who oppose the bill to relax their efforts. The proponents present no reason whatever for any man to change his vote. Instead, Mr. President, present circumstances appeal to the judgment of those who in good faith voted for cloture in the past. There is today sound reasons for them to change their position and say that this fiasco should end, that this travesty upon the Congress of the United States and our parliamentary system should no longer continue. A majority of the Members of the Senate should rise up and vote against this second motion for cloture in order that we may not be bedeviled with similar procedure throughout the remainder of the calendar year 1950 when so many dangers threaten our country and our people.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, I congratulate the junior Senator from Oregon both for his decision to vote for cloture, and for his suggestions regarding necessary future procedure for the application of cloture to shut off debate and to bring civil rights legislation to a vote.

I listened to the moving address—not an emotional address—of the majority leader, and I cannot see how any Senator can fail to be convinced by the statements made by the majority leader.

The distinguished Senator from Georgia referred to the majority leader's address as an emotional appeal, and made the statement that what we are trying to do is to hamstring industry, commerce, and the capitalistic system.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I attributed no such purpose to anyone. I said that was my opinion of the effect of it.

Mr. LEHMAN. If I may continue, I should like to say to the Senator from Georgia that what is being done here today in the Senate and what has been done is to say to many of the men who are fighting on the battlefields of Korea—Negroes, and members of other minority races, "You are good enough to fight for your country, you are good enough to risk your lives; you are good enough to die, but if by good fortune you come back safely, you are going to be second class citizens again, without the rights which other American citizens possess." This fight for equality in employment, education, civil and political activities must go on. In this good fight, I am proud to be on the side of democracy.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, all time for debate has expired.

The Chair lays before the Senate the motion of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS] that the Senate proceed to consider S. 1728, a bill to prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, color, religion, or national origin. Under the rule, the clerk will call the roll.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hickenlooper	Martin
Anderson	Hill	Maybank
Benton	Hoey	Millikin
Brewster	Holland	Morse
Bricker	Humphrey	Mundt
Bridges	Hunt	Murray
Butler	Ives	Myers
Byrd	Jenner	Neely
Capehart	Johnson, Colo.	O'Mahoney
Chapman	Johnson, Tex.	Robertson
Chavez	Johnston, S. C.	Russell
Connally	Kefauver	Saltonstall
Cordon	Kem	Schoeppel
Donnell	Kerr	Smith, Maine
Douglas	Kilgore	Smith, N. J.
Dworshak	Knowland	Sparkman
Eastland	Langer	Stennis
Ecton	Leahy	Taft
Ellender	Lehman	Thomas, Okla.
Ferguson	Lodge	Thomas, Utah
Flanders	Long	Thye
Frear	Lucas	Tydings
Fulbright	McCarran	Vandenberg
George	McCarthy	Watkins
Gillette	McClellan	Wherry
Graham	McFarland	Wiley
Green	McKellar	Williams
Gurney	McMahon	Young
Hayden	Magnuson
Hendrickson	Malone

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that the debate shall be brought to a close? Under the rule, the Secretary will call the roll. Those who are in favor of the motion will answer "yea" when their names are called. Those who are opposed to the motion will answer "nay" when their names are called.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. CHAPMAN. My colleague, the junior Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] is absent by leave of the Senate. If he were present, he would vote "nay."

Mr. MYERS. I announce that the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR] is absent by leave of the Senate. If he were present, he would vote "yea."

I also announce that the Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'CONOR] is absent by leave of the Senate on official business, having been in attendance at the sessions of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, Switzerland, as a delegate representing the United States.

The Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER] is absent because of the death of Judge Curtis Waller, a personal friend, whose funeral is being held today.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY], and the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY] are absent by leave of the Senate. If present and voting, the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN] and the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY] would each vote "yea."

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 55, nays 33, as follows:

YEAS—55

Aiken	Humphrey	Myers
Anderson	Hunt	Neely
Benton	Ives	O'Mahoney
Brewster	Jenner	Saltonstall
Bricker	Kem	Schoeppel
Butler	Kilgore	Smith, Maine
Capehart	Knowland	Smith, N. J.
Chavez	Langer	Taft
Cordon	Leahy	Thomas, Okla.
Donnell	Lehman	Thomas, Utah
Douglas	Lodge	Thye
Dworshak	Lucas	Tydings
Ferguson	McCarthy	Vandenberg
Flanders	McMahon	Watkins
Frear	Magnuson	Wherry
Gillette	Martin	Wiley
Green	Millikin	Williams
Hendrickson	Morse
Hickenlooper	Murray

NAYS—33

Bridges	Hayden	McClellan
Byrd	Hill	McFarland
Chapman	Hoey	McKellar
Connally	Holland	Malone
Eastland	Johnson, Colo.	Maybank
Ecton	Johnson, Tex.	Mundt
Ellender	Johnston, S. C.	Robertson
Fulbright	Kefauver	Russell
George	Kerr	Sparkman
Graham	Long	Stennis
Gurney	McCarran	Young

NOT VOTING—8

Cain	O'Conor	Tobey
Darby	Pepper	Withers
Downey	Taylor

The VICE PRESIDENT. Fewer than the required number of 64 Senators having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the motion just voted upon be withdrawn, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 7786, the appropriation bill which the Senate has heretofore been considering.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. MORSE and Mr. IVES addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair holds that the previous agreement entered into, to lay aside temporarily the motion to take up Senate bill 1728 and proceed to the consideration of the appropriation bill, remains in effect.

Mr. LUCAS. Then I withdraw the request I have made.

Mr. RUSSELL. A parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. RUSSELL. The pending question then, after the conclusion of the appropriation bill, would be the motion of the Senator from Illinois?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator is correct.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER].

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, there has been some discussion among Senators on both sides of the aisle, members of the Committee on Appropriations and others, as to the possibility of obtaining a unanimous consent agreement to expedite the debate upon the amendments to the appropriation bill and the bill itself. No definite arrangement has been made, but I should like to explore the situation to ascertain whether it may not be possible to obtain a unanimous consent agrement that 5 or 10 minutes be allowed each Senator on each amendment. If we could agree to limit the debate to 10 minutes upon any amendment for any individual Senator who desired to speak, I am sure we could move along expeditiously in the consideration of the appropriation bill. I wonder if the Senator from Nebraska, the distinguished minority leader, has any ideas along that line.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I assure the majority leader that there is no disposition on this side of the aisle to hold up debate on the amendments. However, I am wondering if the distinguished majority leader will not withhold the request until the conclusion of the debate today, for the reason that some of the amendments which are to be offered have not yet been presented, and it might be that as to one or two of those amendments additional time might be required. I will say to the distinguished majority leader, however, that after today we will see if there is not a possibility of working out some kind of an agreement which will be acceptable. I do not wish to go on record as saying that it can be done, but I feel it is impossible to do it until after today's debate. Then we will see if some arrangement cannot be worked out.

Mr. LUCAS. I thank the Senator. I understand the situation, and I will not proceed with the matter any further at present.

In view of the fact that nearly all Senators are present at this time, I should like to announce that immediately following the disposition of the appropriation bill we will proceed to a call of the calendar, for the consideration of measures to which there is no objection, beginning where we left off at the last call.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Illinois yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. MAGNUSON. On the calendar there are several bills, including two or three maritime bills, which were called the last time and went over on objection. I wonder if there would be objection to going back to those measures, if no objection were interposed.

Mr. LUCAS. I believe the Senate would be rather lenient in the case of any bill which has heretofore been objected to, and it is now found that the Senator sponsoring the bill is in a position to iron out the differences which existed. If objection is not further interposed, I would have no hesitancy returning to such bills.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER].

THE CLOTURE RULE

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I did not reply to the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY] prior to 1 o'clock because of the fact that the Senate was scheduled to vote at that hour, and I considered it only fair that other Members of the Senate be allowed to speak on the then pending subject matter, especially in view of the fact that the junior Senator from Oregon had spoken once during the debate, as the Senator from Nebraska pointed out. However, I do not want the RECORD of today to close without showing the position of the junior Senator from Oregon on the various arguments advanced by the Senator from Nebraska.

It is well known, I think, that the Senator from Nebraska and the junior Senator from Oregon differ fundamentally on the entire approach to the question of cloture. If we needed evidence as to the unworkability of the present cloture rule, which is the product of the so-called Wherry resolution, the vote just taken in the Senate supplies such convincing evidence. We had a very minor question before the Senate, so far as the civil-rights program is concerned. We had truly only a procedural question, a parliamentary question before the Senate—a very simple question, Mr. President, as to whether or not the Senate of the United States would apply the Wherry rule in taking up a bill on civil rights. We could not get the constitutional two-thirds vote even to take up the bill, to say nothing about succeeding in obtaining cloture that would stop debate on the bill itself so that we could vote on its merits. I submit that the vote just taken in the Senate of the United States shows the complete unworkability of the Wherry resolution.

Now a word or two about some of the arguments of the Senator from Nebraska. I am very sorry that apparently I caused some pique on the part of the Senator from Nebraska, because since the debate he has told a couple of my colleagues that he has taken all he intends to take from the junior Senator from Oregon. Let me say to the Senator from Nebraska that so far as the junior Senator from Oregon is concerned, he intends to continue to maintain on the floor of the Senate his position on the merits of issues as they come before the Senate, irrespective of whether it pleases or displeases the Senator from Nebraska.

The Senator from Nebraska asked, Where was the junior Senator from Oregon during the week that this motion was before the Senate, from May 8 to May 19? I will tell the Senator from Nebraska where the junior Senator from Oregon was. He was in the State of Oregon campaigning against the Republican candidate whose political views I consider so similar to the views of the Senator from Nebraska that I thought it was important that I go to Oregon and do everything I could to defeat him in the primary. That is where the junior Senator from Oregon was from May 8 to May 19.

Let us now turn to the question of the record of the junior Senator from Oregon in regard to the Wherry resolution. The Senator from Oregon has fought the Wherry resolution. He fought it at the time it was before the Senate. He has fought it ever since. He has kept in very close touch with the Senate as to whether or not the time has yet come to secure any revision of the Wherry resolution. It is true, as the Senator from Nebraska has pointed out, that the junior Senator from Oregon stands for a majority-vote rule in the Senate of the United States for the ending of debate, and he is going to continue to fight for a majority-vote rule. He will go along, as on one other occasion he told the Senator from New York [Mr. IVES], with a modification of the Wherry resolution short of a majority-vote rule, if that is the best he can get.

Mr. President, I submit that the Morse resolution, which provided for a majority vote rule for the stopping of debate in the Senate also provided proper safeguards to assure adequate debate after cloture was invoked in the Senate of the United States. Let us look at the record. What did the Morse resolution provide? It provided that after cloture had been filed each Senator would be allowed 2 hours of debate, if he wished to consume 2 hours of time, and he would be allowed an opportunity to farm out the 2 hours if he did not wish to use it himself. That is the position of the Senator from Oregon.

I want to say that in my personal judgment the Wherry resolution is an insurmountable road block to the passage of civil rights legislation. It was such an insurmountable road block today that we could not even have adopted by the Senate a motion to consider the FEPC bill on its merits.

I repeat, Mr. President, until we change that kind of a rule the Senate cannot possibly keep faith with the great minority groups who I think are now being discriminated against from the standpoint of race, color and creed.

I will go along with the Senator from Nebraska on the basis of any fair and reasonable modification of any proposed FEPC bill which is presented to the Senate. If the bill that was before the Senate needs amendment, and it can be shown that the amendments will be fair, if it can be shown that amendments are needed in order to protect legitimate interests on the part of employers, as referred to by the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], if he can prove his case, the junior Senator from Oregon will vote for those amendments. But I say, Mr. President, we at least should have a cloture rule which would make it possible for a bill to come before the Senate and to be considered and voted on on its merits. Unless some coalition deal is worked out, Mr. President, which will permit, from the standpoint of political gesturing purposes, a vote on some minor civil rights legislation, we will never get a civil rights bill before the Senate for a vote on its merits until the Wherry resolution has been repealed.

I should like to say to the Senator from Nebraska that the first time I become convinced that a proposal to modify the Wherry resolution has a ghost of a chance of being adopted by the Senate of the United States, the junior Senator from Oregon will submit the Morse amendment. As I have said before I will go along with the Ives proposal which provides for less than the constitutional two-thirds majority. But the junior Senator from Oregon wants the Senator from Nebraska thoroughly to understand that in his judgment the Wherry resolution is a disservice to the Republican Party.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, the Senator from Oregon has not raised one point in his answer to my argument that has in any way substantiated what he himself advocates. The Senator from Oregon said that the vote just taken shows that the Wherry rule is unworkable. I call the attention of the Members of the Senate to the fact that, so far as the final result is concerned, it would not have made any difference whether the old two-thirds rule had been in effect, or whether we were working under the constitutional two-thirds rule. The motion failed of adoption because it received only 55 votes, as against 33 votes. Everything the Senator has said refutes his own argument, because it would not have made any difference if the Wherry rule had not been in effect.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I will yield to my friend from Florida, but I wish to say I had not intended to get into a long debate on this subject.

Mr. HOLLAND. Is it not true that, under the vote just had, cloture would have failed even if the committee rule which was proposed at the time the so-called Wherry rule was adopted, had been adopted, since less than two-thirds of those present voted for cloture?

Mr. WHERRY. That is certainly true, I will say to the Senator from Florida, and I thank him for his observation.

I do not want to prolong the controversy. I will say, however, that the vote just taken clearly and conclusively proves the contention of the Senator from Nebraska. The only remedy the Senator from Oregon has is to change the rule. The Wherry rule did not change in any way the procedure by which a rule of the United States Senate can be amended. We come right back to the argument that, if we want to secure action, we have to break a filibuster in the United States Senate. That is the answer to the whole argument of the Senator from Oregon.

So far as personal arguments are concerned, I will say I do not want to engage in them. My duty as minority leader is to do my level best to get along with other Senators. I hope and pray that the Senator from Oregon will see the light and not again stand on the floor and condemn the Wherry rule as being the impediment to securing action upon a civil-rights measure, when even under the rule heretofore in effect such action would not have resulted from the vote just had. Furthermore, the old rule did not apply to a motion to consider a measure, and thus left wide open the opportunity to filibuster.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I should like to say another thing. The so-called Wherry rule applies not only to civil rights measures; it applies to every measure that may come before the United States Senate. I say in all seriousness that I believe that when a measure is brought before the Senate, and it is thoroughly debated, and its merits are known, we do now have a relief for which the Senate has been fighting for 160 years, and that is finally an opportunity to vote on a motion to take up. If the Senator wants to modify the rule he has a perfect right to attempt to do so. He believes in cloture by a majority vote. I do not. I never have. Of course I am open to conviction, but I will say that I simply do not believe in it. I believe that a measure ought to be a meritorious one before a group of 49 Senators can force termination of debate on it on the floor of the United Seates Senate. In fact by the present rule we have gone a very long way toward terminating debate on a motion to take up an opportunity which was not afforded under previous Senate rules for 160 some years.

I am perfectly willing to join hands in a movement to modify the rule so as to have it provide for the invoking of cloture by the affirmative votes of two-thirds of the Senators then present and voting. In fact, that was my recommendation in the first place.

However, I am not in favor of a rule which would provide for the invoking of cloture by majority vote. I have many arguments which, at some time, I should like to advance, if necessary, against a proposed rule for the invoking of cloture by majority vote. I would favor a rule as I have said, providing for the invoking of cloture by a two-thirds vote of those present. The vote had today in the Senate proves that the adoption of the Wherry rule has had no effect whatever on the question of the passage of civil rights measures by the Senate, but even under a rule providing for a vote of two-thirds of those present there would not have been sufficient votes to invoke cloture on the question of taking up such bills.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HOEY in the chair). Does the Senator from Nebraska yield to the Senator from Oregon?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield.

Mr. MORSE. Has the minority leader ever found the Senator from Oregon wanting in full cooperation to break a filibuster?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, instead of saying that I have not found him wanting, I say that, to the contrary, at times he has been a difficult problem because it has been difficult to stop him from filibustering. [Laughter.]

So, Mr. President, the situation is just the reverse of what the Senator from Oregon has said; and if we had not had the rule based on the Wherry resolution, there would have been absolutely no possibility of stopping a filibuster on the question of taking up a bill.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, if the Senator from Nebraska will further yield, let me inquire whether he has checked the statistics and has discovered whether or not the adoption of the Morse resolution to stop filibusters would have changed the situation resulting from the vote just had?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, as I recall the Morse resolution, it required that a constitutional majority of the Members of the Senate vote in favor of the adoption of a cloture motion—which would mean 49 favorable votes in the Senate. Therefore, of course, such a rule would have ended debate today, under the situation existing in the Senate at this time.

Mr. MORSE. No; the Morse resolution requires the favorable votes of a majority of the Senators present and voting on the question of invoking cloture.

Mr. WHERRY. Very well; in such case, debate would have been ended today, by the invoking of cloture.

Mr. President, let me say that I am opposed to such a rule, because I think it would result in the termination of debate in the Senate by the action of too few of the Members of the Senate. I am not in favor of such a rule, and I will not vote for it.

However, I say that under the old rule, even if it applied to motions to take up a measure—the rule existing before the Wherry resolution was put into effect—there would have been no difference as a result of the action taken today in the Senate. Therefore, the facts of the matter refute every argument the Senator from Oregon has made today against the Wherry rule or Wherry resolution.

Mr. MORSE. Of course, I am not seeking to change back to the old rule. Accordingly, it is rather specious to say that if we had the old rule we would be no better off.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, the Senator from Oregon has indicted the Wherry rule and has endeavored to indict me. He seems to be pleased to place the burden upon my shoulders. I simply wish to say for the RECORD that the Republican conference took action favoring the adoption of that rule; and as the floor leader for the Republicans in the Senate, I put that decision into motion. The Republican conference itself took action favoring the adoption of that rule. I am not shying away from it, for I think it is a good rule; and until it can be modified, I think it is a great benefit to the Members of the Senate, in connection with the termination of debate.

Mr. IVES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I am glad to yield.

Mr. IVES. I should like to ask the Senator from Nebraska whether he does not recall that the action taken by the Republican conference in that connection was not binding upon the Republican Members of the Senate.

Mr. WHERRY. Certainly.

Mr. IVES. Furthermore, there were at least half a dozen of us who voted against the Wherry resolution.

Mr. WHERRY. Yes, I think there probably were seven or eight who voted against it; I am not sure. Of course, that is their privilege.

Mr. President, I am not now debating the merits of a rule which would provide for the invoking of cloture by the favorable votes of a constitutional majority of the Senate; neither am I now debating the merits of a rule providing for the invoking of cloture by the favorable votes of a majority of the Senators present and voting. I am merely saying that every indictment and argument the junior Senator from Oregon has made against the Senator from Nebraska and the present Senate rule providing for the invoking of cloture as a result of the favorable votes of two-thirds of the Members of the Senate has been repudiated by the action taken today by the Senate.

In today's Senate vote, with 64 affirmative votes needed to apply cloture on the motion to consider the FEPC bill, 22 Democrats voted "yea." This is 42 percent of the 54 Democrat Members of the Senate.

Of the 42 Republicans, 33 voted "yea," or 78 percent of the entire Republican Members of the Senate. The 55 votes for cloture were 4 votes short of two-thirds of the 88 Senators present and voting.

The result of the vote had today in the Senate shows conclusively, definitely, and positively that even if the Wherry resolution were not in effect and even if we were operating under the old rule, cloture would not have been invoked. That is all I care to say on that particular point.

Mr. President, the time will come, let me say, when we shall be very thankful to have in effect the two-thirds rule for the termination of debate on a motion to take up a measure, because prior to the adoption of that rule there was absolutely no possibility of breaking a filibuster on a motion to take up a measure. The Senator from Oregon knows, as does also the Senator from New York, that before the adoption of the Wherry resolution, it was impossible to terminate debate in the Senate on a motion to take up a measure.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I am glad to yield.

Mr. MORSE. The Senator from Nebraska has spoken of the fact that the Wherry rule was acted upon favorably at the Republican conference. However, is it true that the chief author of the Wherry resolution was the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, credit for being the chief author of the rule must be divided equally among many Senators who were trying to get the Senate to adopt the best possible rule, because at that time we were up against a blank wall, so far as concerned securing any change at all in the cloture rule then existing.

The resolution providing for the so-called Wherry rule was introduced by the junior Senator from Nebraska with 51 cosponsors of whom 22 were Republicans and 30 Democrats.

So in what we did at that time, we were doing our level best to secure the adoption of the best rule we possibly could have the Senate adopt in the circumstances then existing.

If it were not for the present rule, the so-called Wherry resolution, the Senator from Oregon, who is complaining about it today, would not even have had a chance to have the Senate terminate debate upon a motion to take up a measure in the Senate. Some day he will use this rule and will be very thankful that he has it to use. I hope that when that time comes, the measure in regard to which he uses the rule will be sufficiently meritorious to persuade the Senate to go along with him and to give him a constitutional two-thirds vote.

In the meantime, it is the privilege of the Senator from Oregon or the privilege of the Senator from New York to submit any amendments to the rule which they may care to submit. The Wherry rule does not in any way prevent the Senate from making a change in the procedure in regard to the invoking of cloture. Yet if the Wherry rule is revoked, we go back to the old rule; and in that case Senators must realize that there would be absolutely no chance to break a filibuster here in the Senate.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I am glad to yield.

Mr. MORSE. The Senator from Nebraska is aware, is he not, that both the so-called Morse resolution and the so-called Ives resolution contain provisions in regard to the invoking of cloture on a motion to take up a measure identical in effect and purpose with the Wherry resolution. The difference between the Morse-Ives resolutions and the Wherry resolution is not on the question of invoking cloture on a motion to take up a measure but on the number of votes required to impose cloture.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, let me say that I am a member of the Committee on Rules and Administration; and if the Senator from New York or the Senator from Oregon wish to submit a proposed change in the cloture rule, I shall give it every consideration; and of course they can also bring up such matters on the floor of the Senate.

But unless the situation changes—and the vote taken today in the Senate shows that it has not changed—we might just as well be prepared to break filibusters either by means of obtaining for that purpose the favorable votes of a constitutional two-thirds of the Members of the Senate or on the basis of the rule requiring the favorable votes of two-thirds of the Senators then present and voting.

Mr. President, I am a reasonable man, and I am perfectly willing to abide by any rule which the Senate itself desires to have adopted.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield.

Mr. MORSE. I do not think there is any chance of changing the present situation regarding the invoking of cloture so long as the Wherry rule remains in effect.

I wish to point out that the great attribute of the Wherry resolution, which the Senator from Nebraska has been praising today, is a section which provides for cloture on a motion to take up a measure. The Ives and Morse resolutions also support cloture on motions to take up a measure but they differ from the Wherry resolution on the number of votes required to apply cloture.

Mr. WHERRY. I think that is true. I wish to say that the Senator from New York and the Senator from Oregon contributed greatly in the attempt to change the rule.

However, let me say again that my point is that we have done the best we could do to obtain whatever modification we could obtain of the old, unworkable rule.

On the other hand, I think the Senator from Oregon in attacking me has done a considerable disservice in connection with the question of changing the rule; and I know that what I have stated as to the facts of the matter is absoluely correct.

COMMUNISTS IN GOVERNMENT SERVICE—DESTRUCTION OF RECORDS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT

Mr. McCARTHY obtained the floor.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me, to permit me to make a brief statement, with the understanding that by doing so he will not lose the floor?

Mr. McCARTHY. I shall need only about 5 minutes to present my remarks, and then I shall yield the floor.

Mr. President, this morning I sent to the President of the United States a letter and the photostats of six documents. I felt that this material might be of some interest to the Senate, and, therefore, I sent to the Senate Chamber copies of each of the photostats and copies of the letter to the President, with the request that a copy of each be placed upon the desk of each Senator.

I understand that copies were placed upon the desks of all Republican Senators, but that the clerk for the majority, upon the advice of the Democratic majority leader, the Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS], decided not to place copies on the desks of the Democratic Senators.

Mr. President, I think this material is certainly not of such nature that it should be restricted to only one of the parties. I believe it is certainly of just as much interest—and perhaps more so—to the Democrats as it is to the Republicans. Therefore, in view of the fact that I was unable to have this material placed on the desks of Democratic Senators, I intend to read some of it into the RECORD.

Mr. President, there has been considerable discussion pro and con as to the condition of the State Department's so-called loyalty files, and in the minds of many persons there has been considerable question as to whether or not the so-called loyalty program is working adequately.

The Presiding Officer will recall that the grand jury which recently was dismissed in New York discussed the subject in some detail, and pointed out that the loyalty program was most inadequate to protect the security of the Nation.

I have before me, Mr. President, four affidavits which are of a rather startling nature. These affidavits were made by persons who had nothing to gain by making them. In fact, one of the individuals, who is now working in the State Department, runs the risk of losing his job if his name becomes known.

One statement which I shall read was made by a person employed in the State Department. Another affidavit is by a young man who is now working for Sears, Roebuck & Co., and, I believe, going to school on the side. The third affidavit was made by a young man who is now a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and who also worked for the State Department for some time. The fourth affidavit was made by a young man who is in the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University, and who also worked for the State Department for some time.

Mr. President, as the Senate will recall, in the latter half of 1946 it became general knowledge that the President was about to inaugurate or put into effect a loyalty program. At that time the attention of Congress and of the country was focused upon this subject of Communtists and disloyal people in the Government by the Marzani case. The Senate will recall that Marzani was a high State Department employee who was convicted in connection with his communistic activities.

At that time, the President—and wisely so, I believe—commenced planning a loyalty program, apparently for the purpose of avoiding future Marzanis within the State Department and within other branches of the Government. That Presidential order was signed early in 1947. The Congress appropriated $11,000,000 to implement the Executive order. We find from these affidavits that when it became known that the President was about to inaugurate a loyalty program, someone within the State Department—and, as of this time, I do not know who—initiated the most fantastic project I have ever heard of. He hired a total of at least eight individuals, four of whom made affidavits which are now in my possession. The task of those individuals was to go to the files, and, using their own judgment, to destroy and to tear from the files any material of a derogatory nature, either insofar as the communistic activities, morals, or anything else on any employee, were concerned. It apparently was a tremendous project, which lasted at least 5 months. I intend to read to the Senate the affidavits of some of the individuals who took part in this unusual project. It will be understood that the individuals whose files were being rifled were not being protected at that time from any congressional committee. They were being protected from the President's own loyalty program.

Affidavit No. 1:

I, Francis Eugene Brien, age 25, make this statement. No promises have been made to me to furnish this statement. If called upon I am willing to relate the facts in this statement.

I reside at 1709 North Roosevelt Street in Arlington, Va., near Falls Church, Va. In August 1946 I went into the Walker-Johnson Building of the State Department at New York Avenue and Eighteenth Street. I filled out an application form and started working a couple of days later on August 15 in the State Department personnel files. My employment was only temporary for the duration of a file project.

Listen to this, if you will, Mr. President:

I and the other clerks received instructions orally and by a form paper that we were to go through all the State Department personnel files and remove all papers, letters, memorandums, and reports except administrative forms containing the employee's application, background information, and Ramspeck raises and administrative forms of that nature. We worked on this project removing the papers from the files until December 31, 1946. After all of the papers were removed from the files, they were thrown into wastebaskets and cardboard boxes. The remaining administrative papers I have described remained in the files and the files were taken to adjoining offices next to the big file room where the information left in the file was typed on a card.

One of the other affidavits is by the man who did the typing of this material on the card.

I can't recall now any specific case but I do know that all papers, reports, memorandums which reflected on the State Department employee were removed from the file and disposed of in wastebaskets and boxes except the papers I have described. I did not actually take part in destroying the papers but, after we threw the papers in the baskets and boxes, the next day the room was cleaned up and I presume the charwoman took care of emptying the baskets and boxes. I do not recall being told why we were stripping the files of all material except the administrative forms. George Copp was the supervisor in charge of myself and the other clerks on this project.

Let me make it clear here that while Mr. George Copp's name appears as supervisor I have no way of knowing at this time whether Copp was doing this on his own initiative or whether he merely received orders from someone higher up. I assume that this was not Copp's own project, and that he was merely a man working under orders of someone higher up in the department.

I recall at first George Copp stated we had to complete this project in 3 months. I don't see how he could possibly have estimated such a short time, but finally he told us that he had to extend the deadline till the end of December 1946.

The Senate will remember that that is the time when the new Congress took over.

George Copp was always telling us to hurry and get the job done; otherwise he would be made the "goat." He said this so many times that we nicknamed him "the goat."

I left in the State Department in December 1946 because my temporary assignment as clerk was finished.

I have read this statement of three pages and it is true.

That is one statement. The next statement—and, Mr. President, keep in mind that here we have the picture of a State Department project for the destruction of files which cost millions of dollars and millions and millions of man-hours to produce. This statement was made by a State Department employee. I have cut out those sections of the statement which would indicate who signed it. I have informed the President, however, that if he will personally assure me that this man will not lose his job because of having given this statement I will make the name available to him—after first getting this man's permission, of course. Here is the statement:

The following is information I am giving freely and voluntarily, without any promises whatsoever. I furnish this information because it is the truth.

There is a section eliminated, showing where this man is now working and what his duties are. The statement continues:

In August 1946 I started working as a clerk in the State Department at the Walker-Johnson Building, at Eighteenth and New York Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. I was assigned to a project with other clerks on the State Department personnel files. We all were instructed to remove all derogatory material from the personnel files, and we were instructed to dispose of this material. The derogatory material consisted of letters, memorandum which reflected on the employee.

I can't remember any specific file, because we all worked on so many files. But we worked on this project from August till the end of December 1946. All of the derogatory material in the files was destroyed or thrown away. I can't recall what reason was given to me and the other clerks as to why the derogatory material was being pulled out of the file and destroyed.

I am furnishing this statement only in strictest confidence, and furnish it for the purpose of information only, being assured that no publicity will be given to me on furnishing this statement. I have read this statement of two pages and the facts are true.

We next come to the statement of a young man who is now a special agent in the Federal Bureau of Investigation. At the time the facts which he states occurred he was not working for the FBI. I now read his statement:

JULY 11, 1950.

I, Burney Threadgill, Jr., make this statement without any promises whatsoever. I make this statement in order to tell the truth.

In the fall of 1946 I contacted a Mr. Holcombe who was personnel placement officer for the State Department at the Walker-Johnson Building. He advised me that he would hire me only as a temporary clerk on a file project of the State Department files. I started working in the State Department files at the Walker-Johnson Building around November 1, 1946. I worked for about 6 weeks on this file project. My duties were to take the file which contained the qualifications of the State Department employees, background forms, and administrative promotions, and type this information on a card for that employee. The files were brought to me and placed on my desk.

This is the young man who took the cleaned-out files and made out a new card on each individual. He stated that he personally did not know what occurred in the file room. He took no part in rifling the files himself.

I continue to read:

This project was being performed apparently on some sort of deadline date because George Copp who was supervisor over the clerks on this project was often telling me and the others that we had to get the job done and that it had already passed a deadline and that he had arranged to extend the deadline and that if we did not meet the new deadline it would reflect on his efficiency.

I do not know or recall what the other clerks were doing with the files before I received them because I was at a desk and had the files brought to me where I typed the contents on a card as I previously stated in this statement. I do recall that the files brought to me contained the original application, administrative forms such as Ramspeck promotions and transfers. I also recall that some very few contained investigative reports.

This project was very confused, hurried, and very little supervision of the clerks. I recall talking to one of the other clerks (I can't recall his name at this time) when he told me that he knew some of the employees of the State Department had come to the files and removed the derogatory material which was in the file on themselves.

So we find that not only were there eight individuals on this file job, but the State Department employees themselves came in and cleaned out their own files.

I continue reading:

I was located in an office where I did not see or have reason to go into the big room where the files were. The following is a plan where I was located.

He drew a plan of the room in which he was located, which was some distance from the file room.

The statement then continues, as follows:

I have read this statement of three pages and it is true.

The other statement on this particular phase of the case was made by a young man who is now in his third year at Georgetown University, in the Foreign Service School. His statement is as follows:

JULY 6, 1950.

The following information is given by me freely and voluntarily without any promises whatsoever. I furnish this information because it is the truth and I feel it is my patriotic duty to furnish the facts as I experienced them.

I am living at 1902 North Fifteenth Street, Arlington, Va., at the present time.

In August 1946 I was released from the United States Navy in California. I came to Washington, D. C. and while in Washington, D. C., I was looking for a job. I went into the Walker-Johnson Building of the State Department at Eighteenth and New York Avenue NW. I talked to a fellow in the State Department by the name of Holcombe. I got a temporary clerical job in the files at the Walker-Johnson Building. These files were the departmental personnel files located in the Walker-Johnson Building. I started work on these files in September 1946. When I reported for duty I was told that I would be working on a project on these files. This project had been going on for some time before I started. There were at least eight persons who were working on this project.

I was not formally and specifically instructed as to what the purpose of the project was, but from what I was instructed by the other clerks, I and the other clerks were to go through each personnel file and pull out all derogatory material from the file. In addition to the usual personnel forms, the files contained all kinds of letters, reports, memorandum concerning the individual person. As per instructions I received, all of the clerks on this projects were to pull out of the files all matters considered derogatory either morally or politically.

The project was very confused but I and the other clerks pulled out of each personnel file any material which could be considered derogatory. This material was removed and some was thrown in wastebaskets by us and some was thrown in a cardboard box. I don't know what happened to the derogatory material we pulled out from the files but I do know of my own knowledge that a good lot of it was destroyed.

I do not recall details of each personnel file I examined, but the material I pulled out of the files pertained to either the morals of the person or in some way reflected on his or her loyalty.

Listen to this, Mr. President:

I recall one thick report on one State Department employee who was accused of being a photographer and a member of some subversive organization which published some sort of news report. This was removed from the file and disposed of.

I worked from September till the end of December 1946, working on this file project, pulling out and disposing of the derogatory material as per my understanding given me.

I left on December 31, 1946, and this project on the personnel files was still not finished, but my temporary appointment ran out and my employment with the State Department ended.

I can't recall who the official in charge of these files was. I met him only a very few times, but I could easily recognize him if I saw him.

I have read this statement of three pages and the facts are true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Mr. President, as will be recalled, when I first presented to the Senate a résumé of the material on some 81 individuals who were either then working in the State Department or had been working there, I pointed out to the Senate, and repeatedly before the committee, that if Communists, fellow travelers, and so forth, were to be really exposed and gotten rid of, it would be necessary to get not only the loose-leaf State Department files which had been so thoroughly cleaned up, but also to obtain the FBI files, the Civil Service Commission files, and where any individuals had been investigated by the Army, Navy, or Secret Service, we should also obtain those files.

When the President finally made the State Department skeleton and thoroughly denuded files available, I pointed out on the Senate floor that the files were useless and that they had been completely rifled. Shortly thereafter the chairman of the investigating committee held a press conference. I want to quote what he said at that time, as reported in the New York Times in an article written by William S. White.

I ask unanimous consent to place this article in its entirety in the RECORD, as well as an article appearing in the New York Herald Tribune on the same subject.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the New York Herald Tribune of June 22, 1950]

TYDINGS ASSERTS FBI CLEARED STATE DEPARTMENT FILES—SAYS CHECK-UP SHOWED NO LOYALTY DATA TAMPERING AS CHARGED BY MCCARTHY

(By Raymond J. Blair)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A check by the FBI has failed to substantiate Senator JOSEPH R. MCCARTHY'S charge that 81 State Department loyalty files have been "raped" to eliminate damaging evidence, Senator MILLARD E. TYDINGS, Democrat, of Maryland, said today.

Senator TYDINGS is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigating charges by Senator MCCARTHY, Republican, of Wisconsin, of communism in the State Department. The loyalty records were made available to the Tydings subcommittee May 4 by President Truman. Senator MCCARTHY recently charged they had been "raped, skeletonized, or tampered with" so that they did not contain all of the relevant material.

Senator TYDINGS told reporters that upon hearing Senator MCCARTHY'S charge, he asked the Justice Department to investigate. Today he received the Department's report, he said, in a letter from Peyton Ford, assistant to Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

The report said, Senator TYDINGS stated, that a study by FBI agents had shown the files were "intact" and that all FBI material on the 81 individuals involved, whom Senator MCCARTHY has accused of Communist leanings, was included.

Senator TYDINGS also said that study of the files would be completed by the subcommittee Sunday night. It was not clear, however, whether this program was acceptable to all subcommittee members.

[From the New York Times of June 22, 1950]

MCCARTHY IS HELD REFUTED ON FILES—TYDINGS SAYS FBI REPORTS DOSSIERS NOT TAMPERED WITH—GROUP TO END EXAMINATION

(By William S. White)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Senate investigators will close on Sunday night their 2-month examination of 81 confidential State Department loyalty files and will return them at once to the administration.

This was disclosed today by Senator MILLARD E. TYDINGS, Democrat, of Maryland, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee that has been intermittently reading the dossiers in the White House in its investigation of Senator JOSEPH R. MCCARTHY'S charges of communism in the State Department.

At the same time, Mr. TYDINGS asserted that a special inquiry by the Federal Bureau of Investigation had established as false Mr. MCCARTHY'S accusations that the files had been "raped" before being turned over to the subcommittee.

A letter just received from Peyton Ford, First Assistant Attorney General, stated, Senator TYDINGS added, that a special inquiry made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation produced the following results:

"That the files are intact, that they have not been 'raped, skeletonized, or tampered with' in any way and that the material turned over to the State Department by the FBI is still in the files."

"Thus," Mr. TYDINGS added, "the MCCARTHY charges are not sustained by the facts." He declared himself unable to give out the text of Mr. Ford's letter because it would disclose the names of some the persons whose files were under study.

Mr. MCCARTHY. Mr. President, I shall read very briefly from the New York Times article:

Senate investigators will close on Sunday night their 2-month examination of 81 confidential State Department loyalty files, and will return them at once to the administration.

This was disclosed today by Senator MILLARD E. TYDINGS, * * *.

At the same time, Mr. TYDINGS asserted that a special inquiry by the Federal Bureau of Investigation—

I call the Senate's attention to this statement—had established as false Mr. MCCARTHY'S accusation that the files had been "raped" before being turned over to the subcommittee.

A letter just received from Peyton Ford, First Assistant Attorney General, stated, Senator TYDINGS added, that a special inquiry made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation produced the following results:

"That the files are intact, that they have not been 'raped,' skeletonized, or tampered with in any way, and that the material turned over to the State Department by the FBI is still in the files."

"Thus," Mr. TYDINGS added, "the MCCARTHY charges are not sustained by the facts."

Mr. President, in this connection I ask unanimous consent to have inserted in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a letter from Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, dated July 10, 1950.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION,
DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., July 10, 1950.

Hon. JOSEPH R. MCCARTHY,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR: I have received your letter dated June 27, 1950, inquiring whether this Bureau has examined the 81 loyalty files which the members of the Tydings committee have been scrutinizing and whether such an examination by the FBI has disclosed that the files are complete and that nothing has been removed therefrom.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has made no such examination and therefore is not in a position to make any statement concerning the completeness or incompleteness of the State Department files.

For your information, the Federal Bureau of Investigation furnished Mr. Ford, at his request, a record of all loyalty material furnished the State Department in the 81 cases referred to. For your further information, I am enclosing a copy of Mr. Ford's letter to Senator TYDINGS which I have secured from the Attorney General.

Sincerely yours,

J. EDGAR HOOVER.

Mr. MCCARTHY. In view of what is contained in the press release which I have just read to the Senate, I should like to read the second paragraph of Mr. Hoover's letter, as follows:

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has made no such examination and therefore is not in a position to make any statement concerning the completeness or incompleteness of the State Department files.

Mr. President, in view of the contents of the last two documents which I have inserted in the RECORD, I think it should be clear to the Senate why I decided to send this material directly to the President. I hoped that he would act. Another reason for doing so was that when I originally developed and exposed information showing Communists, fellow travelers, and traitors in the State Department the President condemned my methods and said I should have brought the information directly to him and he would have acted. I shall give him that opportunity to act at this time.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the letter I sent to the President. I do not desire to insert the entire letter, because in portions of it I refer to the activities of the chairman of the committee in an uncomplimentary manner which may constitute a violation of Senate rules if they were inserted in the RECORD. Therefore I should like to ask unanimous consent to insert in the RECORD at this point the letter I sent to the President with the exception of the paragraphs I have marked out on page 4, and the paragraph which I have marked out on page 5.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JULY 12, 1950.

The PRESIDENT,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: Today American boys lie dead in the mud of Korean valleys. Some have their hands tied behind their backs, their faces shot away by Communist machine guns.

They are dead today not because they were less brave or had less to fight for than the North Korean Communists who manned those machine guns, but because the program adopted by this Congress to avoid just such a war in Korea, and signed into law by you, Mr. President, was sabotaged.

Last year Congress voted money to fortify South Korea and to help anti-Communist forces in the entire Asiatic area. One item of $75,000,000 was appropriated; another of $27,600,000; another of $10,300,000.

As you and all of us know the program for military aid to South Korea was sabotaged to the extent that only $52,000 worth of wire out of the above millions appropriated was sent to Korea with which to stem the threatened onslaught of Communist planes, tanks, artillery, etc.

While the Russians were sending to North Korea tanks, artillery, and planes, our State Department "experts" on the Far East were sabotaging our program to militarily aid the Korean Republic, and Secretary of State Dean Acheson was announcing to the world that we would not aid the South Koreans if they were invaded. We can assume that not only were the North Koreans listening, but Stalin as well.

Two of those State Department experts, Mr. Jessup and his superadviser, Lattimore, were telling the world that Korea did not count in the Far East defenses of democracy. Lattimore, as you will recall, Mr. President, publicly stated that our only problem in Korea was to let her fall without having it appear that we pushed her to her doom.

It does not seem improper, Mr. President, to ask at this time why it is that Mr. Acheson could expedite a $60,000,000 order of guns and bullets for Communist Poland, but did the opposite for the anti-Communist forces in South Korea.

Obviously, as President you must rely on the advice of others. Men, both great and small, have been betrayed by advisers in the past. It is understandable that a President can be betrayed by his political friends. But it is not understandable nor excusable if he keeps those political friends in positions of power after they are exposed as betrayers not only of him but of the Nation.

At this time I would like to bring to your attention documented facts showing how your own well-meaning program to clean the subversives out of government, which program was initiated in 1946, was sabotaged by those advisers whom you apparently still trust. In 1946 the attention of Congress was directed to disloyalty in the Government when the Carl Marzani case was broken. As you know, he was one of the top State Department employees convicted of perjury in connection with his communistic activities.

In reponse to the growing demand in Congress at that time, you ordered, and Congress later approved, a Federal loyalty program. Eleven million dollars was appropriated to put that program into effect.

The proof of how this program was sabotaged is attached hereto in the form of photostats of signed statements from people who were hired by the State Department to assist in the job—people who now come forward with nothing to gain and at least one of whom has a job to risk by giving this information.

One of these individuals now works for the State Department. Another is a third-year student at Georgetown University; a third is in private industry; a fourth is presently an FBI agent.

You will note that the name and other job information contained in the statement of the State Department employee has been blocked out in the photostat. This was done because this man gave the statement only on the condition that his name not be used and he got no publicity in connection therewith. However, if you will give me your personal assurance that his job will not be endangered thereby, I am sure I can obtain his consent to let his name be given to you.

Three of the four innocently, as far as they were concerned, took part in a file stripping operation fully described in the statements. Their statements refer to the files as personnel files. These files became the present loyalty files after the loyalty program was put into effect. They were hired by the State Department and paid with public funds to destroy files which had been built up at tremendous cost and labor in order to protect the security of this Nation.

This information is being brought to your personal attention for two specific reasons:

(1) When I started to expose Communists, etc., in the State Department, you condemned my methods and stated that if I had brought the information to you, you personally would have taken the necessary steps to correct the situation.

* * * * *

I attach hereto a photostat of two clippings—one from the New York Times, the other from the New York Herald Tribune, quoting Mr. TYDINGS. The other is a letter from the FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover.

I call your attention to paragraph 2, which reads as follows:

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation has made no such examination and therefore is not in a position to make any statement concerning the completeness or incompleteness of the State Department files."

(Paragraph omitted.)

For those reasons this material is being presented directly to you, Mr. President.

There are those who have made pleas for unity in this time of crisis. I join them in that plea, but I must define that unity to the point where it will have meaning for those we send today to Korea to fight and die.

We must all be unified in our loyalty to this Nation. There is no place in a hot war for men with lukewarm loyalty.

There was never a place for them in the cold war. But they were there.

Even in normal times, the information given you would be shocking. Today, however, it is doubly shocking because of the disastrous sequence of events in Asia, which today has brought us to the very precipice of defeat by the Communist half of the world. It reveals the groundwork laid for keeping and protecting people in the State Department who are unfit to serve this country.

Why would the State Department find it necessary to strip the files unless the information, when placed before the loyalty boards, would have caused the removal of those individuals? The stripping was successful to the extent that this Nation was and is being betrayed. For proof you need merely look upon the chain of events which have led to repeated disaster for the United States and victory for Russia in Asia.

Today Korea is the crisis area. Where will it be tomorrow if the same men act as your advisers and mold your thinking, Mr. President?

The magnitude of this file-stripping operation is better understood when you realize that it took 6 months to strip the State Department files of information on the disloyal, the bad security risks, the fellow travelers, and the traitors, and it took a crew of eight to do the job.

You will note that the statement of one of the young men who took no part in the file-stripping job, but who had the task of making out cards on the clean files, shows that he was advised that State Department employees were allowed to inspect and rifle their own files.

If this was an accepted procedure during the cold war, what is now being done in fraud and deceit now that the real day for the traitors to do their work is at hand?

Someone in the State Department ordered the files stripped. Who was he? He must be found, Mr. President. And when found you decide how close he is to the top of the list of those who pledge their allegiance to the Soviet Union. You decide whether he is merely a dupe or guilty of high treason.

There are those who say we should not now spend time searching for those responsible for the disasters of the past few years. Common horse sense dictates, however, that in order to protect America in the critical weeks, months, and years ahead we must determine who in positions of trust seek to betray us, and then act to get them out of Government. If allowed to remain, they will undoubtedly tip the scales for disaster and against victory for this Nation.

Respectfully yours,

JOE MCCARTHY.

THE KOREAN SITUATION

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. President, 16 days ago President Truman ordered the Armed Forces of the United States to defend South Korea against unprovoked Communist aggression from the north.

This was a courageous and mature decision.

Free men everywhere welcomed and applauded the President's action.

On June 28, I wrote a letter to the President in which I said in part:

Your action gives a new and noble meaning to freedom, gives purpose to our national resolve and determination, and affirms convincingly America's capacity for world leadership.

Having chosen this course, there is no turning back. Greater tasks and more grave hours await up on the road ahead.

Mr. President, those grave hours are now upon us.

To the limited extent of my abilities, I hope today to underline the gravity of this moment in our history and to suggest a minimum program of action which I believe should be undertaken immediately.

It is not my purpose to criticize. In this hour of peril, partisan criticism and reckless fault-finding is a luxury which would serve the cause of our enemies more successfully than it would serve the cause of freedom.

However, we must be candid; we must be blunt.

We must deal with the facts as they are, not as we would like them to be.

Since I first came to Congress in 1937 as a Member of the House of Representatives, I have been directly associated with the problems of our national defense, first as a member of the Naval Affairs Committee, then as a member of the Armed Services Committee of the House, then as a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, and now as a member of the Committee on Armed Services.

This experience has spanned some of the most critical years of our country's existence.

But I sincerely believe that never before, during my experience, has the Nation been in such grave peril as it is at this moment.

We are outnumbered—outnumbered seriously. There is little likelihood that this numerical superiority can be overcome, or even that the odds can be equalized, at least for many months to come.

Our equipment—our tanks, our guns, our planes—is plainly inadequate in quantity, it is not the right kind, and it is not at the right place.

Our problem of supplying our troops in South Korea is overwhelming. The prospects for correcting this situation are bleak.

In the face of this situation, we cannot rationalize, we cannot temporize. We cannot win this war by relying upon platitudes about "ultimate victory." Ultimate victory cannot be achieved unless we concentrate upon immediate victory.

This enemy we face is well trained, well equipped, well counseled, and well directed.

This enemy we face is ruthless and cold-blooded.

American boys who have fallen into the hands of this enemy are dying with their hands tied behind their backs. Many already have died this slaughterhouse death—died from bullets fired in their faces. Many more may die this death before the fighting ends.

This is a horrible crime. How much more horrible it will be, though, if this Government and this Congress tie these boys' hands behind their backs by acting too slowly, too cautiously, with too much consideration for the comfort of those who remain behind.

So long as we continue to rely upon words—not upon action—to win this struggle in South Korea, we are as guilty of a crime against freedom as the executioners who fire the bullets in the faces of our sons.

It is time for action.

As I said on Monday in this Chamber, the hour of history is late. The moment of judgment, the moment when our way of life must prove itself, is now upon us.

We can no longer sit by and see our strength decimated by delay—by defeat—by retreat.

The name "Korea" must not be added to the record of infamy and indecision recorded on the scroll of "Too Little, Too Late"—the scroll inscribed with the blood of our finest youth on Bataan, on Corregidor, on Guam, on Wake.

To understand our problem, let us examine our strength.

The present size of our military establishment is considerably less than the size authorized by the Selective Service and Training Act of 1948.

When that act was passed, Congress authorized 837,000 men for the Army, 502,000 for the Air Force, and 668,882 for the Navy, including the Marine Corps.

Before the ink was dry on that legislation, the executive branch decided that Congress' authorizations were too high.

As the world situation deteriorated, the size of our armed forces deteriorated, also.

This was not what Congress intended.

Even this year, with the world situation tense and explosive, the requests for personnel presented to Congress by the military reflected a still further downward trend.

These authorization requests for fiscal 1951 reduced the size of the Army by 6,000, reduced the size of the Navy by 30,000, reduced the Marine Corps by 7,000, and reduced the Air Force by 1,000.

I repeat: this was not what Congress intended.

During this same period, from 1948 to the present, the Air Force—supposedly our first-line of defense—has steadily decreased in size and usefulness.

As of June 30, 1948, the Air Force had 55 groups; 1 year later, the Air Force had 54 groups. On June 30, this year, the Air Force had only 48 groups.

No amount of bookkeeping, no amount of figure-juggling, can conceal the tragic fact that our air power has been withering away—withering away as the obvious need for it increased.

The decrease in power of the Air Force has been paralleled in the Navy. The carrier air power of the Navy has been sharply cut—from 14 carrier-groups in 1948 to 9 carrier groups for the present fiscal year.

Similarly, the air strength of the Marine Corps—strength which served us so well in the South Pacific during World War II—has been cut in half, from 23 squadrons in 1948 to 12 squadrons for fiscal 1951.

I call attention to the fact that this reduction in strength of the Air Force was made despite the fact that Congress had appropriated funds sufficient to maintain the Air Force at 55 groups.

I repeat again: this was not what Congress intended.

There is still another example I wish to call to the attention of the Senate. That is the decline in the combat effectiveness of our ground troops, particularly the Marine Corps.

Our Marine Corps troops have been reduced to a point where it is impossible for them to furnish a single war strength division to General MacArthur—even though he has requested it.

Think of it. In this moment of great need and grave peril, we are unable to send to General MacArthur one war-strength Marine division.

Through budgetary processes, the Defense Establishment has reduced the number of landing teams from 18 to a mere 6 proposed in the 1951 budget. If this recommendation had been accepted, the Marine Corps would have not 18 full-strength landing teams but only about half that number.

Battles cannot be won with half-strength forces. We cannot hope to combat communism with 50 percent of the military might we need.

Even our Army units in South Korea are handicapped by this same pattern of reduction—this constant preoccupation with keeping our forces small and low-cost.

That is not what Congress intended.

Congress did not intend that our troops should be sent into battle with one arm tied behind their backs. Yet that is what is happening. Our Army divisions simply do not have the number of battalions they need to function efficiently and economically in combat.

Mr. President, the simple truth of the matter is that our armed strength looks better in terms of bookkeeping than it does in terms of performance.

This is not a bookkeeping war. We must recognize this.

The considered opinions of our Joint Chiefs of Staff—the opinions of our highest military advisers—have been strait-jacketed in a maze of bookkeeping and accounting procedures.

For too long, we have been more interested in making our books balance than in making our strength balance against the military power of communism.

Far more dollars are being lost in South Korea than all the dollars we have saved—if we have saved any at all.

We will lose more dollars and lose more lives because our economy was false, our overconfidence was unjustified, our emphasis was wrong.

I have applauded—as most Senators have applauded—those efforts to cut out the fat of our defense operations. I wanted to see unnecessary expenditures curtailed. I wanted to see this done so that we would have more to spend on muscle.

I did not intend—and I know the Congress did not intend—that the knife which trimmed the fat should also cut the muscle.

But, as we look at the picture now, we must recognize and admit that somewhere the knife slipped.

We have not time to turn back and see which surgeon is to blame. The life of democracy is at stake. It is time to do our best—our all-out best—to save that life.

This is the program I believe essential at this time.

First. I urge that we immediately order into Federal service all National Guard units and all Reserves who are presently on a drill-pay status. This will bring into the armed services the following personnel:

For the Army, 180,570 Reservists and 332,138 National Guardsmen. For the Air Force, 51,165 Reservists and 44,925 National Guardsmen. For the Navy, 183,-859 Reserves. For the Marine Corps, 39,371 Reserves.

That is a total of 832,028 men.

That is a bare minimum. We need them; we need them now.

Second. Authorize the Secretaries of the various departments to accept volunteers from the nonpaid Reserves in such numbers as they are able to obtain.

Third. As necessity dictates, order all unpaid Reservists into active Federal service. This would add 1,700,000 Reservists to our strength.

Fourth. Direct the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps to organize all units on a combat-strength basis.

Fifth. Enact the necessary emergency legislation to care properly for those Reservists and civilians who are inducted or ordered into service under the draft law enacted a few days ago.

Sixth. Enact the necessary emergency legislation to provide powers necessary for full mobilization of our industrial capacity.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. (Mr. STENNIS in the chair). Does the Senator from Texas yield to the Senator from Minnesota?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. THYE. I note the budget recommendation for the National Guard and the amount recommended for appropriation. The Senate committee decreased the House appropriation by $1,900,000. I also note that both the House and the Senate decreased the amount of the recommendation of the Budget Bureau below that for 1950.

It would seem to me that in the present emergency, in the world crisis, the National Guard should have the full amount recommended, because if the National Guard should step up their training, they could train twice the number they are now training, in my opinion. I think the National Guard should expand as much as it possibly can in the very limited period of time at their disposal.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. If I understand the Senator correctly, I quite agree with him. This is a very poor time to be trimming the appropriation for the National Guard or the Reserves, or any of the Defense Department.

Mr. THYE. I was greatly impressed by the statement made by the able Senator from Texas, and I could not help recalling the reductions in the appropriation for the National Guard as he was speaking about our great need for expanding our military forces at this time. I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. Supplementing what the able Senator from Minnesota has said I should like to make this contribution to the debate. The National Guard of my State of Illinois were very much disappointed with respect to the amount of appropriation that was considered sufficient by the House in passing the bill. Generals Smykal and Boyle and others have been in my office pleading with me to try to get an increased appropriation in order that the Illinois National Guard might be able to do the kind of training they believe is absolutely indispensable at this particular time. I do hope that at the proper time this subject may be discussed thoroughly by members of the Appropriations Committee. Certainly the various National Guards of this country are one of the vital parts of our defense. As the Senator from Texas rightly says, it does seem that this is certainly not the time to start trimming on appropriations for the National Guard.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. If I may, let me respond to the contribution of the Senator from Illinois first. I know of his great interest in adequate preparedness through the years, both in the House and in the Senate. While I have not made a detailed study of the provision to which the Senator from Minnesota refers, I am of the opinion that it will reduce some of the Guard's personnel and reduce some of the time allowed for training. That will cripple a very effective arm on which we may have to depend in view of the war clouds hovering over us. I hope that at the proper time in the consideration of the appropriation bill some of the Senators in charge will offer the necessary amendment to give the National Guard the strength our defense officials feel is necessary.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further for a question?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. THYE. I also note, Mr. President, that there is a reduction in the aviation division of the National Guard in that appropriation. As we draw the Regular Army away from the continental United States and send it abroad, we are naturally weakening ourselves. Therefore, as we send the regular Army from the United States, we must strengthen our National Guard in every respect. Otherwise, we are not going to have the military strength here in the United States that will assure us adequate protection. I believe that as we go into this general appropriation bill we must give serious thought to that particular matter, and it is my opinion that we should increase the appropriation, both for the National Guard itself and for the Air Division of the National Guard.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. McKELLAR. The chairman of the subcommittee having charge of military affairs is the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. THOMAS]. He and members of the staff are going over the bill at the present time. His attention will be called to the need for additional funds for the National Guard, and we hope to be able to report something about it a little later that will be satisfactory to the Senate.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, I certainly thank the able chairman of the Appropriations Committee for giving us that information. The matter is very important. I have been preparing amendments on the subject. I am glad that particular matter is being taken care of, so it will not be necessary for me to submit any amendments upon it.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. It is my understanding that the bill as reported will clearly reduce the maintenance fund permitted the aviation group, and will reduce its personnel and its maintenance at a time when we actually ought to order men into the service. I think it would be very ill-advised to follow such a policy.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. I want to make one further observation in connection with the colloquy which has just taken place. Should any of the National Guard units be called into the Federal service, of course, any appropriation we make for the Guard itself would be more or less futile and useless, because the Federal Government would take over the Guard. But that should not deter us one iota from attempting to take care of the National Guard units from now on until they might be called. A number of them might never be called.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I say to the Senator we ought to make the appropriations necessary to be able to meet the situation confronting us at the time we consider the bill. If the Guard is taken into the service and not replaced by other men, the money we provide for the Guard will merely revert to the Treasury. But we should not gamble and take chances on that.

Mr. McKELLAR. That question is now being worked out, as I stated.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I thank the Senator. I am sure the Senator from Tennessee will see to it that we will always have adequate funds for this purpose.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. HUMPHREY. I merely want to say to the distinguished Senator from Texas that, by reason of his experience, his observations, of course, are worthy not only of consideration but of the most careful consideration and judgment of his colleagues.

The other day I was looking through a periodical which, I am sure, comes to the desk of most Members of the Senate. It is a magazine known as the United States News and World Report. I have in my hand the issue of July 7, and I thought what was contained in it was pertinent in terms of what the Senator is speaking about. On page 19 of this magazine appear two captions. The first is: "What Hitler had in 1938." The second is: "What Stalin has in 1950." Remember, it was in 1939, only a year later, that the Hitler blitzkrieg bowled over one country after another that we thought was rather strong.

Also, in another issue, that of May 26 of the same magazine, the United States News and World Report which, by the way, I consider to be quite a good magazine, is contained a tabulation entitled "Two Worlds: Combat Power." One of the columns shows the United States bloc. These are the North Atlantic Pact nations. The other column shows the Russian bloc, being Russia and her satellites.

If the Senator will permit me, I should like to call attention to some figures as shown in this tabulation. Army divisions: In the Russian bloc, 170 divisions; in the North Atlantic Pact bloc, the United States bloc, 43 divisions.

Combat aircraft: Russian bloc, 16,000; the United States bloc, 14,000.

Naval ships and submarines: The Russian bloc, 427, the majority of which are modern submarines; the United States bloc, 546.

Then we get down to the atom-bomb stockpile. That is only estimated, so I do not think we need to put that into the RECORD, because I do not know of anyone who knows how many we have.

Then we come to tanks. Only a short time ago, I may say to the Senator from Texas, I read an article in a newspaper in which it was said that some of our military leaders had stated that the tank was becoming a rather useless instrument of war. I also read that tanks could not be used in Korea because of the nature of the terrain and by reason of the geography. Apparently, however, someone did use tanks and quite successfully, and apparently we are having a little trouble stopping them. The article points out that the Russian bloc has 40,000 modern tanks and the United States bloc has 6,000. Those are what may be called modern tanks. I think that bears out the point the Senator is making of the importance of activating our armed strength up to its quota.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. How many divisions did the Senator's intelligence indicate the Russians had?

Mr. HUMPHREY. One hundred and seventy in the Russian bloc.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. And that compares with approximately 10 in the United States Army.

Mr. HUMPHREY. That is correct. Forty-three divisions in the North Atlantic Pact area.

If the Senator will give me a little more time, I should like to submit a few more figures. I do not want to take any time away from the Senator, but I think this information is of great value. I have referred to the chart giving a comparison between what Hitler had in 1938 and what Stalin has in 1950. When we talk about Stalin, we are not talking about his stooges who are doing his fighting today. We find ourselves in the situation of never being able to get at the master minds. We have to deal with the satellite stooges.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. President, apropos of what the Senator has just pointed out, it is my opinion that the North Korean forces are now being counseled and directed and are being furnished equipment by Russia itself. The American people should realize the problem which confronts us. This attack on South Korea is directed and led, in my judgment, by the Kremlin masters.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, if the Senator will permit, let me say that I am sure the Senator from Texas has a correct understanding of the situation. I think we should look upon the present situation as one in which the Soviet Union is a great powerhouse, with the masters of the Soviet Union able to control the switches setting various forces loose in the world, anywhere they please to do so, and at any time—as was shown most graphically by the cartoon appearing in the newspaper, with Stalin being able to push the buttons and throw the switches and set war in motion in Korea or in several other areas.

Mr. President, if the Senator will further permit, I should like to present a few more figures:

In the case of steel, in 1938 Hitler had at his disposal an annual production of 27,400,000 tons of steel; whereas today, in 1950, Stalin has at his disposal 35,200,000 tons.

From various sources and various types of information the reports we receive indicate that Stalin is building a tremendous industrial empire in the satellite areas of Poland, Upper Silesia, and Czechoslovakia. Certainly we should not minimize the importance of the factories in those satellite areas.

To give a few other figures, Mr. President, let me say that so far as concerns electrical power, in 1938 Hitler had at his disposal an annual production of 62,300,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electrical power, whereas in 1950 Stalin has at his disposal an annual production of 115,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours—right now.

As for the production of aluminum, in 1938 Hitler had available an annual production of approximately 215,000 tons, whereas today Russia has an annual production of 230,000 tons of aluminum.

As for oil, in 1938 Hitler had at his disposal an annual production of 15,800,000 barrels of oil, whereas today, in 1950, Russia has at its disposal an annual production of 355,500,000 barrels.

In the field of mobile equipment, we find this situation: In 1938, the year before Hitler moved into Poland with his blitzkreig, he had at his disposal only 400,000 trucks. Today the Soviet Union has 2,000.000 trucks.

In machine tools, in 1938 Nazi Germany had an inventory of 1,177,000 machine tools, whereas today, in 1950, Communist Russia has 1,300,000.

Needless to say, the Soviet Union has tremendous numbers of men available for military service. As of today, in 1950, there are in Russia 2,000,000 men of draft age, available for military service, coming up as a military class—each year, whereas in 1938 Germany had, as a similar group, only 500,000.

This evidence should be conclusive to the American people, let me say, that we are in for trouble.

So I think the Senator from Texas is doing well in presenting the call for action at an early date. However, if he does not mind my saying so, possibly all of us are a little late. I think we have some questions to ask the defense establishment.

The American people are wondering what has happened with all the money which has been appropriated for these purposes. Undoubtedly it has been used for good purposes, but I do not think we can permit super-secrecy about this matter. I think the people want to know what has happened to these funds, this $13,000,000,000 or $14,000,000,000.

I do not wish to be critical. I have voted for every appropriation bill for these purposes, and I doubt whether there is any Senator who is a stronger supporter of the administration than I am. However, this is not a matter of partisan politics. I think we should know what the administration has done. All Senators have to vote on these questions.

I wish to know why there has been delay in getting the fleet out of mothballs, why so long has been taken, and why only one or two vessels at a time have been made ready.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota will suspend. The Chair has some obligations in connection with the maintenance of proper procedure under the rules and the preservation of order. The Senator from Texas can yield only for a question.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I wish the Senator from Texas would answer my questions.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. President, I appreciate the worth-while contribution which has been made by the junior Senator from Minnesota.

I wish to say that I shall be glad to join him in any attempt to determine whether the funds which have been allocated to the Department of Defense have been properly expended. However, I do not wish to go into that question at this time, but I wish to continue the discussion of the Korean situation.

Mr. President, I think we should look forward, not backward. It is not my purpose to attach blame to any individual or group, in the course of my remarks here today. I merely wish to point out what, in my best judgment, should be done now. I do so in the hope that those who have authority to put such a program into operation will give it every consideration.

Mr. President, the seventh point of this program is to make the fullest possible use of the present provision in the Selective Service Act enabling the Federal Government to place priority orders for all material essential for the Armed Forces. I believe that section of the Draft Act is section 18. At the time when I was serving as a Member of the House of Representatives, I offered an amendment to the Draft Act when it was before the House Armed Services Committee. That amendment was adopted by a vote of 29 to 1 in that committee, and the provisions of that amendment closely resemble the provisions of the existing law. When the bill was considered in the Senate, at the suggestion of the able junior Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], the Senate wrote into the bill a provision, which now is the law, giving to the President the power to get any material he needs to further the war effort, by ordering the material and by paying a reasonable price for it. I am quite sure this will give him the authority he needs to obtain the production essential to support our Armed Forces. The priority provision could certainly be used to break such bottlenecks as the styrene shortage now handicapping the output of synthetic rubber and other shortages which deter full production.

This is a minimum program. I offer it as a suggestion, but I strongly urge its acceptance by those in authority.

We must not tarry longer looking for a cheap way out of the battle in which we are now engaged.

There is no cheap way out.

There is, in fact, no way out short of total victory.

We cannot compromise; we cannot escape; we cannot continue to retreat.

Twice before we have been plunged into global war because we moved too slowly, because we permitted the Kaiser and then Hitler to conclude that we would not mobilize our forces fully—or in time.

It is fortunate for us, Mr. President, that the men in the Kremlin have given us this warning—this time in which to prepare. Otherwise we might never have realized our weaknesses which are evident to us today; we might never have had the opportunity to repair our errors of judgment.

We have time now—although none of us knows how much time. We may have only a few weeks—but we may have time enough.

Let us use every minute, every second, to the best possible advantage. The American people are behind us. They want us to do all that is necessary—not merely half what is necessary.

Shall we permit history to decide that we did too little, too late? Or shall we—by a great and unified effort—do enough, soon enough?

Shall South Korea be remembered as a slaughterhouse for democracy—or as a graveyard for aggression?

That is the decision we must face.

We must make that decision now.

We must direct all our efforts to victory—immediate, decisive victory.

Words are useless; criticism is wasteful; delay is unthinkable. Let us together get on with the job which lies ahead.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, before the Senator from Texas takes his seat, I wonder whether he will yield, to permit me to make a brief observation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator can yield only for a question.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. I yield.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Of course, I wish to join the Senator from Texas in his remarks, and I wish to subscribe wholeheartedly to what he has said.

I desire to point out to the Senate that probably no one is better qualified to make the suggestions he has made than is the distinguished junior Senator from Texas. It so happens that some years ago—in particular, in 1942—both he and I were in the midst of a situation which could be described, perhaps, as not too late, when viewed from our hindsight, but as too little; and in the same area in which the war is now occurring, the Senator from Texas and I had a good opportunity to realize that probably many of the things he is suggesting now should have been done then.

I am sure that his words, as a result of that great experience and his experience here as a member of the Armed Services Committee, together with his many years of service in the House of Representatives on the great Naval Affairs Committee, are the words of one who is qualified to make the suggestions he has made today in his very able speech.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. President, I may say that the Senator from Washington is always generous in his expressions regarding the Senator from Texas.

VISIT TO WASHINGTON OF 3,000 WOMEN SINGERS FROM INDIANA

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, a group of 3,000 women from Indiana who have been in Washington since yesterday will sing tonight on the Plaza opposite the Senate Office Building. I wish to pay tribute to them because what they are doing is so typically American. These 3,000 women have come from 84 counties in Indiana to participate in the Washington sesquicentennial celebration. They are from the Home Economics Club chorus of Indiana. Throughout the year they meet every 2 weeks in their respective counties and sing and once each year they go to Purdue University, all 3,000 of them, to sing as a single State chorus. They are going to sing here tonight, as I said a moment ago, on the Plaza opposite the Senate Office Building. I believe that we should honor this group of women, because they have paid their own expenses to Washington. They adopted all sorts of enterprises to secure sufficient money to pay the expenses of the trip. None of their expenses were paid by the Government.

They came here in order to help the city of Washington and the Federal Government celebrate the sesquicentennial. I wish all Members of the Senate could hear these 3,000 voices singing in unison. I urge Senators to try to attend this festival tonight. These ladies are fine singers and capably represent the cultural interests of the rural communities of Indiana.

The thing I wanted to emphasize more than anything else is the fact that, though we are faced with a war, yet in America 3,000 women from the rural homes of Indiana make many sacrifices to come to Washington to assist in the observance of the sesquicentennial of the Nation's Capital. I think it should be an example to the world, and an inspiration to all of us in Washington, that there is still in the people of America the old American spirit and the desire to do things for themselves and to participate in our Government, without Government help. I strongly recommend that every occupant of the Senate galleries and each Senator attend the affair tonight in tribute to these 3,000 women, the oldest of whom is 83, the youngest of whom is 14. There will be no admission charge. These ladies are contributing their services.

SUGGESTED SEVERANCE OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA AND HER SATELLITE COUNTRIES

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, the Government of the United States should immediately sever diplomatic relations with the Government of Soviet Russia and with the governments of the countries which are satellites of Soviet Russia. May I hasten to add that the severance of diplomatic relations is not a step toward war but is a last hope to marshal the free people of the world in the cause of peace and to quarantine those who are courting war by spreading their tentacles to all corners of the world.

There is no other course available to us than to end diplomatic relations if we are to maintain the moral respect of the peoples of the world and if we are to protect ourselves against the ever-increasing penetration of our country by Communist agents who are sent here under the cloak of diplomatic immunity to direct and control the Communist fifth column in this country.

Each of these grounds for this course of action warrants deliberate appraisal.

First, I invite the attention of the Senate to the moral compulsions which dictate this course of action.

In the relationships among the nations of the world the duly constituted government of each nation has by long custom been officially recognized by the governments of other nations. Generally, the de facto government is accepted as the de jure government on the theory that the peoples of each nation have the right to determine the form and personality of their government.

Notable among the exceptions to this custom were the occasions, still fresh in our memory, on which the Nazi invaders set up quisling governments in certain countries which they had overrun, but these quisling governments were not recognized by the Government of the United States or by our allies because they were governments by foreign usurpers.

The undeniable fact is, Mr. President, that the government of Soviet Russia and the governments of the countries which are satellites of Soviet Russia are not governments in the accepted sense of this term, but are, instead, an unholy band of mad marauders who lay claim to the form of government by stealth and by sheer force of ruthless power which they inflict on the people under their domination.

Is there a voice here in the Senate to assert that the Kremlin reflects the will of the people of Russia in which some 16,000,000 souls are imprisoned in slave-labor camps and in which millions more quake at the untrammeled power of the secret police?

By what pretense can we assume that those forces that have by intrigue seized the reins of government in Czechoslovakia represent the people of that prostrate land?

Let us read on down the list of peoples who have been stricken by this gang of international outlaws who now assert that they are the government of these unhappy lands: Yugoslavia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania, Bulgaria, China, East Germany, Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania—and the list is ever lengthening.

Is there a Member of the Senate who is ready to declare that American blood is being spilt in Korea for any reason but to stem the tide of this cancerous growth which threatens to engulf the world? How, Mr. President, can we face the people of the world who yearn to be free from the yoke of terror which has been imposed upon them and still give official recognition to the monsters who have enslaved them?

Has there been manifest in our diplomatic relations with these enemies of mankind even the semblance of good faith? No, the council table to them is another mockery of men of good will.

I say, Mr. President, that the conscience of the world demands that the United States of America no longer entertain a pretense of that which we and the world know is not true. If we are to redeem our moral leadership which has repeatedly been so ignobly sacrificed on the altar of expediency, we shall forthwith declare to the people of the world that this Government shall no longer recognize as governments the mire of iniquity which today controls one-third of the people of the globe.

But, Mr. President, there is another equally compelling reason for this course of action which I urge, and that is the dire necessity to protect ourselves against the deadly Trojan horse fifth column in this country which is under the control and direction of official representatives of Communist governments who operate unhampered under the cloak of diplomatic immunity.

Mr. President, I am in dead earnest when I say that I know what I am talking about. Over the course of the last 2½ years a Senate subcommittee, of which I have been chairman, has conducted an intensive study and investigation of our immigration and naturalization systems. As the Senate will recall, we recently filed an exhaustive report on the subject, and at that time I introduced in the Senate a comprehensive bill which completely rewrites our immigration and naturalization laws.

One phase of our investigation dealt with the problems of the entrance into the country of Communist agents, the pipeline of espionage and the relationship between subversive activity in the United States, and the international Communist network which operates throughout the world.

The facts are, Mr. President, as I have previously recited them in detail to the Senate and as they appear beyond the shadow of a doubt from the evidence in the published hearings of our subcommittee, that the Communist network in the United States is inspired, organized, controlled and directed in a large part by those foreign agents who are sent here under diplomatic immunity and who are working feverishly to destroy us. The admissions into this country of aliens in diplomatic status from behind the iron curtain has been running at the rate of approximately 1,000 a year. In addition, a substantial number have been sent here under the guise of press representatives, trading commissioners, students, domestics, seamen, delegates to various organizations and the like. Every one of them is sent with a definite assignment to engage in espionage, organize Communist cells, foment discord, distribute propaganda and otherwise subvert our democratic institutions. These are the kingpins and the lifeline of the deadly conspiracy in this country.

Typical of the evidence before the subcommittee is the following statement which appears in our published hearings from the testimony of a former Communist organizer:

The personnel of the various Soviet delegations, embassy, consulates, Amtorg, Tass, and so forth, in this country have been composed in part of Soviet intelligence agents. Hidden in each of these bureaus, ostensibly performing some routine function, are MVD men whose real job is to report on various phases of American society to Moscow headquarters. Recently this corps has been reinforced by the UN delegations of Russia and her satellites. A small group of these MVD agents, say three to five men, directs the work of the whole network in this part of the world; it filters the information that comes in and, making use of the diplomatic pouches, passes on what is new and useful to Moscow.

Here is the testimony of J. Edgar Hoover, Chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation:

Experience has revealed that foreign espionage agents seek the protection of a legal cover. By that, I mean they seek admittance into the United States on diplomatic passports. They seek assignments to some official foreign agency and thus conceal themselves under the diplomatic cloak of immunity. To further avert suspicion, a high-ranking espionage agent may very well be employed as a clerk or in some minor capacity in a foreign establishment. However, when he speaks, those with higher sounding titles follow his orders without question. Foreign espionage services maintain strict supervision over their activities in this country.

Right there may I point out that under our present laws the Department of Justice is powerless to exclude these foreign agents. In passing, may I say that the Department of State has appeared more than anxious to extend our hospitality to them without stint. An example of this tenderness toward these foreign agents is the contents of an unsolicited letter which I received from the Secretary of State vigorously opposing a bill which I introduced to provide for the exclusion of any alien, irrespective of his status, who seeks to enter the United States to engage in subversive activities. The theme of this letter of protest was that to exclude officials of Communist governments, even though they may seek entry to engage in subversive activities, might offend Communist Russia.

How long, Mr.. President, are we to remain hypnotized by the illusion that we can deal with madmen as though they were sane? How much longer shall we betray those of our own flesh and blood who are even now baring their breasts to the cannon and tanks which were assembled in the Soviet Union?

The severance of diplomatic relations is a last effort to salvage our moral leadership of the world and to avoid the terrible consequences of world war III. This course is but responsive to the law of self preservation. It will be the true voice of America which surely will be heard by all the people of the world.

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nevada yield for an observation?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, I desire to commend the distinguished Senator from Nevada for the statesmanship which he has demonstrated today. As a member of the subcommittee which he has mentioned in his address I heartily endorse what he has said with respect to the real danger which exists in this country because of the Communist conspiracy here, which is one segment of the world-wide Communist network under the direction of the Kremlin. The distinguished Senator from Nevada, Mr. President, has rendered a real service to the Senate and to the country in urging, as he has today, a course of action which would cut the pipeline of this conspiracy and drive a wedge between the masters of the Kremlin and the millions who yearn to be free.

Mr. President, the vision of the Senator from Nevada certainly has been amply verified by the course of events which he foresaw several years ago. Plainer than any other Member of the Senate he saw and predicted step by step the course of aggression and the terrible danger in which the United States would be placed. I desire to read what the distinguished Senator from Nevada said several years ago, to show that his vision was accurate and that he is a statesman of the very highest caliber. In a radio speech delivered during the week of December 13, 1948, more than a year and a half ago, the distinguished Senator from Nevada had this to say:

What happens to China will vitally affect our foreign policy with regard to all Asia. * * * We know it is the objective of Russia to pull the iron curtain down (in Asia). That must not be allowed to happen if there is any way this Nation can prevent it. Without the open door to China—a door which we opened—all Asia will be made untenable for the forces of western democracy.

Mr. President, that statement is an historic truth. Had the leaders of this country harkened to those words a year and a half ago, the United States would not be in the terrible predicament in which it finds itself today. I read further from a prediction made by the Senator from Nevada on February 25, 1949, found at page 1533 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD:

Flushed with recent victories, the real hand behind the Chinese Communists is making itself known in Asia today.

Listen to this prediction:

Korea is a powder keg, ready to explode in our face if we are pushed out of China as a force in opposition to communism.

Mr. President, what can be said on this floor which would be truer than what the distinguished Senator from Nevada said a year and a half ago? I quote further:

Reports already indicate the situation approaches outright war between the southern portion which we recognize and the northern or Communist portion which the Soviets recognize.

Make no mistake, if the Communists are not stopped in China, the next step will be Korea, and do not forget that in Korea we still maintain occupation troops and if trouble becomes serious in that country our boys must fight or get out and admit to the world that we are losing our battle for the survival of freedom.

Again I say had the leaders of the American Government possessed the wisdom and the foresight of the distinguished Senator from Nevada, we would not be faced today with a bloody war in Korea.

A great man once said, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." It is vision such as has been demonstrated by the distinguished Senator from Nevada that is now urgently needed in high places in the American Government.

I read from another statement by the distinguished Senator from Nevada on August 22, 1949, when he said:

We believe Communist control of China would endanger gravely the American strategic position in the Pacific. There is ample substantial evidence in the files of the State Department and the Department of National Defense that the Communists, through their fifth columns of infiltration, already have begun to terrorize countries bordering China.

The distinguished Senator from Nevada recognized from the first the danger in all of Asia. He recognized that trouble there, if not handled in time, would lead to the loss of a great number of American boys. If his prophetic vision had been followed we would have peace in Asia, the United States would not be on the verge of war, and it would not be necessary to have American blood shed.

I say again, Mr. President, that when leaders lack vision the people perish. The distinguished Senator from Nevada has shown vision, leadership, and statesmanship in this crisis, and in relation to the whole Communist world conspiracy.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, I express my gratitude to the Senator from Mississippi for having brought forth the thoughts I expressed on previous occasions. I only wish that the Chinese people had been encouraged to fight for their own land, and a token of encouragement on the occasion when I made those expressions some years ago would have saved us from the predicament in which we now find ourselves.

SUGGESTED DESIGNATION OF GEN. CARLOS ROMULO AS UNITED NATIONS REPRESENTATIVE IN THE FIELD

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, last Sunday on a radio broadcast which was reported by the press wire associations, I repeated my hope that the United Nations participation in the Korean crisis might be a maximum effort. Specifically, I suggested that in addition to the use of the United Nations flag which had just been authorized, it would be a most effective move if the United Nations were to designate Gen. Carlos Romulo, President of the Fourth General Assembly of the United Nations, to serve in the field in resolving the breach of the peace now taking place in Korea.

This morning I was gratified to receive a telegram from General Romulo which is of prime importance in connection with that suggestion. The telegram reads as follows:

MANILA, July 11, 1950.

Senator HOMER FERGUSON,
Senate Office Building,
Washington, D. C.:

I appreciate your thinking of me as reported by Associated Press dispatch of July 10. As President of the Fourth General Assembly it is my duty to help carry out resolutions approved by the United Nations and will abide by whatever decision member states may take regarding their implementation. It was a real pleasure to see you in Washington during my last visit and I wish to reiterate my thanks to you for all the help you are giving the Philippines. Greetings and regards.

ROMULO.

This clearly shows General Romulo's sympathy with the proposal I have made, and makes his participation contingent upon action by the United Nations. He has himself declared that it is his duty to carry out resolutions approved by the United Nations and that he will abide by whatever decision member states may take regarding their implementation.

I therefore formally propose that the United States delegation at the United Nations be instructed to take such action as is necessary to have General Romulo designated to serve as deputy to the United Nations Commander, General MacArthur, in the field of active military operations.

I can see tremendous advantages to the cause of the United Nations to have General Romulo undertake this assignment. The General personifies the United Nations, because he is the President of its Fourth General Assembly. He is Chief Delegate of the Philippine Republic to the United Nations.

Second. He is a man of genuine military competence. He has been a brigadier general in the United States Army, and served with distinction throughout the Pacific campaign under General MacArthur, beginning with Bataan and Corregidor. I am confident that his services would be especially welcome now to General MacArthur, who has first-hand knowledge of General Romulo's ability.

Third. General Romulo is himself native to the Asiatic area, and has a thorough understanding of Asia's problems and of the aims and aspirations of its people.

My immediate reaction following the Korean outbreak was that here, in a clear case of aggression, is a supreme test involving the very survival of the United Nations as an instrument for peace and order in the world. It was my hope that the United Nations would grasp this opportunity to work in the cause of peaceful processes, and that the United States—in its own interest—would strongly support it. I was deeply gratified when the United Nations acted so promptly and so decisively.

It is my belief that the United Nations should go much further, and take every opportunity to make crystal clear its identification with the action it has authorized in Korea. In this connection, I hope that all member nations will join promptly in sending troops and giving effective aid in this action.

I earnestly hope that the United States as a member of the United Nations will focus its own policy more strongly on this object of United Nations identification as a wholly effective instrumentality for peace. Now and in the future we should press for bold international action through the United Nations to the end that peace and order should replace anarchy in the world.

I shall have more to say on this point at another time, but for the present I earnestly hope that without delay, the United States delegation to the United Nations be instructed to take whatever action is necessary to have Gen. Carlos Romulo designated to serve as the United Nations deputy associate with General MacArthur in the field.

Mr. President, I have sent a copy of these remarks by special messenger to Dean Acheson, the Secretary of State, so he may know how I feel about this particular matter.

IMPLICATIONS OF THE KOREAN SITUATION

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, when I was working my way through the law school of the University of Michigan, a very wise practitioner who taught law gave us much sage advice. Among the other nuggets of wisdom he gave us, speaking to us as embryo lawyers, was this:

> Do not be ashamed to say you do not know. A man who always knows is either a damn fool or damn liar, and will make a very poor counselor.

He said further:

> You first have to get the facts. Then you have to study the law applicable to the facts. Then if your judgment of the law and the facts is accurate you will be in a position to advise.

Mr. President, we find ourselves today groping for the facts. We read headlines in the newspapers which tell us that Korea will become for us a Dunkirk, or some other name such as Bataan is used. They are dealing simply with the situation as it is at present.

Mr. President, I was very much impressed by the speech delivered by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary [Mr. MCCARRAN]. As he said, in trying to find out how to keep America safe and secure, and maintain the American way of life, we must keep in mind that we are living in a world in which another great power uses the penetration method. Since the shooting stopped after the Second World War that great power has taken over 150,000,000 people by means of penetration. The Senator from Nevada very graphically portrayed the danger to America because we are so naive. We let almost any individual come into the United States, and we permit almost any method of penetration to operate before we act.

Mr. President, I speak now about the world situation as it confronts us today. The newspapers say there is a feeling of relief in Washington now that the bickering and indecision has disappeared and that we are rallying to the President's support. I am not so sure that that feeling now exists to the extent it did immediately after the President sent American forces to Korea. I am sure that in the hinterland people are thinking, and thinking, and thinking about where we are going.

Where are we going, Mr. President? Of course, as suggested by the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. JOHNSON] today on the floor of the Senate, we must get our house in order. He meant our military house. But I am talking about some of the facts which I think we have to consider before we try to determine just where we are going. The cost of the last war in the way of lives and disrupted plans is so fresh in our memories that people are pretty dubious as to the program. That, Mr. President, is a fact. When I say the program, I am not talking about this little phase of the program which now is in operation in Korea. The world is our stage, Mr. President, and where the next eruption will take place no one knows. The only country which has the answer to that question is Russia.

I want to call another fact to the attention of the Senate. It will be remembered that in 1948 we created the National Security Council. It was the function and the responsibility specifically of that Council to do the following things:

First. To assess and appraise the objectives, the commitments, and the risks of the United States in relation to our actual and potential military power in the interest of national security for the purpose of making recommendations to the President in connection therewith.

Second. To consider policies—and this was our law—on matters of common interest to the departments and agencies of the Government concerned with national security—I repeat concerned with national security—and to make recommendations to the President in connection therewith.

I wish to cite another fact. After all, the intervention in Korea is not the same as the sending of troops into Nicaragua. The implication of our move in Korea is so far-reaching that we are wondering where we go from here. It was stated on the Senate floor by a distinguished Senator today that the significant fact is that everywhere Russia is directing the movements of her satellites, that she is not expending her own troops, but is utilizing the troops of other groups over which she has control. Someone called them her stooges. That is a very significant fact.

Another significant fact we must consider in determining where we are going is that today's newspapers state that Chinese Communist troops are in action in Korea. Russia can expend 100,000,000 of those troops without one Russian being killed.

Another significant fact we must not forget is that, as has been stated time and time again on the floor of the Senate, the Russian policy is to exhaust the resources and the manpower of this Nation so that we will become so weak that when she produces the major blow we will not be able to resist it.

I wish to speak of the philosophy of the Russians. By "the Russians" I do not mean the common people, who are serfs, who are slaves. I am talking about the leaders who have swallowed whole the Marxist concept that there is no God, that the state is omnipotent, that the citizen is a serf, that all property belongs to the state, and that the individuals must obey the commands of the state. I am speaking of that group headed by Stalin and others who have done such a tremendous work in taking over approximately one-third of the earth's surface, and controlling almost 1,000,000,000 human beings.

Those are facts which I want the Senate to bear in mind.

If we are going to apply to the present situation the common-sense rule which the wise teacher at the University of Michigan laid down for those of us who were embryo lawyers, I repeat that we must consider all the facts. In addition to the facts I have enumerated, what are some of the others?

We know that it is apparent that Russia has trained and armed the North Korean forces and is directing the attack. Of course it is always well to know whom one is fighting.

It is also apparent that under the Marxist and Communist philosophy, as expressed by Marx, Lenin, and others, the objective is to revolutionize and take over the world. We know that in Korea the Russian tanks are the things that are doing the devastating work. Russia has equipped the North Koreans with tanks and other weapons; and when we destroy 30 or 40 of those tanks, another 100 come into action. They are what are pushing our boys back and back. If the Chinese Communists go in there with several hundred thousand men, that will constitute another important fact. Apparently the manpower available to the other side is inexhaustible. It may be that we shall be pushed out of Korea. So we should consider where we go from there.

Of course, we are trying to evaluate the entire battlefield, not only in terms of Korea, but in terms of the entire world. I sincerely trust that those in Government who thus far have failed properly to evaluate and appraise the situation in the Far East will not fail to realize that the whole world is the battlefield.

We know, as another fact, that there are rumblings in the Berlin area.

I agree with those who say that when Russia has created diversions here and there, she will be ready to strike in Iran and will be able to take over the oil fields there, which are her great objective. She needs the oil, although today she is producing more oil than she has ever produced before.

However, it is almost a certainty that the next move Russia will make will be in Iran. The question is, what are the freedom-loving nations doing about that? Do they have those oil wells in such shape that if the invasion starts, the wells will be destroyed at once? That is a question which some of us ask. A charge of dynamite or other explosive in each oil well would do the job. However, in that respect will we find ourselves in a situation comparable to that in which the Belgians and the French found themselves in the last World War, and as we were at Pearl Harbor—asleep at the switch? Korea has been called a Pearl Harbor, a Bataan, a Dunkirk. Will we be asleep?

Mr. President, another question the people back home are asking is, What has become of the $15,000,000,000 a year which has been appropriated by Congress for defense purposes? How has that money been spent in terms of preparations?

It is not simply a question of appropriating money; but we had better see to it that when the taxpayers pay money for defense purposes, they get 100 cents' worth of value for every dollar that is spent. Otherwise, when we are fighting the perimeter battles—if that is what we are going to have to do—the Russians will see that we are led into a trap. In the meantime their saboteurs will come into this country.

Day before yesterday I telephoned Mr. J. Edgar Hoover and read him a letter from a manufacturer located in the East, who said that at a certain party at which some persons got drunk, he talked to a Communist who said that in every great plant in this country they had people planted, people who will take care of sabotage work when and if certain conditions arise—in other words, that they will be ready. I gave that information to the FBI for whatever it is worth. Certainly it is consistent with the remarks which have been made today, on the floor of the Senate, by the distinguished Senator from Nevada.

Mr. President, are we alert; or is it a fact that we are mentally asleep—as we were in Korea?

I have previously referred to the function of the National Security Council. We are going to pour into Korea our country's reserves of material and men. As has been suggested on the floor of the Senate, that situation presents a very serious problem which we must consider. Has it been properly considered by the various agencies of the Government, particularly by the National Security Council, which, as we know, is composed of the heads of the Government, namely, the President, the Vice President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, and the Secretary of the National Security Resources Board, now Mr. Symington. Why have not we and why have not they been fully acquainted with this situation?

Why have so many of our aircraft carriers been kept in mothballs? It has been stated that if we had four or five or six of our aircraft carriers, equipped with the necessary planes, in the seething, fermenting area in the Far East, the situation there today might be quite different.

Mr. President, there is no inclination on my part personally to criticize anyone. However, we Americans have lived a soft life—even during the last World War, things came to us easily—and we have had one continuous administration for 20 years, an administration which has had its own way for all that period of time. Therefore, it seems to me that it is time that questions were raised, and that some of us called attention to the fact that the danger to our national house is that of utter destruction.

Mr. President, this is not the first time in history when people have slept. I have just finished reading a book entitled "The Egyptian," written by a Finn, telling the story of Egypt a thousand years before the life of Christ, recounting how the great Pharaoh had a false sense of security, despite all the omens and warnings, despite the warring tribes, despite the situation in Syria and other lands. He simply fell asleep at the switch, so to speak; and his country was taken over.

Mr. President, we have been living in the lap of luxury, and we have been spending $15,000,000,000 a year for national defense purposes. However, where are our defenses? I think the American people should be told the facts in that connection.

A moment ago I said that there are rumblings in Iran and rumblings in Berlin. There are also rumblings in Tito's land. Tito says he can handle the situation. I think he is probably about as misinformed as we were about Korea.

Another fact is quite significant. We are seeking to get the facts, and then, from the facts, to find the answer to the question, Where do we go? Another fact which is quite significant, and which we in America must keep in mind, is that all over the world Russia, as I said before, seems to be getting manpower other than her own to start the fighting toward her objectives. Thus, in China, as I said, she gets the Communist Chinese. In Korea, she gets the North Korean Communists; and in Indochina and Malaya, she gets Indochinese and Malayan Communists to do the fighting.

The fact has been stressed, as I recall, by one of the Senators, and it is a known fact, that Russia has built great manufacturing cities behind the Urals. We also know that what she would need most in a world contest would be oil. Therefore, I think we may safely draw the conclusion that Iran is on her schedule; just when, no one knows.

It also appears—and this is a most significant fact, and some of the facts were stated today by the Senator from Minnesota—that Russia has outdistanced the world in the number of airplanes manufactured. Why? She has outdistanced the world in tanks. The effectiveness of her tanks is demonstrated in Korea. Is the action in Korea merely a trying-out operation? Someone had said that we are supposed to have secret weapons, and that one of the purposes behind the Korean encounter is to force us to open up and show our secret weapons in that fight, in order that Russia may know about them, if, indeed, she does not already have them. Mr. President, you and I remember, years ago, when Spain was the testing ground for Communist and Fascist groups. Different countries participated. Russia gave the Spanish Communists arms, but not men in that fight. She egged them on. It was the preliminary bout preceding the world battle—World War II.

As I say, the only purpose at this time of bringing out these facts, as distinguished from surmises, is not that we do not know them, but, Mr. President, so that you and I may become conscious of them, and so that they will operate to give direction and perhaps guidance, particularly the Executive and the Defense Department of the Government, to the end that they may become wise to the situation, we may know where we are going and not commit great blunders and expose our great country to something which we ourselves imposed upon Japan.

These are some of the basic facts, but not all of them. Some of us would like to know what is around the corner of tomorrow. Today it was mentioned on the floor that "without vision, the people perish." Are we to try to contain Russia's allies throughout the world? That is a part of the foreign policy that we must know about. Moreover, we must count the cost. We must evaluate that, Mr. President. Read the newspapers today and see how our boys were slaughtered. Of 500 of them, but 28 or 30 remain. We have got to count those costs. Those were our boys. We are in Korea, and must continue our activities there; but we cannot focus all our sights on Korea. Look at the map of Russia. There she is, concentrated within her 8,000,000 square miles, striking out, feeling the world out in all directions; and we are 9,000 or 10,000 miles away.

Another fact which I want to call particularly to the attention of the National Security Council is this: We have heard much said about the fact that the Navy was not permitted to get into action, that we did not have available a sufficient number of air carriers and were not adequate to handle the situation in that respect.

Another fact we must remember is that at Pearl Harbor our ships were sitting like ducks. They were bombed from the air. It is possible for our ships to be sitting like ducks on the ocean, sailing the waters between China and the Korean peninsula, where they can be bombed from the air or attacked by the snorkel submarine. The question is, What precautions have been taken? Are we alert to such dangers? Will our entire Navy be sunk.

In February 1941, speaking on the floor of the Senate, about 8 months before Pearl Harbor, I called attention to the certain facts and asked that President Roosevelt submit to the Senate in executive session information as to the condition of our defenses in Hawaii and the Philippines, and that we be permitted to catechise the Secretary of State and other officials. On that occasion I asked, "Will our ships be found, as the Russian ships were in the Russo-Japanese War, at Port Arthur?" For 8 months following that no attention was paid to the question. No attention was paid when I asked that information be given us as to our defenses in Hawaii and the Philippines. We remained in Pearl Harbor totally oblivious, as we have done in Korea. The general in charge of Korea was on his way home, and the colonel whom he left in charge was in Japan.

I am not speaking against individuals, but about a condition of mind which is exceedingly dangerous in this period. The world has become contracted. The war game is now played on something similar to a chessboard. We have planes that will travel 1,000 miles an hour. A week or two ago we were told how we were going to handle the possible situation of planes coming with bombs over the Pole.

There is another fact which is tremendously significant. It goes to the question of what happened at Pearl Harbor and what happened in Korea. It relates to our total blindness to the world situation as it is. Have we forgotten Hiroshima and Nagasaki? We remember that by one bomb between 80,000 and 100,000 lives were snuffed out. Yet only a few weeks ago we were talking about planes coming over to this country.

Mr. President, for years I have talked about decentralization. That is a vital subject today. We are still building larger cities. We are still concentrating factories which are vital to our defense within certain constricted areas, where it would be possible for one bomb to knock them out. Those are facts, Mr. President. We are living in the Atomic Age which we, ourselves, brought into being. We demonstrated the effectiveness of the atomic bomb on certain Japanese cities. What are we doing about that? What are our defenses? How much asleep are we?

As I say, Mr. President, I do not like to indulge in personalities, but we sent to Korea 500 officers. What was our information from them? It was that the South Koreans could take care of the situation. What were those officers doing? They certainly were asleep to the real situation. Is that same condition true as to every front on this sphere? Are we still asleep at the switch? Are we permitting the gold-braid boys to fall asleep when it is their job to alert us?

One of the things in which we are interested is whether we have been getting value for the money we have been spending for national defense, or are we just as unalert and unprepared to meet an attack on our own shores as were the South Koreans? Have we, because of the conflict in Korea, forgotten the lessons of Hiroshima and Nagasaki? Are we alert to the danger of the snorkel, with our Navy in the Far East? Will the Navy be found by the Russian planes and snorkels like sitting ducks, as were our ships at Pearl Harbor when the Japs attacked, only this time sailing the seas? What constitutes alertness and adequacy changes with the changing of time and events.

Mr. President, I hope the signs indicating that we are asleep will disappear in America. I hope that those who have the power under the law, such as the National Security Council, will accept the obligation, in the interest of national security, of doing that which is necessary. I repeat, their function is to assess and appraise the objectives, commitments, and risks of the United States in relation to our actual and potential military power.

We were very naive in dealing with Stalin in the past. I repeat, because I want it clearly known, if that be possible, that we are building our cities bigger; we are centralizing our production; and we neglect the building of the St. Lawrence seaway, which is now so necessary—more so than ever before—in order that in the great Middle West area the production of steel and the things which are made from steel may continue. If we should become isolated in a third world war—and no one knows what the effect of the snorkel will be; no one knows what the effect of the great planes which can travel 6,000 or 7,000 miles will be—if we cannot produce the iron ore, and the steel from it, we shall not be able to produce planes, tanks, and munitions of war, and we shall not be able to rebuild our cities.

America must become alerted, and those who lead us must become alerted and totally aware of the tremendous challenge which is thrown at us.

We have taken no steps to decentralize our Government. One bomb could destroy the taproots of the executive, judicial, and legislative branches of our Government. One bomb planted on Washington could set this Nation into confusion, because the taproots of the executive, judicial, and legislative branches would be gone.

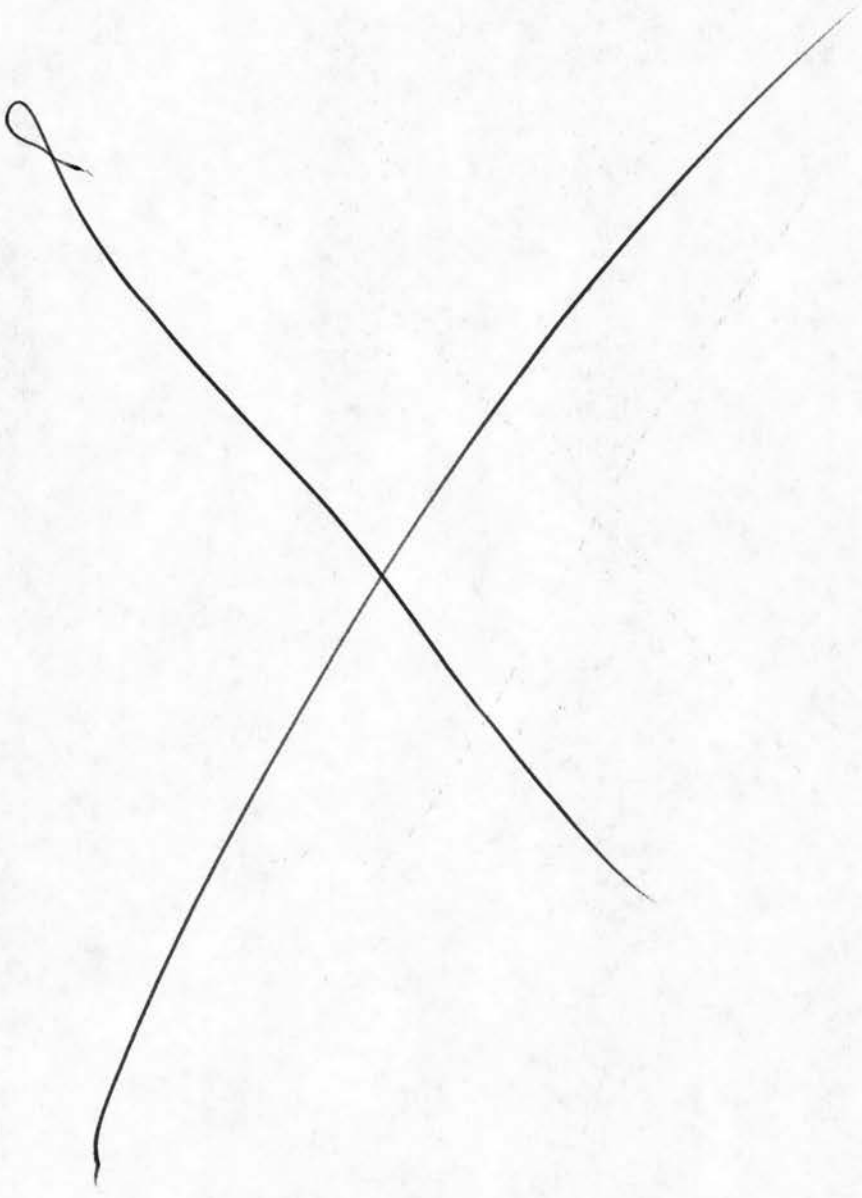
Why did we not bomb Tokyo? It was because General MacArthur told us not to do it. He said, "If you destroy the head of the government, chaos will be the result."

We are proceeding like babes in the woods, just as naive as can be, with no provision against an emergency which might arise overnight. We can be sure that the first spot for attack by Russia will be Washington, because its destruction would cause demoralization.

So, Mr. President, we talk about alertness, but what have we done? Are we still living back in the days of 1941 when armed planes could not cross the ocean and when we had no thought of planes coming over the Pole?

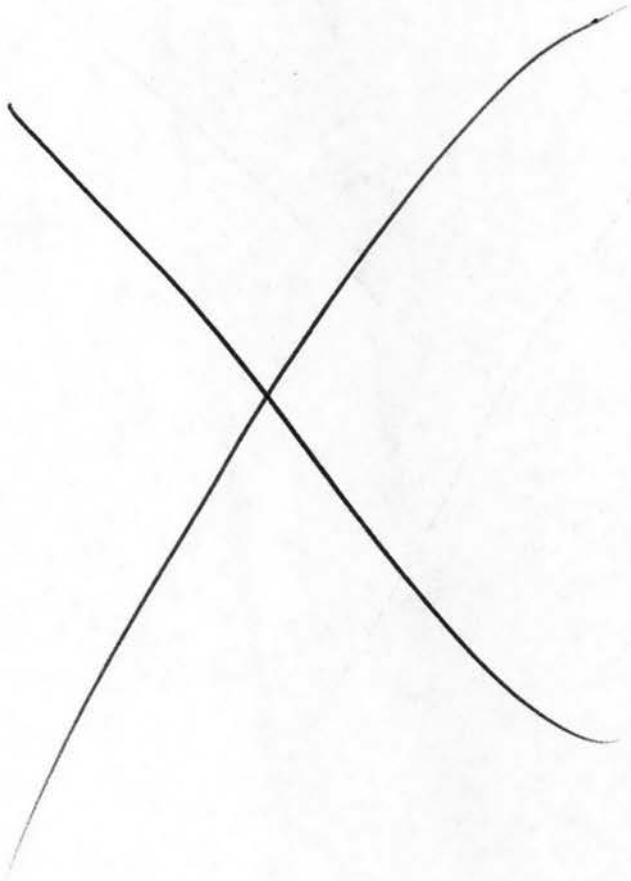
The Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS], speaking about Korea, stated that the situation was tough. He said:

> Naturally, the logistic problems are extremely difficult, due to distance, and there are limited port facilities and relatively poor landing-field facilities for aviation.



David Lawrence, in commenting on this statement, said:

> These words might have been uttered about America's position in the Far East when the Japanese took both the Philippines and Hawaii in 1941, and one must rub one's eyes and pinch one's self to make sure this is 1950. With all the Navy's aircraft carriers and the vast number of planes in the Pacific only 5 years ago, it seems as if someone blundered badly despite the $15,000,000,000 a year spent for defense purposes.



Mr. President, I shall summarize briefly and then conclude.

We must remember that we are living in 1950. In the years since 1941 the world has stepped ahead in scientific progress to such an extent that we have literally contracted the world into a very

P 9 9 9 7

PJ 9998

Brannan's address as made available by him and of his report to this Office relative to the said meeting.

With regard to whether the salary and expenses of the community committeemen attending the meeting may properly be allowed, the Secretary of Agriculture, by section 388 of the act of February 16, 1938, 52 Stat. 68, 7 U. S. C. 1388, is directed to utilize State, county, and local committees as established by 16 U. S. C. 590h (b), and the programs of the Production and Marketing Administration are largely administered through such committeemen. As you know the said committeemen are not regular Government employees but farmers elected to assist in carrying out the agricultural programs. To effectively carry out their duties, of course, they must be trained as to their functions and related problems and the regulations of the Department of Agriculture (par. 713.37, Regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture Governing PMA County and Community Committees) provide for meetings "when necessary to the successful administration of the program." The salary and travel expenses of the community committeemen appear to have been in accordance with rates duly established by competent authority under regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture. Also, the said salary and expenses appear to constitute administrative expenses incurred by the county committeemen in cooperating in the carrying out of the production-and-marketing program which the Secretary of Agriculture by section 388 (b) of the act of February 16, 1938, 7 U. S. C. 1388b, is authorized and directed to pay out of funds made available for such program. The meeting considered as a whole appears to have familiarized such committeemen with the workings of the program, and it is believed that the salary and expenses of the community committeemen are properly authorized to be paid as administrative expenses of the county committee under section 368 (b) of the said act. While the said section of law makes provision for payment of the administrative expenses of the county committee, the salary and expenses of the community committeemen who assist the county committees in carrying out the program appear properly to be for consideration as an administrative expense of the county committee which is payable in the same way as would other administrative expenses of this county committee such as stenographic services, their own compensation and expenses, and the like.

I trust that what is set forth above and the attached material will be of assistance to you.

Sincerely yours,

LINDSAY WARREN,
Comptroller General of the United States.

UNITED STATES SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY,
July 6, 1950.

Hon. LINDSAY C. WARREN,
Comptroller General of the United States,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. WARREN: I want to thank you for your letter of June 20 and also for the material enclosed relating to the meeting of the Production and Marketing Administration, Department of Agriculture, at St. Paul, Minn., on April 3 and 4, 1950.

However, I must say that I am pretty much disappointed and disturbed in your report as submitted. In effect, you almost give the PMA a clean bill of health in connection with this meeting.

The crux of the issue raised by me in connection with this meeting was whether or not the expenses and salary of community committeemen could be paid in connection with their attendance at the second day of St. Paul meeting for the purpose of hearing political speeches.

Senator FERGUSON made the point that Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan violated section 201 of title 18 of the United States Code by making a speech intended to influence legislation. In other words, instead of discussing the PMA program as now authorized by law, he made a plea for the adoption of the so-called Brannan plan. Certainly, this plea for the Brannan plan could have been made for no other purpose than the influencing of proposed legislation.

So far as I can see, you have not made any finding as to whether the Secretary violated section 201 of the law in making such a speech. Possibly you do not consider this as coming under your jurisdiction.

However, as to the specific point I made, you state that "said committeemen are not regular Government employees but farmers elected to assist in carrying out the agricultural programs. To effectively carry out their duties, of course, they must be trained as to their functions and related problems and the regulations of the Department of Agriculture (paragraph 713.37, 'Regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture Governing PMA County and Commodity Committees') provide for meetings 'when necessary to the successful administration of the program.'

"The salary and travel expenses of the community committeemen appear to have been in accordance with rates duly established by competent authority under regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture. Also, the said salary and expenses appear to constitute administrative expenses incurred by the county committeemen in cooperating in the carrying out of the Production and Marketing program which the Secretary of Agriculture by section 388 (b) of the act of February 16, 1938 (7 U. S. C. 1388b), is authorized and directed to pay out of funds made available for such program."

You have ignored the fact that the community committeemen were not even invited to attend the first day of the meeting on April 3 which was publicized by the PMA as the day on which county committeemen would "make plans for the year's conservation work and to consider administrative details of the price-support and crop-insurance programs."

It was made clear in the PMA news releases that the county committeemen would "be joined by community committeemen for the second day's session in the auditorium arena." I have searched the record carefully and I cannot find any statement or announcement whatsoever that the second day's meeting would be devoted to, or was actually devoted to, anything but speeches. These speeches were not billed as discussions of programs now on the statute books; they were listed in such vague terms as "messages of vital importance to people interested in agriculture."

Besides Secretary Brannan, other speakers at the second day of the conference mentioned were Dr. Dewey Anderson, executive director of Public Affairs Institute, who was there to discuss the President's point 4 program; and Senator HUBERT HUMPHREY, who did not discuss the PMA program at all.

I cannot see how you can justify paying community committeemen for attending the second day of the St. Paul meeting on the ground that community committeemen can attend meetings "when necessary to the successful administration of the program." I don't see how even Secretary Brannan's discussion of the proposed Brannan plan has anything to do with the successful administration of the program now on the statute books, which is the only program community or county committeemen have any responsibility for administering.

You also hold that—

"The salary and expenses of the community committeemen who assist the county committees in carrying out the program appear properly to be for consideration as an administrative expense of the county committee which is payable in the same way as would other administrative expenses of this county committee such as stenographic services, their own compensation and expenses and the like."

According to this interpretation, the county committee can hire anyone to attend any meeting for any purpose. I am sure most county committees would not willingly and knowingly do this, but this, nevertheless, is the import of your interpretation.

I want to make it clear that I am not blaming the committeemen for what took place in connection with the St. Paul meeting. It is their superiors whom I hold responsible.

I am keenly disturbed by your report which so obviously evaded the points raised by Senator FERGUSON and myself.

By determining that the 4,256 community committeemen could legally be paid salary and expenses to the second day of the St. Paul conference, I fear you have cleared the way for the expenditure of large sums of PMA funds for political purposes.

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE D. AIKEN,
United States Senator.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, July 7, 1950.

Hon. GEORGE D. AIKEN,
United States Senate.

MY DEAR SENATOR AIKEN: I have received your letter of July 6, 1950, with further reference to the meeting of the Production and Marketing Administration, Department of Agriculture, at St. Paul, Minn., on April 3 and 4, 1950.

It was somewhat distressing to me to learn that you did not consider my letter of June 20, 1950, as completely responsive to your letters of April 12 and May 19 and I wish to assure you there was certainly no intention on my part to be evasive or to indicate any personal approval of the meeting. My effective jurisdiction in the matter was considered to relate solely to the bare legal question involved—the availability of appropriated funds for the payments to community committeemen—and it was thought that the conclusion that the appropriation was available sufficiently answered your letters to the extent it was within my authority to do so.

For the reasons stated in my letter of June 20, 1950, there appears to be no proper legal basis for the General Accounting Office to disallow credit for the payments made to community committeemen for attendance at the second day of the meeting. Community committeemen are provided for by law, they are authorized to participate in the agricultural programs, they are authorized to attend meetings in relation thereto, and appropriated funds are available for expenses incurred in that connection. That does not necessarily mean, of course, that I approve of the meeting or the way in which it was conducted. As you know, I have no authority to disallow or withhold credit for payments because they may have been made extravagantly or unwisely or because the benefits received may not have been as great as might be expected or desired. I have no authority to administer the agricultural programs or to substitute my judgment for the judgment of the officials charged with such responsibility.

The conclusion that community committeemen may be paid in connection with attendance at meetings was not intended to convey the impression that county committees "can hire anyone to attend any meeting for any purpose," and I assure you that the county committees have no such authority and the said conclusion will not be so applied in the audit here of accounts and claims.

It will be noted that section 201 of title 18, United States Code (now sec. 1913, title 18) contains penal provisions for violations thereof which are not within my authority to enforce. The fine and imprisonment provisions thereof are criminal in nature and could be enforced only through judicial action. And should that take place, it probably would afford no basis for disallowing credit for the payments made to the community committeemen. They were paid for attending the meeting and not for attempting to influence anyone.

It is hoped that the foregoing will satisfactorily explain the position of the General Accounting Office in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

LINDSAY C. WARREN,
Comptroller General of the United States.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. President, in discussing the appropriation bill I do not desire to take very much time, but I discover in the Department of Agriculture appropriation covered in the report on page 90, a provision for the activities under the Research and Marketing Act, 1946. In the House bill an appropriation of $11,000,000 was made, but the Senate committee recommended that $6,000,000 be allowed, and that $5,000,000 be taken from this item and transferred to the Office of Experiment Stations.

I have tried to find in the statements or in the bill or somewhere else an explanation as to why that should have been done. On page 97 I find the very brief statement given there from which I read:

> The increase recommended by the committee in this item is to conform to the distribution of section 9 funds from the item for Research and Marketing Act of 1946 in the amount of $5,000,000—

And so forth. That is about the only explanation given.

I turn then to page 106, and I find under the heading "Decreases" that appropriation for the Research and Marketing Act has been decreased $5,000,000, and a statement as to why it is made.

Mr. President, I hope the Committee on Appropriations is prepared to withstand a point of order against this item, because in my opinion it represents an attempt on the part of the Appropriations Committee to change and to repeal by its action portions of the Research and Marketing Act of 1946.

I think I understand the reason for it, but I believe it is nonetheless regrettable. I hope the Members of the Senate, before they vote on this item, if they have a chance to vote on it, if the point of order is not found to be good, will read Public Law 733 of the Seventy-fifth Congress again. This is the law known as the Hope-Flannagan Act, or the Flannagan-Hope Act—it has been labeled both ways—named for the majority and minority ranking members of the House Committee on Agriculture in 1946. They both introduced individual bills, and those two bills were consolidated, and the bill passed providing for research and marketing in the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. President, I ask at this point that section 1 of that act may be printed in the RECORD because it states the purpose of the legislation.

There being no objection, section 1 of the act was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SECTION 1. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the Congress to promote the efficient production and utilization of products of the soil as essential to the health and welfare of our people and to promote a sound and prosperous agriculture and rural life as indispensable to the maintenance of maximum employment and national prosperity. It is also the intent of Congress to assure agriculture a position in research equal to that of industry which will aid in maintaining an equitable balance between agriculture and other sections of our economy. For the attainment of these objectives, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to conduct and to stimulate research into the laws and principles underlying the basic problems of agriculture in its broadest aspects, including but not limited to: Research relating to the improvement of the quality of, and the development of new and improved methods of the production, marketing, distribution, processing, and utilization of plant and animal commodities at all stages from the original producer through to the ultimate consumer; research into the problems of human nutrition and the nutritive value of agricultural commodities, with particular reference to their content of vitamins, minerals, amino and fatty acids, and all other constituents that may be found necessary for the health of the consumer and to the gains or losses in nutritive value that may take place at any stage in their production, distribution, processing, and preparation for use by the consumer; research relating to the development of present, new, and extended uses and markets for agricultural commodities and byproducts as food or in commerce, manufacture, or trade, both at home and abroad, with particular reference to those foods and fibers for which our capacity to produce exceeds or may exceed existing economic demand; research to encourage the discovery, introduction, and breeding of new and useful agricultural crops, plants, and animals, both foreign and native, particularly for those crops and plants which may be adapted to utilization in chemical and manufacturing industries; research relating to new and more profitable uses for our resources of agricultural manpower, soils, plants, animals, and equipment than those to which they are now, or may hereafter be, devoted; research relating to the conservation, development, and use of land, forest, and water resources for agricultural purposes; research relating to the design, development, and the more efficient and satisfactory use of farm buildings, farm homes, farm machinery, including the application of electricity and other forms of power; research relating to the diversification of farm enterprises, both as to the type of commodities produced, and as to the types of operations performed, on the individual farm; research relating to any other laws and principles that many contribute to the establishment and maintenance of a permanent and effective agricultural industry including such investigations as have for their purpose the development and improvement of the rural home and rural life, and the maximum contribution by agriculture to the welfare of the consumer and the maintenance of maximum employment and national prosperity; and such other researches or experiments bearing on the agricultural industry or on rural homes of the United States as may in each case be deemed advisable, having due regard to the varying conditions and needs of Puerto Rico, the respective States, and Territories. In effectuating the purposes of this section, maximum use shall be made of existing research facilities owned or controlled by the Federal Government or by State agricultural experiment stations and of the facilities of the Federal and State extension services. Research authorized under this section shall be in additon to research provided for under existing law (but both activities shall be coordinated so far as practicable).

Mr. ANDERSON. In that connection, section 9 and section 10 were changed in the bill to give additional sums for new types of studies looking toward the better marketing of agricultural products and toward the utilization of farm crops. This had been the subject of long, long study. It was not something which was hastily drawn out of a hat and presented to the Congress. As a matter of fact the Department of Agriculture had caused a survey to be made of every type of agricultural experimental work, research work, that was going on in the whole United States, and after that survey was completed, it required months of time of an entire staff even to correlate all the facts brought to light as to the type of research being done by private and public institutions in the United States. When all that work was done and when the results of the correlation were apparent to the Department of Agriculture, it was seen that there was need for a tremendous amount of work by the Department of Agriculture itself both by experimentation which it might carry on and by experimentation which it might farm out to the agricultural colleges and to private research organizations if agricultural crops were properly to be utilized. As I said, that was not hastily done. It required months of work. Then finally upon the basis of all that research a bill was prepared and presented to the Congress.

Mr. President, I desire to call the attention of the Senate to a pamphlet entitled "The Agricultural Research and Marketing Act of 1946—A Consideration of Basic Objectives and Procedures," which was issued by the Agricultural Committee on National Policy of the National Planning Association. It is strange that a publication of this nature could be issued and the act praised highly by everyone in the United States who was concerned with the Department of Agriculture, and that then a committee of the Congress should wipe out that work in a moment by a provision in the agricultural appropriation bill. It was not done solely by the Senate committee. The House committee took care of the changes in section 10 (a) and (b). Then the Senate committee took care of the provisions in section 9. I submit that those two things added together have pretty effectively scuttled the research provisions of the Research and Marketing Act of 1946.

It seems to me it would have been much better if it was desired to repeal the act, to have raised the question on the floor by submitting a bill for that purpose and having it referred to the Committee on Agriculture in the House or the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry in the Senate. I hope at this stage, instead of reading it, because the hour is already late, that I may have permission to insert in the RECORD at this point a statement on the act itself, its purposes and provisions, not prepared by me, but prepared by the Agricultural Committee on National Policy of the National Planning Association. I ask unanimous consent that that may be done.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The agricultural colleges have been engaged in research almost since their beginning some 85 years ago. Much of their study has been on technological problems such as the improvement of varieties, animal breeding and feeding, soil management, disease and pest control and so on—in other words, on ways of improving and cheapening production.

The results achieved have been enormous, though for the most part not sensational. Since agriculture is a competitive industry, a good part of the benefits has been widely diffused among the Nation's population in the form of more abundant, cheaper, and better products.

In recent decades, however, farming has become more highly commercial. It requires larger investments, borrows more money, ships its products greater distances, and produces more specialties. It is concerned with a vast array of economic relationships many of which involve closely related technological problems. This shift from relative self-sufficiency and largely local markets to broad national and international markets has made necessary more study of market organization, of problems of packing, storing, shipping, and selling, and of competitive relations with other areas.

New uses of agricultural products and new outlets for them have also become more important, and the problems of oversupply and undersupply and of stabilizing prices and incomes have come into prominence. There is, furthermore, a growing recognition of the importance to agriculture of nonfarm incomes and buying power and of general national policies relating to credit, taxation, transportation, labor, and international trade.

The act of 1946 is clearly intended as a major step in the evolutionary process of providing for agriculture a research arm comparable to those available to many nonagricultural industries. This process began with the Hatch Act of 1887 and was extended by the Adams Act of 1906. In 1925, through the Purnell Act, and again in 1935, through the Bankhead-Jones Act, the Congress not only increased the funds for agricultural research but broadened the directives under which it was to be carried on. The act of 1946 represents a more vigorous and comprehensive attempt to create a larger and better balanced program of agricultural research. Its major emphasis is on economic problems, particularly those relating to marketing. There is clear recognition, however, of the need for continuing and strengthening the work on technological problems. The specific directives for research on marketing and economic problems should not be interpreted as deemphasis on technological research, but rather as an effort to strengthen an underdeveloped phase of the research program.

No industry, of course, can afford to ignore researches looking to improved and more efficient production, to the maintenance of its basic resources, and to the elimination of physical losses and wastages. Agriculture's efforts to solve problems of these types should be continued vigorously and effectively.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. President, I do not desire to detain the Senate long. I merely have made this statement on the floor today because the matter referred to will come up tomorrow, I assume, when the item in question is reached. I think it is extremely unfortunate that there is not a better explanation for the action of the committee. I called officials of the Department of Agriculture and tried to find out what the reason was for the change, and the answer I received was that it was proposed to simplify the appropriation structure. That is a simple explanation, but it actually is a device whereby the Research and Marketing Act of 1946 is repealed without a moment's hearing, without an opportunity for anyone who worked for its enactment to appear before a committee and discuss it. I hope that something better than that will be presented as a reason for the action which has been taken by the committee.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SPARKMAN in the chair). Does the Senator from New Mexico yield to his colleague for a question?

Mr. ANDERSON. I yield for a question.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I was going to suggest to my colleague that the chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture of the Appropriations Committee dealing with this matter is the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL]. I am sorry that he was not present at the moment my colleague made his remarks. I am sure the Senator from Georgia will be able to explain to my colleague and to the Senate the provisions to which my colleague has referred to. I see the Senator from Georgia has now come onto the floor.

Mr. ANDERSON. The Senator from Georgia is now on the floor. I may say that I recognize the section in question was handled by the distinguished Senator from Georgia, and I can testify from my experience that the Department of Agriculture has no greater friend in the Congress than the Senator from Georgia. I do not believe that he is quite sure as to why the change is being made. I think it is somewhat important that we take a very good look at it. It is easy to say that we simply take the money from one place and transfer it to the same group without it going through the Research and Marketing Administration. But the very reason why it was given to the Research and Marketing Administration was that it was determined that there might be projects which the country at large decided were necessary for an over-all study of the problem and that the work should be planned in the Department of Agriculture, and then farmed out to the agricultural colleges and experiment stations. The action taken by the committee completely reverses that, and puts it directly into the hands of the office of the experiment station the distribution and handling of these funds. I say that a long, long fight was made on this question, and I think it is a shame to lose the result of that struggle by such a provision as that contained in the bill.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ANDERSON. I yield.

Mr. AIKEN. Does the Senator from New Mexico know whether this provision was approved or protested by the Department of Agriculture?

Mr. ANDERSON. I believe the distinguished Senator from Georgia can tell the Senator about that.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I may say that this provision was inserted in the bill at the suggestion of the Department of Agriculture. The House had made a transfer of other research funds, not of course to the same purpose as proposed in this connection, but the department suggested that the amendment be included in the bill. They stated to the committee that it would simplify their bookkeeping procedures, and that it would not adversely affect the research program. I have requested of the Department a full statement of their position on this matter, and I will have it here tomorrow before the item is reached in the bill.

Mr. AIKEN. Is the Senator from Georgia satisfied that it will not adversely affect the research program?

Mr. RUSSELL. I am, of course, relying on the statement of the Department to that effect.

Mr. AIKEN. The Senator from Georgia and, I expect the Senator from New Mexico, will agree that greater controls are no substitute for research and marketing investigation. I may say that if the Department suggested it, it might be in line with the policy of those who constantly emphasize a desire for more controls rather than for more research. It has appeared to me ever since the bill was passed that the Department has never put its heart into conducting the research and marketing work of the Department as the Congress had intended.

Mr. RUSSELL. I think there is no question that the results of all these research items have been disappointing to those of us who sponsored the original research bill. I would not confine that observation to the production and marketing end.

Mr. AIKEN. I would not, either.

Mr. RUSSELL. I would say that the entire research program, for which Congress has made perhaps too liberal a provision, has been disappointing to me.

Of course sometimes we have given the Department, at its request, money which it should not have had because it did not have available programs on which to expend the funds; and that has resulted in haphazard activities.

Mr. AIKEN. But the Department has requested the funds.

Mr. RUSSELL. Oh, yes. Of course, we have provided advisory committees and other committees to assist in the program.

On the other hand, it has been in effect for only a few years, and perhaps I have expected too much of it by this time. However, the results have been disappointing to me.

Mr. President, I would be the last man to wish to injure any phase of the program under the Agricultural Act of 1946, of course.

Mr. AIKEN. Let me say that it has been very disappointing to me that the only solution which has been proposed for some of the problems has been that of providing more Government controls.

Mr. RUSSELL. I do not understand that the question of more Government controls is involved in this amendment, although that may be the case. I am not in a position to say as to that.

However, I understood that it was merely a matter of simplifying the bookkeeping and of making more easy the administration, without attempting in any way to change the intent of Congress under that act, when it was passed.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. President, I would be very happy if anyone could point out that that is the situation.

I simply point out the fact that the House has voted to merge the funds under sections 10 (a) and 10 (b), and the Senate Appropriations Committee has voted to transfer the funds under section 9. That matter is one over which we fought for months, namely, the question of whether it was better to appropriate the funds directly to the experiment stations or to appropriate them directly to the Department of Agriculture itself, so that it could apportion the funds in any way it saw fit to do.

Mr. President, I do not desire to detain the Senate in regard to this matter, except to point out that in the Department of Agriculture there are rooms full of surveys for the better utilization of agricultural products; there are charts and plans and studies, which have been made for 50 years, in regard to how to better utilize agricultural products.

However, when the surveys were made by the various interested groups, they discovered that it does not do any good to talk about the better utilization of an agricultural product unless those handling the program are prepared to make contracts with certain persons or firms to try to use the product. We found that it was one thing to say that cotton should be used for insulation, for instance, but quite another thing to persuade a company to use cotton for insulation; and we found that sometimes it was necessary to subsidize for a while the attempts to use a certain product in a new way, until such uses became established.

For instance, we found that sometimes a manufacturing company would have millions of dollars available to put to use in research in connection with the development of a synthetic product to be used as a substitute for cotton and in the adaptation of that synthetic product to various uses, whereas the cotton farmers did not have any research organization or facilities by which to compete with such efforts to substitute the synthetic product for cotton itself.

So Congress has realized that research is most important to the proper use of the various agricultural products. On that basis, the act was passed in 1946, and efforts have been made to start the research work.

I can say frankly that there are in the Department of Agriculture agencies which resisted when attempts were made to take away from them the research work they long had handled; and those agencies were not happy when an attempt was made to set up a research and marketing section.

Now we find the fruits of their efforts, when the funds under sections 10 (a) and 10 (b) have been voted by the House to be transferred, and when, now, the funds under section 9 are proposed by the Senate Committee on Appropriations to be transferred. I do not think that should be done. I think this matter is most important and most serious to the country as a whole. I think it is important that we have a chance to better utilize agricultural products. We should realize that we are faced with the fact that if these appropriations are reduced this year, possibly these agencies will not be able to do the necessary work in future years.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ANDERSON. I am glad to yield.

Mr. LANGER. Is not the situation the Senator has been discussing quite similar to the situation in connection with silver? In other words, the silver producers have set up committees to find new markets for silver. Is not that situation similar to the one in this case?

Mr. ANDERSON. Of course it is. We had hoped that we would be able to make great savings, as a result of the proper utilization and development of this research program. For instance, there is a field in which cotton can be used in the manufacture of fine bond paper. However, no paper manufacturer will begin to do so at once; it is necessary to supply cotton to him free for a certain period of time, and perhaps to subsidize him to a limited extent in connection with such a development; and then, finally, he will reach the point where he will use cotton for that purpose. The Department has done precisely that, and I think it has acted wisely in trying to find new uses for cotton and other products.

Cotton is not the only product for which attempts have been made to find new uses, but similar attempts have been made in regard to other products and commodities.

Certainly in that connection the various producers need the combined resources of the Department of Agriculture, it seems to me.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield further, I should like to call particular attention to wheat straw, flax straw, and corn, which the Senator has mentioned. It seems to me me that in that connection there is a chance to bring about very great developments.

I should like to ask the Senator whether the committee was apprised of these facts before it took the action it did take.

Mr. ANDERSON. I do not know. The best person to whom the Senator can address that question is the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL].

My understanding is that the matter was presented by the Department of Agriculture as a means of simplifying its budgetary and accounting procedures. I have tried to say that the Department has no finer friend than the Senator from Georgia. I know that from my experience as Secretary of Agriculture; and I know that if the matter had been properly presented to the committee, it would have been carefully considered.

It may be that there is nothing to the present proposal other than an attempt to bring about a change in the budgetary and accounting procedures. However, I do not so understand the proposal; it seems to me that it certainly smacks of the battle which we had for a long time regarding whether the Department of Agriculture itself should direct the research or whether it should turn the research funds over to the experiment stations and let them direct the research.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Georgia a question, if the Senator from New Mexico will yield to permit me to do so. I should like to ask the Senator from Georgia whether the committee considered this matter?

Mr. RUSSELL. The committee considered it. No objection was raised, from any source, to the provision of the House provision which consolidated the funds authorized in regard to research and administration.

The Department said it would apply the same rules to the transfer of the funds, as authorized in section 9 or section 9 (a), I believe, of the original act, with assurances that in no wise would that affect the research work, but merely would be a simplification of the procedures.

A few minutes ago I stated that I had requested from the Department a full and complete statement of the effect of the amendment, from its standpoint, and a statement regarding what it proposed to do under the amendment, if the amendment is agreed to and goes into effect. I hope to have that information available tomorrow, when this title of the bill will be reached.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield, to permit me to ask a further question?

Mr. RUSSELL. Certainly, if I now have the floor.

Mr. LANGER. I am quite sure the Senator is familiar, as is the junior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY], with the situation in the Northwest, where literally hundreds of thousands of tons of wheat straw are burned each year. Great stacks of wheat straw are piled up and burned. I have always thought it was a terrific loss to the country that the wheat straw was not used beneficially in industry.

Of course it took us many years to find ways to utilize the flax straw. I remember, as I am sure my colleague the Senator from Minnesota does, the days when flax straw was burned, just as today wheat straw is burned, all over the Northwest.

I should like to bring to the attention of the distinguished Senator from Georgia the question of finding some use for wheat straw, so that when similar questions arise before the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, he will have that particular subject in mind, because it seems to me that instead of permitting this tremendous waste to continue—and, so far as I know, it occurs only in the United States and in Canada—somehow, somewhere, such straw should be utilized, and the marketing division should find some way of utilizing it.

Mr. RUSSELL. It seems to me that that is certainly a proper matter of research. I have had a hobby of my own of research along similar lines for the past 10 years. It has always disturbed me greatly to know that one-fourth of all our timber was discarded in the form of sawdust and waste. It has always seemed to me to be almost a criminal waste, when we know that we are cutting down our forest resources every year and that the production is not keeping pace with the rate of consumption, particularly during the war years. So, for years I urged the Department of Agriculture, through the Forestry Products Laboratory, to make intensive surveys to ascertain if some feasible use could not be made of sawdust and shavings and materials of that kind which are now burned at tens of thousands of sawmills and planing mills throughout the country. Some little research has been done along that line. I shall be glad to do whatever I can in assisting the Senator to have some research done in connection with wheat straw.

Mr. LANGER. During the war there was an admitted shortage of paper, as the Senator knows.

Mr. RUSSELL. That is correct.

Mr. LANGER. The question arose as to whether certain kinds of timber could be used for the manufacture of paper pulp. Finally, as the Senator knows, we spent a great deal of money in Canada for paper to be shipped into the United States. The prices doubled, trebeled, and rose even higher. It seems to me that the attention of the marketing division should be called to the fact that wheat and oat straw makes excellent paper. Whether the cost is prohibitive I think is something that should be ascertained.

Mr. RUSSELL. I shall be happy to see research done along that line. I am sure the Senator knows that we also make paper from pine pulp.

Mr. LANGER. Yes, indeed.

Mr. RUSSELL. The Senator from North Dakota also knows that tens of millions of tons of sawdust, slabs, and shavings from pine lumber have been burned. During my lifetime I have observed a great deal of it. But, thus far, very little research has been done toward the utilization of such material either in the production of paper or for other purposes.

Mr. LANGER. I remember that one of the most eloquent arguments ever heard upon this floor was made by the distinguished Senator from Georgia on the very matter which he is now discussing, about the waste of stumpage, I think it was called, at that time.

Mr. RUSSELL. That is correct. I thank the Senator. We have been too prodigal with the blessings of Providence in this country. We have been wasteful since the inception of civilization on this continent.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President——

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. LUCAS. May I inquire whether the Senator from Louisiana expects to get a vote on his amendment this afternoon?

Mr. ELLENDER. Yes; immediately following the obtaining of a quorum.

Mr. LUCAS. Have the arguments been concluded?

Mr. CHAVEZ. I desire to discuss the amendment, and I am pretty sure the ranking Republican member of the Senate Building Commission, the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES], will want 2 or 3 minutes.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. LUCAS. What is the pending business before the Senate?

The VICE PRESIDENT. In the opinion of the Chair, the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, is the pending business.

Mr. LUCAS. Is that under the unanimous-consent agreement?

The VICE PRESIDENT. That is under the unanimous consent that was granted yesterday to lay aside temporarily the motion of the Senator from Illinois and to proceed to the consideration of that bill.

Mr. LUCAS. If the Senator from Illinois should demand the regular order, that would, as I understand, place the so-called FEPC bill before the Senate again.

The VICE PRESIDENT. It would place before the Senate the motion of the Senator from Illinois to proceed to the consideration of that bill.

Mr. LUCAS. That is what I meant. Mr. President, I demand the regular order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The regular order being demanded, the question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Illinois——

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Is the demand of the Senator open to objection?

The VICE PRESIDENT. It is not.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. So that, if the Senator from Illinois demands the regular order, there is no way of preventing it, is that correct?

The VICE PRESIDENT. That is correct. Any Senator has the right to demand the regular order. Does the Senator from Illinois demand the regular order?

Mr. LUCAS. The Senator from Illinois demands the regular order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Illinois to proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 1728) to prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, color, religion, or national origin.

Mr. LUCAS. No——

The VICE PRESIDENT. That is the pending motion.

Mr. LUCAS. No; I demand the regular order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The regular order is that the motion be brought before the Senate.

Mr. LUCAS. Yes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. And it is now before the Senate.

Mr. LUCAS. Then I withdraw the demand.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator withdraws the demand.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Just a moment. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Is that open to objection?

The VICE PRESIDENT. It is not. Any Senator may withdraw a demand that he makes.

Mr. LUCAS. I now move that we proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes. This is the bill we have been considering.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, is the motion debatable?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The motion to proceed to the consideration of the appropriation bill is debatable.

Mr. WHERRY. In order that I may know what is before the Senate, was it the intention to replace the appropriation bill as the pending business, which was taken up by unanimous consent?

Mr. LUCAS. I may say to the Senator from Nebraska that there was some misunderstanding as to what the parliamentary situation was. The Senator will recall that, earlier in the day, immediately following the vote upon the cloture motion, I asked unanimous consent to withdraw the motion for the consideration of the FEPC bill, and to move to resume consideration of House bill 7786. The Vice President, at that time, held that that was unnecessary, that the bill H. R. 7786 was the pending business and that it would be necessary to wait until we finished with the appropriation bill before I could request the withdrawal of my motion, unless we returned to the regular order. That is the situation.

Mr. WHERRY. That clarifies the parliamentary situation. So that the pending motion would make the appropriation bill the unfinished business. Is that correct?

Mr. LUCAS. That is correct. There was some question as to whether that was the case, and that is why I raised the question. That is all there is to it.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Illinois.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President——

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield the floor?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield the floor.

Mr. ELLENDER. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. AIKEN. Will the Senator withhold the suggestion for a moment, to enable me to obtain a leave of absence?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES] addressed the Chair before any other Senator.

Mr. ELLENDER. I withdraw the suggestion of the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair was on the verge of recognizing the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from New Hampshire yield to the Senator from Vermont?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, to be excused from attendance upon the sessions of the Senate tomorrow, Friday, and on Saturday, if there should be a session on that day.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, I desire to say a few words on the new Senate Office Building.

Mr. HAYDEN. Let me suggest that the Senator can say it after we have a quorum call.

Mr. BRIDGES. Very well.

Mr. ELLENDER. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator has not been recognized for the purpose of suggesting the absence of a quorum. The Senator from New Hampshire has the floor.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for the purpose of suggesting the absence of a quorum?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield for that purpose.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Hampshire cannot yield for that purpose without losing the floor.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President——

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Hampshire was recognized, and he has the floor, if he wishes to proceed.

Mr. BRIDGES. I realize that, and I intend to proceed, but I thought I could yield for that purpose. I am sorry if I cannot.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator cannot yield for a quorum call without losing the floor, except by unanimous consent. If he wishes to ask unanimous consent that he may yield for that purpose, the Chair will put the question.

Mr. HAYDEN. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from New Hampshire may yield to the Senator from Louisiana for the purpose of suggesting the absence of a quorum, without prejudice to his right to the floor.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. ELLENDER. I renew my suggestion.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Louisiana makes the point that a quorum is not present. The Secretary will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hendrickson	Malone
Anderson	Hickenlooper	Martin
Brewster	Hill	Maybank
Bricker	Hoey	Morse
Bridges	Holland	Mundt
Butler	Humphrey	Murray
Capehart	Ives	Myers
Chapman	Johnson, Colo.	Neely
Chavez	Johnson, Tex.	O'Mahoney
Connally	Johnston, S. C.	Robertson
Cordon	Kefauver	Russell
Donnell	Kem	Saltonstall
Douglas	Kerr	Schoeppel
Dworshak	Kilgore	Smith, Maine
Eastland	Knowland	Smith, N. J.
Ecton	Langer	Sparkman
Ellender	Lodge	Stennis
Ferguson	Long	Taft
Flanders	Lucas	Thomas, Okla.
Frear	McCarran	Thomas, Utah
Fulbright	McCarthy	Thye
George	McClellan	Watkins
Graham	McFarland	Wherry
Green	McKellar	Wiley
Gurney	McMahon	Williams
Hayden	Magnuson	Young

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present. The Senator from New Hampshire has the floor.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, the question before the Senate is the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER] to eliminate the so-called new Senate Office Building from the legislative chapter of the appropriation bill. The pros and cons of the argument for the new Senate Office Building are known to every Senator. For many years Senators have been complaining that the space available to them is not sufficient to enable them to perform their work efficiently. As a result in 1947 the Eightieth Congress made an authorization for the initiation of a study for a new Senate Office Building. The story of the new Senate Office Building dates from that period.

Following the creation of the Senate Office Building Commission various steps were taken. Finally a site was selected on First Street, in the rear of the present Senate Office Building. Architects were employed, plans drawn, the land purchased, and the old buildings on the land removed. The land is now either unused or used in part as a parking lot. During this period Senator after Senator has gone to the chairman of the Committee on Rules and Administration, first to former Senator Brooks and now to the Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN]. They have cried on their shoulders for more space, which they said they must have in order to make available reasonable working conditions for their staffs.

The issue is before us, Mr. President. There is nothing to be gained by discussing the subject further. Every Senator knows whether he is in favor of the construction of a new Senate Office Building. The proposal is to provide $10,000,000 in order to go ahead with the work. Some Senators who now object raised no question when we spent $65,000,000 to construct a building for the United Nations, $20,000,000 for a Court building only two or three blocks from the Senate Office Building, and approximately $23,000,000 for a new building for the General Accounting Office. If a Senator wants to be consistent, and therefore is against the construction of a new Senate Office Building, that is one thing. However, when we have gone ahead and furnished new buildings for various departments and divisions of the Government, and we fail to recognize or lack the courage to recognize the necessity of providing adequate quarters and efficient working space for our employees, it seems to me we have reached a sad day in the United States Senate.

If I may do so, I should like to ask a question of the Senator from Arizona. I should like to ask him if what I have stated regarding Senators making requests of him is not true?

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, it is entirely true. I feel very strongly about the testimony given to me, not only by Senators but by members of their staffs. They have been to me time and time again asking if some cubbyhole or some space somewhere could not be found in order to relieve the tremendous congestion in their offices. It seems to me that any Senator who, knowing the condition in his office and having made to me the representations which have been made, votes against the new Senate Office Building should go back to his office force and publicly confess to them that he knew what he was doing in making their working conditions hard. He would not suffer. He has four or five rooms in his office and he has a room of his own into which no one comes unless he sends for him. However, when he steps out of that room he steps into conditions which I think are utterly disgraceful. As a matter of record, we do not provide half the office space which is provided in other Government agencies.

Mr. President, confession is good for the soul, and any Senator who is opposed to a new office building should call the members of his force together and tell them that he did not have the political courage to vote for it because he feared that some political commentator on the radio or some columnist might comment on his having done something for himself and therefore he dodged the issue. As a matter of fact, it would not be for himself, but would give more room for his hard-pressed office force.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, will the Senator from New Hampshire yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield for a question.

Mr. THYE. This is a very unhappy moment for me. I occupy a three-room suite on the east side of the Senate Office Building, and because of the balcony there they are short rooms; they are much shorter than the average room. I am extremely crowded, and it is difficult for my clerks to work in the rooms I have. I would support the erection of a new Senate Office Building at this moment if we were not faced with a world crisis such as the one which confronts us, and such as we may expect in the next few weeks, or possibly many months.

In view of that situation I think our efforts should be—at least my effort will be—to back up the boys at the front and to spend money for military appropriations or anything else that is necessary. I cannot support a provision to appropriate funds to erect a new office building, and I shall go back to my office force and say, "In view of this, we are going to stay in these crowded quarters just so long as I am permitted to remain in Washington, and until the world situation improves we are going to put up with these quarters, even though they are inconvenient and uncomfortable."

I do not expect that I shall be given much consideration when I ask for additional space at some future time, in view of my remarks at this moment. But we are faced with a world situation that is most critical, and in view of that I shall not vote to appropriate funds to construct a new office building until the world crisis is past.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair will suggest to the Senator from New Hampshire that he cannot yield to other Senators to make speeches.

Mr. BRIDGES. I thank the Chair. I shall abide by his suggestion.

The Senator from Minnesota is a little aside from the point, because he knows, as well as I do, that there is not a Senator in this Chamber who does not desire to provide funds adequate for the support of the men who are fighting in the so-called Korean affair, if it is not to be called a war.

It was brought out on the Senate floor yesterday, clearly and unmistakably, I may say to the Senator from Minnesota, that if this situation should develop into a major crisis which would necessitate the use of scarce materials and labor, the President, under his power of allocation, and similar powers, could stop the construction of the building at a moment's notice, and we would expect him to do so. So, if Senators vote against the provision, they are merely delaying the construction of the building, while if we do proceed with it, and the emergency develops to a greater extent than is now apparent, I think the Senator's point can be well protected, for, as I have said, the President would have full authority, as a result of his power of allocation of materials, to stop the construction at a moment's notice, and I trust he would do so. I think that may answer the Senator's question.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, will the Senator from New Hampshire yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield to the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. AIKEN. Does the Senator also recall that the chairman of the Senate Office Building Commission made a statement that the commission itself would not proceed with the construction of the building if it were found that the labor or the materials required competed with the war effort?

Mr. BRIDGES. The Senator is correct.

Mr. AIKEN. I understand the building is to be constructed only if it does not compete in any way with the war effort.

Mr. BRIDGES. The Senator is correct.

Mr. AIKEN. In other words, if the war blows over, then the building will be erected. If it does not blow over, the building will not be erected.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator from New Hampshire yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Is it not a fact that the Senator from Vermont made the inquiry yesterday as to what the position of the Senate Office Building Commission would be in case of a war or anything that looked like a war, when materials would be necessary to carry on the war effort?

Mr. BRIDGES. I think he did.

Mr. CHAVEZ. And did not the chairman of the commission, speaking for the entire commission, which is composed, in addition to the chairman, of the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES], the Senator from Nevada [Mr. MALONE], the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. GREEN], and the Senator from Alabama [Mr. SPARKMAN], not only state that we would carry out our orders, but would also follow strictly the suggestion made by the Committee on Appropriations when it practically unanimously inserted this item in the appropriation bill?

Mr. BRIDGES. The Senator is correct.

Mr. CHAVEZ. May I ask the Senator another question?

Mr. BRIDGES. Certainly.

Mr. CHAVEZ. This item is in chapter 2 of the appropriation bill, which is the legislative feature of the bill, and it comes directly after chapter 1, which is the District of Columbia part of the bill. Is it not a fact that when the Senate was in a sane and economical mood, it voted to give the District of Columbia $12,000,000 of the taxpayers' money, but that when it comes to a question of providing space the whole Senate needs, Senators indicate a desire to save money?

Mr. BRIDGES. The Senator is correct. I hope that any Senator who is opposed to this appropriation will be consistent. I expect that any Senator who opposes it will also oppose all the efforts to increase the nonessential appropriations in the bill. I expect he will oppose all new building projects, and I know many Senators who are opposing it have favored similar building projects in the executive department running into millions and millions of dollars.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations inserted in the bill these words which I call to the attention of the Senate:

> After full discussion, the committee voted to request the Senate Office Building Commission to review forthwith the detailed plans of the proposed Senate Office Building with a view of simplifying the building to bring about savings, and with the expressed desire of the committee to make the new office building more of a working and utilitarian unit than the present plans contemplate. When this review is completed and the plans revised to meet the suggestions of the Commission, the construction is to go forward as expeditiously as is practicable in an effort to relieve the congestion and crowding that now exists in the offices of many Senators and in the space allotted to each committee of the Senate.

I now desire to ask the chairman of the commission whether or not he, as chairman of the commission, intends to carry out this instruction of the committee.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, I believe it to be the duty of any commission, any creature of the Senate, to carry out the directions of the Senate. It was the suggestion of the senior Senator from Georgia [Mr. GEORGE] that something be done about the construction of a new building. We have been waiting for many years in order to carry on, and nothing has been done. We have spent $25,000 for plans alone, which will be wasted if we start anew.

Everyone admits the need of a new building. If Senators will look at the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of yesterday they will see letter after letter from Senators. I am curious to see how Senators will vote this afternoon, after writing those letters, in which they complained, and insisted they needed more space.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, do I understand the Senator correctly to say he is not going to have the plans revised and is not going to follow the instructions of the committee read by the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. CHAVEZ. The Senator from New Mexico, as chairman of the commission, intends to follow that mandate, and review the plans.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, in closing, I wish to say that the issue is clear. If Senators desire a new Senate Office Building, if they think they need more space to make their offices efficient, they should support the committee amendment. It is time for Senators to speak for themselves. The issue is clear.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I wish to correct a statement made by the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire when he stated that the purpose of my amendment was simply to strike from the bill all the language pertaining to the erection of a new Senate Office Building. I have offered a substitute which would strike all of said language and in addition would provide for an appropriation of $10,000 for use by the Senate Office Building Commission to make new plans for the erection of a building that will be more in keeping with the actual needs of Senators. Should my amendment fail I will then move to strike from the bill all of the language pertaining to the erection of the new Senate Office Building. It is my considered judgment that under no circumstances should the proposed building be erected according to the plans approved by the Commission and now in the possession of the Architect of the Capitol.

As I pointed out yesterday, the plans which have already been approved by the Commission cannot be changed to give us the kind of building which many of us think we should have. We want a utilitarian building, something that will be of service. One in which all of the available space will be utilized. We have no use for 18 large committee rooms, 2 special hearing rooms, an auditorium, 18 ante rooms for standing committees, a swimming pool, a garage to accommodate 200 cars, and many other extras that I pointed out in debate on yesterday.

I repeat, that under the law which I read yesterday it is provided that the building must be in substantial accordance with the plans and specifications prepared by the architects employed, and which have already been approved by the Senate Building Commission. I grant that a few changes could be made, but not to a degree that will make it possible to give us what we need. The architects took the position that to give us a utility building, the present plans would have to be scrapped. My amendment provides for an appropriation of $10,000 so that the Commission can employ architects to plan a utility building and not a monumental building. Aside from that, the cost of a building to fill our needs could be contructed for about one-half of what the building in contemplation will cost. I hope my amendment will be agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], on page 23, beginning with line 24, to strike out down to line 4, on page 24, and insert in lieu thereof certain new language.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MYERS. I announce that the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BENTON] is absent on public business. If present, he would vote "nay."

The Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Iowa [Mr. GILLETTE], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HUNT], the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. LEAHY], and the Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from New York [Mr. LEHMAN] is unavoidably detained on official business.

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'CONOR] is absent by leave of the Senate on official business, having been in attendance at the sessions of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, Switzerland, as a delegate representing the United States.

The Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER] is absent because of the death of Judge Curtis Waller, a close personal friend, whose funeral is being held today.

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR] and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY], and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The senior and junior Senators from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART and Mr. JENNER] and the Senator from Colorado [Mr. MILLIKIN] are detained on official business.

The result was announced—yeas 32, nays 46, as follows:

YEAS—32

Byrd	Graham	Lucas
Connally	Hendrickson	McClellan
Cordon	Hoey	Maybank
Douglas	Holland	Robertson
Dworshak	Johnson, Colo.	Saltonstall
Eastland	Johnson, Tex.	Smith, N. J.
Ellender	Johnston, S. C.	Taft
Ferguson	Kem	Watkins
Flanders	Knowland	Wiley
Frear	Lodge	Williams
Fulbright	Long

NAYS—46

Aiken	Humphrey	Murray
Anderson	Ives	Myers
Brewster	Kefauver	Neely
Bricker	Kerr	O'Mahoney
Bridges	Kilgore	Russell
Butler	Langer	Schoeppel
Chapman	McCarran	Smith, Maine
Chavez	McCarthy	Sparkman
Donnell	McFarland	Stennis
Ecton	McKellar	Thomas, Okla.
George	McMahon	Thomas, Utah
Green	Magnuson	Thye
Gurney	Malone	Wherry
Hayden	Martin	Young
Hickenlooper	Morse
Hill	Mundt

NOT VOTING—18

Benton	Hunt	Pepper
Cain	Jenner	Taylor
Capehart	Leahy	Tobey
Darby	Lehman	Tydings
Downey	Millikin	Vandenberg
Gillette	O'Conor	Withers

So Mr. ELLENDER's amendment to the committee amendment was rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, after submitting the amendment that was adversely voted upon, I was told by quite a few Senators that they were opposed to the appropriation of any money, whether it be for planning or for the actual construction of a building. So in order to bring the issue squarely before Senators as to whether or not we should appropriate any money at all, I now move to strike from the bill lines 22, 23, 24, and 25 on page 23, and through line 4 on page 24, and on that amendment I ask for the yeas and nays.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment is not in order. A vote on the committee amendment itself would have the same result.

The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

A negative amendment striking out a committee amendment is not in order, because the same result comes on the decision on the question of agreeing to the committee amendment itself.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I discussed my proposed amendment with the Parliamentarian, and I was told that a motion to strike out was in order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Parliamentarian advises the Chair that the Senator did not take up the matter with him. The Chair's ruling is in accordance with the views of the Parliamentarian.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I took up the matter with the Assistant Parliamentarian who is sitting to the left, at the desk.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair does not know just who that is.

At any rate, the Chair—not the Parliamentarian—is ruling on this matter.

The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, during the debate on yesterday and again today I took the position that I did not believe that the instructions of the committee incorporated in the report could be adhered to by the Commission. It will be recalled that the Appropriations Committee expressed the desire that the Building Commission make the new office building more of a working and utilitarian unit than the present plans contemplate. The reason for my position is that the law under which the building is to be erected specifically provides that it must be built in substantial accordance with preliminary plans already prepared and now in the possession of the Architect of the Capitol. If there is any substantial change from those plans—which I think will be necessary if we are to erect a utilitarian building—a question may arise as to whether those who contract to put up the building can be paid.

I wish to be perfectly fair. My proposed amendment to the pending committee amendment will make certain that the Commission can change the present plans in any manner it sees fit. I may state further that the Commission could make new plans if it saw fit, in order to carry out the mandate of the Appropriations Committee. In short, Mr. President, my perfecting amendment would legalize what the Appropriations Committee sought to have the Building Commission do by incorporating in the report certain specific instructions.

The amendment which I submit to the committee amendment is as follows:

Provided, That notwithstanding the provisions of the Second Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1948, requiring that the additional building authorized to be constructed thereunder for the use of the Senate be constructed in substantial accordance with preliminary plans prepared under authority of the act of July 11, 1947 (Public Law 169, 80th Cong.), such building may be constructed in accordance with such modifications or revisions of such plans, or with such new plans, as may be approved by the Senate Office Building Commission: And provided further, That the funds hereunder appropriated shall be available for use in the preparation of such plans.

I wish to make it clear, Mr. President, that even though my perfecting amendment is agreed to I shall continue my opposition to the pending amendment. I do not wish to detain the Senate. I have had my say. Now is not the time to construct a new Senate Office Building, especially one that is more ornamental than useful.

Mr. President, I submit the amendment to the committee amendment, and send it to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment to the committee amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 24, after the figures "$10,000,000," in line 4, it is proposed to insert the following before the period: "Provided, That notwithstanding the provisions of the Second Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1948, requiring that the additional building authorized to be constructed thereunder for the use of the Senate be constructed in substantial accordance with preliminary plans prepared under authority of the act of July 11, 1947 (Public Law 169, 80th Cong.), such building may be constructed in accordance with such modifications or revisions of such plans, or with such new plans, as may be approved by the Senate Office Building Commission: And provided further, That the funds hereunder appropriated shall be available for use in the preparation of such plans."

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. HAYDEN. Is this amendment to the committee amendment a proviso to be added at the end of the language now appearing in the bill, and not a substitute for it?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair understands that it is an addition to the committee amendment.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, is the amendment offered to the committee amendment? If so, I understand that it is in order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair understands that it is an amendment to the committee amendment.

The question of whether it is in order is another matter.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, while I am on my feet, I wish to say that as I view the matter, it is very unfortunate that this proposal is brought up when we are considering one of the most important bills ever before the Senate of the United States.

Mr. President, we have a very serious matter before us. As I figured the situation yesterday and today, we are giving approximately 10 times as much attention to the building of a new Senate Office Building, at this time of emergency in our national and international affairs, as we are giving to the international affairs for which this bill will provide funds for the defense of our country. I am very sorry about that situation. However, it cannot be helped now, for this question is now before the Senate, and we must vote on it.

It seemed to me, after very careful consideration, that the position taken by the committee was the proper one, and that is why I voted for the amendment. Incidentally, let me say that quite a considerable sum of money—approximately $850,000 I believe—already is available; and it is now proposed to provide $10,000,000 more.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, if the Senator from Louisiana desires to continue to press the perfecting amendment, I am willing to accept it.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER] to the committee amendment on page 24, in line 4.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question now is on agreeing to the committee amendment as amended.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I dislike very much to rise in opposition to a measure which is needed in normal times, and which I have supported in the past, and which I shall expect to support in the future, at the proper time.

However, I think a set of circumstances completely out of the control of the distinguished chairman and other members of the Appropriations Committee has brought on a situation which entirely changes the picture, since this action was taken in the Appropriations Committee. Of course, that situation is the trouble existing in Korea and the other dangerous and difficult international complications which now confront us, and which of course involve and require heavy additional expenditures by our Government.

Before proceeding a little further, Mr. President, I wish to say that I am fully and completely in accord with the feeling of the committee that we should have this building, when we can have it, because it is needed; and I am entirely sympathetic with the attitude of the distinguished and patient senior Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN], who, I know, has had a great deal of trouble in finding space for the various Members of the Senate, including the Senator from Florida, who from time to time have tried to find additional space.

However, there is a time to do certain things and a time when they cannot be done.

I believe that the people of the United States are looking to the Senate today to see whether the Senate is going ahead now on a basis of business as usual, at a time when all of us realize the financial difficulties are tremendous, and when all expenditures of money which are made should be made on the basis of and against the background of the international situation.

Mr. President, a few moments ago my attention was called to certain items shown on the Associated Press ticker, indicating clearly that the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee, the senior Senator from Georgia [Mr. GEORGE], in common with other Senators and Members of the House who have the heaviest responsibility on their shoulders in connection with planning for revenue, have been constrained to slow down, at least, in their announced program in connection with the revision of excise taxes and the raising of certain additional taxes, and have done so because of the international situation to which I have referred.

I quote briefly into the RECORD from the Associated Press ticker tape on that point; and, first, under a Washington date line:

Administration leaders were reported today to have decided to put aside the $1,010,000,000 (b) excise-tax-slashing bill, pending developments from the Korean war.

The next item continues:

The report could not be officially confirmed immediately.

One source, who is familiar with tax matters, told a reporter the agreement was reached after conferences of leading congressional Democrats, with representatives of the administration.

The third item quotes our distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee, the senior Senator from Georgia [Mr. GEORGE]. I read it as it appears on the ticker tape:

Chairman GEORGE, Democrat, of Georgia, of the Senate Finance Committee confirmed that the tax bill will be shelved momentarily when public hearings are completed on it tomorrow. But, GEORGE declined to say there would be no tax action at this session.

Asked about reports that the Treasury Department has withdrawn its support of the House-approved bill, in view of the possible military money needs in the resistance against Communist aggression in Korea, GEORGE said:

"I have no statement at all to make on that at this time. I suggest you confer with Mr. Snyder (Secretary of the Treasury)."

"The Finance Committee will continue its hearings on the tax bill tomorrow," GEORGE said, "and then will recess on this subject until the record is printed. This will take several days."

The original timetable called for the committee to prepare the tax bill next week for immediate Senate action.

Now, Mr. President and Senators, I heard the comment made by the distinguished senior Senator from Arizona a while ago about what columnists may say—what columnists may say about the action of any Senator upon this floor on this matter. I have become quite used to having columnists say uncomplimentary things. I am not in the slightest concerned about what they may say, and I do not have great concern about what other Senators may say, if I have a deep conviction on a matter, as I have on this.

I think it would be a great mistake for the Senate to take the position that it would launch at this particular time a $20,000,000 building program primarily for its own convenience and needs, which are certain, and which are definite, and which at the same time are the convenience and needs of the public whom we serve. But I think that the people of this Nation expect us to put first things first, and to quit this business-as-usual attitude toward appropriations, particularly toward appropriations of this kind. I think it is up to us, right now, and on this matter, to make it very clear that we do not feel that this is an appropriate time for the launching of this particular building. I want to say that I think we might as well realize that people reading the paper tomorrow will have, in columns side by side, these two items, if this amendment is voted down: First, an item stating that in this time of crisis, after 2 days of debate on a venture of this kind, the Senate, in its dignified and deliberate judgment, decided that this was an appropriate time to enter upon a $20,000,000 building project for additional housing for itself. Second, in the other column and with much bolder headlines will be the story, disappointing to those thousands of people who are depending upon and hoping for some diminution of excise taxes, which so vitally affect their business—and of course citizens generally, the purchasing public, are looking at this matter also—will be the item that the financial situation is so critical on this particular date that those particular committees of Congress charged with the raising of appropriate finances for the handling of the grave problems of our Government and with preparing a tax bill have said that there is question enough about our financial condition that we are slowing down the time schedule of excise-tax reduction. When the question comes as to whether the Secretary of the Treasury himself has insisted that there be no reduction, our esteemed chairman of the Finance Committee has gravely suggested that he would prefer to have the question addressed to Mr. Snyder himself.

Now, Mr. President and Senators, I do not believe this is the time to launch this project. I think we have spent too much time on it already. I certainly do not intend to debate it at length now. But I do feel, and I feel very keenly, that we would be placing the Senate and the Congress in a most unfortunate position by the approval of this item, and would make it appear that we are in fact finding here at this date and at this particular time that "business as usual" is going on, and that we can properly start a building program of this kind.

So far as there having been any waste in the money that has been spent heretofore, I respectfully differ from those who say that there has been waste or would be waste if we did not proceed just now. I do not think there would be any loss because we have already bought and paid for the site of this proposed building: the site will be there, available for this building, when we can build. I do not think there will be any loss because we have already bought and paid for plans and specifications. I think those plans and specifications, or some modification of them, will be available when we are ready for them.

Mr. President and Senators, I strongly feel that this is not the time for us to embark upon this venture, and that we should strongly and quietly and quickly vote it down, and go on to more vital business of the Nation.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment, as amended.

Mr. ELLENDER and other Senators requested the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, like the distinguished Senator from Florida, I hate to oppose a project which is needed, but, like him, I am going to vote against it. I believe that the need for additional space affects me as much as it does any other Senator. I have a staff of 27 people. I receive from 2,000 to 5,000 letters a day. I need much more space. But I want to say to you, Mr. President, and to my fellow Senators, that in my opinion this is not the time for the Congress of the United States to embark upon an expensive project of this sort, costing upward of $20,000,000 or $25,000,000, when we know that in all probability we are going to require huge sums for the support of the operations now under way in Korea in a struggle which may spread to other parts of the world, a struggle in which men are dying. Many more, I am afraid, will die before it is all over. And so I urge the defeat of this amendment. I do it reluctantly, because I know the project is needed, and I have been in the habit of following the lead of my esteemed colleagues from Arizona and New Mexico, but I feel it my duty to urge the rejection of this amendment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment as amended. The yeas and nays having been ordered, the Secretary will call the roll. Those who favor the committee amendment, as amended, will vote "yea" as their names are called. Those who oppose it will vote "nay."

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MYERS. I announce that the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BENTON] is absent on public business. If present he would vote "nay."

The Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Iowa [Mr. GILLETTE], the Senator fro. Wyoming [Mr. HUNT], the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. LEAHY], and the Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'CONOR] is absent by leave of the Senate on official business, having been in attendance at the sessions of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, Switzerland, as a delegate representing the United States.

The Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER] is absent because of the death of Judge Curtis Waller, a close personal friend, whose funeral is being held today.

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR] and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY] and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The senior and junior Senators from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART and Mr. JENNER] are detained on official business.

The result was announced—yeas 35, nays 42, as follows:

YEAS—35

Aiken	Humphrey	Morse
Anderson	Kefauver	Mundt
Bricker	Kerr	Murray
Bridges	Kilgore	Myers
Chapman	Langer	O'Mahoney
Chavez	McCarthy	Russell
Donnell	McFarland	Smith, Maine
Ecton	McMahon	Sparkman
Green	Magnuson	Stennis
Gurney	Malone	Thomas, Utah
Hayden	Martin	Young
Hill	Millikin

NAYS—42

Butler	Frear	Johnston, S. C.
Byrd	Fulbright	Kem
Connally	George	Knowland
Cordon	Graham	Lehman
Douglas	Hendrickson	Lodge
Dworshak	Hoey	Long
Eastland	Holland	Lucas
Ellender	Ives	McCarran
Ferguson	Johnson, Colo.	McClellan
Flanders	Johnson, Tex.	Maybank
Neely	Smith, N. J.	Watkins
Robertson	Taft	Wherry
Saltonstall	Thomas, Okla.	Wiley
Schoeppel	Thye	Williams

NOT VOTING—19

Benton	Hickenlooper	Taylor
Brewster	Hunt	Tobey
Cain	Jenner	Tydings
Capehart	Leahy	Vandenberg
Darby	McKellar	Withers
Downey	O'Conor
Gillette	Pepper

So the committee amendment, as amended, was rejected.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Mr. President, I should like to make a statement with respect to the record vote just had on the appropriation for the new Senate Office Building. After the vote on the first Ellender amendment, and apparently shortly prior to the record vote on the committee amendment as amended, I was in the cloakroom adjoining the Senate Chamber. Apparently the bells did not ring in the cloakroom. I heard no bell. I am sorry to say that the pages did not come into the cloakroom, to say that a record vote was being taken. I walked into the Chamber just as the Chair was announcing the result of the record vote. I fail to understand why apparently, the bells did not ring in the cloakroom, where I was constantly, during the time of the record vote. I want to make my position clear. I oppose the appropriation for the Senate Office Building at this time and I am opposed to the committee amendment as amended. Because of some inadvertence, or the failure of the bells to ring, or for some other reason, I was not notified of the record vote.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, I wish to say that I find myself in the same position in which the Senator from Iowa finds himself. I was called to the cloakroom and I was in conference in the cloakroom, within 10 feet of the Chamber. No bells rang. The Senator from Iowa and I came into the Chamber and discovered that the record vote had been taken. I would appreciate it if a check would be made to see whether the bells are ringing. I would have voted against the appropriation at this time. I simply wish to state my position for the RECORD.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, because of the eloquent pleas made for economy in certain sections by certain Senators, I desire to give notice that they will have an opportunity to vote for economy in connection with this bill, and it will be as to new projects, worthwhile projects. They will have an opportunity to vote for a 10-percent overall cut, of course, excluding appropriations for defense; but I hope the Senators who have so eloquently spoken against the construction of the new Senate Office Building will be consistent and will support the economy amendment.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, I think we shall be in favor of economy from now on. I hope that when some committee reports in favor of constructing another $25,000,000 building for some department in the city of Washington, economy-minded Senators will feel the same way, and I hope that those who want authorizations for $80,000,000 or more, to bring water from my State to their States, will want to economize. We may as well start on that.

At this particular time, Mr. President, I should like to give notice that it is my purpose to move to reconsider the vote by which chapter 1 of the appropriation bill was approved on yesterday, namely, the vote by which an economy-minded Congress is giving the people of Washington $12,000,000 out of the taxpayers' money, in these hard times, when we need money so much for other purposes.

I make the motion that the Senate reconsider the vote by which chapter 1 of the appropriation bill was approved.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SPARKMAN in the chair). The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Tennessee to lay on the table the motion of the Senator from New Mexico. The motion is not debatable.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I understood the distinguished Senator from New Mexico to say that he was only giving notice that he expected to move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, may we have the statement read by the Official Reporter?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state that the Senator from New Mexico concluded his statement by making the motion, and the question is on agreeing to the motion made by the Senator from Tennessee to lay the motion of the Senator from New Mexico on the table.

Mr. ELLENDER and other Senators requested the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were not ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (putting the question). In the opinion of the Chair, the "ayes" have it.

Mr. WHERRY and other Senators asked for a division.

On a division, Mr. McKELLAR's motion to lay on the table the motion of Mr. CHAVEZ was agreed to.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, if I may I should like to address a question to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. I have been queried by several Senators within the past few minutes with respect to a hearing tomorrow morning before the Committee on Appropriations, because they had understood, as I understood, that the hearings on this bill before the Committee on Appropriations had been closed. We understood that the bill had been reported and therefore all hearings had been closed. I was surprised to hear that there would be a hearing tomorrow morning. I should like to ask the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations what the situation is with respect to that subject.

Mr. McKELLAR. I shall be very glad to give the Senator from New Hampshire any information which I have in my possession. Some gentlemen connected with the National Guard and the Reserve Corps stated that they had not been treated fairly and wanted to talk to me personally about the matter. I told them that I thought it would be better for them to talk to the whole committee rather than to myself. I thought the committee was enitled to know what they have in mind. I told them to come before the committee tomorrow. I have asked the secretary of the committee to notify the other members of the committee, and he has done that.

Mr. BRIDGES. The hearing is not for the purpose of reopening hearings on this bill.

Mr. McKELLAR. No. Not at all. I very much hope that nothing will be done to interfere with the action the committee has taken thus far and that we shall all stand by the committee when it comes to a vote tomorrow. This is a tremendous bill. I believe it is the largest single bill which has ever been reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield so that I may address an inquiry to the Senator from Tennessee?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. The distinguished Senator from Tennessee stated that some men who were personally interested in the National Guard and in the Reserve Corps had come to him. I am not asking for their names. Can the Senator tell me whether they are from the National Guard and the Reserve Corps?

Mr. McKELLAR. I so understood. I will get their names. I do not remember now.

Mr. WHERRY. Had the Senator heard them before?

Mr. McKELLAR. I do not remember that we had heard them before.

Mr. BRIDGES. The hearings on this bill are closed? I assured those who made inquiry of me that we were not reopening any hearings.

Mr. McKELLAR. We are not reopening any hearings. However, I thought when a Government organization felt it had been unfairly treated by the committee, and appealed to me as chairman, that I should call the committee together. Every member will find that he has been asked to come to the committee room tomorrow.

Mr. BRIDGES. Are they the same persons who testified originally?

Mr. McKELLAR. I think not.

Mr. BRIDGES. I do not quite see the point. I do not wish to embarrass the Senator.

Mr. McKELLAR. The Senator will not embarrass me unless he states something which is not true, and he has not done that.

Mr. BRIDGES. I am merely asking the question.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. I am not sure, but perhaps what the Senator from Tennessee is talking about is with respect to a small appropriation for the Illinois National Guard, which they requested some time ago. In colloquy with the Senator from Texas [Mr. JOHNSON], I stated that representatives of the Illinois National Guard had come to me some time ago and asked for a small additional appropriation. I forget what it was. I have not looked at my file. I thought I could offer an amendment from the floor, if I thought it was necessary. Then the Senator from Tennessee suggested that I come before the Committee on Appropriations in the morning. That may be the situation that we are talking about at this time. It has nothing to do with the National Guard so far as the present situation is concerned. These gentlemen came to me some 60 days ago. The Senator from Texas was talking about the National Guard being additionally equipped, and one thing or another, and he and I merely had this colloquy. That may be the situation.

Mr. BRIDGES. The point I wished to make was that when inquiry was made of me, as the ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations, I told those making the inquiry that the hearings had been closed and the bill was on the floor of the Senate. That is why I asked the question.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. MAYBANK. I merely wish to say that I received the same inquiry. The House had raised the appropriation for the National Guard above the Budget Bureau's estimate. The item related to drill pay, and other matters. The House had gone far above the Budget Bureau's estimate. I told the persons who made inquiry of me the same thing which the Senator from New Hampshire told them, namely, that the hearings had been closed.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. THYE. When the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. JOHNSON] was making his statement on the entire world situation I raised the question of the advisability of reducing the estimate submitted by the Bureau of the Budget for the National Guard by the sum of $1,900,000. I also raised the question whether we should not increase the appropriation, as well as increase the appropriation for the aviation section of the National Guard. I was informed this afternoon that there would be an opportunity to appear before the Committee on Appropriations tomorrow morning at 10:30.

In order to inform and enlighten myself on the subject I called the former Adjutant General of the National Guard in Minnesota, General Walsh, who is now President of the National Guard Association of the United States, in an effort to obtain full information concerning the National Guard's anticipated needs in the near future. As I suggested this afternoon, in view of the fact that the Regular Army is being called into active service in the South Pacific, I felt we were weakening our own national security when the Regular Army was called to that duty and that we should be increasing the strength of the National Guard because of the national emergency.

I am very happy that the Committee on Appropriations is permitting the statement not only by me as of tomorrow, but is affording an opportunity possibly to file a statement concerning the whole question of the National Guard.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from New Hampshire yield for a question?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. FERGUSON. Does not the Senator from New Hampshire feel that if the National Guard as a unit, or if the Reserves, desire more money, they should proceed through the regular channels, and present the matter on a deficiency bill, or a supplemental bill, as is anticipated being done by the regular services?

Mr. BRIDGES. I do; that is the logical course to follow.

Mr. FERGUSON. Is it not true that for two services, the Air Force and the Navy, the Committee on Appropriations in this bill has given the amount the budget requested, and in the one service gave more, but in the Army $200,000 less?

Mr. BRIDGES. That is correct.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, I have before me the report which accompanies H. R. 7786, and if we look the report over we find in the chart on page 286 that the appropriation for the Army National Guard, 1950 act, is $216,000,000; estimated, 1951, $210,700,000. The House bill provided $212,400,000. The amount recommended by the Senate committee was $210,500,000, or $1,900,000 less than the amount in the House bill.

Mr. FERGUSON. Minus $200,000, just as I said to the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. BRIDGES. One million nine hundred thousand dollars under the House figure, and $200,000 under the Budget Bureau's figure.

Mr. THYE. I agree; but the House allowed $212,400,000, and at the time the House passed the bill they did not have confronting them the world situation which faces us today. They certainly were not confronted with the fact that the Regular Army was being called from the shores of the United States, thereby lessening our own national security, and that we are now dependent upon the National Guard to give us the internal security the Nation must have.

Mr. FERGUSON and Mr. MAYBANK addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from New Hampshire yield, and if so, to whom?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield first to the Senator from Michigan, and then I shall yield to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. FERGUSON. I merely desire to make clear that so far as the pending bill is concerned, the appropriation is only $200,000 under the budget estimate. We cannot change the House figure except as we vote on the Senate bill, and then any amendment would have to go to conference. Is not that correct?

Mr. BRIDGES. That is correct.

Mr. THYE. I am sure the Senator will agree that any Senator may offer an amendment, and trust and hope that he will be able to convince the Senate that his amendment should prevail. My only reason for entering into a discussion with the able junior Senator from Texas, when he was giving a report as he saw the situation as to our own security and the world crisis, was to compliment the able Senator. I stated at that time that it was my conviction that the National Guard should have more money, and that I hoped and intended to offer an amendment, before the appropriation bill was finally passed, trusting that I could convince the Senate that we need to appropriate more funds for the National Guard in order to strengthen our own internal security, inasmuch as our troops are leaving our shores and going to foreign service.

I am very thankful to the Committee on Appropriations for affording an opportunity tomorrow morning to appear before them and present arguments in the committee as to the need to increase the appropriation, both for the National Guard and the wing section of the National Guard.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, will the Senator from New Hampshire yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. MAYBANK. I merely wish to say that I attended the hearings, and no one has a greater respect for General Walsh than I have, but I finally agreed with the Senator from Michigan that this matter should be handled in a supplemental bill. The question came up as to whether we should reduce the House appropriation. We were interested in the Taber amendment, and that is why we voted in the subcommittee as we did.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, may I have one moment?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. THYE. I wish to say, in behalf of General Walsh, the President of the National Guard Association, that General Walsh did not come to me originally; he was not initiating any action. I called General Walsh in order to get his opinion.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, will the Senator from New Hampshire yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. MAYBANK. I never have suggested that General Walsh would do such a thing. I merely made the statement that some of those interested in the National Guard came to see me, and that my vote on the subcommittee was in keeping with the House provision rather than the Taber amendment, as the Senator from Michigan stated.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, my only point in raising this question was that I wanted to make sure that the bill was not to be reopened. It was reported to the Senate. I am sure the distinguished Senator from Minnesota is very sincere in what he says, and he should have a right to present his argument and his case. I think the place for the appropriation would be in the next supplemental bill. We have not had any request from the National Defense Department about this matter. Should they request what the Senator presents, or what the armed services may present, I think the appropriation should come in the supplemental bill which will follow this one shortly. My only point is as to the reopening of the bill, because if we reopen it as to one appropriation, we will be asked to reopen it as to a number of others.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, I have a very brief statement to make on the vote last cast for some new office space for Senators. I voted for the office space. Perhaps we do not need a new building. I do not suppose we would go ahead with any building if the war situation were such that it did not seem desirable or feasible. Some members of the Senate, who have not been here so long as some of the old timers, are very crowded for space. I resent anyone saying that the Senate of the United States voted for some extra space, when we must take into consideration the fact that Senators are crowded, that stenographers are sitting almost on top of each other, with files on top of them. I resent any implication that we are voting for extra space in troubled times merely because it is wanted.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator who said that?

Mr. MAGNUSON. The implication was that we might have done it.

Mr. McKELLAR. I made no such implication.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I got that implication from some of the debate.

Mr. McKELLAR. The Senator certainly did not get it from anything I said, because I know exactly what the situation is, but I do not think this is the time to remedy that situation.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I merely wanted to make the statement that the business of the Senate, of course, is just as much public business at any time as is Pentagon Building business. It is business which must be taken care of, and during times of national stress it involves communications, letters to answer from people directly involved in any effort we may make at home or abroad. Some of us younger Senators who are in a crowded condition perhaps should not have voted for a new building or for some new space. If some quonset huts were put up on the lot which has been acquired we would be glad to have them, if thereby additional space would be provided. Probably the matter can be remedied without all this discussion about the conditions as they are.

On behalf of myself and the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY] I submit an amendment. I am sure I could get 15 or 20 other Senators to sponsor the amendment if we had time. There are many Senators who have plenty of space. That is well and good. I want them to have plenty of space. But some of us have a particular problem. I ask for immediate consideration of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SPARKMAN in the chair). The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. At the proper place in the bill it is proposed to insert the following:

The Committee on Rules and Administration is hereby directed to reexamine and reallocate all Senate office space toward the end of a more equitable assignment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Committee amendments are now being considered, the Chair will say to the Senator from Washington. It is not in order to consider the Senator's amendment at this time.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, I offer it as an amendment to the committee amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is no committee amendment pending at this time. The amendment offered by the Senator from Washington on behalf of himself and the Senator from Minnesota may be printed and lie on the table until committee amendments have been disposed of.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I offer the amendment then to appear on page 23, following line 21.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. May the Chair state that the same rule as previously stated by the Chair still would apply.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Then, Mr. President, I submit the amendment and ask that it may be printed and lie on the table. I hope all members of the Committee on Rules and Administration will have the opportunity to file by the clerk's desk and read the amendment because it represents a very serious plea on the part of some Senators who have much public business to transact, who are tremendously crowded and have less office space than some Senators who have rooms tucked away all over the Capitol and in the Senate Office Building itself.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be received, printed, and will lie on the table.

Mr. CHAVEZ and Mr. KNOWLAND addressed the Chair.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I now yield the floor, Mr. President. Before doing so, however, I should like to yield to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, along the line suggested by the Senator from the State of Washington I should like to say that the fault is not at all with the Committee on Rules and Administration. The Senator from the State of Washington is just as correct as he can be. What can those in the Pentagon Building do that is more than the Senate of the United States can do? How can those in the Pentagon Building function adequately unless the Senate of the United States functions adequately? How can Senators be happy and work well unless they work in a happy atmosphere, with adequate space? How can we do more for the country in the emergency which is talked about so much, than by doing something for the Senate of the United States? Where can we do more than we can by providing adequate space for the Members of the Senate?

Mr. President, it appears that some want to blame the Committee on Rules and Administration. Let us blame ourselves alone. We do not seem to have enough intestinal fortitude. We are willing to present measures by the wholesale which cost the taxpayers much money, present measures which call for the appropriation in the future of millions upon millions of dollars. But when it comes to the question of doing something for the Senate itself, so its members can properly perform their work for the benefit of the taxpayer we love to talk about, whose patriotism and loyalty we love to extol, then it is something quite different. I believe the Senator from Washington is correct in the position he has taken.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, the Senator from Minnesota has asked me to yield to him. I yield to him.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, a point of order. Who has the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington still has the floor.

Mr. KNOWLAND. I understood the Senator from Washington said he yielded the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He did so, but then almost immediately he yielded to the Senator from New Mexico before the Senator from California started to speak. The Chair will recognize the Senator from California as soon as the Senator from Washington yields the floor.

The Chair is informed that the Sentor from Washington has now yielded the floor. The Chair now recognizes the the Senator from California.

DEATH OF RAY RICHARDS IN KOREA

Mr. KNOWLAND. Mr. President, yesterday news came from Korea of the death of Ray Richards. I had seen Ray Richards when I was in the Far East last November, both in Tokyo and in Seoul. Many Members of the Senate knew Ray Richards very well as a newspaper man who had had long experience in Washington.

Ray Richards made the entire Pacific theater his beat. In the twenties he was with the Associated Press in Los Angeles, going from there to the Honolulu Star Bulletin. Then followed years of news coverage—in Japan for the Japan Advertiser—in China for Shanghai Sunday Post-Mercury and Shanghai Press, before returning to the United States in the mid-thirties, to work first on the San Francisco Examiner and later on the Los Angeles Examiner. During this period he made one more trip to the Orient covering various stages of Japanese aggression in north China. In 1938 he returned to the Los Angeles Examiner as day city editor, a position he occupied until he came to Washington shortly after Pearl Harbor.

Richards made two surveys of the Near East situation for the Hearst newspapers after the war. In 1946 he visited Greece and Turkey briefly during the height of Communist disturbances in the former country, following which he returned to his duties in Washington. He was a correspondent at the United Nations Conference in San Francisco, and in late 1947 and the first part of 1948 covered the Chinese Communist aggressions in north China. Again he returned to Washington to report efforts in Congress to strengthen our forces in the Pacific.

A year ago, convinced the key danger point in the Pacific to Communist attack was South Korea, he joined President Syngman Rhee of the South Korea Republic, whom he had known for years, as a press adviser. He returned to the role of correspondent for the Hearst newspapers and International News Service when the Korean Communists invaded and the South Korean Government fled the capital Seoul.

The news dispatches, as I said yesterday, told how Ray Richards, together with the other foreign war correspondents who are now in Korea, went out to see for himself and to report to the American people what was happening in that country during the war period.

During the period of World War II, Mr. President, many war correspondents connected with the newspapers and press associations also gave their lives for their country, in order to keep the American Republic and its people properly informed as to what was going on. While these men are not in the same category as members of our armed services, they nevertheless on numerous occasions have risked their lives in order to acquaint the American people with the facts. I believe the American people many times get their first information from the newspapers rather than from their Government, which is sometimes a little lax in telling them the cold hard facts of life. Many of the newspaper correspondents risk their lives. On occasion some of them have to give their lives in the performance of their duties. Ray Richards was one of them, and I know that all his friends, both in the fourth estate and those in the Senate of the United States, will miss him from now on.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to place in the RECORD following the speech by the Senator from California two telegrams which I sent to the family of Mr. Richards, whom I knew well, for I had worked with him on many occasions, and also to the press, on his passing away.

There being no objection, the telegrams were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Reports of the death of Ray Richards in Korea come as a distinct shock and give me a sense of personal loss. I knew Ray Richards well. He had a great understanding of the Pacific and its needs and problems; we had discussed them many times. It is no surprise to learn he was out there before there was a war on, as he had an instinct for activity in the Pacific. After World War II he took the greatest interest in my efforts to insure that we would have American bases in the Pacific. He knew the arguments behind my proposal for establishing a naval academy on the west coast and why it was needed. He was abreast or ahead of our demands for adequate defenses in Alaska and only a few months ago we were up to our necks in that fight, with Ray working to keep the American public informed of the progress. Even more recently he went through another round in the everlasting fight for a stronger Pacific, this time on Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood. Few knew China or Japan better, or understood the Pacific as well as did Ray Richards. He died as he lived, well out in front of the fight for American security.

WARREN G. MAGNUSON,
United States Senator.

JULY 11, 1950.

Mr. EDWARD C. LAPPING,
The Hearst Newspapers,
Times-Herald Building,
Washington, D. C.:

With deepest regret have just heard reports of death of Ray Richards in Korea. On many occasions during years he served with Hearst newspapers I had come to know him as vigorous and accurate correspondent whose purpose was to keep public informed on vital public issues. In most recent months he was engaged in developing facts regarding Alaskan and Pacific defenses and Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood issues here in Washington, D. C. His loss will be keenly felt by those of us who knew him personally.

WARREN G. MAGNUSON,
United States Senator.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I wish to associate myself completely with the remarks made by the distinguished Senator from California [Mr. KNOWLAND]. Of all the newspapermen with whom we associate here, certainly among those who are close friends of mine, I do not know of any man who did more for the Indian than did Ray Richards. He was one of my dear friends. He was born in Minot, N. Dak., 56 years ago. He was one of the outstanding citizens of North Dakota. He was a man of whom the people of North Dakota were inordinately proud.

Ray Richards made a thorough study of the Torres-Martinez, Navajo, and Hopi Indians. His death is a distinct loss to those of us who have been trying to better the condition of some 233,000 Indians. I know that as that fight goes on to better their conditions the Indians will realize that one of their very best friends has been taken from them.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, there are only two more minor amendments to chapter 2 of the bill. I wonder whether they can be considered and acted upon now.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SPARKMAN in the chair). The next amendment of the Committee will be stated.

The next amendment was, on page 27, after line 20, to insert:

INDEX-DIGEST OF THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

Salaries and expenses: For expenses necessary to enable the Librarian to edit and publish the index-digest of the publications of the Temporary National Economic Committee, including personal services in the District of Columbia; printing and binding; services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. S. C. 55a); $18,000, to remain available until expended.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, let us have a clear understanding of what the amendment does.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is a committee amendment.

Mr. McKELLAR. I know that, but I wish to have the amendment go over until tomorrow; I object to its present consideration.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

Mr. BENTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there be inserted in the body of the RECORD at this point an editorial entitled "Nation and State," which appeared in the Washington Post for July 11, 1950, in connection with the bill (S. 3147), to establish a national commission on intergovernmental relations.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATION AND STATE

None of the better-government bills drafted to carry out recommendations of the Hoover Commission has more far-reaching significance than Senator HUMPHREY'S proposal to set up a national commission on intergovernmental relations. This measure came out of the Senate Committee on Expenditures recently and is awaiting action on the floor. It is cosponsored by 41 Senators. There should be no opposition to it, for its purpose is to set in motion a long-range study of that basic but controversial subject of the relationship between the States and the Federal Government.

The study would be made by a temporary bipartisan commission of seven members selected by the President on the basis of their knowledge and experience in the sphere of intergovernmental relations. Its scope would be broad enough to cover any problem concerning the distribution of functions and powers among the Federal, State, and local governments. But let no one suppose that it would be kept in the realm of political theory. It would deal with such practical and urgent questions as those arising out of grants-in-aid, intergovernmental tax immunities, and the competition of different governments for taxes from the same sources. It would explore the possibility of different governments sharing the receipts from certain taxes now commonly used.

In the background is the question of how far the Federal Government should go in absorbing the powers of the States and supplying them with revenue. We do not suppose that any commission can satisfactorily answer that question. The people will determine the division of power between national and local governments in accord with what they believe to be their current interest from decade to decade. But a well-chosen intergovernmental commission can bring to public attention the trends of recent years and point out the advantages and dangers of those trends. To our way of thinking the issue is not whether the national power should be enhanced at the expense of the States or whether the States should reclaim many of the functions they have lost, but how governments can best work together on the national and local levels to advance the general welfare. Accommodation will doubtless be the watchword of the commission if it is created, and that will mean accommodation of government to present-day requirements—not the reversion to any outmoded notion as to what Federal-State relations ought to be.

RECESS

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I move that the Senate stand in recess until 12 o'clock noon tomorrow.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 6 o'clock and 31 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until tomorrow, Thursday, July 13, 1950, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate July 12 (legislative day of July 1), 1950:

DEPUTY UNITED STATES SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE IN EUROPE

C. Tyler Wood, of the District of Columbia, to be deputy United States special representative in Europe, with the rank of Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary.

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Oliver S. Powell, of Minnesota, to be a member of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System for the unexpired term of 14 years from February 1, 1938, vice Lawrence Clayton, deceased.

CALIFORNIA DEBRIS COMMISSION

Col. John S. Seybold, Corps of Engineers, to serve as president and member of the California Debris Commission provided for by the act of Congress approved March 1, 1893, entitled "An act to create the California Debris Commission and regulate hydraulic mining in the State of California," vice Col. Dwight F. Johns, to be relieved.

Lt. Col. Clarence C. Haug, Corps of Engineers, to serve as member and recretary of the California Debris Commission provided for by the act of Congress approved March 1, 1893, entitled "An act to create the California Debris Commission and regulate hydraulic mining in the State of California," vice Col. Joseph S. Gorlinski, Corps of Engineers, to be relieved.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Thomas H. Roberts, of Rhode Island, to be United States district judge for the district of Puerto Rico, vice Hon. David Chavez, Jr., resigned.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY

Thomas A. Uzzell, Jr., to be United States attorney for the western district of North Carolina, vice David E. Henderson, resigned.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL

Donald A. Draughon, of Puerto Rico, to be United States marshal for the district of Puerto Rico. He is now serving in this office under an appointment which expires July 27, 1950.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1950

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

The Chaplain, Rev. Bernard Braskamp, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O Thou eternal God, whose presence is our shield in the stillness of the night and our strength in the struggles of each new day, may we realize how wonderful it is that in these days of crisis and peril we may enter into communion and counsel with the God of all grace and wisdom.

We feel that we are engaged in a just and righteous cause but we penitently confess that we are tempted to place all our reliance and confidence in human ingenuity. Thou knowest how prone we are to continue to live selfishly and complacently even when others are giving themselves so heroically and sacrificially in defense of liberty.

May this moment of prayer be one of cleansing of hearts and consecration of purpose. Purge us from everything which dwarfs and deadens our capacities for noble and courageous service. Give us a strong faith which will inspire us to perform our tasks with a pure and steadfast devotion.

In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

EXPORT-IMPORT BANK GUARANTIES OF UNITED STATES PRIVATE CAPITAL INVESTED ABROAD

The SPEAKER. The unfinished business is the question on the passage of the bill (H. R. 8083) to amend the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended (59 Stat. 526, 666; 61 Stat. 130), to vest in the Export-Import Bank of Washington the power to guarantee United States investments abroad.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I am, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. WOLCOTT moves that the bill H. R. 8083 be recommitted to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion to recommit.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Doorkeeper will close the doors, the Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members, and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 156, nays 184, answered "present" 1, not voting 89, as follows:

[Roll No. 199]

YEAS—156

Abernethy	Gross	Miller, Md.
Allen, Calif.	Guill	Miller, Nebr.
Allen, Ill.	Gwinn	Murray, Wis.
Andersen, H. Carl	Hagen	Nelson
	Hale	Nicholson
Andresen, August H.	Hall, Leonard W.	Nixon
		Norblad
Arends	Halleck	Norrell
Auchincloss	Hand	O'Hara, Minn.
Bates, Mass.	Harden	O'Konski
Beall	Harvey	Passman
Bennett, Fla.	Hays, Ohio	Patterson
Bennett, Mich.	Herter	Philbin
Bishop	Heselton	Phillips, Calif.
Blackney	Hoeven	Potter
Boggs, Del.	Hoffman, Ill.	Poulson
Bramblett	Hoffman, Mich.	Rankin
Brehm	Holmes	Reed, Ill.
Brown, Ohio	Hope	Reed, N. Y.
Burdick	Horan	Riehlman
Burleson	Hull	Rogers, Mass.
Byrnes, Wis.	James	Sadlak
Case, S. Dak.	Jenison	St. George
Cavalcante	Jenkins	Sanborn
Clevenger	Jensen	Saylor
Cole, Kans.	Jonas	Scott, Hugh D., Jr.
Corbett	Judd
Cotton	Kean	Scrivner
Coudert	Kearney	Scudder
Crawford	Keating	Secrest
Cunningham	Kunkel	Shafer
Curtis	Larcade	Short
Dague	LeCompte	Simpson, Ill.
Davis, Ga.	LeFevre	Simpson, Pa.
Davis, Wis.	Lichtenwalter	Smith, Kans.
D'Ewart	Lodge	Smith, Ohio
Dolliver	Lovre	Smith, Wis.
Dondero	McConnell	Stefan
Donohue	McCulloch	Stockman
Eaton	McDonough	Taber
Ellsworth	McGregor	Talle
Elston	McMillen, Ill.	Tauriello
Fellows	Mack, Wash.	Taylor
Fenton	Macy	Tollefson
Ford	Marcantonio	Van Zandt
Fulton	Martin, Iowa	Velde
Gamble	Martin, Mass.	Vorys
Golden	Merrow	Vursell
Goodwin	Meyer	Wadsworth
Graham	Michener	Weichel
White, Calif.	Williams	Wolverton
Whitten	Wilson, Ind.	Woodruff
Widnall	Withrow
Wigglesworth	Wolcott

NAYS—184

Abbitt	Forand	Morgan
Addonizio	Fugate	Morris
Albert	Furcolo	Morton
Andrews	Gary	Moulder
Aspinall	Gathings	Multer
Bailey	Gorski	Murdock
Barden	Gossett	Murphy
Baring	Granahan	Murray, Tenn.
Barrett, Pa.	Granger	Noland
Bates, Ky.	Grant	O'Brien, Ill.
Beckworth	Green	O'Brien, Mich.
Bentsen	Hardy	O'Hara, Ill.
Biemiller	Harrison	O'Neill
Blatnik	Hart	O'Sullivan
Bolling	Havenner	O'Toole
Bonner	Hays, Ark.	Pace
Bosone	Hedrick	Patten
Boykin	Heffernan	Peterson
Brown, Ga.	Heller	Pfeifer, Joseph L.
Buchanan	Herlong
Buckley, Ill.	Hobbs	Poage
Burnside	Holifield	Polk
Burton	Howell	Powell
Byrne, N. Y.	Huber	Price
Camp	Jackson, Wash.	Rains
Canfield	Jacobs	Ramsay
Cannon	Javits	Redden
Carlyle	Jones, Ala.	Rhodes
Carnahan	Jones, Mo.	Ribicoff
Case, N. J.	Jones, N. C.	Richards
Celler	Karst	Robeson
Chatham	Karsten	Rodino
Chelf	Kee	Rogers, Fla.
Chesney	Kelly, N. Y.	Rooney
Christopher	Kennedy	Sasscer
Chudoff	Keogh	Shelley
Clemente	Kerr	Sheppard
Cole, N. Y.	Kilburn	Sikes
Cooley	Kilday	Smathers
Cox	King	Smith, Va.
Crook	Kirwan	Spence
Crosser	Kruse	Staggers
Davenport	Lane	Stanley
Davies, N. Y.	Lanham	Steed
Dawson	Lind	Stigler
Deane	Linehan	Sullivan
DeGraffenried	Lucas	Teague
Delaney	Lynch	Thomas
Denton	McCormack	Thornberry
Dollinger	McGrath	Trimble
Doughton	McGuire	Underwood
Douglas	McKinnon	Wagner
Doyle	McSweeney	Walsh
Durham	Mack, Ill.	Welch
Eberharter	Madden	Whitaker
Elliott	Magee	Whittington
Engle, Calif.	Mahon	Wier
Feighan	Mansfield	Wilson, Tex.
Fernandez	Marsalis	Woodhouse
Fisher	Marshall	Yates
Flood	Miles	Young
Fogarty	Mills

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—1

Miller, Calif.

NOT VOTING—89

Allen, La.	Gregory	Plumley
Anderson, Calif.	Hall, Edwin Arthur	Preston
Angell		Priest
Barrett, Wyo.	Hare	Quinn
Battle	Harris	Rabaut
Boggs, La.	Hébert	Rees
Bolton, Md.	Hill	Regan
Bolton, Ohio	Hinshaw	Rich
Breen	Irving	Rivers
Brooks	Jackson, Calif.	Roosevelt
Bryson	Jennings	Sabath
Buckley, N. Y.	Johnson	Sadowski
Bulwinkle	Kearns	Scott, Hardie
Burke	Keefe	Sims
Carroll	Kelley, Pa.	Sutton
Chiperfield	Klein	Tackett
Colmer	Latham	Thompson
Combs	Lyle	Towe
Cooper	McCarthy	Vinson
Davis, Tenn.	McMillan, S. C.	Walter
Dingell	Mason	Werdel
Engel, Mich.	Mitchell	Wheeler
Evins	Monroney	White, Idaho
Fallon	Morrison	Wickersham
Frazier	Norton	Willis
Garmatz	Patman	Wilson, Okla.
Gavin	Perkins	Winstead
Gillette	Pfeiffer, William L.	Wood
Gilmer		Zablocki
Gordon	Phillips, Tenn.
Gore	Pickett

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

On this vote:

Mr. Plumley for, with Mr. Walter against.
Mr. Towe for, with Mr. Roosevelt against.
Mr. Gavin for, with Mr. Carroll against.
Mr. Rich for, with Mr. Mitchell against.
Mr. Jackson of California for, with Mr. Miller of California against.
Mr. William L. Pfeiffer for, with Mr. Battle against.
Mr. Latham for, with Mrs. Norton against.
Mr. Mason for, with Mr. Boggs of Louisiana against.
Mr. Hardie Scott for, with Mr. Perkins against.
Mr. Kearns for, with Mr. Regan against.
Mr. Chiperfield for, with Mr. Bolton of Maryland against.
Mr. Jennings for, with Mr. Morrison against.
Mr. Hinshaw for, with Mr. Burke against.
Mr. Anderson of California for, with Mr. Garmatz against.
Mr. Gillette for, with Mr. Thompson against.

Until further notice:

Mr. Breen with Mr. Engel of Michigan.
Mr. Sadowski with Mr. Angell.
Mr. Tackett with Mr. Barrett of Wyoming.
Mr. Frazier with Mrs. Bolton of Ohio.
Mr. Gilmer with Mr. Edwin Arthur Hall.
Mr. Irving with Mr. Hill.
Mr. Preston with Mr. Johnson.
Mr. Kelley of Pennsylvania with Mr. Keefe.
Mr. Zablocki with Mr. Phillips of Tennessee.
Mr. Priest with Mr. Rees.
Mr. Hébert with Mr. Werdel.

Mr. LARCADE changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

Mr. WHITTINGTON changed his vote from "yea" to "nay."

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I have a live pair with the gentleman from California, Mr. JACKSON. If he were present he would have voted "yea." I voted "nay." I withdraw my vote and vote present.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The doors were opened.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 195, nays 151, answered "present" 1, not voting 83, as follows:

[Roll No. 200]

YEAS—195

Abbitt	Burke	Crosser
Addonizio	Burnside	Davenport
Albert	Burton	Davies, N. Y.
Andrews	Byrne, N. Y.	Dawson
Aspinall	Camp	Deane
Bailey	Canfield	DeGraffenried
Barden	Cannon	Delaney
Baring	Carlyle	Denton
Barrett, Pa.	Carnahan	Dollinger
Bates, Ky.	Case, N. J.	Doughton
Battle	Celler	Douglas
Beckworth	Chatham	Doyle
Bentsen	Chelf	Durham
Biemiller	Chesney	Eberharter
Blatnik	Christopher	Elliott
Boggs, Del.	Chudoff	Engle, Calif.
Bolling	Clemente	Fallon
Bolton, Md.	Cole, N. Y.	Feighan
Bonner	Cooley	Fernandez
Bosone	Corbett	Fisher
Boykin	Coudert	Flood
Brown, Ga.	Cox	Fogarty
Buchanan	Crook	Forand

Fugate	Kruse	Poage
Fulton	Lane	Polk
Furcolo	Lanham	Powell
Garmatz	Lind	Price
Gary	Linehan	Rains
Gathings	Lodge	Ramsay
Gorski	Lucas	Redden
Gossett	Lynch	Rhodes
Granahan	McCarthy	Ribicoff
Granger	McCormack	Richards
Grant	McGrath	Rodino
Green	McGuire	Rogers, Fla.
Hardy	McKinnon	Rooney
Harrison	McSweeney	Sasscer
Hart	Mack, Ill.	Shelley
Havenner	Madden	Sheppard
Hays, Ark.	Magee	Sikes
Hedrick	Mahon	Smathers
Heffernan	Mansfield	Smith, Va.
Heller	Marsalis	Spence
Herlong	Marshall	Staggers
Hobbs	Miles	Stanley
Holifield	Mills	Steed
Howell	Morgan	Stigler
Huber	Morris	Sullivan
Jackson, Wash.	Morton	Teague
Jacobs	Moulder	Thomas
Javits	Multer	Thornberry
Jones, Ala.	Murdock	Trimble
Jones, Mo.	Murphy	Underwood
Jones, N. C.	Murray, Tenn.	Wagner
Judd	Noland	Walsh
Karst	O'Brien, Ill.	Welch
Karsten	O'Brien, Mich.	Whitaker
Kee	O'Hara, Ill.	Whittington
Kelly, N. Y.	O'Neill	Wier
Kennedy	O'Sullivan	Wilson, Tex.
Keogh	O'Toole	Woodhouse
Kerr	Pace	Yates
Kilburn	Patten	Young
Kilday	Peterson	Zablocki
King	Pfeifer, Joseph L.
Kirwan

NAYS—151

Abernethy	Halleck	Philbin
Allen, Calif.	Hand	Phillips, Calif.
Allen, Ill.	Harden	Potter
Andersen, H. Carl	Harvey	Poulson
	Hays, Ohio	Rankin
Andresen, August H.	Herter	Reed, Ill.
	Heselton	Reed, N. Y.
Arends	Hoeven	Riehlman
Auchincloss	Hoffman, Ill.	Robeson
Bates, Mass.	Hoffman, Mich.	Rogers, Mass.
Beall	Holmes	Sadlak
Bennett, Fla.	Hope	St. George
Bennett, Mich.	Horan	Sanborn
Bishop	Hull	Saylor
Blackney	James	Scott, Hugh D., Jr.
Bramblett	Jenison
Brehm	Jenkins	Scrivner
Brown, Ohio	Jensen	Scudder
Burdick	Jonas	Secrest
Burleson	Kean	Shafer
Byrnes, Wis.	Kearney	Short
Case, S. Dak.	Keating	Simpson, Ill.
Cavalcante	Kunkel	Simpson, Pa.
Clevenger	Larcade	Smith, Kans.
Cole, Kans.	LeCompte	Smith, Ohio
Cotton	LeFevre	Smith, Wis.
Crawford	Lichtenwalter	Stefan
Cunningham	Lovre	Stockman
Curtis	McConnell	Taber
Dague	McCulloch	Taile
Davis, Ga.	McDonough	Tauriello
Davis, Wis.	McGregor	Taylor
D'Ewart	McMillen, Ill.	Tollefson
Dolliver	Mack, Wash.	Van Zandt
Dondero	Macy	Veide
Donohue	Marcantonio	Vorys
Eaton	Martin, Iowa	Vursell
Ellsworth	Martin, Mass.	Wadsworth
Elston	Merrow	Weichel
Fellows	Meyer	White, Calif.
Fenton	Michener	Whitten
Ford	Miller, Md.	Widnall
Gamble	Miller, Nebr.	Wigglesworth
Golden	Murray, Wis.	Williams
Goodwin	Nelson	Wilson, Ind.
Graham	Nicholson	Withrow
Gross	Nixon	Wolcott
Guill	Norblad	Wolverton
Gwinn	Norrell	Woodruff
Hagen	O'Hara, Minn.
Hale	O'Konski
Hall, Leonard W.	Passman
	Patterson

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—1

Miller, Calif.

NOT VOTING—83

Allen, La.	Angell	Boggs, La.
Anderson, Calif.	Barrett, Wyo.	Bolton, Ohio
Breen	Hill	Quinn
Brooks	Hinshaw	Rabaut
Bryson	Irving	Rees
Buckley, Ill.	Jackson, Calif.	Regan
Buckley, N. Y.	Jennings	Rich
Bulwinkle	Johnson	Rivers
Carroll	Kearns	Roosevelt
Chiperfield	Keefe	Sabath
Colmer	Kelley, Pa.	Sadowski
Combs	Klein	Scott, Hardie
Cooper	Latham	Sims
Davis, Tenn.	Lyle	Sutton
Dingell	McMillan, S. C.	Tackett
Engel, Mich.	Mason	Thompson
Evins	Mitchell	Towe
Frazier	Monroney	Vinson
Gavin	Morrison	Walter
Gillette	Norton	Werdel
Gilmer	Patman	Wheeler
Gordon	Perkins	White, Idaho
Gore	Pfeiffer, William L.	Wickersham
Gregory	Phillips, Tenn.	Willis
Hall, Edwin Arthur	Pickett	Wilson, Okla.
	Plumley	Winstead
Hare	Preston	Wood
Harris	Priest
Hébert

So the bill was passed.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

On this vote:

Mr. Walter for, with Mr. Plumley against.
Mr. Roosevelt for, with Mr. Towe against.
Mr. Carroll for, with Mr. Gavin against.
Mr. Mitchell for, with Mr. Rich against.
Mr. Miller of California for, with Mr. Jackson of California against.
Mr. Boggs of Louisiana for, with Mr. William L. Pfeiffer against.
Mr. Perkins for, with Mr. Latham against.
Mr. Regan for, with Mr. Mason against.
Mr. Morrison for, with Mr. Hardie Scott against.
Mr. Thompson for, with Mr. Kearns against.
Mr. Breen for, with Mr. Chiperfield against.
Mr. Gilmer for, with Mr. Jennings against.
Mr. Gordon for, with Mr. Hinshaw against.
Mr. Klein for, with Mr. Anderson of California against.
Mr. Irving for, with Mr. Gillette against.

Until further notice:

Mr. Winstead with Mr. Werdel.
Mr. Sadowski with Mr. Engel of Michigan.
Mr. Frazier with Mr. Rees.
Mr. Dingell with Mr. Phillips of Tennessee.
Mr. Hébert with Mr. Keefe.
Mr. Willis with Mrs. Bolton of Ohio.
Mr. Priest with Mr. Edwin Arthur Hall.
Mr. Rabaut with Mr. Hill.
Mr. Harris with Mr. Johnson.
Mr. Patman with Mr. Barrett of Wyoming.
Mr. Wickersham with Mr. Angell.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I have a live pair with the gentleman from California, Mr. JACKSON. If he were here he would have voted "nay." I voted "yea." I withdraw my vote and vote "present."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have five legislative days in which to extend their remarks on the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

FISH HATCHERY IN THE STATE OF KENTUCKY

Mr. HART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the proceedings whereby the bill (H. R. 8766) to establish rearing ponds and a fish hatchery in the State of Kentucky was passed, be vacated, and that the bill be laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDER GRANTED

Mr. SIKES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 hour on Wednesday next, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered.

THE KOREAN CRISIS

Mr. POTTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. POTTER. Mr. Speaker, Members of Congress are operating in a vacuum as far as the Korean crisis is concerned. The only information we of the Congress have on the Korean situation is what we read in the public press and hear over the radio.

We are informed that the action in Korea is not war but rather police action under the auspices of the United Nations. I am sure the boys who are fighting there consider, and know, they are at war. I am sure they must have several questions they would like answered.

If this is action on the part of the United Nations to protect South Korea, where are the troops from other participating countries of the United Nations? We need ground troops and equipment, and we need these promptly. Other members of the United Nations, according to the press, are letting the United States furnish all ground troops. They have offered sympathy and advice and have adopted resolutions. You cannot establish a road block with sympathy. You cannot shell an enemy position with advice, and you certainly cannot counterattack with a resolution.

I demand that the President of the United States appear before a joint session of the Congress and report to us why men are sent into Korea without sufficient arms and reinforcements and why our allies of the United Nations are not participating in the ground fighting.

MILITARY INFORMATION

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I was amazed and shocked to read on the front page of one of the Washington papers that a specified number of troops, a list of the equipment, the name of the ship, the date and hour of the sailing, and the place the ship sailed from, were detailed in a story. It seems to me that if the Department of Defense continues stupidly to make this information available the newspapers should refrain from publishing it, because in view of the uncertain international situation it seems more than possible that the lives of these troops we are shipping abroad might be endangered by such information's being made public.

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. REED of New York. I agree with the gentleman wholeheartedly. There are spies all over the world and all over this Nation. We are furnishing the information. They could just as well withdraw their spies, because information will be published of everything we propose to do.

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. I agree with the gentleman. They would not need a spy to find that out.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. McCORMACK. If the Defense Department made the release, I agree with the gentleman, but is the gentleman sure the Defense Department made it, or did some newspaper get it and carry it?

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. I am not sure, but I do think the Defense Department should issue an order that such information should not be printed.

Mr. McCORMACK. I remember in the early days of World War II we had broken the Japanese code, and one of the prominent newspapers of this country carried that news, giving valuable information to the Japs. One of their reporters was with the fleet, and after he came back to the continental United States the paper carried a story by him giving the news to the enemy that our Intelligence had broken the Japanese code. I have often wondered why the matter was never prosecuted, because it was the most damnable thing that ever happened from the American angle during the war. That paper was the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. HAYS of Ohio. I agree with the majority floor leader that that incident was one of the worst that could possibly have happened or that did happen during World War II. I am merely interested that such incidents do not occur again, and as I stated before, I do not know whether the Department of Defense made this available, but the story carried a Washington date line, and it would be hard for me to know where else a newspaper could get such information about a ship sailing from the west coast. I reiterate that whoever makes this information public, the newspapers as a patriotic duty should refrain from publishing it, especially giving details as to days, hours, and numbers of troops.

NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY ON MOVEMENT OF AMERICAN TROOPS

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Speaker, I join with the previous speakers in reference to the newspaper publicity given to the movement of our troops in the last few days from San Francisco to the Orient. I also notice, Mr. Speaker, that the Military Sea Transport Service announced yesterday it has chartered 16 cargo ships up to the present time to help transport men and supplies to the Korean war zone.

In another place, Mr. Speaker, I read with much surprise that we are now going to experiment with our new equipment and new military devices in the Korean war, all of which gives out information to those who are not friendly to us.

Mr. Speaker, I feel there should be some secrecy with reference to our plans in order that our boys may be protected.

Today I sent the following telegram to the Secretary of Defense:

> Strongly protest publicizing troop movements to Korean front as contained in news stories of yesterday that 1,350 officers and men from Camp Stoneman were scheduled to sail. Story gives exact time of sailing and name of ship. Newspapers carried information on secret weapons, chartering of ships for war transport, and other military movements. I personally feel it is high time to impose secrecy for protection of our men.

SALARY OF THE DOORKEEPER

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 693) and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

> Resolved, That effective July 1, 1950, the salary of the Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives shall be at the annual rate of $11,000 plus the increased compensation provided for the elected officers of the Senate and House of Representatives by title 1, subsection (d) of the "Second Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1950," approved October 28, 1949, and there is hereby authorized to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, until otherwise provided by law, the necessary additional amount to equalize the Doorkeeper's present gross salary with that of his new gross rate as provided herein.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCORMACK]?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. ELLIOTT asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an address by Senator SPARKMAN, of Alabama.

Mr. LANE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an address entitled "Milestones Marking the Downfall of Poland," notwithstanding the fact that it will exceed two pages of the RECORD and is estimated by the Public Printer to cost $225.50.

Mr. DONOHUE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include extraneous matter.

Mr. PHILBIN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include excerpts.

Mr. MULTER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in four instances and include extraneous matter.

Mr. WOLVERTON asked and was given permission to extend his remarks on H. R. 8746.

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD and include speeches by Vice President BARKLEY and others, notwithstanding the fact that it will exceed the amount authorized for printing under the rules.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

Mr. JUDD asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an article entitled "Issue in China," notwithstanding the fact that it will exceed two pages of the RECORD and is estimated by the Public Printer to cost $205.

Mr. COLE of New York asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances.

Mr. SMITH of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include two articles.

Mr. WEICHEL asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.

Mr. JENKINS asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an address delivered last night by former President Hoover.

Mr. HOPE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.

Mr. GAMBLE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include editorials and news releases.

Mr. CANFIELD asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and in each to include newspaper editorials.

Mr. ENGLE of California and Mr. TAURIELLO asked and were given permission to extend their remarks, each to include an editorial.

Mr. JENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD and include a monthly statement by Mr. H. J. Stuhlmiller, president of the Bank of Ottumwa, Iowa, who, when he issues the monthly statement of the bank, generally says something which is valuable to his people and to the Nation.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a speech.

NATIONAL SECURITY

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7439) to protect the national security of the United States by permitting the summary suspension of employment of civilian officers and employees of various departments and agencies of the Government, and for other purposes.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 7439, with Mr. REDDEN in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

By unanimous consent, the first reading of the bill was dispensed with.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 18 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, the purpose of the bill under consideration, H. R. 7439, is to protect the national security of the United States by providing that the heads of certain sensitive Government departments and agencies may suspend or terminate the employment of civilian officers and employees when such action is deemed necessary in the judgment of the head of such department or agency.

The bill provides that the Secretaries of State, Defense, Army, Navy, Air Force, and Treasury—in the case of the Coast Guard—and the heads of the Atomic Energy Commission, National Security Resources Board, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, may suspend without pay any civilian officer or employee when such action is deemed necessary in the interest of national security.

Any suspended employee may be terminated by the department or agency head whenever he finds that such employee's termination is necessary or advisable in the interest of national security, provided such employee has received (a) a written statement of charges against the employee, (b) a reasonable opportunity to answer such charges and submit evidence, (c) a hearing upon the employee's request, (d) a review of the case by the head of the department or agency, and (e) a written statement of the final decision.

This legislation was introduced at the request of the Secretary of Defense. It has the unqualified endorsement of the departments and agencies included in the bill, has the approval of the Bureau of the Budget, and is in accord with the program of the President.

The bill makes permanent present temporary legislative authority under which the Secretaries of State, Defense, Army, Navy, and Air Force may suspend or remove civilian employees whenever such action is necessary or advisable in the interest of national security. The bill also grants similar permanent authority to the Atomic Energy Commission, the Secretary of the Treasury—for the Coast Guard, the National Security Resources Board, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

The Secretary of State is empowered to remove employees in the Department of State who are security risks under section 104 of the State, Justice, Commerce Appropriation Act for fiscal year 1950. The Secretary of Defense has similar authority provided him under section 630 of the Appropriation Act for fiscal year 1950 for the Military Establishment. The Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force are granted this authority on a temporary basis under section 3 of Public Law 808, Seventy-seventh Congress. The Atomic Energy Commission is granted such authority under section 12 (a) (4) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946.

The bill merely adds to the security provisions of existing law three additional groups of employees in three sensitive agencies—the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, National Security Resources Board, and the Coast Guard, under the Treasury Department.

The committee conducted extensive hearings with respect to this legislation, and in testimony before the Committee the Honorable Dan A. Kimball, Under Secretary of the Navy, speaking for the Secretaries of Defense, Army, Navy, and Air Force, stated:

> The Department considers it to be necessary for adequate protection of the national security that the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force shall have the power to remove an employee in their respective Departments from his employment when he is found to be a serious risk to national security. A single act of a disloyal person and a single act of an indiscreet employee can do equal damage to our securty in one of these sensitive departments.

Representatives of Federal employee and veterans' organizations generally endorsed the provisions of the bill. Representatives of some of these organizations made the reservation that there should be an appropriate appellate appeals procedure provided for those employees who are suspended or separated as security risks. In the judgment of the committee, the bill provides an adequate appeals procedure for such employees and grants them appeals rights to which they are not now entitled under present law. In addition, in contradistinction to the separation of an employee charged with disloyalty, employees separated as security risks from the agencies covered by the bill are entitled to seek and accept employment with nonsensitive Government departments, after approval of the Civil Service Commission.

Testimony by the representatives of the Department of Defense established the fact that since the enactment of Public Law 808, which was approved December 17, 1942, which is the present temporary authority for the Military Establishment to suspend and remove security risks, there have been only 375 employees removed from the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force on the grounds that such employees were security risks. This is less than an average of 54 persons removed a year in the Military Establishment where the average annual employment has been over a million civilians during this 7-year period. It is clear that the present authority to remove security risks is not abused by the Military Establishment.

Since July 1946, the Department of State has had similar authority contained in its appropriation acts, and only three such summary removals have been made by the Secretary of State under the authority in the 4-year period.

With respect to the Atomic Energy Commission, since the enactment of the Atomic Energy Act in 1946 only two employees of the Commission have been dismissed on security grounds.

This legislation will not involve additional Federal expenditures. In my judgment, prompt action is required on this legislation because the omnibus appropriations bill for fiscal year 1951 was not approved by July 1, and certain of the departments having authority to deal with the dismissal of security risks under 1950 appropriations acts, such as the Department of State and the Office of the Secretary of Defense, are now unable to take action with respect to these security matters.

I have received a letter from Hon. Louis Johnson, the Secretary of Defense, dated July 7, 1950, which urges the Congress to approve this legislation, without amendment, as soon as possible.

In testimony before our committee, the American Legion stated its official position as follows:

> We in the American Legion feel that the Federal Government has a first obligation to protect itself against all security risks in sensitive sectors. To do this it must have the essential legal instruments. H. R. 7439 would provide one of them. We urge you to favorably recommend H. R. 7439 and restore to agency heads a needed measure of protecting our security. In so doing, you will also aid in restoring a sagging public confidence in our Federal agencies.

I urge the Members to support this legisation because it is an essential measure for the protection of our Government at a time when the American people can ill afford to have persons on the Federal payroll in sensitive departments and agencies who are security risks.

THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE,
Washington, July 7, 1950.

Hon. TOM MURRAY,
Chairman, Post Office and Civil Service Committee, House of Representatives.

MY DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I read in a recent issue of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD that a rule has been granted on H. R. 7439, and I am hopeful that this bill will be passed by the House of Representatives at the earliest possible time.

The fundamental purpose of the bill, as you know, is to provide a summary procedure to safeguard the so-called sensitive agencies of Government from individuals who are poor security risks. The authority provided in this bill is essential if we are to fulfill the important responsibility of safeguarding classified military information against unauthorized disclosure. We consider the bill an important measure, for which there exists a continuing and urgent need not only in wartime but in time of peace.

The Department of Defense is most appreciative of the careful consideration given to H. R. 7439 by you and by the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. You will recall the lengthy testimony which pointed out the problems faced by the Department of Defense with regard to the safeguarding of classified military information and the necessity for summary power to suspend civilian employees who are poor security risks. The proposed authority would make permanent for a number of sensitive agencies of Government the temporary authority provided for the War Department and the Navy Department by Congress in Public Law 808 of the Seventy-seventh Congress.

It has been brought to my attention that an amendment has been proposed to H. R. 7439 as approved by your committee, which would place an appeal from the decision of a department head in the Civil Service Commission. You will recall the extensive testimony taken by your committee on the subject of an appeal and the views of the Department of Defense that such a provision would strip the responsible officials of Government of the authority necessary to carry out their responsibilities.

I am most appreciative of your efforts in behalf of the national defense and strongly urge that the House of Representatives give favorable consideration to H. R. 7439 as approved by your committee. We can ill afford the consequences of the unauthorized disclosure of classified information by anyone who may be a poor security risk.

With kind regards, I am,

Sincerely yours,

LOUIS JOHNSON.

Mr. COX. Who wrote that letter?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. The Honorable Louis Johnson, Secretary of the Department of Defense.

Mr. Chairman, I want the Members to distinguish between the loyalty procedure and this bill. Employees who are charged with being disloyal to our Government are already covered by executive order of our President and we have a loyalty board to determine such cases. This bill is designed to get rid of the undesirables who may be bad security risks, who although they may be thoroughly loyal are still bad security risks. For instance, an employee who is working in some highly sensitive agency doing very confidential, secret defense work and who goes out and gets too much liquor may unintentionally or unwittingly, because of his condition, confide to someone who may be a subversive, secret military information about the character of work he is doing in that department. He is, by his conduct, a bad security risk and should be discharged.

It also covers the sex perverts who may be under obligation to someone and who may be working in highly sensitive agencies and who may become bad security risks.

It is also to protect such agencies against employees who may be loyal but who may be too loquacious and too garrulous and talk too much about the confidential work they are doing.

Those are the purposes for which this bill was drawn. It covers employees who are inherently disloyal to our Government, and also I would get rid of employees who because of their conduct or because of their actions, although not disloyal, unintentionally may divulge secrets of our Government if they are working in highly sensitive agencies.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. PATTERSON. What kind of a board are they going to set up to hear these cases? How are they going to do that?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. This bill provides, first, that the employee who is suspended shall receive a written statement of the charges; second, reasonable opportunty to answer such charges and submit evidence; third, a hearing upon the employee's request; fourth, a review of the case by the head of the department or agency and, fifth, a written statement of the final decision.

Mr. PATTERSON. Is that by the head of the department? Does that constitute just one man, say the Secretary?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. That is correct. If an employee is doing highly sensitive work under the Secretary of the Army his final appeal would go to the Secretary of the Army who would make the final decision.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. EBERHARTER. The only appeal is to the dismissing officer?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. To the head of the department or agency.

Mr. EBERHARTER. The head of the agency with which he is working has sole control over whether he shall be dismissed?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Yes.

Mr. EBERHARTER. So there is no appeal really.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. They have no appeal today to an independent appeal board and yet conditions are far more serious and critical now than when this bill was introduced by me. Does the gentleman want to give to employees rights they do not have today?

Mr. EBERHARTER. They have the right of appeal.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Oh, no, they do not when they are discharged as bad security risks by the heads of defense agencies.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Under the civil service.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. No; the gentleman is entirely wrong about that when it comes to discharging employees in defense agencies as bad security risks by the heads of the defense agencies.

Mr. EBERHARTER. This supersedes all the civil-service laws.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. They do not have the right of appeal today. They have no appeal. They have no right of appeal, for instance, under the Atomic Energy Act, or under Public Law 808 of the Seventy-seventh Congress, which is still in effect today.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. What the gentleman says is true in many of these cases, they do not have an appeal but because they do not have an appeal at the present time is that any justification for giving them a phony appeal which means that the agency head who fires them reviews the cause of the firing? If you are going to give them an appeal why do you not give them a real appeal?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I am disappointed in the gentleman from California who is a member of the Joint Committee of Congress on Atomic Energy.

Suppose we had someone in the Atomic Energy Commission doing highly sensitive, secret work, although loyal, who goes out and gets drunk and tells some subversive about the nature of the highly secret work that he is doing, then would you force the Atomic Energy Commission to go before some independent board and divulge the character of the sensitive work which he is doing or tell why the employee is a bad security risk? I cannot agree with the gentleman at all.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. The gentleman puts me in a false light.

Mr. COX. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. COX. Are the boys of the country that are called for the defense of the flag given the right of appeal as to whether they shall abide by the results of the agency inducting them into the service? If not, should not the people in charge of our Army affairs be vested with the right to remove at least one bad security risk?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Certainly, the gentleman is entirely correct.

Mr. EBERHARTER. There is an appeal from the draft board.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Of course, we want to have an appeal to an independent board by employees who are not doing sensitive work and who are not doing highly secret defense work, but employees doing highly secret work in our defense agencies are in a different category. This is a serious matter, and you should not vote for an amendment which would force these heads of the various defense agencies to divulge the kind and character of work that the employees are doing when it is highly secret or why they are bad security risks or why they should be discharged in the interest of our national security.

Mr. EBERHARTER. If we listen to the observation of my good friend, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Cox], he feels maybe perhaps we should substitute martial law for civil law.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Oh, no.

Mr. COX. I think it is just piddling to talk about amending this bill by arming the individual with the right of appeal at a time when the whole world is in a state of peril approaching panic, and a great committee of this House comes forth with a bill in response to a request that comes from people in charge of the armed forces, you understand, having as its purpose the removing of bad security risks in the Government, we are confronted with this sort of a thing of trying to destroy the effect of the legislation by providing some broad appeal.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. In conclusion I want to say that I take my stand with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy and the members of the Atomic Energy Commission and the other agencies covered by this bill against any proposed amendment to force these agencies to go before an outside, independent agency of Government for appeal and review of their judgment as to why an employee is a bad security risk. This is a most critical matter and I urge my colleagues to stand behind our Secretary of our Defense Department in whom I have the greatest trust and confidence in this hour of peril.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Did the Justice Department ask for this bill?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. The Justice Department is not included in this bill.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Of course not.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. That is not a sensitive agency.

Mr. SADLAK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. SADLAK. As I interpret the statement made by the gentleman, he is agreeing with my philosophy that if there is a question of the security risk of a Federal employee, then it should be resolved in favor of the Government.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Absolutely.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Tennessee has expired.

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 10 minutes.

The gentleman from Kansas [Mr. REES] offered an amendment in the committee which would set up a separate appeal board by the Civil Service Commission, which most of the Members on our side supported with some help on the other side. However, we lost it in the committee by one vote. I believe there will be an attempt made later to amend the bill by offering the amendment to provide for a separate appeal to the Civil Service Commission by dismisssed employees who may, in some cases, be dismissed arbitrarily without cause by a superior of the agency who may or may not happen to like the employee. So as a matter of protection for the employee, in my opinion, it should be set up aside, apart, and separate from the agency in which the employee himself may be employed.

There is a need, more so now than at the time we considered this bill, to suspend from the service people who may be dangerous to the operations of our Government at home and abroad. This bill, if amended, should be approved by the House.

Another amendment may be offered, I understand, to include the Department of Commerce, which in my opinion does have a great deal to do with the shipment of important war materials and other materials throughout the world both by the Federal Government and by private enterprise.

Mr. GOLDEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. GOLDEN. Is it not true that every member of this committee favors the enactment of this law, realizing that there is a great emergency and that we should act promptly?

Mr. HAGEN. Yes.

Mr. GOLDEN. The only difference is whether or not there should be an amendment concerning an appeal?

Mr. HAGEN. The gentleman has stated the case correctly. There is no opposition in the committee to the bill itself.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman. will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Is it not true that all these agencies except three, the National Security Resources Board, the Coast Guard of the Treasury, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics now have this temporary authority? Under the present law these employees if discharged as poor security risks do not have the right of appeal; so you are trying to give the employees something they do not have now.

Mr. HAGEN. If it is wrong at the present time we should not continue the wrong. I believe in protecting an employee. If he is guilty he will be found guilty, and he will be dismissed immediately regardless. If he should be innocent and wrongly dismissed, he will have the opportunity by this impartial board to state his case. If he is found not guilty, he will be reinstated with pay for the time he missed. There is no danger in providing safeguards for the employee against persons who may take advantage of others in the department whom they may personally dislike or for some reason want to get rid of, maybe so they can put a friend in the job.

Appearing before our committee were members of the veterans' organizations and various Government-employee organizations, in fact, many organizations which were for this bill and see the need for its immediate passage. Most of these groups, including some veterans' organizations, strongly asked for a better appeal provision in the bill.

I appeal to you that this bill, if amended, be passed today so that it can go over to the Senate for immediate consideration and action.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. EBERHARTER. The word "indiscreetness" was used in the report. What do you mean by "indiscreetness"? Is there any definition in the bill as to what indiscreetness is? That is one of the reasons that would justify a dismissal. What is meant by "indiscreetness," I should like to know.

Mr. HAGEN. I would not attempt to answer the gentleman exactly. There are various ways whereby a person can be dismissed or charged with certain things which will lead to his dismissal. We are not spelling it out completely in this bill.

Mr. EBERHARTER. While one man might think something was indiscreet, a thousand other people might not think it was indiscreet.

Mr. HAGEN. A person may or may not be right in the charges he makes against an employee. That is why I personally favor an appeal opportunity to protect the employee beyond any possibility that he might be dismissed unfairly and improperly. That is the reason the organizations, which appeared before our committee, while they support the bill, did suggest an appeal, or that a change be made in the bill to provide a greater opportunity for the employee to appeal from any dismissal that might be made.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I am in favor of a bill of this type if the proper appeal method is provided. I am glad to hear the gentlemen say that an amendment will be offered along that line. If the proper kind of an appeal set-up is put into the bill, I shall certainly vote for the bill.

Mr. CANFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. CANFIELD. Will the gentleman tell us if the RECORD shows how many employees have been dismissed from sensitive agencies under existing law and regulations?

Mr. HAGEN. I believe there are between 300 and 400 employees who have been dismissed under present laws or orders of the President. I think it was about 375 employees.

Mr. CANFIELD. Was it the testimony of those who appeared before the committee in behalf of these agencies that they suspect there are many others who ought to be dismissed?

Mr. HAGEN. Witnesses from the various departments and agencies of the Government, and there were many, and they all favor the bill, indicated that was true. There is some danger. There are men and women in the various departments doing important work who may be too talkative or for some other reason may be dangerous to have in the work that they are doing, and who either should be dismissed or transferred to other departments.

Furthermore, if they are dismissed they have an opportunity under this bill to get employment elsewhere in the Government.

Mr. CANFIELD. But I take it they are not talking in terms of a few—they are talking in terms really of a considerable number, is that not so?

Mr. HAGEN. There may be many, but I would not be in a position to know.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Will the gentleman refer to the language at the bottom of page 3 where the language is as follows:

> That any person whose employment is so suspended or terminated under the authority of this act may, in the discretion of the agency head concerned, be reinstated or restored to duty, and if so reinstated or restored shall be allowed compensation for all or any part of the period of such suspension or termination in an amount not to exceed the difference between the amount such person would normally have earned during the period of such suspension or termination, at the rate he was receiving on the date of suspension or termination.

Suppose I were a person who was dismissed and shortly after being dismissed I took a job and possibly made as much or 50 percent as much as I was drawing. Suppose my case drags along, let us say, for a year, and at the end of the year I am reinstated. What compensation would I get?

Mr. HAGEN. If I understand the bill, and if I am wrong I would appreciate being corrected, you would be compensated for the loss of pay that you suffered because of the change of employment. In other words, if you lost $2,000 in that period of time while your appeal was being considered, you would be compensated for that amount.

Mr. CRAWFORD. I think that would be fair, but this language says "shall be allowed compensation in an amount not to exceed the difference between the amount such person would normally have earned."

Mr. HAGEN. Of course, if a person is improperly dismissed he should not be made to suffer financially.

Mr. CRAWFORD. But to have earned it and to normally have earned it would be two different propositions.

Mr. HAGEN. He normally would have earned it if he had stayed on the job from which he had been dismissed. That is the interpretation of that, I would say.

Mr. CRAWFORD. I am still not clear on that language.

Mr. HAGEN. As to any opposition that may develop to the bill because of the lack of a proper method of appeal, I can point out to you a letter which I personally received, as well as members of the committee, from Thomas G. Walters, operations director of the Government Employees' Council of the American Federation of Labor. This is what he says:

H. R. 7439 should be amended to provide an employee charged under the provisions of this resolution should have the right as a last resort to an appeal to an outside or independent appeals board.

I understand that the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] will offer an amendment along that line. We on our side of the committee generally supported the idea in committee and for the most part we expect to support such an amendment.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. JAVITS. Why was the committee against something that seems so logical and so fair?

Mr. HAGEN. For various reasons I guess.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, if the gentlemen will yield, I will tell the gentleman why. Secretary of Defense Johnson and others who head the defense agencies, are vigorously against the amendment. We followed the advice of the defense heads. This is emergency legislation.

Mr. JAVITS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Chairman, that we have to use our own heads, and that is what we are here for, and if it is fair to us then we ought to do it?

Mr. HAGEN. It is always a fact that the bureaucrats and the heads of departments and agencies want to have as much authority as they can get, and that is why they favor such a provision as this.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. There is some confusion in my mind caused by the bill. Apparently this bill is intended to give these department heads the authority to suspend certain officers and employees when they deem it necessary or advisable in the interest of the national security. Then on page 4 of the bill there is this proviso, "that the termination of employment herein provided shall not affect the right of such officer or employee to seek or accept employment in any other department or agency of the Government."

If the employment of an employee or officer has been terminated because it is necessary to the national security, by one department or agency, what is meant by that proviso in the bill? Would he be any safer in any other department or agency?

Mr. HAGEN. Oh, yes; there are other agencies and departments which do not deal with national defense. However, that only points up the necessity for an outside appeal board, because he might have been improperly discharged or dismissed by some department or agency head.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. MILLER of California. We must remember that we are dealing with security risks and not disloyalty. Where disloyalty enters into it, none of us has any sympathy with a disloyal person, but many Members of this House, measured by various standards, might be a security risk. It is not a question of disloyalty. A man who might take a drink and talk too much would not be a good security risk. He might be a good mechanic whose services might be used in some other part of the country, and no stigma of disloyalty attaches.

Mr. FURCOLO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. FURCOLO. If an employee is improperly discharged, he has a right of action to get back a certain amount of money, the amount he would have earned, for what period of time?

Mr. HAGEN. Indefinitely, I believe.

Mr. FURCOLO. If an employee is improperly discharged, he then has a right of action to get a certain amount of money, but I would like to know for what length of time.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. It is indefinite.

Mr. HAGEN. It may be indefinite. In other words, during the period of the appeal time. Any appeal would naturally be decided within a year, no doubt.

Mr. FURCOLO. But it does not say that in there.

Mr. HAGEN. That is true, it does not. But certainly an appeal would be decided within a reasonable period of time.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HAGEN. I yield.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Does the gentleman not think if an appeal is allowed it ought to be concluded very quickly?

Mr. HAGEN. I think an employee is entitled to immediate consideration of his appeal, so that he himself, if he is guilty, would get out of the service entirely or at least have an opportunity to look for another job; and if he is not guilty, he should have a chance to get a job and to work on the job and be free of the worry and concern of losing his job.

The gentleman is absolutely right.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. HAGEN] has again expired.

Mr. REES. Mr. Chairman, the distinguished chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, Hon. TOM MURRAY, has given a full, complete, and able explanation of H. R. 7439, which is under consideration today. His presentation has covered the principal provisions of the bill, and as ranking minority member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee I shall support the measure because I believe its enactment is of extreme importance to the security of our country, particularly in the light of recent developments in the Far East.

The bill provides that the Secretaries of State, Defense, Army, Navy, Air Force, and Treasury—in the case of the Coast Guard—and the heads of the Atomic Energy Commission, National Security Resources Board, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics may suspend without pay any civilian officer or employee when such action is deemed necessary in the interest of national security.

The bill makes permanent present temporary legislative authority under which the Secretaries of State, Defense, Army, Navy, and Air Force may suspend or remove civilian employees whenever such action is necessary or advisable in the interest of national security. The bill also grants similar permanent authority to the Atomic Energy Commission, the Secretary of the Treasury—for the Coast Guard—the National Security Resources Board, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

The Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force today are empowered to suspend or remove security risks under Public Law 808, Seventy-seventh Congress, which is temporary legislation. The Secretary of State was empowered to remove security risks under section 104 of the State, Justice, Commerce Appropriation Act for fiscal year 1950, which expired July 1, 1950. The Secretary of Defense had similar authority provided him under section 630 of the appropriation act of 1950 for the Military Establishment, which also expired at the end of the fiscal year 1950.

In view of the fact that the large majority of the agencies covered by the bill have only temporary authority to deal with these security matters, I believe it is appropriate for the Congress to approve this legislation.

During the hearings on this legislation certain witnesses stated that the legislation should contain provisions providing for an adequate appeal to make certain that no civilian employee was dismissed arbitrarily without sufficient evidence that such employee was a security risk.

These views were taken into consideration, and the bill provides the following rights for employees who are suspended as security risks but before their termination:

First. A written statement of the charges against the employee shall be stated as specifically as security considerations permit;

Second. A reasonable opportunity to answer such charges and to submit affidavits;

Third. A hearing at the employee's request by a duly constituted department or agency authority;

Fourth. A review of the case by the agency head or some official designated by him before a decision adverse to the employee is rendered; and Fifth. A written statement of the final decision to the employee by the department or agency head.

Similar legislation was approved by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee during the Eightieth Congress, and in my judgment, this legislation is as necessary today as it was then.

It is my understanding that the bill has the unqualified endorsement of all of the departments and agencies, including the Bureau of the Budget.

In addition, the employee and veterans' organizations generally endorsed the provisions of the bill. In a statement by Mr. James F. Green, chairman of the national Americanism commission of the American Legion, before the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, the American Legion endorsed this as a desirable bill. Mr. Green stated:

> Thus the provisions of H. R. 7439 would allow peculiarly sensitive national agencies to protect themselves without delay against employees who might jeopardize their operations and endanger in a degree our national security. At the same time the measure provides for a waiting period, a reasonable statement of charges, and an opportunity for employee appeal before discharge. Certainly this is a measure of guarded precaution not of autocracy.

One of the most important provisions of the legislation allows employees separated as security risks from the agencies covered by the bill to be employed by nonsensitive Government agencies upon the approval of the Civil Service Commission.

I believe the Congress should be careful in the enactment of legislation of this type, but in view of the testimony presented the committee and statements by the chairman of our committee as to the small number of security risks that have been separated from the departments and agencies covered by the bill, I believe that such authority has been exercised with a degree of care.

The Federal Government has a loyalty program which is administered under Executive Order 9835 of March 21, 1947. In my judgment, this loyalty program of the President should have the sanction of Congress in legislation as well as congressional approval for the authority to dismiss security risks.

I have urged the enactment of the legislation which would legalize and make more secure the President's loyalty program, but I am pleased to observe that the administration sees fit to request the Congress to enact legislation of this nature involving security risk cases.

While this subject is under consideration, I wish to make the observation that the loyalty program of the President has failed largely because of the fact that it does not have the sanction legislatively of the Congress. I have seen newspaper accounts to the fact that the President is considering the appointment of a board to review the operation of the loyalty program to determine how it can be improved. From time to time during the past 4 years on the floor of this House I have pointed out the failures of the President's loyalty program and why it is completely inadequate to meet the needs of our people.

In my judgment, if the executive branch would submit to the Congress proposed legislation, or take some action on the legislation which I introduced several years ago with respect to the handling of loyalty cases in the Government, many of the problems and shortcomings of the present loyalty program would disappear.

With respect to the legislation under consideration, I feel that it is proper for the Congress to consider it and provide the policy under which the security matters may be handled. I approve the provisions of the bill and trust the Members will support it.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER].

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, the way this debate is going, I think we are losing sight of the difference between disloyalty and security. We are not dealing with disloyalty.

Let me cite an example that I happen to know, which may point this up. A general who commanded a division to which I was attached in World War I would go into churches in Tacoma and speak on Sundays. Orders came late in the week for this division to move out the following Wednesday. This order was highly confidential. The commanding officer, a two-star general, went into the pulpit of a church the following Sunday and started his remarks by telling the people that he was sorry he would no longer have the priivlege of addressing them again because the division had been ordered to move to France. He was immediately relieved and sent to the Philippines, which was the limbo for poor security risks within the Army itself.

Security risks are not limited to any group. I am for this bill. We do need legislation of this type. We have been working under temporary legislation, but let me also point out to you that disloyal persons, persons guilty of treason to their Government, have a right of appeal to the Civil Service Commission, under Executive order of the President.

I propose to offer an amendment, which is a wishy-washy amendment, to give those people, who may be poor security risks but whose loyalty cannot be questioned, the right of some appeal away from the agency that acts as judge, jury, and prosecutor. The amendment is very weak. It was never offered in the committee because I was away, frankly, getting myself elected to the next Congress at the time the bill was finally considered.

The amendment provides—and it is printed in the RECORD—that there shall be an appeal to the Civil Service Commission. If the Commission finds that the man has been wrongfully discharged, it will so report to the head of the agency; and if the Commission recommends that the appellant be reinstated and such agency head, after consideration of such recommendation, determines that such reinstatement would be fair to him he may reinstate.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MILLER of California. In a minute or two.

The thing that we are trying to do is to take arbitrary power away from bureaucrats who want to grab power and provide some break in the chain that is going to bring to the attention of the head of the agency in which they work the conditions that exist and to make sure that they do have something of a normal right that we would accord any man when we take away from him his right to a job. This is important because it is his job and he has worked at it, and as long as he is loyal we are going to try to give him some protection. This other is a bad way of doing it.

Let me tell you why I want this adopted. The agencies of the Government who have had absolute authority during the war, such as the Army and the Navy, and now the Air Force and the rest of them, got very fat. They still want to exercise that authority; they do not want any restraint placed upon them.

I now yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. JAVITS. My question is: Is it not a fact that under the gentleman's amendment the man is not suspended, is not suspended summarily by the head of the agency. The only thing is that appeal comes on actual termination which, in view of the fact that it would be on a question of loyalty is practically a death sentence insofar as the economic future of that employee is concerned.

Mr. MILLER of California. There is no loyalty in this bill at all; we are talking about security, not loyalty. But so far as security is concerned it would be a death sentence, and it is still a death sentence under my amendment, because all that my amendment does is to allow the Civil Service Commission to review the findings.

Mr. JAVITS. The employee could be immediately suspended without any review; is that right?

Mr. MILLER of California. He would be suspended—no; under the provisions of the bill he has certain rights that are given to him. They must file charges, but it is not within the agency itself. This would provide a chance to take it outside of the agency.

Mr. JAVITS. Perhaps I did not make myself clear. The agency could suspend, could summarily terminate his employment.

Mr. MILLER of California. That is right.

Mr. FURCOLO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield.

Mr. FURCOLO. On page 3 of the bill, beginning in line 16, I find this provision:

> That any person whose employment is so suspended or terminated under the authority of this act may, in the discretion of the agency head concerned, be reinstated or restored to duty.

In other words, is it a fact that under this bill as now written, even assuming a person is improperly discharged he has absolutely no right of action to get his pay or the difference between the pay he was receiving and what he may be earning in new employment unless they restore him to duty? The fact is he is just out of luck completely.

Mr. MILLER of California. He would be out of luck.

Mr. FURCOLO. Does the gentleman think that is a fair situation?

Mr. MILLER of California. I do not; and that is why I have offered this amendment. Let me point out to you in the discussion of the difference between loyalty and disloyalty that the Under Secretary of the Navy said that even amongst those loyal to the United States there were many security risks.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California has expired.

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman from California 2 minutes.

Mr. CANFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield.

Mr. CANFIELD. I wonder if the gentleman who sponsors this amendment would be good enough to comment on this expression used by the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Johnson, in writing to the chairman of this committee:

> You will recall the extensive testimony taken by your committee on the subject and the views of the Department of Defense that such a provision would strip the responsible officials of the Government of the authority necessary to carry out their responsibility.

Would the gentleman care to comment on that statement?

Mr. MILLER of California. Yes; I will comment on that. The Secretary of Defense apparently has never seen my amendment. It does not strip in any way the head of the agency from taking action. He takes action under the provisions of this bill. The man can then go to the Civil Service Commission on appeal. If the Civil Service Commission finds for the man that does not reinstate him. It recommends his reinstatement back to the head of the agency. If the head of the agency is still satisfied there are reasons why he should not be reinstated he does not have to reinstate him. So no one is stripped of anything. That is why I say this is a milk-and-water amendment.

Mr. STEFAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield to the gentleman from Nebraska.

Mr. STEFAN. The amendment to be offered by the gentleman makes this bill similar to the McCarran amendment which we have in the appropriation bill for the State, Justice, and Commerce Departments, section 104 I think it is.

Mr. MILLER of California. I am not familiar with that.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. YATES. What rights under existing civil-service law does the head of a department have? Do they not have the right to suspend for security reasons?

Mr. MILLER of California. That power expired on the first of the month in an appropriation bill and they do not have any right at this time.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California has expired.

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman two additional minutes.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Suppose the employee involved is from an agency that is dealing with some very technical matters. As an example, let us say the agency is engaged in the construction of submarines. Who would be in better position to know whether this employee is a bad risk, the head of the agency or department or some outside overlord commission which the gentleman has suggested should be set up to hear the case?

Mr. MILLER of California. I have not suggested that any overlord commission be set up to hear the case. If a man is charged with any crime he goes before a judge. Why does the police officer sentence him for the crime? I am not a lawyer, the gentleman is. That is what we have here. You have the one agency judge, jury, and prosecutor, but we go to someone who is supposed to be without prejudice and who gives the man a fair trial. To me this is merely an American way of doing business and one of the things I want to preserve.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California has expired.

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. HOLIFIELD].

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, this bill is a dangerous bill unless it is properly amended and the reason I make that statement is because we have a so-called loyalty order and in that loyalty order we have a means of appeal. We set up an independent board of appeal appointed by the President. If a person is charged with disloyalty he does have the right of appeal under the loyalty procedure order.

What are you doing here? You are widening the field for discharging an employee, to include a vague term called a "security risk," not disloyalty, but a security risk. Now, what is a security risk? Well, the Under Secretary of Navy, Mr. Kimball, said it might be due to a person's associations, to his affiliations, to his habits or to some indiscreetness.

Who is going to judge whether a man's habits are good or bad? Who is going to judge whether a man is discreet or not? What are the standards of that judgment?

So here in effect you give to the head of the agency or his subordinates the right to fire an individual for security risk reasons without giving that man an appeal. It says in the bill that he has an appeal, but he can only appeal to the head of the agency which fires him. I submit that is not the proper kind of an impartial appeal that a man needs if his job is being taken away from him.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans, the American Federation of Labor, the National Federation of Federal Employees, the American Federation of Government Employees, and other organizations appeared before the committee asking for an independent board of appeal. That is what the amendment proposed by the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] effects to do. Now, I intend to vote for the gentleman's amendment, because, if the gentleman's amendment carries, it will provide some protection to the individual. Remember that when this bill is passed, you do not have to charge a man with disloyalty any more; your disloyalty procedures are out the window. You do not have to go through the present disloyalty procedure; all you have got to do is to say he is a bad security risk, and you do not have to use disloyalty procedure any more, and I challenge the gentleman to deny it.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Is the gentleman still a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I am.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. All right. I have in my hand a letter——

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I know, I have read the letter, and they say they have no objection to it. Of course, they do not, because they come under their own act and they have their own procedure.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. They strongly and violently oppose an appeal to an outside independent board. Does the gentleman agree with the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. The Atomic Energy Commission has its own procedure set up by law and they use the loyalty procedure appeals board, and under this bill there is no outside independent appeal board allowed.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. Does not the gentleman from California agree with me that in the public mind, if a person is charged as a bad security risk, a stigma akin to disloyalty attaches to him?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. The gentleman is absolutely right. It is laughable to read the provisions of the bill. If a man is discharged as a bad security risk, he has the right to seek or accept employment. Of course, if you are fired from your job, you have a right to go out and look for a job, and you have a right to starve if you do not get a job. And take this review: A review of his case by the agency head or some official designated by him before a final decision is made. In other words, the man that fires him may be the official that is designated to review his case. I say you are stepping into a wide field. I am for security. There may be some Government employees who are bad security risks and who are disloyal, but I am not for giving any agency head or any of his subordinate officials the opportunity to use his own discretionary judgment as to whether a man is discreet or not and not give the employee the right of proper appeal on that case. The agency head or one of his subordinates might see a man take two cocktails at a cocktail party and he might decide, in his own mind, that he was indiscreet. Maybe he was indiscreet; maybe he was not. Maybe a man could carry 10 cocktails and still keep his mouth shut, I do not know, but when you have a variable standard to decide whether a man is indiscreet or not, I am telling you, my friends, you are getting into the field of thought control, if I know anything about it.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. JONAS. I understand the gentleman is saying that he is in favor of the amendment proposed by the gentleman from California.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I am in favor of it. I shall offer an amendment as a substitute to his, if I have the opportunity. My amendment goes a little bit further. If my amendment is defeated, I shall vote for the amendment proposed by the gentleman from California, because I think it is a good amendment.

Mr. JONAS. I hope so, because the word "appeal" in his amendment is a misnomer. He would be compelled to appeal to a board which originally preferred the charges, and after the appeal is over, there is no mandatory process in the Commission to make the judgment final.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. That is true. But, the Miller amendment gives the right of review to an independent board. My amendment goes further than the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. JONAS. Does not the gentleman believe in the proposition where the jurisdiction of making the judgment final is vested in the appeals board?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. My amendment will make that possible.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California has expired.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BENTSEN].

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to speak out of order, on the Korean war.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I speak to you of a subject which may well result in a third world war or a lasting peace. This battle in Korea has been called a lot of fancy names in the past 3 weeks. Some have said it is merely a police action, but try telling a GI in the foxholes of Korea that he is just a cop on his beat. Ask the wives and mothers of those who are fighting in Korea today, they will tell you there is just one three-letter word for it—war. It is time we face up to reality, time we admit we have a small war on our hands, one we want to end as quickly as possible to avoid a world-wide conflagration.

The seriousness of this situation is difficult to overemphasize. With each new day our newspapers tell of American men retreating, of our troops outnumbered and outgunned. Our forces are on a peninsula surrounded by water on three sides and by the enemy on the fourth—an enemy with a force we have underestimated, Korean allies whose strength we have overestimated. A North Korean Army with approximately 200,000 well-trained men attacking us. Tanks double the size of our own, thrown against our outnumbered troops. At least 150,000 Chinese Communists in the vicinity of the Korean border prepared to join the North Koreans if we continue to suffer defeat at their hands.

The soldiers in Korea have done a magnificent job when you consider their lack of fighting equipment. Our logistics problem is most complex. The distances involved are tremendous. Our enemies have a relatively simple problem of supply by merely transporting on overland routes. It takes no stretch of the imagination to realize this could develop into another Bataan.

What can we do to end this war now?

My suggestion may result in my being labelled an alarmist or an extremist, but if it should result in an earlier end to this warfare and the saving of American lives, as I believe it will, then I mind not the labels. I propose our Commander in Chief, the President of the United States, advise the commander of the North Korean armies to withdraw his troops to the north side of the thirty-eighth parallel within 1 week, or use that week to evacuate a named list of principal North Korean cities which would be subjected to atomic attack by our Air Force.

There are those who will recoil in horror and condemn such action but to those I say it is deserving of these people who are so morally wrong as to attack peaceful neighbors in the dead of night, those who will accept the surrender of American boys, tie their hands behind them and then brutally murder them.

To those who will speak and write against this suggested action I ask why not do it now rather than 6 months from now wishing we had done it.

This war is past the wrist-slapping stage. This is not a time for wishful thinking. The President made a brave move when he sent our American forces to Korea. Now we are faced with the next step. If we lose South Korea after the steps we have now taken our Nation will have suffered its severest set-back in its fight against communism. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that we could lose South Korea if the troops of Communist China join the affray and we refuse to use all the weapons at our command.

We are fighting this battle with one hand tied behind us. Let us use everything we can to end this war now. Should this war in Korea continue, we can expect it to hearten Communist satellites throughout the world. We can expect similar trouble in Yugoslavia, Iran, and Formosa, from the Huks in the Philippines and an intensified attack by the Communist forces in Indochina. Should this war in Korea continue, this great and powerful nation can find itself fighting a war of containment all over the world, draining us of manpower and resources. Communist Russia, during our struggles, can continue to let her satellites take the losses while building her own atomic stockpile until that fateful day when the men in the Kremlin decide that they are strong enough and we are weak enough. Better to let those who would destroy free nations know that the United States stands ready to use full military might to stop aggression. That the atomic bomb awaits those who would violate the peace of free men.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired. The Clerk will read the bill for amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, notwithstanding the provisions of section 6 of the act of August 24, 1912 (37 Stat. 555), as amended (5 U. S. C. 652), or the provisions of any other law, the Secretary of State; the Secretary of Defense; the Secretary of the Army; the Secretary of the Navy; the Secretary of the Air Force; the Secretary of the Treasury; Atomic Energy Commission; the Chairman, National Security Resources Board; or the Director, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, may, in his absolute discretion and when deemed necessary in the interest of national security, suspend, without pay, any civilian officer or employee of the Department of State (including the Foreign Service of the United States), Department of Defense, Department of the Army, Department of the Navy, Department of the Air Force, Coast Guard, Atomic Energy Commission, National Security Resources Board, or National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, respectively, or of their several field services: Provided, That to the extent that such agency head determines that the interests of the national security permit, the employee concerned shall be notified of the reasons for his suspension and within 30 days after such notification any such person shall have an opportunity to submit any statements or affidavits to the official designated by the head of the agency concerned to show why he should be reinstated or restored to duty. The agency head concerned may, following such investigation and review as he deems necessary, terminate the employment of such suspended civilian officer or employee whenever he shall determine such termination necessary or advisable in the interest of the national security of the United States, and such determination by the agency head concerned shall be conclusive and final: Provided further, That any employee having a permanent or indefinite appointment, and having completed his probationary or trial period, who is a citizen of the United States whose employment is suspended under the authority of this act, shall be given after his suspension and before his employment is terminated under the authority of this act, (1) a written statement of the charges against him, which shall be stated as specifically as security considerations permit; (2) a reasonable opportunity to answer such charges and to submit affidavits; (3) a hearing, at the employee's request, by a duly constituted agency authority for this purpose; (4) a review of his case by the agency head, or some official designated by him, before a decision adverse to the employee is made final; and (5) a written statement of the decision of the agency head: Provided further, That any person whose employment is so suspended or terminated under the authority of this act may, in the discretion of the agency head concerned, be reinstated or restored to duty, and if so reinstated or restored shall be allowed compensation for all or any part of the period of such suspension or termination in an amount not to exceed the difference between the amount such person would normally have earned during the period of such suspension or termination, at the rate he was receiving on the date of suspension or termination, as appropriate, and the interim net earnings of such person: Provided further, That the termination of employment herein provided shall not affect the right of such officer or employee to seek or accept employment in any other department or agency of the Government: Provided further, That the head of any department or agency considering the appointment of any person whose employment has been terminated under the provisions of this act shall make such appointment only after consultation with the Civil Service Commission, which agency shall have the authority to determine whether any such person is eligible for employment by any other agency or department of the Government.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MILLER of California:

Page 1, line 3, after "That", insert "(a)."

On page 2, line 25, after "shall", insert a comma and the following: "except as provided in subsection (b)."

On page 4, after line 12, insert the following:

"(b) (1) Any person whose employment is terminated under authority of subsection (a) shall have the right to appeal to the Civil Service Commission from the adverse decision of the agency head concerned. Such appeal shall be made in writing within a reasonable time after such termination of employment and may be accompanied by such affidavits as the appellant may desire to submit. The appellant shall be given the opportunity to appear before the Commission, either in person or through a designated representative, in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Commission. After investigation and consideration of the evidence submitted, the Commission shall (A) submit its findings and recommendations to the agency head concerned, and (B) send copies of such findings and recommendations to the appellant or to his designated representative. If the Commission recommends that the appellant be reinstated and such agency head determines, after consideration of such recommendation, that such reinstatement would be fair and reasonable and not against the public interest, he shall reinstate the appellant and allow him compensation as provided in subsection (a) for all or any part of the period of his suspension and separation from the service.

"(2) The Civil Service Commission shall submit to the President and to the Congress an annual report with respect to the activities of the Commission under this Act, and shall include in such report a statement indicating the extent to which the several agency heads have complied with the recommendations of the Commission, submitted pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection, for the reinstatement of dismissed officers and employees."

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, this is the amendment that has been previously discussed. All the amendment does is to break the chain within the agency by which the suspension can be made, and provide for a review by the Civil Service Commission, which then submits its findings to the head of the agency. If, after a reexamination, the head of the agency determines that the man should be reinstated, it may reinstate him.

The trouble is, particularly in the lower levels, that caprice and personalities enter into these dismissals and people are discharged. The thing that we call security is a broad charge. A man can be discriminated against, and he has no right to bring his appeal even to the head of his agency, other than the theoretical passing on the findings of the agency. In this way the Civil Service Commission reviews it and reports it back to the agency. The Civil Service Commission also reports to the President and to the Congress, which allows us to act as judge as to whether they get along very well.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield.

Mr. JONAS. I am somewhat in sympathy with your amendment, but when you speak of "agency," is the agency that ultimately reviews the finding of the Civil Service Board the same agency that originally stands as accuser of the party charged with the offense?

Mr. MILLER of California. That would be true.

Mr. JONAS. Then, where is the effectiveness of your appeal? It is just an idle gesture.

Mr. MILLER of California. No. It is not an idle gesture. The agency is the one for which the man works. For instance, it might be the Department of the Army.

Mr. JONAS. But the appeal goes back to the accuser. In other words, a man is accused, and he is tried and he loses, and he appeals. Then the Civil Service Commission says, "This finding is improper. We rule that he should be reinstated." There are no mandatory powers in your amendment, and the agency says, "Oh, no. We do not agree with the Civil Service Commission." So you leave your man exactly where you have him.

Mr. MILLER of California. I agree with you. I said it was a weak amendment in that respect, but you have got the question of security. We must not lose sight of the fact that we are dealing with a sensitive agency. The agency may be right in suspending him and may have confidential information that it should not disclose. In that case, they can justify it to themselves. This at least gives some chance of bringing it out into the open, and it is not hidden under that shell of high confidence.

Mr. JONAS. Will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield.

Mr. JONAS. My point is this: You use the word "appeal," which has a very definite meaning in legal jurisprudence. Here you use the word "appeal" as though it has the same meaning in this proceeding. Yet, when you get through, it is a nonentity.

Mr. MILLER of California. I am not a lawyer. Perhaps I should have used the word "review," and then the Civil Service Commission has the right to review and to determine whether there are any safeguards that the head of the agency himself may not know about, and that he may be quick to correct when it is called to his attention by this outside agency.

Mr. JONAS. That is a better word.

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield.

Mr. DONDERO. In reporting back to the Congress you do not intend by your amendment that the Congress shall become a board of review? I think all you mean is that they shall report to Congress about making known what their findings were?

Mr. MILLER of California. That is right, and the Congress then, having this information before it, as in all of these reports, if we find a great discrepancy, could take the necessary action to correct it.

I believe that this safeguards the United States Government. I want again to stress the fact that we are dealing not with loyalty but with security; and I may say I would like to criticize the Department of the Army right now because in the hearings before our committee it was brought out that the Department of the Army had not invoked the President's present loyalty board and use of standards of loyalty in dismissing people, but had sent them all out under the guise of security. That allows disloyal people to be reinstated in places in the Government where they should never be reinstated. Any man who is disloyal and is convicted of disloyalty by the loyalty board ought never to be eligible for further Government employment.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I offer a substitute for the Miller amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HOLIFIELD as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. MILLER of California: On page 3, line 12, after the number "4", strike out the words down to and including the word "final" in line 14, and insert in lieu thereof the following language: "An independent board of review is hereby authorized, to be known as the security review board. The security review board shall be composed of three members to be appointed by the President under such regulations and tenure of office as he deems advisable. Any employee suspended under the terms of this act shall be entitled upon request to a review by the security review board. No employee shall have his employment terminated under the terms of this act unless the decision of the security review board is adverse to said employee."

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I want to make it very plain that this amendment of mine does not prevent the head of any agency from suspending an employee who is charged with being a security risk; he can be suspended. The bill provides that, and my amendment does not change that.

I want to say further that I am in favor of the Miller amendment but I want to say that my amendment goes further and I want to explain to you why it goes further.

In section 3 of the bill the President is given authority to include, in the terms of this act, all executive agencies. So this applies potentially to every executive agency, not only the sensitive ones.

We must keep that in mind in the first place.

In the second place, there is no distinction made in the bill between so-called sensitive employees, that is, employees who have access to confidential and secret information, and the regular employees. In many instances 75 or 80 percent of the department's employees, those in clerical position and those running elevators and doing janitor work and manual work are not what would be called sensitive employees and are not in positions where they could be security risks.

Passage of this bill would obviate the necessity of using the loyalty procedure and any department of the Government could dismiss any employee if the agency head or his subordinates want to. That is the same procedure which the Army has been using and which the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] just finished condemning. The Navy and the Air Force are using the loyalty procedure method giving the employee the right to appeal for a hearing before an independent board. The Army has not; the Army has been dismissing its employees, making no charges, but just summarily dismissing them. Such persons could be reemployed in other agencies of the Government.

Finally, the reason my amendment goes further than the Miller amendment and makes it mandatory for the head of an agency to accept the appeal board's decision is because we are dealing in very indefinite terms. The term "security risk" has no definition. It is so vague and fuzzy that any Federal employee's job can be jeopardized. Because the reasons for dismissal are not defined clearly, we should be more anxious than ever to protect the employee from arbitrary and discriminatory actions. The Under Secretary said it might be according to a man's associations, to his affiliations, to his habits, or because he was indiscreet. So because we are going so much further and entering into a field which goes far beyond loyalty or disloyalty, I say that the amendment should go beyond that and that the employee should be given the protection of an independent review board. That is why my amendment is offered in the terms of a substitute.

I hope the committee will support my amendment. However, as I said before, if it is voted down I intend to vote for the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER].

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, these two amendments which have been offered will give some ray of hope to this bill so that those of us who do not want to destroy the civil-service system and at the same time want to do everything to see that our Government is protected from within will be able to vote for this bill. If either of these amendments are passed I personally will vote for this bill, but without them I cannot, because the bill as it is now constituted, without the amendments, marks the end of the civil-service system which, to me, is one of the foundation stones of our American democratic way of life.

If this bill had come up, say, 2 or 3 months ago, it would not have had a ghost of a chance of passage. Now that we are in the midst of war, some of us are stampeded by hysteria. We are willing to do anything, of course, to back up on the home front our men abroad; but I do not believe it wise that in the process we give up any of the fundamentals of our democratic way of life. The civil service system to me is one of these fundamental elements. You cannot defeat communism by giving up democracy.

I have been thinking what would happen if this bill in its present form would be applied say to our own House of Representatives. They say that some of the poor security risks are those who drink, gamble, or gossip or have the wrong acquaintances. Some days we might not be able to raise a quorum if this bill was applied here.

If we can pass either of the amendments offered by the gentleman from California, which will guarantee that men and women in civil service have a right to review, not through people who fire them but through the Civil Service Commission or an impartial board, we have held onto something basic, we will be able to salvage our civil-service system and at the same time give protection from within.

Now we are at war. American lives are being lost. I do not approve of the way this Korean situation was handled. We are at war without approval of Congress. But I am an American, and this is "my country—right or wrong." I abhor war. Mr. Truman has committed us without our consent. But there can be no turning back now. I will, therefore, do everything to back up our fighting men, but I will fight even harder to make this a more democratic country and will not let war hysteria stampede me into voting for this bill in present form.

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Miller amendment. I supported this amendment in committee and I propose to support it again now.

The reason is that it seems to me we must be particularly careful at this time not to be led away by any hysteria due to the war situation that we are now in. I yield to no one in my anxiety about security risks in our Government; however, I do feel that it has always been the American way, American jurisprudence in fact, to give everyone the right of appeal.

I am not so favorably impressed by the Holifield amendment, although that also has great merit, for the simple reason that it builds up and sets up another board. It seems to me that the Civil Service Commission is the one that should be able to review these cases.

I would like also to point out, and I hope the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] will correct me if I am wrong, that under his amendment a bad security risk can be instantly dismissed by the head of the department and he will therefore no longer be a menace or danger in that department, that only after that and while he is under dismissal can he appeal to the Civil Service Commission for review. The Civil Service Commission can then, in its wisdom, exonerate him and possibly place him in another department of Government which would probably be a far better thing, because human nature being what it is, it is not very easy to send a dismissed employee back under the same agency head.

I earnestly hope this House will weigh the merits of this amendment and will realize the importance of not allowing any one individual in an agency or the head of an agency to act as prosecutor, judge, and jury. It seems to me that is a very dangerous precedent, and I am a little afraid that, owing to the fact that the war clouds are around us, that we are all anxious for the security of our Nation, and quite rightly so, we may be carried away into doing something that we may regret for a long time afterwards. It seems to me that this bill would be far more acceptable and easier of passage if it contains this amendment.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. KEATING. I think the comments of the gentlewoman from New York have been very helpful to us in trying to make it clear what we should do on this amendment. As I understand, if an employee were later exonerated by the Civil Service Commission, he could be returned to another agency, but do I understand not to the agency where he had previously been employed?

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. No; that would be entirely optional. He could go back to that agency.

Mr. KEATING. To that agency?

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. Yes; he could be exonerated and returned and put right back in the position from which he had been dismissed.

Mr. KEATING. In the discretion of the Civil Service Commission?

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. Yes; in conjunction with the agency head. The Civil Service Commission would recommend this to the agency head, and as I read this amendment, if the agency head, in spite of that, said "No; this man is a bad security risk; I know certain things about him that makes it impossible for him to be reemployed in this agency," he might then possibly be placed in another agency.

Mr. KEATING. The agency would not be required to take him back.

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. No.

Mr. KEATING. Then he could be placed in another agency if that agency head were willing to take him.

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. That is correct.

Mr. KEATING. And if he were exonerated in that way and were taken back, are there any provisions in the amendment or the bill to provide for his compensation?

Mrs. ST. GEORGE. I understand that he would be compensated then. In other words, he would be completely exonerated. The reason for the change in agency in some instances is that a man might be a bad security risk in one agency and he would be perfectly all right in another. In other words, as my distinguished colleague from New York [Mr. POWELL] pointed out, there are some people who may take a few too many cocktails and do things that might be very dangerous in what is known as a sensitive agency, and yet they could be put in another agency where this, shall we say, slight weakness, might not affect them so seriously.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentlewoman from New York has expired.

Mr. COX. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, the advocates of these amendments, intending to scuttle this emergency measure that comes to us from the Secretary of Defense, seem to have learned nothing from what has taken place in Korea. Let us make no mistake about this. We know exactly what we are doing. We know why the amendments are proposed. We know that their adoption would mean the continuation of the policy of appeasement which we have been following for a number of years, and which is responsible for the plight in which the world finds itself. Korea has exposed a military weakness that is embarrassing to every citizen of this country who has a concern for the safety of the Nation.

Mr. Chairman, and my fellow colleagues, I can think of nothing that would embarrass those in charge and responsible for national defense so much as would the adoption of either of the amendments now before the committee. They ought to be voted down. They ought to be voted down because their adoption is not in the interest of security.

Mr. SHORT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COX. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. SHORT. I am sure we all have high admiration for both the ability and the courage of the very able gentlewoman from New York, who has made what under normal peacetime conditions would be a very strong statement for these amendments. However, I think on second thought the gentlewoman will agree with us, and certainly the gentleman from Georgia, who is a very able lawyer, will agree that the unauthorized disclosure of classified information of top-secret character by anyone who may be a poor security risk is fraught with dire if not fatal consequences at this time.

Mr. COX. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I should like to say, Mr. Chairman, that I resent the fact that the gentleman from Georgia accuses the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] and me of trying to scuttle this bill. That implies that we have offered our amendments in bad faith and that we are not in support of the bill. We have both previously stated to the House that we were for the bill, and that we were merely exercising our right as Members to try to improve it. I think the gentleman from Georgia owes an apology to the gentleman from California and me for saying that.

Mr. COX. If the gentleman will yield, these amendments present a case where the line might be drawn between the sheep and the goats.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Chairman, the test of real leadership comes at times like this. We all know there is tension at this time. It is incumbent upon us, who are supposed to be the leaders in our Nation, to use good common sense and justice in the carrying out of our duties.

In my judgment, this is a good bill, provided these amendments, either the Miller or Holifield amendment, are incorporated in it. All of us want our Nation to be secure. All of us want to give the heads of the various departments mentioned in the bill the right to fire people who are disloyal or who are poor security risks. We certainly are of one accord as to that. On the other hand, if these or similar amendments are not adopted, under the cloak of patriotism, under the guise of acting patriotically, gave injustices may occur. Some people no doubt will take advantage of the situation and great individual injustices will occur. Our liberties may be in jeopardy. There is no question about it.

This is not the way to legislate, as I view it. Yes, we want those who are not good security risks to be dismissed from the service. We certainly want disloyal people to be dismissed. But let us give people who are just charged with being disloyal, just charged with being security risks, a fair hearing. We do not sentence a horse thief without giving him first a fair trial. We in America have always believed that people are entitled to a fair hearing. Certainly there cannot be anything wrong, and we cannot be injuring our society in any way, and we cannot be jeopardizing the defense of our Nation by acting democratically and by acting in the best traditions of our country by giving people who are charged with doing something wrong an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS. I yield.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. This bill provides for a hearing by the head of the agency or the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of the Army or Navy. Do you think that the Secretary of Defense can be required to go before the Civil Service Commission and disclose high secrets and military information and that the Civil Service Commission should be the overlord and the judge over the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of the Army as to whether or not a person is a bad security risk?

Mr. MORRIS. Certainly I think the Secretary of Defense or any head of any department mentioned in the bill ought to have the right to summarily discharge an employee. Certainly he ought to have the right to do that. They should be forced to quit immediately. But after they have quit, they still ought to have the right to go somewhere and be heard so as to determine whether or not the action was arbitrary and unjust. Why, we would no more think of giving somebody here, even the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the right to treat us that way than we would of flying. Would we? Of course we would not. You know we would not let any man determine whether or not we were bad security risks by giving them such power. Then why should we not do unto others as we would have them do unto us? That principle cannot be safely forsaken in a democracy.

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I believe in the consideration of these two amendments, and in the consideration of this particular piece of legislation we have gone to very great extremes to get away from the real situation. Understand, and I repeat, we are dealing here not with people who are disloyal. We are dealing with people who are simply regarded as those who might let some information leak out.

The situation is this: the head of the agency can dismiss the employee who is regarded as a security risk. That takes him out of any sensitive position until such time, under these amendments, that he might be entirely cleared of any charges. We have here it seems a very plain fact, that the head of the agency could remove anybody by simply labeling him as a bad security risk. How can we, in this country, be talking about freedom and the rights of men and yet give someone the power to destroy a man's employment, not merely for the time being, but to label him for all time as having been a poor security risk? The public generally and other possible employers are not going to draw a fine line between a security risk and a disloyal person.

Now, let us think for a moment, in the hope of getting some reason here. The amendment of the gentleman from California [Mr. HOLIFIELD] is regarded as too extreme by some. I believe, and as we worked on it in committee, that we could very properly turn down the substitute and pass the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] and we would have a sane and sensible bill which would allow a fellow American citizen the right to at least have his case reviewed and have an opportunity to be vindicated.

Mr. KILDAY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield.

Mr. KILDAY. I wanted to ask the gentleman if he regarded a disloyal person as being a poor security risk?

Mr. CORBETT. Oh, a disloyal person——

Mr. KILDAY. Do you regard him as a poor security risk?

Mr. CORBETT. A disloyal person is a poor security risk, but they are covered under other legislation that provides for their immediate dismissal.

Mr. KILDAY. But they would also be covered under this legislation, inasmuch as it refers to poor security risks.

Mr. CORBETT. This resolution does not have to do with the people who would be accused of disloyal action. I would go as far as the gentleman or any other Member would go in punishing them.

As a matter of fact, dismissal is not a sufficient punishment. But we are dealing here with security risks, and I think we ought to be careful that we do not give one individual the right to label another one as a poor security risk.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield.

Mr. JAVITS. Is it not a fact that all these amendments are trying to do is to save a man's economic life? Is that not the simple issue? The individual person is given a right of appeal and the Government is not jeopardized at all.

Mr. CORBETT. That is exactly true. We are affording to the poor individual who is dismissed a right to have a review.

Mr. JAVITS. And when we pass these amendments, it is for the benefit of the individual's protection of his own civil rights?

Mr. CORBETT. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield.

Mr. MORRIS. Without this amendment, would this bill not in fact be in the nature of a dictatorship set up in our own Government by certain agencies?

Mr. CORBETT. We would be setting up dozens of them in every agency.

Mr. MORRIS. And we are opposed to dictatorships, are we not—you and I?

Mr. CORBETT. We certainly are.

Mr. MORRIS. Then why should we set it up in our own midst?

Mr. CORBETT. The most precious right a man has is his good name. We are threatening it without a right of appeal.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CORBETT. I yield.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. The principle we are following in setting up an independent appeal board is the same as we followed under the Loyalty Procedure Act, and the same as that followed in the civil service?

Mr. CORBETT. That is right, and this amendment in no way endangers the force of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CORBETT] has expired.

Mr. KILDAY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, and I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

Mr. KILDAY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Miller and Holifield amendments.

Thirty years ago I was a civil-service employee. I still hold my reinstatement rights. In those days we did not feel that we had a deed to the job. We did not feel that we owned those jobs, nor did we feel that there existed among the rights of American citizens the right to work for the Government. Of course, that was before this idea came up that everybody had a right to work for the Government. I do not regard it as a right. I regard it as a privilege and a high privilege.

This bill applies only to the very sensitive agencies. It gives the head of a department the power on final hearing to dismiss a person who is regarded as a poor security risk. If he is going to have to go to some other agency and deliver to that agency information with reference to the very delicate subject involved, and if he is going to have to explain to that independent agency the implications which come from that information, how are you going to remove such an employee?

Now, you are talking about an appeal. There is an appeal provided to the head of the agency. That means a man in the Department of the Army could go to the Secretary of the Army, a man in the Navy to the Secretary of the Navy, and in the Air Force to the Secretary of the Air Force, and so on. Do you not regard that as considerable protection? You grant to those officers powers far broader than these. They have today the actual decision for the drafting of men into the service. Of course, it comes in the name of the President when it is invoked, but when the quotas come up they come from these Secretaries. So you are going to say that the man who has the power to say that the sons of American parents shall go into the service, shall go into combat, is not to be trusted in passing upon whether a man is a poor security risk. You have granted him those additional powers, and I do not see why you would hesitate to say that appeal to him is not proper protection.

The gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] stated that at the lower levels they were subjected to vindictive and capricious actions; but when you get to the higher levels, when you get to Washington, when you get all the way up to the top of the department you appeal to a man who has far greater powers than those in the lower levels. He certainly would not act capriciously with the individual involved. Why should you worry about giving him this additional jurisdiction?

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a correction?

Mr. KILDAY. Very briefly.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Article 4 on page 3 contains this clause: "By the agency head or some official designated by him." So the gentleman's argument does not pertain solely to the agency head, for we see that he may delegate his authority.

Mr. KILDAY. Very well. Of course, the agency head has the power to delegate some of his duties and to designate others to act in his place in certain matters.

A great deal has been said in the last few months with reference to the failure of the heads of executive agencies to clean up their agencies. That has been going on now for months; I imagine it has had more headlines than any other one subject in the past few months. Here in this bill we give the agency heads the power and authority to clean up their own departments, yet we find an attempt made to throw a road block in their way. You would make their actions subject to appeal to the Civil Service Commission. You are not going to permit the agency head to clean up his agency and then you are going to criticize him for not doing so.

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield.

Mr. CORBETT. The gentleman calls this reference to the Civil Service Commission a road block. I wonder if the gentleman would tell us what danger he sees in providing the right of appeal or review?

Mr. KILDAY. I want to say that it constitutes a very considerable delay in the operation of the law.

Mr. CORBETT. Oh, no, no.

Mr. KILDAY. I understand your question. The man is suspended, but when the employer starts out to dismiss a man, if you have this provision in the legislation under which he is acting, then he knows that after he has taken that action it is going through the agency concerned, then he is going to have to take all the time necessary to get all the information, confidential information from the department over to the Civil Service Commission in order to sustain his case.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. CHELF. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Texas may proceed for 5 additional minutes. This is a very important matter and all of us want to hear more about this.

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, there have been a number of people heard on both sides of this question. Does the gentleman think that more time ought to be given to the opposition?

Mr. CHELF. I do not think that too much time can be devoted to a matter of this importance. That is my answer.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield.

Mr. KEATING. As I read this amendment, and I shall be very happy to be enlightened if I am wrong, but as I read it and as I understood the gentlewoman from New York, if the Commission disagrees with the agency head and feels that he acted improperly, the Commission has no power even under the Miller amendment—I am not speaking of the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. HOLIFIELD]—under the Miller amendment the Commission has no power to force the agency head to take him back, which I agree is correct and should be; but it does provide simply some review of possible arbitrary action on the part of an agency head.

Does the gentleman see any harm in it if I correctly interpret it?

Mr. KILDAY. I think that the interpretation of the gentleman is correct. Under the Miller amendment it goes back from the Civil Service Commission to the agency head. But what I am trying to make clear is that when you relieve a man on the ground that he is a poor security risk it involves only the very critical functions of government, the very delicate things involved in our Government; and if the man who is charged with the obligation of dismissing a person knows that he has got to go to the Civil Service Commission and take over there all the classified information and submit it to the Civil Service Commission he is going to be reluctant to do it. He is going to find himself in some instances confronted with Executive orders which will prohibit him from taking to the Civil Service Commission the very things upon which he acted in relieving the employee.

Mr. KEATING. As I understand it, the agency head under this amendment would not be required to present any evidence at all. He could and might under certain circumstances feel he should still maintain his position of absolute refusal.

Mr. KILDAY. I do not think the gentleman would put himself in the position of saying that we are going to pass a bill giving a man the right of appeal, then the head of the agency is not going to in good faith submit to the Civil Service Commission the evidence upon which he acted.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I, too, am greatly concerned over this amendment. It was my experience as a member of the Hoover Commission in studying personnel problems in the Federal Government that too often whenever an executive head of one of the agencies or departments endeavored to discharge or get rid of some employee an appeal was taken and immediately it was the departmental head or supervisor who was placed on trial for many months rather than the unsatisfactory employee. We want to protect the decent employee, yes, but also we want to protect these men that we are going to hold responsible in time of war or great danger for the operation of the Federal Government and the security of our Nation in peace.

Mr. KILDAY. I thank the gentleman. There can be no question but when a man in charge of employees now in the Federal Government attempts to eliminate a man, he goes on trial. He is the defendant from then on.

It has been stated this does not involve disloyalty cases. It does involve disloyalty cases. You are going to give the disloyal person the right to appeal under these amendments.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. They have that right now.

Mr. KILDAY. I understand the gentleman is attempting here to draw a distinction between the provisions of loyalty law and this bill, but I do not care how you try to construe it, so long as disloyalty constitutes a poor risk the disloyalty cases can come under this provision. It would be so much more to the benefit of the employee for his superior to proceed under this provision rather than charging him with disloyalty and even though he could proceed under the disloyalty provision he could proceed under this bill. There can be no question about the legal construction of the two laws.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MILLER of California. I would like to call to the gentleman's attention the fact that you have the present loyalty order presently in the Department of Defense, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force and you can proceed against disloyal people under the provisions of that law.

Mr. KILDAY. I do not yield further. I understand all of the loyalty provisions. I submit that legally the disloyal person can be proceeded against under this provision, if adopted. There would be two avenues that the employer could follow. He could take either one of them. It would be far more charitable for him in all but the most flagrant cases to proceed under the provisions of this rather than under the other law and he would do so.

Mr. Chairman, in these times it is ridiculous to find men contend here that poor security risks are entitled to so much consideration.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto close in 10 minutes, the last 5 minutes to be reserved to me.

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Chairman, I object.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes, and that I be given the last 5 minutes.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HUBER. Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HUBER. Is it not a violation of the rules of the House to allocate time so that one Member has more time than another Member?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will advise the gentleman that it is too late to raise that point at this time.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. McCARTHY].

(Mr. MARSHALL, Mr. MILLER of California, and Mr. FURCOLO asked and were given permission to yield the time allotted them to Mr. McCARTHY.)

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. Chairman, there are one or two remarks in the statement by the gentleman from Texas that I think need to be clarified. I believe that he left the impression that there were only a few Federal employees affected by this proposed legislation. The actual number of employees in the agencies involved, included in this bill, amounts to about 800,000 Federal employees. If you eliminate the postal employees this bill will affect directly about three-fourths of all our Federal employees. In effect then it bears upon almost all of the civilian employees of the Federal Government. The gentleman also made the statement which came up in our committee also, namely, that Government employees had no rights in their jobs; that Government employment was a privilege. I think we agree that Government employment is a privilege, but there are certain rights which Government employees do have and which should be recognized. It is very clear to me that no citizen has the right to say, "You must give me a Federal job" when no job exists, but when a man does take a Federal job, when he serves in it faithfully and loyally and over a period of time according to the Civil Service regulations, he does possess certain rights, and I think that the Congress should recognize the existence of those rights as its moral responsibility to sustain them.

I intend to offer, after the vote on this amendment and the substitute, another amendment unless one of these is adopted. It is not my intention in any way to interfere with the security provisions of this bill, but I do believe that we can provide all that is necessary in the way of security and at the same time protect the rights of the Government employees. The effect of my amendment will be this: That if the man is dismissed under the authority of this particular piece of legislation, he can appeal to the Civil Service Commission, the Civil Service Commission will do one of two things: They will examine his case, and they will decide (a) either that this man is unqualified to hold a Government position of any kind, and if so, he will be stricken from the Civil Service register; or (b) if they find that that is not the case, they shall then give that individual preference for reemployment in a nonsensitive agency or department. Thus, if he is fired from the Army because he is a bad security risk, that dismissal will hold. The Civil Service Commission cannot come back to the Army and say, "We do not think this man is a security risk; you have to take him back and reemploy him. The Commission will stand by the decision of the Department of the Army or the Atomic Commission, or whatever other agency rules." But if the Commission finds this man is qualified to hold a civil-service position, he shall be given preference for reemployment in a department or agency which is not listed as sensitive. I think that is the least we can do in the way of insuring the rights of the Federal employees and in the way of preserving the Civil Service System. It has taken 20 or 30 or 40 years to build up this system on a nonpartisan, scientific basis. Unless we take this action, we will have practically destroyed the Civil Service System as it bears upon the employment of about three-fourths of the present civilian employees of the Government. I ask you to keep that in mind as you vote on the Miller and Holifield amendments.

The amendment I propose will do nothing to interfere in any way with the security provisions of this bill, but it will provide some security for the present employees of the Federal Government.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCARTHY. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. KEATING. I should like to get clearly in mind the distinction between the Holifield and the Miller amendments. The gentleman is a member of the committee, and no doubt can clarify this point.

Am I correct, that under the Miller amendment, if the Commission disagrees with the agency head and feels that he acted improperly in discharging the man, the Commission may recommend that he be reinstated, but the agency head is not required to reinstate him?

Mr. McCARTHY. Neither of the two amendments was considered in the committee, as I recall, but that is the interpretation that has been given to the Miller amendment; whereas the Holifield amendment would require the reinstatement of the man in the job from which he was dismissed.

Mr. KEATING. So that is the fundamental distinction between the Miller amendment and the Holifield amendment, as the gentleman understands it?

Mr. McCARTHY. Yes. I propose that a man not be returned to the department from which he was dismissed but be given preference for reemployment in a department or agency which is not listed as sensitive.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. HAGEN].

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Chairman, first of all I want to point out that I am opposing the Holifield amendment because I do not want to set up another board, another commission, another agency. It is estimated that only a few employees a month, on the average, would be affected by this legislation. There may be more later, but not any great number. So I do not think there is a need for this special board. It can be handled by the Civil Service Commission.

If we do not adopt the Miller amendment, which I strongly favor, we are saying just this: In the case of persons accused of disloyalty, you have an appeal to the Loyalty Board, which is a separate agency outside their own agency. But what may happen to a good American citizen, and ofttimes a veteran, he may be a veteran with a family who may be charged with and dismissed for what we call "a bad security risk." It may not be justified at all. Yet you deny him the right of appeal to an impartial board or agency although disloyal persons are given that right. What will this democracy come to if you allow things like that to develop?

I say we must adopt the Miller amendment to give justice to these people who may be improperly or unfairly accused as security risks. So let us adopt the Miller amendment, then pass this bill, which is of course necessary at this time.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS].

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, as a member of the committee I am supporting the Miller amendment and am opposed to the Holifield amendment. I think the gentleman from Minnesota who has just spoken has very well stated my position on the amendments and on the bill.

I support the argument that certain agencies of government ought to have authority to separate immediately from Government service those who are considered poor security risks. But I am opposed, as a matter of principle and deep personal conviction, the prohibition contained in this bill which denies to an individual the right of appeal to a disinterested agency.

It is a mockery to say to a Government employee that he or she is given the right to appeal when that appeal must be made to the agency head or some subordinate within the agency from which the individual was fired.

What is a security risk? There is no definition in this bill. It is asserted by the proponents of this measure that "association" and "indiscretion" may be reasons for the dismissal of employees under the provisions of this proposed act. Those terms are so vague that they can be translated into a thousand different meanings.

To those in Congress who decry against the grasping for power by the bureaucrats, I say to you that when you deny a Government employee the right to an appeal before an impartial body you have placed almost unlimited power in the hands of a few persons and you have made a travesty of protection under civil service.

And, Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask what provision has been made in this measure to apply the security risk test to the heads of these various agencies and their immediate subordinates?

Mr. Chairman, I do not propose to become a party to empire building within agencies; to setting aside civil service, to placing the stigma of a poor security risk and disloyalty upon any person without the right of a genuine appeal.

This bill, without the Miller amendment, is destructive of human rights and liberty. Unless the Miller amendment is adopted I shall find it difficult if not impossible to vote for the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. THORNBERRY].

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, this is one amendment on which I feel very strongly. As a member of the committee which considered this bill, I opposed an amendment similar to the ones offered by the gentlemen from California [Mr. MILLER and Mr. HOLIFIELD]. It was defeated by the committee. We are not concerned in the consideration of this bill with finding a way to make it easy for poor security risks to continue their employment with the Government of the United States. We are concerned in this bill with trying to make it possible for those officials to whom we have entrusted the administration of our important defense agencies during a serious crisis in this Nation's history to eliminate security risks without having to go to the Civil Service Commission and go through a lot of red tape on appeals.

I hesitate to refer to any service I may have rendered, but I observed in my service in the Armed Forces of this country that one of the greatest dangers we faced was poor security risks, against which we had no remedy.

Let us have confidence. We have to trust somebody. Let us trust the Secretary of National Defense and the Secretary of the Army and the Navy and the Air Force, and the head of the Atomic Energy Commission, and at least say to them, "We are taking the chance that you will deal justly with these poor security risks in behalf of the American boys who are now going out to die on foreign soil." Let us not be tying the arms of men behind their backs by trying to make it easy for poor security risks.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. MURRAY] to close debate on the pending amendments.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to both the Holifield and the Miller amendments.

I might say in opening that the Miller amendment was considered by our committee and was rejected by our committee. This is a most serious situation and I insist that these two amendments weaken and impair the bill, and if either amendment is adopted I am going to ask for a roll call vote not only on the amendment, but also on the bill. These amendments are opposed by our defense agency heads from our Secretary of Defense on down. Our country is facing a serious, a most serious, international crisis. Are we going to say to the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Air Force, "Well, it is true that you have given this employee a fair hearing. It is true you have passed carefully upon the charges. It is true that you have found the employee to be a bad security risk, and yet you must go before the Civil Service Commission so that that Commission can substitute its judgment for your judgment as to who is or is not a bad security risk.

Do you not have enough confidence in the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of the Navy and these other defense heads to let them pass finally upon these security risks? Why, since 1942 the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Air Force have had the same power that this bill gives them. They have had the right to remove bad security risks, and the employee has had no right to appeal to any independent board. At this moment, are you going to let an employee who is removed as a bad security risk go to an independent board like the Civil Service Commission and let that independent board reverse the judgment of your Secretary of Defense and say to the Secretary of Defense, "We know you are qualified. We know you heard this case. We know it is a serious situation involving highly classified and secret military information but we say that your judgment is bad and we have decided that you have erred in saying that this man is a bad security risk, and we reverse you, and you must put this employee back doing highly secret defense work even though you have found him to be a bad security risk.

I appeal to you to vote down these amendments.

Mr. DURHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield.

Mr. DURHAM. I call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that everybody seems to be afraid about the operation of this act. Since 1946 we have been operating the Atomic Energy Commission with practically the identical legislation as the gentleman has pointed out, and only two people have been put out because of disloyalty. I see no reason why in the world these people in essential positions should not be removed and be removed without any hearing because if they are not loyal to the Government, they should be put out at once.

I hope the committee will vote down these amendments.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. That is true. The Secretary of the Army and the Navy and the Air Force have had this authority since 1942, and only 375 employees have been removed as bad security risks.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I yield.

Mr. KEATING. I note on pages 53 and 54 of the record that the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans both favor an amendment similar to the Miller amendment. I wonder if the gentleman would care to comment on that?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I will say that the American Legion testified for this bill and did not support the amendment.

Mr. KEATING. They did not say that they were against the amendment, did they?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. This is not an employee bill. This is a bill in the interest of national security and the preservation of our defense. I take my stand with the heads of our defense agencies and I am willing to trust the good judgment of our Secretary of Defense—Navy and Army—and other defense heads about discharging these poor security risks. The ultimate responsibility for the preservation of security is vested in the heads of these defense agencies and their decision with reference to a bad security risk should not be subject to the review by a nonsensitive board like the Civil Service Commission. An independent board is not in a position to pass adequately upon bad security risks in our defense agencies and the final authority should be vested in the heads of our defense agencies to remove employees who are bad security risks.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. HOLIFIELD] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER].

The substitute amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. MILLER of California), there were—ayes 94, noes 94.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered; and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee and Mr. MILLER of California.

The Committee again divided; and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 96, noes 102.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROWN of Ohio: On page 1, line 6, after the word "State", insert the words "Secretary of Commerce"; and on page 2, line 7, after the word "State", insert the words "Department of Commerce."

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I accept the amendment.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I should like to explain, if I may, very briefly what this amendment does.

This amendment simply adds to the list of Government agencies and agency heads who will have the authority under the bill to suspend for security reasons, the Secretary of Commerce and the Department of Commerce. The Secretary of Commerce, Hon. Charles Sawyer, happens to be from Ohio. I have known Charlie Sawyer for many years. He is a great American. He ran into a very difficult and perplexing situation not long ago when he was compelled to take back into his Department a man by the name of William Remington, whom he had suspended originally as the basis of his own studies of Mr. Remington's activities and investigations by the Un-American Activities Committee of the House and a special Senate committee. However, one of the loyalty or appeal boards cleared Remington and ordered him reinstated. New evidence was discovered and presented by the Un-American Activities Committee, and Mr. Sawyer again suspended Mr. Remington. He also suspended a man named Lee, a native-born Russian, I believe. Both men were holding very important positions.

Mr. Sawyer was immediately threatened by suits in court. In fact, I understand the cases were filed. Then suddenly the grand jury in New York indicted Mr. Remington for perjury in denying he had been a Communist and was, therefore, a poor security risk.

The Department of Commerce, I may add, does deal with the allocation of various strategic materials and products and equipment we need in time of war. The gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. MILLER] and myself have consulted with the committee chairman [Mr. MURRAY], who, I am happy to say, has accepted the amendment, so I am offering this amendment on behalf of both the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. MILLER] and myself.

May I conclude by saying I am perfectly willing to trust Charlie Sawyer, a great Democrat and a patriotic American from Ohio, he has served his country in time of war, with the power to discharge employees or to suspend employees in his department. He will not abuse the power granted him.

Mr. CLEVENGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield with pleasure to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. CLEVENGER. I may say to the gentleman from Ohio that the hearings on the Commerce Department disclose that there are 32 of these gentlemen who were certified by the board and who were regarded as security risks. A perusal of the hearings will show that they were put in positions where they are likely to do as little damage as possible, but I do not like that sort of stuff around and so far as I am concerned I am for the gentleman's amendment. It is long past due.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I thank the gentleman for I, too, believe the Secretary of Commerce should have the power to suspend.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. McCARTHY. As a matter of information, and the gentleman may know this, section 3 of the act provides that the President may from time to time if he deems it necessary include certain other departments and agencies.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Yes; but I feel Congress should specifically include the Department of Commerce. I am sure Mr. Sawyer will exercise this authority wisely and will not abuse it. Certainly it is necessary, because the Department of Commerce, after all, is the procurement department for much of our war matériel. I appreciate the gentleman's statement, however.

Mr. JENSEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. JENSEN. Did not our able colleague from New York [Mr. ROONEY] make a statement on the floor of this House to the effect that the Commerce Department was honeycombed with Communists?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I do not remember, but I presume if he felt that way he did make such statement, and evidently, has such information, as the gentleman from Iowa has pointed out.

Mr. JENSEN. I am sure he did make that statement.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the pending amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. LUCAS to the amendment offered by Mr. BROWN of Ohio: After the word "Commerce" in each instance, add the words "Department of Justice."

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Chairman, I think it just as important to include the Department of Justice under this law as to include the Department of Commerce. It was in the Department of Justice that Miss Judith Coplon was working at the time she was disclosing Government secrets. The Department of Justice handles all of our vital secrets when they try people who are charged with subversive activities.

I am perfectly willing to trust J. Howard McGrath with this power, for certainly no one would believe that he would abuse it. I hope the Members will join me in supporting this amendment.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I should be happy to accept the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LUCAS] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BROWN].

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BROWN], as amended.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. McCARTHY: On page 4, line 1, after the words "Provided further", strike out everything up to the word "Provided" in line 5, and insert instead the following: "Any person whose employment is terminated under authority of this act shall have the right to appeal to the Civil Service Commission. Such appeal shall be made in writing within a reasonable time after such termination of employment and may be accompanied by such affidavits as the appellant may desire to submit. The appellant shall be given the opportunity to appear before the Commission, either in person or through a representative, according to the rules and regulations prescribed by the Commission. After investigation and consideration the Commission shall (A) either remove the person from civil-service registers as unqualified for Government employment (B) if its findings do not warrant such action grant to the appellant preference for reemployment in a nonsensitive agency or department."

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that that amendment has already been voted on. That amendment is practically the Miller amendment, which the House rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. McCARTHY] goes to a different part of the bill and affects a different portion of it than the amendment already voted on. The point of order is overruled.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. Chairman, this amendment proposes what I discussed in the 6 minutes given me when the other amendments were before the House. The effect of this amendment will in no way interfere with the security objectives of this legislation. The departments will still retain the same authority that they have in the original bill. The only appeal for a man dismissed as a security risk will be an appeal within the department or agency itself, but after a man is suspended or dismissed by the Department of the Army or the Navy or the Atomic Energy Commission or any other agency, he then appeals to the Civil Service Commission, but not for reinstatement in that department or agency.

The Civil Service Commission will make one of two rulings: They will examine him and decide whether he is qualified for Government employment outside of the sensitive agencies. If they find he is not qualified, they will take him from the Civil Service Register. If they find he is qualified they will give him preference for reemployment in a nonsensitive agency.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, under the gentleman's amendment will the order of the Commission be mandatory?

Mr. McCARTHY. Yes.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Does not the gentleman think that is unconstitutional?

Mr. McCARTHY. I do not think so. We give preference now under Civil Service regulations, and this will provide for the same kind of preference in reemployment.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCARTHY. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Under the gentleman's amendment, when a man is found to be a bad security risk, you are giving priority to him, as I understand, for reemployment in some other agency.

Mr. McCARTHY. If security is not a consideration; that is right.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Are you not in that case rewarding the man for being irresponsible and for being a bad security risk?

Mr. McCARTHY. We are not, because the Civil Service Commission has decided that he is capable and qualified for the job in a nonsensitive agency. He might have been working on a secret airplane engine, so we give him a job in a garage.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Is that not a reward for doing those things?

Mr. McCARTHY. No; it is not. It is just recognition of the people who are qualified under civil service. They have certain rights as far as transfer is concerned in agencies of the Government.

Mr. JENSEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCARTHY. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. JENSEN. Does the gentleman think that a man who drinks to excess and does some other things is qualified to be a member of the Civil Service Commission?

Mr. McCARTHY. The Civil Service Commission will examine the facts of the case; and if they say he drinks to excess, they do not have to qualify him for further employment; but if they find that he does not drink to excess, they can recommend him for employment in a nonsensitive job.

Mr. JENSEN. If a man is a bad security risk in one department of Government, then certainly he must be a bad security risk in any branch of the Government.

Mr. McCARTHY. I think it is clear he might be a bad security risk in connection with secrets applying to a new aircraft engine, but he could fix a Chevrolet truck. That is clear, I think.

Mr. JENSEN. The gentleman knows we are doing our very level best nowadays to clean a bunch of no-goods out of Government, and folks that are subversive and bad security risks, and let us, for heaven's sake, not say to a fellow, "Now, even though you are very bad, we are going to keep you on the payroll of the taxpayers of America."

Mr. McCARTHY. Let me make this point: I asked the Department of the Army this question: "If you have an Army man and a civilian doing the same thing, and you find both of them cannot be trusted, for the same reason, what do you do with the Army man?" They said, "Under certain circumstances, we give him an honorable discharge or transfer him to another job." "What do you do about the civilian?" "Well, under the security proceedings, we fire him as a bad security risk."

So the civilian comes out under a cloud, but the Army man who is transferred from the job for the same reason is given an honorable discharge. I do not think that is fair to the civilian employees of the Federal Government.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCARTHY. I yield to the gentleman from Alabama.

Mr. HOBBS. Has the gentleman given due consideration to the provision of a reasonable time within which the appeal should be taken?

Mr. McCARTHY. I think that would be adequately covered in the proceedings in the case of the original suspension and under the wording of my amendment. I do not think that is particularly pertinent to the problem.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCARTHY. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Is the gentleman intending to say through this amendment that once a man is certified as a permanent civil-service employee he cannot be fired for any reason—that he has a vested right in his job?

Mr. McCARTHY. Not at all. After this man is suspended as a security risk by any agency or department, he is reexamined by the Civil Service Commission.

H. R. 7439 has been presented as a bill to "protect the national security of the United States by permitting the summary suspension of employment of civilian officers and employees of various departments and agencies of the Government, and for other purposes."

To protect the national security is certainly a laudable objective. And if permission for summary suspension of civilian employees in sensitive jobs is necessary to accomplish this objective, then such permission should be granted. It is granted in this measure.

There is another problem involved in the consideration of this bill, namely, the effect of this bill upon those, who are dismissed under its terms, as bad security risks. Unfortunately the Federal employee is not generally in good standing. He has been subjected to widespread attack as generally incompetent and unnecessary, if not worse. There seems to prevail an idea that the Government employee is something which is in miraculous manner created out of nothing, when a Government job exists, or when he is accepted for an existing job; and that when that job no longer exists, or when the employee is removed from it, that he, the Government employee, somehow ceases to exist; that all of his personal needs, that all of his obligations to his family, to his creditors terminate also. That he, somehow, when his file card is removed from the active files goes into a state of suspended animation.

Mr. Chairman, it is not my intention to propose any weakening of the security provisions of this measure, but only to propose that we here proceed with prudence, careful that the methods which we adopt are not to extreme; that the medication we administer is not more potent than is demanded by the disease.

I believe that the bill as written presents a serious threat to the rights of civilian employees of the Federal Government, the great majority of whom are loyal and also good security risks. This was testified to by Capt. A. S. McDill, director of legislation for the United States Navy who testified that during the course of the war, when the Navy employed nearly three-fourths of a million civilian employees, only 244 had been dismissed as bad security risks, and that since the war only nine additional employees had been dismissed. Testimony of the other branches of the armed services showed similarly small numbers of dismissals.

In the committee hearings on this measure it was argued that Government employees have no rights in their jobs. That Government employment is a privilege. That no Government employee has a vested right in his job. This is, I think, a very sweeping, and dangerous charge. I will, of course, agree that no one person has a right to demand a civil-service job of the Government where no job exists, or to demand as his particular right a job which does already exist, unless he qualifies for it under the law. This is a wholly different problem from that affecting the person who already has a Government job, who has performed capably in the discharge of the duties of that job or office. The person who has thus been diligent and capable has a right to security in Federal employment, has a vested interest in the job for which he has qualified.

The philosophy upon which the whole structure of the United States civil-service system has been based is that Federal employment should be lifted above partisan considerations, and founded upon an orderly system, which will insure continued and efficient civil service for the peoples of the United States. For this reason the conduct of the civil-service system has been keyed to qualifications and capabilities of applicants or employees, with due recognition to military service, and with regard to length of actual Government service. When we undermine that system, when we subject the employee to the threat of summary suspension or removal without appeal to an outside authority, or without making adequate provision for his transfer or reemployment, in a nonsensitive job, in my opinion, we do a disservice to the civil-service employee and to the country as well.

The bill provides simply for summary dismissal of security risks. This includes no definition of what constitutes a security risk. I do not think that a practicable definition is possible. I am quite willing to give the men responsible for the conduct of these sensitive departments and agencies authority to determine what is a security risk in their respective branches. Right of appeal is granted within the agency itself. It is difficult to conceive how an outside, impartial board, could decide, for example, what constitutes bad security risk, in the Atomic Energy Commission. But I do believe that in giving them that right, we should, at the same time first realize that the authority which we are granting can be greatly abused, and secondly, that we have a responsibility to the persons who are dismissed under the authority granted in this bill.

What are the dangers? A security risk is one who is suspected of being a bad risk. He might also be one who had subscribed to a certain paper, who attended certain lectures, or even concerts. He could be someone who knows any given person, or who knows someone who knows someone. These may seem to be exaggerations, but certainly all are possible under the absolute discretion which is provided for in this bill. It is with some hesitation that I support a measure which permits any governmental officer to use his absolute discretion, excepting in emergency conditions, when review and reconsideration are impossible. Absolute discretion can too easily become the whim of the official or his subordinates. Historical examples are too numerous to permit us to rest easily at the passage of this bill. The clearest and most pertinent example is, in my opinion, that of the lettre de cachet, originally a sealed warrant, invented in the fifteenth century by Louis XI of France, used simply to dismiss the recipient from the King's favor and to take away from him his office or income. In the early days the letters bore the King's seal and a countersignature by one of the ministers. The countersignature was soon discontinued, and as the procedure became more popular, the King transferred the right to issue such warrants to lesser officials. Soon it became every governmental functionary's duty to rid the country of dangerous men, today we would call them bad security risks. Informers were encouraged, and consequently multiplied. Everywhere there was insecurity and fear. I do not expect this extreme to develop in the United States, but even a limited development of such practice is to be shunned.

The American institutions were founded by men in whom the memory of such abuses as this were living memories. The strength of American democracy rests not alone on the basic substantive rights which it proclaims, but also upon its insistence that procedural rights also be respected and sustained, that due process of law be followed, that fair trial be granted. The dictatorships of our generation give full recognition to the great substantive rights in their constitutional framework. Yet because the procedural rights are made subject to the whim of a police state functionary, acting with absolute discretion these constitutional rights become meaningless.

Let me repeat that I do not assert that these evil effects will necessarily follow, or that those who support this legislation, in any way are lacking in respect for American institutions. It is all important, however, for us to realize that in passing this bill we are opening the way to abuse. And that when it is passed, its administration should be subjected to continuing scrutiny, so that the abuses which are potential in it never do become actual.

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to interrogate the gentleman who has offered the pending amendment. I think it would be a matter of information for us if he would point out in what way his amendment differs from the provision already in the bill on page 4, which reads:

> That the termination of employment herein provided shall not affect the right of such officer or employee to seek or accept employment in any other department or agency of the Government.

Mr. McCARTHY. It does in this respect: It requires the Civil Service Commission to give the man preference for reemployment.

Mr. CORBETT. Preference above any others on the registry list?

Mr. McCARTHY. Yes.

Mr. CORBETT. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. CHELF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, it was my privilege and duty as a member of the Committee on the Judiciary of the House to serve on the subcommittee that investigated the Amerasia case. During that investigation we found that there was a serious, horrible, shocking, even criminal lack of security in some of our governmental agencies, especially the State Department.

During World War II it was found, for instance, that many Federal employees in the Department of State who were holders of a so-called gold badge, were indiscriminately permitted to take out of their offices during the day or night, any amount of secret papers, top-secret documents, and other highly confidential information which, if disclosed, would have been to the detriment of the Nation and was to the detriment of this country by reason of the fact that same was disclosed. Hundreds—gets this now, I repeat—hundreds of these top-secret documents, consisting of military plans, maps, charts, and codes as you know, were recovered in the office of the Amerasia magazine, which was undoubtedly a Communist front here in this country giving aid and comfort to our enemies.

Now, I yield to no man or woman on this floor in my loyalty, devotion, or support of the Federal employees of this Government. I have always tried to keep my feet on the ground, my head clear, and my heart right insofar as their interests are concerned. Nevertheless I simply have to agree at this juncture with my friend from Texas [Mr. KILDAY] when he stated that a job with the Federal Government is not a constitutional right, but rather it is a high privilege.

Let me make it perfectly crystal clear that I am in favor of every man having his day in court. I endorse the right of all men to have a trial by jury—to appeal their case—to have every advantage guaranteed them by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. However, in this particular instance, I feel that the security of this Nation must not be overlooked. During peace or war, as a democracy, we have to delegate certain powers to those selected or elected to administer our laws and operate our democratic form of government. Through necessity therefore we find ourselves having to place a vast amount of faith, trust, and confidence in our national leaders. This bill simply gives the Secretaries of Defense, State, Army, Navy, Air Force, Treasury, Atomic Energy Commission, and others, the right and discretion, when it is deemed necessary in the interest of our national security, to suspend without pay, any civilian Federal employee. Now what is wrong with that? At the present moment the world is literally rocking on the precipice of a horrible conflagration. It is a time that tries men's souls and sends them in quiet prayer to the Almighty for help and guidance.

I can see no reason why we should put the Federal employees of this country in a special class or special category. At the present time there is far too much laxity with our internal security in our various departments of government. It has to stop. I say to you the time has come when we must stop, look, and listen. You know a man is best known by those he lives and works with. Therefore, the Secretary or top chieftain of a given constitutional agency of our Government ought to be in a better position to really know those employed under him far better than anyone else. If an employee is found to be a bad security risk, this bill gives the Secretary of that employee's agency or department, the right to suspend him. If the national security permits, the suspended employee has a right to challenge his suspension. He can show cause why he should be reinstated or restored to duty.

During our investigation of the Amerasia case, our committee found that there was practically no security within the Department of State. I say to you that the lack of security in that Department during World War II did not reek with putrefaction—it just plain stunk. I repeat, the lack of security in the State Department during the last war was worse than pitiful—it was criminal. I say to you quite frankly I think it is high time for us to meet this issue. We should vote down all of these amendments except the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BROWN], which would simply include the Department of Commerce.

Mr. CANFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CHELF. I yield.

Mr. CANFIELD. I wonder if the gentleman would be good enough to tell us who under the bill unamended will be the final arbiter in the Department of State as to the dismissal of these employees?

Mr. CHELF. As I have said, we have to trust our elected or selected administrators of our Government agencies. However, we ought to here and now serve notice upon each and all of them that the Congress not only expects but demands that its will be done and that this and all other laws, especially pertaining to this Nation's security, are strictly enforced to the letter, because at the moment the very lives of our GI's in Korea are at stake.

No honest, loyal, patriotic Federal employee has any need to worry about this legislation. Every conscientious, sincere, loyal employee of our Government should welcome its enactment, just as every God-fearing, law-abiding citizen of this country welcomes laws designed to inflict heavy penalties upon the thug or gangster who would destroy his property, harm his person, or deprive him or his loved ones of their lawful possessions.

I am against the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota.

I say to you that if there are those individuals in this Nation who do not like this country, who think our form of government is not good enough to suit them, that they ought to get out. If, by the same token, we find disloyal persons, either in or out of Government positions, we ought to ship them with a one-way ticket to Russia. I heard a little ditty back in World War I. I was just a kid, about 12 years old. It goes like this:

If you don't like your Uncle Sammy,
Then go back to your home over the sea—
To the land from whence you came, whatever be its name;
But don't be ungrateful to me.

If you don't like the stars in Old Glory;
If you don't like the Red, White, and Blue,
Then don't act like the cur in the story—
Don't bite the hand that's feeding you.

I trust this amendment will be defeated and that the bill will pass. This is a critical hour in our Nation's history. Let us not falter or mince words.

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to turn back the pages of history about 16 or 17 years. The administration in power at that time changed, and up in Minnesota because of that change, and because there was a political difference as far as personnel was concerned in the operations of some of the agencies, we had a number of employees who came to our fair State. Of course, at that time you recall in those years we could always depend upon the States to the south of us to carry the load as far as the Democratic Party was concerned, and we had a number of very fine employees from that area who came up into Minnesota and occupied positions in Minnesota because of the control of the party at that time. I knew one agency head in Minnesota who was firmly convinced, and he was very sincere about it, strange as that may sound now, that the national security of the country was going to be completely undermined by the folks who were coming up from the South. Now, that man was very unfair about that. He did everything he possibly could to make life miserable for the people who came up to occupy those positions.

In all of the debate this afternoon I have been unable to find out just what is meant here by national security. Had it been left to the interpretation of that particular gentleman the head of that agency and that department, he would have certainly sent those folks right back home pronto because they were undermining the national security of the country, according to his view and they had no business being up there—they did not know what our problems were, and so forth.

I would like to ask the chairman of the committee, I admire all of the people I have met here from the southern part of the country and I want to say here and now that the people who came up to occupy those positions did a great thing for us up there to bring about a better and greater understanding of our national problems—those of us who became acquainted with them, like them and I found them to be very fine people.

Mr. Chairman, you are thinking in terms of national security. What would prevent a person from taking that bigoted, shortsighted view as was taken by the gentleman? As far as the employee is concerned, what could he do? He is determined by that department head to be undermining the national security. What can prevent that unfair dismissal?

Mr. MORRIS. If the gentleman will yield, I can answer that. He cannot do anything. Absolutely nothing.

Mr. MARSHALL. That is what I am afraid of. What will that do?

Mr. MORRIS. I will answer that, if the gentleman will yield. That will destroy our liberties in this country, if we continue with that.

Mr. MARSHALL. The gentleman from Oklahoma, whom I admire greatly, has raised another point. We are talking of liberty, and we want the people of the world to understand the great Government that we have. The things that we do like this, which bring about injustice to an individual, will do a great deal of damage. That will be propagandized all over the world.

Now, as far as security is concerned, any employee in the Federal Government who undermines the things that we believe in certainly ought not occupy a Federal position. I am sure we all agree with that. But we want that to be proved. We want that to be a matter of Christian justice. That is what all of us believe in, I am sure. We believe that each person in his or her individual right have the priviledge of proving charges brought against us. Under our law based on Christian justice a person is innocent until proven guilty. Sometimes some of us forget the great principles upon which this country is founded. We cannot combat dictatorships by putting into effect like principles.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. MARSHALL] has expired.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, of course I am opposed to this amendment.

I served for many years on the Committee on Un-American Activities. I was there when we exposed Remington, and it took 2 or 3 years to get rid of him. I am not going to give way to the head of any department, but I am furnishing the information now, and have for the last 12 months, to one of the great agencies of this Government, to check up on the loyalty of those who were brought into question and who need to be checked upon by the various departments. This is a matter that involves the lives of our boys.

Oh, I saw them crowd in, calling them red herrings when we exposed Hiss and Eisler. Some of them almost had fits about those Eislers.

They brought a Negro by the name of Nowell, from Detroit, and put him on the witness stand. They had taken him to Moscow and sent him to a Communist school. It got so bad he turned state's evidence, and I wish you could have heard his testimony. He said, there was a little "cell" of them in every city, and when word came down for the revolution, they were to blow up the light plant and the water works, burn warehouses, blow up bridges, and wreck railroad trains.

When they turned him over to me, I said to him, "Did you see this fellow Eisler who was here this morning?" And he said, "Oh, yes." I thought Eisler had been out in Detroit stirring up trouble. He said, "Oh, yes; he was one of the instructors in that school of communism in Moscow all the time I was there."

Our investigators were on the trail of those atomic bomb spies when they were caught in Canada.

As far as I am concerned, I am for cleaning house and fumigating every department and every agency of this Government. Men in key positions in the Federal Government must be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. We must not let our boys die on foreign soil because of their being betrayed at home.

Let me call your attention to one thing that happened. I was talking to the gentleman from New York [Mr. WADSWORTH] a moment ago, and calling his attention to a thing that came to light a few years ago. The newspapers were full of it at the time.

One hundred and thirty-five years after the Revolutionary War closed, the British Government published a record showing that Bancroft, Benjamin Franklin's secretary all the time he was our representative in Paris, was a British spy. When Franklin would send him over to England to get information, he would take information to our enemy. That article was published in all the leading papers of both England and the United States.

We cannot wait until it is everlastingly too late. I am supporting this bill as written. I will accept the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BROWN], but otherwise I am for the bill as written.

This is my country. We do not know what we are coming to, but we know what the Communists are going to do. We do know that no man should be employed in a key position, or in a responsible position, whose loyalty to this Nation is even questioned. For that reason I hope the bill is passed by a unanimous vote.

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is unfortunate that occasionally the House of Representatives is called upon to legislate in an atmosphere of hysteria. We get into this condition once in a while and we fail sometimes to face the cold, hard facts of what really is before us.

I am for this legislation; I expect to vote for it; I think it is long overdue. It seems to me that we ought to place in the members who head our Cabinet, the Secretaries and others in the security positions, the power to relieve men of employment when their loyalty is in doubt. I am satisfied there are enough good, loyal, red-blooded Americans to fill these posts of trust without taking on someone whose loyalty may be questioned.

Perhaps the chairman can enlighten me on this: When two Members of the other body came back from Europe they reported that in the embassies of the United States there were more than 3,000 foreigners. Undoubtedly many of them are Communist sympathizers. I suppose that comes under the head of the State Department. Can the chairman tell me whether this bill would give the Secretary of State the right to remove foreigners who are now employed in our embassies abroad, to remove them from office if their loyalty or our security is in danger? Or does this bill apply only to employees in the United States?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. I may state to the gentleman from Nebraska that the bill applies to the Department of State and especially includes the Foreign Service of the United States. This bill would clearly give the Secretary of State the right to discharge any bad security risk in the Foreign Service of the State Department.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. I yield.

Mr. KEATING. As I understand, the Secretary of State would have the power now and has had it always whether we pass this bill or not. These people are not covered by civil service, and the Secretary of State at this moment would have that power, in my judgment.

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. I am glad to know that he has. I was disturbed. There probably are some complications that require the employment of individuals of foreign extraction in our embassies abroad, but I think it is necessary that this power extend to the Secretary of State in the foreign field. When they brought back the report that some 3,000 foreigners were employed in our embassies all over the world and some were of doubtful loyalty, some perhaps Communists, it should give us some cause to worry. Certainly, even if it costs us more money, we ought to employ loyal Americans in those positions of trust.

I read from the subcommittee of the other body in their report of June 14, 1950, the following:

> In many instances, aliens have access to classified material and these aliens often have not had a full field investigation. Clearly the alien clerical employees should be eliminated first. Aliens are the most likely means of foreign penetration, and the effort to penetrate our security abroad is constantly growing. The low salaries which the aliens are paid make them a prey to bribery and pressure.
>
> In Germany alone, 10,000 aliens are employed by the United States, of whom 2,000 do clerical work. Out of 1,000 aliens who had so far been screened, 100 had been separated from the service. There are a number of offices in the American headquarters in Berlin where there are no American secretaries at all and where they are urgently needed because of the presence of highly classified material. In the 275 foreign service posts throughout the world, there are only 10 full-time professional security officers. In many instances alien servants and drivers of American officials are not screened. This offers a very dangerous opportunity for espionage.

For this reason I expect to support this legislation. I think it is necessary. It seems to me that it is long overdue.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. I yield.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Do I understand the gentleman to say that these Members of the other body reported that there were 3,000 foreigners on our embassy payrolls?

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. That is correct.

Mr. CRAWFORD. And that some of them are Communists.

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. Some presumably are Communists or Communist sympathizers.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Who had the authority to put them on the payroll?

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. I suppose the Secretary of State, or the employment officers of the State Department; I do not know.

Mr. CRAWFORD. We are in a strange situation if a man has the power to put such help on the payroll but does not have the power to remove them.

Mr. JENSEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. JENSEN. Does not the gentleman think this would be a pretty good time to pass the Mundt-Nixon bill which requires all Communists to register? If there ever were a time when that bill should be passed, in my estimation, it is this very minute. What does the gentleman think?

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska. I am in full sympathy with the purposes of the Mundt-Nixon bill. It is time we branded those who would overthrow our form of government. No longer should we permit known Communists who have been marked for deportation to roam at large and spew their venom of hate for all to see and hear.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the pro forma amendment.

Mr. Chairman, if I understand this last amendment that has been offered, I am opposed to it. I might be in error about it, but I understand that if a person appeals under this amendment and is still found to be a security risk that that person would have a preference in some agency that is not sensitive. I would be against that. I am not for rewarding a person who is a poor security risk. I do not believe in that at all. The only point I make and have made is that a man ought not to be condemned just because he is accused of something. I think that this House just a few minutes ago in voting down the Holifield and Miller amendments did a thing that some day it will regret. It did this in my judgment in a moment of hysteria.

Why, Mr. Chairman, we are presumed to be leaders in this Nation. Our people send us here as leaders. Let us keep our heads cool and our feet on the ground. Let us not lose our bearings. Let us keep our poise. Certainly, we are loyal and we are going to do everything we can to defend our Nation. One of the best ways to defend our Nation is to keep our traditions.

No, I certainly do not want to reward a disloyal person or a poor security risk. If I had the power I would discharge them immediately, of course. So would you. But if someone came to me and said someone else was disloyal, I would give the accused a chance to be heard because I would not know whether that accusation was made in spite or made because of prejudice or because of any number of base motives that some people have. Here is what you are doing by this bill. You are absolutely setting up in this Nation a dictatorship, the very thing that we are opposed to.

Mr. CORBETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CORBETT. I just want to say to the gentleman that in consideration of the lives that have been lost, should we not go back also to the days that Americans lost their lives to prevent bills of attainder and to establish justice in this Nation?

Mr. MORRIS. Yes; we shed much blood in the history of this Nation to prevent just such things. Of course, I do not accuse anyone of a bad motive. I know you are doing what you think and what you believe to be in the spirit of patriotism. You are good Americans, certainly. You have no intention of making an assault upon our traditions, upon our Constitution, or upon our way of life, but just as surely as we are here that is what you are doing.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. HALLECK. To get back to the pending amendment, I want to say that I agree with the gentleman. I am sure the gentleman will agree with me that the first requirement for a person working in the Government, in any department of the Government, is to do his job in a way that will make our Government work.

Mr. MORRIS. Certainly.

Mr. HALLECK. If he does not believe in our kind of government, if he believes in some other kind of government, what sort of a job can he do in a job assigned to him?

Mr. MORRIS. If he does not believe in our Government, he ought not to have any place in it. If he is a bad security risk, he should not have any place in it; but if he is merely accused of something, that is another thing. He might be falsely accused. Every one of you have been falsely accused of something in your lives. You know that. You would no more think of doing this to yourselves than flying. You would not give the Speaker of this House—and we all love him; we know he is an honorable man—the power to discharge you because he thought you were a poor security risk. You would not give that power to any group in this House. Why do you want to give it to somebody else?

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. This amendment now pending before the committee would give to certain employees who have been discharged as bad security risks a preference for employment in a nonsensitive agency.

Mr. MORRIS. Yes. I oppose this amendment because I understand it would do just that.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. MCCARTHY) there were—ayes 21, noes 128.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 2. Nothing herein contained shall impair the powers vested in the Atomic Energy Commission by the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 or the requirements of section 12 of that act that adequate provision be made for administrative review of any determination to dismiss any employee of said Commission.

SEC. 3. The provisions of the act shall apply to such other departments and agencies of the Government as the President may, from time to time, deem necessary in the best interests of national security.

SEC. 4. Section 3 of the act of December 17, 1942 (56 Stat. 1053), and section 104 of the Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, and the Judiciary Appropriation Act, 1949, are hereby repealed.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 5, line 2, strike out "Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, and the Judiciary Appropriation Act, 1949, are hereby repealed" and insert "act of July 20, 1949 (Public Law 179, 81st Cong.), and section 630 of the act of October 29, 1949 (Public Law 434, 81st Cong.), are hereby repealed."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. REDDEN, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H. R. 7439) to protect the national security of the United States by permitting the summary suspension of employment of civilian officers and employees of various departments and agencies of the Government, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 683, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. HAGEN. In its present form, yes, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman qualifies.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. HAGEN moves to recommit the bill to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service with instructions to said committee to report the bill back to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

On page 1, line 3, after "That", insert "(a)."

On page 2, line 25, after "shall", insert a comma and the following: "except as provided in subsection (b)."

One page 4, after line 12, insert the following:

"(b) (1) Any person whose employment is terminated under authority of subsection (a) shall have the right to appeal to the Civil Service Commission from the adverse decision of the agency head concerned. Such appeal shall be made in writing within a reasonable time after such termination of employment and may be accompanied by such affidavits as the appellant may desire to submit. The appellant shall be given the opportunity to appear before the Commission, either in person or through a designated representative, in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Commission. After investigation and consideration of the evidence submitted, the Commission shall (A) submit its findings and recommendations to the agency head concerned, and (B) send copies of such findings and recommendations to the appellant or to his designated representative. If the Commission recommends that the appellant be reinstated and such agency head determines, after consideration of such recommendation, that such reinstatement would be fair and reasonable and not against the public interest, he shall reinstate the appellant and allow him compensation as provided in subsection (a) for all or any part of the period of his suspension and separation from the service.

"(2) The Civil Service Commission shall submit to the President and to the Congress an annual report with respect to the activities of the Commission under this act, and shall include in such report a statement indicating the extent to which the several agency heads have complied with the recommendations of the Commission, submitted pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection, for the reinstatement of dismissed officers and employees."

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion to recommit.

Mr. EBERHARTER. On that, Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 144, nays 193, not voting 93, as follows:

[Roll No. 201]

YEAS—144

Addonizio	Granger	Michener
Allen, Calif.	Green	Miller, Calif.
Aspinall	Gross	Morgan
Bailey	Hagen	Morris
Baring	Hand	Morton
Barrett, Pa.	Hart	Multer
Bates, Mass.	Havenner	Murdock
Beall	Hays, Ohio	Nixon
Biemiller	Heffernan	Noland
Blatnik	Heller	O'Hara, Ill.
Bolling	Herter	O'Neill
Bosone	Heselton	O'Sullivan
Buchanan	Holifield	O'Toole
Buckley, Ill.	Holmes	Patten
Burdick	Horan	Patterson
Burke	Howell	Pfeifer,
Canfield	Huber	Joseph L.
Cannon	Hull	Philbin
Carnahan	Jackson, Wash.	Poulson
Case, N. J.	Jacobs	Powell
Celler	Javits	Price
Chesney	Jenison	Ramsay
Christopher	Jonas	Reed, Ill.
Chudoff	Judd	Rhodes
Clemente	Karst	Ribicoff
Corbett	Karsten	Riehlman
Crook	Kean	Rodino
Crosser	Kearns	Rooney
Davenport	Keating	St. George
Davies, N. Y.	Kee	Sasscer
Dawson	Kelly, N. Y.	Saylor
Delaney	Kilburn	Scott,
Denton	Kirwan	Hugh D., Jr.
Dollinger	Lane	Shelley
Dolliver	Linehan	Sheppard
Donohue	Lovre	Sullivan
Douglas	Lynch	Tauriello
Doyle	McCarthy	Tollefson
Eberharter	McGrath	Trimble
Engle, Calif.	McGuire	Walsh
Feighan	McKinnon	Welch
Fogarty	McSweeney	Wier
Forand	Mack, Ill.	Withrow
Fulton	Madden	Wolverton
Furcolo	Magee	Woodhouse
Garmatz	Mansfield	Yates
Golden	Marcantonio	Young
Gorski	Marsalis	Zablocki
Granahan	Marshall

NAYS—193

Abbitt	Crawford	Jenkins
Abernethy	Cunningham	Jensen
Albert	Curtis	Jones, Ala.
Allen, Ill.	Dague	Jones, Mo.
Andersen,	Davis, Ga.	Jones, N. C.
H. Carl	Davis, Wis.	Kearney
Andresen,	Deane	Kennedy
August H.	DeGraffenried	Kerr
Andrews	D'Ewart	Kilday
Arends	Dondero	Kruse
Auchincloss	Doughton	Kunkel
Barden	Durham	Lanham
Bates, Ky.	Eaton	Larcade
Battle	Elliott	LeCompte
Beckworth	Ellsworth	LeFevre
Bennett, Fla.	Elston	Lichtenwalter
Bennett, Mich.	Fallon	Lind
Bentsen	Fellows	Lucas
Bishop	Fenton	McConnell
Blackney	Fernandez	McCulloch
Bolton, Md.	Fisher	McDonough
Bonner	Ford	McGregor
Boykin	Fugate	Mack, Wash.
Bramblett	Gamble	Macy
Brehm	Gary	Mahon
Brown, Ga.	Goodwin	Martin, Iowa
Brown, Ohio	Gossett	Martin, Mass.
Bryson	Graham	Mason
Burleson	Grant	Merrow
Burnside	Guill	Meyer
Burton	Gwinn	Miles
Byrne, N. Y.	Hale	Miller, Md.
Byrnes, Wis.	Halleck	Miller, Nebr.
Camp	Harden	Mills
Carlyle	Hardy	Moulder
Case, S. Dak.	Harrison	Murphy
Cavalcante	Harvey	Murray, Tenn.
Chatham	Hays, Ark.	Murray, Wis.
Chelf	Hedrick	Nelson
Clevenger	Herlong	Nicholson
Cole, Kans.	Hobbs	Norblad
Cole, N. Y.	Hoeven	Norrell
Cooley	Hoffman, Ill.	O'Brien, Mich.
Cotton	Hoffman, Mich.	O'Hara, Minn.
Coudert	Hope	O'Konski
Cox	James	Pace
Passman	Short	Underwood
Peterson	Sikes	Van Zandt
Phillips, Calif.	Simpson, Ill.	Velde
Poage	Simpson, Pa.	Vorys
Polk	Smith, Kans.	Vursell
Potter	Smith, Va.	Wadsworth
Rains	Smith, Wis.	Wagner
Rankin	Spence	Weichel
Redden	Staggers	Whitaker
Reed, N. Y.	Stanley	Whitten
Richards	Stefan	Whittington
Robeson	Stigler	Widnall
Rogers, Fla.	Stockman	Wigglesworth
Rogers, Mass.	Taber	Williams
Sadlak	Talle	Wilson, Ind.
Scrivner	Taylor	Wilson, Tex.
Scudder	Teague	Wolcott
Secrest	Thomas	Wood
Shafer	Thornberry	Woodruff

NOT VOTING—93

Allen, La.	Hare	Priest
Anderson, Calif.	Harris	Quinn
Angell	Hébert	Rabaut
Barrett, Wyo.	Hill	Rees
Boggs, Del.	Hinshaw	Regan
Boggs, La.	Irving	Rich
Bolton, Ohio	Jackson, Calif.	Rivers
Breen	Jennings	Roosevelt
Brooks	Johnson	Sabath
Buckley, N. Y.	Keefe	Sadowski
Bulwinkle	Kelley, Pa.	Sanborn
Carroll	Keogh	Scott, Hardie
Chiperfield	King	Sims
Colmer	Klein	Smathers
Combs	Latham	Smith, Ohio
Cooper	Lodge	Steed
Davis, Tenn.	Lyle	Sutton
Dingell	McCormack	Tackett
Engel, Mich.	McMillan, S. C.	Thompson
Evins	McMillen, Ill.	Towe
Flood	Mitchell	Vinson
Frazier	Monroney	Walter
Gathings	Morrison	Werdel
Gavin	Norton	Wheeler
Gillette	O'Brien, Ill.	White, Calif.
Gilmer	Patman	White, Idaho
Gordon	Perkins	Wickersham
Gore	Pfeiffer,	Willis
Gregory	William L.	Wilson, Okla.
Hall,	Phillips, Tenn.	Winstead
Edwin Arthur	Pickett
Hall,	Plumley
Leonard W.	Preston

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

Mr. Buckley of New York with Mr. Gavin.
Mr. Walter with Mr. Plumley.
Mr. Carroll with Mr. Rich.
Mr. Keogh with Mr. Jackson of California.
Mr. Mitchell with Mr. William L. Pfeiffer.
Mr. Boggs of Louisiana with Mr. Latham.
Mr. O'Brien of Michigan with Mr. McMillen of Illinois.
Mr. Regan with Mr. Hardie Scott.
Mr. Thompson with Mr. Gillette.
Mr. Roosevelt with Mr. Towe.
Mr. Morrison with Mr. Chiperfield.
Mr. Breen with Mr. Jennings.
Mr. Gilmer with Mr. Hinshaw.
Mr. Gordon with Mr. Anderson of California.
Mr. Irving with Mr. Werdel.
Mr. Hébert with Mr. Engel of Michigan.
Mr. Winstead with Mr. Rees.
Mr. Frazier with Mr. Phillips of Tennessee.
Mr. Willis with Mr. Edwin Arthur Hall.
Mr. Harris with Mrs. Bolton of Ohio.
Mr. Patman with Mr. Hill.
Mr. Wickersham with Mr. Johnson.
Mr. Rabaut with Mr. Barrett of Wyoming.
Mr. Smathers with Mr. Angell.
Mr. Sadowski with Mr. Keefe.
Mr. Dingell with Mr. Leonard W. Hall.
Mr. Priest with Mr. Smith of Ohio.
Mr. Davis of Tennessee with Mr. Sanborn.
Mr. Preston with Mr. Lodge.

Mrs. BOSONE and Messrs. DELANEY, KEE, SASSCER, MULTER, KEAN, and WOLVERTON changed their votes from "nay" to "yea."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. On that, Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 327, nays 14, answered "present" 1, not voting 88, as follows:

[Roll No. 202]

YEAS—327

Abbitt	Dondero	Kruse
Abernethy	Donohue	Kunkel
Addonizio	Doughton	Lane
Albert	Doyle	Lanham
Allen, Calif.	Durham	Larcade
Allen, Ill.	Eaton	LeCompte
Andersen,	Eberharter	LeFevre
H. Carl	Elliott	Lichtenwalter
Andresen,	Ellsworth	Lind
August H.	Elston	Linehan
Andrews	Engle, Calif.	Lodge
Arends	Fallon	Lovre
Aspinall	Feighan	Lucas
Auchincloss	Fellows	Lynch
Bailey	Fenton	McCarthy
Barden	Fernandez	McConnell
Baring	Fisher	McCormack
Barrett, Pa.	Flood	McCulloch
Bates, Ky.	Fogarty	McDonough
Bates, Mass.	Forand	McGrath
Battle	Ford	McGregor
Beall	Fugate	McGuire
Beckworth	Fulton	McKinnon
Bennett, Fla.	Furcolo	McSweeney
Bennett, Mich.	Gamble	Mack, Ill.
Bentsen	Garmatz	Mack, Wash.
Biemiller	Gary	Macy
Bishop	Gathings	Madden
Blackney	Golden	Mahon
Bolling	Goodwin	Mansfield
Bolton, Md.	Gorski	Marsalis
Bonner	Gossett	Marshall
Bosone	Graham	Martin, Iowa
Boykin	Granahan	Martin, Mass.
Bramblett	Granger	Mason
Brehm	Grant	Merrow
Brown, Ga.	Green	Meyer
Brown, Ohio	Guill	Michener
Bryson	Gwinn	Miles
Buchanan	Hale	Miller, Md.
Buckley, Ill.	Halleck	Miller, Nebr.
Burdick	Hand	Mills
Burke	Harden	Morgan
Burleson	Hardy	Morton
Burnside	Harrison	Moulder
Burton	Hart	Multer
Byrne, N. Y.	Harvey	Murdock
Byrnes, Wis.	Hays, Ark.	Murphy
Camp	Hays, Ohio	Murray, Tenn.
Canfield	Hedrick	Murray, Wis.
Cannon	Heffernan	Nelson
Carlyle	Heller	Nicholson
Carnahan	Herlong	Nixon
Case, N. J.	Herter	Noland
Case, S. Dak.	Heselton	Norblad
Cavalcante	Hobbs	Norrell
Celler	Hoeven	O'Hara, Ill.
Chatham	Hoffman, Ill.	O'Hara, Minn.
Chelf	Hoffman, Mich.	O'Konski
Chesney	Holmes	O'Neill
Christopher	Hope	O'Sullivan
Chudoff	Horan	O'Toole
Clemente	Howell	Pace
Clevenger	Hull	Passman
Cole, Kans.	Jackson, Wash.	Patten
Cole, N. Y.	Jacobs	Patterson
Cooley	James	Peterson
Corbett	Javits	Pfeifer,
Cotton	Jenison	Joseph L.
Coudert	Jenkins	Philbin
Cox	Jensen	Phillips, Calif.
Crawford	Jonas	Poage
Crook	Jones, Ala.	Polk
Crosser	Jones, Mo.	Potter
Cunningham	Jones, N. C.	Poulson
Curtis	Judd	Price
Dague	Karst	Rains
Davenport	Karsten	Ramsay
Davies, N. Y.	Kean	Rankin
Davis, Ga.	Kearney	Redden
Davis, Wis.	Kearns	Reed, Ill.
Dawson	Keating	Reed, N. Y.
Deane	Kee	Rees
DeGraffenried	Kelly, N. Y.	Rhodes
Delaney	Kennedy	Ribicoff
Denton	Kerr	Richards
D'Ewart	Kilday	Riehlman
Dollinger	King	Robeson
Dolliver	Kirwan	Rodino

Rogers, Fla.	Staggers	Weichel
Rogers, Mass.	Stanley	Welch
Rooney	Stefan	Whitaker
Sadlak	Stigler	Whitten
St. George	Stockman	Whittington
Sasscer	Sullivan	Widnall
Saylor	Taber	Wier
Scott, Hugh D., Jr.	Talle	Wigglesworth
	Tauriello	Williams
Scrivner	Teague	Wilson, Ind.
Scudder	Thomas	Wilson, Tex.
Secrest	Thornberry	Withrow
Shafer	Tollefson	Wolcott
Sheppard	Trimble	Wolverton
Short	Underwood	Wood
Sikes	Van Zandt	Woodhouse
Simpson, Ill.	Velde	Woodruff
Simpson, Pa.	Vorys	Yates
Smith, Kans.	Vursell	Young
Smith, Va.	Wadsworth	Zablocki
Smith, Wis.	Wagner
Spence	Walter

NAYS—14

Blatnik	Huber	O'Brien, Mich.
Douglas	Magee	Powell
Gross	Marcantonio	Shelley
Havenner	Miller, Calif.	Walsh
Holifield	Morris

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—1

Hagen

NOT VOTING—88

Allen, La.	Hare	Priest
Anderson, Calif.	Harris	Quinn
Angell	Hébert	Rabaut
Barrett, Wyo.	Hill	Regan
Boggs, Del.	Hinshaw	Rich
Boggs, La.	Irving	Rivers
Bolton, Ohio	Jackson, Calif.	Roosevelt
Breen	Jennings	Sabath
Brooks	Johnson	Sadowski
Buckley, N. Y.	Keefe	Sanborn
Bulwinkle	Kelley, Pa.	Scott, Hardie
Carroll	Keogh	Sims
Chiperfield	Kilburn	Smathers
Colmer	Klein	Smith, Ohio
Combs	Latham	Steed
Cooper	Lyle	Sutton
Davis, Tenn.	McMillan, S. C.	Tackett
Dingell	McMillen, Ill.	Taylor
Engel, Mich.	Mitchell	Thompson
Evins	Monroney	Towe
Frazier	Morrison	Vinson
Gavin	Norton	Werdel
Gillette	O'Brien, Ill.	Wheeler
Gilmer	Patman	White, Calif.
Gordon	Perkins	White, Idaho
Gore	Pfeiffer, William L.	Wickersham
Gregory		Willis
Hall, Edwin Arthur	Phillips, Tenn.	Wilson, Okla.
	Pickett	Winstead
Hall, Leonard W.	Plumley
	Preston

So the bill was passed.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

Mr. Buckley of New York with Mr. Rich.
Mr. Carroll with Mr. Gavin.
Mr. Keogh with Mr. Angell.
Mr. Mitchell with Mr. Latham.
Mr. Boggs of Louisiana with Mr. William L. Pfeiffer.
Mr. O'Brien of Michigan with Mr. Engel of Michigan.
Mr. Regan with Mr. Boggs of Delaware.
Mr. Thompson with Mr. Jennings.
Mr. Roosevelt with Mr. Jackson of California.
Mr. Morrison with Mr. Werdel.
Mr. Breen with Mr. Towe.
Mr. Gilmer with Mr. Taylor.
Mr. Gordon with Mr. Smith of Ohio.
Mr. Irving with Mr. Plumley.
Mr. Hébert with Mr. Chiperfield.
Mr. Winstead with Mrs. Bolton of Ohio.
Mr. Willis with Mr. Anderson of California.
Mr. Harris with Mr. McMillen of Illinois.
Mr. Patman with Mr. Gillette.
Mr. Wickersham with Mr. Hardie Scott.
Mr. Rabaut with Mr. Hinshaw.
Mr. Evins with Mr. Leonard W. Hall.
Mr. Wilson of Oklahoma with Mr. Barrett of Wyoming.
Mr. Smathers with Mr. Edwin Arthur Hall.
Mr. Sadowski with Mr. Hill.
Mr. Dingell with Mr. Johnson.
Mr. Priest with Mr. Keefe.
Mr. Davis of Tennessee with Mr. Sanborn.
Mr. Preston with Mr. Phillips of Tennessee.
Mr. Frazier with Mr. Kilburn.

Mr. CELLER changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMITTEE ON MERCHANT MARINE AND FISHERIES

Mr. DELANEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of House Resolution 643.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, acting as a whole or by subcommittee, is authorized and directed (1) to conduct a full and complete investigation to determine the cause or causes of the disastrous explosion which occurred at South Amboy, N. J., on May 19, 1950, and to determine whether negligence was involved on the part of the United States Coast Guard, and (2) on the basis of such investigation, to make such recommendations as it deems advisable for promoting greater safety in the transportation and shipment of high explosives and for preventing similar disasters in the future.

The committee shall report to the House (or to the Clerk of the House if the House is not in session) as soon as practicable during the present Congress the results of its investigation, together with its recommendations.

For the purpose of carrying out this resolution the committee or subcommittee is authorized to sit and act during the present Congress at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, to hold such hearings, and to require, by subpena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents, as it deems necessary. Subpenas may be issued under the signature of the chairman of the committee or any member of the committee designated by him, and may be served by any person designated by such chairman or member.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, may I ask the gentleman from New York if this is not the resolution which provides for the investigation of the tragic explosion at South Amboy, N. J., and which was reported favorably by the entire membership of the Committee on Rules?

Mr. DELANEY. Yes; this is it.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I may say, Mr. Speaker, that the minority members of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries that will have jurisdiction of this matter favor the resolution and the minority members of the Rules Committee favor it. The minority leadership advises me this is a very important matter and there is no objection from this side of the aisle.

Mr. McCORMACK. I may say the same situaton applies on this side of the aisle.

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, may I ask the gentleman from Ohio if the members of the Rules Committee had in mind the reorganization bill passed some time ago, a year or two ago, which provided that we were going to do away with some special committees and not have so many?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. If the gentleman would take the time, I may say to the gentleman from Michigan——

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan. I have been busy watching the Lobby Committee.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. If the gentleman would take the time and trouble to read the resolution he will see that this simply authorizes the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, a standing committee of the House, to conduct this investigation, and it gives to that committee certain subpena powers and authority which there is some question that committee now has. I am sure the gentleman will join with the others on the minority side in supporting this resolution.

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan. I always go along with the minority leadership when I think they are right.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan. I am glad to know that the Rules Committee had in mind that reorganization bill, that is all.

Mr. RODINO. Mr. Speaker, many of us will recall the great disaster which struck the city of South Amboy on May 19, 1950, when a shipment of munitions and dynamite destined for foreign shores exploded.

Together with the undetermined but great damage in terms of dollars, some 31 people were killed and approximately 400 or more were injured in this explosion.

The people of the State of New Jersey were shocked and appalled when they read in the newspapers the reports describing this great disaster. Many demanded to know why greater care had not been exercised; many asked the question, "Who is to blame?"

On June 9, 1950, a resolution was adopted by the board of commissioners of the city of South Amboy, city of Perth Amboy, and other neighboring municipalities, requesting that a congressional inquiry be made to determine the cause and responsibility of this disaster.

That there is both ample precedent and justification for such an investigation is evident to any reasonable human being. Perhaps such an investigation may result in the prevention of similar tragedies in the future; perhaps from such an investigation we may be able to ascertain and employ safer methods for the transportation and shipment of high explosives. But no matter what the inquiry may result in, the public has a right to know what happened—so that the cause and responsibility may be fixed. If there was negligence, if there was a wanton disregard of life and limb—these questions will be resolved once the facts are unearthed.

The editor of the Newark Star-Ledger, one of our leading New Jersey dailies, echoed the sentiments of the people of New Jersey when he wrote in his editorial of June 13, 1950:

New Jersey's congressional delegation will do well to pay heed to South Amboy officials when they ask a congressional investigation to fix the blame for the disastrous munitions explosion of May 19. While it is true that there are plenty of congressional investigations, this would appear to be an instance where yet another is in order.

It is not fair to the Coast Guard that it conduct the only examination into the causes of the disaster. The Coast Guard is charged with powers over the shipment of munitions, so might be forced to report its own mistakes.

The public has a right to an impartial inquiry. If the congressional investigation does not run off into a tangent, it would serve effectively in conducting an independent inquiry.

If the facts show that legislation is needed for better protection against another possible disaster, the congressional investigators would be in a position to make better recommendations.

I share the sentiments above expressed.

It is intended by House Resolution 643 that the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries conduct such an investigation. I am confident that under the competent and able guidance of its distinguished chairman, my colleague, the Honorable EDWARD J. HART, of New Jersey, a complete, fair, impartial and efficient investigation will be made.

I wholeheartedly join in support of House Resolution 643.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. HART. Mr. Speaker, I am exceedingly happy over the passage of House Resolution 643, and especially so that it was accomplished by unanimous consent. Both of my colleagues from New Jersey [Mr. AUCHINCLOSS and Mr. EATON] have been very zealous in their attempts to have something done by the House that would be of aid to the people of South Amboy and its neighboring communities, and which would determine the cause of the catastrophe which took place in South Amboy on May 19, and I have been pleased to cooperate with them to the fullest extent. It seems to me that no argument could be possibly necessary to sustain the resolution calling for an investigation. To state the question is to answer it. South Amboy is an industrial city in the midst of a highly industrial section. Its homes, business establishments, and industrial plants are concentrated within a small area.

It appears that over a long period of time, shipments of high and extremely dangerous explosives in highly excessive quantities have been permitted from that area, in violation of the rules of common sense and contrary to all humane considerations.

This situation resulted in the explosion which shocked the Nation. A peaceful, prosperous, unsuspecting community was turned into a shambles in one dreadful, horrendous minute. More than 30 persons were killed, a much larger number were injured, many critically and severely, and I have seen estimates of the property damage caused running from eight to fifteen million dollars.

New Jersey has too often suffered the loss of many of her citizens and damage to their property as a result of explosions due to similar causes.

The shipments involved here are said to have been made under the authority of the United States Coast Guard. The only investigation into the causes of the disaster and relating to the determination of negligence has been and is being conducted by the Coast Guard itself. The people of South Amboy and their neighbors are skeptical of the impartiality of this investigation. I personally here utter no criticism of the Coast Guard. But the matter ought to be thoroughly and completely investigated. I give assurances that under the authority conferred upon the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, of which I have the honor to be chairman, such an investigation will be conducted, provided that sufficient funds are granted to the committee for that purpose.

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. WILSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary may have until midnight tonight to file a report on the bill H. R. 8883.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Foreign Affairs may have until midnight tonight to file a report on the bill S. 3809.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDER GRANTED

Mr. BIEMILLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 40 minutes on tomorrow, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. KILBURN. Mr. Speaker, due to the confusion in the Chamber during the roll call on the security bill I did not hear my name called, consequently I am recorded as not voting. Had I heard my name called I would have voted "aye."

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. KEOGH (at the request of Mr. MANSFIELD) was given permission to extend his remarks and include several editorials.

Mr. BIEMILLER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a speech by Bishop Schiel, of Chicago.

Mr. MADDEN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a letter.

Mr. McGUIRE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks.

Mr. WITHROW asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a letter from Mr. Lancaster, chairman of the Soil Conservation Bureau of Lafayette County, Wis., and other brief testimonials.

Mr. WOLVERTON asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a portion of the testimony given by J. Edgar Hoover in connection with communism.

Mr. HAYS of Arkansas asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix on the Miller amendment to H. R. 7439.

Mr. BISHOP asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an editorial.

Mr. WOODRUFF asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.

Mr. JENISON asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an address by Mr. REED of Illinois.

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include in one an article.

The SPEAKER. Under previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DONDERO] is recognized for 15 minutes.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Speaker, I have read with great interest the many speeches which have been made on the floor of the Senate and in this House with regard to the present attempt of the Federal Communications Commission to deprive the owner of radio stations WJR of Detroit, WGAR of Cleveland, and KMPC of Los Angeles of the right to continue to operate these valuable properties. I have made a study of these proceedings, and I wholeheartedly agree with the contention of Mr. Hugh Fulton, the chief trial counsel for these stations, and the owner, that the Federal Communications Commission is hoping it will be able to establish a new doctrine of thought control and political censorship, to say nothing of this attempt to abridge the basic right of any American to the free expression of his own personal opinions.

The gentleman who owns a majority stock interest in these three radio stations is Mr. G. A. Richards. Under his direction these stations have become foremost among all radio stations in selling America to Americans. Civic and veteran organizations have honored them numerous times for their patriotic programs. Church groups of all creeds and minority groups have expressed their deep appreciation for the fine cooperation and support they have always received from these three stations. Among them, KMPC of Los Angeles, WJR of Detroit, and WGAR of Cleveland have received every major award for public service to their respective communities, States, and the Nation.

Mr. Richards, through these three stations, pioneered in fighting communism. He saw in communism the antipathy of all that he loved in America—opportunity which made possible his own success, individual freedom, the right to speak one's will, to worship as one chose, to work as one wished, and to be rewarded in accordance with one's industry and initiative. Even before the public recognized this foreign ideology as a threat to their own freedom, he warned against its encroachments.

As might be expected, Mr. Richards and these stations became the target of subversive attacks. These powerful voices of the air were a definite block in many ways to Russia's plans. The familiar technique of dividing and conquering and of trumping up false charges that won Germany for Hitler and has won most of Europe for Stalin began to take shape.

The Radio News Club, of Los Angeles, controlled by three disgruntled former employees of KMPC, one a president of the club, another its publicity director, and the third on the board of directors, wrote to the Federal Communications Commission charging that Mr. Richards was using KMPC to further his own beliefs. As we all know, the Federal Communications Commission controls all radio through its licensing powers.

It therefore followed that stories highly unfavorable to Mr. Richards and KMPC were released to the press. Representatives of Congress were approached for statements condemning the stations. Sponsors were urged to discontinue their advertising. A vicious campaign was started against Mr. Richards personally. By telephone at all times of the night and by mail, the Richards family was threatened. Communist controlled papers carried stories defaming Mr. Richards' character. Even James Roosevelt, writing on the letterhead of the Democratic State Committee of California, requested the Federal Communications Commission to take action against stations WJR and WGAR. As we all know, this particular Mr. Roosevelt is at present attempting to become Governor of the State of California.

Because of the nature of the charges, the Federal Communications Commission sent investigators to all three stations. They made an extensive search of the stations' files and interviewed numerous present and former employees. These investigators found nothing in the actual operations of the stations to justify revoking their licenses. However, the pressure that was being brought to bear forced the Federal Communications Commission to take some sort of action, so their investigators searched the personal files of Mr. Richards and removed private memoranda and letters. On the basis of the personal opinions expressed in these—some of which were actually misinterpreted or distorted in an attempt to smear Mr. Richards—the Commission charged him with slanting the news and ordered a public hearing against Stations KMPC, WJR, and WGAR.

The Federal Communications Commission concluded its case against this radio station KMPC and did not produce one worth-while bit of evidence that any news was ever slanted over this station. At this moment these proceedings have reopened again in Los Angeles and the Federal Communications Commission continues its attempt to revoke the licenses of these stations because of the personal opinions of the majority stockholder owner, Mr. George A. Richards.

It has been approximately 2 years since the Federal Communications Commission filed these charges against these stations. In all of this time these stations have not yet had an opportunity to put the hundreds of witnesses on the witness stand in order to refute the accusations made against them. Still another very serious phase that comes about from this procedure is that other independent radio-station operators are afraid to have any views expressed over their respective stations unless such views favor the administration in power. They watch the progress and the outcome of this case with great interest, as well as all newspaper, radio, and communication desks throughout the Nation.

Mr. Speaker, the time has arrived when all Members of this Congress, Democratic and Republican alike, should watch and double-check this particular case with all possible interest and concern. As mentioned above, newspaper editors, radio station owners, and every communications outlet in the United States of America must be cognizant of the Government's possible encroachment on the rights of the individual. Although the alleged charge against these stations is that the owner slanted the news, the real, factual truth of the matter is that the Federal Communications Commission is attempting to use the owner's personal expressions and writings against him in the hope that he can be given a death sentence in the nonrenewal of his licenses—all this in the face of the fact that these stations have had outstanding public service records for over 20 years, and also in face of the fact that the Federal Communications Commission has failed to produce one worth-while bit of evidence that any newscast has ever been slanted.

One of the very interesting developments in this case is the fact that the Federal Communications Commission has used—as its star witness—a man who goes by the name of Clete Roberts, but whose real name is Cletus E. B. Haase. While on the witness stand he classified all the people of southern Italy as not being worth a tinker's dam. It is understandable why a number of my colleagues here in this House have challenged the conduct of the Federal Communications Commission in this case because they would support this type of a witness. I certainly want the Italian-American people, many of whom reside in my district, to know that I, personally, join 100 percent in condemning the scurrilous and ill-founded remarks made by this man Roberts. I am given to understand that nothing has been done to correct or repudiate the defamatory remarks made by this star witness.

Being from Michigan, I have a great interest in Station WJR in Detroit. I happen to know of its great public service contributions. At this time I desire to draw the attention of this House to the fact that on July 8 out in Los Angeles, the American Legion conferred dual honors upon Mr. G. A. Richards, which honors were awarded him before the assembly of the Legion of Los Angeles County Council. At this time Mr. Richards received a personal citation from Mr. A. D. Guasti, commander of the Los Angeles County Council, and then accepted a public service citation awarded to Station KMPC of Los Angeles from Earl E. Baldwin, Legion vice commander of the State of California. The personal citation to Mr. Richards was awarded "in recognition of his outstanding service, cooperation and courtesy to the American Legion by providing the facilities of radio station KMPC as a public service in the interest of the welfare and security of this community, State, and Nation." The station public service citation was awarded in "appreciation of the station's outstanding support of American Legion patriotic and Americanism programs." In accepting these awards before the assembly, Mr. Richards said:

> I want to express my heartfelt thanks and the appreciation of the entire staff of KMPC for your fine awards. In accepting this high honor from the American Legion, we pledge anew our full support to any and all Americanism projects of the Legion and all other red-blooded veterans' organizations. Now with this new threat to world peace we hope to cement even more closely the patriotic bond between KMPC and the American Legion. All of our facilities are at your service. Please call on us.

Mr. Speaker, these two awards were presented before Legion delegates representing 267 posts numbering 52,000 members, and this marks the seventh time within this past year that Mr. Richards or his stations have been cited for exceptional cooperation in patriotic programs.

I am very proud to also advise that in March 1950 our own Detroit Alger Post of the American Legion awarded station WJR, Detroit, a distinguished service citation and passed a resolution recommending the Richards station for a high national Legion award.

In 1949 the Veterans of Foreign Wars personally presented Mr. Richards with both the highest Michigan distinguished service award and with a national Veterans of Foreign Wars citation in recognition of the commendable patriotic support of his stations.

In July of 1949 the American Legion Detroit Edison Post cited the station for its meritorious work in promoting the National Whopper contest for hospitalized veterans. In June of 1950 the Michigan Department of American Veterans passed a resolution and forwarded a copy of this resolution to Mr. Richards, stating:

> Radio station WJR, cognizant and alert to its responsibilities and privileges as a medium of expression in our democracy, has many times sacrificed commercial accounts to bring public service programs of interest and benefit to World War II veterans.

Mr. Speaker, each one of us should take a personal interest in any attempt on the part of any Government agency to assume powers Congress never intended. These are serious days again from the viewpoint of our national welfare. Freedom of speech, including voices on the air and the press of the country, must be preserved at all hazards. If, as the general counsel for the Federal Communications Commission has said, this agency of our Government has taken no action whatsoever against radio licensees who had shown political bias, what reason is there for this delay in granting the renewal of these licenses in this case. Who is responsible for this? Is it the staff, who is paid by the taxpayers' money, and not the members of the Commission—who are prosecuting this case in this attempt to crucify a really true American?

SENATE ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The SPEAKER announced his signature to enrolled bills and a joint resolution of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 381. An act for the relief of Low Way Hong;

S. 557. An act for the relief of the McCormick Engineering Co. and John E. Price, an individual doing business as the Okeechobee Construction Co.;

S. 587. An act for the relief of Stefania Cuprys;

S. 848. An act for the relief of Lorenzo Buira Sarrate;

S. 1026. An act for the relief of the Dixie Margarine Co., a Tennessee corporation, of Memphis, Tenn.;

S. 1304. An act for the relief of Nicolae G. Caranfil and his family;

S. 1347. An act for the relief of Jose Da Silva;

S. 1869. An act for the relief of Marcantonio Doria d'Angri and his wife, Sonia Stampa Doria d'Angri;

S. 2079. An act for the relief of Mrs. Lydia L. Smith;

S. 2086. An act transferring management of certain public lands from the Agriculture Department to the Fort Sill Indian School in Oklahoma for agriculture uses;

S. 2227. An act to amend the act approved July 18, 1940 (54 Stat. 766; 24 U. S. C., 1946 ed., sec. 193b), entitled "An act relating to the admission to St. Elizabeths Hospital of persons resident or domiciled in the Virgin Islands of the United States," by enlarging the classes of persons admissible into St. Elizabeths Hospital and in other respects;

S. 2231. An act for the relief of Marco Murolo and his wife, Romana Pellis Murolo;

S. 2349. An act for the relief of Ho Paak-Sui;

S. 2462. An act for the relief of Ruzina Skalova;

S. 2575. An act for the relief of Yayoko Kobayashi and June Kobayashi, and for other purposes;

S. 2658. An act to establish rearing ponds and a fish hatchery in the State of Kentucky;

S. 2662. An act for the relief of Evzen Syrovatka and his wife;

S. 2682. An act for the relief of Naum Ionescu and his wife;

S. 2735. An act for the relief of Mrs. Vernon B. Rasmussen;

S. 2745. An act for the relief of Marie De Champourcin;

S. 2795. An act for the relief of Fortunato Giulio Torre;

S. 3007. An act for the relief of Stefanie Pfister and Hildegarde Weber;

S. 3582. An act to authorize revision of the procedures employed in the administration of certain trust funds administered by the Veterans' Administration;

S. 3635. An act to enable the governments of Alaska, of Hawaii, of Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands to authorize public bodies or agencies to undertake slum clearance, urban redevelopment, and low-rent housing activities including the issuance of bonds and other obligations, to amend the low-rent housing enabling statutes for Alaska and Hawaii, and for other purposes;

S. 3876. An act to provide free postage for members of the Armed Forces of the United States in specified areas; and

S. J. Res. 180. Joint resolution to suspend until December 31, 1950, the application of certain Federal laws with respect to attorneys employed by the Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare in connection with the study and investigation ordered by Senate Resolution 140, Eighty-first Congress.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 6 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, July 13, 1950, at 12 o'clock noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

1552. A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting one copy each of certain legislation passed by the Municipal Council of St. Thomas and St. John and by the Municipal Council of St. Croix; to the Committee on Public Lands.

1553. A letter from the Acting Chairman, Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion, transmitting the second report on a suitable plan for the disposition of surplus material from the renovation of the White House pursuant to Public Law 377, Eighty-first Congress; to the Committee on Public Works.

1554. A communication from the President of the United States, transmitting supplemental estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1951 and prior fiscal years in the amount of $77,880,442.50 and public debt authorization in the amount of $25,000,000, together with certain proposed provisions and increases in limitations pertaining to existing appropriations (H. Doc. No. 640); to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. MORGAN: Committee on Foreign Affairs. S. 2080. An act to authorize the regulation of whaling and to give effect to the International Convention for the Regulation of Whaling signed at Washington under date of December 2, 1946, by the United States of America and certain other governments, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2514). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BURLESON: Committee on Foreign Affairs. Senate Joint Resolution 133. Joint resolution authorizing the return to Mexico of the flags, standards, colors, and emblems that were captured by the United States in the Mexican War; without amendment (Rept. No. 2515). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. LANE: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6240. A bill to authorize the appointment of a district judge for the northern and southern districts of Indiana; without amendment (Rept. No. 2516). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BYRNE of New York: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6869. A bill to repeal the prohibition against the filling of the vacancy in the office of district judge for the western district of Pennsylvania; with amendment (Rept. No. 2517). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DENTON: Committee on the Judiciary. House Joint Resolution 402. Joint resolution giving the consent of Congress to an agreement between the State of Missouri and the State of Kansas establishing a boundary between said States; without amendment (Rept. No. 2518). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 648. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, section 705, to protect the badge, medal, emblem, and other insignia of auxiliaries to veterans' organizations, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2519). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. KEATING: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2774. An act to amend section 2113 of title 18 of the United States Code in order to include certain savings and loan associations within its provisions; without amendment (Rept. No. 2520). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. PETERSON: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 4919. A bill to amend the act of December 24, 1942 (56 Stat. 1086; 43 U. S. C., sec. 36b), entitled "An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to acquire lands or interest in lands for the Geological Survey"; with amendment (Rept. No. 2523). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DENTON: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6836. A bill to repeal the prohibition against the filling of a vacancy in the office of district judge for the district of Delaware; with amendment (Rept. No. 2524). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DENTON: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 7009. A bill to repeal the proviso against the filling of the vacancy in the office of district judge for the eastern and western districts of Missouri; with amendment (Rept. No. 2525). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. PETERSON: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 8874. A bill to authorize the sale of lands to the city of Flagstaff, Ariz.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2526). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. PETERSON: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 8887. A bill to declare that the United States holds certain lands for the Seminole Tribe of Florida; without amendment (Rept. No. 2527). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. PETERSON: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 8906. A bill to repeal certain legislation relating to the Gallup-Durango Highway and the Gallup-Window Rock Highway at the Navajo Indian Reservation; without amendment (Rept. No. 2528). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mrs. BOSONE: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 8961. A bill to approve a contract negotiated with the South Cache Water Users' Association, to authorize its execution, and for other purposes; with amendment (Rept. No. 2529). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mrs. BOSONE: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 8962. A bill to approve a contract negotiated with the Ogden River Water Users' Association, to authorize its execution, and for other purposes; with amendment (Rept. No. 2530). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. LANE: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2314. An act to provide for holding a term of the United States District Court for the District of Oregon at Eugene; without amendment (Rept. No. 2531). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BYRNE of New York: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 3775. A bill to provide for an additional district judge for the third division of the District Court for the District of Alaska; with amendment (Rept. No.

2532). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. LANE: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 5137. A bill to provide for the appointment of an additional Federal district judge for the eastern district of Texas; without amendment (Rept. No. 2533). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. BYRNE of New York: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 7570. A bill to provide for the appointment of one additional district judge for the northern district of Ohio; with amendment (Rept. No. 2534). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. RICHARDS: Committee on Foreign Affairs. H. R. 9002. A bill to make certain increases in the annuities of annuitants under the Foreign Service retirement and disability system in view of the increased cost of living; without amendment (Rept. No. 2535). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. RAMSAY: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 9074. A bill to amend chapter 61 (relating to lotteries) of title 18, United States Code, to make clear that such chapter does not apply to nonprofit contests wherein prizes are awarded for the specie, size, weight, or quality of fish caught by the contestant; without amendment (Rept. No. 2536). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. BYRNE of New York: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 7399. A bill to amend title 28, United States Code, section 104, subsections (a) and (b), to create a Greenville division in the northern district of Mississippi, with terms of court to be held at Greenville; with amendment (Rept. No. 2537). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. KEE: Committee on Foreign Affairs. S. 3809. An act to amend the Mutual Defense Assistance Act of 1949; without amendment (Rept. No. 2538). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. HOBBS: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8883. A bill to amend section 17 of the Contract Settlement Act of 1944 so as to authorize the payment of fair compensation to persons contracting to deliver certain strategic or critical minerals or metals in cases of failure to recover reasonable costs, and for other purposes; with amendment (Rept. No. 2539). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 382. An act for the relief of Wong Suey Wing; without amendment (Rept. No. 2497). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 841. An act for the relief of Michele Bartolomeo Marchisio; without amendment (Rept. No. 2498). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FELLOWS: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 976. An act for the relief of Vartan Chamsarian; without amendment (Rept. No. 2499). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 1262. An act for the relief of Juliana Mendiola Alastra; without amendment (Rept. No. 2500). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 1779. An act for the relief of Phil Meyers, also known as Gil Meyers; without amendment (Rept. No. 2501). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2077. An act for the relief of Francisco Gonzalez Perez; without amendment (Rept. No. 2502). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2277. An act for the relief of George A. Voregarethsos (George Spiro Chatmos); without amendment (Rept. No. 2503). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2296. An act for the relief of Maria Cicerelli; without amendment (Rept. No. 2504). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GOSSETT: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2676. An act for the relief of Kimie Yamada Ina and her daughter, Ritsuko Ina; without amendment (Rept. No. 2505). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GOSSETT: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6223. A bill to record the lawful admission to the United States for permanent residence of James Ermini; with amendment (Rept. No. 2506). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTERS: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6386. A bill to legalize the entry of Amos Chen, a native of China; with amendment (Rept. No. 2507). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FELLOWS: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6746. A bill for the relief of Helena Jange Chinn; with amendment (Rept. No. 2508). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GOSSETT: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8093. A bill for the relief of Regolo Gagliacco and his wife, Gina; with amendment (Rept. No. 2509). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FELLOWS: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8740. A bill for the relief of Erika Kuhn; without amendment (Rept. No. 2510). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FEIGHAN: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8780. A bill for the relief of Leila M. Dodd; without amendment (Rept. No. 2511). Referred to the Committee on the Whole House.

Mr. FEIGHAN: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8918. A bill for the relief of Mary Rynik Baran; with amendment (Rept. No. 2512). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FEIGHAN: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8973. A bill for the relief of Archibald Walter Campbell Seymour; without amendment (Rept. No. 2513). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. MORRIS: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 6958. A bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue a patent in fee to Francis Lee Edwards; with amendment (Rept. No. 2521). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. MORRIS: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 7017. A bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue a patent in fee to Edgar S. Bigman; with amendment (Rept. No. 2522). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. CASE of New Jersey:

H. R. 9088. A bill to facilitate the broader distribution of health services, to increase the quantity and improve the quality of health services and facilities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. FURCOLO (by request):

H. R. 9089. A bill to include certain additional veterans' organizations among the organizations whose accredited representatives and claim agents may assist veterans and their dependents under the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940 and the World War Veterans' Act, 1924; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

H. R. 9090. A bill to amend section 200 of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, so as to specify the veterans' organizations which may present claims under laws administered by the Veterans' Administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

H. R. 9091. A bill to amend section 301 of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, so as to specify the veterans' organizations which may act as counsel in the presentation of certain claims, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

H. R. 9092. A bill to include certain additional veterans' organizations among the veterans' organizations which may be recognized by the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. HORAN:

H. R. 9093. A bill to provide for the regulation and control by farmers of their surplus agricultural commodities, to provide for the establishment of farmer-elected control boards, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture.

H. R. 9094. A bill to provide certain benefits for persons who served on the United States revenue cutter Bear during its Arctic rescue cruise in 1897 and 1898; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. ROONEY:

H. R. 9095. A bill to amend the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, to provide increased retirement benefits for immigrant inspectors, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice; to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

By Mr. FALLON:

H. R. 9096. A bill to promote the common defense by authorizing the Secretary of Commerce to undertake the repair of certain reserve status merchant vessels; to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. MULTER:

H. R. 9097. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code with respect to the taxation of certain corporate distributions; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WITHROW:

H. R. 9098. A bill to amend the Railway Labor Act and to authorize agreements providing for union membership and agreements for deductions from the wages of carriers' employees for certain purposes and under certain conditions; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. TEAGUE:

H. R. 9099. A bill to eliminate the requirement that physician's statements submitted to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs be made under oath; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. DOUGHTON:

H. J. Res. 502. Joint resolution to suspend certain import taxes on copper; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 1 of rule XXII, private bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BYRNE of New York:

H. R. 9100. A bill for the relief of Richard Jacob Giragossian; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DONDERO:

H. R. 9101. A bill for the relief of Frank A. Gray; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ENGLE of California:

H. R. 9102. A bill for the relief of Harry Fung Kang; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HAVENNER:

H. R. 9103. A bill for the relief of Mr. and Mrs. Miroslav Kudrat; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. JACKSON of California:

H. R. 9104. A bill with respect to national service life insurance in the case of the late Robert J. Needham; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MACK of Washington:

H. R. 9105. A bill for the relief of Marie Kristine Hansen; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MORTON:

H. R. 9106. A bill for the relief of Shizuko Kanamitsu; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. O'BRIEN of Michigan:

H. R. 9107. A bill for the relief of Ralph Cannavo; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. WOLVERTON:

H. R. 9108. A bill for the relief of Henryk Kramarski; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of rule XXII,

2257. The SPEAKER presented a petition of Capt. C. F. May, president, National Organization Masters, Mates, and Pilots of America, Inc., San Francisco, Calif., requesting that they be placed on record as condemning the unprovoked, unjustified, and reprehensible attack of South Korea by the Communist-led North Korean forces, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

SENATE

THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1950

(Legislative day of Saturday, July 1, 1950)

The Senate met at 12 o'clock meridian, on the expiration of the recess.

The Chaplain, Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Our Father God, without the inner strength which Thou alone canst give we are but fainting and frail human creatures, insufficient for these terrific days. As the chosen servants of the Commonwealth, pushed and pressed by grave questions and vexing problems so vitally affecting national welfare and world concord, we would bow, first of all, at this daily altar dedicated to the far look where before our eyes there tower those lofty and eternal verities that outlast the strident voices of any day. We cannot adequately face a world such as that which we are called to serve and make any humble contribution to the healing of its tangled, tragic state unless our faith in Thy power to make even the wrath of men praise Thee and in the final victory of Thy purpose is kept untarnished. Give to us peace in our time, O God. To our stricken generation may there come peace with honor, with human dignity vindicated and social justice the canopy of all the nations. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

On request of Mr. MAYBANK, and by unanimous consent, the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of Wednesday, July 12, 1950, was dispensed with.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT—APPROVAL OF BILL AND JOINT RESOLUTION

Messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Miller, one of his secretaries, and he announced that on July 12, 1950, the President had approved and signed the following act and joint resolution:

S. 3876. An act to provide free postage for members of the Armed Forces of the United States in specified areas; and

S. J. Res. 160. Joint resolution to suspend until December 31, 1950, the application of certain Federal laws with respect to attorneys employed by the Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare in connection with the study and investigation ordered by Senate Resolution 140, Eighty-first Congress.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

On request of Mr. MAYBANK, and by unanimous consent, Mr. LONG was excused from attendance on the sessions of the Senate for the next several days.

COMMITTEE MEETING DURING SENATE SESSION

On request of Mr. LUCAS, and by unanimous consent, a subcommittee of the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare was authorized to meet this afternoon during the session of the Senate.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. MAYBANK. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hickenlooper	Maybank
Anderson	Hill	Millikin
Brewster	Hoey	Morse
Bricker	Holland	Mundt
Bridges	Humphrey	Murray
Butler	Ives	Myers
Byrd	Jenner	Neely
Capehart	Johnson, Colo.	O'Conor
Chapman	Johnson, Tex.	O'Mahoney
Chavez	Johnston, S. C.	Robertson
Connally	Kem	Russell
Cordon	Kerr	Saltonstall
Donnell	Kilgore	Schoeppel
Douglas	Knowland	Smith, Maine
Dworshak	Langer	Smith, N. J.
Eastland	Leahy	Sparkman
Ecton	Lehman	Stennis
Ellender	Lodge	Taft
Ferguson	Lucas	Thomas, Okla.
Frear	McCarran	Thomas, Utah
Fulbright	McCarthy	Thye
George	McClellan	Tydings
Gillette	McFarland	Watkins
Graham	McKellar	Wherry
Green	McMahon	Wiley
Gurney	Magnuson	Williams
Hayden	Malone	Young
Hendrickson	Martin

Mr. MYERS. I announce that the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BENTON] is absent on public business.

The Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HUNT] and the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. KEFAUVER] are absent on official committee business.

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR], and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER] is necessarily absent.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY], and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The Senator from Vermont [Mr. FLANDERS] is necessarily absent.

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8568) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; that the House receded from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 17, 65, and 66 to the bill, and concurred therein, and that the House receded from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 28 to the bill, and concurred therein with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message also announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 7439) to protect the national security of the United States by permitting the summary suspension of employment of civilian officers and employees of various departments and agencies of the Government, and for other purposes, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

TRANSACTION OF ROUTINE BUSINESS

By unanimous consent, the following routine business was transacted:

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce:

S. 3796. A bill to amend section 4474 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, relating to the use of petroleum as fuel aboard steam vessels; without amendment (Rept. No. 2036); and

H. R. 8617. A bill to amend title 14, United States Code, entitled "Coast Guard"; without amendment (Rept. No. 2037).

By Mr. HAYDEN, from the Committee on Rules and Administration:

H. R. 8958. A bill relating to the policing of the buildings and grounds of the Library of Congress; without amendment (Rept. No. 2038); and

S. Res. 291. Resolution to investigate the causes of gasoline price increases during the past 5 years and whether supplemental antitrust legislation is needed; with amendments (Rept. No. 2039).

By Mr. McCLELLAN, from the Committee on Public Works:

H. R. 5990. A bill to provide for the construction, development, administration, and maintenance of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway in the State of Maryland and its extension into the District of Columbia as a part of the park system of the District of Columbia and its environs by the Secretary of the Interior, and other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2040).

By Mr. DONNELL, from the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. J. Res. 174. Joint resolution granting the consent of Congress to the entry, by the State of Missouri and by the State of Illinois, into a compact or agreement between the State of Missouri and the State of Illinois creating the Bi-State Development Agency and the Bi-State Metropolitan District; with an amendment (Rept. No. 2041).

INVESTIGATION OF RELATIONS WITH INDIANS AND INDIAN TRIBES

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, from the Committee on Rules and Administration, I report favorably with amendments Senate Resolution 292, which was reported from the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs by the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. O'MAHONEY] on June 5, 1950, and I submit a report (No. 2034) thereon. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendments will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 1, line 8, after the word "employ", it is proposed to insert the words "upon a temporary basis," and on page 2, between lines 1 and 2, it is proposed to insert the following new sentence:

The committee shall report to the Senate at the earliest practicable date, but not later than January 31, 1951, the results of its study and investigation and such recommendations for legislation as it may deem desirable.

The amendments were agreed to.

The resolution, as amended, was agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, for the purpose of making a complete study and investigation of the relations of the United States with the Indians and the Indian tribes with a view to recommending legislation thereon, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions, recesses, and adjourned periods of the Senate to employ upon a temporary basis such experts, and such clerical, stenographic, and other assistants, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such correspondence, books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures, as it deems advisable. The committee shall report to the Senate at the earliest practicable date, but not later than January 31, 1951, the results of its study and investigation and such recommendations for legislation as it may deem desirable. The cost of stenographic services to report such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee under this resolution, which shall not exceed $25,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Arizona if the requirements set forth in the resolution are the usual ones provided in similar resolutions?

Mr. HAYDEN. They are.

Mr. WHERRY. Requiring report to the Senate?

Mr. HAYDEN. Yes.

CONTINUATION OF AUTHORITY TO INVESTIGATE OPERATIONS OF THE RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, from the Committee on Rules and Administration I report favorably, with an amendment, Senate Resolution 307, which was reported from the Committee on Banking and Currency by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT] on July 10, 1950, and I submit a report (No. 2035) thereon. I ask for the immediate consideration of the resolution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Committee on Rules and Administration will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 1, line 8, it is proposed to strike out "February 1", and to insert "January 31."

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the authority of the Committee on Banking and Currency, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, under Senate Resolution 219, Eighty-first Congress, agreed to on February 8, 1950 (providing for a study of the operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiaries), as continued by Senate Resolution 279, Eighty-first Congress, agreed to on May 19, 1950, is hereby continued until January 31, 1951, and the limit of expenditures under such resolution is hereby increased by $35,000.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I do not object to the resolution, but I should like to ask the Senator from Arizona whether the committee has already been at work on the study.

Mr. HAYDEN. It has, but the time provided is about up, and the idea is to have the study continued another 6 months.

Mr. WHERRY. I thank the Senator.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PERSONNEL AND FUNDS

Pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, the following reports were received by the Secretary of the Senate:

JUNE 30, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
J. G. Sourwine, professional staff member	$10,846.00	$5,422.98
Maurice W. Covert, professional staff member	10,180.92	4,813.91
J. Carlisle Ruddy, professional staff member	$10,429.78	$4,903.79
Robert B. Young, professional staff member	10,346.83	4,827.73
George S. Green, professional staff member	10,180.92	4,364.61
John H. Mathews, professional staff member	10,180.92	4,364.61
Joseph A. Davis, chief clerk	10,429.78	4,903.79
Wayne H. Smithey (from Mar. 6), assistant chief clerk	9,517.31	2,648.51
Mildred E. Canon, clerical assistant	5,892.43	2,909.98
Miriam O. Fox, clerical assistant	5,892.43	2,909.98
Mary Rogers, clerical assistant	5,892.43	2,909.98
H. Joan Sheaff, clerical assistant	5,805.53	2,540.64
Orrin E. Creesy, clerical assistant	4,675.80	2,337.90
Patience E. McNamee, clerical assistant	5,805.53	2,540.64
Barbara E. Duborg, clerical assistant	5,805.53	2,540.64
Francis C. Rosenberger (to Feb. 14), assistant chief clerk	7,858.27	960.44

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure during 81st Cong	$30,000.00
Amount expended	20,507.43
Balance unexpended	9,492.57

PAT MCCARRAN,
Chairman.

JUNE 30, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

SUBCOMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to February 28, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Richards Arens, staff director	$10,015.02	$1,669.16
Roland Belanger, typist	4,154.38	426.96
Harvey Drury Blair, staff member	7,775.31	1,295.88
William F. Cochran, staff member	1,697.85	282.96
Dorothy A. Davis, stenographer	4,154.38	692.38
Thomas J. Davis, staff member	7,775.31	1,295.88
Otto J. Dekom, investigator	8,190.07	1,288.96
Owen K. Earl, staff member	2,527.14	421.18
Katherine Florence, stenographer	4,154.38	46.15
Ethel L. Johnson, staff member	7,360.55	1,226.74
John A. Loftus, assistant staff director	8,190.07	1,365.00
Stephanie E. Lojweski, stenographer	4,415.10	735.84
Guy M. Massey, staff member	7,360.55	1,226.74
Fannie L. McCracken, stenographer	4,154.38	519.28
Margaret M. Mechling, stenographer	4,154.38	692.38
Fred M. Mesmer, staff member	7,775.31	1,295.88
James C. Messersmith, staff member	7,277.60	909.69
Marion L. Morgan, stenographer	4,154.38	692.38
Mary E. Morrill, stenographer	4,154.38	692.38
Lois C. Odham, stenographer	4,675.80	779.30
Frank W. Schroeder, investigator	7,775.31	1,295.88
Wayne H. Smithey, staff member	5,284.12	880.68
Mary A. Turner, stenographer	4,154.38	692.38
Joseph V. Wilcox, staff member	4,849.61	808.26
Francis L. Williams, staff member	7,277.60	1,212.92
Elizabeth A. Edwards, stenographer	4,154.38	183.96
Mary A. Mathews, stenographer	4,154.38	207.71

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditures (represents balance on Jan. 1, 1950, of appropriation under S. Res. 40, Feb. 28, 1949)	$29,214.74
Amount expended during period Jan. 1 through Feb. 28, 1950	23,039.22
Balance unexpended	6,175.52

PAT MCCARRAN,
Chairman.

JUNE 30, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY
SUBCOMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from March 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Richard Arens, staff director	$10,846.00	$3,407.57
Roland Belanger, typist	4,154.38	346.19
Harvey Drury Blair, staff member	8,024.17	2,612.50
William F. Cochran, staff member	1,697.85	565.92
Dorothy A. Davis, stenographer	5,023.41	1,544.10
Thomas J. Davis, staff member	7,775.31	1,295.88
Otto J. Dekom, investigator	8,190.07	1,023.75
Owen K. Earl, staff member	3,285.36	1,002.95
Ethel L. Johnson, staff member	7,609.41	2,474.22
Stephanie E. Lojewski, stenographer	4,415.10	183.96
Guy M. Massey, staff member	8,024.17	2,508.79
Margaret M. Mechling, stenographer	5,023.41	1,544.10
Fred M. Mesmer, staff member	8,024.17	2,612.50
Lois C. Odham, stenographer	4,675.80	194.82
Frank W. Schroeder, investigator	8,024.17	2,612.50
Wayne H. Smithey, staff member	5,284.12	73.79
Mary A. Turner, stenographer	5,023.41	1,544.10
Joseph V. Wilcox, staff member	4,849.61	296.35
Francis L. Williamson, staff member	7,277.60	161.72

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure (S. Res. 228, Feb. 27, 1950)	$80,000.00
Amount expended	26,559.61
Balance unexpended	53,441.39

PAT MCCARRAN,
Chairman.

JULY 12, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON POST OFFICE AND CIVIL SERVICE

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Bobo, Virginia, assistant chief clerk	$4,849.61	$2,424.80
Brawley, H. W., assistant staff director	10,846.00	5,423.00
Chrissos, Costas D., clerical assistant	4,415.10	2,207.50
Faucette, Andy, staff member	10,846.00	5,423.00
Homan, Colette, clerical assistant	4,415.10	2,207.50
House, Mrs. Linda, clerical assistant	3,980.59	1,990.29
Irwin, Mary, staff member	10,846.00	5,423.00
Latimer, J. Austin, staff director	10,846.00	5,423.00
Morgan, Ethel, clerical assistant	3,980.59	1,990.29
Shawn, E. Luise, clerical assistant	3,980.59	1,990.29

MISCELLANEOUS

Unexpended balance (S. Res. 179 as of Jan. 1, 1950)	$2,493.05
Additional authorization (S. Res. 275)	3,000.00
Total	5,493.05
Amount expended Jan. 1 to June 30, 1950	2,207.52
Balance unexpended	3,285.53
Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure (S. Res. 167)	12,718.60
Amount expended Jan. 1 to June 30, 1950	2,395.03
Balance unexpended	10,323.57

OLIN D. JOHNSTON,
Chairman.

JULY 1, 1950.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE ON SMALL BUSINESS, UNITED STATES SENATE

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from June 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Charles E. Shaver, general counsel	$10,846.00	$451.91
Minna L. Ruppert, chief clerk	8,853.69	737.80
Sarah Anne Johnson, clerical assistant	4,067.49	338.95
Minne Moultrie, clerical assistant	4,067.49	248.56

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure under S. Res. 272 agreed to May 26, 1950	$10,000.00
Amount expended	1,777.22
Balance unexpended	8,222.78

JOHN SPARKMAN,
Chairman.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Bills were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred as follows:

By Mr. LANGER:

S. 3911. A bill to provide for the pooling of unused immigration quotas;

S. 3912. A bill for the relief of Eugene Rivoche and Marie Barsky; and

S. 3913. A bill for the relief of Elizabeth Brandner; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. GURNEY:

S. 3914. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Chang-Sei Kim, David Kim, and Arthur Kim; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. TYDINGS:

S. 3915. A bill to provide for the dissolution of the War Contracts Price Adjustment Board, for the transfer of its functions, to otherwise amend the Renegotiation Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. CAPEHART:

S. 3916. A bill for the relief of Teh-Jen Lee; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MCCARRAN:

S. 3917. A bill for the relief of Basilio Gorgone; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS—AMENDMENTS

Mr. MAGNUSON submitted amendments intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, which were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. MAGNUSON (for himself, Mr. TYDINGS, Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, Mr. MCFARLAND, Mr. BREWSTER, Mr. O'CONOR, Mr. MORSE, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. TAYLOR, Mr. DOWNEY, Mr. MURRAY, Mr. GILLETTE, Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, Mr. CAIN, Mr. LEHMAN, Mr. SPARKMAN, Mr. KILGORE, Mr. IVES, Mr. MYERS, Mrs. SMITH of Maine, Mr. HENDRICKSON, Mr. HILL, Mr. LONG, Mr. MCMAHON, and Mr. SALTONSTALL) submitted amendments intended to be proposed by them, jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. MAGNUSON (for himself and Mr. BREWSTER) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them, jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. LEHMAN (for himself, Mr. GILLETTE, and Mr. HUMPHREY) submitted amendments intended to be proposed by them, jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. WATKINS (for himself and Mr. KERR) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them, jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

AMENDMENT OF FEDERAL-AID ROAD ACT—AMENDMENT

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 7941) to amend and supplement the Federal-Aid Road Act approved July 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 355), as amended and supplemented, to authorize appropriations for continuing the construction of highways, and for other purposes, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED

The bill (H. R. 7439) to protect the national security of the United States by permitting the summary suspension of employment of civilian officers and employees of various departments and agencies of the Government, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Armed Services.

THE BRITISH GOLD AND DOLLAR POSITION

[Mr. TAFT asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD a statement relating to the improvement in Great Britain's gold and dollar position issued by the British Information Services, which appears in the Appendix.]

THE TIDELANDS OIL CASE—ARTICLE FROM THE LEWISTOWN (MONT.) DAILY NEWS

[Mr. MURRAY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article relating to the Tidelands Oil Case, published in the Lewistown (Mont.) Daily News of February 21, 1950, which appears in the Appendix.]

STATEHOOD FOR DEFENSE?—EDITORIAL FROM THE JUNEAU (ALASKA) DAILY ALASKA EMPIRE

[Mr. BUTLER asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an editorial entitled "Statehood for Defense?" published in the Daily Alaska Empire, of Juneau, Alaska, on July 3, 1950, which appears in the Appendix.]

DEFICIT DIPLOMACY—ARTICLE BY WALTER LIPPMANN

[Mr. THYE asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled "Deficit Diplomacy," written by Walter Lippmann, and published in the Washington Post of July 13, 1950, which appears in the Appendix.]

THE KOREAN SITUATION HELPS SENATOR LUCAS—ARTICLE FROM THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

[Mr. MYERS asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled "The Korean Situation Helps Senator

LUCAS," written by Raymond P. Brandt, and published in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which appears in the Appendix.]

THE KOREAN SITUATION—ARTICLES BY CARL W. McCARDLE

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. President, I have had called to my attention a series of important articles on the Korean situation written by Mr. Carl W. McCardle, chief Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. Mr. McCardle accompanied Mr. John Foster Dulles, adviser to the State Department, on his recent trip to Korea and Japan, and, therefore, he was in the Far East just at the moment of the outbreak of the Korean war.

Mr. McCardle in his articles speaks as a first-hand observer, and I feel that his observations are of major importance to us all in our study of the present crisis.

This matter is of such importance that I ask unanimous consent that there be incorporated in connection with my remarks in the body of the RECORD Mr. McCardle's first article, and excerpts from all of his succeeding articles, date by date, which, taken as a whole, make a most valuable contribution to our knowledge of pending events.

There being no objection, the articles and excerpts were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE KOREAN SITUATION

(This is the first of a series of articles on the Korean situation by Carl W. McCardle, chief Washington correspondent of the Bulletin, who accompanied John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department, on his just-completed trip to Korea and Japan. Mr. McCardle was interviewing Gen. Douglas MacArthur when word reached Tokyo of the Communist attack on South Korea.)

(By Carl W. McCardle)

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Only a few nights before the Communist invaders struck from the north, the scene at Chang Duk Palace, in Seoul, the capital city of the new Republic of South Korea, had seldom been as gay, even in the fabulous days of the dynasty.

The occasion was a dinner given by the Foreign Minister of South Korea in honor of John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department, who had helped bring about the independence of the country through the United Nations and had now assured the South Koreans that in trouble they would not stand alone.

The guests, notables in the government, diplomats, and ranking military men, sat at a horseshoe-shaped table under the oriental lights of the throne room, looking out over the spacious gardens. When the coffee was served, dancing girls appeared in the center space in front of the table, as in the old court days. They bowed low, eased out of their slippers, and performed the stark, classical dances of old Korea.

The happy mood of the diners darkened a little as one of the girls, in flowing black, executed an ancient funeral dance while beating a mournful dirge on a primitive drum. But the cloud passed, and the gaiety returned when, right after a "rain dance" for the parched rice fields, there was a heavy downpour of rain, and Foreign Minister Ben Limb led the singing of an old Korean folk song. The soaring price of rice, then the people's main worry, would go down next day.

It was all, somehow, out of Kipling's and Maugham's East, and in the afternoons there were garden parties, full of diplomatic small talk, in the shadow of the peaked hills beyond which lay the thirty-eighth parallel, the invisible line dividing Russian-dominated North Korea from South Korea.

All was quiet on the thirty-eighth parallel, the daily raids of small or large groups of Communists becoming commonplace. The American military advisers were sure that the South Korean army of 96,000—8 divisions—which they had trained, could handle any Communist attack, despite the fact the Communists had more men and had at least 100 Yak and Stormovik planes, 100 Russian tanks, and heavy artillery, while the South Koreans, inexperienced in battle, had none of those weapons.

VETERANS INCLUDED

The Northern forces were known to include at least two Korean regiments which had fought with the Russians at Stalingrad, and perhaps division of Chinese Communist veterans.

The Americans could hear Russians giving orders in Russian to the North Korean soldiers at the battalion command post and then hear their orders translated into Korean at the firing center. But this was interpreted as meaning that the North Koreans were not as well trained as the South Koreans.

At the front, however, Korean farmers nonchalantly ploughed fields with oxen next to mine fields, and singing women, sitting on the ground next a machine gun nest, winnowed wheat by hand, as it was done centuries ago.

By daytime our diplomatic and economic mission occupied itself with what was considered South Korea's principal problem—its seeming Alice-in-Wonderland economy. The United States mission was pleased that it had at last achieved a balanced budget, at least on paper. To do this there had been difficulties with Syngman Rhee, the venerable President of South Korea. The old man appeared to have one obsession. That was with the Communist threat from the North. He wanted to spend more money on defense and sometimes he did not bother to wait for the National Assembly to approve it—giving rise to cries he was a dictator.

High-powered visitors from the State Department in Washington had lectured him on all this and threatened the end of American aid.

One who was in Seoul just before the Communist invasion of South Korea and was in Tokyo when it happened can appreciate what a miracle it was that General of the Army Douglas MacArthur was able to recover the ball—even though it was on our 1-yard line.

There had been many fumbles on our side.

COMPLACENCE APPARENT

In Seoul there was a fixed idea of complacence about the military menace of the Communists. But there were lately some ominous signals. Intelligence reports came in telling of large concentrations of troops and tanks in North Korea 2 weeks before the bloody Sunday assault.

These reports were not appraised too seriously, apparently, because in the past year there were more than 600 "incidents" of Communists crossing the thirty-eighth parallel, and in some cases 5,000 Communists had participated and penetrated as far as 20 miles inland before being thrown back.

Another circumstance that was apparently not evaluated seriously enough was the calling back to Moscow of a number of Russian far-eastern experts, notably the Soviet member of the Allied Council in Tokyo.

In any event, Col. Sterling Wright acting commander of the American military advisory group of 500 in South Korea, said our Korean intelligence was so good that we knew 24 hours in advance every move the North Koreans had in mind. Once, he said, some 600 Communists came over and we knew well ahead of time precisely where they would be and the South Koreans had lain in wait for them and caught the lot and broadcast back to the Northerners to send more.

ROBERTS IN TOKYO

On the Thursday before the Sunday invasion, Gen. William Roberts, who had commanded the American military group in Seoul, was in Tokyo on his way home and was received by General MacArthur. He told General MacArthur that it was very unlikely that there would be any attack on South Korea. And on the tragic Sunday, Colonel Wright himself was in Tokyo seeing his wife off for the United States.

When the news from Seoul of the Communist invasion was flashing over the news service wires in Tokyo, General MacArthur was having a talk with this correspondent in his office in Tokyo's handsome Dai Ichi Building, headquarters of the Supreme Command for the Allied Powers. General MacArthur was talking colorfully and confidently of the prospects for peace, holding the plausible belief that war was now an outmoded method of settling international disputes.

The Russians knew it as well as we did, he felt sure, though he realized that some trigger incident could set off a clash and he warned—as he has again and again—that we must keep prepared, especially in the Far East.

FIRST WORD ARRIVES

Then came the official word that the Russians had finally taken the great tumble of overt aggression in Korea, despatching their Communist puppets across the thirty-eighth parallel.

In line with the general unconcern over the Korean situation, the news was not immediately reported to General MacArthur.

When the word finally was relayed to the general he calmly strode over to his wall map and studied the details of troop displacements in South Korea, the entrance corridors and points where counteraction might be taken.

Aides brought in more bulletins. He read each carefully, and referred again to the map. He was all for the United States taking action of some sort to help the South Koreans repulse the Communists.

As he talked he would rattle a box of matches, then throw the box down on a table in a quick gesture of emphasis.

Whatever the American military point of view had been about Korea, MacArthur knew, as did other old hands in far eastern matters, that the valley leading down from the thirty-eighth parallel was the traditional corridor of invasion by the Mongols and the Great Khan, and that South Korea had better ports to offer a conqueror than Port Arthur, which Russia got in one of the Yalta deals. And, moreover, as the Japanese used to say, Korea is like a dagger aimed at the heart of Japan.

BLOW MISCALCULATED

Besides miscalculating the need in South Korea, many of the experts misinterpreted the nature of the blow.

Throughout the first day in Tokyo it was regarded in some of the upper echelons as merely a raid in strength. The North Koreans were expected to withdraw as soon as they met some real resistance as they had done before.

On the second day it was recognized as more than a border raid and as a genuine invasion, but it was felt to be a kind of amateur-hour performance, indicating that the Russians were not actually involved as they would do the job so much better.

And then on the third day when the Communist invaders were at the gates of Seoul, the southern defenders having gone down in panic before the northerners' tanks, a certain feeling of hopelessness ensued in some American quarters of Tokyo.

Colonel Wright had said Korea was not tank terrain and that he expected to halt whatever tanks came through with mines. Generally the mines hadn't been planted, but he expected to have enough warning to be able to get them down.

FEARS EXPRESSED

The opinion was expressed that since the Koreans presumably had lost the will to fight, there was little or nothing that the United States could do, and the impression grew that South Korea was to be written off.

That impression still prevailed at the time General MacArthur got on the radio teleprinter hook-up to talk with the Defense Department in Washington. It was Tuesday afternoon in Tokyo, Monday night in Washington.

As soon as he had heard officially of the Communist invasion General MacArthur said he hoped that the American people would rise up to meet this new very real challenge in the world struggle. If we didn't, he believed there would be another and another aggressive act by the Russians.

Out of his fighting heart he was ready to go to any lengths. With the Air Force at his disposal he felt then that he could quickly end the North Korean advance. (The Air Force in Japan, Okinawa, and the Philippines had been on the alert for 3 weeks, and it was sure, after analyzing the early reports from Seoul, that it could halt the Communists and the Russians wouldn't come in.) Even though Korea was out of his domain, MacArthur ordered two LST's filled with ammunition to set off immediately for South Korea without waiting for the approval from Washington.

MEETS DULLES

On Sunday afternoon he met with Dulles, who had come from Korea to talk with MacArthur about a Japan peace treaty.

Dulles was very gloomy. He had just written a cable to the Secretary of State, Acheson, saying that if the South Koreans could repulse the invasion by themselves that would be the best way. But if they couldn't, he said, then the United States should furnish military power to South Korea even though this might risk an adverse reaction on the part of Russia.

If the United States didn't do anything about it and sat idly by, Dulles advised Acheson, then the Russians would attempt the same thing in other countries, and a third world war would be inevitable. Whatever was done by us, Dulles said, should be done under the auspices of the United Nations.

MacArthur heartily endorsed the Dulles cable, though it is reported it was held up for a couple of hours before being sent by someone down the line who apparently feared it might be too strong stuff.

General MacArthur right away wished that Korea was under his command, and he wanted to take a trip over at once to see for himself what the situation was—which he later did.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE

On the next morning, with the news from Seoul appearing hopeless, Dulles talked again with MacArthur—the third time in two days—and then with Washington. Dulles was advised to leave that day on schedule for Washington. General MasArthur saw him off at the airport and went immediately to get on the radio teleprinter hook-up with Washington.

In the momentous conference that President Truman held with his defense chiefs and Secretary Acheson, General MrcArthur, a happy warrior at 70, the fighting idol of the Pacific, was sent back into action—to help drive the enemy out of South Korea. And the decision of President Truman, a courageous decision, to give the South Koreans American military help, was taken on the initiative of Acheson.

American planes were soon on their way to Korea, and all this was a far cry from the attitude that had prevailed in Washington regarding South Korea only a short time before.

EARLIER ATTITUDE

About six weeks ago the American Ambassador to South Korea, John J. Muccio, came here for consultation. With a State Department official he went over to the Pentagon to confer with American military officials. He advised them that South Korea had to have planes and tanks and heavy artillery if it were to defend itself. The attitude of the military was then that South Korea was of little strategic value to us and was practically indefensible.

The State Department's view was that while South Korea was of little importance to us strategically it was important for our prestige in the Far East, which was at a low ebb everywhere, and for that reason it should be supported.

So it is a miracle that General MacArthur has the ball in Korea and perhaps it will be an even greater miracle if he carries it all the way back to the thirty-eighth parallel. But miracles are what are expected of Douglas MacArthur, the man who came back to Bataan in World War II.

EXCERPTS FROM SUCCEEDING ARTICLES

WASHINGTON, July 6.—This correspondent, privileged to get in to see Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Tokyo, found him at 70 still full of the drama of exciting events and with all the headlong zeal, spirit, and glamor of a cavalry dash at dawn.

He symbolizes now the defense of South Korea against what he calls an act of international banditry as he once immortalized the defense of Bataan. He sees it all as part of a bigger operation, the saving of the Far East and ultimately, perhaps, the United States itself.

He thunders out his denunciation of the "asses" back home in the United States who say the United States cannot defend and look after its interests in the Far East at the same time that it defends and looks after its interests in Europe. It's the most shameful kind of defeatism he knows. Russia is looking out for itself on two fronts—and what kind of cowardice is it that says the United States can't do it if Russia can. The MacArthur verdict is that the authors of such defeatism don't know the facts about the Far East and don't want to learn. They are trying to exercise a kind of thought-control over the United States.

The Far East is America's new frontier in his view. Before World War II all the United States had in the Pacific, he reminds you, was a sissy-like string of salients from Hawaii to the Philippines, and he learned all too well how much they were worth in the emergency of a quick war.

Now the victory that the United States achieved in the Pacific in World War II provides this country with a golden opportunity. It makes the whole Pacific a moat for the United States, an inland lake for the United States. And it gives the United States a series of lateral islands which offer a sturdy defense line and which can be fortified at such low cost as to make them the cheapest defenses in the world.

DEFENSE CHEAP

It wouldn't, for instance, cost much to defend Formosa. They say it isn't strategically essential. But Formosa has 19 airfields on it, and submarine bases, and if the enemy held it, the enemy could get to Japan or to Clark Field in the Philippines just about 100 percent faster than the enemy could now.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Syngman Rhee, the doughty 75-year-old President of South Korea, has had to flee his palace in Seoul and hide in ditches along the narrow rocky roads to escape strafing by Russian planes.

He knew it might happen that way.

In a long talk with this correspondent on a bright and peaceful afternoon in his garden just 5 days before the Communist attack on his country, the venerable old man kept emphasizing one theme: When would the United States realize the true danger of Soviet communism in the Far East.

The United States had been preaching internal reforms in the Far East, and belaboring the point in South Korea, as if that were enough to deal with the external threat of Soviet communism, as if that were enough to knock out an enemy tank or down an enemy plane.

Rhee, wearing a white linen suit, white shirt, and blue polkadot tie, was out in the garden. He is a small man, but vigorous, and his weather-beaten face betrays an indomitable will.

He talked mostly of the Communist menace and its true nature. No people can escape the harsh choice, he said, between communism and democracy. "We refuse to make any concessions to the Communists," he said. "Anyone who advises us to compromise with them is not a friend of our independent Republic or of the Korean people."

Then he said that Gen. John R. Hodge, the first American commanding officer in South Korea after the war, who tried to negotiate a unified Korea with the Russians, had, upon instructions from the United States, asked him to take Communists into a coalition government—as had been proposed to Chiang Kai-shek in China.

REDS SCARED OF MASTERS

President Rhee said he told General Hodge that it wouldn't work, but that he agreed to try. The Communists themselves, however, got scared of their masters and refused, Rhee added.

"If we should lose the cold war by default, we will regain our free world in the end by a hot war regardless of cost—of that I am sure," Rhee said. "Since we realize the evil nature of Communist expansion, why should we allow the cancer to spread so wide and deep that nothing short of another global operation at enormous cost to the civilized world can defeat it? Why do we not operate while the malignant disease is still in its early stages?"

President Rhee took a sip of tea and asked what had happened to the $10,000,000 arms aid the American Congress had voted for Korea nearly a year before. He asked why South Korea shouldn't have 40 American fighter planes in Japan he said were obsolete.

Rhee said: "We took up a collection, our little people did, and raised enough money to buy the trainer planes. That is all—and we have no machine guns for them." That was all the air force the South Koreans had, besides some 15 puddle-jumping liaison planes, also unarmed.

While Rhee was talking the South Korean acting prime minister and defense minister, Sihn Sung-mo, a former commander in the British Navy, joined us. He made a plea for American planes and armament and said that the United States at least should sell the materials to Korea at reduced cost.

When the possibility of the United States getting involved with Russia over Korea, was mentioned, Sihn Sung-mo smiled patiently and said: "Well, if it happens that way, it will mean that you would get involved anyway and you might as well get involved when the advantage is on your side. Remember that you waited in the last war and still had to fight after all when you weren't yet ready."

In Seoul or Tokyo no one knew any more what was in the Kremlin's mind than elsewhere. But it was the theory of John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department, whose visit to South Korea just before the invasion had so buoyed up that country's hopes and spirit, that the South Korean experiment in independence was succeeding so well that it was striking out as a kind of moral salient and thereby threatening the Russian police state in North Korea.

Another theory was that Russia wanted to get all of Korea so that it could have a better chance of clamping a nutcracker on Japan. A third theory expressed by high officials in Japan was that Russia wanted to try on military action for size in the Far East.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—South Korean soldiers who were fighting the hot-cold war against the Communists were receiving 45 cents a month and a ration of rice a day. A full colonel did better. He got $16 a month.

The American economic experts in Seoul were plagued by a feeling that old Syngman Rhee, president of South Korea and a relentless foe of communism, was using the Communist threat in the north to play unorthodox tricks with his country's very unorthodox economy, and thereby enhance his own power. So they sat down pretty hard on him some weeks ago.

After having it drummed over and over in his ears: "Balance the budget" and "Be democratic," the old man finally, if reluctantly, agreed to follow a series of recommendations.

Notable among these was that his defense budget was to be cut by $10,000,000.

JAPS HAD FEWER POLICE

Rhee had a police force of 50,000. It was pointed out to him that the Japanese, when they were in power in Korea, had a police force of only 18,000. There were suspicions that Rhee, one of the most undictatorial men in appearance and manner you can hope to meet, was seeking to build up a police state.

Rhee had a very simple argument, but it was almost arbitrarily brushed aside. It was that the large number of police was needed to repulse Communist guerrillas. Many of them were up at the border doing just that, and getting wounded or killed in the process.

It is true that the police also were used for purely police activities more than ordinary requirements dictated, and certainly they were more ruthless than is required by any policeman's manual.

Rhee's argument that as many policemen as possible were needed at the thirty-eighth parallel has, of course, been borne out by events. But he was advised that he would have to reduce his police force in the name of economy, if nothing else.

WANTED STRONGER ARMY

While Rhee kept up an embarrassing monolog for a stronger South Korean army, he was informed that the economy of his country couldn't tolerate it. This was all too true by the economists' slide rule, but the trouble was that the Communists up north, with their Russian advisers, didn't happen to be using the same type of slide rule.

In the map room of the quonset-hut headquarters of the commanding general of the South Korea's Seventh Division, one of its better outfits, stationed near the Communist border, a copybook motto hung on the wall.

"Victory," it said, "depends 90 percent on education and 10 percent on common sense."

Like all such ready-made injunctions, it was a little too pat. It didn't include any percentage for weapons.

So, all things considered, if the South Koreans aren't fighting the way the American military advisers were sure they would, there are reasons.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—When and if we drive the Communists back across the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea, or beyond, then the United States will be just beginning to fight—with dollars.

Now that the Communists have started an armed clash by unprovoked aggression, there is justification for speculation that the United States "police action," once it gets on the counteroffensive, will not stop at the artificial border of the thirty-eighth parallel that had separated Russian-dominated North Korea from the South Korean Republic. It very probably may go right on and mop up North Korea.

Syngman Rhee, president of South Korea, feels sincerely that the only way Korea can be united again is through force of arms, and that now has been instigated by the Communists.

In any case, chopped off from North Korea, South Korea can scarcely live, without everlasting help from the United States.

SOUTH KOREA NEAR BANKRUPTCY

Even in the uneasy peace that existed before the Communist invasion, about all that was holding up the bizarre, oriental economy of South Korea was United States aid, and the devoted work of the official American mission, one of the best in our Foreign Service.

The struggling young Republic, less than 2 years old, was always just a couple of jumps from bankruptcy. The situation was complicated by budgetary practices of a naive, dream-like quality, completely out of this pragmatic world. If the United States had pulled out, it very likely would have collapsed within a few weeks and the Communists could have swept up the pieces.

Whereas the United States had put in upward of $200,000,000 in ECA aid before, it will, in view of the wreckage and devastation of the war, have to put in many times that amount to keep South Korea afloat if the country manages to emerge intact from the current catastrophe.

Moreover, the United States can scarcely escape the obligation, if it wants to save Korea from a repetition of this blow by Soviet communism, to resume a full American—or United Nations—military occupation of the country. The United States withdrew its occupation forces last year and left only an American Army advisory group of 500.

RUSSIA GOT THE BREAKS

In the division of Korea that Russia forced upon us after World War II, Russia got all the breaks. In the Russian-dominated North Korea there was all the heavy industry of the country and only 10,000,000 population to look after.

In South Korea there were only farmlands—and 20,000,000 people, to say nothing of the several million refugees who fled to South Korea to escape Communist persecution.

It is thought that the Russians let these refugees go, not only because they would add to the burden of the south, but also because the Soviets were screening out any possibly "unreliable" elements. It is known that another batch of "unreliables" was dispatched to Siberia and that infamous fate. When the Russians got through with these purges what remained could be counted on fairly well to support the Soviets, as they appear to be doing in the fighting now in progress.

LETTER FROM SENATOR WILEY TO THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, recently the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Brannan, was guilty of making certain very unfair statements in the course of an address which he delivered in Milwaukee on the subject of an important farm vote that was held here in the Senate.

I have written, therefore, an open letter to him and to an A. F. of L. paper, correcting those misstatements.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this open letter be printed at this point in the body of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JULY 11, 1950.

Hon. CHARLES BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture,
Washington, D. C.

Re misstatement in your Jefferson-Jackson Day address in Milwaukee last Saturday night.

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY: I am respectfully writing to you to acquaint you with certain facts which I should think a person occupying the distinguished position of Secretary of Agriculture would be familiar with, but which (to take one interpretation) you apparently do not understand or recognize, to say the least. Then, again, you might possibly recognize these facts, but evidenced by certain misstatements that you regrettably made in your Jefferson-Jackson Democratic Day address at the Milwaukee Auditorium last Saturday night.

WHAT SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE OMITTED SAYING

First, let me say that we of Wisconsin are always sincerely happy to welcome distinguished officials of the executive branch to America's dairyland. I am sorry, however, that you did not use your visit to explain to the dairy farmers of Wisconsin why you have failed to lift a finger to prevent the fall in dairy returns by around 25 percent within the last year. I am sorry that you did not explain just how it was that (a) President Truman could campaign for office prior to the November 1948 election on the basis of promising to maintain farm income high, and (b) within 12 months thereafter how it was that the President could sit by with folded hands while the dairy farmers' prices dropped through the floor.

It is indeed to be regretted, too, that you did not explain why it was that Congressman REID MURRAY, Republican, of Wisconsin, and I had to practically pull the teeth of the Department of Agriculture to get you to support adequately manufactured dairy products at the time they were suffering particularly badly.

Oh, how much Wisconsin's 175,000 farms would have been interested in hearing from your lips your attempted explanation of why the Democratic administration has stabbed the dairy farmer in the back by overriding Republican opposition and passing the vicious oleo yellow color steal.

WISCONSIN IS WISE TO SMEAR ARTISTS

Be that as it may, we try to be courteous to out-of-State visitors who come to Wisconsin. However, when they come from the White House and the agencies on political smear missions, we have a habit of listening to them politely, but then doing exactly contrary to what they recommend.

Thus, in 1944, your undistinguished predecessor, Mr. Henry "kill-the-little-pigs" Wallace came to Wisconsin to attempt to smear me, as did Mr. Ickes, Mr. Wickard, and the then Senator, Mr. Truman. Your predecessors came, they saw, and they were conquered by the battling badgers. Yes, the Wisconsin voters listened to these visitors and then proceeded to reject completely what they had recommended. I believe very confidently that the same will occur this time.

A COINCIDENCE OF PARROTING

However, right now, I just want to point out one of the many misstatements which you made in the course of your address last Saturday. Let me point to you an interesting coincidence wherein the July 3 issue of the newspaper, the League Reporter, published by the American Federation of Labor, a deliberate distortion of facts similar to yours was printed. Sure enough, I expected that sooner or later some of the administration parrots would proceed to mimic that misstatement and as expected, this occurred, because within a week you repeated the very same canard published in that issue.

The League Reporter commented on the fact that on June 26 a 36-to-35 vote in the Senate defeated our Republican effort to recommit to committee the conference report on the Commodity Credit Corporation bill. The A. F. of L. misinformation sheet told its readers that whoever voted to recommit the CCC bill to committee was voting against price supports. Nothing, however, could be further from the truth.

Unfortunately, however, you picked up the A. F. of L. cue and also decided to stray from the truth by stating in Milwaukee that Senator WILEY had allegedly voted against a bill which would make it possible for farmers to get continued price supports for their milk. Oh, what deliberate bunk on your part.

Let me point out the following facts so as to nail that Democratic mistruth in its tracks and so that never again will anyone have the audacity to repeat so vicious a misstatement.

1. The question of continued price supports for milk was not under the remotest consideration in that 36–35 vote.

A DEMOCRATIC SENATOR PROVED DEMOCRAT BRANNAN WRONG

I refer you to a statement made by the Democratic Senator who had cosponsored the amendment, the Honorable WARREN MAGNUSON, of Washington. He stated that the bill, H. R. 6567, increased borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation by $2,000,000,000. He stated further as reported on page 9161 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD that—

"Both the House and Senate were in complete agreement that the CCC borrowing authority should be increased. In consequence, any Senator who votes with me to reject this conference report cannot be accused by that action of being against the farmers of this country. Irrespective of whether we send this bill back to conference, a $2,000,000,000 increase in CCC's borrowing authority is assured. The only question before the conferees has to do with section 8 of the Senate version—the so-called Magnuson-Morse amendment. If we reject the conference report this amendment again will be the only issue before the conferees."

UNITED STATES FARM ITEMS NEED TARIFF PROTECTION

2. Senator MAGNUSON then went on to show that completely contrary to what the Secretary of Agriculture stated in Milwaukee and what the A. F. of L. sheet stated in Washington, a failure to reject the conference report jeopardized the entire price-support program. Why? Because as you full well know, the aim of the Magnuson-Morse amendment (which I also supported in its original version) was to streamline a procedure for tariff protection of American farm commodities. Thus, this amendment was designed to transfer to you as the Secretary of Agriculture, the exclusive right to investigate injurious effects of imports of foreign commodities on our domestic farm program. We of the Republican minority felt that it is absolutely ridiculous to continue to import tremendous quantities of potatoes, for example, or foreign types of cheeses when at the very same time, huge surpluses of potatoes and cheese are piling up in our own warehouses. That is why the Magnuson-Morse amendment was offered, because under it, when farm surpluses piled up, there would be authorized to be established an import fee of up to 50 percent of value or a quota limiting the amount of imports to not less than 50 percent of the imports during a representative period in the past.

3. Let me point out that the whole idea of such procedure dates all the way back to November 23, 1935, when President Roosevelt issued Executive Order No. 72, delegating preliminary investigation authority to the Secretary of Agriculture when imports interfered with domestic farm products under the Triple A Act. However, it was found that this procedure dating back these 15 years in which the Secretary of Agriculture makes a review and reports to the President, and the President then asks the Tariff Commission to make a study—that this procedure takes as long as 17 to 18 months or 2 years. Therefore, the Magnuson-Morse amendment was offered to establish a single, simple investigation by the Secretary of Agriculture on the injurious effects on farm imports.

The conference committee, unfortunately, mutilated the Magnuson-Morse amendment and we had no alternative therefore, but to try to vote to send the bill back to the committee so that it could restore the Magnuson-Morse amendment, and thus in effect, protect United States domestic farm production.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WANTS TO TORPEDO FARM SUPPORTS

4. In summary, the 35 of us who voted to recommit the bill were voting for protection of American farmers. On the other hand, the 36 who voted against recommittal were, I believe, in sincerity but in mistaken approach voting against the welfare of American farmers.

You, the Secretary of Agriculture, who are sworn to protect the interests of American agriculture have in effect endorsed an act by the Senate which jeopardized the very price-support program which you are supposed to be executing.

This, I trust, helps to straighten out the situation which you have unfortunately attempted to confuse.

I hope that you will be coming back to Wisconsin soon again, because I think that we will give you a real Badger greeting (at the polls) such as we did in November 1944, to your predecessor.

Oh, by the way, I was just wondering whether the Democratic administration will now attempt to defeat Senator MAGNUSON because of his cosponsorship of the amendment or Senate Majority Leader LUCAS, because he completely rejects the farm plan which bears your name?

With all good wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,

ALEXANDER WILEY.

STANDARDS OF ELECTRICAL AND PHOTOMETRIC MEASUREMENTS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 441) to redefine the units and establish the standards of electrical and photometric measurements, which were on page 3, lines 10 and 11, strike out "National Bureau of Standards" and insert "Secretary of Commerce," and on page 3, lines 14 and 15, strike out "National Bureau of Standards" and insert "Department of Commerce."

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

AUTHORITY FOR CERTAIN FUNCTIONS OF NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2046) to provide authority for certain functions and activities of the National Bureau of Standards and for other purposes, which were, on page 2, strike out line 2 and insert ";"; on page 2 line 12 strike out "Bureau" and insert "Secretary of Commerce"; on page 2 line 15 after "facilities", insert "of the National Bureau of Standards", and to amend the title so as to read:

An act to provide authority for certain functions and activities in the Department of Commerce, and for other purposes.

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

PERFORMANCE OF CERTAIN FUNCTIONS OF NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill S. 2201, an act amending section 2 of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1449), to provide basic authority for the performance of certain functions and activities of the National Bureau of Standards, and for other purposes, which were, on page 1, lines 6 and 7, to strike out "The functions of the Bureau shall be the following:" and insert "The Secretary of Commerce (hereinafter referred to as the 'Secretary') is authorized to undertake the following functions:"; on page 2, line 22, strike out "Bureau" and insert "Secretary"; on page 5, lines 15 and 16, strike out "specified functions of the Bureau" and insert "functions specified herein"; on page 5, lines 18 and 19, strike out "work of the Bureau" and insert "performance of the functions specified herein"; on page 6, lines 4 and 5, strike out "National Bureau of Standards, the Bureau" and insert "Secretary in the performance of functions specified herein, the Department of Commerce"; on page 6, line 8, strike out "equipment," and insert "equipment"; on page 6, lines 8 and 9, strike out "National Bureau of Standards" and insert "Department of Commerce"; on page 6, line 10, after "investigation" insert "authorized herein"; on page 6, lines 11 and 12, strike out "National Bureau of Standards" and insert "Department of Commerce"; on page 6, line 16, strike out "of the National Bureau of Standards" and insert "authorized herein"; and to amend the title so as to read: "An act to amend section 2 of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1449), to provide basic authority for the performance of certain functions and activities of the Department of Commerce, and for other purposes."

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

GRANT OF EASEMENT TO EAST BAY MUNICIPAL UTILITY DISTRICT, ALAMEDA, CALIF.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2507) to authorize the United States Maritime Commission to grant to the East Bay Municipal Utility District, an agency of the State of California, an easement for the construction and operation of an interceptor sewer pipeline in and under certain Government-owned lands comprising a part of the Maritime Alameda Shipyard, Alameda, Calif., which were, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of Commerce is authorized to grant and convey to the East Bay Municipal Utility District, an agency of the State of California, without cost to the said utility district, and subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Commerce may deem proper, a perpetual easement for the construction, maintenance, operation, renewal, replacement, and repair of an interceptor sewer pipeline or pipelines within two strips of land 20 feet wide each, one extending a distance of seven hundred and thirty-nine and thirty-seven one-hundredths feet northerly from Tynan Avenue and the other extending a distance of one thousand two hundred and eighty-five and seventy-four one-hundredths feet southerly from Tynan Avenue, both lying along the easterly boundary of lands comprising a part of the Maritime Alameda Shipyard, Alameda, Calif., and contigiuous to the westerly boundary line of the Central Pacific Railway Co. right-of-way, metes and bounds descriptions of such strips of land being on file with the Secretary of Commerce.

And to amend the title so as to read: "An act to authorize the Secretary of Commerce to grant to the East Bay Municipal Utility District, an agency of the State of California, an easement for the construction and operation of an interceptor sewer pipeline in and under certain Government-owned lands comprising a part of the Maritime Alameda Shipyard, Alameda, Calif."

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment on page 27, line 21, which was under consideration at the time of recess yesterday. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 27, after line 20, it is proposed to insert the following:

INDEX-DIGEST OF THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

Salaries and expenses: For expenses necessary to enable the Librarian to edit and publish the index-digest of the publications of the Temporary National Economic Committee, including personal services in the District of Columbia; printing and binding; services as authorized by section 15 of the act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. S. C. 55a); $18,000, to remain available until expended.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next committee amendment.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Library of Congress—Library Buildings," on page 31, line 12, after the word "expenses", to strike out "$695,200" and insert "$698,680."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, as I understand, that complete chapter II of the omnibus bill. Before we proceed with the next chapter, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate reconsider the vote by which the amendment on page 5, beginning with line 5, and ending with line 9, was agreed to. Before that action is taken, I wish to state that through an oversight the Senate failed to appropriate $2,416 to pay the pages for the 2 weeks after the Congress adjourns. The reason for my request for reconsideration of the vote is so that that item may be inserted; that is to add to the present figure the sum of $2,416.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and by unanimous consent, the vote by which the amendment was agreed to will be reconsidered.

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I offer the amendment I suggested.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 5, line 9, it is proposed to strike out "$1,025,789" and insert in lieu thereof "$1,028,205."

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I shall not object, but I should like to know what the effect of the amendment is.

Mr. ELLENDER. The effect is to increase the amount by $2,416 so as to pay the pages for 2 weeks after Congress recesses or adjourns. That is provided for under Public Law 641 of the Eightieth Congress.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The secretary will state the next committee amendment.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Chapter III—Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, and the Judiciary—Title I—Department of State—Salaries and expenses," on page 42, line 18, after the word "advance", to strike out "$77,300,000" and insert "$78,300,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was on page 43, line 6, after "(5 U. S. C. 168d) to insert a colon and the following additional proviso: "Provided further, That the compensation of the Deputy Under Secretary for Administration shall be $17,500 per annum so long as the position is held by the present incumbent."

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, may we have the amendment identified?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment is on page 43, line 6.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understand that amendment is going to be withdrawn. Is that correct?

Mr. McCARRAN. I desire to make a statement with reference to the amendment.

Mr. President, I have the honor of being chairman of the Appropriation Subcommittee for the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, and the Judiciary. I am gratified that the full committee approved, and has so reported the recommendations of my subcommittee. I feel that this is a tribute to my colleagues on the subcommittee, and I wish at this time to express my appreciation to them for the splendid work they did on chapter III of this bill. I wish also to express my personal appreciation and to compliment the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. McKELLAR], chairman of the full committee, for his leadership in guiding this very difficult appropriation bill through the committee. He has devoted many long hours to this task, and deserves the thanks of the Senate for a job well done. We have accomplished substantial reductions, and I wish to assure the Senate that these reductions were only made after exhaustive hearings and many hours of consideration. They represent the judgment of the subcommittee, concurred in by the full committee, as to the minimum that should be allowed each Department and agency for the performance of their necessary functions during the fiscal year 1951. Chapter III, as reported, represents a reduction in cash and contract authority of $142,136,665, or 11.1 percent below the budget estimates, and is $35,144,230 or 3 percent below the amount allowed by the House. The budget estimate was $1,276,649,397; the House allowed $1,169,656,962; the committee recommends a total of $1,134,512,732.

For the Department of State, the budget estimate in cash was $230,077,397; the House allowed a total of $217,651,297. The committee recommends a total of $204,483,067, a reduction of $25,594,330, or 11.1 percent below the budget, and a reduction of $13,168,230, or 6.1 percent below the House.

For the Department of Justice the budget estimate in cash was $149,002,800; the House allowed a total of $144,230,000. The committee recommends a total of $141,952,000, a reduction of $7,050,800, or 4.7 percent below the budget, and a reduction of $2,278,000, or 1.6 percent below the House.

For the Department of Commerce the budget estimate in cash was $782,419,000; the House allowed a total of $725,429,000. The committee recommends a total of $696,183,000, a reduction of $86,236,000, or 11 percent below the budget, and a reduction of $29,246,000, or 3.7 below the House.

For the judiciary the budget estimate in cash was $24,113,700; the House allowed a total of $23,560,165. The committee recommends a total of $23,478,665, a reduction of $635,035, or 2.6 percent below the budget, and a reduction of $81,500, or 0.3 percent below the House.

In contract authority, the committee recommends an increase or $7,000,000 for the institute of inter-American affairs in the Department of State. The budget estimate for this item was $14,000,000, and the House committee had recommended $7,000,000, which amount was struck out on the House floor. For the Department of Justice the committee recommends no increase in contract authority. For the Department of Commerce the committee recommends a net increase of $2,629,500 in contract authority. The committee recommends an increase of $6,538,500 in contract authority for air navigation facilities under the CAA, but also recommends a decrease of $3,909,000 in contract authority approved by the House for the national Bureau of Standards. While the committee is recommending an increase of $9,629,500 in contract authority over that allowed by the House, the total of the committee's recommendation is $22,620,500 below the budget estimate, or 24.8 percent.

Mr. President, I have only attempted to sketch the broad outlines of the committee's action in regard to chapter III, and I shall be happy to answer any questions that any Senators may have.

I may say Mr. President, that the committee recommended an increase in salary for Mr. John E. Peurifoy, the Deputy Under Secretary of State for Administration, from $15,000 to $17,500 per annum. Since the committee's action, the President has transmitted to the Senate the nomination of Mr. Peurifoy to be Ambassador to Greece. Since Mr. Peurifoy will not be occupying the position which he now holds in the Department in Washington, I shall ask, when we arrive at that amendment, that it be rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. We are now at that amendment.

The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment, on page 43, beginning in line 6.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, I ask that the amendment be rejected, because of the reasons I have stated and in view of the fact that Mr. Peurifoy is about to be sent as Ambassador to Greece, and will not occupy the position he now holds in the Department of State.

It was the view of the committee, let me say, that in view of the value of Mr. Peurifoy's services—his fine, candid, upstanding way of presenting matters to the committee and of handling the affairs of the Secretary of State when he came before the committee—he should have the same salary as that of the Deputy Under Secretary of State who is just ahead of him.

However, now that Mr. Peurifoy is to be sent as Ambassador to Greece, I am asking that the recommendation of the committee be rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment, on page 43, line 6.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I wish to state that the committee amendment should be disagreed to, as requested by the chairman of the subcommittee.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The amendment was rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The next amendment of the committee will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Representation allowances," on page 43, line 13, after "(22 U. S. C. 1131)," to strike out "$675,000" and insert "$900,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 43, after line 13, to strike out:

FOREIGN SERVICE RETIREMENT AND DISABLITY FUND

For financing the liability of the United States, created by the Foreign Service Act of 1946 (22 U. S. C. 1061–1116), $2,233,000, which amount shall be placed to the credit of the "Foreign Service retirement and disability fund."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Buildings fund," on page 43, line 24, after the word "Act", to strike out "$8,000,000" and insert "$5,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Emergencies in the diplomatic and consular service," on page 44, line 13, after the word "Columbia", to strike out "$10,600,000" and insert "$9,900,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Contributions to international organizations," on page 44, line 21, after the word "Congress", to strike out "$55,178,297" and insert "$53,753,067."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Missions to international organizations," on page 45, line 25, after the word "chauffeurs", to strike out "$1,600,000" and insert "$1,500,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "International contingencies," on page 47, line 7, after "(44 U. S. C. 111)", to strike out "$3,000,000" and insert "$2,800,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "International Boundary and Water Commission, United States and Mexico," on page 48, line 12, after the words "purchase of", to strike out "four" and insert "eight"; and in the same line, after the word "vehicles", to insert "of which six shall be."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Construction," on page 49, line 19, after the numerals "1944", to strike out "$5,035,000" and insert "$3,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "American sections, international commissions," on page 51, line 11, after the word "Commissions", to strike out "$500,000" and insert "$600,000"; and in line 15, after the word "forth", to insert "except that $92,000 of such amount shall be available upon the enactment of this act and until expended only for the examination and survey of the Red River of the north and its tributaries for the purpose of determining what action should be taken to control floods and provide proper drainage in the areas through which such river and tributaries flow."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, I thought the clerk had skipped the committee amendment on page 48, in line 12, but I believe I am in error as to that.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Both those amendments are agreed to.

The clerk will state the next amendment of the committee.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "International information and educational activities," on page 54, line 13, after the word "organizations", to strike out "$34,000,000" and insert "$32,700,000, of which sum $200,000 shall be used for the purpose of preserving friendships with the peoples of western European countries by means of radio broadcasts, said programs to be created and produced under the supervision and control of the Department of State by experienced private international broadcasting organizations; and."

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, to that committee amendment, I have an amendment to offer. It has been printed and lies on the desk, and I now offer it.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment to the committee amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 54, in line 13, in lieu of the figure "$32,700,000", it is proposed to insert the figure "$36,645,000."

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, I wish to discuss this amendment for a few moments. I have offered amendments on several occasions—this will be the third year—to the appropriation items for this particular program.

Before I discuss the actual effect of the amendment I am offering to the committee amendment, let me say that I have from the State Department a report as to a tentative distribution of the cut which has been made in this program.

I wish to say, first, that this program should not be regarded as a peacetime business-as-usual type of program. I think what is going on today in Korea and what has been occurring in the satellite countries for the past 3 or 4 years surely should demonstrate to the Senate and to the people that this program is a very vital and important part of our security and of our defense.

Last night I happened to read an article in which I know many Senators will be interested. It appears in the Saturday Evening Post, and is by Mr. Hanson W. Baldwin, who is admitted to be one of our best civilian authorities on the question of the Defense Establishment. It is a disturbing article. As I read about the sad state of our military security I was more than ever concerned about the weakness of our information and exchange program. Apparently we are not very wise in our efforts to prevent war or to win a war after it has started.

This information program has been neglected and has been kicked about ever since the war ended. I think its effect upon our ability to defend the American system in certain other countries has been greatly underestimated. I desire to recall to the Senate a few words from the debate of June 30, last year, appearing at page 7333 of the RECORD, as follows:

One of the principal means by which communism has now gained control of China is through the activities of Chinese who have been indoctrinated in Moscow over a long period of time. Senators will notice, if they read carefully, that practically all the leaders, like Mao Tse-tung in China, or Tito in Yugoslavia, or Togliatti in Italy, were trained under programs very similar to the one which is supported by the appropriation we are considering. They were trained in Moscow by that type of program, leaders throughout the world, people who have been brought to Moscow under educational exchange programs. Since the earliest days of the Soviet regime it has maintained and expanded its educational exchange program.

We have relied—I think perhaps too much, as events are showing in Korea today—upon what we thought was a very strong and invulnerable Military Establishment. The point is, I think, that this program should be considered in its relationship to our foreign policy. It is not a business-as-usual activity. Its purpose is not simply to give opportunities to individuals as such. It is to enable us to develop a corps of young people who have experience in foreign countries which they can devote to the defense and the security of this country, among other things. That is certainly one of the primary objectives.

I would not—as I did not yesterday with regard to the new office building—be here urging the increase of any appropriation purely of a peactime nature which we could forego for the moment without in any way prejudicing our foreign relations. I need not tell the Senate that the real trouble and the real danger to this country is not in connection with domestic affairs, but in connection with foreign affairs. I need not tell the Senate that the great mistakes which have been made within the past few years have been primarily in our foreign relations. That is due, to a great extent, to the fact that we have not developed and sufficiently utilized the services of experienced persons who are acquainted with the history and who know how to speak the languages of the countries with which we have to deal. I think that is generally admitted.

We were isolationists so long that now, when we enter into the foreign field, whether we like it or not, we are poorly prepared. To alter that situation is one of the principal objectives of this program. I think it is a great reflection upon the judgment of this body that year after year we have cut down this program, holding it to a bare minimum. The history of it is familiar to Senators. Last year it was cut in a manner very similar to the cut made this year. The year before that, as I recall, it was very substantially cut. It is true that last year there was, later, a nonrecurring appropriation in the deficiency appropriation for certain physical equipment in the radio field. But the actual operations of the program have been severely curtailed. I think that has been one of the greatest mistakes we have ever made.

For the record, I desire to recall what has happened here. We are providing great economic and military aid to many countries, on a scale far larger than the amount of money devoted to this program of establishing real understanding among the peoples and of enlightening them as to why we are engaging in such programs as the ECA. The House of Representatives proposes that the amount of the appropriation for the fiscal year 1951 for the information and educational exchange program be reduced from the budget estimate of $36,645,000 to $34,000,000. That, as I say, follows the pattern of last year very closely. The Senate committee is now proposing an appropriation of $32,700,000. I believe that the reduction of $1,300,000 recommended by the Senate committee would be, to say the least, unrealistic in the face of present world conditions and in the light of the amount of money being devoted to communistic propaganda throughout the world.

If we are to create a peaceful world, it will not be through the use of arms alone. I do not think we can do it by the use of arms alone, nor by providing economic aid, alone. We must employ some means of arousing the understanding and the cooperation of peoples throughout the world. Present world conditions emphasize this need for a much greater effort in telling the American story abroad and in combating false propaganda with the truth. Yet, at this time, when the need is so great, an effort is being made to reduce the appropriation, although the amount originally proposed was only $36,645,000.

One particular aspect of the appropriation has to do with the exchange of students. The House committee made an observation that the emphasis should be placed on the aspect of the program, under Public Law 584, which does not call for dollars. Of course, I think that demonstrates a complete misunderstanding as to how the program operates. The dollars which were requested, which were allocated under the budget submitted by the Secretary of State, amounted to only a little more than $600,000. Last year, we had a program with only 10 countries. The most recent addition, as will be recalled, was Austria, which brings the number of countries to 19. Yet this provision of the bill will entail a decrease in the amount of dollars which were available to carry on the program with only 10 countries. So it is obvious that if the provision is adopted it will necessitate a much further restriction of the exchange program.

As a matter of fact, for the fiscal year 1950, approximately only 50 percent of the grants which were authorized to enable foreign nationals to come to this country could be accepted because there were no dollars available. In other words, it achieves no results to urge the Department to increase the programs which use foreign currencies alone when there are no dollars to balance them. I think the total amount which would be needed under a fully balanced program would be only $1,500,000. When we put that in the perspective of what we are doing through ECA and through other aid programs, it is merely a drop in the bucket, and I simply cannot understand the wisdom of restricting this program.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Arkansas yield to the Senator from Missouri?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I yield.

Mr. KEM. The Senator from Arkansas will remember that the ECA, last year, brought students to this country for the purpose of studying our institutions, with particular reference to the matter of learning how to balance budgets. I should like to ask the Senator from Arkansas whether any of the students who are to be brought under this appropriation will also be interested in learning how to balance budgets?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I do not know. I may say, first, that the ECA program is not this program and has no connection with it. The administrators of this program do not determine what the course of study shall be. I confess a doubt as to whether this would be one of the best places to find out how to balance a budget. We have considerable difficulty on that score in the Senate, I may say. So I doubt that that would be one of their principal objectives.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a very brief observation?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Arkansas yield to the Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I yield.

Mr. CHAVEZ. In answer to the Senator from Missouri, I may suggest that the way to balance the budget is not by depriving foreign students of any of the benefits to be enjoyed in America. The way to balance the budget is to take it out of the United States Senate.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, I said a moment ago that I had obtained a tentative statement, if this reduction remains in the bill, of what the Department estimates it will have to do in order to adjust itself to the reduction which has been imposed by the House and the Senate. On their radio program, $405,000 would be cut from their estimated budget. I refer to the one with which they started. It is said this will require the elimination of the publication of broadcasting schedules and all other promotional activities designed to expand the overseas listening audience, and that it will make it impossible to activate certain programs in minority languages of the U. S. S. R. which are so vital in reaching a larger section of the Russian people.

The motion-picture program has been cut $447,403. This will reduce the number of documentary motion pictures, foreign-language versions, and distribution prints by one-sixth below the present level.

Motion pictures, of course, are a very effective method, particularly among the masses in some of the countries, who are not particularly receptive to reading material because there is a certain amount of illiteracy in those countries. Motion pictures have an important field in this country as compared with the written-material field.

The press and publications cut is $994,513. This will force a reduction of almost one-third in the present pathetically small effort which the Government is now making in the field of news and printed materials in the face of a continually expanding flood of Communist literature being issued in nearly every country of the world.

These reductions will force curtailment of our library and cultural institutes in other countries. The reduction in the appropriation for libraries is $829,480. That program is one as to which I have heard no criticism. Reduction of our library activities will be viewed with great concern by the peoples of other nations, since they know that this is the time that we should be redoubling our efforts to show the beneficial effects of the democratic way of life.

The exchange-of-persons program would be cut $536,354. This proposed reduction will curtail our program for the exchange of persons between the United States and other countries. Under Public Law 584, we have now signed agreements with 19 countries, permitting us to use the proceeds of sales of surplus war properties abroad for a program of educational exchange.

This is a two-way exchange of graduate students, professors, teachers, and research scholars between the United States and the 19 other countries. This reduction in the exchange-of-persons program will limit our activities, not only with respect to exchanges financed completely by United States dollars, but will also reduce the dollars which are necessary to enable full use of foreign funds in bringing foreign students, professors, research scholars, and teachers to the United States.

Under this program, most of the money, in round figures approximately $7,000,000 in the equivalent of foreign currencies annually, is available. I would remind the Senate that those funds did not come from appropriation by the Congress. They are credits arising out of the sale of surplus war materials. I am convinced that if the money had not been used for this purpose, we would have gotten nothing out of the surplus war materials at all. It would have gone in the same way as it did in the First World War. It is as near to getting something for nothing as I can imagine. But we cannot continue it as a one-way proposition. We cannot send 1,500 students abroad into their graduate institutions and not accept any students in return. It is provided in our own law that the program shall not be operated to the prejudice of our own students, in other words, to give places to foreign students to the exclusion of our own students. So long as it balances, it does not prejudice anyone, because if for every student we send abroad we take one, no one can say he has been excluded. So long as it is within reasonable balance it can continue.

I am confident that over a long period the other countries will not continue to accept any substantial number of our students without making it possible for an equivalent number to come to this country. It would take, I think, approximately a million and a half dollars. Last year only 50 percent of the grants offered to foreign students could be accepted because there was no way to obtain funds to support them here. Their currencies are not convertible into dollars. Even though individuals have pounds or francs, under the regulations now existing, they cannot obtain dollars. Of the 600 students brought here last year, only about one-half were supported by funds appropriated by the Government. Fraternities, individual citizens, and institutions put up the remainder of the money. I know, from the experience in my own home town, that three foreign students were supported during the past year by local citizens. All their dollar requirements were met by local citizens, and particularly by other students in the University of Arkansas.

Aside from the benefits which accrue to the individuals from abroad who come to this country, I think it is a fine way to cultivate interest in our foreign relations among our own students, and to inspire support for an intelligent foreign policy.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert in the RECORD at this point a recapitulation of the figures showing what has happened in connection with the various programs. It shows a total cut of $3,945,000 and where it occurs in the budget.

There being no objection, the recapitulation was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

1951 information and educational exchange programs, tentative application of House and Senate cuts

	House	Senate	Total
Radio	$200,000	$205,000	$405,000
Motion pictures	272,403	175,000	447,403
Press and publications	784,513	210,000	994,513
Libraries	629,480	200,000	829,480
Exchange of persons	236,354	300,000	536,354
Scientific and technical cooperation	300,000	85,000	385,000
Administrative support	222,250	125,000	347,250
Total	2,645,000	1,300,000	3,945,000

	Original request (President's budget)	Net budget (Senate Appropriations Committee recommendation)	Obligated, fiscal year 1950 (present programs)
Radio	$11,790,932	$11,385,932	[1] $10,525,469
Motion pictures	3,886,285	3,438,882	3,800,134
Press	6,267,235	5,272,722	6,015,040
Libraries	4,190,842	3,361,362	4,187,138
Exchange of persons	3,507,129	2,970,775	3,440,930
Scientific and technical cooperation	2,985,315	2,600,315	3,238,380

[1] Exclusive of construction of radio facilities, $9,779,616.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, we are quibbling over a small amount of money as compared with the total appropriation provided for in the bill. I want to contrast what private American institutions are doing in the field of advertising, which is an activity very closely associated with the program of information with which we are concerned.

In the last issue of the magazine Advertising Age we find the amounts which certain large manufacturing companies in this country expended for newspaper, magazine, and radio advertising in 1949.

General Motors spent $39,184,000 for that purpose. That one company, selling automobiles, spent substantially more than this whole program would cost to carry on a reasonable program of information for the whole world.

Procter & Gamble spent $30,305,000.

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet spent $20,135,000.

General Foods spent $19,727,000.

Lever Bros. spent $19,010,000.

The total amount expended by those five great companies was $128,411,000. Of course, there are many other companies doing the same thing, and the total expenditures would probably exceed a billion dollars.

We know that our businessmen have very good judgment and ability to analyze what is effective in their programs, and I believe the Senate might learn something from what they are doing and how they evaluate this kind of a program when it involves a matter of selling their own products.

As I understand, our program is designed to try to sell to peoples abroad what we sometimes call western civilization, or our American democracy. I think we should do it adequately, or we should abandon it. We are following a policy of starving it to death gradually and keeping it so restricted that it is ineffective. It subjects us to criticism for not achieving results.

I feel very strongly, Mr. President, particularly with regard to the exchange program, because I followed it very closely. I attended every meeting of the Board of Foreign Scholarships held in Washington during the past 2 years.

The fiscal year of 1949 was the first full year during which this program was in operation. As late as yesterday I discussed the subject with Mr. Sargeant, one of the men from the State Department who has recently returned from a trip of inspection of the progress which is being made in European countries under this program. He was most enthusiastic about it. He was enthusiastic about the benefits resulting not only to the individual Americans who are participating, but particularly about the impression which those Americans make upon foreigners, and the reaction on the part of the people of Italy, France, England, and other countries, in which these Americans have visited, to their presence in their respective countries. I know it has the possibilities of being one of the most effective programs in promoting our foreign relations and, I would say, in preventing conditions which result in war, if it is given a reasonable time to operate.

We have had a little experience in this field with countries such as Belgium. That program involved approximately only 700 people, about 500 of them Belgians. Over a period of years it did not involve as many persons as this program has taken care of during the first year of its operation. Nevertheless, great advantages flowed from the program. I should like to pay tribute to Mr. Hoover for having had the vision to participate in setting up that program, which was undertaken immediately following the first world war. The funds involved were surplus funds left over from the relief program which he had administered. Prior to that time the Boxer indemnity funds were used for similar purposes. It was not a mutual exchange. It was not exactly like this program. However, it had some of the same elements in it. I think everyone who is familiar with it knows that it accomplished much good even though it was on a very small scale. None of these programs has been on a sufficiently large scale really to have had a large impact upon any one country. What they did was to give us a core of people in these countries with whom we could do business, and who were of great assistance to us in carrying on our foreign relations with their respective countries.

Perhaps an equally good example of what has happened from a similar program has been the experience of Robert College in Istanbul. I happened to be there 2 years ago, and I found that some of the most influential members of the Turkish Government were graduates of Robert College. They understood our country, they understood our purposes. There was no confusion in the minds of those people as to the issues involved between us and the Communists. I think anyone who has considered the role which Turkey has played in the past 2 years, and has thought about the subject at all, will agree that it is the strongest bastion of the West in that whole area. None is afraid that Turkey will go Communist tomorrow. Certainly no one is nearly so much afraid of Turkey going Communist as we were that Italy or France might go Communist only a short time ago.

Mr. President, when I appeared before the Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations in support of this program, some interest was evinced with regard to individual statements or reactions on the part of participants in the program. I submitted for the record a few of those comments. I do not have them all. I get some of them in the course of a year. Participants write to me from time to time. Of course, most of them go to the State Department and to the Institute of International Education in New York, which is in much more intimate touch with the program.

I desire to read for the RECORD a few excerpts from the letters and articles which I supplied to the subcommittee. Before doing so, I wish by way of preface to say that the Board of Foreign Scholarships, which was appointed 2 years ago to determine the policy for this program, is one of the finest boards I have ever seen. Its members work very hard and are extremely conscientious in their administration of the act. They do not administer it, but they determine the policy by which it is administered. First, I wish to call attention to an article by Mr. Martin R. P. McGuire, who is a member of the Board. He is a professor at the Catholic University of America. The article was published in the February issue of the Bulletin of the National Catholic Educational Association. The article appears at page 1389 of the hearings. I read from the article as follows:

> The writer believes that Catholic colleges and universities should consider the Fulbright program of the highest importance and should try to participate in it as much as possible. It would seem unnecessary to observe that Catholics, as Catholics, should be more interested than others in promoting sound international understanding and cultural exchange. Yet it must be admitted that, all in all, American Catholics are not as active as they should be in this field.

At page 1390 of the hearings the following appears in Mr. McGuire's article:

> I would add that it is also one of the most significant and far-reaching in its possibilities. Therefore, I hope that our Catholic colleges and universities will give it the full attention it so rightly deserves, and, above all, that they will participate actively in it in the various ways which I have indicated.

I call attention particularly to one letter, beginning at page 1390 of the hearings, written by Mr. Richard B. Bilder, who at the time he wrote the letter was at Cambridge University, in England. I believe two or three passages in the letter are extremely interesting and state concisely what I think is a very important aspect of the program. Mr. Bilder says:

> The more interesting question to us both, however, is whether the Fulbright program appears to make sense from the point of view of international understanding. I am convinced from my short time in England and on the Continent that the answer is overwhelmingly "Yes."
>
> The "ambassadors of good will" idea, which I used to consider rather cynically, has impressed me as being really meaningful. There is no better antidote to the European conception of Americans than a normal decent American. There is nothing more damaging to Russian propaganda about America than a normal American ready and competent to fairly analyze and answer it. I have been amazed at the widespread anti-American feeling existing in Europe. In part, I think, it's irrational, based on the natural antipathy of the charity taker to the giver and on jealousy and frustration. In part, it appears to be the result of some of the grosser actions of American tourists and soldiers who, uncomfortable in their environment and without enough time to "settle in," have behaved in rather extravagant, high-handed, or immature manners. In part, unfortunately, it is also the result of the words and actions of some of the people and groups in America—phenomena which assume gross misproportion and misinterpretation over here—but nevertheless have a factual basis. Nonetheless, the feeling exists and represents a danger point to American foreign policy—one which must be neutralized as far as possible, in my opinion.
>
> It appears to me that the Fulbright program is a very effective weapon to do this. Let me walk in a bit further with some of the things I have observed.
>
> (1) The Fulbrighters tend to be more representative Americans than Europe has yet seen. Tourists' limitations as well as soldiers are too obvious to need comment. The Parisian America is more eccentric, more avantgarde, often of the "Let's be indignant about America—I'm way ahead of my times" school (this is a monstrous generalization). From what I've seen of my fellows here, on the other hand, they tend to be serious, mature, nice guys with both a sense of their responsibility in representing America to Europeans and yet no exaggerated sense of 200-percent Americanism which would antagonize people here.

I skip some. He says:

> In England (I imagine in contrast to the Continent) the Communist line falls pretty flat, although the ignorance about things like the American political system is amazing. But what interests me most is that those who accept it are often (a) quite nice people, potential friends, or at least no enemies of the United States and (b) very articulate. I have found that frank and honest discussions on the pros and cons of American life have had no little effect on some of these people's views.
>
> * * * * *
>
> You can explain Marshall aid, how it doesn't consist of Coca-Cola, how it comes out of Americans' pockets and is an act of good will rather than imperialism, and how it couldn't possibly be an export surplus method of maintaining full employment since it began in an inflationary period. And thus on and on. Of course, these reflect my own personal views—the approach I take—but I've found the people surprisingly intelligent and a consequent necessity for admitting certain (what I consider) bad things. The best argument, of course, is that occasional error and misuse is the price that a nation must pay for democracy, and that these things are heard of in the United States whereas not in Russia because of the absence of censorship. In fact, our own papers bring these things to light. It is also impressive to these people when you point out that the United States thinks enough of the cultures of foreign nations to send students abroad to study, and is sufficiently proud of its own institutions to allow foreign students to study in the United States in obvious contrast to Russia. These facts tend to make Russophiles, who have never seen a Russian face to face, think. Intelligent discussion, not phrase throwing, seems most effective.
>
> * * * * *
>
> It's hard to fight for democracy and diversity and the sort of spirit I believe America to represent (and the Europeans, I believe, would support) when at every turn you're frustrated by an (isolated) example of the "truth" of Communist propaganda. On the other hand, a real example—Fulbrighter Porter Williams from Charleston comes to mind—works wonders. It's one thing for an Englishman to read the Worker and another to have quiet, universally respected and liked Porter discuss the question of Negroes from personal experience. The people nod, get less indignant, more sober, go away seeing that the world isn't a black and white God and devil proposition. Typical comment: "Now we understand the problem much more clearly." Soon they're even kidding him about being a southerner and about the Yankees and also smiling at Worker headlines. It seems to me that, politically, this is enough to make the whole program a paying proposition.

Mr. President, there are a great many other letters, but I have read all I care to read out of this particular letter. I shall not take the time to read all the others, but there is one in particular which I think is interesting. This is from Mr. Albert L. Wallace, and this happens to have been addressed to me. He says:

> I am from a small coal-mining district in Pennsylvania, was able to go to college only because of the GI bill and work on the side, and was rapidly coming to the end of my Government time. I wanted very badly to continue my education, in order to fit myself for university teaching, but knew that the next few years were going to be rough unless I could get a scholarship. I applied for one of your sponsored scholarships, expecting to find that they were riddled with politics and red tape, graft, and corruption. I can candidly say that I have never seen nor heard of an educational grant more capably and impartially handled, nor designed to reflect a greater influence on the course of American educational affairs. The influence of the Fulbright scholarship will continue to be felt for many generations yet to come. This is a piece of legislation of which you can justly be proud, sir.

There are several others. One which I desire to read is by Mr. Robert Trumble, who writes special articles for the New York Times.

I desire to point out that under the existing legislation, particularly the Smith-Mundt Act, everything that can be done under the point 4 program is already authorized. Of course, I am in a difficult position as to the point 4 program, because this program is held down so severely that in order to accomplish anything in this field I assume we must have an additional program.

My criticism has been that if we desire to make this program effective it would have resulted in a much more efficient administration and procedure if the amount of this appropriation had been increased, rather than to come in with a proposal for $45,000,000 for point 4, and I understand there may be an additional appropriation for information later. As I said before, there is all the authorization needed to carry on the program of technical assistance in the Smith-Mundt Act.

I noticed yesterday, in a discussion with a Member of the Senate, he did not seem to be aware of the extent of the authority that is contained in the Smith-Mundt Act. But here is an interesting little comment, under the date line of Rangoon, Burma, March 3, from Mr. Robert Trumble, to whom I just referred. He was talking about some of the people we had sent there. They had requested technical people, just as we anticipate under point 4. He says:

> They fill some of the vacuum left by the departure of British technicians in the break with alien rule.
>
> Practical projects range from teaching of modern agricultural methods to a physical-education program. In the realm of pure science United States researchers are collecting data under various headings, such as rural village life, the endocrine cycle of the tropical lizard, and the emergence of Burmese law upon the removal of alien courts.
>
> All of these are modest projects, but those in the practical field mean a great deal to Burma, for they are opening avenues of development that had hardly been touched before and that are greatly needed. Burma, on her part, has sent 70 scholars to the United States for various types of training, and there is a continual clamor for more of what Americans can offer toward the improvement of the country. There are 150 applications on file for 10 United States scholarships now available.
>
> Marshall Noble, United States Embassy officer, handling the Fulbright program here, commented that the working of the act was peculiar in Burma in that the major benefit is to this country, whereas elsewhere it was the Americans who were gaining the most from their studious activities.
>
> Otto K. Hunerwardel, of Gainesville, Fla., a retired United States agricultural extension agent, and his wife are up north in the Shan States teaching the tribespeople for the first time that food can be preserved in cans, how to knot and splice rope, how to stretch a wire fence, and other elementary farm techniques. Mr. Hunerwardel now has the natives eating sauerkraut made from surplus cabbage that they used to throw away. He recently demonstrated caponizing for the first time in Burma and has introduced the avocado tree.

Those are very simple facts, but as I understand the point 4 program, that is the main objective. It is incredible that so many persons do not know these facts, but it is true that they do not. Carrying on this kind of work involves very little cost to us, but is of tremendous importance to the areas which may be affected. I believe we should engage in a program of this kind, which is of real and substantial assistance to other peoples who need to have knowledge given to them rather than to engage in a tremendous program along other lines which would exhaust our own resources. I believe it to be the very thing we speak of as the essence of the point 4 program.

Mr. President, I do not want to be misunderstood as trying to criticize the point 4 program. I say only that I think it would have been better judgment on the part of the Appropriations Committee to have considered the whole picture and tried to provide for one effective program rather than to spread it out along different avenues.

As I understand, point 4 will entail a new coordinator, and a new organization, whereas, in my opinion, there now exists a very efficient organization in the State Department. It had some difficulties in the beginning with respect to the Voice of America. That was a new undertaking. I think we can all understand why there were difficulties in connection with it. But I have heard very little criticism of it in the past few years. The trouble is that the sum which we appropriate for it is entirely too small. It should be much greater. I think the minimum for this program should be $50,000,000 this year.

What should not be lost sight of is that this is not a mere "business as usual" program. I think it is of extreme importance in the very grave fight for survival between western civilization and communism. Of course, an efficient army is fundamental, but the next most important activity I can think of is this program.

In thumbing through the appropriation bill, I found one item with which I happen to be familiar. The item deals with the RFC. Those who advocated it had no difficulty in having the appropriation increased in the committee by $700,000 on the basis that there were more mortgages to be handled in the coming year than were handled during the past year. Since that time, however, we have transferred the National Federal Mortgage Association to the Housing and Home Finance Agency. That increase was obtained apparently without much difficulty.

I asked the committee to earmark not less than $1,500,000—not an additional $1,500,000, because $680,000 was already appropriated, and therefore the amount would be less than $1,000,000—to carry on the program for the exchange of students. The words "exchange of students" I think perhaps are a cause of some misunderstanding of the real significance of the program. These students come from every State. It is true, of course, that the great State of New York has representation far out of proportion to its size, but that is because of the great concentration of educational institutions in that State. Nevertheless, every State participates in the program. That is because it is extremely important that there be persons in every community of this country who shall have some knowledge of the rest of the world, and who can, when they return, be the source of originating ideas, present explanations of what is going on, and explain our policy, can help in developing a real backing for the policies which our Government undertakes, and, of course, help in the formulation of such policies to the extent that they participate in public affairs.

I shall speak of another very important thing. Recently there has been much criticism of the State Department, as there has been throughout our history. The Department is not very intimately connected with the processes of becoming elected to office. We all neglect it, and among our youth there is a very limited source of humane material for the State Department.

I visited some of the American Embassies abroad, and I found most excellent men representing us. I am not offering this as a criticism, but as an explanation. I do not think we can expect otherwise, but in many cases the excellent men in our embassies could not speak the language of the country to which they had been sent. Few had had any previous experience abroad. But think how much more effective we would be if a large group of our citizens of the highest talents could receive some experience abroad, come back, as I think some of them would, with a desire to assist their country and Government in its foreign relations, and volunteer service in positions of influence where they could help the United States develop some system that might preserve peace in the world.

I can think of nothing, as I said, aside from an extremely able and strong army, that would contribute more to the preservation of peace. Indeed, I think it would contribute much more than an army would to the preservation of peace, and also, if we must have war, it would be extremely valuable in the prosecution of war. Wars are no longer provincial quarrels. Men who know and understand the peoples of the world are invaluable in the prosecution of modern global warfare.

Senators will recall what difficulty we had in the last war in rounding up persons who knew something about Japan. I remember that a search was made all over the country for anyone who had pictures of places in Japan. In my State of Arkansas, where it was not likely that there would be many persons who had such pictures, inquiries were made for maps or pictures of Japan and China and all the Pacific area. That would indicate that there were extremely few persons in this great country who had any knowledge at all of that area, and the same can be said of persons having knowledge of the rest of the world.

Americans are notoriously bad linguists. That is not because of the fact that they are not intelligent and are not capable of learning other languages, but because there has not been much occasion for them to do so or much opportunity. But under this program the cream of the youth of our country will, as they hear of the program, apply themselves to the learning of other languages. I think they have already done so.

This is the first year of the full operation of the program. It was conducted on a very restricted scale a year ago. Some 800 scholarships were granted as of last fall. This year there are more than 6,000 applications, I believe. A tremendous interest is being shown. There are 1,190 educational institutions in this country which have committees composed of members of the faculty who undertake to screen the applicants.

Someone raised the question in committee the other day how the applicants are screened. The question was asked whether the danger did not exist of sending abroad or receiving them from abroad persons who might be Communists. I think the best way to screen them in the initial stages is by persons on the campus where the applicants have gone to school, who have known the applicants for 2 or 3 years. Most of them, however, are graduates, which in the normal course of events would mean they had gone to college 4 years. If there is any way to provide any guaranty with respect to the character of the individuals, it is by the method I have just described. We have instituted a policy which decentralizes—and it will progressively decentralize more than it does now—responsibility for the selection of the persons who come under the program. I know of no better way to guarantee that we will get the best possible candidates under this program than the screening method on the campus.

What will happen in 3, 5, or 10 years, as these individuals return to America, after the experience they have had abroad, and begin to assume their places in our society, and I hope in the Government? What will happen in private life as they become journalists or teachers or business men? I think the potentialities of the program are practically unlimited. I doubt that I myself can even visualize what is possible if the program is properly carried forward on a scale sufficiently large to make an impact upon our great country.

As I said, the program heretofore has been on a small scale. The result, however, of that small scale program I think justifies great confidence in the effectiveness of the program as a whole.

Mr. President, the report I spoke of was published last October, when only 10 countries were participating. Today 19 countries have signed. As of last October there were a few more than 1,800 participants in all categories. That is beginning to be a substantial number. About 830 or 840 of those consist of Americans going abroad, approximately 600 of Europeans coming here, and the difference of approximately 390, is made up of foreign people going to American institutions abroad. Those are round figures.

Mr. President, I desire to emphasize that heretofore only 10 countries were involved. There are 19 now. So that if we have to spread over 19 a lesser appropriation than we had for 10, it can be seen what will happen to the program. If we continue along the same line for the next few years I think the result will be a gradual strangulation and elimination of the program.

I cannot see the sense of it. The best estimate we can make is that after it is full grown, with 19 countries participating, about a million and a half dollars is all that would be needed to supplement the travel grants, which can be paid for in foreign credits.

In my judgment, a terrible mistake is being made in cutting this program down, and if once it is cut down and the people lose interest in it, it will be dead, and I know of no way to revive it until perhaps after the next war, or some other catastrophe. The tendency to neglect vital programs, which should be carried on as permanent programs, when there seems to be a lull in our difficulties, has been one of the great curses of our foreign policy. We become excited after trouble and try to do something, Mr. President, and immediately when there is a lull we cut it down.

I have wondered in the last day or two whether the committee would have reduced this appropriation if the Korean outbreak had occurred before it reported the bill, because this program certainly has a bearing on the developments of the past few days.

I cannot think of a more valuable contact, for example, than if we had several hundred men in Indochina, let us say, or Burma, or Indonesia, who had been to school here, who had contacts, who spoke the language, who understood what our purposes are. If such a group were there functioning today, what a great source of strength it would be to us. The same can be said of other countries.

It simply does not make sense to me to cut down this program when so small an amount is involved. We can go through the bill, and here and there and everywhere find vast amounts of money appropriated for things that have no relation to our essential security, to the difficulties that confront us from abroad.

I hope the Senate will reinstate this small amount, at least for this program, and not cut it below the estimate of the Budget Bureau.

THE SITUATION IN KOREA—ARTICLE BY HAROLD ICKES

Mr. KNOWLAND. Mr. President, I was rather shocked this morning to read a dispatch which appeared in the Washington News telling of an attack published in the current issue of New Republic by Harold Ickes against the Allied supreme commander in the Far East, Gen. Douglas MacArthur. I could hardly believe my eyes, and I sent for a copy of the New Republic to read the article in full.

Mr. President, the Communist press and their left-wing allies have been attacking the supreme commander in the Far East for a long time, but I hardly expected, and I think that the American people hardly expected, that a former member of the Cabinet of the President of the United States would drive a knife into the back of the supreme commander, who is responsible for the defense of the American position in Korea and in the Far East.

Mr. President, this attack is less excusable because it is unjustified and is untruthful. Were it not for the fact that if unchallenged, the misstatements by Mr. Ickes might be picked up and used as facts elsewhere, I would not rise on the floor of the Senate today to challenge the article, but I think that when an article is as untruthful, and as filled with misstatements as this is, the Members of the Senate and the people of the United States are entitled to have the story scotched right now.

In the first place, the charge of Mr. Ickes is that General MacArthur was caught flat-footed and unready. The facts of the matter are, Mr. President, that the Korea mission to train the troops in that country was not under the command of General MacArthur. It was a mission established, as in Greece, under the American Ambassador, who was responsible to the Department of State, and not to General MacArthur.

Mr. President, so that I will not be misunderstood, I do not mean in that statement to be critical of Ambassador Muccio. I have the highest regard for him. I think that he is one of our top diplomats in that area of the world. Ambassador Muccio I met when I was in Korea, and I stopped at the American Embassy. I have never seen a more conscientious public official. I know that he was greatly concerned because of the lack of material being sent to Korea.

I happened to have gone to the thirty-eighth parallel. I talked with the members of the mission in Korea. I know that they were greatly concerned about the situation. But the decisions that were made not to have American combat forces in Korea were decisions that were made in Washington, and not by General MacArthur in the Far East.

Mr. President, the fact of the matter is that for a long period of time General MacArthur, in his dispatches to the Department of the Army, kept them fully conversant with the fact that the spread of communism in Asia was detrimental to the peace of the world and the security of the United States, and when the archives are finally opened I think they will be found to be replete with messages from General MacArthur giving an accurate summary of the dangers in that area of the world.

Mr. President, in addition, in this article which Mr. Ickes wrote, he criticizes General MacArthur for the fact that some of our equipment needed by the Korean forces had not been sent out there. I again underscore the fact that that was not General MacArthur's responsibility. The decisions that were made were made here in Washington, and before the committees of the Congress of the United States there has been ample testimony that of the $10,000,000 allotted in the arms implementation bill of 1949 for Korea, less than $200 had been spent for shipments made prior to June 24. The only shipment which had taken place up to the time when war broke out in the Pacific area was a shipment of some signal equipment out of our surplus and excess stocks. Mr. Ickes in his statement said:

> Our civilian Ambassador to Seoul, John J. Muccio, had returned to Washington a month or so earlier to warn that South Korea was in danger of attack. With little support, he made enough of an impression to induce the shipment of some heavy artillery for use against the terrorizing Soviet tanks of the North Korean Army. It had been alleged that a leak apprised the Communists of this shipment, with the result that they launched their attack before the artillery could reach Korea.

Mr. President, there was no such shipment of artillery prior to the start of the fighting. I have accurately stated the fact that the only shipment under the arms implementation program which had taken place prior to the outbreak of hostilities on the 24th of June, our time, or the 25th of June, Korean time, was some signal equipment.

Mr. President, I believe the Members of the Senate who read this article will find that it is loaded with misstatements. It is an obvious attempt to smear the United Nations Supreme Commander in the Far East. It gives aid and comfort to the enemy. Even though Mr. Ickes has apparently turned his back on General MacArthur, in the heavy responsibilities he has out there, I am sure that neither the Congress nor the American people will turn their backs on our commander in the Far East.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the pending amendment, which is identical with the one I offered earlier today.

I do not think it is necessary to tell the Senate how vital this program is, in the light of current events abroad. The savage and desperate struggle now raging in Korea in only one front—admittedly a critical one—in the great conflict in which we are engaged in the world today.

What are we fighting for in Korea? Yes, we are fighting in support of our own national security and our own national interests. But if this were all we were fighting for, we might well consider whether Korea was the best front on which to fight. The fact is that we are fighting for our way of life and for the way of freedom throughout the world. We are fighting for the right of all nations and of all peoples to order their destinies without being subject to violent aggression or violent interference in their internal affairs. We are fighting for the principles of freedom, democracy, and equality of opportunity for all men.

In order to maintain this fight, in order to press forward with it, we must reach the peoples of the world through every medium and by every means available to us. We must reach them and convince them of our motives and purposes. We must assure them of our interest in their welfare. We must assure them of our desire for their security.

I need not tell Members of this body how vital the information and educational activities financed with these funds are. I believe that the amount recommended by the Budget Bureau is far from adequate for the tasks confronting it. I expect that the President may request us, in the days ahead, vastly to increase these funds.

In view of the testimony presented in recent days by such competent witnesses as General Marshall, General Eisenhower, Secretary Acheson, and others before the Thomas subcommittee of the Foreign Relations Committee, it is obviously foolhardy to cut back on the very inadequate sum recommended by the Budget Bureau.

The distinguished Senator from Arkansas has already outlined eloquently and convincingly the damage which could be done to our efforts to convey an understanding of our motives to other countries, were the student-exchange program to be curtailed. I think that is a very great danger. I agree with the distinguished Senator from Arkansas that nothing we could do would bring greater returns and greater dividends for our own security and for the protection of our way of life than the continuation—nay, the expansion—of the exchange-student program.

But I have been informed by competent officials that many other essential projects in the information program will suffer greatly if the proposed cuts are sustained. For example, the State Department has been planning to shortwave new programs to various minority groups in the Soviet Union. Today the State Department broadcasts only in Russian and in Ukrainian. Many other groups in the Soviet Union are believed to be hungry for freedom and for information about the non-Communist world. The Voice of America, if broadcast in other languages, would be very effective in providing this information. Unless we restore these cuts, the State Department will not be able to proceed with these plans.

Another effect of this curtailment of funds would be on the motion-picture program. In many areas of the world, motion pictures have been our most effective ambassadors. In connection with the supplying of films to foreign national groups, it is necessary to provide translations and captions in the foreign language in question. If we do not vote adequate funds, this program will be severely handicapped.

There are many other activities, too, which would suffer from these reductions. For example, the State Department now maintains approximately 150 libraries in various parts of the world. These libraries are windows opening up a view of America to scholars, businessmen, government officials, and working people. This library program, too, must be maintained and expanded as an additional weapon in the battle for men's minds.

Mr. President, the least we can do today is to restore the full amount requested by the Bureau of the Budget. We should and must serve notice to the world that the United States is not retrenching in these programs but is expanding and proposes to carry the campaign of truth to the furthest reaches of the world.

A wise man said "The truth shall make you free." We must help make men free through activities such as this. I hope the Senate will support this amendment and any other amendments to increase the funds for this vital undertaking.

Mr. McCARRAN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. O'CONOR in the chair). The Secretary will call the roll.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hickenlooper	Maybank
Anderson	Hill	Millikin
Brewster	Hoey	Morse
Bricker	Holland	Mundt
Bridges	Humphrey	Murray
Butler	Ives	Myers
Byrd	Jenner	Neely
Capehart	Johnson, Colo.	O'Conor
Chapman	Johnson, Tex.	O'Mahoney
Chavez	Johnston, S. C.	Robertson
Connally	Kem	Russell
Cordon	Kerr	Saltonstall
Donnell	Kilgore	Schoeppel
Douglas	Knowland	Smith, Maine
Dworshak	Langer	Smith, N. J.
Eastland	Leahy	Sparkman
Ecton	Lehman	Stennis
Ellender	Lodge	Taft
Ferguson	Lucas	Thomas, Okla.
Frear	McCarran	Thomas, Utah
Fulbright	McCarthy	Thye
George	McClellan	Tydings
Gillette	McFarland	Watkins
Graham	McKellar	Wherry
Green	McMahon	Wiley
Gurney	Magnuson	Williams
Hayden	Malone	Young
Hendrickson	Martin

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GRAHAM in the chair). A quorum is present.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I wish to say a few words in opposition to the amendment offered by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], and to give very briefly my reasons therefor. I think the committee has been exceedingly generous with respect to this particular proposal. I enjoyed the speech of the Senator from Arkansas very much. He makes a very engaging speech when he has a subject such as this, which involves the education of youth, to which to address himself. In my opinion, however, he has somewhat overlooked the practical aspects involved. We have here a somewhat different situation from that which obtained when the Senator from Arkansas first undertook to advance this proposal.

Much has been said by the Senator from Arkansas, as well as by the Senator from New York, concerning the effect of the defeat of this proposal. Mr. President, if the amendment offered by the Senator from Arkansas should be rejected, it would not mean the defeat of the program.

Reference has been made to action of the committee in recommending an appropriation of $32,700,000, when the Budget Bureau's estimate called for $36,645,000, which represents a difference of nearly $4,000,000 between what the Budget Bureau estimated and what the Senate committee actually provided.

Let us see how that would work ordinarily and how it will work in this case. Suppose I became interested in an excellent, kindly, friendly proposal such as this one; and, being a poor man, I did not have the money to carry it out. Suppose I went to one of my friends—there are several here in the Senate whom I could name, but I shall not do so—whom I know to be very well off, indeed, in this world's goods; and suppose I said to him, "Here is a proposition I have. I have figured out what it will cost. It will dc an immense amount of good, but I do not have the money it requires. I know you are a rich man, whereas I am a poor man; and I want you to help me out."

Suppose my friend replied, "What is the amount of money you want?"

Then suppose I said, "As I figure it out, it will take $36,000,000 to carry out my plan. It will be very helpful to the young people and students in many foreign countries. It is true that we were not elected for the special purpose of enacting legislation to help the young people of foreign countries; to the contrary, we were elected for the purpose, among others, of helping with the education of our own people. Nevertheless, I think this project is a very worthy one and should be put into effect."

Suppose my friend then would say to me, "I have looked into it; I have had experts examine it; I have had persons in whom I have great confidence consider it carefully. I cannot give you $36,000,000, but here is $32,700,000."

Mr. President, would it be good judgment for me to refuse that amount? Would not I be a little off the track of what is practical if I were to refuse a proposal of that kind?

Could the Senator from Arkansas conscientiously say that because he could not get $36,645,000, he should refuse a somewhat smaller amount? Are we to understand that the appropriation of $32,700,000, approximately $4,000,000 less than the full amount requested, will result in spoiling the entire project?

Mr. President, this is a new project; one of this kind has not previously been established. It is true that the ECA is beginning a similar project, and it is true that the State Department is beginning a similar project; and it is true that the State Department is mentioned in connecion with this particular case. However, this project is a new one.

Can the Senator from Arkansas conscientiously say that because the Senate committee and the Senate itself and the Congress will not give him the amount of money he requests—namely, $36,645,000—but is willing to give him nearly $33,000,000, that will destroy his project? What figures does the Senator have to show that the reduction by less than $4,000,000 of the amount of the appropriation for this project will ruin the project or will spoil it, as he argued to us so persuasively a few minutes ago? I simply cannot see it that way.

I think the subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee and subsequently the full Appropriations Committee itself have been exceedingly generous to the Senator from Arkansas and to his proposal.

It is a worthy proposal. If we had plenty of money, the situation would be different; but I doubt very much whether the proposal will be ruined by the appropriation of a somewhat smaller amount of money than the full amount requested. The item is in the bill; and I expect to vote for it, so far as the amount of nearly $33,000,000 is concerned. The committee has determined to reduce the amount to that extent.

So I earnestly hope the Senator from Arkansas will forego his amendment to the committee amendment, and will not ask the Senate to adopt his amendment to the committee amendment, in view of the relatively small difference between the two amounts.

Would not it be better for the Senator from Arkansas to agree to the smaller amount, especially in view of the present financial condition of the Government—with an unbalanced budget and with our boys being killed on foreign fields, and with the necessity for the Congress to appropriate large sums of money to protect our boys, so far as we can, and also to protect our country?

So it seems to me that the practical, everyday, good-sense view of the matter would be for the Senator from Arkansas to say that he is perfectly willing to accept an amount which in my judgment the House and the Senate committee have been most generous in agreeing to.

I do not believe that the amount recommended by the committee for this program has even been equaled before. I do not recall a time when our Government has ever been more generous in making provision for an undertaking of this sort.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McKELLAR. I yield for a question.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. First, I may say to the Senator that I did not intend to leave the impression that if the full amount of approximately $36,000,000 is not appropriated, I shall not want to have any amount appropriated. I did not seek to leave that impression.

Mr. McKELLAR. Perhaps the Senator misunderstood me. Nevertheless, he referred to the fact that the proposed decrease would spoil the project. So much was said about the sad effect on the project if the amount of the appropriation were reduced to $32,700,000, that I received the impression that the Senator from Arkansas had it figured out in his own mind and knew where every dollar of the money would be used, and that he was convinced that if the entire amount of $36,645,000 was not appropriated, he would not want any money at all appropriated, but would turn down any smaller amount.

I hope the Senator will not turn down this most magnificent gift—the most magnificent gift the Government has ever made for such a purpose.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, first let me explain my own attitude. After all, this is not a private project of my own, and I do not expect to get one of these scholarships.

Mr. McKELLAR. Of course, I am not suggesting that.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. This program will be administered by the State Department. The objective of this program is the same as the objective of the ECA.

I should like to make a deal with the Senator from Tennessee: I will vote to cut the ECA appropriation $10,000,000 if the Senator from Tennessee will agree to add $5,000,000 to the appropriation for this program. Certainly I think the country will benefit a great deal more from a program which will enable us to have in our country citizens of 19 foreign countries, who will be influential both in a military and in a diplomatic and in a business sense, than if we were to spend money on a factory in one of those countries. It is truly my judgment that the return from this program is the best return we can receive from an investment of public funds. That is all there is to it.

If the program does not have a real bearing upon the promotion of our foreign policy, the official policy of this Government, then I say it should be entirely eliminated. If we are wrong in the significance we attach to the program, then it should be abandoned. But it is an accepted policy, as expressed in two laws passed by Congress, one being Public Law 584, passed in 1946, and the other the Smith-Mundt Act. So the program is not a new one. All the reduction in the appropriation does is simply to make the amount so small that the program cannot be effective.

Mr. McKELLAR. Does the Senator from Arkansas make the argument to this body that reducing the amount available for the program from $36,645,000 to $32,700,000 will destroy the program? Is that what the Senator says?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. The reduction in the appropriation will weaken it substantially.

Mr. McKELLAR. It will weaken it substantially, the Senator says.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. It certainly will.

Mr. McKELLAR. How in the world can a Senator say that a reduction of about $4,000,000——

Mr. FULBRIGHT. That is a 10-percent reduction in the program.

Mr. McKELLAR. Does the Senator think that a 10-percent reduction in the appropriation will destroy the program?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I say it will substantially weaken it. I think the same can be said about many other programs.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HOLLAND in the chair). Does the Senator from Tennessee yield to the Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. McKELLAR. I yield.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I hope the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations will not compromise in line with the suggestion just made.

Mr. McKELLAR. I am not going to compromise, Mr. President. When the Senator uses the word "compromise," he reminds me of an incident that occurred in my own life. I will tell the story. At one time I was engaged in a great law suit. It was a forgery case. There was involved a considerable sum of money, thirty or forty thousand dollars, which in those days, when I was a youngster, meant a great deal. By the way, we had no income tax in those days, Mr. President.

My law partner was an elderly lawyer. He turned the case over to me for the purpose, as he said, of advertising me. I said, "Good heavens, Carroll, how can you expect to advertise me by giving me a big lawsuit such as this which you say at the outset cannot be won? You said I must not fool myself about succeeding in winning it. You just told me it was impossible to win it." He said, "I have written a two-page letter to the bank telling them the case cannot be won. I heard you try a case the other day, though you did not know it. What you need is advertising. This case will advertise you."

I could not understand how losing a case of any kind would favorably advertise a young lawyer. So I demurred very strongly. However, my partner had the upper hand and I had to follow his advice, and I did so.

There were 11 lawyers on the other side. The endorsers of the paper were all rich men, and they had employed good lawyers. I tried the case and to the astonishment of everyone I won it. The case went to the supreme court of the State of Tennessee and I finally won it there. But while it was there the lawyers on the other side, one of whom was Gen. Luke Wright, who was afterward Secretary of War under Theodore Roosevelt, another one of whom was Thomas B. Turley, who held the same position that I hold now as United States Senator—both were great lawyers—came to Colonel Carroll and offered to settle the case at 50 cents on the dollar, for half the face of the notes. Colonel Carroll recommended that settlement to the bank. The bank agreed to it.

Colonel Carroll, it seems, had delivered a talk at the bank directors' meeting, and had spoken about me. At that meeting one of the directors insisted on calling for me. I went there. The director said that Colonel Carroll had recommended that the bank accept the offer of settlement, and wanted to know what I would recommend if the case were mine. I may say it was not my case. It came to the office before I became a partner of Colonel Carroll. I tried to evade answering the question, but could not. So, very foolishly, I said, "Colonel Carroll and gentlemen, I would not accept that compromise." I placed myself in that position. I refused the compromise. It was not a compromise such as the one offered by us to the Senator from Arkansas. We offered him practically everything. The compromise in question was a 50–50 compromise. One of the directors said, "Mr. President, I move we reconsider and let the case take its course." So I was placed in the situation of continuing to fight the case, because the motion was adopted by the bank directors. The case went to the supreme court, and I won it there.

I will say I never spent any more unhappy days in my life than those I spent after having made that very foolish decision. I did not know what would finally happen. What did happen was that through good luck the supreme court decided in my favor, and my clients got every dollar of the money sued for.

The Senator from Arkansas may obtain every dollar he seeks, but I doubt it. If I were in his place I would certainly accept the approximately $4,000,000 cut out in the $36,000,000 asked for.

Looking at the matter in a plain, common-sense, everyday way, I express the hope that the Senate will stand by the committee. The subcommittee, of which the Senator from Nevada [Mr. McCARRAN] is chairman, which considered this matter gave it its best attention. They had received the very best proof and evidence that could be obtained on the subject. They recommended an immense amount of money to begin with.

Mr. President, we must not fool ourselves about the way we spend money. We are spending money too rapidly. There is no telling what may happen to us. We are already on the verge of a war, and we ought not to go haywire, so to speak, and throw money away.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McKELLAR. I yield.

Mr. CHAVEZ. In view of the arguments made yesterday, I desire to propound a question to the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. This body has been in existence longer than the public laws to which the Senator from Arkansas referred. Does not the Senator from Tennessee consider the amount of $32,000,000 allowed by the subcommittee and approved by the full committee for this program to be a respectable amount?

Mr. McKELLAR. Not only is the amount the committee recommended a respectable amount for the purpose in question, but it is one of the most generous things any government in the world has ever done. Members of this body are all highly educated and highly informed men. Does any Senator, man or woman, know of any comparable gift made by any government for the purpose of education—a gift made by one government to the citizens of other governments or to other governments? Does anyone know of any such generosity by one government to another government or by one people to another people? If so, I yield to any Senator who will rise to say that he knows of a more generous gift than this one. Mr. President, I think this is the most generous gift which ever was proposed.

It has been only during the past few years that we have felt that the Federal Government has the power to contribute to the cost of education in the States. However, under the proposal now before us we shall be providing for education all over the world.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McKELLAR. I yield.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Is it not a fact that we are not contributing to the individual States in the way that we shall be contributing to the foreign countries under this program?

Mr. McKELLAR. Undoubtedly that is true.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Is it not also true that although the Senate has passed a bill for Federal aid to education, the Congress as a whole has not passed it?

Mr. McKELLAR. Yes the House has not passed it.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Is it true that that measure is not the law of the land?

Mr. McKELLAR. Yes.

Mr. CHAVEZ. On the other hand, under the program now before us, we shall be contributing very liberally to the proposal sponsored very nobly, in my opinion, by the Senator from Arkansas; shall we not?

Mr. McKELLAR. Yes.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McKELLAR. I yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I wish to make it clear that the major part of this money is not for education at all. The amount of money to be used for that purpose is only a minor part of the entire amount. In the original budget estimate, only $682,000 was to be used for that purpose. If the amount provided is distributed according to the schedule I read a moment ago, which I obtained from the State Department, the amount of money to be used for education will be cut in half, reduced, let us say, to $350,000.

Certainly it is incorrect to leave the impression that the entire amount for this program will be used for educational purposes.

Mr. McKELLAR. If only $350,000 will be used for that purpose, what will become of the remainder of the $32,000,000 or $36,000,000?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I mean to say that the Senator from Tennessee left the impression that the entire amount is to be used for education.

Mr. McKELLAR. Then what is the remainder of the fund to be used for?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. The particular part to be used for the exchange of students is a very small portion of the full amount.

However, of course, I am interested in the entire program, including the library service, publications, radio, and other things.

Mr. McKELLAR. I wish to say that my neighbor from Arkansas—for he lives near me and he bears a very fine reputation in his State—is a very active and vigorous and, I think, successful logician, but I do not agree with his logic in this case; I think he goes too far. If we are to begin this plan, and if we are to continue with it, I think we should do so in a reasonable and an ordinary way. I think we should not undertake to spend such tremendous sums of money for such purposes while the state of the world is as it is at the present time.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, the principal purpose of the entire sum is to try to make the state of the world a little better.

Mr. McKELLAR. I know the Senator from Arkansas has that purpose, because nothing else could very well impel him to take the position he does regarding this matter. I know he conscientiously believes it. However, I think he is mistaken. It is not possible to buy the friendship of men or of nations. Sometimes we have tried to do so; but, as a matter of fact, it is impossible to purchase the friendship of either men or of nations. Those who try it find that it is a very difficult thing to do. We have tried it several times, and have found the difficulty; and I hope we never undertake it again.

Mr. President, I favor education as much as does anyone else. When I was a boy I had to work in the fields in the hot sun. Sometimes the temperature rose to 95 or 100; and it is rather difficult to chop cotton or plant corn or cultivate corn when the temperature is that high. However, finally I worked out my own education. I have the greatest sympathy for the boy or girl who is not educated, but who wants to have an education. We should help them in every way we can.

However, this proposal comes at the wrong time, just now.

I appeal to my colleagues in this body to vote with the committee on this matter, Mr. President. The committee has done a very sensible and fair and just thing. The Senator from Nevada [Mr. MCCARRAN], the chairman of the subcommittee, has allowed the Senator from Arkansas almost all he wants. The cup of the Senator from Arkansas may not be running over, but it is almost running over. Yet he comes before us now and opposes the allowance the committee has so generously voted to make in this matter.

I hope that upon second thought the Senator from Arkansas will withdraw his amendment to the committee amendment, for it should be withdrawn. This is no time to spend money in the way the Senator from Arkansas proposes.

Mr. President, strange as it may appear, there are in this country some boys and girls who need an education, and need it very badly. However, although we are making some provision for education, we are not doing so in the way that would be done for the young people of foreign countries under this proposal, under which considerable sums of money would be spent for that purpose in foreign countries. Strange as it may seem, Mr. President, of course— to look at the distinguished Senator from Arkansas—one would never think so, because he gives every appearance of success, happiness, good education, and everything else—but, strange as it may seem, there are in Arkansas some persons who would like to be educated in the way that the proposal now before us provides for the education of persons in foreign countries. Certainly there are in the United States, and certainly there are in Arkansas, in particular, young people who would like to have these grand trips and would like to have this generosity showered upon them. However, this is not the time to do so.

This program should be deferred, Mr. President.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MCKELLAR. I yield.

Mr. LEHMAN. I simply wish to point out——

Mr. MCKELLAR. Mr. President, I yield for a question.

Mr. LEHMAN. I was going to make an observation.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, I should like to ask the chairman of the Appropriations Committee a question. Does not the chairman of the Appropriations Committee think that in order to show the people of the United States just what this money is to be spent for, the entire wording of this particular section of the bill—appearing on pages 53 to 55—should be inserted at this point in the RECORD? Let me read it, if the indulgence of the Senator from Tennessee is granted me for the moment, so that we may keep the record clear as to how much money the American people, the taxpayers—the ones who would punish the Senate— are willing to spend for this particular purpose:

For expenses necessary to enable the Department of State to carry out international information and educational activities—

That, of course, has nothing to do with the educational program about which the Senator from Arkansas talks. But—as authorized by the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948.

We then come to the following:

Salaries, expenses, and allowances of personnel and dependents as authorized by the Foreign Service Act of 1946 * * *; expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with activities provided for under this appropriation (not to exceed $11,000); printing and binding; entertainment within the United States.

This is not for the entertainment of American boys or American girls, but it is for the entertainment of those who are to become the beneficiaries of the $32,700,000.

Mr. MCKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

The PRESIRING OFFICER. Does the Senator from New Mexico yield to the Senator from Tennessee?

Mr. CHAVEZ. I yield.

Mr. MCKELLAR. My understanding is—and I ask the Senator from Arkansas whether it is correct—that the students are to be brought to the United States from various foreign countries at the expense of the United States, they are to be kept here at our expense, and they are to be educated at the expense of the United States Government—all of which, as I have said time and again this afternoon to the Senator from Arkansas, is very generous. It is extremely generous. It is extraordinarily generous. The Senator cannot mention another country that has ever done anything like it. It is wonderfully generous. But it is all being done at the expense of the United States. The budget of the United States Government is not balanced, as we all know. I hope to heaven it will be balanced, and balanced soon. I believe that a country ought to pay its debts, just as I believe that a man ought to pay his debts. A man who does not do so is hardly worthy to live.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, I should like to proceed, in order to make the RECORD straight as to where the $32,700,000 which the committee approved, and which is now being recommended to the Senate for its approval, is to go. I mentioned entertainment within the United States.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. How much?

Mr. MCKELLAR. Is it so much per day?

Mr. CHAVEZ. It is "not to exceed $5,000." Nevertheless, that $5,000 is part of the $32,700,000 recommended by the Senate committee. Reading further from the bill:

Hire of passenger motor vehicles.

Are those for American boys or American girls? I ask the Senator from Arkansas. It continues:

Services as authorized by section 15 of the act of August 2, 1946 * * *; advance of funds notwithstanding section 3648 of the Revised Statutes as amended; actual expenses of preparing and transporting to their former homes the remains of persons—

That is, transporting their remains when they die here—

not United States Government employees, who may die away from their homes while participating in activities authorized under this appropriation; establishment and operation of agricultural and other experiment and demonstration stations in other American countries, on land acquired by gift or lease, and construction of necessary buildings thereon; radio activities and acquisition and production of motion pictures and visual materials and purchase or rental of technical equipment and facilities therefor, narration and script-writing, by contract or otherwise; and purchase of objects for presentation to foreign governments—

A presentation to our Government? A presentation to our schools and to our institutions? No—to foreign governments, schools, or organizations; $32,700,000—

The sum approved by the Committee on Appropriations.

I think the committee has been extremely liberal. If the argument yesterday was correct, that this body cannot provide for itself necessary and adequate office space and rooms in order to take care of the needs of Senators, so that an employee may be able to wash her hands in privacy, then I think the same argument should be used in this particular instance, because as stated by the distinguished Senator from Tennessee, the committee has been liberal, and its action should be sustained. We have been extremely liberal, Mr. President.

Mr. MCKELLAR. Mr. President, I thank the Senator very much. I now want to yield to my friend from New York.

SEVERAL SENATORS. Question! Question!

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT] to the committee amendment.

Mr. MCCARRAN. Mr. President, the solicitude of the able Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT] is appreciated. He appeared before the committee and made an extensive statement, in his able way. The trouble now is that the Senator, to my mind, is addressing himself to the wrong tribunal. The committee has recommended an appropriation of $32,700,000, which the State Department can allocate as it sees fit. It can cut its program if it sees fit, though it is not required to do so. What the Senator from Arkansas can do is to address the State Department and see to it that the cut is not quite so deep as is indicated by his figure.

I have a copy of the figures I think the Senator was using today, by which it is proposed to cut the item of exchange-of-persons program $300,000. I do not see that that is necessary. The Department can do as it likes about that.

Mr. President, the committee recommends an appropriation of $32,700,000, which is $1,300,000 below the House figure, and $3,945,000 below the Budget Bureau's estimate.

For 1950, the appropriation was $47,300,000. But $11,475,000 of that amount was for a nonrecurring item, namely, the construction of radio range and facilities. The committee is aware that there are those who favor tremendous increase in this item. We have heard all kinds of figures that could be used in connection with this program. The committee's recommendation is felt to be sufficient, in view of the Government's present fiscal condition, and we feel that the amount recommended will allow a well balanced program in the field.

If this were the only money to be applied to this particular objective it might be different. At least, those who are so solicitous about it might have some concern. But let me say that ECA has a technical assistance program of $15,000,000, which involves the very same items. The High Commissioner of Germany has a program of $18,500,000, which involves almost the same identical item as this. The Government of Occupied Areas has a program of $4,350,000, involving items such as this; and Point 4, with $10,000,000, in this very bill, has a program quite similar to this.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Nevada yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. McCARRAN. I will yield in a moment.

Mr. President, sometimes we can take cognizance of rumors. There is a rumor which is now prevalent that the President is to send to the Senate a message requesting a supplemental $100,000,000 to be applied to this particular program. The Appropriations Committee was guided by what was thought to be, and which is now thought to be, the view of the Congress. In other words, it is necessary to make a cut somewhere. With reference to this program, perhaps if we had $20,000,000,000 to spare, more might be appropriated for it. But we do not have it. There is a deficit now, and it is increasing. We are operating "in the red," and we are going to go further "in the red." From day to day we are going to have a call for more and more appropriations for necessities, in order that we may save lives abroad, in order that we may bring this war to an end—call it a war or a police activity, or whatever one may wish to call it; I care not what.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. I promised to yield to the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, the Senator mentioned the point 4 program, involving $10,000,000. Is it not true that we authorized the transfer of over $2,000,000 into that fund?

Mr. McCARRAN. That is correct; but does not that all the more augment my position?

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I would gather from the attitude of the Senator and from the attitude of the other members of the committee that any proposals for any increased sums would certainly meet with a cold reception in the committee. If it is unwilling to recommend in this instance an appropriation of approximately $36,000,000, how in the world can any proposal of $100,000,000 be expected to be accepted? Here is a regular program which has been authorized by two legislative acts. It is in being; it is functioning.

Mr. McCARRAN. That is correct.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. So, in my opinion, it is not logical to cut it on the basis of rumors as to some other programs which may or may not come up.

Mr. McCARRAN. But we are not cutting it. The Senator takes a position, which led to a fallacious statement a while ago, that this will ruin the entire program. It will not do anything of the kind.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. It would certainly weaken it.

Mr. McCARRAN. The Senator's attitude is like that of the character in the fable who was holding out for more. We would give the Senator more if it were possible, and if we could see the results.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield on that point before he goes to another point?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I am perfectly willing to join with the committee to cut the ECA appropriation. They are both designed for the same purpose, namely, to further our foreign policy. It is my considered judgment that a dollar spent in connection with this program will bring greater returns than will a dollar spent for ECA. There we have a program calling for $3,000,000,000, but the committee could not swallow $36,000,000. If the Senator wants to save money by cutting the ECA appropriation, he has my vote.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, let me say, in response to what the able Senator from Arkansas has just said, that as chairman of the watchdog committee I went before the Appropriations Committee and recommended a cut in ECA so that the amount would be only $2,200,000,000, plus the carry-over, which is $276,000,000. I think the ECA appropriation should be cut; I have said so repeatedly. I think it should be reduced so that in 1952 it will be cut out completely. Somewhere along the line, Mr. President, the Congress must curtail expenditures. Here is a place where, if the program has all the merits claimed for it—and I am not going to argue about that—the Senator from Arkansas can take his fine argument to the State Department and say, "Do not cut this program; cut somewhere else." I think it would be a forceful argument, because if he presents his argument to the State Department as he presented it to the Subcommittee on Appropriations, he will be very convincing. That is why he is getting what he is getting.

I apologize to the Senator. I did not mean it as a personal matter at all. The program is now receiving a large amount from the Appropriations Committee. If the State Department wants to cut the particular item $300,000, it is not the fault of the Appropriations Committee. They can allocate the appropriation as they see fit and as they think the program deserves.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I should like to make it clear that I asked the committee to earmark a minimum amount for the program, but the committee refused to do so.

Mr. McCARRAN. That is correct.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. The Senator knows better than I do how these things operate. They have certain overhead expenses, and there is nothing I can do about it, and the Senator from Nevada cannot do anything about it.

Mr. McCARRAN. Cuts are always made where there is the greatest pull on the heart strings. That is the reason why the program in which the Senator from Arkansas is so much interested has been cut. It was known that the Senator, with his natural eloquence, would go to the floor and try to have the amount restored.

Mr. President, I shall not hold the Senate any longer. The committee held full and careful hearings on the question.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I should like to say to the Senator from Nevada, first, that I congratulate him. I felt he did a very thorough and careful job with his administrative assistants and with the administrative assistants of the committee in working out the various provisions of this chapter of the appropriations bill. As the member of the minority party who was in part responsible for this bill, I finally agreed with the Senator from Nevada on every single item of the chapter with the exception of this particular item. The budget estimate was $36,645,000. The House cut it to $34,000,000. A motion was made in the subcommittee to cut it to $30,000,000, but it was finally compromised at $32,700,000.

I hope, in view of the rumor, which I think is more than a rumor, which the Senator from Nevada has mentioned, regarding an additional $100,000,000, we may properly leave the committee suggestion where it is and deal with the $100,000,000 when the request is presented.

There was a very great difference of opinion in the subcommittee and in the full committee as to the amount, and I felt, in the end, that $32,700,000 was approximately fair.

I would respectfully say that it is my belief that it adds to the security of our country to give information to other nations as to what we believe is helpful for them to know and to understand with relation to our mode of life and with relation to what the ideal of democracy in its full sense means. I would point out—I do not think it has yet been pointed out—that under the estimates $11,700,000, in round figures, would go to radio; $3,800,000 to motion pictures; $6,200,000 to the press; $4,100,000 to libraries; $3,500,000 to exchange of persons, which is the interest of the Senator from Arkansas; $2,900,000 to technical cooperation; $9,100,000 to the USEI Mission; and $3,200,000 for administrative purposes.

As the Senator from Nevada has stated, those estimates would be cut down $2,300,000 in their total amount. This was a compromise, after long discussion. While I should like to see the amount greater, I think it is as fair a compromise as could be reached under all the circumstances. The statements which have been made concerning additional amounts for this purpose have been considered, and I believe we should let this item go unchallenged.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, I appeal to the Senate that after such full consideration has been given, the amendment offered by the able Senator from Arkansas should not be adopted.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. What would the Senator suggest as to a limitation, along the line of my suggestion to the committee as to a supplementation?

Mr. McCARRAN. I would not have the authority to commit the committee. That matter was presented.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. What would be the Senator's personal feelings? Would he personally support such a limitation?

Mr. McCARRAN. Not in this bill.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. He would not?

Mr. McCARRAN. Not in this bill.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, I wish to make an observation, but I do not want to take up the time of the distinguished Senator from Nevada.

Mr. McCARRAN. It is perfectly agreeable to me to have the Senator make his observation at this time.

Mr. LEHMAN. I wish to thank the Senator for his courtesy. I merely wish to make one point. There seems to be a mistaken impression entertained by some Members of the Senate. The impression seems to be that the greater part of the funds provided in this item of the bill would be used for educational purposes, the project described and advocated by the distinguished Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT]. That project is a valuable one, and I favor it. However, I wish to point out that the amount for educational purposes out of the proposed appropriation of $36,645,000 to supplement the other funds for education would be less than 10 percent. It is closer to 5 percent of the entire amount.

As the able Senator from Massachusetts has pointed out, the greater part of the funds to be provided would be used for other purposes. The $36,000,000 would be used mainly to prove to the world—to our friends and to those whom we hope to make our friends—that the purposes of this country are unselfish and that we have no devious designs. I think one of the most unfortunate features of this whole situation is the fact that our purposes and our political philosophy have been misrepresented, largely in Asia, but in other parts of the world as well, by the Soviets and their satellites. We know our purposes are noble. We know that our record for the past 150 years is a noble one. Unfortunately, all the people of the world do not know that. They must be told it time and time again. The facts must be brought home to them. That is the only way in which we can make friends.

Mr. President, last night I voted against the erection of a new Senate Office Building which would have cost $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 before completion. I did so very reluctantly. I did it at great cost to my convenience and the efficiency of my office; but, as I pointed out, I felt that this was not the time to use money for nonessentials. I said I wanted to use available funds—and more funds will be needed than we realize today—to be used, first, for our security and that of our friends and allies, second, for the health and welfare of the people of the Nation, and third, for the efficient operation of government. I said I intended to cast my votes in the Senate for those purposes.

I believe the item under consideration is a defense and security item. If there ever was a security measure, this is one. I believe if we can hold our friends and make new ones based on confidence and respect for us as a people and for our purposes, we shall not only insure our military security but shall save a great deal of money as well. I think it is a pity that the amount of money asked for, $36,645,000, which in itself is far less than I think should be made available for this purpose, has been reduced to $32,700,000, which represents a cut of more than 10 percent. Therefore, I have urged in several colloquys—and urge now—that we increase this appropriation to the sum recommended by the Budget Bureau.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, the argument made by the able Senator from New York is the same argument to which we have listened before. If we had hundreds of billions of dollars lying in our Treasury today, the argument might have great force. However, we do not have it. Somewhere along the line, Mr. President, some agencies must curtail—not be destroyed, not be put out of existence, but curtailed. That is necessary so that all agencies of the Government may have a reasonable sum of money with which to operate.

Mr. President, as we go through this bill for several days we shall find that many agencies have had to accept reasonable curtailment. If they were to make their pleas to the Senate, they would make them as forcibly as the able Senator from New York and the able Senator from Arkansas have made their pleas. This proposal would not destroy the program in which the Senators are interested. It would not impair it to the extent that it could be called an impairment. It would curtail the program, so that those who foster, promote, and guide it may be guarded in their expenditures by the admonition which the Congress would bring to them by way of the imposition of this cut in the appropriation.

Mr. President, I hope that the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas will not prevail.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hill	Saltonstall
Bricker	Hoey	Schoeppel
Butler	Holland	Smith, Maine
Connally	Knowland	Smith, N. J.
Donnell	Lehman	Sparkman
Douglas	Lucas	Taft
Dworshak	McCarran	Thomas, Okla.
Hendrickson	McKellar	Wherry
Hickenlooper	Robertson	Williams

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum is not present. The clerk will call the names of the absent Senators.

The legislative clerk called the names of the absent Senators, and Mr. BREWSTER, Mr. CHAVEZ, Mr. FULBRIGHT, Mr. GEORGE, Mr. GREEN, Mr. HAYDEN, Mr. KEM, Mr. MAGNUSON, Mr. MAYBANK, Mr. MURRAY, and Mr. O'MAHONEY answered to their names when called.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum is not present.

Mr. LUCAS. I move that the Sergeant at Arms be directed to request the attendance of absent Senators.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sergeant at Arms will execute the order of the Senate.

After a little delay Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. MARTIN, Mr. CHAPMAN, Mr. MCMAHON, Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado, Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina, Mr. MCCLELLAN, Mr. JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. IVES, Mr. CORDON, Mr. MCFARLAND, Mr. EASTLAND, Mr. ANDERSON, Mr. KILGORE, Mr. GURNEY, Mr. FERGUSON, Mr. BYRD, Mr. FREAR, Mr. BRIDGES, Mr. GILLETTE, Mr. LODGE, Mr. MUNDT, Mr. TYDINGS, Mr. MYERS, Mr. LANGER, Mr. YOUNG, Mr. WATKINS, Mr. MILLIKIN, Mr. O'CONOR, Mr. WILEY, Mr. JENNER, Mr. STENNIS, Mr. THOMAS of Utah, Mr. MCCARTHY, Mr. THYE, Mr. NEELY, Mr. MORSE, Mr. ECTON, Mr. MALONE, and Mr. GRAHAM entered the Chamber and answered to their names.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum is present.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT] to the committee amendment on page 54, in line 13.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. DONNELL. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. DONNELL. Will the Chair please state the pending question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT] to the committee amendment on page 54, in line 13, namely, to insert, in lieu of the figure "$32,700,000", the figure "$36,645,000."

On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MYERS. I announce that the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BENTON] is absent on public business, and if present would vote "yea."

The Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. KERR], and the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL] are detained on official business.

The Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HUNT] and the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. KEFAUVER] are absent on official committee business.

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR], and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. LEAHY] and the Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER] are necessarily absent.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY], and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The Senator from Vermont [Mr. FLANDERS] is necessarily absent.

The Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART] is detained on official business.

The result was announced—yeas 25, nays 53, as follows:

YEAS—25

Douglas	Johnson, Tex.	Murray
Fulbright	Lehman	Myers
Graham	Lodge	Neely
Hayden	McClellan	O'Conor
Hill	McFarland	Smith, N. J.
Holland	McMahon	Sparkman
Humphrey	Magnuson	Wiley
Ives	Morse
Johnson, Colo.	Mundt

NAYS—53

Aiken	Gillette	Maybank
Anderson	Green	Millikin
Brewster	Gurney	O'Mahoney
Bricker	Hendrickson	Robertson
Bridges	Hickenlooper	Saltonstall
Butler	Hoey	Schoeppel
Byrd	Jenner	Smith, Maine
Chapman	Johnston, S. C.	Stennis
Chavez	Kem	Taft
Connally	Kilgore	Thomas, Okla.
Cordon	Knowland	Thomas, Utah
Donnell	Langer	Thye
Dworshak	Lucas	Tydings
Eastland	McCarran	Watkins
Ecton	McCarthy	Wherry
Ferguson	McKellar	Williams
Frear	Malone	Young
George	Martin

NOT VOTING—18

Benton	Flanders	Pepper
Cain	Hunt	Russell
Capehart	Kefauver	Taylor
Darby	Kerr	Tobey
Downey	Leahy	Vandenberg
Ellender	Long	Withers

So Mr. FULBRIGHT'S amendment to the committee amendment was rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question now is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 54, beginning in line 13.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The next amendment of the committee will be stated.

The next amendment was, on page 54, in line 20, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$3,000,000" and insert "$2,875,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Philippine rehabilitation," on page 55, line 21, after the numerals "1949", to strike out "$13,000,000" and insert "$10,000,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. DOUGLAS. When the committee amendment decreases the appropriation made by the House, would a motion to cut the appropriation still further require unanimous consent?

The VICE PRESIDENT. No. The Chair thinks that an amendment to a committee amendment is in order.

Mr. DOUGLAS. But at a later period, after we have gone over the bill chapter by chapter?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate is now considering the bill amendment by amendment. Whenever a committee amendment is before the Senate, that is the time to offer an amendment to it, not to wait, because, as the Senate goes through the bill, the committee amendments are being agreed to. Regardless of what chapter they are in, amendments to committee amendments must be offered at the time the committee amendments are being considered.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I understand that that is true, when the committee amendment increases the amount authorized by the House.

The VICE PRESIDENT. It does not matter whether it increases it or decreases it.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I thank the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 55, line 21.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, yesterday we discussed briefly before the Senate the possibility of reaching some kind of unanimous-consent agreement limiting the time of debate on various amendments and on the bill. It seems to me that, after having taken all day yesterday upon one amendment, and having taken practically 3½ hours this afternoon on another amendment, if we are to expedite the voting on amendments and the passage of the bill, we ought to be able to reach a unanimous-consent agreement. I suggested some time ago that possibly an agreement allowing 10 minutes to each Senator who might desire to speak upon any amendment would be acceptable. It would certainly be satisfactory to the Senator from Illinois and, I think, to most of the Senators on this side of the aisle. I again inquire of the Senator from Nebraska as to whether it may be possible to obtain an agreement of that kind.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, in answer to the inquiry made by the distinguished majority leader, I may say that there has been much work done in an attempt to get an agreement with respect to the time for debating the amendments. I should like to state to the majority leader, however, that I know of two amendments to be filed which have not yet been filed. After they are presented, I am satisfied we can work out some sort of an arrangement. Those who intend to present those amendments desire more time. I had even thought of suggesting an exception as to a few amendments and perhaps agreeing on a limitation as to the remainder of them. I also thought of proposing a time limit on debate of the chapters.

While I desire to cooperate with the majority leader, I must say that until the amendments to which I have referred have been offered—which I hope will be done not later than this afternoon or tomorrow morning—I would not be in a position to go along with a unanimous-consent request. However, I think it can be worked out as soon as those amendments have been offered.

Mr. LUCAS. May I inquire of the Senator from Nebraska the approximate length of time which will be necessary in order to debate the particular amendments referred to which have not yet been offered?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, if the Senator will bear with me, there are two or three speeches on matters other than amendments, as to which it may be desirable to endeavor to limit the time, if Senators want to make speeches.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I should like to be permitted to finish my answer.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Certainly.

Mr. WHERRY. For example, I know of at least two speeches on subjects other than the appropriation bill which would have to be canceled completely or limited to 10 minutes. As I said, if the Senator will bear with us, we are trying to iron out this matter. I am not in a position to do it today, but if the majority leader will renew his request, which I think is a very legitimate one, I shall try to answer the inquiry definitely sometime tomorrow.

Mr. LUCAS. I shall subside for the moment, and shall interrogate the Senator later.

Mr. WHERRY. I thank the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I am in full sympathy with the suggestion made by the Senator from Illinois, but I do not believe that any Senator who is trying to proceed with the appropriation bill is to be blamed when time is taken out for other matters. If the Senator from Illinois and the Senator from Nebraska will consult the RECORD of yesterday, they will see that it was not the Senator from Louisiana, the Senator from New Mexico, or anyone else handling the appropriation bill who took the time. The debate was on something else. I shall be in complete sympathy with the Senator from Illinois if he will ask unanimous consent to limit debate on the appropriation bill, and will at the same time propose a limitation of debate on other matters. It is not fair to blame the Committee on Appropriations for the debates which took place yesterday.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I am not attaching any blame to the Committee on Appropriations. I have all the affection and respect in the world for the distinguished chairman, who sits at my side day after day, and for all the other members of the Appropriations Committee. I was only attempting to follow through with a more or less tentative arrangement which had been discussed with different Members of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next committee amendment.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "The Institute of Inter-American Affairs," on page 56, line 15, after the word "vehicles", to strike out "$5,500,000" and insert "$5,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

SIGNIFICANCE OF KOREAN HOSTILITIES—NOT A LOCAL MATTER, BUT AN INCIDENT IN U. S. S. R. STRATEGY

Mr. FERGUSON. No one who has followed the course of events since the closing years of World War II could have any doubts about the meaning of hostilities in Korea. Except for Koreans themselves, north and south of the thirty-eighth parallel, the situation in Korea is not a local matter. It is definitely an incident in Russian world strategy directed from Moscow. Proof of this central fact is indisputable. Any appraisal which fails to recognize this fact would be unrealistic.

Taken by themselves, the Korean people's only desire is the national unity and independence of their country. If left wholly to themselves, without intervention from outside influences, developments in Korea might be considered a local matter. Factional strife might even have been avoided if Korea had not been split into two areas, with each area conditioned into opposing factions.

But the Korean situation has not developed in a vacuum. It came about in the framework of Soviet strategy in its war against the United States and other free countries. As in the division of Germany and Austria, the Soviet Union managed the division of Korea to provide the Soviets with a base and instrument for its operations. This is what raises the Korean outbreak from a local matter to an international affair.

U. S. S. R. WORLD STRATEGY

Russian relations with the rest of the world flow in two main channels: (1) old-style Russian imperialism, and (2) the Communist crusade. Each is complementary to the other; wherever Russia extends her national boundaries, possessions, and interests, communism is served; and wherever communism makes headway Russian national interests are served.

Under the policy of imperialism, Russia has taken over territories formerly independent as in Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia. She has also taken territory belonging to other nations such as parts of Poland, Finland, Bulgaria, and Manchuria in China. Where it was wise not to take over territories, Russia has sovietized them in the form of satellites which accept Russian domination and do her bidding. These are her spheres of influence and the colonies she exploits, all well-known forms of imperialist policies. She is welding them into a Pan-Slav union, an old Russian imperialist dream. Other imperialist policies are Russia's attempts to reach out toward natural resources, such as Iran oil and Chinese minerals, attempts to control warm-water ports, Port Arthur, attempts to control strategic waters, the Turkish Dardenelles, the Gulf of Finland, the China Sea, attempts to control offshore islands, such as Kuriles and Sakhalin, and finally, attempts to exert her influence in the affairs of other regions, western Europe, Africa, non-Communist Asia and the South Pacific. These are the old imperialist policies in a modern world setting.

Under the Communist crusade, Russia is the mother of Communists everywhere who are committed to the destruction of all nations, peoples, institutions, and agencies which resist domination by communism. By division and disruption, propaganda, lies, treaty violations, infiltration, obstruction of normal processes, fifth columns, Communist fronts, puppet governments, and by fomenting discord and strife, Russia seeks to undermine the strength and independence of the free world. The success of these Communist activities throughout the world varies from low to high degree, but everywhere the movement is pushed in preparation for the day when a revolutionary situation provides the opportunity for Communists to take over.

Resistance to Russian imperialism and to the Communist crusade has been given the name "cold war" because the Communist tactics do not fit in with the old idea of hot-lead war. But this is a misnomer springing from the failure to understand the nature of modern warfare. In the past, war was the attempt to conquer by force of arms, but if the emphasis is placed where it should be—on the word "conquer"—then war is any means by which one or a group of nations seeks to conquer others. The context of the modern world is such that instruments exist to conquer nations without the firing of a shot. They are the instruments Russia now employs in Communist activities. The conclusion is irresistible that the Communist crusade openly directed by the U. S. S. R. is war, in its fullest meaning, against the free world. Failure to recognize this on the part of free nations has already resulted in widespread Russian successes in areas where they might never have been gained if the true nature of the Communist movement had been understood.

Russian world strategy regards the Eurasian land mass as the base of operations. The U. S. S. R. itself is at the center. The first step in Russian strategy was to surround herself with a belt of controlled territory and peoples for the purpose of insulating Russia against direct attacks from without. It provides her with expendable manpower, resources, and defense in depth. Except for the Arctic, where weather is an important ally and safety factor, this insulating ring is now complete.

Russia is well into the second stage of her world strategy which consists of movements east, west, and south as opportunity arises. The tactics of the Communist crusade help to prepare these opportunities. They create "soft" spots and trouble areas in which it is safe to move. Russia's position as the safely insulated hub of a wheel permits her to move freely and at will in almost any direction. She can and does employ the tactics of diversion. Today, it is the Berlin airlift. Tomorrow it is the threat to the oil fields of Iran. At another time, the thrust is in the direction of the Turkish Dardenelles. Tito's Yugoslavia is threatened; Finland and the Scandinavian countries are threatened. Sometimes Russia moves directly as in the Baltic countries and in the Berlin blockade. At other times, she equips, encourages, and supports native satellites to move as in China. Everywhere the Communist crusade continues to weaken and disrupt free and independent nations.

Where the soft spot crumbles, either Russia moves in directly or natives of the area extend the Russian system with her aid. Each success increases Russia's strength and prestige, weakens the resistance of intended victims, or paralyzes them by fear.

If the soft spot becomes firm, Russia tempers her thrust just enough to remain on the safe side while she compels the resisting area to expend its energies, as in the Berlin airlift, Greece, and Persia. At the same time she creates a diversion at some other soft spot or troubled area.

By using expendable satellite manpower and resources, Russia exploits situations which entail great cost to her principal opponents, the United States and the free western nations, with little direct cost to the U. S. S. R. She compels them to put severe strains on their economies. She forces them to divert manpower and resources to military preparedness and to risk costly military adventures. She fills their people with anxiety and fear. In this state of nerves, the free nations are ripe for internal discord craftily created by Soviet agents, and ready to fall out with each other. Russia thus conducts a steady war of attrition against the free world. The free nations are aware of Russia's destructive tactics, but they react exactly as Russia has planned to have them react. They protest and then appease her with concessions. They rush men and materials to every trouble spot and thus put further strains on their national strength. They try to "contain" her in areas so vast as to cause them to spend their power dangerously thin. They expend their resources on the inexhaustible job of creating better living conditions all over the world in the hope they can create a climate of opinion more favorable to free nations than to communism. They set up extensive networks for radio propaganda to reach people who either have no radios or are only permitted to listen to Communist broadcasting, or to whom words are extraneous in the daily struggle to exist.

All the while, by the cunning nature of her warfare, Russia is safe in her homeland, strengthening her economy and building her military potential for the day she decides to throw them into action for the coup de grace to the free world. Time and the blindness of the free nations are Russia's most valuable allies.

PLACE OF THE KOREAN INCIDENT IN U. S. S. R. WORLD STRATEGY

The Korean incident is the latest move in Russia's world strategy. The arbitrary split of Korea enabled her to move in with Russia occupation troops and control North Korea. Russia sovietized the area, set up a puppet government, drilled and equipped a Korean Army prepared for aggression. She dropped an iron curtain at the thirty-eighth parallel and resisted all attempts of her wartime allies and the United Nations to unify Korea under a single national government by free and peaceful procedures. She fanned factional strife between North and South Korea and encouraged the north to spy upon, infiltrate, and terrorize South Korea. Anyone who went to South Korea and visited the capital, Seoul, found this out immediately. They were anticipating an attack at any minute.

Last December, when the junior Senator from Michigan was there, people were being killed by the Communists in the south of Korea. There were border incidents. There was news that an attack might come at any time.

After 2 years of this warfare, called "cold war" here in America, Korea was a prime trouble spot on the rim of the Russian orbit ready for Russia's strategy.

Russia then waited for the free nations, principally the United States, to play into her hands. This is an essential part of Russian world strategy. This the United States proceeded to do. Under United States supervision, South Korean forces were held down to a police constabulary, so far as arms for aggression or to defend against a war of aggression were concerned. They were not equipped to resist invasion or to wage counterattack in warfare. Considerable sums of money were voted by Congress for Korean aid, but not expended. American occupation forces were withdrawn last July without making it crystal clear that the United States would come to South Korean aid if the area was attacked.

Only a few days ago I asked the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, the day after the attack, what the commitment of America was to South Korea. That question received no answer, because apparently the United States did not want to have a definite policy. On occasion after occasion, with reference to China, Formosa, and Korea, the American State Department indicated American unwillingness to aid or protect the area. On the contrary, the United States gave reason for Russia to believe that the outermost line of American interest in the Pacific was a line off the Asiatic shore running from Japan to Okinawa to the Philippines.

When this was clear to Russia, the preparation was complete for a thrust from North Korea when it suited Russia to move. On June 25, the thrust began. The time was well chosen. Some 2 or 3 weeks remained before the heavy monsoon rains would set in. A quick thrust on an unprepared and abandoned South Korea would permit the North Koreans to occupy the capital of Seoul, the chief inland centers and ports, and possibly overrun the entire country before the rains began and before effective aid could be given to South Korea. The Communists would thereafter have time to consolidate their gains, mop up the country and present the free world with an accomplished situation about which nothing could be done short of a declaration of war against Korea. At the most, Russia undoubtedly reasoned, the United States and other free nations would protest loudly and hotly in the United Nations, but Russia had many ways to handle that without war. And so another advance in world communism would be accomplished and the task of dominating the remainder of Asia would be made easier for her.

AMERICAN REACTION TO THE COMMUNIST THRUST IN KOREA

In a complete reversal of American policy toward the Asiatic mainland, the President ordered immediate aid to South Korea. The timetable between the beginning of the invasion, American aid, and United Nations action, is a matter of hours and the order of the steps somewhat irregular. It was clear that the United States determined to move in any event, but simultaneously sought United Nations authorization and approval. I say that that was the proper step. Thereafter American aid was expanded into actual American participation with United Nations approval in what was called police action on a breach of the peace.

Asserting concern for its own security in the Pacific, the United States went beyond the Korean situation to prevent Formosa from threatened invasion, to speed aid to the French in Indochina, and to strengthen the Philippines. The Formosan action amounted to American intervention in the war between Nationalist and Communist China.

American action was interpreted as the drawing of a line to contain communism in Asia somewhat parallel to American efforts to prevent Communist expansion in western Europe, Greece, Turkey, and Iran. The action was well received in the United States and in free nations abroad, with a feeling that the air had been clarified and at long last a positive American far eastern policy laid down.

RUSSIAN REACTION TO THE AMERICAN MOVE

There is much to indicate that Russia was surprised by the speed and forcefulness of American action. She was probably taken off guard by the equally swift and decisive action of the United Nations Security Council.

Russia's appraisal of American policy led her to believe that the United States would not fight for Korea. Russia's experience in the United Nations led her to believe that there would be some protest, much talk, and no action. Probably Russia believed that inaction would be certain anyway if she remained away from the emergency sessions. There are many explanations for Russia's abstention from the emergency sessions, but whatever the true cause may be Russia was taken by surprise at the decisiveness of the Security Council's action. It was not until after the second meeting of the Council on June 27 when sanctions were authorized and American military action approved that Russia awakened to the importance of the Security Council's action. Even then it was not until July 3 that North Korea made her protest to the United Nations, and July 4 before Gromyko issued the Russian statement. Both statements made the same case, and were almost identical in almost the same language, charging South Korea with the attack by instigation of American imperialists.

Although the United States, with the support of almost 50 members of the United Nations, practically threw down the gauntlet to Russia, the Soviet Union did not take on the direct challenge. This indicated that for the time being at least, Russia was not ready to risk a war in which she is directly engaged. I wish to underscore the words, "in which she is directly engaged." She preferred to wait and see, undoubtedly to appraise the situation for the next move. Russia will probably observe the course of the military action and wait until the balance is tipped clearly before deciding upon her next move.

COURSES THE KOREAN INCIDENT MAY TAKE

The North Korean forces are committed to invasion, and I think we must assume that they will press on until halted and forced to withdraw. The United States and the United Nations are committed to halt the invasion, and America will step up American military action until North Korean forces are driven north of the thirty-eighth parallel.

It will take time, but in the absence of any other contingency, it is almost certain that the United States miiltary forces will prevail, although at great damage to Korea and her people, both in the North and in the South.

It is the possibility of other contingencies which creates the real risk and danger in the situation. We must look for these contingencies. What are they?

The key to the future lies in Russia's hands. What Russia does now or in the immediate future will determine the course of world history. By her management of conditions, as well as by American mismanagement of conditions, Russia alone has freedom of action in the present Korean situation. What are the probabilities?

First. Russia can regard the Korean situation as merely another incident on the fringe of her borders. She can protest to the United States and before the United Nations while taking no action and risk of her own. She can make much propaganda in the Far East about American imperialism and aggression.

This would mean that Russia elects to treat Korea as an expendable satellite on the fringe of Communist Russia's borders. Korean manpower and resources would be risked without cost, or at only small cost to Russia.

Such a decision would be in perfect harmony with Russia's grand strategy to use satellites and fringe incidents in different parts of the world to compel the United States and other free countries to exhaust their resources, strain their economies, and expend their manpower in the steady war of attrition.

The effect of such action upon the United States and in the United Nations would be to confine the Korean incident to an international police action. In due time the North Korean invaders would be pushed back north of the thirty-eighth parallel and the problem of an independent Korea would either be left to time or to the involved conciliation machinery of the United Nations, where Russia may even salvage something for her aims in that vast area.

World opinion would dictate that either the United States or the United Nations repair the physical damage done to the helpless Koreans and their country. Thus the cost of police action and the cost of subsequent repair would be borne by the free nations of the world, principally the United States.

Police action rather than war is the minimum possibility, probably what both the United States and the United Nations hope for, that can result in the Korean situation. But if nothing more than this eventuates, Russia will have aimed for one target, Communist control of Korea, and hit another—further wearing down of the United States at small cost and absolutely no risk to the U. S. S. R.

Second. As things now stand, Russia can swing aid, not her own and without committing her own country to any war risk whatever, in the form of Manchurian Chinese and even Koreans now in Manchurian armies. Anywhere from 100,000 to half a million men could be moved quickly to the support of North Korea.

A variant of this move is to recruit Communist brigades from the Communist satellites of eastern Europe and throw them to the support of North Korea, much as was done in the Spanish civil war.

Should this take place, the hope of the United States and of the United Nations to confine the North Korean outbreak to police action would fail. There are limits to the idea of police action. Driving a well-drilled, well-equipped North Korean army of at least 100,000 men back north of the thirty-eighth parallel already strains the idea of police action. Many people are wondering why we call this a police action and not war when our boys are dying in Korea. However, in the circumstances it is tenable. But if reenforcements of Manchurian Chinese or international Communist brigades are thrown to the support of North Korea, the idea of police action against them is strained to the ridiculous. The condition then passes from police action to war.

Chinese Communist forces may very well move to the support of North Korea on the ground that American Formosan action is belligerent intervention in the Chinese civil war. If they take this stand the United States would find itself in the double role of police agent for the United Nations and de facto party to war with China. In this case, the latter would swallow the former, and the United States would stand in the deplorable position of being at war with China, a complete reversal of our century-old friendship with the Chinese people.

It is possible that full-scale Communist reinforcements from Manchuria, China proper, or from European sources would compel speedy withdrawal of American forces from Korea to avoid a far-eastern Dunkerque. Certainly, a quarter of a million Communists, trained and well-equipped, could drive the present small American force into the sea. American valor would be no match against overwhelming numbers and superior weight of equipment.

What, then, does the United States and the United Nations do? The police action is then lost. The situation compels American withdrawal or the alternative of annihilation, or of being driven into the sea.

If the United States accepts war with Manchuria or with China and attempts to hold a foothold on the Asiatic mainland with its own and perhaps other allied forces, it is then committed to full-scale war. This could go on for many years as the exhausting military actions of Japan in China demonstrated, from 1937 to 1945. Here again, the United States would be playing the game of Russian strategy exactly as Russia desires. It would be a major step in the war of attrition by which Russia hopes to wear down her principal opponent, the United States.

Third. A third possibility is that after Russia sees that the United States is deeply involved in Korea either in police action or with Communists in a wider Asiastic theater, the U. S. S. R. may open up diversions in other areas. Since Russia has such a wide degree of freedom of action, such diversions may take place in one or more of several areas. Enough soft and trouble spots have been prepared for her that Russia can move in almost any direction—Iran, Yugoslavia, Germany, for example. Undoubtedly, Russia would pick an area in which the power potentials would be strongly in her favor so as to deter the United Nations and any combination of free nations from action.

Here again, Russia would move only through satellites whose manpower and resources she deems expendable. Action so taken would be most effective without risk of war or cost to the U. S. S. R.

In this case the United States would again be confronted with the vital question of how to meet the new crisis. If the outbreak was permitted to go by default because of Korean commitments or otherwise, Russian aims would be accomplished. Either the diversion would be pushed farther, or a new one undertaken. If the United States attempted to meet it, American strength would be drawn down trying to handle two commitments in widely separated regions. Moreover, there would be no assurance that a third or fourth diversion would not be created by the U. S. S. R. Has the United States a plan in case these crises come about? The strain on nerves that would result from such developments would be difficult to bear.

Possessing such freedom of action, and with so many soft and trouble spots open to Communist exploitation throughout the world, there is almost no limit to harassing actions by the U. S. S. R. Russian strategy is to employ them continually in a war of attrition against the United States without risk of war to Russia and without much expenditure to Russia in men and materials.

How is this threat to be met?

United Nations police action is highly desirable, but from this analysis it should be clear that it is not enough. At will, the U. S. S. R. can turn even this to serve her strategy of wearing down the United States and the free nations.

The United States could wage war indefinitely and at enormous cost in Asia without ever reaching the heart of the world problem even if the United States, supported by other free nations, were ultimately successful.

I wish to emphasize the statement that the United States could wage war indefinitely and at enormous cost in Asia without ever reaching the heart of the world problem—and this is the important part of the sentence—without ever reaching the heart of the world problem, even if the United States, supported by other free nations, were ultimately successful. I shall later discuss where the heart of this trouble is.

Meeting crises all around the fringe of the Russian orbit would be equally exhausting and inconclusive.

Abundant experience has shown that no amount of conciliation can be reached with Russia without paying prices which strengthen communism and weaken the free world. Refusal of the U. S. S. R. to complete negotiations for an Austrian peace treaty unless the free nations make important concessions to communism in the status of Trieste, is the latest case in point. Blackmail in world politics is inseparably a part of Russian strategy whose single goal is nothing short of Communist domination of the world.

No appeals in the name of peace, justice, Christianity, morality, humanity, or for the future of the world and its tortured peoples have any effect upon the U. S. S. R. She has shown that in her ruthless drive for domination she is willing to sacrifice them all. Far from deterring Russia, world demoralization and destruction actually serve her as they eat away the foundations of the free world.

In these circumstances and in this juncture of world history, what then are the effective policies left open?

BASIC ASSUMPTIONS ON WHICH ACTION MUST BE BASED

At this late hour what are the basic assumptions on which action must be based? When these are known there will be better understanding of the action to be proposed. Prime among these basic assumptions are the following:

First. World War II was fought to prevent integration of the Eurasian land mass by force and its domination by a single power.

Second. Postwar diplomacy by treaties, alliances, appeasement and bungling has permitted progressive domination of this vital area by the U. S. S. R., professing a system which aims to destroy the free world and to replace it with the Communist system and dictatorship.

Third. Russian strategy aims at nothing short of world domination by using satellite manpower and resources to engage the free nations in successive crises involving great cost to them while entailing no risk of war or cost to the U. S. S. R.

Fourth. The Korean situation is the latest of these crises.

Fifth. In the interest of peace and orderly processes, the United Nations has officially declared North Korea the aggressor in violation of the United Nations Charter and her action a breach of international peace. The United Nations has authorized a police action to halt the aggression, calling upon all states' members to give aid in support of law and order.

Sixth. The Korean crisis cannot be resolved by the United States or by the United Nations if Russia wills otherwise. As a corollary, Russia alone has power to confine the Korean situation to a police action or a breach of the peace.

Seventh. Russia has refused to cooperate in the effort to end Korean hostilities. On the contrary, she shows signs of action which may greatly widen hostilities.

NEW AND DRASTIC POLICY NECESSARY

The awful prospect of wide Asiatic operations and possibly European crises makes imperative a new and drastic policy by the United States and by the United Nations.

The Security Council should take the immediate position that it is aware that the U. S. S. R. is the prime moving force behind the repeated emergencies and crises which constantly threaten the peace of the world. Except for the instigation of the Soviet Union many of these crises would never occur, or would be confined to small proportions.

The Security Council should take the immediate position that it will not exhaust its energies on these trouble spots without holding the Soviet Union itself responsible when the evidence plainly establishes that fact, as it does now in Korea.

To that end the United States should ask at once for an extraordinary meeting of the United Nations Security Council and when the Council meets the United States should place before it the following proposition:

1. The Security Council, having resolved that North Korea is an aggressor and is engaged in a breach of the peace in violation of the United Nations Charter; and

2. Having deputized states-members to halt the aggression by force of arms to the end that peace may be restored in the world community—

Resolves, That while it recognizes considerations which may prevent any member from participating in the authorized action to halt a breach of the peace in Korea, it asserts the duty of all states-members of the United Nations to refrain from giving aid, direct or indirect, to the North Korean aggressor; and further

Resolves, That upon proof that any nation is aiding the North Korean aggressor, directly or indirectly, by manpower, arms and implements of war, the Security Council will consider the nation giving such aid, or such nation responsible for such aid, guilty of obstructions to international peace and order and engaged in acts of war against states-members of the United Nations.

If the Security Council approves the resolution so placed before it, it should be American policy to take such action as will give maximum effect to the Council's findings, as we did in connection with the resolution adopted in relation to the aggression by North Korea.

At the same time that it presents this resolution for immediate action by the Security Council, the United States should clarify its own policy. Clarification has been already too long delayed.

The United States should declare that American security and the peace of the world demands an immediate announcement that the United States refuses any longer to be pushed from pillar to post by Russian strategy in a war of nerves and attrition. We should further declare as we ask the United Nations to declare that we will no longer be deluded by crises, emergencies, and incidents managed by Russia on the outskirts of the Russian sphere domination and directed against the United States or the free world.

We should declare, as we ask the United Nations to declare, in plain terms that we are well aware of the real source of most of the repeated crises and emergencies and that we shall go to the root of the trouble which is the governing authority of the U. S. S. R. That is the heart that moves, that is the brain that directs the action of the U. S. S. R. We have no quarrel with the Russian people, but we shall not stand idly by while their men in the Kremlin threaten the security of the United States and destroy the peace of the world.

We should announce in the strongest language that if the Security Council delays or does not approve the proposed resolutions, and that if it transpires that manpower, arms, and implements of war are being given to North Korea or to any other area for warlike purposes by the U. S. S. R., the United States in defense of its own interests and security under article 51 of the United Nations Charter will take such direct action as its best judgment dictates.

Mr. President, I should like to place in the RECORD in connection with my remarks a table showing the territory and the people over which Russia has gained control by the strategy I have just described. This table shows that Russia, since 1939, has increased her dominion from 15 percent of the world's area to 30 percent. It shows also that her domination over the world's population has increased from 195,000,000 people to 748,000,000, or 33 percent of the total world population.

This table and an accompanying memorandum which shows the resources that have fallen under Russian domination have been prepared for me by the Library of Congress. I ask unanimous consent that the table and the memorandum may be printed in the RECORD at this point as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the matters referred to were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Area and population controlled by Russia and her satellites

	Area in square miles	Population
U. S. S. R. in 1939	8,095,728	170,467,186
Territorial acquisitions of World War II	273,947	24,355,000
Total controlled in September 1945	[1] 8,369,675	[2] 194,822,186
PRESENT
Albania	10,629	1,121,000
Austria (Soviet zone including Soviet sector of Vienna)	15,817	2,277,000
Bulgaria	42,796	7,021,000
China (excluding Tibet and Formosa)	2,648,795	454,367,000
Czechoslovakia	49,358	12,165,000
Germany (Soviet zone including Soviet sector of Berlin)	41,544	18,490,000
Hungary	35,902	9,333,000
North Korea	48,468	9,000,000
Outer Mongolia	622,744	900,000
Poland	121,131	24,775,000
Rumania	91,584	15,873,000
U. S. S. R.	8,473,444	192,900,000
Total	[3] 12,202,212	[4] 748,222,000

[1] 15 percent of world area.
[2] Less than 10 percent of world population.
[3] Almost 30 percent of total area of the world.
[4] 33 percent of total population of the world

RESOURCES OF RUSSIAN SATELLITES

Practically all of the countries which have fallen under the control of the U. S. S. R. since the end of World War II are important agricultural, grazing, and timber-producing areas. Other noteworthy resources of Soviet satellites are as follows:

POLAND

One of the leading producers and exporters of coal in Europe; former German Silesia is one of the chief manufacturing centers of Europe.

RUMANIA

Principal producer of petroleum in Europe outside the U. S. S. R.; also possesses other noteworthy mineral deposits.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Industrialization of this satellite is comparable to that of the western European countries; possesses coal and uranium deposits; her important manufacturing industry includes the well-known Skoda armament factory, textile, glass, and shoe industries.

EASTERN GERMANY

The Germans are reputed for their technical skills; this area also has uranium deposits.

CHINA

Possesses tremendous reservoir of manpower; coal and iron deposits in Manchuria; probably has substantial amounts of other unexploited mineral wealth.

POINT 4 SNAFU: HOW RED TAPE SCRAMBLED THE FORMOSA PROJECT—ARTICLE FROM NEWSWEEK MAGAZINE

Mr. KNOWLAND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the RECORD an article entitled "Point 4 Snafu: How Red Tape Scrambled the Formosa Project," published in the July 17, 1950, issue of Newsweek.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The article is as follows:

POINT 4 SNAFU: HOW RED TAPE SCRAMBLED A FORMOSA PROJECT

(Since his inaugural day, when President Truman enunciated his "bold new program," point 4 has been hailed by administration supporters as a joint Government-business enterprise to help the economically downtrodden of the earth. To sell the program to Congress and the American people, the State Department has stressed that private engineering and consulting firms will be brought in on a contract basis, relieving the Government of most of the expense. Samuel Shaffer of Newsweek's Washington bureau tells how, in the first major test, these promises were forgotten and how bureaucratic red tape snarled up a vital irrigation project in Formosa, and so irritated Congess that it cut the point 4 appropriation to 28 percent of what the administration has been seeking.)

The incredible story begins in September 1949. The Nationalist Government in Formosa had asked the Johnston International Co., an engineering firm of Los Angeles, to make a survey of irrigation potentiaitlies on the strategic island. Without development of adequate irrigation, the company was told, Formosa would soon be faced with economic collapse.

The Johnston Co. borrowed William I. Gardner from the Sacramento branch of the Interior Department Bureau of Reclamation. Taking a 2-month leave without pay, the geologist made a survey. On the basis of his findings, the Chinese Government entered into a $3,000,000 contract with the Johnston Co. for an underground water system to run the length of Formosa. To raise the cash, the Formosans sold 30,000 tons of their sugar crop to Greece, which paid for it in ECA dollars.

Work was to start in July and be completed by October 1. Any delay beyond this date would mean a 60 percent cut in sugar plantings by Formosan farmers and serious economic disturbances. "A gratifying example of private implementation of the President's plan," the State Department said. The Johnston people purchased $1,000,000 worth of drilling equipment, motors, jeeps, and so on, which were immediately moved to west coast docks for shipment to Formosa. It also requested passports for 100 engineers.

Then the trouble began. The Office of International Trade in the Commerce Department flatly refused to grant export licenses for the machinery, purportedly because the State Department was afraid it would fall into Communist hands. Hilton C. Smith, the Johnston Co.'s Washington representative, pleaded wearily with the Commerce, State, and Agriculture Departments to reverse the OIT decision. On June 12, just 48 hours before the ship was scheduled to sail for Formosa, the export licenses came through.

BOG DOWN

Meanwhile, the State Department has refused to issue passports to the 100 engineers. After a month of haggling, the Department agreed on passports for 32, and the company bowed to the decision. But with the reduced force of engineers, the company felt that it was imperative to reengage the services of the geologist, Gardner. He knew more about the project than anyone else and had gained the confidence of the Formosans. A request made to the Reclamation Bureau's Sacramento office was quickly granted, then vetoed by Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus, who insisted on a State Department O. K.

Hilton Smith began his weary rounds again. After he was shuffled from functionary to functionary, the State Department told him it would raise no objections if Gardner went as a private citizen. To do this, the Interior Department told Smith, the geologist would have to quit his Government job. This made little sense to Gardner. He refused to dump a good Government job for a 2-month stint.

Smith was stymied. It was now June 15. So Smith carried his troubles to Senator WILLIAM KNOWLAND, member of the Senate Appropriations Committee which was hearing testimony on point 4. The California Republican brought the matter up while Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk (in charge of Far East affairs) was on the stand.

"We have not had a showing that this particular individual is essential to the program," said Rusk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

"Senator GUY CORDON. What difference does it make?

"RUSK. It makes this difference, Senator. We do not object to his going as a private citizen, but when he goes as a Government official, then we have a special problem due to the special circumstances in which officials find themselves in case of emergencies.

"KNOWLAND. We have an ECA mission in Formosa. * * * We had an American military mission in Greece in the middle of a civil war. * * * We have a mission in Korea. * * * They believe that (Gardner) * * * is essential to carry on the work. It is the first practical point 4 program that I have seen that is not costing our Government money. * * *

"CORDON. The chief objection seems to be that it does not cost us any money. * * * You have answered most of my questions on point 4 along with that."

That same day, KNOWLAND wrote to Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman. Getting no answer, he phoned Chapman a few days later. The Secretary had never received the letter, he said, but promised to look into the matter. KNOWLAND never heard from him again. On June 23, Hilton Smith was finally permitted to talk to Straus. The commissioner remained seated and didn't extend his hand in greeting. Before Smith could tell his story, Straus gave him a flat rejection. He wouldn't release the vitally needed Gardner.

When Mr. Truman ordered American warships to protect Formosa, Smith felt that a return to the State Department might be fruitful. "This water-development program can prevent the economic collapse of Formosa," he told a State official. "Should this happen, we are arbitrarily permitting the Communists to take the island." The official came up with a brilliant idea. If the Johnston company requested the Chinese Embassy to request the State Department for Gardner's services, then the Department could request the Interior Department to release Gardner to State. Of course, Gardner would then require a loyalty check which might take weeks or months.

SLASH

On July 5, the Senate Appropriations Committee voted by a large margin to cut point 4 money from $35,000,000 to $10,000,000, and KNOWLAND took the floor to explain why his committee had made this 72-percent slash. After going into the Johnston company case, he said:

"With the utmost charity, I may say that there is not a business organization, large or small, in the United States that could not have solved this problem by two 5-cent telephone calls in 10 minutes on a matter of this urgency."

As he spoke, the 32 engineers and the $1,000,000 worth of equipment sat in Formosa waiting for Gardner. The American occupation forces in Japan, which buy most of the Formosan sugar crop, waited for Gardner. The island's economy threatened, Chinese officials waited for Gardner. The one man essential to the operation waited in Sacramento while Commissioner Straus persisted in refusing him leave without pay. And the State Department, bowing to interdepartmental protocol, still refused to put pressure on Straus.

Said Hilton Smith: "We're about ready to throw in the sponge."

Mr. KNOWLAND. Mr. President, I should like to say in regard to the article I have placed in the RECORD that I have just now been informed by a representative of the Department of State that in order to unscramble this situation they have asked that Mr. Gardner, who was mentioned in the article, be transferred from the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Reclamation, to the Department of State, where the State Department will make his services available. I merely wish to say that I think it is unfortunate that the Bureau of Reclamation showed so little interest in point 4 that their acts in this matter were almost a sabotage of the program.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I wonder whether the distinguished Senator from Nevada will advise me how long he thinks it will be before we shall finish with this section of the bill. I am particularly interested in knowing when the Treasury-Post Office section of the bill will be reached.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, we have about completed action upon the portion of the bill dealing with the State Department. The next portion of the bill is that dealing with appropriations for the Department of Justice, and then comes the portion of the bill dealing with appropriations for the Department of Commerce and for the Judiciary.

In view of the way we are proceeding, it seems to me that we probably shall require most of the remainder of the afternoon on the sections preceding the section dealing with the Treasury-Post Office appropriations. However, that is only a guess. Of course, all of us have seen much faster progress made in times past.

Mr. MAYBANK. I thank the Senator.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may withdraw my suggestion of the absence of a quorum, and that the order for the calling of the roll may be rescinded.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will proceed to state the next amendment of the committee.

The next amendment was, on page 56, in line 16, after the word "expended", to insert "and in addition, the Institute is authorized, prior to June 30, 1953, to enter into contracts for the purposes of such act, as amended, in an amount not to exceed $7,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title II—Department of Justice—Legal activities and general administration—Salaries and expenses, general administration," on page 59, line 2, after the word "field", to strike out "$2,175,000" and insert "$2,125,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Salaries and expenses, general legal activities," on page 59, line 11, after "(31 U. S. C. 529)", to strike out "$7,300,000" and insert "$7,475,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Salaries and expenses, Antitrust Division," on page 59, line 17, after "(5 U. S. C. 55a)", to strike out "$3,850,000" and insert "$3,750,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Salaries and expenses, United States attorneys and marshals," on page 60, line 12, after the word "ammunition", to strike out "$12,600,000" and insert "$12,847,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Fees and expenses of witnesses," on page 60, line 22, after the word "conclusive", to strike out "$1,000,000" and insert "$1,250,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Salaries and expenses, claims of persons of Japanese ancestry," on page 61, line 6, after the word "Columbia", to strike out "$4,000,000" and insert "$1,300,000"; and in line 7, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$250,000" and insert "$300,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Federal prison system—Buildings and facilities," on page 66, line 12, after the word "account", to strike out "$900,000" and insert "$800,000"; in line 17, after the word "which", to strike out "$270,000" and insert "$170,000"; and in line 22, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$970,000" and insert "$870,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Office of Alien Property—Salaries and expenses," on page 67, line 16, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$4,240,000" and insert "$4,150,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Let me ask whether the committee amendment on page 56, in lines 16 to 19, has been agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. It has been agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I ask unanimous consent that the vote by which that amendment was agreed to may be reconsidered.

I am informed that of the 300 positions in the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, 128 of them fall in the category with salaries ranging from $7,000 to $10,750—or that 43 percent of the personnel are receiving salaries of $7,000 a year or more, indicating that this program is rather top-heavy with high-paid personnel.

It is my intention to move that the appropriation, instead of being $5,000,000, be reduced to $4,500,000, and that the contract authorization specified in line 19 be reduced from $7,000,000 to $5,000,000—in short, effecting a reduction of $500,000 in the appropriations and $2,000,000 in the contract authorizations.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Illinois requests unanimous consent for reconsideration of the vote by which the committee amendment on page 56, in lines 16 to 19, has been agreed to.

Is there objection?

Mr. McCARRAN. Reserving the right to object, let me say that I think the Senator from Illinois is addressing his suggestion to the wrong part of the bill. I think the part to which he should address his suggestion is on page 105, the portion relating to the State Department—reading as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

The Institute of Inter-American Affairs: Not to exceed $767,500 of the funds available to the Corporation shall be available during the current fiscal year for its administrative expenses, including administrative services performed for the Corporation by other Government agencies.

I am of the opinion that the Senator should address his suggestion to that item, rather than to the item to which he has just referred.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, the appropriation on page 105 of the bill, in line 12, is only in the amount of $767,500, whereas the appropriation dealt with on page 56, at the point I have indicated, is $5,000,000.

The number of employees to whom I have called attention totals 300, with 128 of them receiving salaries between $7,000 and $10,750. So the salaries of those 128 employees would be well in excess of $1,000,000, and therefore their salaries cannot be covered by the item of $767,500 appearing on page 105—as we may determine by the simple process of multiplication.

Mr. McCARRAN. Of course, the item on page 105 is a part of the item on page 56.

Mr. President, the Senator from Illinois does not give us any good reason why we should agree to the change he has suggested, because he does not say that he is definitely or reliably informed that there is such a category of salaries. Moreover, the evidence before the committee does not justify that conclusion.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, let me read from the Senate committee hearings, on page 759:

TOTAL EMPLOYMENT STRENGTH

Chairman McKELLAR. In the House hearings, on page 1285, Mr. STEFAN asks:

"How many people do you have employed over-all domestically and in the field in all categories?"

The rest of the conversation reads as follows:

"Mr. MYER. In 1950, we have 375 positions with 300 of them filled, Mr. STEFAN."

On the next page, the Senator from Nevada [Mr. McCARRAN] asked:

I am reading from page 1286 now of the House hearings under the head "Statement of number and percentage of employees in 1951 estimate whose annual rates are $7,000 or more."

Under the salary range of $7,000 to $8,999 in Washington there are 13, in the field 89, with a total of 102. That is, 102 draw anywhere from $7,000 to $8,999.

In the category of $9,000 to $9,999 there are 4 in Washington, 12 in the field, with a total of 16.

In the salary range of $10,000 and over there are 7 in Washington, 3 in the field, and 10 in total.

The total is 128. I may say to the Senator, by his own cross examination, he brought forth the fact that there were 128 employees with salaries in excess of $7,000 each. In view of the fact that this is three-sevenths of the total number of employees in the Institute, it seems to me that this organization is topheavy with highly paid help, and that we might very well, in view of the situation of the country and of the budget, impose a cut of at least $500,000.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the Senator from Illinois?

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, still reserving the right to object, let me say to the Senator that it has been disclosed that these employees are of a particular type. They are experts who must be paid the salaries indicated in order to obtain their services. They are not ordinary workmen. They are experts selected for specific work. We shall have many of them in point 4, as well.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The Senator knows the definition of an expert, I am sure—a man who is a long way from home.

Mr. McCARRAN. Yes; I have heard that; and that is the reason—these employees go a long way from home.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Illinois?

Mr. McCARRAN. I object for the time being. I do not know that I shall object eventually. I suggest to the Senator from Illinois that the matter go over, and perhaps I can confer with him and we may be able to arrive at an understanding.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I thank the Senator very much.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object——

The VICE PRESIDENT. The matter has already gone over. The Secretary will state the next amendment.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title III—Department of Commerce—Office of the Secretary," on page 70, line 12, after "(not exceeding $1,000)", to strike out "$1,300,000" and insert "$1,400,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of the Census," on page 72, line 24, after the word "work," to strike out "$29,500,000" and insert "$28,500,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Civil Aeronautics Administration," on page 74, line 5, after the word "aviation", to strike out "$97,000,000" and insert "$99,775,000."

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I do not wish to be captious, but these amendments are going through with supersonic speed, and they generally call for increases. I should like to raise the question regarding the amendment on page 74, line 5, that the committee has recommended an increase of $2,750,000 over the appropriation provided by the House. Once this amendment is adopted, it is going to be very hard indeed to have the action reversed.

Mr. President, I should like to know what the reason is, and why there should be an increase of about $3,000,000 in the Civil Aeronautics Administration. I may say that the House report says there exists a definite requirement as to personnel utilization and to provide ways and means of more fully utilizing the potential available operational capabilities of the field personnel. Expenditures for the last year, Mr. President, were only $95,000,000. The House provided an increase of $2,000,000. The Senate Committee recommends an additional increase of $2,775,00, making a total increase of $4,775,000. Unless there is a good reason for it, I find myself very allergic to this request for an increase.

Mr. McCARRAN. Let me say to the Senator that there is good reason for these figures applying to the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Much more equipment has been installed and many more ground guides and greater facilities for safety have been installed, requiring additional personnel. The committee recommended an appropriation of $99,775,000 for salaries and expenses. This is an increase over the House appropriation of $2,775,000 and is a reduction of $4,475,000 from the Budget Bureau's estimate. So that the amount recommended by the committee is nearly $4,500,000 under the budget estimate; and with the amount recommended by the committee, the CAA will be able, in the estimation of the committee, to continue at about the 1950 level.

The CAA came before the committee and asked for much more than this, and the Budget Bureau, in fact, allowed them more than this. It is a cut of nearly $4,500,000 from the estimate of the Budget Bureau. The committee feels that this increase is justified, because of the growing emphasis on the aviation program and because of the needs of keeping the safety program at the highest possible level.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I should like to point out that the House report, on page 44—and the House reduced the appropriation $2,750,000 below the Senate figure—stated:

> No part of the reduction is to apply to any activitiy of the Administration dealing with promulgation or enforcement of safety regulations.

The reduction was to be on the nonsafety functions of the CAA.

Mr. McCARRAN. The Senate Committee on Appropriations says in its report:

> The committee recognizes the results derived from the promulgation and enforcement of safety regulations. However, this activity alone does not assure safety. Other activities of the CAA, including air traffic control, aids to air navigation, and airport services, together with the cooperative effort of the entire aviation industry, are required to assure the public's safety in air travel. The committee recommends a balanced aviation safety program among the several activities within this appropriation.

That was the attitude of the Senate committee.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. If I may continue for a moment, I may say that this is a matter which was gone into at great length by the subcommittee. The hearings are before the Senator. We thought when we cut the budget estimate as much as we did, we were going just about as far as safety would permit us to go.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I may say first that the House committee, which provided an appropriation $2,750,000 less than that recommended by the Senate committee, said that the House cut would not interfere with safety. The House report indicates also that the reason the budget was asking for a large figure for CAA was that CAA has been assuming—and I now quote the House report—

> The message-handling function for commercial airlines of a purely private operations nature at some of the overseas airway communications stations.

Continuing to read from the House report:

> The investigative report suggested that the CAA take action to divest itself of the overseas communications function concerning private-message traffic, or else continue the serve on a fee basis. The committee is in complete accord with the following remark of the Administrator of the CAA, in his general statement:
>
> "It is our plan to completely eliminate the furnishing without charge of communication services for company traffic to air carriers operating between the United States and overseas points."

Resuming the statement of the committee:

> The committee is, however, at a loss to understand why such a situation has been allowed to exist for so long.

So, the implication is that if this service which is of a purely private nature, were put on a fee basis, or were discontinued, the CAA would need less money, and I think the Senator will find that the $2,750,000 extra is really going to provide communications service for private overseas airlines, which should be charged to the private lines themselves.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. Certainly.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I should like to say two things. I thoroughly approve of the appropriation which has been recommended by the committee. In my opinion one of the most important things we can do is to assure, so far as possible, safety in air flights. As I see it, what we are trying to do—and I have followed this subject for several years—is, to build up safety precautions on the fields we now have before we extend too much into new fields. Let us take those two things together.

The subcommittee of which the distinguished Senator from Nevada [Mr. McCARRAN] is chairman has reduced the amount for new airfields, but has increased slightly the amount for making greater safety precautions on the fields we now have. If the appropriation were left at its original figure, we would not only be unable to take care of our safety facilities this year, but we would actually have to cut down some of the stations we are now operating.

So far as the international situation is concerned, I would simply refer to one paragraph of the report:

> The effect of saving $420,000 by reducing the present operating level of overseas foreign aeronautical communication stations and the reduction of the stations will seriously interfere with the handling of overseas traffic and may result in inability to comply with international obligations.

There, in substance, is what was testified before the committee on the subject which the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS] has brought up. I look upon the whole situation as involving safety in flying, which we want to make as safe as we can. I do not believe we can reduce the figure to the House amount without seriously interfering with the progress we are making in safety development.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President——

Mr. McCARRAN. I do not know who has the floor.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nevada theoretically has the floor.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. McKELLAR. The estimate of the Budget Bureau is $104,250,000. The committee has reduced this item to $99,775,000, which is $4,475,000 below the estimate. It seems to me the committee has done very well. The full committee approved what the subcommittee had done, and I hope that the committee amendment will be agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next amendment.

The next amendment was, on page 75, line 7, after the word "storm", to strike out "$32,000,000" and insert "$27,500,000"; in line 8, after the word "which", to strike out "$26,500,000" and insert "$22,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was in line 13, after the word "exceeding", to strike out "$13,461,500" and insert "$20,000,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, that is an increase of $6,500,000.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, the item to which the Senator from Illinois makes reference is a contract authorization in the amount of $40,500,000, of which $26,500,000 is for liquidation of prior contract authority. The House allowed $32,000,000 with $26,500,000 allowed for liquidation of contract authority. The Senate committee recommends that the amount for liquidation of contract authority be reduced further, or a cut of $4,500,000 under the House figure. Based upon the rate of expenditure in the fiscal year 1950, the amount recommended by the committee will be entirely sufficient for the year.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I think the very able Senator from Nevada is speaking of the committee amendment on line 8. I congratulate the committee on the good work done here, but in lines 13 and 14 there is authorized an additional contract authority of $6,500,000.

Mr. McCARRAN. This is a contract authorization also, and in the opinion of the committee, the increase was justified and in keeping with the history of the matter.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, there is great need for economy, and here is an increase of $6,500,000 above the figure which the House committee believes to be proper. I shall vote against this committee amendment, but I wonder if the committee would not withdraw its request for an increased appropriation in the general interest of national economy.

Mr. McCARRAN. No, Mr. President; this was inserted after long consideration and careful study, and it is in keeping with the entire history of the transaction.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next amendment.

The next amendment was, on page 77, line 14, after the numerals "1953", to strike out "$45,000,000" and insert "$37,000,000"; and in line 15, after the word "which", to strike out "$42,000,000" and insert "$34,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 79, line 9, after the word "expenses", to insert "of which $35,000 may be transferred to the appropriation 'Salaries and expenses, Civil Aeronautics Administration for such expenses, including the maintenance and operation of aircraft."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, may I ask the meaning of the amendment on page 79? Does it mean an authorization of $6,000,000 or an additional authorization of $35,000?

Mr. McCARRAN. It is a transfer.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next amendment.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Civil Aeronautics Board," on page 80, line 5, after the word "binding", to strike out "$3,400,000" and insert "$4,000,000", a colon, and the following proviso: "Provided, That the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force are authorized to transfer to the Civil Aeronautics Board without charge, subject to the approval of the Bureau of the Budget, aircraft (for replacement only), aircraft engines, parts, and accessories surplus to the needs of such Departments."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, this is an increase of $600,000 over the appropriation provided by the House.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield for a question.

Mr. McCARRAN. Does the Senator refer to page 80?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Yes; to the amendment which is now under consideration. The House appropriated $3,400,000. The committee recommendation is $4,000,000. It is an increase of $600,000 plus transfers. I might point out that the total appropriation was a million and a half dollars in 1945, and it has been steadily increasing ever since. A large part of the increases which have been granted have been allegedly for the purpose of decreasing a large backlog of work, but despite increased appropriations, delay in making decisions and failure to decrease the alleged backlog have continued. The House committee has long recognized the fact—and I read from the House report, page 46:

> That the trouble with this agency of Government was not one of appropriations.

We have had a supposed reorganization of the CAB along the lines suggested by the Hoover Commission, and I believe that if the recommendations of the Hoover Commission brought about increased efficiency, as is alleged to be the case, the CAB does not need this increased appropriation. I therefore suggest that the Senate restore the House appropriation by rejecting the committee amendment and thereby save $600,000.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee on page 80, line 5.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. Mr. President, I should like to ask the distinguished Senator from Nevada with reference to the amendment just agreed to, wherein it is stated:

> Provided, That the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force are authorized to transfer to the Civil Aeronautics Board without charge, subject to the approval of the Bureau of the Budget, aircraft (for replacement only), aircraft engines, parts, and accessories surplus to the needs of such departments.

I should like to have some explanation of that broad grant of authority.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, in answer to the Senator's question, this equipment, as suggested, is surplus, and instead of buying it the Army is authorized to transfer it to the CAB in place of having the CAB purchase new equipment.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. In view of events of the last week, is it presupposed that the Army, Navy, and Air Force will not need these supplies?

Mr. McCARRAN. I am not certain that I caught the Senator's question. However, the material must be declared to be surplus before it can be transferred. When it is declared to be surplus, it may be transferred by the authorities to the CAB for public use. Otherwise the CAB would be required to purchase the material, and an appropriation would have to be made for that purpose.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, may I say a word?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nevada yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. Yes.

Mr. BRIDGES. I think the Senator from Kansas makes a very good point on this particular item. One of the lessons which we have learned during the past few weeks is that we have disposed of too much surplus material. Because we have rushed the disposal of surplus materials, we now find ourselves weakened and in a position of not being able to furnish the supplies which are so much needed to back up our troops in Korea. I think the Senator's point is well taken, not only that the Army and Navy may need the supplies, but that the policy of declaring material surplus material has gone too far.

Mr. McCARRAN. In further answer to the Senator from Kansas, and also in answer to the suggestion made by the Senator from New Hampshire, I should like to read from the report of the committee, as follows:

> The amendment relating to the transfer of aircraft and aircraft parts from the Military Establishment is requested to provide authority for replacing obsolete and overage Board aircraft at no cost to the Board. At the present time the Board owns 17 aircraft of various types. Of this fleet, six are in need of major overhaul and fabric recovering, eight are in need of fabric recovering, and one is in a completely unflyable condition. All but six of the fleet are considered to be obsolete and should be repaired.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. Is the impression sought to be conveyed that the committee took the position that the material was practically obsolete?

Mr. McCARRAN. The material mentioned in the report is regarded as practically obsolete, and must be repaired or replaced by these surplus commodities.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, as I remember the testimony, I would say that the Senator from Nevada and I were convinced of the fact that the planes, which are to be used for replacement purposes only, are no longer of any service to the Air Force. They are antiquated planes. Their armament has been removed. They were transferred to the CAB for transportation purposes only, as they were no longer fit for fighting purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The next amendment of the committee will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce," on page 82, line 18, after "(5 U. S. C. 55a)", to strike out "$5,000,000" and insert "$5,300,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, this is an increase of $300,000, and is an increase of $245,000 over last year's appropriation. The committee in its report justifies this increase by stating that "the amount recommended by the committee will allow modest increases in the Office of Business Economics, the Office of Domestic Commerce, and the Office of International Trade." Mr. President, this is not the time to be making modest increases in civilian-agency spending. If we cannot make drastic reductions, we should at least make modest reductions, not modest increases.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 83, line 3, after the word "binding", to strike out "$2,050,000" and insert "$2,155,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, this is an increase of $105,000 over the House appropriation. I hope it will be rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Patent Office," on page 84, line 4, after the word "photolithography", to strike out "$11,300,000" and insert "$11,530,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. This is an increase of $230,000 above the House appropriation of $11,300,000 passed by the House. Although the committee admits in its report, on page 37, that this agency, namely, the Patent Office, has "an excessively high supervisory overhead," it went ahead and increased the appropriation by $230,000 over the House figure. This was done although the House had already increased by $460,000 the amount appropriated last year. I should think the $460,000 increase allowed by the House would be sufficient, and it should not be necessary to further increase the amount by $230,000.

Mr. McCARRAN. The committee recommends $11,530,000, which is an increase of $230,000 over the House figure, and a reduction below the budget estimate of $230,000. During the past year, for the first time in several years, more patent applications have been disposed of than have been received. The committee therefore restored half of the reduction made by the House, so that this tempo could be maintained.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment. [Putting the question.] The Chair is in doubt. As many as favor the amendment will rise and stand until counted. [A pause.] Those who oppose the amendment will rise and stand until counted. [A pause.] The amendment is rejected.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was rejected. I make the motion because if there is any justification anywhere for a larger amount, it is in the field of patents. I am a lawyer, though not a patent lawyer. However, the Patent Office is in an outrageous condition. If today an inventor wants to get a patent, 2 or 3 years must elapse before his application can be heard. Due to the war effort the fact that the Patent Office has been moved two or three times, the office is in such condition that there is a backlog of cases which it is trying to make up. If my memory serves me aright, it will take 10 years before the Patent Office can be placed on a current working level. If the appropriation is cut to the amount represented by the rejection of the committee amendment, it will take a longer time before patent applications can be put on anywhere near a current basis.

If a man is able to make something by reason of his inventive genius or ingenuity, he should know whether he will get a patent without having to wait 2 or 3 years. It may be that in that time he may be dead, or something else may have happened. Certainly, in the interest of business and the proper functioning of our economic life, the small amount recommended by the committee should be appropriated for the Patent Office. I was tempted to do what the Senator from Illinois suggested, but I was convinced that this amount should be appropriated if the Patent Office is to operate anywhere near on a current basis. I hope my motion to reconsider will be agreed to and that the committee amendment will be restored to the bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts to reconsider the vote by which the committee amendment was rejected. [Putting the question.]

Several Senators asked for a division.

The VICE PRESIDENT. A division is called for.

The Senate proceeded to divide.

Mr. McKELLAR. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Aiken	Hickenlooper	Maybank
Anderson	Hill	Millikin
Brewster	Hoey	Morse
Bricker	Holland	Mundt
Bridges	Humphrey	Murray
Butler	Ives	Myers
Byrd	Jenner	Neely
Capehart	Johnson, Colo.	O'Conor
Chapman	Johnson, Tex.	O'Mahoney
Chavez	Johnston, S. C.	Robertson
Connally	Kem	Russell
Cordon	Kerr	Saltonstall
Donnell	Kilgore	Schoeppel
Douglas	Knowland	Smith, Maine
Dworshak	Langer	Smith, N. J.
Eastland	Leahy	Sparkman
Ecton	Lehman	Stennis
Ellender	Lodge	Taft
Ferguson	Lucas	Thomas, Okla.
Frear	McCarran	Thomas, Utah
Fulbright	McCarthy	Thye
George	McClellan	Tydings
Gillette	McFarland	Watkins
Graham	McKellar	Wherry
Green	McMahon	Wiley
Gurney	Magnuson	Williams
Hayden	Malone	Young
Hendrickson	Martin

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present.

The question is on the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL] to reconsider the vote by which the committee amendment, on page 84, line 4, was rejected.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, for the benefit of Senators who came into the Senate Chamber since the original action was taken, I may say that last year the Patent Office received approximately $10,840,000. The House bill increased this by about $475,000 to $11,300,000, representing an increase of something more than 4 percent. The Senate committee proposed a further increase of $230,000. I am very glad that the Senate, on a division, rejected this increase, and I hope very much that the motion to reconsider may be defeated.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, as a result of the rejection of the committee amendment on the motion of the Senator from Illinois, the Patent Office appropriation is reduced from $11,530,000 to $11,300,000, a cut of $230,000. I call the attention of the Senate to the fact that the receipts of the Patent Office represent about 50 percent of its expenditures, so that the net cut is half of $230,000, or approximately $115,000.

By making that reduction, what are we sacrificing? We are reducing the force employed in the Patent Office by 75 men. The backlog of cases of patents pending in the Patent Office is now 220,000, and that number is being cut down at the rate of 21,000 a year. In other words, if there were retained the 75 employees in the Patent Office who would be lost to the office if the Senate committee amendment is rejected, it would still take 10 years to put the Patent Office on a current basis. At the present time it takes 2 years from the time an application for a patent is filed until the result is known.

It seems to me there are other places where we could make a cut. I have studied this particular case very closely because I have received many letters requesting that an increase in the appropriation be made. I did not want to have an increase made. But after studying the matter, I believe we should increase the appropriation to retain the present force, not to increase it, in order to give the man who wants to secure a patent a decent break. I do not consider that he has a decent break if he is made to wait 2 years for his patent. I do not consider it a good break when there is a backlog of 220,000 cases, which are being broken down at the rate of 21,000 a year. I hope the motion to reconsider will prevail.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield.

Mr. McKELLAR. I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Massachusetts and of all Members of the Senate to the splendid work done by the Appropriations Committee. Chapter III, as reported by the Senate committee, is $44,773,730 under the House bill, and it is $119,516,165 under the estimate of the Budget Bureau. It seems to me the committee has done a wonderful job, and I hope the Senate will sustain the committee by voting for the motion to reconsider and to restore the committee amendment.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Massachusetts yield for a question?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield to the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The Senator from Massachusetts said that if we restored the House appropriation it would mean a reduction in personnel. I assume the Senator meant a reduction in personnel below that provided in the Senate report. Is it not true that the House bill grants $475,000 more than is presently appropriated, so that if we adopt the House figure we would have, not a decrease in the number of employees in the Patent Office, but an increase? We simply would not have as large an increase as would be the case if we adopted the recommendation of the Senate committee. Is that not the case?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I desire to answer the Senator from Illinois accurately, but it is a little hard to find the figure quickly. I think the figure on page 1372 of the hearings shows that, if the committee amendment should not be agreed to, the Patent Office would have to lay off 75 men whom they now have employed. I am not absolutely certain about that figure, but I believe it to be correct.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts to reconsider the vote by which the committee amendment was rejected.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, in order that Senators who were not present when action was taken on the amendment may be advised, I should like to say that the item in question is a part of the appropriation for the Department of Commerce. The Committee on Appropriations of the Senate cut the appropriation for the Department of Commerce by 11 percent.

This is a Department for which we thought the full amount of the appropriation should be retained, so that the Department can properly perform its work.

The committee recommends $11,530,000, an increase of $230,000 over the House figure, and a reduction of $230,000 below the Budget figure.

During the past year, and for the first time in several years, more patent applications have been disposed of than ever before. Therefore, the committee voted to restore half of the reduction made by the House of Representatives, so that the tempo of the work might be continued in the Patent Office.

Let me say that the following testimony was received by the committee, from Mr. Marzall:

PRINTING AND BINDING

Mr. MARZALL. That is true to a certain extent, Senator SALTONSTALL. But we have this to consider. We have had an increase from the Government Printing Office from 10 to 14 percent. The Patent Office does about $2,000,000 worth of printing a year, and that item of the increase of the Government Printing Office to the Patent Office would amount to about $220,000.

It was on that basis and on the basis that we hope to keep the work as current as possible and have the patents issued as rapidly as possible, that we thought it worth while to provide the amount of money recommended by the committee.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion to reconsider the vote by which the committee amendment on page 84, in line 4, was rejected.

The motion was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question now is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 84, in line 4.

The amendment was agreed to.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I submit a conference report on House bill 8568, making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District, and I ask unanimous consent for its present consideration.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The report will be read for the information of the Senate.

The report was read.

(For conference report, see pp. 10082–10084 of House proceedings for today.)

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, let me say that the conference report is signed by all the members of the committee of conference—both the majority members and the minority members. The report has been agreed to by the House of Representatives.

I ask for the immediate consideration of the report.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the conference report?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, let me inquire whether the report is unanimous on the part of all the conferees. Perhaps the Senator has already stated that, but my attention was diverted for a moment.

Mr. HILL. Yes; the report is unanimous on the part of the Senate conferees—both the majority and the minority members—and is unanimous on the part of the House conferees. The report has been agreed to by the House of Representatives.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I have no objection.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Alabama for the immediate consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. HILL. I move the adoption of the report.

The motion was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives announcing its action on certain amendments of the Senate to House bill 8568, which was read as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, U. S.,
July 13, 1950.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 17, 65, and 66 to the bill (H. R. 8568) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, and concur therein.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 28 to said bill and concur therein with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$3,648,500."

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 28.

The motion was agreed to.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The next committee amendment will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Public Roads," on page 86, line 22, after the words "per diem", to strike out the colon and the following additional proviso: "Provided further, That not to exceed $3,000,000, to be derived from the administrative funds provided under the act of July 11, 1916, as amended or supplemented (23 U. S. C. 21), shall be available until expended for continuing the construction of a laboratory, on a site already acquired, for permanent quarters for the testing and research work of the Bureau of Public Roads."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 87, line 24, after the word "expended", to strike out "$405,000,000" and insert "$385,000,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I desire to congratulate the committee on recommending a reduction in the appropriation for Federal-aid postwar highways from $405,000,000 to $385,000,000, or a saving of $20,000,000.

However, I should like to suggest that in this period of national emergency and relatively high employment, further road construction is not particularly needed in order to stabilize the economy. It might well be deferred, so far as the national defense situation is concerned, and it seems to me that we should make a further reduction in this item.

Therefore, to the committee amendment on page 87, in line 24, I offer the following amendment: Strike out the figure "$385,000,000" and insert "$285,000,000"; and, in addition, in line 25, to strike out "$263,491,000, and insert "$163,491,000."

The effect of this substitute amendment will be to make a saving of $100,000,000.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield.

Mr. HOLLAND. I should like to ask the Senator whether he knows the relationship of the changes he proposes to the commitments which have been made to the States by the Bureau of Public Roads, and the relationship to the contracts which already are let, and under which construction already is proceeding.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, the point is that by the system of advance commitments, the Bureau of Public Roads has virtually taken away from the Congress the power to appropriate money. The Bureau of Public Roads makes commitments for long periods in advance. Then, when on the floor of the Senate we attempt to make reductions in the appropriations, we are told that the commitments have been made and that we cannot change the amounts.

Mr. President, we in the Congress have the power to appropriate, and it is about time that we used it. We should not abdicate the power of appropriating money.

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield.

Mr. HAYDEN. Let me state that the Bureau of Public Roads exercises no such authority. The Congress itself has directed, many times, that the Bureau proceed in this way, and in no other way.

These appropriations are made every 2 years, because the State legislatures meet every 2 years; and the appropriations thus are made in advance, so that the State legislatures will know what funds they must appropriate in order to match the Federal Government appropriations. The State government appropriations are made on that basis, and there is a contractual obligation on the part of the United States to meet or match the funds provided by the States. So there is no other way by which to proceed. We could not intelligently proceed on any other basis with the vast amount of highway construction in the United States.

The Senator does an injustice when he says that the bureaucrats do this. It is deliberately done every 2 years by the Congress of the United States, and the program is a sound one.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, is it not true that we can simply postpone the appropriation of these funds, so that $100,000,000 which, under the amendment I have offered to the committee amendment, would not be expended this year, could be carried over into future years?

Mr. HAYDEN. No.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The adoption of the amendment I have offered would not mean that the projects will be abandoned, but would merely mean that the period of time during which construction would occur would be lengthened.

Mr. HAYDEN. It would mean that we would repudiate what is stated in the law as a contractual obligation on the part of the United States.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, the senior Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] many times has called the attention of the Senate to the fact that we are losing control over our ability to appropriate, and that we are losing it because of the system of advance commitments. Although in many cases I do not agree with the senior Senator from Virginia, nevertheless it seems to me that in this respect he is correct, and that it is about time that we in the Congress asserted our control over the budget for the ensuing year. We should not tie ourselves up as to future periods.

At the present time we are facing a period of great national tension. It may be that we should devote such funds, not to highways, but to munitions. However, every dollar we put into highways will reduce by that much the amount of money we are able to devote to military preparations, materials, and the necessary contracts in that connection.

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, let me say that the commitments for which this money is being appropriated were made 2 years ago.

The Senator from Illinois will have an opportunity quite promptly to accomplish his purpose, because there has been pending before the Senate Committee on Public Roads a bill which that committee has reported today, and which will be upon the calendar. That bill has been passed by the House. The bill contains authorizations for the fiscal years 1952 and 1953, and contains provisions in regard to the contractual obligations to which the Senator has been addressing himself. If the Senator from Illinois is able to have those provisions deleted, he can cure the situation to which he objects. However, the proposal he now makes should not be agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I do not like to deal only with the distant scene in 1952 and 1953. I like to deal with the scene in 1950 and 1951. I do not think our hands should be tied by any commitments which have been made by Government bureaus, agencies or previous sessions of Congress.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, those of us who had the responsibility of maintaining the highway systems in the States during the war years, know how wholly inadequate our road systems were and how the heavy vehicles using the highways were pounding our hard-surface roads to pieces every day in the year.

I wish to commend the able Senator from Illinois for proposing reductions in any appropriation. Economy is a necessity. But I do not believe there is economy in denying to the Federal highway system an adequate appropriation, in order that the requests of the States to match the State funds for adequate road construction may be met. If we are confronted with another national emergency such as the war may bring to us, we will need to increase our hard-surfaced highway system in the United States, in order to transport that which will have to be transported. Furthermore, we shall have to supplement by truck our existing railroad transportation facilities, or we shall not be able to meet the demand for the movement of merchandise and war equipment which will confront the Nation.

For that reason, while I agree with the Senator from Illinois that we should economize, yet I believe that if we bring about an economy in this appropriation, it may not be economy, but a very expensive action, in its ultimate effect.

Mr. CHAVEZ and Mr. SALTONSTALL addressed the Chair.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I inquire who has the floor?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Illinois has the floor.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I may say to the Senator from Illinois that this item goes beyond the question of appropriation. This obligation was created, not by this Congress but by the Eightieth Congress, for reasons outlined by the Senator from Arizona, which compels the States of Illinois, New Mexico, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, as well as the other States of the Union and the possessions of the United States, to make their plans and programs 2 years in advance. That is because State legislatures meet but once every 2 years. The Eightieth Congress passed the authorization which necessitates this appropriation, since the obligation has already been created.

As stated by the Senator from Arizona, the Committee on Public Roads today reported a bill to take care of the roads for 1952 and 1953. But so far as 1950 and 1951 are concerned, the obligations for those years have been created, and the Senate would now be inconsistent and would be unfair to every State in the Union and to every possession of the United States if it were at this moment to reduce the appropriation.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from Massachusetts?

Mr. DOUGLAS. If I may make one remark, Mr. President, before I yield again, let me say that this alleged obligation may be one of two kinds—legal or moral. So far as the legal obligation is concerned, I should like to have my esteemed colleagues consult the Charles River Bridge case, the citation for which is 11 Peters 420—1837, and Stone v. Mississippi (101 U. S. 814—1880), in which I think the courts have held very decisively that one legislature cannot bind a future legislature. Each legislature, therefore, has the right to judge concerning its own appropriations. Therefore, the Eighty-first Congress is not bound by the action of the Eightieth Congress.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, I think the Senator has correctly stated a sound rule of law. Nevertheless, the sovereign State of New Mexico, in order to meet its obligations under the law, and to participate in a contribution by the Federal Government for roads, must appropriate the money or make provision by which to match the contribution which was made by the Eightieth Congress. I think the rule of law outlined by the Senator from Illinois is correct. That is the way it should be. One legislature should not be able to bind another. That is the very reason why the thing is done as it is done here.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Let me suggest this to my good friend from New Mexico: Suppose we were to adopt my amendment and were to save $100,000,000, actually $120,000,000 in relation to the House figure. The Federal Government would appropriate $100,000,000 less. The States, under the 50–50 formula, would appropriate or spend $100,000,000 less. I do not think the condition of the States would be severely affected. What would happen would be that the State deficits would be less than they otherwise would be, or their surpluses would be greater. It seems to me therefore——

Mr. HOLLAND and Mr. MAYBANK addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield, and if so, to whom?

Mr. DOUGLAS. If I may finish my sentence, I shall be glad to yield. It seems to me, therefore, that we should then, in a manner, be killing two birds with one stone: We would not only save $100,000,000 for the Federal Government, but we would also save $100,000,000 for the State governments. That, Mr. President, should constitute a great contribution to the war effort.

Mr. HOLLAND, Mr. SALTONSTALL, Mr. THYE, Mr. MAYBANK and other Senators addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield; and if so, to whom?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I am reminded of my experience as a small boy, chopping into a hornet's nest, with the hornets beginning to come buzzing at me from all directions. Again I seem to have chopped into a hornet's nest, and the hornets are buzzing around me. First, I will yield to the Senator behind me, who is nearest to me, the distinguished Senator from Florida.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will have to make that decision. The Chair cannot make it for him.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I thank the Senator. While I hesitate to acknowledge his classification of me as a hornet, I should like to suggest that my question to the distinguished Senator, I think, will bring out the facts which will give the Senate a basis upon which to work in this matter. The question to which I understand the Senator gave his answer was this: What relation does an additional cut of $100,000,000 have to commitments already made?

If the Senator will allow me to make a brief observation based on experience in this field, I may say that this has to do with two sorts of commitments. I am not on the committee, and therefore I cannot speak with authority as to how much of this amount comes under one class and how much comes under the other. The distinguished Senator from Arizona and other Senators who are present can give those figures. This, I repeat, has to do with two kinds of commitments. One is for actual repayments to States in the fiscal year 1951 of amounts which they will have paid to contractors upon contracts now existing, already made and now under execution. I do not know how much will come under that classification, but my experience would impel me to say that much the larger portion of this amount would come under that classification, as to which the Senator will see there could be no possible question of saving the States anything. To the contrary, the proposal of the Senator, if agreed to, might easily prevent reimbursement to the States under an agreement already made, based upon action taken, some of it by the Seventy-eighth Congress, in 1944, some of it by the Eightieth Congress in 1948, and some of it by the Eighty-first Congress last year.

Mr. President, what I should like to ask the Senator, if I may ask him now, is this: With reference to the amount of $100,000,000—which I hope is not taken out of the Senator's hat—what is the relation of the additional cut which he proposes to the commitments of the kind which I have just mentioned, and to further commitments of the second kind, which I think would be a much smaller amount, namely, commitments made to States, upon which they can make contracts in the approaching year, and upon which some small payments will be earned during the fiscal year 1951?

Can the Senator give me an answer to those questions? Without them, I should feel that we were completely without information upon which we could intelligently vote. I assume that the committee has gone to great lengths to find out just how much we can save as against the Budget estimate, and that it has already decided that as to the third postwar year, under the 1944 act, we can save nothing, and that, as to the first year under the 1948 act, we can save the $20,000,000 which is proposed to be cut from the budgeted recommendation by the committee's proposed amendment.

If the Senator can give us specific facts upon which we can make a greater cut, the junior Senator from Florida will be glad to support him. But, without such specific facts, I should be forced to the conclusion that the making of this cut would be a repudiation of our agreements with the States and would be a decided imposition of penalties upon the States. They have to pay the contractors 100 cents on the dollar and then require reimbursement of that portion to which, under the particular type of road concerned, they are entitled, under the Federal aid system.

If the Senator can answer the question, I should like to have him do so, because I should like very much to be in position to support him. I appreciate his zeal for economy. I do not care to be classified as a hornet, except in the case of economy, in which case I am perfectly willing to be so classified, but I should appreciate an answer to the specific question as to what relation the proposed $100,000,000 additional cut proposed by the Senator from Illinois bears to the specific commitment made by the Federal Government to the States.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I may say——

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I shall be delighted to yield to my good friend from South Carolina, who is not a hornet but is a good hard-working bee.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I appreciate the remarks of the Senator from Illinois. But as to the contract obligations we have in connection with the States, I should like to remind my distinguished friend, the able junior Senator from Illinois, of the enormous gas taxes collected by the Federal Government from the owners of automobiles who drive up and down the roads of the Nation and who pay the additional tax.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Will my good friend from Minnesota be willing to defer, so that I may try to answer the Senator from Florida?

My proposal of a reduction, if it were agreed to, would leave nearly $300,000,000. It would seem to me that would be sufficient to make payments on past work. Virtually every appropriation is to settle for past construction; none of it is for construction in the current year for which we are appropriating. I am leaving three-fourths of the total to settle it up.

Mr. HOLLAND. What proportion of the $100,000,000 additional cut suggested by the distinguished Senator does he propose to apply against the sum of $263,491,000, which is the remainder of the amount authorized to be appropriated for the three postwar fiscal years by the act of 1944, and what proportion does he propose to apply against the amount authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year 1950, under the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1948? What proportion does he propose to apply against the amounts which are required to be repaid to the States for the repair or reconstruction of highways or bridges which have been damaged or destroyed by floods, hurricanes, or landslides?

Mr. DOUGLAS. The proposal I made was that the entire reduction should be concentrated on the projected appropriation of $263,000,000 carried out under section 2 of the Highway Act of 1944.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Certainly.

Mr. HOLLAND. Does the Senator know that it is a fact that the funds for the third year of the postwar period as provided for in the 1944 act are already expended, and we are completing the work which was proposed under the 1944 act, and the chances are that every dollar of the amount provided is money which must be repaid to the States in the approaching fiscal year for work done under contracts which have already been let, either during the present year or as far back as 1949? Does not the Senator realize that it is a clean-up of the 1944 act, and that probably every dime of it is due under contracts let long ago?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I may say to my good friend from Florida that he suggested that the cut of $100,000,000 be made in the appropriations under the act of 1948 of $115,000,000. If this would enable me to win his support, I should be very glad to have the money transferred to that item. I am trying to make it possible for the Senator to carry out his desire for economy.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Minnesota. He has been waiting for some time, which has put me in the ungracious position of being impolite to him.

Mr. THYE. Mr. President, I appreciated the Senator's humorous reference to hornets. There cannot be any economy in restricting Federal road funds, because if we do not proceed with highway construction we are absolutely depriving ourselves as a Nation of an adequate highway system. As the able Senator from South Carolina [Mr. MAYBANK] stated, we are denying ourselves revenue in the form of gas taxes.

Furthermore, Mr. President, during the war years those of us who were administering the affairs of state knew we were accumulating State funds and earmarking them. They were funds which were by statute earmarked; they were highway construction funds. We were denied materials with which to build highways. The Federal Government could not match funds with the States because we were denied materials. In the postwar years the State and Federal Governments proceeded with long-delayed highway construction, and we are now just catching up in the postwar years with highway construction which normally should have proceeded through 1943, 1944, and 1945. Unless we are willing to give the Federal Bureau of Roads the funds necessary to match the State funds, we are not carrying out the highway-construction program which has been long deferred. I think there would be no economy in making the reduction which the very able and conscientious Senator from Illinois has proposed.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Let me say to my good friend from Minnesota that his statement illustrates the difficulty with which we find ourselves faced when we suggest a concrete reduction. We all recognize the need for economy; we recognize the fact that we had a large deficit in the fiscal year which has just ended. We are faced with a deficit next year of from $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000, not including possible war expenditures. The chances are the Korean situation will call for the expenditure of large sums of money, and we shall be in a difficult financial situation next year. The Senator from Minnesota, who is one of the finest Members of this body, recognizes that situation very well. When we recommend a cut in certain items, Senators are very reluctant to make a cut.

What I think we have got to do is to appraise the needs of the particular service in the light of the general financial situation with which we are faced. We are faced with the situation of a deficit, with high employment. The larger the deficit, the more we shall have to borrow. The more we borrow, the more credit the banks will have to create. The greater the credit, the greater the rise in prices, and the greater the economic disturbance.

I want good roads, as does everyone else. I do not drive an automobile, but my friends have automobiles and take me out for rides, and it is very pleasant to travel on the roads. But the question is whether we can afford this great expenditure in a period of great concern——

Mr. KERR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. In a moment.

Whenever we make a proposal of a reduction, we are told that we are legally committed to make the expenditure. We need resolute courage. The law is behind us. We are not legally committed. The decisions in the Charles River Bridge and Stone against Mississippi cases establish the fact that we are legally free. We can so adjust the appropriation that we can meet amounts due on past work and merely slow down the rate of future constructions. For every dollar we withhold on future construction, there will be a corresponding State dollar which will not be spent, so we shall be saving $2 for the country as a whole. For every dollar we save for the Federal Government we shall be multiplying our good works.

I hope Senators will not interfere with this means by which we can release large quantities of energy, materials, and labor, and save at least $100,000,000. Furthermore, I am not proposing to eliminate the highway program completely. We would still have nearly $300,000,000 for this purpose. I merely want to slow it down because of the present need for economy.

I now yield to my good friend from Oklahoma.

Mr. KERR. Mr. President, is the Senator from Illinois aware of the fact that Federal law requires the States to use their road-user taxes on roads, or be penalized in the amount of money which they receive in the form of Federal aid for local roads?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I have some recollection of that. I studied the history of the Shackleford Act up to 1930. That is my impression.

Mr. KERR. Mr. President, is the Senator further aware of the fact that the American people are paying into the National Treasury $1,350,000,000 this year in road-user taxes in the form of gasoline and oil taxes?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I was not certain of the precise sum, but I know it amounted to a large figure.

Mr. KERR. Then does the Senator think it would be keeping faith with the American people to reduce the proposed appropriation which at $385,000,000 is about one-fourth of what the American people are paying into the Treasury, and which has been pledged to them? Would it be keeping faith with the American people to reduce the amount to a point where it would be approximately one-fifth of what they are paying?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I have never understood that the Federal gasoline tax was earmarked in any way, or that it could be used only for the purpose of building roads. I thought Federal gasoline taxes, like other taxes, went into the General Treasury and commingled with other general receipts, and that out of those general receipts specific expenditures were made. That is the whole theory of Federal taxation.

Mr. KERR. Is there not just as much justification for the Federal Government to apply the same standard to the road-user money which it collects as it compels the States to apply to the road-user tax money which they collect?

Mr. DOUGLAS. If the Senator from Oklahoma wants to propose such a bill, I think it should be given careful consideration. However, I never understood that that was the situation at the present time. In fact, as I have read the decisions of the United States Supreme Court, such as in the Butler case, the Court has always held that taxes should go into the general fund of the Treasury and should not be earmarked for special purposes; that out of the general fund we should make appropriations. If the Senator from Oklahoma wishes to change the law, or change the whole system of the country, I think he should propose that change in the form of a bill.

Mr. KERR. The Senator from Oklahoma is not proposing a bill. He was reminding the Senator from Illinois that the Federal Government requires that procedure of the States. Furthermore, the Federal Government has passed an act which has earmarked $385,000,000 of its general revenue for that purpose.

Mr. DOUGLAS. We have not done so yet.

Mr. KERR. Insofar as the proposal is concerned, it would be earmarking that much, which would be about one-fifth of what the American people are paying in road-user taxes. It occurs to the Senator from Oklahoma that it would be a simple matter of justice for us to impose on ourselves the same standards which we force States to impose upon their people.

Mr. DOUGLAS. We are not earmarking anything.

Mr. CAPEHART and other Senators addressed the Chair.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I should like to finish. I shall yield first to the Senator from Indiana when I have concluded with my statement, before other hornets appear upon the scene. We are collecting gasoline taxes of $1,350,000,000, according to the very able Senator from Oklahoma. That amount of money goes into the General Treasury. It can be spent for any purpose. It can be spent for highways, ships, airplanes, the courts, or for anything else. Out of the general resources of the Treasury it is proposed to spend a given amount for highways.

I now yield to the Senator from Indiana.

Mr. CAPEHART. I believe that the able Senator from Illinois said a moment ago that he adopted the philosophy of our appropriating in accordance with our ability to pay. He has suggested that we take approximately one-fourth out of this appropriation of $385,000,000, or about $100,000,000. Will the Senator apply the same philosophy to the ECA appropriation and take one-fourth from them?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, we need not deal with all these issues at one time. We are now dealing with highways. I will deal with the ECA appropriation when we come to it. I have again and again quoted to my good friend from Indiana the lines from Cardinal Newman's hymn, Lead Kindly Light:

I do not ask to see
The distant scene—one step enough for me.

I am not a member of the faith of Cardinal Newman, but I have always believed that hymn to be an admirable guide for political behavior.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. KEM. Is it not true that many students of taxation believe that taxes on gasoline should be reserved to the States, and that it is not proper for the Federal Government to invade that field? I should like to ask the Senator if it is not true that the Federal gasoline tax had its origin in 1932, when the party which then had the responsibility enacted the tax in order to balance the budget? Is it not also true that it was enacted for a period of 1 year, with the understanding that it would be taken off at the end of the year? Furthermore, is it not true that at the end of that year it was increased by 1 cent, to a cent and a half. Furthermore, by successive renewals, is it not true that it was continued on the books? Therefore, instead of being a temporary tax, it came to be a permanent tax.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I may say in reply to my good friend from Missouri that I am not acquainted with the detailed history of that subject. I am ready to assume that it is as he said it is.

Mr. KEM. It shows that the tax was not earmarked for highway purposes, but was enacted for the purpose of being an aid to the general fund and to balance the budget.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I want to thank my good friend from Missouri for the help which he has given me. He has pointed out that the Federal gasoline tax was intended for general revenue purposes and not for the purpose of making specific expenditures, such as for the purpose of constructing roads. I appreciate the Senator's help.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. CHAVEZ. It seems to me that perhaps the Senator from Illinois believes himself to be the only one who has any political integrity in the Senate.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Oh, no. That is not my thought at all, and I certainly hope I have not created such an impression. I want to say, with absolute sincerity, that I have the greatest respect for the integrity of Members of the United States Senate.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I should like to ask the distinguished Senator from Illinois who decided that what the Senator from Missouri said was the purpose of the gasoline tax?

Mr. KEM. It will be found——

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from Missouri?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield to the Senator from Missouri temporarily so that he may reply to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. KEM. It was stated in the debates in Congress. I shall be very glad to invite the attention of the Senator from New Mexico to those debates. That was stated to be the purpose of the law. It was shown in the bill that it was intended that the tax should be applied for 1 year. It was stated that it was for the purpose of balancing the budget. I do not have the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD with me, but I shall be glad to invite the attention of the Senator from New Mexico to it.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I am positive that the Senator from Missouri will invite the attention of the Senator from New Mexico to the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. That was called to the attention of the Committee on Public Works. Personally I am becoming a little tired of having Senators make the Committee on Public Works the whipping boy.

Mr. DOUGLAS. It is a very ungracious position for any Senator to be placed in to rise on the floor of the Senate and question an appropriation which is proposed by a committee of the Senate, especially when it is approved by a committee headed by my good friend from New Mexico, for whom I have the very highest esteem. A Senator who does so seems very ungracious, and he seems to put himself in the position of knowing more than the committee knows. I assure the Senator I do not feel that at all. I recognize the fact that it would be very natural for Senators to feel a certain amount of resentment in that respect, and I hope that the Senator will feel that there is no such motivation in my heart, and I only hope that by my conduct I can convince him of that fact.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I am fully convinced of the sincerity of purpose of the Senator from Illinois. I attribute his state of mind to the fact that he does not understand the philosophy of public roads and what they mean to the people of the United States. I say that in all kindness. I do not attribute any malice or anything of that sort to the attitude taken by the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Let me say to the Senator from New Mexico that of course roads are important, but they are only one part of the consideration. What I am suggesting is that we economize in this appropriation by about a quarter, save a hundred million, so that the deficit will be less, and that we will have a greater margin of safety for any war emergency which may develop. The highway program would go on, but it would be slowed down and we would save $100,000,000.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield for a question.

Mr. CHAVEZ. The appropriation might be decreased, and I believe in economy, but I recall the vote of the Senator from Illinois this afternoon.

Mr. DOUGLAS. In voting for the Fulbright amendment.

Mr. CHAVEZ. To give money to Europe. It happens that there are some Members of the United States Senate who think all the economy should not be borne by the people of the United States, and that the people of the United States, in order to be united, in order to bring about the economy which would make it possible for us to help other countries in the world, do need some roads. That is the only difference between the Senator from Illinois and me.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Of course, we need roads. The question is whether we need $400,000,000 worth of roads.

Mr. CHAVEZ. A little while ago the Senator from Illinois was quoting what he thought the law was, and I am sure he was positive of his recollection, and there is no question as to his motives or his understanding. He thought he stated what the law was. We also have a law, passed by the Congress of the United States in the Eightieth Congress, under which obligations were made to the States, including, of course, the State of Illinois, and I am sure this appropriation would affect the State of Illinois much more than the State of New Mexico, so far as volume is concerned.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Certainly.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Since Congress passed a law obligating the Government of the United States to the individual States of the Union, and also the possessions of the United States—Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico—would the Senator from Illinois say that after that law was passed, and the Congress obligated itself to the States, we should repudiate that law?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Does the Senator from New Mexico ask me that question?

Mr. CHAVEZ. I ask that question.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I would say it has been well established by court decisions that one Congress cannot legally bind a succeeding Congress to appropriate; that whenever we say that one Congress is bound by the decision of a preceding Congress, we give up the control over appropriations, and that we virtually surrender the power of a given Congress to affect economy. It seems to me that both on the principle of law and the exigencies of the present situation these economies should be effected. I would also like to repeat that, even after saving $100,000,000 by adopting my amendment, we would still have nearly $300,000,000 left for highways.

Mr. CHAVEZ. In all kindness, I will say it is impossible to convince the Senator from Illinois either as to the logic or the reason or the fair play of the legislation passed by the Eightieth Congress.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield to the Senator from New York.

Mr. LEHMAN. I very much wish I could vote with the Senator from Illinois to save this money, and I certainly expect to vote with him on other motions to reduce appropriations for nonessential projects.

My remarks are not addressed to the merits of the building of roads. I have always been a strong believer in roads. I know they have done a great deal for my own State, and I know they have done a great deal for the other States of the Union. I would not be shocked if the amount appropriated for roads were, under the present circumstances, reduced, if it were possible to do so in good faith, but speaking as a former governor of a State, my feeling is that we could not possibly reduce this appropriation and still act in good faith toward the States.

I am afraid the junior Senator from Illinois is not fully familiar with the procedure that is followed in the various States, certainly in the State of New York, and I have no doubt in other States. We have what we call a map, which is prepared to care for the needs of the State in the building of highways for a period of 3 years. We let contracts for that period.

A great part of the appropriation under consideration, which is the result of action taken, I understand, by the Eightieth Congress, is to reimburse the States for expenditures already made. The money has been paid out of the treasuries of the States, and the only way the States could be reimbursed is through payment by the Federal Government. The remainder of the appropriation, or at least the greater part of it, would be used to place the States in a position to contract under a plan which was adopted a long time ago.

I am afraid the Senator from Illinois does not realize that when a State authorizes the building of a 50-mile stretch of road, it does not undertake the construction of the entire 50 miles at one time. The State will build, here and there, parts of the road, and if the Federal Government should not now put the States in a position to meet their obligations, there would be a checkerboard all across the State—and I believe this would apply to every State—little patches of road begun and then discontinued, ending nowhere, beginning nowhere. It would be a great disservice to the States.

It may not legally be repudiation, but I can say to the Senator from Illinois that while I was governor I counted on the good faith of the Federal Government to reimburse me for obligations which I as governor had assumed or authorized, and I would feel it was repudiation, and I believe my associates would so feel. Therefore I cannot vote with the Senator.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, will the Senator from Illinois yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I wonder if the Senator will yield so that I may ask a question of the Senator from New York.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator cannot yield for that purpose except by unanimous consent.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I ask unanimous consent that I may yield to the Senator from New Mexico to ask a question of the Senator from New York.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I do not know whether the Senator from New York attended the hearings on the Federal aid highways bill which was considered by the Committee on Public Works, under the leadership of the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. McCLELLAN], chairman of the Subcommittee on Public Roads of the Public Works Committee. Will the Senator from New York, who was formerly a governor, and is no doubt familiar with the procedures, the techniques, the mechanics, of how Federal contributions are used by the State governments, advise the Senate whether it is not a fact that the State of New York itself, instead of seeking, in this particular instance, an appropriation of $450,000,000, suggested to the committee that the entire fund collected from gasoline taxes, amounting to $1,350,000,000, be devoted to the construction of roads?

Mr. LEHMAN. In the first place, the Senator from New York desires to say he did not attend the hearings, and he does not know what the requests of the State of New York were for gasoline moneys. I have no doubt they would have been very happy to receive increased gasoline revenues.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Is it not a fact that the State of New York has an intelligent technical engineering organization which takes care of the roads in the State of New York?

Mr. LEHMAN. That is quite correct; we have a highway department.

Mr. CHAVEZ. It is a nonpartisan body, dealing only with public roads, and with the benefits to the people of the State of New York which might result from the construction of public roads.

Mr. LEHMAN. That is correct.

Mr. CHAVEZ. I can advise the Senator from New York and the Senator from Illinois that New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and every other large State in the Union, is away behind in roads, and they asked us, instead of appropriating $450,000,000, to provide a billion and a half dollars so that they might proceed with the construction of the roads which are so badly needed for the benefit of the people of the individual States.

Mr. LEHMAN. That is quite correct. I may say to the Senator from New Mexico that I have always been a great advocate of the building of roads. I think they should be built to the limit of the available resources of the States and of the Nation. I did say a few minutes ago that while I have been, and now am, an advocate of roads, I would, in view of what I consider a possibly very critical situation, be willing temporarily to delay the building of roads. But I have no doubt whatsoever of the fact that roads are needed and are a great asset to the States and the Nation alike.

I should like to say one further word. We were talking about the needs of the States and the financial resources of the States. I point out to the Senator from New Mexico that in preparing the revenue planning for the State of New York—and I am sure it is true in the Senator's State also—there is put down as an asset, an inviolable asset, the amount that is due from the Federal Government for the next 2 years.

Mr. CHAVEZ. That is a part of the planning.

Mr. LEHMAN. Yes.

Mr. CHAVEZ. If the Senator from Illinois will indulge me one moment more, I should like to ask the Senator from New York a question. The Senator said that because of the general circumstances he would be willing to defer temporarily the construction of roads. Suppose the roads proposed to be constructed were military roads? Suppose they were interstate roads that necessarily had to be built for the security of the country? Suppose they were access roads which would lead to military establishments. Suppose they were military roads that had to do with a naval installation, or an Army installation, or an aviation installation? Would the Senator from New York make the same statement with respect to them?

Mr. LEHMAN. I may answer the Senator from New Mexico in this way: I can make the statement without qualification that, so far as I am concerned, I am going to vote for every appropriation which I am convinced is in the interest of national defense and national security. Certainly if roads are involved in our national defense or national security I would favor them.

Mr. CHAVEZ. May I——

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield further?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Not at this time, Mr. President. I should like to make a statement.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Illinois declines to yield further.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I think the issue is clear. As I have listened to this discussion I have almost felt that I was being accused of trying to destroy the American home and tearing down all the verities of American life. That is not my purpose, Mr. President. It is my humble purpose that, instead of appropriating $385,000,000 for highways, we appropriate only $285,000,000, making a saving of $100,000,000. We would still appropriate nearly $300,000,000, and, with a corresponding amount from the States, we would have a total of nearly $600,000,000 for Federal-aid highways. In addition there would be the amount spent by the States and localities for non-Federal highways. So we would still have a large volume of highway construction.

Mr. President, the issue here is plain. I do not desire to detain the Senate any longer. I ask for a vote on my amendment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Illinois to the committee amendment.

The amendment was rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 87, line 24.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next committee amendment.

The next amendment was, on page 88, line 3, after "1944", to strike out "$115,509,000" and insert "$115,509,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "National Bureau of Standards," on page 90, line 6, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$540,000" and insert "$700,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 90, line 25, after the word "thereto", to strike out "$1,270,000" and insert "$1,430,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 93, line 6, after the word "stations", to strike out "$3,100,000" and insert "$3,000,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 93, line 7, after the word "of", to strike out "sites" and insert "a site"; in line 9, after the "a", to strike out "radio laboratory building and a"; in line 11, after the word "by", to strike out "acts" and insert "the act"; in line 12, after the numerals "1949", to strike out "Public Laws 366" and insert "Public Law 2"; in line 13, after the numerals "386", to strike out "$500,000" and insert "$134,000"; and in line 17, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$5,675,000" and insert "$1,766,000."

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Mr. President, I desire to discuss briefly the paragraph beginning on line 7 of page 93, and ending on line 17.

I was surprised when I read the hearings before the Appropriations Committee with respect to the matters which are dealt with in that paragraph, to find that no military justification had been made on behalf of the radio laboratory building for which that paragraph provides. I feel it is very important that the committee and the Senate be apprised of the military significance and the military impacts of that laboratory. I want to make the record complete by reading into it several documents pertaining to this matter. I shall skip around in them as much as I can to make my presentation as brief as possible and as much to the point as possible.

The first document I desire to read into the RECORD is a statement by the Bureau of Standards reading as follows:

The Central Radio Propagation Laboratory of the National Bureau of Standards was established at the direct request of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff in order to carry on and expand the radio propagation work which has proved essential for military operations during the last war. By this means the major propagation work of the three branches of the Military Establishment would be centralized in one agency and coordination of the work would be assured. The activities of the laboratory are guided by an interagency radio propagation executive council, which establishes priorities of projects and reviews the annual budget so that duplications of work is avoided.

The establishment of a radio laboratory building for the National Bureau of Standards is critical for the following reasons:

a. The extension of the radio frequency spectrum by a factor of 1,000,000 requires an extensive program of research, development, calibration, and testing. This program has been underway as authorized by Congress but has been handicapped by lack of suitable facilities and location.

b. The variable characteristics of radio waves required extensive propagation studies and prediction services for both military and civilian needs. In this sense, the field of radio propagation requires a service of prediction analagous to that required in weather.

I want Senators to listen particularly to this language:

Such services are crucial to the military services: For example, loss of planes and lives occurred during the last war as a direct consequence of lack of information as to the fading of radio frequencies and radio disturbances which effectively eliminated communication of our aircraft with bases.

c. The location and present facilities of the bureau in Washington are totally inadequate for the present program: the urgency of the program however was such that the program was begun and authorized by Congress at a level of $3,000,000 per year, beginning in fiscal 1949. The program was and is closely coordinated and planned by the Air Force, Army, Navy, CAA, Air Navigation Development Board, FCC, Coast Guard, State Department, and industry, and reviewed by the Research and Development Board. The new facilities are crucial for (1) maximum effectiveness of a program now scattered in temporary structures clearly recognized as inadequate by the bureau and the military services; (2) effective and economic coordination with a related program of $750,000 now being conducted in Colorado because of natural terrain conditions by the bureau for the military and the Air Navigation Development Board; and (3) consolidation of some field activities which cannot be performed in Washington.

The Committee on Appropriations had none of that information before it when it considered this appropriation. I am not surprised therefore that the committee struck from the bill the appropriation which provided for the building of this very essential laboratory, a laboratory of extremely critical importance and badly neded for the national defense.

I read further:

The program is crucial to the national defense and is of vital importance to civilian applications of radio. The role of this program in defense:

1. Prediction services as to the frequencies which can be used to insure communication from one point to another, anywhere in the world, at any time, are vital for the Army, Navy, and Air Force. Radio waves are affected by sun spots and by disturbances in the ionosphere and meteorological phenomena. To maintain a prediction service requires extensive and continuous studies and monitoring, subsequent analysis of data, and the issuance of predictions to the services. Warnings of sudden disturbances must also be communicated at once to the services with instructions as to what action must be taken to maintain communications.

I may say, Mr. President, that at Climax, Colo., Harvard University has a laboratory where the sun is photographed from day to day, where the impact of sun spots upon electronic waves throughout the world is measured, and where the importance of sun spots and their effect upon radio propagation is being studied and being determined.

I continue to read:

2. The development of effective guided missiles, which depend on radio waves for guidance, requires studies of the characteristics of waves at all frequencies. The success of this program depends on the solution of a large set of problems in this area: any delay here will adversely affect our readiness and effectiveness in utilizing these missiles. This program requires prompt action and considerable expansion, which cannot be achieved without adequate facilities.

In the paragraph to which I refer, the Appropriations Committee very properly left in the provision for a guided missiles laboratory, inasmuch as the two are joined together; they are connected scientifically, because the propagation of radio waves and the program in that connection and the guided missiles program cannot be separated; one is dependent on the other. The remainder of the justification reads as follows:

3. The global nature of our military responsibilities requires studies of radio propagation, in unusual geographic and climatic regions. The Bureau's program on propagation in the Arctic is of special importance here. This program requires adequate supporting research, development, and test facilities. in a suitable laboratory, for a considerable portion of the work must be done in a well-equipped laboratory.

4. Radio navigation and direction finding require the analysis and test of systems, the study of the properties of the radio waves in a given frequency range, and the synthesis of these studies into satisfactory systems for a variety of military purposes and conditions. Satisfactory radio navigation and direction finding are absolutely crucial in air warfare.

5. Radar, one of the most powerful methods of detecting and tracing air and sea targets, requires extensive knowledge of the best frequencies, studies of the range of radio waves, and problems of selection of radar sites. These studies by the Bureau for the military services require the proposed facilities and location if they are to be economically and quickly done.

6. Pressing work in countermeasures—including methods of getting radio signals through interference of the enemy—requires new facilities of the kind indicated.

7. Aircraft-to-aircraft and aircraft-to-ground communication essential to military operations and commercial aviation safety requires extensive and prompt studies of the higher frequencies—200 megacycles and above—about which insufficient information is now available.

The importance of these activities to the national economy, aside from the immediate and direct military applications, parallels in several respects those projects noted above. Prediction services, radio warning disturbances, radar, radio navigation and direction finding, the provision of standard frequencies and time signals, day and night—are important in the safe operation of civilian aircraft and shipping. Studies of radio propagation and of frequency allocations and frequency assignments are vital to every field of radio service, whether military or civilian.

In summary it is absolutely essential that the activities of the CRPL be removed from the Washington area as soon as possible and be provided with adequate facilities. Increasing congestion of the radio spectrum in this area makes adequate experimentation rapidly more difficult just at the time that military needs are most pressing. Under currently increasing emergency conditions, moreover, it appears that military needs will require intensification and extension of this program, which is impossible in the Washington area.

Mr. President, I wish to read certain statements coming from our military authorities. First, I wish to read a letter addressed to me by Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Commerce at the time when the bill authorizing this laboratory was before our committee. In the letter he refers to Senate bill 443, the bill which provided for the laboratory. His letter reads as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF COMMERCE,
Washington, June 2, 1949.

Hon. EDWIN C. JOHNSON,
Chairman, Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I understand that concern has been expressed by several members of your committee with respect to the location of the site for the proposed radio laboratory building the construction of which would be authorized by S. 443 for the National Bureau of Standards, presently under consideration by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the Senate.

As was stated in the statement of purpose and need for S. 443, transmitted to your committee on February 24, 1949, the activities to be carried out in this proposed laboratory are critical in the entire field of radio communications, of particular value of American aviation, and of vital importance to the Armed Forces. Members of my staff have therefore discussed the matter of the location of this site with the National Military Establishment, the National Security Resources Board, and the Bureau of the Budget. In accordance with these discussions, I am of the opinion that this building should not be located in the metropolitan area of the District of Columbia and therefore recommend that amendatory language be provided in S. 443 to authorize the procurement of a site elsewhere. The proposed language, attached as exhibit A, is not restricted to a site for the laboratory building alone since buildings in the future where the same factors apply, should also be located at the same site for the reasons of economy, technical effectiveness, and administrative efficiency.

As stated in my letter dated February 24, 1949, to your committee, there exists an urgent need for the laboratory building which would be authorized by S. 443 and the Department strongly urges the enactment of this legislation as amended.

I have been advised by the Bureau of the Budget that there is no objection to the submission of this letter to your committee.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES SAWYER,
Secretary of Commerce.

Mr. President, one paragraph of the justification I read a moment ago indicates that there was a considerable loss of life in World War II because we did not have a complete understanding of radar and radio propagation and all the connected sciences.

Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, United States Army, Director of the Office of Legislative Liaison, notified me as follows when we were previously considering this matter:

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE,
Washington, February 17, 1949.

Hon. EDWIN C. JOHNSON,
Chairman, Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, United State Senate.

DEAR SENATOR JOHNSON: Mr. Forrestal has asked me to acknowledge your letter of February 12, 1949, requesting the recommendations of this office with respect to a bill now pending before your committee, S. 443, to authorize the construction and equipment of a radio laboratory building for the National Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce.

This office has assigned to the Research and Development Board responsibility for providing your committee with a coordinated report on this legislation on behalf of the National Military Establishment.

Sincerely yours,

WILTON B. PERSONS,
Major General, United States Army, Director, Office of Legislative Liaison.

So, Mr. President, Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman of the Research and Development Board, was speaking for the military when he addressed the following communication to our committee:

NATIONAL MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT,
RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD,
Washington, D. C., April 5, 1949.

Hon. EDWIN C. JOHNSON,
Chairman, Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR JOHNSON: In accordance with the direction contained in a memorandum to me from Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, dated February 17, 1949, I am submitting herewith the views of the National Military Establishment on Senate 443, to authorize the construction and equipment of a radio laboratory building for the National Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce.

The work of the Bureau of Standards in the field of radio has had both tactical (military) and nontactical (civilian) applications. Some of its basic research work is of use to the military services, as for example, propagation studies, miniaturization (VT fuses and printed circuit techniques), fundamental studies of time and wave-length standards, and instrumentation (equipment for calibration and maintenance). The proposed facility will contribute indirectly to the research and development program of the National Military Establishment; and the National Military Establishment therefore takes a favorable view with respect to the enactment of the proposed legislation. It should be noted that the general character of Bureau of Standards work is such that the expenditure of funds for this facility should be regarded not as forming a part of the total national funds expendable on military research and development, but as separate from and supplemental thereto.

This report has been coordinated among the Departments and Boards of the National Military Establishment in accordance with procedures prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

Very truly yours,

KARL T. COMPTON,
Chairman.

After Mr. Forrestal resigned from the Office of National Defense, and was succeeded by Secretary Johnson, we took up the matter with the National Defense Establishment and asked them if they still were interested in this laboratory, in the same way that they were interested in it when that establishment was under Mr. Forrestal. The reply was that they were. I received the following letter from Mr. F. H. Richardson, a deputy executive secretary of the Research and Development Board:

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD,
Washington, D. C., April 27, 1949.

Subject: Senate 443, "To authorize the construction and equipment of a radio laboratory building for the National Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce."

Hon. EDWIN C. JOHNSON,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR JOHNSON: The report of the National Military Establishment on the above-identified bill was submitted to you by Dr. Compton in his letter dated April 5, 1949. This report, which was fully coordinated among the Departments and Boards of the National Military Establishment in accordance with procedures prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, took a favorable view with respect to the enactment of the proposed legislation.

Mr. Cooper of your committee's staff has asked whether, in view of the recent change in the incumbency in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the report on the subject bill may still be regarded as duly representing the viewpoint of the National Military Establishment. In Dr. Compton's absence I am replying for him to Mr. Cooper's query. I have made a check in the Office of the Secretary and I am authorized to inform you that, in the absence of specific action to the contrary, all actions by Secretary Forrestal, including all actions taken by subordinate bureaus and agencies, are to be regarded as still valid and in effect. By virtue of this presumption, the subject report on S. 443 falls within the class of actions which have not been altered by the change in the secretaryship.

Very truly yours,

F. H. RICHARDSON,
Deputy Executive Secretary.

Next, Mr. President, let me read the following letter:

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER,
Washington, D. C., July 13, 1950.

Dr. NEWBERN SMITH,
Chief, Central Radio Propagation Laboratory, National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

DEAR DR. SMITH: The enclosed statement is a copy of the statement previously presented indicating military support of the fiscal year 1951 Central Radio Propagation Laboratory budget.

Sincerely yours,

W. T. GUEST,
Brigadier General, USA, Chief, Signal Plans and Operations Division.

Although the statement enclosed with that letter carries a previous date, nevertheless it is, as a result, brought up to this very day, July 13, 1950. The enclosed statement from the Department of Defense reads as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—STATEMENT TO BE MADE IN DEFENSE OF CRPL BUDGET FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1951

As in previous years, the National Defense Establishment is wholeheartedly supporting the radio wave propagation program of the Central Radio Propagation Laboratory of the National Bureau of Standards.

From the military standpoint, the work undertaken is essential and represents basic data vital to development work in communications, navigation, and guidance systems.

The budget requested has been reviewed by a committee of representatives of interested Government agencies and, as a result, represents a well-coordinated and carefully planned program.

R. V. D. CORPUT, Jr.,
Brigadier General, USA, Chief, Signal Plans and Operations Division.

Concur for Department of Navy: J. M. Grider (Commander J. M. Grider).

Concur for Department of Air Force: J. Weichbrod (affirmed). D. P. Graul, Col., USAF (affirmed).

Let me point out that Colonel Graul, one of those who signed the foregoing statement, is a member of the Air Force Matériel Research and Development Board.

That is the military justification for this laboratory.

Mr. President, as stated in those letters, the National Defense Establishment has with the Bureau of Standards a contract by which $3,000,000 a year is expended by the Bureau in order to provide the National Defense Establishment with the benefit of the very latest research work and the very latest information on the propagation of radio waves.

I should like to ask the Senator in charge of this measure whether under these circumstances it would be agreeable to him to have the committee amendments, on page 93, from line 7 to line 17, inclusive, rejected, and then to change the figure in line 17 from $5,675,000 to $3,000,000.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, when this matter was before the subcommittee which had this chapter in charge, it was argued that there should be two laboratories, a radio laboratory building and a guided-missile laboratory. The guided-missile laboratory has not yet been decided on, so far as the site is concerned. As to the radio laboratory building, it was stated before our committee that the site had been selected at Boulder University, at Boulder, Colo. It was the judgment of the committee, in view of the fact that no immediate necessity then appeared for both laboratories, that we could get along for the current year with one. The committee concluded that the guided-missile laboratory would be the most important one, and therefore struck out the provision for the radio laboratory at Boulder.

Mr. DOUGLAS. That is, Boulder, Colo.?

Mr. McCARRAN. Yes. Since that time, communications have come to the Senators from Colorado, some of which have been read to the Senate. After conference with the ranking minority member, we have come to the conclusion that in view of conditions now prevailing, which conditions have come upon us since the committee considered this item, it may be well to go forward with both laboratories. For that reason I ask the Senate to disagree to the following committee amendments: On page 93, line 7, striking out "sites" and inserting "a site", so that the word "sites" will be restored; in line 9, striking out the words "radio laboratory building and a", so that those words will be restored; in line 11, striking out the word "Acts" and inserting the word "the act", so that the words "Acts" will be restored; in line 12, striking out the words in parenthesis "Public Laws 356" and inserting "Public Law 386," thus eliminating the words "Public Law 386"; in line 13 striking out "$500,000" and inserting "$134,000." In lieu of "$134,000" there should be inserted "$268,000," which is a cash allowance for both laboratories. And in line 17, in lieu of the committee recommendation of "$1,766,000" there should be inserted "$3,000,000." Mr. President, I so move.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, apparently it is much easier to get increases in an appropriation bill than decreases. The amendments proposed would increase the total cost by $1,368,000. In view of the fact that there is a tremendous amount of research in the field of radio, both on the part of the Government itself and on the part of private concerns, it seems to me that this is a field in which we could conserve our money, and that the original judgment of the committee was therefore correct.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee amendment, offered by the Senator from Nevada.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I would say to the Senator from Illinois that as I listened to all the testimony on this subject, both these laboratories are necessary for the Government. Both of them are of top priority. As the chairman of the Senate committee said, we discussed this question and we believed at the time that we should go forward with one laboratory at a time.

The guided-missile laboratory explains itself.

So far as the radio laboratory is concerned, the Bureau of Standards is now doing its work in 10 separate buildings in Washington, D. C. Because of the surroundings of the metropolitan area, it is difficult for the Bureau to carry on the work here. It appointed a committee, which examined a number of sites, and finally the Boulder site was selected. I think there can be no question that the Boulder site is a proper one. The only question is as to how fast we should proceed with this work.

The radio work in this laboratory, I understand, has to do with jamming. Russia today is jamming our broadcasts. We have this afternoon appropriated $32,000,000 for informational broadcasts. We are told that another message will come from the President requesting $100,000,000. The whole theory of this research work is to eliminate jamming and blind spots. Recently there have been some very bad airplane accidents, as a result of the pilots having lost contact in the air; for what cause, I have no knowledge. But there are, we know, blind spots where pilots lose contact and their radio facilities stop working. This research is directed to that problem.

I believe that it is perfectly proper and, in view of the fact that we are going to proceed with this building unquestionably next year, and in view of the conditions in the world and of the world's problems becoming more difficult, it perhaps is wiser to start in this year than next.

For that reason, I would say to my most distinguished colleague from Illinois that I agreed with the Senator from Nevada, upon weighing the further evidence from the authorities of the Army and the Navy, that we should start this laboratory this year rather than next, even though it is going to take several years to complete it, and even though we know that we are in a crisis, which may continue. The jamming of broadcast programs certainly will continue, and it will be helpful to have this research done. For that reason, I agreed with the Senator from Nevada in regard to the amendments he has offered.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on disagreeing to the committee amendments. The motion of the Senator from Nevada is that the Senate disagree to the first four amendments, that the plurals be restored in each instance, and that the appropriation be increased from $134,000, in one instance, to $268,000, and that the final appropriation be increased to $3,000,000. Is there objection to voting on the proposition as a whole?

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, I wish to give my hearty endorsement to the things which have been said by the distinguished senior Senator from Nevada and by the distinguished senior Senator from Massachusetts, and to evidence full agreement with the representations and showings which have been made on our joint behalf by the distinguished senior Senator from Colorado.

I think it vital that we get at and push to completion these things, which have such direct impact on our war-making ability and our ability to better our domestic life in the way of communications.

Obviously, our Voice of Freedom for winning the hearts and spirit of other peoples will not be heard if our radio cannot surmount obstruction. The techniques of jamming have moved forward faster than our techniques for finding channels which cannot be hindered.

We have had entirely too much talk about things we are going to do which have not materialized. Our boys in Korea cannot defend themselves and defeat the enemy with fancy ideas and blueprints. It is necessary that we have the best possible means of communication so that we may have effective central and local direction of our military effort.

We are trying to lengthen radio waves, trying to pick better waves in the whole spectrum of radio frequencies. We are trying to evolve, as was pointed out by the senior Senator from Massachusetts, methods of preventing the jamming of our radio communications.

It is necessary that we improve with utmost expedition our radar detection methods. No Member of the Senate is in position to give us dependable assurance that we are immune in this country from evil messengers carrying explosives from other parts of the world with which to destroy us.

We saw in the last World War the enormous importance of radar. A man working with a radar set at Pearl Harbor saw images on the screen, which, had they been properly evaluated and acted upon in time, might very well have averted that great disaster.

In England they were operating radar installations, unbeknown to the enemy, and through the information thus received, Great Britain, with a pathetically small supply of planes and flying personnel, was put in position to anticipate the arrival of the raiding Germans and was finally able to win the battle of Britain, which gave us one more opportunity to preserve a world of freedom and civilization.

Mr. President, the activities of this laboratory are at the heart of our modern weapons: our guided missiles, our airplane and ground communications, and our detection devices. Let us get ahead with the job without a moment's delay.

I am deeply grateful to the distinguished Senator from Nevada for the broad and enlightened outlook he has taken with reference to this subject.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Nevada.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. STENNIS in the chair). The next amendment will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Weather Bureau," on page 94, line 4, after the word "Committee", to strike out "$24,447,000" and insert "$24,897,000"; and in line 14, after the word "annum", to insert "and such employees may be appointed without regard to the Classification Act of 1949."

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. Mr. President, I have discussed with the chairman of the committee, the senior Senator from Nevada, a small amendment to the committee amendment. I offer it and ask, if it is agreeable, that it be taken to conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will state the amendment.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 94, line 4, it is proposed to strike out the numeral "$24,897,000" and to insert "$24,927,000."

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, may we have an explanation of the amendment offered by the Senator from Oklahoma?

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. Mr. President, when the hearings were held I appeared before the committee and made an elaborate explanation of the need for a weather station at Cushing, which is located in my State. For some reason the committee did not see fit to grant the request. The request I made was presented last year and again this year. Cushing is an important oil town in Oklahoma. It has a fine airfield, but it has no weather service. My amendment proposes to make available $30,000 with which to establish a weather station at Cushing, Okla.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, since both the House and the Senate have rejected it, I think it should now be rejected.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, ordinarily the committee tries to facilitate matters so that the greatest number of Weather Bureau stations may be available. On this occasion the committee thought it was not necessary to put in any additional stations. The Senator from Oklahoma has made persistent efforts to have this weather station established in his State. His efforts in the matter are highly commendable. For the purpose of having the question considered in conference, so far as I am concerned, I am willing to take the amendment to conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. THOMAS] to the committee amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment, as amended.

The committee amendment as amended was agreed to.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I send to the desk an amendment proposed by myself and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. KERR], and ask that it be printed and lie on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be received and lie on the table.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, do I correctly understand that the Senate has approved the expenditure of approximately $24,900,000 for the Weather Bureau?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I undoubtedly cannot obtain unanimous consent for a reconsideration of the vote, but I should like to point out that appropriations for the Weather Bureau have been increasing with great rapidity. In 1945 the total appropriation was slightly more than $13,000,000, and in 5 years we have virtually doubled that amount. We have now effected an increase of $480,000 over that which was approved by the House. While I know it would be impossible to obtain unanimous consent for reconsideration, I think those facts should be stated and would like to record my opposition to this Senate amendment.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, it may be well for the Senate to know that the Weather Bureau has taken on new and essential activities. It has now become a very highly important part of aviation in the United States. It is almost indispensable, if not entirely indispensable, to the safety of travel by air. Furthermore, the military service of the United States has called the services of the Weather Bureau continuously, and particularly the outpost station in Alaska is called upon in connection with the national defense. The appropriations have increased, but the reason for the increase is very patent, and it was patent to the committee.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I voted against the establishment of the weather station, and I voted against the establishment of one in Iowa. I personally hoped we would not increase the number of weather stations.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the next amendment.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title IV—The judiciary—Customs Court—Salaries and expenses," on page 97, line 2, after the word "judge", to strike out $417,465" and insert $411,-465."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Court of Claims—Salaries and expenses," on page 97, line 12, after the word "binding", to strike out "$587,000" and insert "$575,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Repairs and improvements," on page 97, line 16, after the word "Capitol", to strike out "$10,700" and insert "$140,700."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, may I ask if the Court of Claims is the red architectural horror on Pennsylvania Avenue just beyond the White House?

Mr. McCARRAN. It is. I would say to the Senator that it is the building located just beyond the White House.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I shall not object to this appropriation, because I think that building needs prompt demolition.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the next amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Salaries of Clerks of courts," on page 98, line 10, after the word "assistants", to strike out "$4,500,000" and insert "$4,470,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Salaries of criers," on page 99, line 5, after the numerals "755", to strike out "$540,000" and insert "$520,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Miscellaneous expenses," on page 101, line 3 after "(34 Stat. 476)", to strike out "$725,000" and insert "$675,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Travel expenses," on page 101, line 14, after the word "clerks", to strike out "$725,000" and insert "$650,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Administrative Office of the United States Courts," on page 102, line 7, after the word "field", to strike out "$530,000" and insert $520,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Repairs and improvements, District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia," on page 102, line 13, after the word "thereto", to strike out "$15,600" and insert "$7,100."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title V—Government corporations—Department of State," on page 105, line 12, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$600,000" and insert "$767,500."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, this represents an increase of $167,500 for the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, concerning which we had discussion earlier this afternoon. I should appreciate it if the very able chairman of the committee would state the reasons which caused the committee to increase the amount by $167,500. It is $167,500 over the amount recommended by the House and the House amount was already $75,000 over the amount for last year.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, with reference to this item on page 105, my recollection is that I agreed with the Senator from Illinois that we would discuss the item, looking toward some change in it. Since that time I have not had an opportunity to discuss it with the Senator. I think I have already made the explanation, and I can make it again if it will be helpful to do so.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I should like to ask the Senator from Nevada whether it is his understanding that the $767,500 is a limitation on the use of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs' own money for administrative purposes.

Mr. McCARRAN. That is correct.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. The appropriation has already been adopted.

Mr. McCARRAN. Yes. The $767,500 is a limitation.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Yes.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I ask the Senator to yield for an unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. McCARRAN. I yield.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I have received word from the majority leader, the Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS], that several nominations have been reported favorably. As in executive session——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Before the Senator from Tennessee proceeds, the Chair inquires whether there is objection to the adoption of the amendment on page 105, line 12, with reference to the Institute of Inter-American Affairs?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I should like to point out that the administrative allowances last year were $525,000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator from Illinois is not ready to dispose of the amendment, the Senator from Tennesse is recognized.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I ask that the Senate, as in executive session, consider the nominations on the executive calendar, beginning with the Department of Justice.

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, may we conclude with this chapter of the appropriations bill?

Mr. McKELLAR. I am willing that the Senator conclude with it. I thought there was to be some opposition to the item under discussion.

Mr. McCARRAN. I believe we can smooth it out. Let me say to the Senator from Illinois and draw his attention to the fact that last year the Institute had only $4,751,000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee was recognized for the purpose of making a motion. Does the Senator from Tennessee wish to make his motion now?

Mr. McCARRAN. Mr. President, I should like to conclude with the chapter under discussion.

Mr. McKELLAR. That is agreeable to me. I yield for that purpose.

Mr. McCARRAN. This year it is a $5,000,000 cash appropriation, together with $7,000,000 in contract authority and it is for that reason we are recommending an increase in the limitation on administrative expenses.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I merely wish to call attention to the fact that last year the corresponding administrative expenses of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs was $525,000. The House increased that amount by $75,000, making a total of $600,000. The Senate committee is proposing to increase this figure by a further allowance of $167,500. It seems to me that would be multiplying the overhead. Although I am only 1 of 96 Senators, I shall be compelled to vote against it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Earlier this afternoon the Senate approved the committee amendment on page 42, line 18, increasing the appropriation for salaries and expenses of the State Department from $77,300,000 to $78,300,000, or an increase of $1,000,000. Inasmuch as I must ask unanimous consent that the vote be reconsidered within 2 days, I now formally request that the RECORD show that at a subsequent date I shall move for reconsideration of these increases.

Mr. McKELLAR. I did not hear what the Senator said.

Mr. MAYBANK. I understood the distinguished Senator from Illinois to say that, in view of the fact that a motion to reconsider had to be entered within 48 hours, he wanted it known that within the next 48 hours he would do so.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair understands that the Senator will have until Monday to enter his motion.

CONSIDERATION OF CERTAIN NOMINATIONS

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I renew my request that the Senate now proceed, as in executive session, to consider certain nominations on the Executive Calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session,

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. STENNIS in the chair) laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting several nominations, which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

(For nominations this day received, see the end of Senate proceedings.)

EXECUTIVE REPORT OF A COMMITTEE

As in executive session,

The following favorable report of a nomination was submitted:

By Mr. CHAVEZ, from the Committee on Public Works:

E. F. Salisbury, of Missouri, to be a member of the Mississippi River Commission, vice Edward Flad, retired.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the first nomination.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Harold I. Baynton, of Nevada, to be an Assistant Attorney General.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I should like to read a letter from the junior Senator from Nevada [Mr. MALONE] addressed to the minority leader. As acting minority leader I read the letter, as follows:

UNITED STATES SENATE, COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS,
July 13, 1950.

Hon. KENNETH WHERRY,
Minority Leader, United States Senate.

DEAR KEN: Reference is made to the nomination of Mr. Harold I. Bayton, now Acting Alien Property Custodian for an Assistant Attorney General in Charge of Alien Property.

I have no objection to the confirmation of Mr. Bayton as Assistant Attorney General in Charge of Alien Property, but if the appointment is to be charged to Nevada, I would favor a bona fide resident of the State receiving the position.

Upon a preliminary check with prominent members of the Nevada bar, I find that he is not a member of the bar in our State, that he is from Montana, more recently a product of Washington College of Law and now a trustee of that institution—and that well-known attorneys in Nevada with whom I have talked, do not know him.

I have no strong feeling in the matter except the State connection, therefore, I suggest that no further delay in his confirmation be requested.

Sincerely,

GEORGE W. MALONE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

The nomination was confirmed.

NORTH ATLANTIC COUNCIL

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Charles M. Spofford, of New York, to be United States deputy representative on the North Atlantic Council.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the nomination is confirmed.

UNITED STATES MARSHALS

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Ford S. Worthy to be United States marshal for the eastern district of North Carolina.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the nomination is confirmed.

The legislative clerk read the nomination of William Holroyd McGinnis to be United States marshal for the southern district of West Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the nomination is confirmed.

UNITED STATES COAST GUARD

The legislative clerk proceeded to read sundry nominations in the Coast Guard.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the nominations in the Coast Guard are confirmed en bloc.

That completes the call of the Executive Calendar.

RECESS

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, as in legislative session, I now move that the Senate stand in recess until 12 o'clock noon tomorrow.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 7 o'clock and 9 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until tomorrow, Friday, July 14, 1950, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate July 13 (legislative day of July 1), 1950:

UNITED STATES MARSHALS

Eugene J. Smith, of New York, to be United States marshal for the eastern district of New York. He is now serving in this office under an appointment which expires July 15, 1950.

John M. Comeford, of Wisconsin, to be United States marshal for the western district of Wisconsin. He is now serving in this office under an appointment which expired February 8, 1950.

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate July 13 (legislative day of July 1), 1950:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Harold I. Baynton to be an Assistant Attorney General.

NORTH ATLANTIC COUNCIL

Charles M. Spofford to be United States deputy representative on the North Atlantic Council, with the rank and status of Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary.

UNITED STATES MARSHALS

Ford S. Worthy to be United States marshal for the eastern district of North Carolina.

William Holroyd McGinnis to be United States marshal for the southern district of West Virginia.

UNITED STATES COAST GUARD

PROMOTION TO PERMANENT GRADE

To be rear admirals in the United States Coast Guard

Harold G. Bradbury
Roy L. Raney

The following-named personnel of the United States Coast Guard to serve on the permanent commissioned teaching staff of the Coast Guard Academy as indicated:

To be associate professor with the grade of commander

John S. Merriman, Jr.

To be assistant professor with the grade of lieutenant commander

Ernest M. Espelie

To be commissioned instructors with the grade of lieutenant

Paul F. Foye
Ephraim P. Rivard
Stanley L. Smith

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1950

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

The Chaplain, Rev. Bernard Braskamp, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, whose heart always opens with love in response to those who truly seek Thee, we are again entering into Thy presence through the gateway of prayer which is never closed to those who come with a humble spirit.

Grant that in these days of anxiety and evil tidings we may deepen our faith in the inexhaustible resources of Thy grace. May our minds be illumined with a vision of the Lord God omnipotent and our hearts be made courageous by His companionship.

Wilt Thou keep us from pride when we are prosperous and victorious and from bitterness and despair when we are in want and distress. When earthly lights are extinguished by adversity and affliction, by trials and tribulations, wilt Thou enable us to see the eternal stars.

We pray that our beloved country may continue to be the abode of peace, the land of the free and the home of the brave, ever loyal to its historic ideals of truth and righteousness and glorious in unselfish service for all mankind.

In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate, by Mr. McDaniel, its enrolling clerk, announced that the Senate disagrees on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 2591) entitled "An act to amend the Public Health Service Act to support research and training in arthritis and rheumatism, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and blindness, and other diseases, and for other purposes"; requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. MURRAY, Mr. PEPPER, Mr. NEELY, Mr. TAFT, and Mr. SMITH of New Jersey to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATION BILL, 1951

Mr. BATES of Kentucky submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H. R. 8568) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 2540)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8568) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 6, 8, 10, 12, 13, 23, 29, 30, 33, 38, 41, 46, 54, and 69.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 16, 26, 27, 32, 36, 42, 47, 48, 49, 64, 67, 68, and 70, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$284,450"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 2: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$310,100"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 3: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$412,600"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 4: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 4, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$512,300"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 5: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$117,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 7: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 7, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$217,800"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 9: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 9, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$233,800"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 11: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 11, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$696,500"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$3,351,500"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 15: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 15, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,255,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 18: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 18, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$598,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 19: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 19, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum named in said amendment insert "$7,500"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 20: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 20, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$405,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 21: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 21, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$543,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 22: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 22, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$291,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 24: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 24, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$350,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 25: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 25, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,702,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 31: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 31, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,398,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 34: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 34, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,381,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 35: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 35, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$220,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 37: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 37, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum named in said amendment insert "$8,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 39: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 39, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$316,500"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 40: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 40, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$668,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 43: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 43, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,235,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 44: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 44, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$4,775,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 45: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 45, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$635,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 50: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 50, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,761,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 51: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 51, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,760,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 52: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 52, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,140,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 53: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 53, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$7,980,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 55: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 55, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,140,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 56: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 56, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$156,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 57: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 57, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$760,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 58: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 58, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,335,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 59: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 59, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$203,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 60: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 60, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,200,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 61: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 61, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$4,746,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 62: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 62, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,100,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 63: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 63, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$3,800,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 71: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 71, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$105,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 72: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 72, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$1,747,200"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 73: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 73, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$90,700"; and the Senate agree to the same.

The committee of conference report in disagreement amendments numbered 17, 28, 65, and 66.

JOE B. BATES,
SIDNEY R. YATES,
FOSTER FURCOLO,
CLARENCE CANNON,
LOWELL STOCKMAN,
EARL WILSON,
Managers on the Part of the House.

LISTER HILL,
JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY,
JOHN L. MCCLELLAN,
LESTER C. HUNT,
HOMER FERGUSON,
K. S. WHERRY,
MILTON R. YOUNG,
Managers on the Part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8568) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, submit the following report in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

Amendment No. 1: Relating to the executive office, appropriates $284,450 instead of $281,350 as proposed by the House and $290,450 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 2: Appropriates $310,100 for the Office of the Corporation Counsel instead of $299,100 as proposed by the House and $336,100 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 3: Appropriates $412,600 for the Collector's Office instead of $406,850 as proposed by the House and $415,700 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 4: Appropriates $512,300 for the Auditor's Office instead of $492,300 as proposed by the House and $527,800 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 5: Relating to the Purchasing Division, appropriates $117,000 instead of $115,900 as proposed by the House and $119,775 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendments Nos. 6 and 7: Relating to the Department of Weights, Measures, and Markets, authorizes purchase of one passenger motor vehicle as proposed by the House instead of two as proposed by the Senate; appropriates $217,800 instead of $163,775 as proposed by the House and $219,275 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 8: Appropriates $67,750 for the License Bureau as proposed by the House instead of $71,400 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 9: Relating to the Office of Recorder of Deeds, appropriates $233,800 instead of $231,300 as proposed by the House and $236,300 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 10: Appropriates $35,800 for the Zoning Commission as proposed by the House instead of $36,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendments Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, and 16: Relating to the public schools, operating expenses, appropriates $696,500 for general administration instead of $683,200 as proposed by the House and $709,850 as proposed by the Senate; appropriates $3,351,500 for operation of buildings and grounds and maintenance of equipment instead of $3,335,000 as proposed by the House and $3,368,480 as proposed by the Senate; appropriates $1,255,000 for repairs and maintenance of buildings and grounds instead of $1,239,500 as proposed by the House and $1,269,000 as proposed by the Senate; inserts language and $28,000 for the purchase of athletic apparel and accessories as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 17: Reported in disagreement.

Amendments Nos. 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27: Relating to public schools, capital outlay, authorizes contract authority in the amount of $598,000 for the Bunker Hill Elementary School instead of $552,500 as proposed by the House and $617,500 as proposed by the Senate; appropriates $7,500 for improvements and alterations at Cardozo Senior High School instead of $70,000 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes contract authority for Davis Elementary School in the amount of $405,000 instead of $366,000 as proposed by the House and $418,000 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes contract authority for the Keene Elementary School in the amount of $543,000 instead of $501,500 as proposed by the House and $560,500 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes the appropriation of $291,000 for the construction of an elementary school building in the vicinity of River Terrace NE., instead of $287,000 as proposed by the House and $307,000 as proposed by the Senate; appropriates $10,000 for plans and specifications for a new building to replace the present Seaton School as proposed by the House instead of $20,000 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes contract authority for construction of an addition to Francis Junior High School in the amount of $350,000 instead of $323,000 as proposed by the House and $361,000 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes contract authority for the construction of a junior high school building in the vicinity of Pomeroy Road, Douglas Place, and Stanton Road SE., in the amount of $1,702,000 instead of $1,589,500 as proposed by the House and $1,776,500 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes contract authority for replacement of the present Terrell Junior High School in the amount of $1,776,500 as proposed by the Senate instead of $1,589,500 as proposed by the House; strikes out the language and $75,000 proposed by the House for plans and specifications for replacement of the present Armstrong Senior High School building as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 28: Reported in disagreement.

Amendments Nos. 29 and 30: Deletes the language and money in the amount of $40,000 proposed by the Senate for the purchase of land at Anacostia Senior High School as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 31: Relating to Public Library, allows $1,398,000 instead of $1,385,700 as proposed by the House and $1,410,700 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 32: Relating to Public Library, capital outlay, appropriates $30,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $15,000 as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 33: Deletes Senate proposal for a survey for extensions to the Central Library Building of the Public Library.

Amendment No. 34: Relating to the Recreation Department, operating expenses, appropriates $1,381,000 instead of $1,372,900 as proposed by the House and $1,387,900 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 35: Relating to the Recreation Department, capital outlay, appropriates $220,000 instead of $180,000 as proposed by the House and $260,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 36: Appropriates $7,433,600 for the Metropolitan Police as proposed by the Senate instead of $7,403,600 as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 37: Appropriates $8,000 for the Redevelopment Land Agency instead of $15,800 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 38: Deletes the Senate proposal to appropriate $5,000 for the Mid-Century White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Amendment No. 39: Relating to the Juvenile Court, appropriates $316,500 instead of $314,500 as proposed by the House and $319,900 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 40: Appropriates $668,000 for the Municipal Court instead of $661,800 as proposed by the House and $684,514 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 41: Appropriates $92,000 for the Municipal Court of Appeals as proposed by the House instead of $94,750 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 42: Appropriates $2,496,330 for the Health Department, operating expenses, as proposed by the Senate instead of $2,467,800 as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 43: Appropriates $2,235,000 for Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanatorium instead of $2,225,300 as proposed by the House and $2,243,540 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 44: Appropriates $4,775,000 for Gallinger Municipal Hospital instead of $4,770,100 as proposed by the House and $4,782,025 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 45: Appropriates $635,000 for medical charities instead of $500,000 as proposed by the House and $745,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 46: Appropriates $108,350 for Public Welfare, general administration, as proposed by the House, instead of $109,100 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendments Nos. 47, 48, and 49: Relating to Public Welfare, agency services, deletes language for the administration of the "penny milk" program by the Board of Public Welfare; appropriates $4,139,639 as proposed by the Senate instead of $4,184,600 as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 50: Appropriates $2,761,000 for Public Welfare, operating expenses, protective institutions, instead of $2,730,150 as proposed by the House, and $2,792,797, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendments Nos. 51 and 52: Relating to capital outlay, protective institutions, Public Welfare, authorizes contract authority for construction at the Home for the Aged and Infirm in the amount of $2,760,000, instead of $2,550,000 as proposed by the House, and $2,850,000 as proposed by the Senate; authorizes contract authority for construction at the District Training School in the amount of $1,140,000 instead of $1,054,000 as proposed by the House, and $1,178,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 53: Appropriates $7,980,000 for St. Elizabeths Hospital instead of $7,855,000 as proposed by the House, and $8,105,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 54: Appropriates $68,325 for the Office of Chief Clerk, Public Works, as proposed by the House, instead of $68,925 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 55: Appropriates $1,140,000 for the Office of Superintendent of District Buildings instead of $1,125,600 as proposed by the House and $1,149,850 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 56: Appropriates $156,000 for the Surveyor's Office instead of $155,225 as proposed by the House and $156,300 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 57: Relating to the Department of Inspections, appropriates $760,000 instead of $754,850 as proposed by the House and $764,850 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 58: Relating to operating expenses, Electrical Division, appropriates $1,335,000 instead of $1,329,000 as proposed by the House and $1,342,275 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 59: Relating to capital outlay, Electrical Division, appropriates $203,000 instead of $190,900 as proposed by the House and $215,900 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 60: Relating to operating expenses, Street and Bridge Division, appropriates $2,200,000 instead of $2,191,600 as proposed by the House and $2,216,600 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 61: Relating to capital outlay, Street and Bridge Division, appropriates $4,746,000 instead of $2,704,200 as proposed by the House and $5,000,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 62: Relating to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, appropriates $1,100,000 instead of $1,095,800 as proposed by the House and $1,105,350 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 63: Appropriates $3,800,000 for the Division of Sanitation instead of $3,757,600 as proposed by the House and $3,837,600 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 64: Relating to capital outlay, Sewer Division, appropriates $2,943,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $2,443,000 as proposed by the House.

Amendments Nos. 65 and 66: Reported in disagreement.

Amendments Nos. 67 and 68: Relating to capital outlay, Washington Aqueduct, appropriates $2,978,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $1,050,000 as proposed by the House; and provides that $1,405,000 of this sum is appropriated from any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Amendments Nos. 69, 70, and 71: Relating to the National Guard, deletes language proposed by the Senate for compensation to the adjutant general as proposed by the House; authorizes purchase of one passenger motor vehicle as proposed by the Senate; appropriates $105,000 instead of $93,750 as proposed by the House and $124,300 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 72: Appropriates $1,747,200 for the National Capital Parks instead of $1,742,200 as proposed by the House and $1,752,200 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 73: Appropriates $90,700 for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission instead of $84,200 as proposed by the House and $95,675 as proposed by the Senate.

AMENDMENTS REPORTED IN DISAGREEMENT

The following amendments are reported in disagreement:

Amendment No. 17: Appropriates $250,847 and provides language for the operation of the "penny milk" program by the Board of Education. The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur.

Amendment No. 28: Relating to funds for construction, capital outlay, public schools. The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur with an amendment.

Amendments Nos. 65 and 66: Relating to capital outlay, Washington Aqueduct, authorizes additional contract authority for construction. The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur.

JOE B. BATES,
SIDNEY R. YATES,
FOSTER FURCOLO,
CLARENCE CANNON,
LOWELL STOCKMAN,
EARL WILSON,
Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the conference report on the bill H. R. 8568.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the statement be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the first amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 17: page 10, line 1, strike out "$117,800" and insert "distribution of surplus commodities and relief milk to public and charitable institutions, and for the carrying out, under regulations to be prescribed by the Board of Education, of a 'penny milk' program for the school children of the District, including the purchase and distribution of milk under agreement with the United States Department of Agriculture, $250,847: Provided, That collections from the milk program shall be paid to the Collector of Taxes, District of Columbia, for deposit in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District."

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read, as follows:

Senate amendment No. 28: On page 16, line 5, strike out "$3,712,000" and insert "$3,737,000."

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BATES of Kentucky moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 28 and concur therein with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment, insert "$3,648,500."

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Senate amendments Nos. 65 and 66 be considered en bloc.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 65: Page 52, line 18, insert "; construction of a 30,000,000 gallon clear water basin and connecting conduits and control chamber; new chemical building and operating center at McMillan."

Senate amendment No. 66: Page 52, line 24, strike out "$1,300,000" and insert "$7,213,000."

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, a motion to reconsider the votes by which action was taken on the various motions was laid on the table.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC LANDS

Mr. PETERSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Public Lands may have until midnight tonight to file a report on the bill H. R. 8975.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

CREATION OF WAR DAMAGE CORPORATION

Mr. McGUIRE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

There was no objection.

Mr. McGUIRE. Mr. Speaker, I am today introducing a bill to create a War Damage Corporation, which will provide uniform rates of insurance against property damage to farms, dwellings, and factories as a result of enemy action. I do not foresee the day when we will collapse like a spokeless umbrella, but I believe that we must provide the American people with every available safeguard in this trying hour. Modern warfare loosing destruction on civilian centers far from actual conflict brings an increased responsibility to governments to protect its citizens against losses arising from war. We must face this responsibility and allay all concern. I hope that this bill will be passed without delay.

KOREA AND INFLATION

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Speaker, the American people are facing a great test on the domestic front. It is well known that the Soviets believe our system will collapse from a cataclysmic economic depression sooner than from external aggression. One of the byproducts the Soviets hope for from the hot war in Korea is panic buying and skyrocketing prices in the United States at retail and wholesale. That there is no reason for such an occurrence due to a scarcity of goods—our industrial production is at an all-time high of almost double 1939—makes the danger all the greater if it is brought on by war hysteria.

Business and consumers should at once organize themselves to exercise self-discipline in this crisis. Business can do so through trade associations and chambers of commerce; consumers can do so through trades unions, civic, fraternal, and religious organizations. Government should cooperate through a conservation agency to be set up in the Department of Commerce with power to get the cooperation of all other Government departments. The time to act is now, not when the situation has gotten out of hand and Government allocations and controls are demanded. Effective citizen cooperation can avoid much Government regulation in a period like this when we are not at war but do face a critical situation.

O'TOOLE LIVES ON

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, last Monday morning during my absence in New York there was a rumor prevalent in the House due to a mistake on the part of one of the press associations that I had been killed.

Every Member of this body would have been proud of the efficient manner in which the Capitol staff acted. Long before I arrived the Architect of the Capitol had inquired from my office as to how many days he would have to fly the flag at half mast. Before you could say Jack Robinson the Sergeant-at-Arms had whipped together as nice a set of funeral plans a body could desire. Later when I learned of them I thought they were a little on the pretentious side for a simple soul like myself. Yet, I imagine it would have been quite a party. I want to take this opportunity to thank the Sergeant-at-Arms and the other agencies involved for their ready willingness to cooperate. Further I would like to thank the Members of the House for I know a great number of them would have liked to be appointed to the committee to go up to New York. It would have given them a splendid opportunity to see South Pacific or get to a ball game. Well, next time they may have better luck. This would have been one party that I would have been willing to attend as an alternate and not as a principal.

As far as I can learn the rumor was unfounded.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

Mr. WILSON of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 10 minutes on Wednesday, July 19, 1950, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered.

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 10 minutes on Wednesday, July 19, 1950, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered.

THE UNITED NATIONS ATTITUDE

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusets. Mr. Speaker, the United Nations is showing a very callous, unfortunate atttitude; they are saying in effect, "We will give every last American soldier to the war." I ask what else they are doing? I also ask, Mr. Speaker, what the brains of the country have been doing administratively that they were not ready to meet this crisis. It reminds me, Mr. Speaker, of the flying of the air mail when the President took it from the hands of commercial companies and gave it to the Army before the Army flyers were prepared. The President had bad advice then; the President has had bad advice today. Our boys are being sent in to fight without preparation.

Mr. Speaker, if the administrative brains of the country cannot meet this crisis they should be changed.

I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the entire membership of the House should be told completely what is going on, what we can expect, and what we must do, because every Member of Congress will do it with all the strength of his being.

ARMS AID TO EUROPE AND UNITED STATES KOREAN INTELLIGENCE

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, we people in the country are worried in these times to find that the House has not yet acted on S. 3809, the mutual defense assistance program. The Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House on Tuesday of this week unanimously reported this bill and the Rules Committee should have immediately met on Tuesday, July 11, and reported a rule so that the legislation could have been reported to the House and argued either yesterday or today. Instead of that the Rules Committee is not in session and will not meet in session until Monday of next week, putting off consideration of this vital bill for arms aid for Europe and other countries until next week, a delay of a whole week. This is not the time for business as usual. Our national defense and safety require we act promptly.

The responsibility for this situation should be stated to the country and the country should know who is responsible for the House having today to act on a bill involving the height of buildings in the Georgetown section of the District of Columbia, and a bill on a stadium seating capacity for a high school here in the District instead of providing the vitally important matter of arms aid for our allies.

May I close by saying that I am one of those who listened to Admiral Hillenkoetter on Friday, June 23, before the Saturday—our time—or Sunday, June 25, Korean time, on which the North Korean invasion took place. The Foreign Affairs Committee met specially to hear Admiral Hillenkoetter as the head of the Central Intelligence Agency Friday morning and to hear General LeMay on his specific strategic bombing field Friday afternoon. These officials were specially called before the committee to be questioned on factors affecting our national security.

Because of the fact it was an executive session I cannot give Admiral Hillenkoetter's statement, but I will say that we felt specifically reassured as to Korea. As a member of the committee, I made a particular point of Korea, and asked as my first question specifically for an outline of the present Korea situation. At no time during the session were there mentioned the reports stated to have been given, possibly pointing to immediate North Korean aggressive action, of which I have heard later, a legislative committee of the other body was advised, had been submitted through regular channels. When I inquired about intelligence, as to whether it was current in time, whether our sources were broad in extent and whether our personnel dependable, I felt assured specifically on Korea that that was the case. In all justice to Admiral Hillenkoetter, I must say that my general impression was that he was not too satisfied with certain conditions under which he was required to work under the present set-up. Defects which I specifically felt existed in our present intelligence set-up were lack of unified authority, inability under present law of the CIA to make judgments or evaluate the material obtained, and certain disagreements and differences of opinion among those groups working on intelligence.

I think Admiral Hillenkoetter should be given the opportunity to explain publicly to the Congress and to the American people why so little was known or communicated to the Foreign Affairs Committee within approximately 30 hours of the North Korean invasion.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. STEFAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?

There was no objection.

Mr. STEFAN. Mr. Speaker, 6 months ago I called attention of the Congress and the country generally that there are more than 100 criminal subversives and Communist aliens from countries behind the iron curtain—well supplied with money and running at large all over the United States. Every one of these criminal aliens are classed as subversives in the files of the Bureau of Immigration. Many of them have been in the United States a long time. Most of them are known to have been or are card-carrying Communists and have committed crimes in the United States from larcency to homicide. They have been ordered deported.

The Bureau of Immigration informed me today that they do not know now where all of these criminal aliens are and that they are running over the country at large. I was also informed that the Department may know of the whereabouts of some of these subversive aliens, but they tell me, positively, that the whereabouts of at least 20 are unknown. Most of them are on parole or on bond, but may have aliases and some may have changed their names.

The Commissioner of Immigration is anxious to incarcerate these criminal aliens, but he tells me that he does not have this power, in spite of the fact that some of them have come to the United States illegally.

These subversive criminal aliens, along with about 200 other alien criminals, have been ordered deported, but passports or landing permits for them cannot be obtained from the countries of their origin. I doubt that the iron curtain country governments want them back now, especially those who might be more useful to them in the United States at this crucial hour.

A bill has been introduced in the House to place these dangerous alien criminals in a concentration camp until such time as transportation and landing permits can be obtained, but this legislation lies dormant. I have urged its passage and have continuously asked other high officials to take some immediate action toward rounding up these dubious criminals. It may be that it is too late and that many of them have gone under cover, along with the rest of the thousands of Communists presently in our midst. I hope that the FBI has these people under surveillance, but regarding that matter, I am not fully informed. I do know, however, that we have more than 50,000 card Communists in the United States now, and along with them there are more than 550,000 fellow travelers, recently referred to and discussed at some length publicly by J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Six months' notice should have been sufficient to our authorities to deal more realistically with this dangerous problem.

Mr. JUDD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks and include a statement.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

There was no objection.

[Mr. JUDD addressed the House. His remarks appear in the Appendix.]

SPECIAL ORDER GRANTED

Mr. CHESNEY asked and was given permission to address the House today for 10 minutes following any special orders heretofore entered.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks, and include excerpts from hearings before the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

There was no objection.

[Mr. RANKIN addressed the House. His remarks appear in the Appendix.]

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BUSINESS

The SPEAKER. Under previous order of the House, this is the day set for the consideration of District bills.

REGULATING CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS IN GEORGETOWN

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the District of Columbia, I call up the bill (H. R. 7670) to regulate the height, exterior design, and construction of private and semipublic buildings in the Georgetown area of the National Capital, and ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby created in the District of Columbia a district known as "Old Georgetown" which is bounded on the east by Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway from the Potomac River to the north boundary of Dumbarton Oaks Park, on the north by the north boundary of Dumbarton Oaks Park, Whitehaven Street, and Whitehaven Parkway to Thirty-fifth Street, south along the middle of Thirty-fifth Street to Reservoir Road, west along the middle of Reservoir Road to Archbold Parkway, on the west by Archbold Parkway from Reservoir Road to the Potomac River, on the south by the Potomac River to the Rock Creek Parkway.

SEC. 2. In order to promote the general welfare and to preserve and protect the places and areas of historic interest, exterior architectural features and examples of the type of architecture used in the National Capital in its initial years, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, before issuing any permit for the alteration, reconstruction, or razing of any building within said Georgetown district described in section 1, shall refer the plans to the National Commission of Fine Arts for a report as to the exterior architectural features, height, appearance, color, and texture of the materials of exterior construction which is subject to public view from a public highway. The National Commission of Fine Arts shall report promptly to said Commissioners of the District of Columbia its recommendations, including such changes, if any, as in the judgment of the Commission are necessary and desirable to preserve the historic value of said Georgetown district. The said Commissioners shall take such actions as in their judgment are right and proper in the circumstances: Provided, That, if the said Commission of Fine Arts fails to submit a report on such plans within 45 days, its approval thereof shall be assumed and a permit may be issued.

SEC. 3. In carrying out the purpose of this act, the Commission of Fine Arts is hereby authorized to appoint a committee of three architects, who shall serve as a board of review without expense to the United States and who shall advise the Commission of Fine Arts, in writing, regarding designs and plans referred to it.

SEC. 4. Said Commissioners of the District of Columbia, with the aid of the National Park Service and of the National Park and Planning Commission, shall make a survey of the "Old Georgetown" area for the use of the Commission of Fine Arts and of the building-permit office of the District of Columbia, such survey to be made at a cost not exceeding $8,000, which amount is hereby authorized.

SEC. 5. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed as superseding or affecting in any manner any act of Congress heretofore enacted relating to the alteration, repair, or demolition of insanitary or unsafe dwellings or other structures.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 9, after "the", insert "construction."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to define what is known as old Georgetown and authorize approval of building permits by the Fine Arts Commission. Georgetown as an active commercial town existed long before there was a city of Washington and along with Alexandria, it is one of the oldest settlements in this section of the country.

The original character of Georgetown predominates architecturally especially in the residences and streets. The people of Georgetown are desirous of protecting the district by an authority which will direct the type of structure suitable to the area.

This bill would require the District of Columbia Commissioners to obtain a report from the Fine Arts Commission before issuing a permit for a building or exterior alteration of a structure. The Fine Arts Commission is authorized to appoint three nonsalaried consultant architects who will review the applications and report through the Commission to the District Commissioners. The reports must be made within 45 days, otherwise the Commissioners may act. Provision is also made for an appropriation of $8,000 with which to make a survey. This survey is to be made by the Commissioners of the District with the assistance of the National Park Service and the National Park and Planning Commission.

Representatives from the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Fine Arts Commission, American Institute of Architects, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation appeared before to subcommittee to urge enactment of this legislation.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EASTERN SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the District of Columbia, I call up the bill (H. R. 8710) to provide for the improvement of stadium facilities at the Eastern Senior High School in the District of Columbia, and ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and directed to construct an addition to the stadium of the Eastern Senior High School in the District of Columbia so that such stadium will provide seating accommodations for 10,000 persons, and to equip such stadium with a modern lighting system for the illumination of its playing field.

SEC. 2. There is authorized to be appropriated the sum of not to exceed $50,000 to carry out the purposes of this act.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to increase the seating capacity of Eastern Senior High School Stadium from 5,500 to approximately 10,000 and provide facilities for lighting the athletic field.

The necessity for this legislation resulted from the fact that Central High School was recently transferred from Divisions 1 to 9 to divisions 10 to 13 by the Board of Education of the District of Columbia.

The Central High School stadium is now available only to the colored schools in the District of Columbia and the students in the white schools are left without adequate stadium facilities for centralized athletic events.

It is naturally assumed that the stadium of the Eastern Senior High School will now serve the same city wide purpose as that formerly served by Central High School in that it will be used by students from all schools in divisions 1 to 9 of the District of Columbia for sports events.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ESTABLISHING AN OFFICE OF CIVIL DEFENSE, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on the District of Columbia, I call up the bill (H. R. 8909) to authorize the District of Columbia Government to establish an Office of Civil Defense, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in Commitee of the whole.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, because of the existing possibility of the occurrence of disaster of unprecedented destructiveness resulting from enemy attack, sabotage, or other hostile action, it is the intent of Congress that plans and programs to provide necessary protection, relief, and assistance for persons and property in the District of Columbia in the event such disaster shall occur or become imminent so as to require such protection, relief, and assistance, should be developed. As used in this act, the term "civil defense" shall mean all activities necessary for the development and execution of such plans and programs, unless the context indicates a different meaning.

SEC. 2. To carry out the purposes of this act, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to establish in the municipal government of such District an Office of Civil Defense to consist of a Director and such other personnel as may be needed. Such Director shall be the executive head of such office.

SEC. 3. The Office of Civil Defense is authorized and directed, subject to the direction and control of the Commissioners of the District—

(a) to prepare a comprehensive plan and program for civil defense, such plan and program to be integrated into and coordinated with the civil-defense plans of the Federal Government, and of nearby States and appropriate political subdivisions thereof;

(b) to institute training programs and public information programs; to organize, equip, and train volunteers and other civil-defense units, and to utilize volunteers and regularly employed personnel of the government of the District of Columbia for service in and within such civil-defense units and to train such personnel for such service; to expand existing agencies of the District government concerned with civil defense; and to take all other preparatory steps including the partial or full mobilization of civil-defense organizations in advance of actual disaster;

(c) to make such studies and surveys of the resources and capabilities of the District for civil defense, and to plan for the most efficient emergency use thereof;

(d) to develop and enter into mutual-aid agreements with States or political subdivisions thereof for reciprocal civil-defense aid and mutual assistance in case of disaster too great to be dealt with unassisted. Such agreements may include the exchange of food, clothing, medicines, and other supplies; emergency housing; engineering services; police services; medical and nursing services; fire-fighting, rescue, transportation, and construction services and equipment; personnel necessary to provide or conduct these services; and such other supplies, equipment, facilities, personnel, and services as may be needed. Such agreements shall be consistent with the national civil-defense plan and program. In time of emergency it shall be the duty of each agency and organization to render assistance in accordance with the provisions of such mutual-aid agreements;

(e) to employ such technical, clerical, stenographic, and other personnel and fix their compensation without reference to the Classification Act of 1949 and make such expenditures within appropriations therefor or from other funds made available for purposes of civil defense, as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act;

(f) to cooperate with governmental and nongovernmental agencies, organizations, associations, and other entities, and coordinate the activities of all organizations for civil defense within the District;

(g) to accept from the United States or from any officer or agency thereof all facilities, supplies, and funds that may from time to time be offered to the District of Columbia, and to agree to such terms, conditions, rules, and regulations as may be imposed in connection with such offer;

(h) to utilize the services, equipment, supplies, and facilities of existing departments, offices, and agencies of the District to the maximum extent practicable, and the officers and personnel of all such departments, offices, and agencies are directed to cooperate with and extend such services and supply such equipment, supplies, and facilities to the said Director upon request;

(i) to perform such other functions as may be assigned by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 4. Neither the District of Columbia nor any volunteer agency in the service of said District nor, except in cases of willful misconduct or gross negligence, any officer, agent, or employee of the District of Columbia or volunteer agency, or any regularly appointed volunteer worker, engaged in civil defense activities, while complying with or attempting to comply with any provision of this act or of any rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant to this act, shall be liable to any person, whether or not such person is engaged in civil defense, for death, injury, or property damage resulting therefrom. The provisions of this section shall not affect the right of any person to receive benefits to which he would otherwise be entitled under any workmen's compensation law, or under any pension, retirement, or disability law, nor the right of any such person to receive any benefits or compensation under any other act of Congress.

SEC. 5. Appropriations for carrying out the purposes of this act are hereby authorized.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides for the establishment of a civil defense organization in the District, and it would furnish the requisite authority to the District Commissioners to carry out a civil defense program. It is not intended to cover the whole field of emergency legislation that later might be necessary in the event of an attack.

The bill provides for the establishment of an Office of Civil Defense in the municipal government of the District. This agency would be headed by a Director who would be responsible to the District Commissioners and who would execute civil defense responsibilities. Civil defense planning and organization would be carried on by the Office of Civil Defense.

The proposal is somewhat similar to legislation establishing State councils of defense which is now in effect in 22 States.

Among the States that have defense agencies patterned after this legislation are: California, Indiana, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, and Washington.

The following States have established agencies based on legislation enacted during World War II which was also similar to this proposal: Florida, Idaho, Michigan, Nevada, and Rhode Island.

One of the important provisions in the bill is the section authorizing mutual-aid agreements with nearby States and local governments. Such agreements may include the exchange of food, clothing, medicines, and other supplies; emergency housing, police services, medical and nursing services, and fire-fighting and rescue equipment and personnel.

While aid of this type has often been extended on a voluntary basis, it has frequently brought in its wake numerous technical, jurisdictional, and legal problems. For instance, fire-fighting equipment has not been of uniform standard. Hose from one city frequently will not fit hyrants in another. Medical equipment and supplies have varied. Local registration restrictions may stand in the way of doctors and nurses practicing even on a temporary basis in a stricken area. Police regulations and techniques differ. Problems have arisen concerning compensation, claims, liability for damages, and immunity from suit. Legislation of this type will solve many of these problems.

Under the terms of the bill the District's office of civil defense would be directed—

(a) To prepare a comprehensive plan and program for civil defense, such plan and program to be integrated into and coordinated with the civil-defense plans of the Federal Government, and of nearby States and appropriate political subdivisions thereof.

(b) To institute training programs and public-information programs; to organize, equip, and train volunteers and other civil-defense units, and to utilize volunteers and regularly employed personnel of the government of the District of Columbia for service in and within such civil-defense units and to train such personnel for such service; to expand existing agencies of the District government concerned with civil defense; and to take all other preparatory steps including the partial or full mobilization of civil-defense organizations in advance of actual disaster.

(c) To make such studies and surveys of the resources and capabilities of the District for civil defense, and to plan for the most efficient emergency use thereof.

(d) To cooperate with government and nongovernmental agencies, organizations, associations, and other entities, and coordinate the activities of all organizations for civil defense within the District.

(e) To accept from the United States or from any officer or agency thereof all facilities, supplies, and funds that may from time to time be offered to the District of Columbia, and to agree to such terms, conditions, rules, and regulations as may be imposed in connection with such offer.

(f) To utilize the services, equipment, supplies, and facilities of existing departments, offices, and agencies of the District to the maximum extent practicable, and the officers and personnel of all such departments, offices, and agencies are directed to cooperate with and extend such services and supply such equipment, supplies, and facilities to the said Director upon request.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to call the attention of the gentleman from South Carolina to the fact that under Public Law 609 of the Seventy-seventh Congress specific legislation was set up for the establishment of civilian defense. That was and is permanent legislation, to which this measure makes no reference whatsoever. I should like to ask the gentleman just what is necessary that we do not already have? Let me read from Public Law 699 of the Seventy-seventh Congress:

During the existence of a state of war between the United States and any foreign country or nation—

Under the ruling of the Speaker last year on the question of adjournment, we are still in a state of war, so that emergency still prevails—

the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and empowered, without regard to the provisions of any other law, to take such measures as they may deem necessary for the adequate protection of persons and property in the District of Columbia—

It goes on and provides powers—to establish in the District of Columbia units and organizations for civilian defense, and to utilize any or all existing voluntary units or organizations together with their personnel or any part or parts thereof—

And so forth. In other words, it seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that there is complete authority already existing in law within the District of Columbia for any action. I agree that there should be some planning for civilian defense.

As I understand, the Board of Commissioners have made some considerable study of this matter, and probably lead the country in the way of preparations for a catastrophe such as an attack or sabotage.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. I agree with the gentleman from Minnesota. I called this to the attention of Mr. Paul Larsen, who stated that the present legislation did not permit individual States to cooperate with each other, and that this bill would give the District of Columbia an opportunity to call in facilities from Maryland or Virginia, or, vice versa, to allow Maryland and Virginia to use the fire and police facilities here in case of emergency.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I do not believe that cooperation is so very important in this consideration.

I was not a member of the subcommittee that heard the testimony on this matter. What is being attempted here is to make the District of Columbia a guinea pig in the form of legislation which has been suggested, which is to be used as a pattern throughout the country. I think a lot more study ought to be given to the bill which was before the subcommittee, of which the gentleman was a member. It is unfortunate that we rush in here without having given full consideration to a bill which grants such a tremendous lot of power.

Is it not true that Mr. Larsen's position was that under the National Resources Board, of which this would be a follow-up, the power of this civilian defense set-up would even exceed the power of the military?

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. The full authority would be under the jurisdiction of the District Commissioners. It would at all times be under the jurisdiction of the District Commissioners.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I mean that it would be superior to the military. That is the testimony, as I read it.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. Also, as I read the testimony of the hearing, it gives this Civilian Defense Agency the right to draft people.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. That would be the case, except in an emergency when the military would be in power.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. This is permanent legislation, is it not, without regard to existing law and without regard to the acts of the Seventy-sixth Congress.

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. That is correct.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I yield.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Referring to the question of the gentleman about the power of the military as compared with the power being granted to this agency, if it can be called such, it should be remembered that the military do not undertake to exercise power in a civilian community unless martial law is declared, when all functions of the other agencies of Government are suspended and the military runs the community.

In the event that martial law is declared by the President in the District of Columbia in time of emergency, then the agency referred to by the gentleman from Minnesota would be subject to the provisions of martial law. Otherwise, the Army and the military forces do not attempt to govern the community or to protect its safety.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. While I am happy to yield to my distinguished colleague from New York, may I point out that martial law will not necesarily be declared in the event of an emergency. The point is that Mr. Larson, the witness from Mr. Symington's office, as I understand it, claimed that in the event of an emergency the power of this agency was superior even to that of the Army and Navy. I think there is no question but what he said that in the testimony.

What I wish to point out to the House, Mr. Speaker, is I think we are rushing into something which is ill-considered, although the purpose of the bill, of course, is perfectly proper.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I yield.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Of course the gentleman understands there was considerable urgency involved in the consideration of this bill by the committee. We felt that if there were some shortcomings in the consideration of the statute which is in effect at this time we could give thought and consideration to it at a later date. The schedule under this bill is extremely long and it is going to take time and planning. We felt there was not a moment to lose in enacting this bill.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. General Young, the Commissioner, said that in his opinion they had probably exceeded and surpassed any other place in the country so far as the plans and progress that had been made here in the District of Columbia are concerned. He did not say they were complete, but he did say there was need for further planning. There is no limit to the amount of planning and no limit to the amount of expense. They start out with $200,000 as a starting request. Possibly that much may be needed.

But the point I make, Mr. Speaker, is I do not think this is the right way to legislate on this problem. I think we ought to have more information than we have as to what is really intended by this bill. If the gentleman wants to stir up hysteria and say that this is something which ought to be done in a fit of hysteria and then have something develop later on that he is going to be sorry for, that is his responsibility. For my part I want to call the attention of the House that this is the sort of legislation which produces bad results. I do not intend to be a party to it because I know what happens when you get into an emergency condition or when you get into a state of war. You have to have civil defense, but a great many people are given too much power and are too anxious to exercise powers without some restraint. The powers granted should be more clearly specified.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Of course, I do not think the committee would be indifferent to going into the matters that the gentleman has brought up. Certainly we can, in due course, address ourselves to the consideration of any proposal that you may have with respect to the legal aspects of it. But the overall situation, I think, is one of immediate attention. I certainly assure the gentleman there was not any feeling of hysteria in the committee.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I assume from now on everything is going to be an emergency. I recognize that.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota has expired.

Mr. MARTIN of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman be allowed to proceed for five additional minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. May I ask the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMILLAN] what there is in the way of limitation on permanent authority. This is permanent legislation; is that not true?

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. That is correct.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. How long will this Office of Civilian Defense be needed? Has the gentleman any idea?

Mr. McMILLAN of South Carolina. This can be repealed any time the Congress desires to repeal it.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. That is rather indefinite, is it not? Has the gentleman any idea how long this should be in existence?

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I yield.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. It could not function any longer than the Appropriations Committee made funds available for it. Certainly the repeal of the legislation would not have to await the action of this committee.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I cannot understand why there was not authority under the law to which I called the gentleman's attention, Public Law 699 of the Seventy-seventh Congress, for appropriations for any planning money that they needed. It seems to me it is carried in there. The intent is carried in the old act, which is permanent legislation, passed in 1942.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. I do not know that that is true. I do not recall the provision at the moment.

Mr. CROOK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I yield.

Mr. CROOK. Is there any reason why there should be any restriction or time limit on it? In my own city at home, and in the State of Indiana, any authority in the way of police protection has the right, in case of emergency, to deputize any civilian to assist him. What is so wrong in the District of Columbia in having the same permanent set-up?

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. Well, you do have the inherent police powers of the District, so far as that is concerned. I do not think that any legislation of that sort is needed. You have ample police power in the Commissioners to take what steps are necessary. But if this is going to be a pattern of the type of hysterical legislation, without very much consideration, I think it is unfortunate, whether it applies to the District of Columbia or the country at large.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the pro forma amendment.

I regret, Mr. Speaker, that I cannot find myself in agreement with the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. O'HARA]. This bill contemplates action which will attract the attention of State legislatures and municipal governing bodies all over the country. That is one of its purposes. Of course, its immediate purpose, if I may use that expression, is an endeavor to set up in time of peace the skeleton of an organization which can respond in time of war in the event that the Nation's Capital shall be suddenly subjected to a terrible catastrophe.

The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. O'HARA] has asked how long this Director of Civilian Defense, as an officer, will last.

Obviously, Mr. Speaker, such an office should be created in time of peace and maintained in time of peace. We all hope that peace will last indefinitely; even so, it must be maintained in time of peace so that in the event a terrible catastrophe overtakes us the office would be in existence and ready to respond to the emergency. That is the purpose of this bill.

No extraordinary powers are granted to the Office of Civil Defense under this bill; all the powers granted to it are subject to the jurisdiction and control of the Commissioners of the District. It is perfectly true that there is a law upon the statute books today, to which the gentleman from Minnesota has referred. An examination of that statute and an examination of this proposed bill I think will develop the fact that this bill expresses much more adequately and understandably the problem of protecting or saving the capital of the Nation as best it may be protected and saved against fearful catastrophe, I call attention to the language used on page 3 commencing in line 6 which indicates very clearly, if you will read it, that the police force of the District of Columbia alone could not possibly do this job; nor can it be done in any city of this country regardless of what the local ordinance may say. It takes the cooperation of many other agencies of Government as well as volunteer agencies along with the police force to meet this terrific situation. It takes all the medical authorities; it takes all the transportation authorities.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WADSWORTH. I yield.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. It has impressed me that what might happen in time of emergency would be that the Army would actually have to take charge of an area as large as the District of Columbia.

Mr. WADSWORTH. It depends entirely upon the military situation. The Army may be completely employed in conflict with the enemy, in military conflict, and there may be scarcely any army left there. It depends on the military situation. If the military situation is such as to demand the employment of the Army, then I assume the President would declare martial law in the District, in the captal, in the neighboring regions of Maryland and Virginia. Then the Army would take over completely and everybody would be subject to the direction of the Army. But that cannot be the case in every instance; Chicago might suffer a catastrophe with no army anywhere near it; Cleveland might suffer a catastrophe with no army anywhere near it. This legislation, as I said in the beginning, is intended not only to set up a skeleton framework for protecting the capital of the Nation against catastrophe, but also to set an example, if possible, to other States and other municipalities as to what they might better do. And they must all act independently. It takes an act of the legislature of a State to authorize a city government to do what is authorized in this act to be done in the city of Washington.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WADSWORTH. I yield.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Does the gentleman understand Commissioner Young's testimony before the committee as being to the effect that the District of Columbia was further advanced in their plan for civilian defense than probably any other city of the country?

Mr. WADSWORTH. I did not; I got the opposite impression.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. That was my understanding.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Commissioner Young testified that in some informal unofficial way the District Commissioners had been doing some planning, but they have not gotten anywhere. It is time we get going.

Mr. CANFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Speaker, on October 5, 1949, Dr. John R. Steelman, acting director of the National Security Resources Board, having jurisdiction over civilian defense in the United States, sent out a directive to the 48 Governors advising these Governors that civilian defense is essentially a job for the various States and that the Federal Government here in Washington could act only in a counseling or advisory capacity.

Today I am shocked to learn of the apparent lack of civilian-defense plans in the Nation's Capital, here in the District of Columbia. In my own State of New Jersey we are going forward. I know that the Governor of New York, Mr. Dewey, has real plans for civilian defense, with General Clay in charge.

Shortly before Dr. Steelman issued that directive last October a newspaperman in the District of Columbia went to the three Commissioners downtown and asked them what plans they had for the civilian defense of our Capital City, and the response was: "We have no plans."

He also went to the superintendent in charge of police, and all that Major Barrett could tell the reporter was: "We have the old riot squad for use in an emergency such as an atomic-bomb attack."

While we are sleeping here in the United State of America what is Russia doing about civilian atomic-bomb defenses? All you have to do is look at the reports of the Atomic Energy Commission and they will tell you that Russia has been on the ball in the matter of civilian defense and has made very extraordinary plans for the defense of Moscow and other important cities in the Soviet Union. Furthermore, they have thousands of trained home squadrons for atomic-bomb defense.

In the United States the President leaves the National Security Resources Board leaderless and without a permanent chairman for more than 16 months. It was only a few months ago that the able son-in-law of the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. WADSWORTH], W. Stuart Symington, was made permanent chairman of that body. I ask you, Mr. Speaker, what do you know about the ABC's of atomic defense?

Last week I took occasion to ask 20 Members what they would do in the event of an atomic bomb attack on this capital city. Each one invariably made the reply "I think I would rush to the subway." Then the interrogated one would ask me this question: "Is that right?" My answer was, "I do not know."

We have no primer for atomic bomb defense in the Nation's Capital or elsewhere in the Nation insofar as the Federal Government is concerned. What does John Q. Public know?

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CANFIELD. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I call the gentleman's attention to the transcript of hearings on this bill which I read for the first time this morning.

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. TEAGUE], a member of the committee, was questioning Commissioner Young and asked this question:

> Is the District of Columbia leading in civilian defense or are we behind in civilian defense?

Commissioner Young answered:

> We have been informed by the National Security Resources Board that we are pretty well in the first rank of cities in the country so far as we have gone.

Mr. CANFIELD. I believe the gentleman reads correctly but I hear no documentation.

Mr. O'HARA of Minnesota. I am quoting the Commissioner's testimony.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from New Jersey has expired.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE

Mr. PACE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Agriculture may have until midnight Saturday night to file a report on H. R. 9109.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. LANE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include interesting newspaper articles.

Mr. HART asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an article.

Mr. PRICE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a telegram.

Mr. JONES of Alabama asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and in one to include a news article from the Progressive Farmer, and in the second a resolution.

Mr. CLEMENTE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks.

Mr. WALSH asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an article by James Daniels, of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Mr. DONDERO asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a statement.

Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include newspaper editorials.

Mr. LOVRE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a letter.

Mr. DOLLIVER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a letter.

Mr. TOLLEFSON asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and in each to include extraneous matter.

Mr. REES asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an address delivered by Herbert Hoover at Emporia, Kans., on Tuesday last in connection with the unveiling of a monument in memory of William Allen White.

Mr. SMITH of Ohio asked and was given permission to extend his remarks.

Mrs. ST. GEORGE asked and was given permission to extend her remarks and include extraneous matter.

Mr. FULTON asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an editorial from the McKees Rocks Gazette.

Mr. JUDD asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include extraneous material.

Mr. MARTIN of Iowa asked and was given permission to extend his remarks on the subject of Panama Canal propaganda for sea-level project.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS AFFECTED BY FEDERAL ACTIVITIES

Mr. McSWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 685 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7940) to provide financial assistance for local educational agencies in areas affected by Federal activities, and for other purposes, and all points of order against said bill are hereby waived. That after general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and continue not to exceed 2 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Education and Labor, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule. It shall be in order to consider without the intervention of any point of order the substitute committee amendment recommended by the Committee on Education and Labor now in the bill, and such substitute for the purpose of amendment shall be considered under the 5-minute rule as an original bill. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the same to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted and any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendments adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or committee substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

Mr. McSWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BROWN]. I now yield myself 15 minutes, and ask unanimous consent to proceed for part of that time out of order.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. McSWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 685 makes in order a very important piece of legislation, H. R. 7940. I find that our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY], is the author of this legislation. I have followed the gentleman in his work in Congress since he has been here and I have found that he has been in sympathy with things that are beneficial to the general public. I find that his heart beats in tune for the well-being of his fellow man. I find, too, that my painstaking and hard working colleague from Ohio [Mr. BURKE] was chairman of a subcommittee which made a very careful survey as to the needs for this legislation. This legislation does deal with something that is of importance not only to our children, but it is a bill that in reality is doing justice to the people for whom it is designed. I am very proud to have the honor to present the rule which makes in order this bill. I understand that this bill came out of the Committee on Education and Labor with a unanimous vote. As a former school teacher I realize what a great obligation devolves upon people of communities where the Government has entered in and taken the source of revenue from those localities. We all realize that with the enlargement of our Army, with the diversification of our industry during the last war, we had to take over certain sections of our country; we had to actually get into the housing business; we almost had to get into the education business and in all types of production we became producers. Throughout the country we have bought up land for Government use and denied the localities in which that land was purchased the taxing power to raise funds for their public education. Not only that, but we have superimposed upon these educational facilities added people with their children where the workers went in in factory districts where munitions of war were being manufactured, and you doubled and trebled the number of children who had to go to school in that locality or, if it was an Army installation as we had in Dayton, Ohio, you would have a great number of youngsters being placed there in school.

The only thing I found as a member of the Committee on Rules in regard to this bill that I thought it might have added—but I am sure the author, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY], will explain why it was not incorporated in this bill—is the fact that in many localities there are not enough facilities in the way of buildings to handle the greatly increased number of students. But I am sure there is some reason why there are to be two bills, one to supply funds for the carrying on of the educational program and, as I understand, a bill that will be filed subsequently to provide for the material benefits such as buildings that are needed in these communities.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McSWEENEY. I yield.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. I am glad the gentleman from Ohio has brought up that question, because it is a double problem. You have both the maintenance of the schools and providing school facilities. Just yesterday I had a letter from the county superintendent of schools in a rural area where there is such an installation. They anticipate between 200 and 300 students. Obviously, merely helping to provide teachers is not going to meet the problem where they have to have some place to house these children. So there is a double problem. But certainly the whole thing is one that needs to be attacked. I am glad this bill is coming out, because it is taking care of this part of the problem.

Mr. McSWEENEY. I appreciate the gentleman's observation. I did not quite understand at first why buildings were not incorporated in the same bill, but I am sure that will be explained to us a little later.

I think all of us are anxious to keep down governmental expense, but at the same time the Government cannot shirk its obligations. As we expand as a government, as our great defense program is pushed forward, it naturally must be spread out in a way we have never had to do in the past. When we take from a locality its land and its means of raising revenue, it is only a matter of right that we step in and supplant that money that has been taken from the local community.

I believe I can say with confidence and with fairness that the groups throughout the country, and I am sure the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] will corroborate this statement, have made a gallant effort, a very gallant effort, in each location to try to give to these youngsters all the educational facilities they could possibly muster. Teachers taught overtime with no additional pay, and parents submitted to having their children terribly crowded. They recruited teachers, and they staggered their recitation programs so that as many children as possible could use, as the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. CASE] said, the limited facilities that were available. So the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] is introducing a bill which has for its purpose to make it possible for these localities to participate in Federal funds. The bill, as I have gone over it, has been worked out in great detail. I approach it as a teacher, and I find that they have made every provision to be just to the localities they are designing to help. They have done everything to try to equalize and to balance this program.

The thing I especially like about it, I may say to the gentleman from West Virginia, is that there is no effort to superimpose an educational program upon the locality where this aid is being granted. It has nothing to do with a national education program. The teachers in the locality are under the supervision of their own superintendent. All we do is collaborate with the local educational authorities for the direct and equitable allocation of the funds.

Mr. Speaker, if I may speak out of order for just a moment in the time remaining to me, may I say that I have just come from the Committee on Un-American Activities. This simply ties up with my former experience as a school teacher. I found there are being circulated throughout the country, and people are being asked to sign, petitions which in reality are designed to curtail our war effort. I think one of the sad things with which we have been confronted in America is the fact that many Christian, God-fearing, high-minded people are groping, groping as you and I are, to try to find some solution for this thing we have always solved in the past by war. I have had the honor to serve overseas in the Army in both wars, and I do not believe that my heart can well up any hatred greater than that for war. I realize that war has been a horrible thing ever since the dawn of history. I do find, on the other hand, that there has been many efforts by the people to try to humanize a very inhumane thing, war.

I remember one instance when they first decided that they should not poison the enemy's streams, yet at the same time from a besieged city you were allowed to divert a stream and let the people die of thirst. We also found that one of the conventions, I think the Hague or Geneva Convention, or maybe earlier than that, provided that you could not use a flat-nosed bullet but must use a steel-coated bullet. This was very humane at first sight, but it allowed the man to be wounded instead of killed, and probably lie and expire in a hot, tropical country some place, as they did during the expansion of the British Empire.

In other words I do not believe you can humanize this inhuman thing. War: We must try to abolish it. I feel if we can quickly end a war by whatever means we have the better it is and that is the humane thing to do. I remember reading the history of the Civil War. Probably one of the greatest humanitarians in the history of civilization, Abraham Lincoln, was willing to carry on the "battle of the wilderness which was going against the North. The South was losing one man to seven or eight men on the part of the North. But Mr. Lincoln said that we should push on, even though that great masterful strategist of the South, Robert E. Lee, who ranks among the great generals of all time, was outfighting us and out-maneuvering us. Still, Lincoln said, push on if it will eventually win the war and thereby save lives.

So I am not advocating any cruel or inhuman method: I am advocating methods which will in some way lessen the chances of our having a long drawn-out struggle. I think in the end that is the humane thing to do.

Years ago a man by the name of Creasy at one time collected the stories of what he called the 15 decisive battles of the world. After teaching ancient, medieval, modern, United States, German, and French history in high school I have not been able with my limited capacities properly to interpret human history, but I am convinced that no wars have been good.

Go back over the whole history of civilization: You can find that no war can be justified when you compare it with the horror and tragedy and suffering which is inflicted upon mankind. Nevertheless Creasy said that had any of these 15 decisive battles gone the other way the course of civilization might have been changed and retarded. It is true that if the Greeks had lost the Battles of Marathon and Thermopylae the progress of Greek science and art might have been retarded. But on the other hand you cannot kill art and you cannot kill science. Then Creasy said the battle of Tours was so important, where Moors tried to overcome the French. I still say had the people from the South moved up through France they probably might have retarded French civilization. But on the other hand civilization would have survived. Then we come down to the battle of Cressy and Poitiers and on to the Battle of Saratoga. Saratoga was considered the only decisive battle fought upon American soil because this victory for the Americans was a deciding factor in our gaining the aid of France in our Revolution. I am not sure that the victory at Waterloo on the part of the British was an advancement for civilization and that civilization would have been retarded if the French had won. I am not able to interpolate the facts of history, but I can say from my humble experience that war is a horrible thing and the more quickly we can put an end to it the sooner will we be doing a humane and kind thing.

Of course we do not want to criticize anyone in authority, Mr. Speaker, but I hope we can muster all of the energy we can to halt the movement of communism. At this time, as I said before, there are being circulated petitions by people who are urging us not to go forth with our defense program. I want to repeat. These people are noble, courageous, high-minded, and God-fearing American people who are groping as Lowell said in his "Vision of Sir Launfal"—"groping blindly above us for light."

They are trying to see the light. But it is up to you and me as Members of Congress to try to impress upon them that they may be joining up with groups that have not the destruction of war in mind, but the destruction of America in mind. We should ask them carefully to consider this proposition. We must not fail in this critical moment of our national life.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may require.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, before discussing the rule before us and the bill covered by it, I wish to congratulate my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McSWEENEY] for the very appropriate and able remarks he has made with reference to war and the fact that, after all, wars do not solve any of the problems of the human race.

House Resolution 685 makes in order the consideration of H. R. 7940, a bill to provide financial assistance for local educational agencies in areas affected by Federal activities, and for other purposes, under 2 hours of general debate. This is an open rule which will permit full consideration and amendment of the measure.

H. R. 7940 was reported, I believe, unanimously by the Committee on Education and Labor, and the rule sending the measure to the floor was reported unanimously by the Rules Committee.

I wish to take this opportunity, if I may, to congratulate the author of the bill [Mr. BAILEY] and his committee for the great care and attention which has been given to the preparation of this measure. You may notice that the bill, as originally written, has been changed considerably, and a practically new or clean bill reported. I have gone over this measure rather thoroughly. I am in full agreement with its objectives. I believe it is absolutely necessary we take some such action as provided in this measure to meet the needs of certain school districts and areas in the Nation which have been badly affected by the expansion of Government holdings, air fields, military installations, and so forth throughout the Nation.

The Congress has taken similar steps in the past. The first was under the so-called Lanham Act, which gave aid to those schools which were hard hit by the impact of the war economy and the great expansion of Government ownership throughout the Nation during the war years.

I am especially interested in this measure because I have in my own district a part of Wright Field and all of Paterson Air Base. I know something of that which has happened there, where the Government has taken a great deal of the land off the tax duplicates in various school districts, for the use of the Air Forces, and at the same time sent into those school districts a great many additional families with children. I have seen those school districts stagger along, attempting to furnish educational facilities to the children who are asking for an education. I have seen the people in those districts vote extra tax levies for school purposes, up to the limit permitted by law, taxing themselves, not only to take care of their own children, but to take care of the children who came from elsewhere, and have been brought there because of the employment of their parents at the Government installations or because their fathers were a part of the military forces of the Nation. So I think it only fair and just that we enact legislation such as this, so that Uncle Sam, the National Government, pay a fair share of the cost of operating those school facilities. Certainly, if you or I, as a private businessman or the head of a corporation, would go into any school district of America, buy up a great deal of land and build a factory there, we would be taxed to pay our fair share of the cost of maintaining the local schools to give an educational opportunity to the children of the people we employ. But, seemingly, that rule has not always applied to the Federal Government. Instead, the Federal Government has taken land and property off the tax duplicate, thereby placing a heavier burden than ever before upon the remaining property. Then, in addition, it has caused a great influx of new families and new children, swamping the school facilities of that area.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. JENKINS. It is true, is it not, that in those districts the load has become so heavy that now the people who live in the community cannot finance it, and the schools are so overcrowded that nobody gets justice?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. JENKINS] is entirely right. I know of school districts in our own State where not only are the school facilities inadequate but the local areas cannot possibly bond themselves to build needed new school facilities.

There are school districts in our own State where the schools are being operated at a deficit; the local banks and private citizens are advancing the money to meet those deficits, even though the people are taxing themselves to the limit, and have voted extra tax levies to try to maintain the schools.

Mr. BREHM. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. BREHM. The gentleman mentioned the amount of land the Federal Government had taken off the tax duplicates. Does the gentleman from Ohio have any idea how much land the Federal Government might own throughout the country?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. No; I do not know. But I think the committee might know. I have understood that the Federal Government owned about one-ninth of all the land of the United States, which is quite a considerable parcel.

Mr. BREHM. I may say that I called one of the departments and was informed that they were setting up a committee to study that very question and find out.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I am not sure we know just what the Federal Government does own in this country. But there is one thing I do know, that there are many school districts in America and many schools around Government installations that are in the direst of circumstances, and are now suffering great hardships. The little youngsters of this country, the boys and girls, who are in no way responsible for anything which has gone on, are suffering as a result of the present situation. The Congress of the United States has a responsibility to do something to correct it.

Mr. HOLMES. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. HOLMES. I appreciate the remarks the gentleman is making. The gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] and his committee, held hearings in the Fourth Congressional District in the State of Washington, very extensive hearings. Many communities were represented at those hearings and showed conclusively and objectively the very problem and needs the gentleman mentions. I appreciate very much the gentleman's reference to the merits of the bill. I am wholeheartedly supporting the legislation.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I thank the gentleman for his statement, because it calls to my mind the fact that members of the Committee on Labor and Education, under the leadership of the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] have made a very thorough investigation and a very careful study of this situation. This bill is predicated not on theory but on fact. The committee speaks from knowledge of the situation. I think they have met it in a very particular way.

Mr. O'KONSKI. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. O'KONSKI. How far back does this bill go in the matter of benefits, what year?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I think it begins with July 1, 1950. Is that correct, I ask the gentleman from West Virginia?

Mr. BAILEY. Yes.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Benefits will start to be paid from the beginning of the present fiscal year.

Mr. O'KONSKI. I mean how far back, how long ago must the land or land in an affected area have been acquired by the Federal Government in order for that area to be entitled to benefits?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I think wherever the Federal Government owns land or facilities that cause congestion.

Mr. BAILEY. If the gentleman will yield, I may say that it affects land and property acquired subsequent to 1938.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Subsequent to 1938.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. JONAS. I am very much in sympathy with this bill, having been a school teacher myself once upon a time.

What I am primarily interested in is whether or not this is in any sense of the word, intentionally or unintentionally, directly or indirectly, a step toward Federal aid to education?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. No; this is not a bill to provide Federal aid to education. If it were, I would oppose it.

Mr. JONAS. That is an answer to my question.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. This is simply a matter wherein the Federal Government is to pay its fair share of the cost of maintaining schools in areas where the Government itself has a specific interest, land, property, or where the number of Goverment employees are over crowding the public schools.

Mr. JONAS. In other words, the Federal Government is merely being put in the position of a local taxpayer or business concern.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. That is correct.

Mr. McSWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. McSWEENEY. Is it not true that under this bill the Federal Government has no jurisdiction whatsoever over school standards, has nothing whatever to say with regard to curricula, with regard to the allocation of funds for different types of education or anything?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. The gentleman is correct.

As I understand the bill it places the Federal Government in practically the same position as if a private person, concern, or corporation owned the installation rather than the Federal Government.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield.

Mr. McCONNELL. I think it is proper to point out in view of the appropriate questions asked by the gentleman from Illinois that this bill replaces former laws that we thought took care of these situations.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I previously attempted to point out that the Lanham Act was the first such bill.

In conclusion, may I say I have studied this bill carefully and, if I might have the attention of the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] and the members of the Committee on Education and Labor, I have a suggestion as to two minor amendments to this bill. I have discussed these proposed changes with some members of the committee. Referring to page 18 and page 19, in order to clarify this bill, I suggest that after the semicolon in line 2, page 19, the word "or" be added, and the same word "or" be added after the semicolon in line 4, so as to make absolutely certain, and to spell out and make very definite, that if any one of the these conditions exist as described in the bill a school district is entitled to consideration for Federal contributions.

I hope this resolution will be unanimously adopted, and that the measure which will be brought up for debate under it will have the approval of the House.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7940) to provide financial assistance for local educational agencies in areas affected by Federal activities, and for other purposes.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 7940, with Mr. HAYS of Arkansas in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

By unanimous consent, the first reading of the bill was dispensed with.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, first I want to say that it gives me considerable pleasure to bring an important piece of legislation to the floor of the House with a unanimous vote of the Committee on Education and Labor. I assure the membership of the House that the committee has worked hard on this matter. There were two subcommittees which traveled extensively gathering data throughout the Nation, one of those subcommittees headed by the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY], the other by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BURKE]. The subcommittees gathered the data and presented it to the full committee.

May I say that heretofore we have attempted to deal with the problem of relieving these local school districts and local schools that suffered from the sudden impacts caused by aetivities of the Government in a piecemeal fashion. Each year we have passed a bill that partially took care of the situation. Also the Army, Navy, and other activities and departments of the Government have heretofore been operating schools, some on Government property and some on nearby Government property. Other communities for some reason or other have not been able to comply with the various acts passed which were designed to give relief to those communities.

So the committee was faced with the problem of meeting the situation in approximately 600 or more communities throughout the United States with, in many instances, totally unlike problems, and so it has been the desire of the committee to try to see to it that each one of the problems presented by the Government activities be met and taken care of. Each year this matter has been handled there has been a demand on the part of Members of the House, and Government agencies, and on the part of the other body, that we have permanent legislation. Now we have offered to the House a piece of permanent legislation: We do not know just what kind of war effort may be required on the part of this Nation in the next few months. We do not know how many of the various air fields or military establishments may be reactivated. If they are reactivated, the answer is in this legislation to take care of the problem as it might be presented.

We have in some other instances had problems created by, for instance, removing the property from the tax books, with public housing, where the tax revenue from that particular school district was cut down and immediately became a burden upon those living, for instance, outside of the project. We have been prone to deal with the housing problem as just simply a housing problem without giving thought to the problem that might be created by that very thing that we called a relief move. So I think it is well for us to recognize that there is a considerable amount of trouble that grows out of that, and further we should recognize that that is a particular problem because of those nontaxable projects of public housing. There is a distinct responsibility on the part of the Government to see to it that it does take care of the added burdens that it might throw on some one particular local community.

This bill deals with the maintenance and operation of schools. Some mention has been made here of the fact that the committee was considering another bill which deals with the construction of buildings. We are dealing with that and have been in constant session almost daily for the past several weeks.

Mr. JUDD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. JUDD. Does that bill include, in addition to construction of buildings, provision for equipment, and facilities, or is that handled in this bill?

Mr. BARDEN. No; we are handling construction. What you might term equipment, and so forth, is in the other bill.

Mr. JUDD. This is strictly for salaries?

Mr. BARDEN. This is maintenance and operation. That is what this bill deals with. In connection with the other bill we are confronted with a considerable number of problems. It is no easy job to fit it together so that we can recommend it as being first-class legislation.

Mr. SASSCER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. SASSCER. It is not quite clear to me which particular units come under the various sections of this bill. If a county has been receiving from the Federal Government compensation for the instruction of children from a reservation, and then it should not qualify under any of the various sections of this bill, would the continuance of the payments the county has been getting for the children from that particular installation then be precluded?

Mr. BARDEN. If they have been collecting under the Wier bill, there was a provision whereby the Navy could make payments. I think the gentleman will find that where the Navy was justified in making these payments or where the Army was justified in making the pupil adjustments, or where the Wier bill supplemented the local funds, all of those communities will qualify under this bill. That has been our problem. Each time we got it to where we thought we had it adjusted exactly right we would have to open it up and find some way to take care of a situation. We think we have taken care of the situation to which the gentleman refers.

Mr. SASSCER. Even though technically according to the formula they might not come under it, is the spirit of the bill that if they had heretofore qualified they could get payments?

Mr. BARDEN. I would not care to mislead the gentleman. There is no clause in this bill that would in effect say that any school district which has heretofore received money from any of the sources to which the gentleman refers is automatically blanketed in here. However, under the formulas that we have set out in the bill, any district that is receiving payments from a Federal Government activity, be it Navy, Army, Air Force, or whatever it may be, will be covered. Therefore, virtually all the cases to which the gentleman refers will be taken care of.

Mr. SASSCER. I was not particularly referring to the impact on them, but take for instance the naval powder factory at Indian Head. That is an old area, but the Government has been making some contribution to the county authorities for the children living on the reservation. It is possible—I do not know; I have not had a chance to spell it out—that they may not have had the impact to bring them under this formula. I was disturbed for fear that that particular community might lose what it was heretofore rightfully getting, due to the fact that it did not qualify.

Mr. BARDEN. In order that we may have it all together, may I ask the gentleman from West Virginia if they gave the Indian Head case any study?

Mr. BAILEY. Our committee did not pay particular attention to the installation at Indian Head except that we have a report from the school district there which shows they will qualify under the provisions of this bill. The gentleman from Maryland need have no further worry.

Mr. SASSCER. I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. JUDD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. JUDD. May I ask the gentleman how much this bill will cost in addition to the amounts that are being spent for this purpose now by various Federal agencies? On page 7 of the report it appears we are spending during the current year about $17,000,000 through 12 different agencies. This bill will coordinate the program and get it on a sound basis. How much more, roughly, does the gentleman think it will take to do the job that ought to be done?

Mr. BARDEN. The best estimate the committee could make through its work with the department and in gathering all the data we could gather was that it would cost a total of approximately $32,000,000. As an explanation for the additional amount, may I cite the case of one base which I happen to know of in North Carolina that had approximately 600 children dumped into that district, whereas before the base was put there the property was on the tax books at about $140,000. But 600 children were put in there.

Under the Wier bill which was passed by our committee it provided that the local school district must show a deficit in order to qualify for funds under that bill. Unfortunately, in that particular instance, perhaps, in North Carolina we put people in jail who operate Government agencies at a deficit and so we had to choose between the jail house and the poorhouse. We picked the poorhouse and did not get a dollar of the funds. So there is one instance where a considerable amount of money will be used which heretofore was not.

Mr. JUDD. I do not know many places where the money can be used to better advantage. As one who formerly served with the gentleman from North Carolina when he was chairman of the old Committee on Education, during which service I came to have for him the greatest admiration, affection, and regard, I commend the gentleman and his committee for reporting this bill. I have resolutely opposed Federal aid to education where Federal money would be given to every teacher or for every child in areas where they do not need it as well as in those where they do. This bill deals with fields where the Federal Government should function, giving aid in areas where it is particularly responsible and where we cannot expect the local agencies to do it.

Mr. BARDEN. May I point out to the gentleman that these payments go to the district affected. They do not go through the State set-up.

Mr. JUDD. That is right. They go where needs exist which the Federal Government should meet.

Mr. BARDEN. The relief goes directly to the point where it is needed.

Mr. SADLAK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield.

Mr. SADLAK. I have searched the report and have not found, as previously was the case when we had measures like this up for consideration, any list of the communities which are affected which would be entitled to these payments. Would the gentleman refer me to any part of the hearings where there might be a list of the districts particularly affected?

I recall previously when we had up for consideration a bill along this same line the point was raised that the funds provided might go down to districts in the State of Texas, for example, and the Texas community would be getting these funds where previously in Connecticut we had provided for all the school facilities.

Mr. BARDEN. May I point out to the gentleman that my folks got on one of those lists, but did not get any money.

However, we could not make up a list without going out to each one of these various areas and gathering the data to see just which district would come under the bill and to what extent. We did do this; we used this precaution; we sent experts out to fit these formulas to the particular districts and to see how they worked out. We used those districts, for example, as guinea pigs to make sure we had them. But it would be impossible for us to list them, because some would be going out and some might be in better shape than they were last year. And then who knows how many districts there might be that would come under it in the next 60 days?

Mr. SADLAK. I am particularly interested here because there was only one district in Connecticut which qualified previously and that was the Groton-East Hartford district. I was interested to know whether it is now included and provided for in his legislation.

Mr. BARDEN. I am sorry I cannot give the gentleman that information.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield.

Mr. McCONNELL. May I suggest to my colleague from Connecticut who has just referred to a very important question concerning his district that he suggest to the local educational agency that they examine carefully the provisions of section 4 (b) so that they may find out whether they do qualify under this section.

Mr. JUDD. They will qualify if they deserve to, will they not?

Mr. McCONNELL. That is right.

Mr. McSWEENEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield.

Mr. McSWEENEY. Will not this program of necessity be an elastic program because the situation will be changing from time to time?

Mr. BARDEN. Positively. This situation might arise, for example. If we were to become involved in war activities where emergency conditions would exist throughout the country, this act is designed to take care of that very kind of emergency.

Mr. WHITAKER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield.

Mr. WHITAKER. In my district, I have a situation where there is a plant which cannot be used except in case of war. It will depend on the situation as to whether or not the plant will be reactivated. If it should become activated, as I understand it, then that locality has a means of securing help in their school troubles. There will be 600 students come in when it is activated. Do I make myself clear?

Mr. BARDEN. If I understand the proposition the gentleman is speaking of, he will be taken care of: If it is a question of reactivation, and those students come in, there is no question but that the situation will be taken care of.

I want to thank the House for its attention to this matter. I appreciate so much the kind remarks made by the gentleman from Ohio, and others, in behalf of this bill. I will say frankly I do not know of any opposition to it. I think we have a good piece of legislation, and I hope it will meet the approval of the House.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, we have very few requests for time on this side. If the gentleman wishes to proceed now, we will go on later.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY].

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. I would like to say to the gentleman and my colleagues that I especially appreciate the work the gentleman has done on this legislation, and I want to give him public credit for securing a splendid bill. We are all indebted to him.

Mr. BAILEY. I thank the gentleman from Texas for his very complimentary remarks.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. I would like to join with my colleague, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LUCAS], in the remarks he has just made. I would like to ask the gentleman if he would discuss briefly two questions. The first, on page 24, which we discussed in the committee, the formula. You have point 1, line 11, "10 or more children, or 3 percent." It seems to me to be very low. It does not seem to me, with only 10 children or 3 percent, that an area is very hard hit. The second point is that you go back to 1938 in using these figures. It seems to me we should have used a later date, 1940 or 1941. I cannot see how we were getting prepared for war in 1938, and I do not think we should go back that far now.

Mr. BAILEY. I appreciate the point the gentleman has made, and I shall endeavor during the course of my remarks to answer his questions.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield.

Mr. YATES. I would like to ask the gentleman whether a city, like the city of Chicago for instance, which has had a tremendous influx of industrial workers, attributable to the war, many of whom are still within the city, could qualify under the provisions of this act, or whether it is intended for rural communities.

Mr. BAILEY. With the tremendous school enrollment and the tremendous wealth in those larger cities, they will not have sufficient Government or Federal programs to qualify under the terms of this bill, because we have eligibility percentages set up that will be explained to the gentleman during the course of the discussion.

Mr. Chairman, when Uncle Sam becomes a resident of any community and through his activities in national defense, and in the development of our natural resources, creates an undue burden on the other citizens and taxpayers of that governmental unit, as a matter of justice and in all fairness, he should expect to assume his proportionate share of the cost of Government in the taxing unit in which he has become a resident, even though his residence is of a temporary nature.

Let me at this time disabuse the minds of any of my colleagues that the legislation proposed in H. R. 7940, now before you for consideration, has anything to do with Federal aid to education. It makes no provisions for grants or aid. It provides only for the discharge of a Government obligation created by the Government itself through its activities in national defense, the development of atomic energy, the reclamation of lands, and the control of floods in our rivers and streams.

Many Members of the Eighty-first Congress, including Members of the other body, realize the serious situation confronting several hundred of the Nation's school districts due primarily to the Government's activities. On convening of the Eighty-first Congress, more than 40 Members introduced legislation dealing with different phases of this problem. These Representatives' proposals were referred to the House Committee on Education and Labor, of which I have the honor to be a member. They were considered by our committee and it was found that the problem was a diversified and an intricate one and would necessitate an extended survey to ascertain the extent of the Government's responsibility. Our committee also realized that the haphazard manner in which this problem has been handled in the past was entirely unsatisfactory.

Many of you will recall that it was necessary during the period of the Second World War for the Government to take cognizance of this serious problem. Legislation was enacted early in the war to provide not only maintenance and operation assistance, but also to supply money for needed school facilities. This legislation is commonly referred to as the Lanham Act. It was hoped that after VJ-day, the Government would be able to drop this program of assistance during the postwar period on the assumption that with the demobilization of our armed forces and the deactivation of our wartime facilities, would permit the affected school taxing units to return to their prewar normal program. This was a false assumption. Only a limited number of our wartime activities were deactivated and in many instances new installations having to do with national defense have been established. Many others have been reactivated to the point where hundreds of these school districts are overburdened and are wholly unable to meet from their own resources the added burden for which the Government is directly responsible.

Mr. Chairman, only yesterday I received, and I want to read into the RECORD, this telegram. It is from Tucson, Ariz.:

TUCSON, ARIZ., July 11, 1950.

Hon. CLEVELAND M. BAILEY,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.:

Three thousand workers will modify planes in former plane plant in school district. Expect 500 more pupils in September. Continue having pupils from Federal housing project within district. Providing for future citizens should be second only to immediate problem of war. H. R. 7940 must be passed.

HULDA SCHUCH,
Principal, Sunnyside School.

Our committee decided that the problem was of sufficient import that it should receive the study of a special committee, and in due time, two groups were designated to hold public hearings to secure adequate data on which the committee could base legislation.

I had the honor to be named as chairman of one of these special study groups and I had with me in this work, the able assistance of the Honorable TOM STEED, of Oklahoma; the Honorable LEONARD IRVING, of Missouri; the Honorable RICHARD NIXON, of California; and the Honorable THRUSTON B. MORTON, of Kentucky. The other special group was under the direction of the Honorable THOMAS H. BURKE, of Ohio; assisted by the Honorable ROY W. WIER, of Minnesota; the Honorable CARL PERKINS, of Kentucky; the Honorable SAMUEL K. MCCONNELL, JR., of Pennsylvania; and the Honorable THOMAS H. WERDEL, of California.

I wish, at this time, Mr. Chairman, to extend my appreciation and thanks to the members of these special groups for their untiring efforts and able contribution in the preparation of the legislation as proposed in H. R. 7940. May I take the liberty of saying at this time, that no proposed legislation coming before the Eighty-first Congress, has had more attention than this legislation which has consumed several months in the course of preparation.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. LANHAM. At this time I want to congratulate and thank these two subcommittees for the splendid work they have done in making a survey of the entire country and of the school situation in each section; not only that but to congratulate this subcommittee for the fine work it has done in bringing the bill before the House.

While I am not a member of the Committee on Education and Labor, I was permitted to sit in with this committee for a short time while the bill was being drafted. I had to go back to my own committee work, but I was with the committee long enough to know just what problem it had before it and how difficult it was to bring out a bill like this which is fair to all sections of the country and which will, I am sure, solve our problem.

I want to again congratulate not only the subcommittees but the entire Committee on Education and Labor for the fine work they have done.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from West Virginia has expired.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman 10 additional minutes.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the able gentleman from Georgia for his very complimentary remarks on the work of my special committee and the committee as a whole.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BUCHANAN. I join with the other members of the committee in commending the chairman of the subcommittee on the activities in which that committee has been engaged in clarifying many of the provisions of the original legislation that was introduced. I feel as though the situation in my own congressional district has been adequately covered and I thank the gentleman for his very kind consideration.

Mr. BAILEY. I thank the gentleman for his remarks.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. I have not been able to find the information in the bill that I desire. May I ask if the bill includes reservations on which Indians are living and who go to the public schools in those communities?

Mr. BAILEY. I think the gentleman will find a provision covering that where the Indians are attending what we call the white or public schools. Certain sections of them are covered in this bill. Indian-reservation schools, of course, are exempted.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. In a district where we have a public school and there is an Indian reservation close by and the Indian children attend the public schools; will they be included in this legislation?

Mr. BAILEY. Yes.

It has been difficult legislation to write in that the problems confronting our committee were found to be different as our working groups carefully checked our Army, Navy, Air Force, and marine installations, as well as our atomic-energy plants and our extensive field of endeavor and land reclamation and flood control. I take considerable pride in the knowledge that our committee has done an excellent job in the preparation of this legislation, and I sincerely hope that it receives the careful consideration of every Member of the House.

Our subcommittee, in the study of this intricate problem, soon discovered that the manner in which it has been handled in the past was cumbersome and inadequate. Both the Eightieth and the Eighty-first Congress had dealt with this problem by temporary legislation in the form of the Landis Act of the Eightieth Congress and in the form of the Wier Act of the Eighty-first Congress. In addition, we learned that at least 10 other governmental departments were in one way or another making contributions from their appropriations, wholly inadequate, I might add, in an effort to meet the situation. It was the decision of our committee, and in order to avoid duplication and overlapping authority, as well as to achieve a measure of economy, that the problems could best be solved by a unified administration and a unified appropriation, such as is provided in the pending legislation.

Our subcommittee held a week's hearings in the city of Washington to ascertain from the several governmental units involved what their activities along this line had been in the postwar period and to ascertain what their wishes were as to how the matter should be handled in the future. It was the unanimous opinion of all of the several governmental departments involved that they wanted to get out of the field of education, and as a result heartily endorsed the committee's proposal to unify the Government's efforts in this field by placing the whole program under the supervision of the United States Commissioner of Education.

In addition, our subcommittee conducted extensive hearings in the field and received testimony from not only the affected school district officials but from the officials of the Government installations in the several impacted school districts.

I have here some 2,700 printed copies of testimony taken at 24 statistical points throughout the Nation, ranging from Boston in the East to Jacksonville, Fla., in the South, to San Diego, Calif., Los Angeles, and Seattle, Wash., in the far West, with intervening midcontinent centers. Testimony was had from over 600 individuals, representing at least 42 of the 48 States in the Nation.

In addition to our formal testimony, our subcommittee, through carefully prepared questionnaires through the several State departments of education, endeavored to ascertain the extent of the Government impact. This statistical data was compiled in the form of a subcommittee report to our whole committee and presents in concise form the problems of the individual school districts, classified by States.

Our committee also was able to compile dependable data from 410 of these affected districts, more than one-half million boys and girls for which the Government has a direct responsibility to provide an adequate school program. In these affected districts alone we found that the Federal Government had acquired by purchase and had taken off the tax rolls of the several school districts 250,000,000 acres of land, currently valued at $13,500,000,000. This amount, if assessed at the current tax rates of the several districts, would yield an amount in excess of $193,000,000 annually in operating expenses of schools—an amount greater in excess of approximately $32,000,000 proposed as an annual expenditure under the provision of the pending legislation.

Now, Mr. Chairman, at this time I feel sure that there is considerable interest in the minds of the Members of this House as to the approximate cost of this legislation, and I would like, if the committee will bear with me, to take some time in explaining what the approximate cost will be. In the previous discussion on this measure our chairman, the able gentleman from North Carolina, advised that the program would cost approximately $30,000,000. If I am permitted to do so, I would like to give a breakdown of this approximate cost, if the gentleman will bear with me and give me time; otherwise I would like to insist that some other member of the committee give the information. May I inquire of the gentleman from North Carolina as to his wishes in the matter?

Mr. BARDEN. The gentleman has not used all of his time, but I will try to give him such time as he may need.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. FULTON. I want to know, specifically, if there is a plant transferred to the National Industrial Reserve on January 1, 1949, which now pays no taxes, whether such a township, for example, in Pennsylvania, that has such a plant in it, would be given assistance under this particular bill as it might have been under H. R. 7804.

Mr. BAILEY. Is the title to the property still in the Federal Government?

Mr. FULTON. No; it was transferred to the National Industrial Reserve on January 1, 1949.

Mr. BAILEY. Is that in a stand-by status?

Mr. FULTON. Yes.

Mr. BAILEY. Then it will be eligible under the bill just as if it was reactivated, if a Federal program still exists.

Mr. FULTON. Does this bill also apply to communities where there are Federal housing projects that are near plants that are suffering from lack of taxes, because the Federal housing projects are not paying taxes? Does this bill cover that situation?

Mr. BAILEY. It covers it completely, for the information of the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. FULTON. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. Chairman, at this point may I say that our committee attempted to ascertain the approximate cost of this program as contained in legislation proposed in H. R. 7940.

If you have the bill before you I would like to call attention to section 2. There, my friends, we propose to discharge an obligation caused by the Federal Government going into a district and purchasing a considerable amount of land, taking it off the tax rolls, and thereby reducing the ability of the local school board to meet its school needs.

Now, I say to the gentleman from Massachusetts who raised the question, that the intent of this legislation is to try to recompense the impacted school districts due to the war activities connected primarily with World War II. Many of you Members of the House will recall that prior to the outbreak of World War II our defense activities started somewhere along the summer of 1938 and the early part of 1939. The acquisition of these properties preceded the actual outbreak of the war. As a result we have confined it to the acquisition of property since 1938 due to the war impact. Now, we estimate, gentlemen, that the approximate cost to the Government to reimburse the districts for the loss of tax values from these lands will be approximately $1,000,000. Section 3 (a) of the bill does not deal with the acquisition of land but deals with the impact of children in the school district.

Mr. BREHM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BAILEY. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. BREHM. I want to congratulate the gentleman on the splendid work he has done on the subcommittee in drafting this bill, and ask him this question: Is there any opposition to this bill from any quarter?

Mr. BAILEY. None that I know of, I may say to the gentleman, for which I am deeply thankful.

Mr. Chairman, as a basis for the estimates of the amounts required for the 1951 fiscal year by this bill, I submit the following data:

SECTION 2. LAND ACQUIRED BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

This is, in reality, a guess. Data have been obtained on land acquisitions since 1939 by the Department of the Interior, Department of Defense, and Department of Agriculture. These data show acreage acquired and value of the land but it does not show this acreage in relation to the total land in the school district from which it was acquired. Reports to the subcommittees show only the value of the land acquired plus improvements on that land. It is believed that the number of school districts eligible under this section is not large, although acquisitions of land since 1939 have been extensive.

SECTION 3A. CHILDREN RESIDING ON FEDERAL PROPERTY—SECTION 6. CHILDREN FOR WHOM NO LOCAL AGENCY IS ABLE TO PROVIDE EDUCATION

The Department of National Defense on the basis of information from each installation reports that there will be 77,481 school children living on Federal property under its jurisdiction at the beginning of next school year, and that the local share of the cost of their education will be $11,071,997. This is at the rate of $142 local cost per child. This Department also reports that an additional 10,000 school children will be living on Federal property during the year as the result of Wherry housing construction for which no estimate of cost was given.

It is believed that the 87,500 children is a reasonable accurate figure, but that $140 as the local cost per child is much too high. The total cost of current operating expenses per child in the United States last year, according to statistics of the United States Office of Education, was just under $200. Of this amount the local share was approximately $105 and the State share was $95. These data include big cities as well as rural areas. The school districts reporting to the subcommittee reported a per pupil cost of approximately $140 with the State share at $76 and the local share including Federal funds at $71. The local share without Federal funds was $60 per child.

For the purpose of this estimate it is believed that $80 local cost per child is reasonably accurate for the school districts affected by Federal activities.

It is believed that 7,500 children of the 87,500 under jurisdiction of the Department of National Defense will be living on Federal property where no Federal agency has authority or is able to provide schooling for the children, leaving 80,000 for which some educational agency can provide education. The 7,500 will require the full per-pupil cost set at $200 per child, or a total of $1,500,000 for section 6. The 80,000, at $80 cost per child, is $6,400,000.

The Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of Interior reports 2,700 children living on Federal property at $200 per child, or a total cost of $550,000. They report $21,000 for 160 children on Bureau of Mines installations, $33,000 for 250 children living on Fish and Wildlife properties, and $56,000 for 333 children living on national parks. In addition, the Department reports almost 10,000 non-Indian children living on Indian reservations with a total cost of $1,000,000. Amounts per child vary for these different groups, depending on location. It is believed that these reports are reasonably reliable. They have been accepted as submitted. They amount to $1,660,000 for approximately 13,500 children.

The Housing officials report 310,000 housing units under their jurisdiction, with 293,000 presently occupied. The latest available figure shows $15,000 payments in lieu of taxes a year for these units, of which 40 percent, or $6,000,000, was for schools. The national average is about seven-tenths of a school child per dwelling unit. The Housing officials report the number of school children in their units is higher than the national average, or from eight-tenths to one school child per unit. On this basis there would be from 235,400 to 293,000 school children in wartime housing units. Some of these units are located in areas where the school district will not be eligible because of the 3-percent limitation, and some additional ones may be transferred to private ownership. For the purpose of this estimate it is assumed there will be 200,000 eligible children in these housing units at $80 per child. This amounts to $16,000,000 from which is to be subtracted the $6,000,000 payments in lieu of taxes for school purposes, leaving $10,000,000 for wartime housing.

The total in this section 3A arrived as set forth above is approximately $18,060,000 and for section 6 is $1,500,000.

SECTION 3. CHILDREN WHOSE PARENTS ARE EMPLOYED ON FEDERAL PROPERTY

The Federal agencies gave little or no information on the costs of this section because it is difficult to ascertain. The school districts reporting data to the subcommittees showed 137,000 children whose parents are employed on Federal property. It was estimated that these reports were from two-thirds to three-fourths complete. Applying the correction factor there would be approximately 200,000 school children in this category at $40 per child which is one-half the local cost. This is a total of $8,000,000 in this category.

SECTION 4A. SUDDEN AND SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE IN SCHOOL ENROLLMENT OCCURRING IN THE FUTURE

It is believed there will be very few if any such increases next year and that no funds need be provided in this category for next year.

SECTION 4B. SUDDEN AND SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE IN ENROLLMENT OCCURRING IN THE PAST

This is the most difficult category to estimate in terms of number of children or total cost. It is believed that most school districts eligible under this section were covered by the Wier bill this year. Also, it is known that a large number of school districts eligible under the Wier bill this year will be eligible under sections 3A and 3B next year. It is believed on the basis of this information that $3,500,000 will be sufficient to cover the schools in section 3B.

Total: The total of the estimates for the several sections as set forth above amounts to $32,000,000.

STATEMENT REGARDING ESTIMATED AMOUNT OF FUNDS NEEDED UNDER H. R. 7940 FOR THE 1951 FISCAL YEAR

Consultants to the committee working on this bill have estimated that $32,000,000 of Federal funds would be needed to carry out the provisions of H. R. 7940 for the 1951 fiscal year. The subcommittee and the full committee have considered it to be a reliable estimate. It was based on reports by affected school districts, reports by the various Federal agencies directly concerned and by first-hand inspection of the situation in many school districts. There is attached a detailed statement of the basis for the estimate. The estimate for each section of the bill follows:

Estimate by sections of the bill

Sec.		Number of children	Amount
2	Payments for land removed from the tax rolls since 1939.	0	$1,000,000
3A	Children residing on Federal property.	293,500	18,060,000
3B	Children whose parents are employed on Federal property.	200,000	8,000,000
4A	Sudden and substantial impacts occurring in the future.		0
4B	Sudden and substantial impacts occurring in the past.	(1)	3,500,000
6	Children residing on Federal property for whom no school agency is responsible or is able to provide education.	7,500	1,500,000
	Total		32,060,000

[1] Not known.

The estimates as shown above were discussed with representatives of the Bureau of the Budget before being submitted to the committee. Subsequently, the Bureau of the Budget sent a letter to the committee counsel stating that it felt the cost of the bill might approximate $40,000,000 instead of $32,000,000. The only difference in the two estimates is that the Bureau of the Budget used a cost figure of $100 per child from local funds. This is based on the national average of $200 per child total cost, of which about $100 comes from State funds and $100 comes from local funds. The $32,000,000 estimate was based on a cost of $80 per child instead of $100. The former is based on actual reports to the subcommittee by the 410 affected school districts. The subcommittees that studied this problem believe that the $32,000,000 estimate is the more reliable.

H. R. 7940 proposes to consolidate into one program Federal assistance for current operating expenses of schools affected by Federal activities, funds for which have been heretofore appropriated to and administered by six different Federal agencies. The six different Federal agencies reported to the subcommittee that they spent $12,078,696 for current operating expenses for federally affected school districts the current fiscal year. The budget requests for this purpose for these same agencies, for the 1951 fiscal year as reported by the Bureau of the Budget on June 23 is $4,913,717. This budget estimate for the 1951 fiscal year does not include $7,050,000 appropriated for the 1950 fiscal year to the General Services Administration. No budget request for this program was made by the General Services Administration for the 1951 fiscal year because it was expected that funds would be included in the proposed bill, H. R. 7940. The $4,913,717 included in the 1951 fiscal year budget, when added to the $7,050,000 formerly appropriated to the General Services Administration, amounts to $11,963,717 which is almost as much as was expended for this purpose in the 1950 fiscal year.

The expenditures for the 1949–50 fiscal year for current operating expenses of schools affected by Federal activities as reported by the various Federal agencies and the amounts included in their respective budget requests for the 1951 fiscal year are shown below:

Agency	Fiscal year expenditures		Budget requests, 1951
	1949	1950
National Defense Establishment:
Department of the Army	$1,109,227	$1,538,744	$1,651,400
Department of the Navy	728,299	1,354,240	1,226,317
Department of the Air Force	597,094	994,603	500,000
Corps of Engineers (civil functions)	210,000	464,000	700,000
Atomic Energy Commission off-reservation schools	217,297	81,600	36,000
Department of the Interior: Bureau of Reclamation	255,359	631,622	800,000
General Services Administration: Commercial facilities service	5,853,802	7,050,000	0
Total	8,971,078	12,332,696	4,913,717

The above table shows that H. R. 7940 will require approximately $20,000,000 more Federal funds in the 1951 fiscal year for assistance to schools affected by Federal activities than was expended for this purpose in the 1950 fiscal year. The reasons for this increase are as follows:

First. The Wherry-Spence housing program for military personnel now getting under way will place at least 23,350 more school children of military personnel on Federal reservations next school year than there were during the school year which has just ended. According to reports from the Defense Establishment the cost for these additional children is estimated to be $2,350,000. This expenditure was not required for the 1950 fiscal year.

It is pointed out that the budget request shown above for the National Defense Establishment for the 1951 fiscal year is $4,077,717. The National Defense Establishment reported to the committee that there would be 77,000 children living on Federal property under its jurisdiction during the 1951 fiscal year and that the estimated cost under H. R. 7940 would be over $11,000,000. This $11,000,000 estimated of the cost for the 1951 fiscal year is to be compared to the budget request of $4,077,717 for the same purpose for the same year.

Second. It is expected that the Wherry-Spence housing program will also place an additional 10,000 children in communities located adjacent to Federal reservations during the 1951 fiscal year at a cost of $400,000 a year. This situation is new this year.

Third. Funds appropriated to the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force for the 1950 fiscal year were not sufficient to provide, as authorized by law, the local share of the cost of educating children living on Federal reservations. In some cases only three-fourths of the required amount was paid and in other cases the investigating committee was told the allotment was only one-half the amount authorized. In a number of cases school districts eligible for these funds received no assistance because funds for them were not included in the budget request of the Department for the year and no funds were appropriated to cover these costs. The Navy Department particularly made no payments to a number of eligible school districts.

Shortages of funds occurring because of these circumstances were sometimes made up by tuition payments by parents, raffles, rummage sales, cake bakes and similar money-raising devices. It is believed that several million dollars were provided for school purposes from these sources.

Fourth. The Corps of Engineers has authority from Congress to provide school assistance only to those school districts affected by designated certain specific rivers-and-harbors and flood-control projects. No such authorization was given to other such projects where a serious need existed. H. R. 7940 proposes to include all districts where a serious need exists and where there is a Federal responsibility.

Fifth. Public Law 306, known as the Wier bill, authorized assistance for the 1950 fiscal year to a restricted number of schools on a deficit financing basis. That is, Federal assistance was not given only to some school districts that had a heavy Federal impact because they did not show a deficit in their maintenance and operation budget for the fiscal year and were not eligible under the terms of the law.

H. R. 7940 proposes to meet the Federal responsibility on an equal basis for all schools regardless of whether or not a deficit exists for the year.

Sixth. No assistance has ever been provided in the past for children of employees of National Parks or National Forests, except for Yellowstone National Park. All these situations are brought under H. R. 7940 where a Federally caused need and a Federal responsibility exists.

Seventh. The subcommittee received considerable testimony to the effect that there would be an increased number of school districts in serious need during the 1951 fiscal year and in the future that did not need help in the 1950 fiscal year because of expansion in or progress on reclamation projects. The subcommittees also received testimony to the effect that the Bureau of Reclamation under its existing authority had been unable to provide help to a number of school districts during the 1950 fiscal year that were in need of aid because of Federal activities. H. R. 7940 would include these schools.

Eighth. No provision has been made in the past to assist school districts financially overburdened by a loss of tax revenue due to Federal acquisition or ownership of certain properties. H. R. 7940 provides for payments to such school districts where the financial loss has been substantial. It is estimated that $1,000,000 will be required for these payments.

SUMMARY

To summarize the situation, H. R. 7940 would require the expenditure of approximately $20,000,000 more than was expended for similar purposes for the 1950 fiscal year. The reasons for the increase as outlined above in detail, are briefly that H. R. 7940 attempts to eliminate the inequalities that have existed in the past on the several different programs; to provide help to school districts in urgent need but not eligible in the past; and to meet an increased need caused by defense and other programs that have been authorized by Congress; such as Wherry-Spence housing for military personnel and expanded reclamation and flood-control projects.

The general content of this statement has been discussed with representatives of the Bureau of the Budget.

(Mr. BAILEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks and include certain statements and data prepared by himself.)

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. I should like to know for sure where it is we take care of the Indian children that are going to public schools. Where is it in the bill? I want to be sure it is in the bill.

Mr. McCONNELL. I think the gentleman will find it is covered on page 37 under the definition of the term "Federal property" and on page 38 under the definition of the term "child."

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. The reason I ask that question is that our distinguished friend from Oklahoma, who is chairman of a subcommittee of his committee, has been dealing with this same problem. If that is taken care of in this bill, there will be no necessity for him to have further hearings on that bill.

Mr. BARDEN. If the gentleman will yield, may I say that a very distinguished gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. STEED] was quite active on this bill, and I am satisfied Oklahoma is pretty well taken care of.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. I am not interested in Oklahoma, what I am interested in is the school district in my district in which there are 80 Indian and 110 white children. The school district is paying the expenses for all of them. I want to know if this bill provides payments for those 80 Indian children who use the public school. If it does, it will not be necessary for me to bother my distinguished friend from Oklahoma to ask him to give us consideration before his committee.

Mr. STEED. They will be exempted. If you will read the paragraph on page 38 under the definition of the term "child" you will see that the present Indian educational program is specifically exempted from this bill.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. Then we had better go ahead.

Mr. GOLDEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield.

Mr. GOLDEN. I have a problem in my district in Kentucky where many thousands of acres are being flooded by the construction of a dam where land is being submerged under a lake 110 miles long, flooding half of some of the counties down there. That land will permanently be removed from the tax rolls of all the school districts affected. Will this bill cover that situation?

Mr. McCONNELL. We have tried to deal with that situation. I think it is covered, at least that is what we intended. If you will consult with some of the local agencies, have them discuss it with the Administrator, I think you will find it is covered.

Mr. GOLDEN. Since 1938 there has been a large acreage acquired by the Federal Government for the national forests in several places in Kentucky. In fact the Federal Government now owns more than a million acres of land in Kentucky. Would it apply where that large acreage is taken out of the school district for the national forest?

Mr. McCONNELL. Yes, but of course your school district may get some payments from these forest lands.

Mr. GOLDEN. They get 25 percent on the sale of timber.

Mr. McCONNELL. Yes. That amount would be deducted from the amount they get under this bill. The money they received from the forest and mineral lands and so forth would be deducted from the moneys they receive under this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I think at a time when the world is in turmoil and strife it is very gratifying that we can agree among ourselves in a committee which in the past has seen considerable argument among its membership. The Republican minority group on the committee are particularly pleased that they have had the opportunity to join with the majority in bringing this bill before the membership. I know I speak on behalf of that minority membership when I pay tribute to the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY], and also to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BURKE]. I have heard very little today about the activities of Mr. BURKE who is chairman of one of the two subcommittees. I served on the subcommittee with Mr. BURKE in various trips to different communities in the eastern part of the United States. It was a joy and privilege to serve with him. All through the deliberations on this bill I found the most splendid spirit on all sides—a desire to make good, if you will, on a moral obligation of the Government of the United States. I will admit when we are considering the problem of general Federal aid to education there is an honest difference of opinion. But I cannot see how there can be any difference of opinion or argument over the general objectives of this bill.

We may differ as to the methods that we have used or will use. We are not infallible. There are more intricate situations involved in this matter than most of you may realize. It has been technical all the way through. There have been many laws in the past which have taken care of these situations and our problem has been to consolidate the laws and set up a workable method of handling this over-all problem. We think we have done well, but we are human beings and subject to error. If experience under the act proves that we have erred in some way, I am sure a later Congress will make the necessary changes. Briefly, in order to get a better picture of this than might be obtained by reading the entire bill, I would like to summarize, if I may, what I consider the main situations to contend with due to the impact of Federal activities.

Under this bill we recognize our responsibility for the activities of the Federal Government in connection with certain defense efforts, and so forth. We also set forth the method of meeting the financial burden imposed on the school districts affected by the activities. What are the main types of impacts that we considered? No. 1, Federal acquisition of real property since 1938. By the acquisition of real property, we recognize that we have deprived a community of a certain amount of their tax money, and we seek to remedy that.

No. 3, the impact where the children reside on Federal property, and live on Federal property. We provide compensation for that type of activity, because taxes for local school purposes are not available to the local community. Also the impact where children live off of Federal property but their parents work on Federal property. We recognized that situation.

Finally, we considered where there has been, because of the activities of the Federal Government, carried on directly or through a contractor, a sudden and substantial increase of school attendance in a particular local school district. That might have occurred before June 30, 1950, and after June 30, 1939, or it may occur hereafter—that is, from June 30, 1950, onward. If it has occurred in the past and the increase still continues there from past activities, that is the families have not gone back to their former local districts, even though the Federal activity in that district has lessened, we provide for a 5-year period of decreasing the amount of payment, in order to enable a readjustment of the situation locally.

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield.

Mr. DONDERO. There is one more impact I do not think the gentleman has mentioned. That was the impact caused by the effort of the Federal Government in the recent war where, because of the activities in an industrial center like Detroit, with which I am familiar——

Mr. McCONNELL. I am describing that right now; where there has been a sudden and substantial increase in school attendance due to Federal activities carried on by the Government directly or through a contractor, during and immediately after the war ended. That describes the condition in the district you mentioned. It provides that they will have a 5-year period in which to adjust this situation. I realize that the Korean outbreak will probably cause a reactivation of many of those districts which were so active before and during the last war, and that will change them into a different category. However, we have provided that the situation in your district will be taken care of, with the thought that the increase during the war will be settled during the period of the remaining 5 years.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield.

Mr. LODGE. The gentleman is making a very interesting and excellent statement. As the gentleman probably recalls, in the bill last year provision was made, by implication at least—it was not in the bill but it was mentioned in the report—for the area in Texas which was affected by the move or transfer of a plant from Stratford, Conn., to Dallas. It resulted therefore that the people of Stratford, who were already suffering from unemployment as a result of the Government-sponsored move, were also being taxed in connection with this program due to the sudden employment conditions created in Texas. I gather from the material that I have at hand that this particular area in Texas is no longer receiving funds under this program. Is that correct?

Mr. McCONNELL. I do not know what they are receiving in this particular district.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. I recall a discussion last year at the time we had this same legislation before us. The gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. LODGE] very well defended his situation as it existed then at Stratford. In this bill we have taken care of that Grand Prairie school district. I am sure that the gentleman from Connecticut does not want the children who moved to Texas from Connecticut to be without education, notwithstanding the fact they do have the privilege of living in Texas. The people who pay the taxes in the Grand Prairie school district need this assistance, and this bill does provide some aid to that school district.

Mr. LODGE. If the gentleman will yield, I would just like to point out to my friend from Texas that most of those who are working in this plant in Texas are from Texas; certainly three-quarters are from Texas. I simply call attention to the fact that when this plant was located in Connecticut the little town of Stratford received no aid whatsoever from the Federal Government; the citizens of Stratford felt that they could rely on themselves. I do not see any mention here in this bill about Stratford. I know Connecticut is included with respect to East Hartford and Groton, and that these two localities were not included last year; so I gather from that, that the increase of Federal activities in these two localities had been such as to result in a change in the situation.

Mr. McCONNELL. Yes. I may again suggest as I did previously here to another colleague from Connecticut that the various local school agencies in Connecticut may possibly get relief under section 4 (b) of the bill. I think some of them may find that they are entitled under that section to some assistance for a period of time in a decreasing amount.

Mr. LOVRE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield.

Mr. LOVRE. The gentleman is to be complimented on the very vivid description that he has given of this bill but I would like to ask him a question with reference to subsection (3) of section 1 of the bill which will be found on page 19 and which reads:

> Such agencies provide education for children whose parents are employed on Federal property.

Does this provision take care of school districts in the vicinity where dams are being constructed by Army engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation along the Missouri River?

Mr. McCONNELL. If they are children from work camps or labor camps they would not be considered.

Mr. LOVRE. In the particular case I have reference to a number of Federal employees have been called to Pierre, S. Dak., to work on the Oahe Government project. The number of children that have been brought into the city is tremendous on account of this project and which has caused an undue hardship upon the Pierre school district. For that particular reason I am interested to know whether or not this bill covers that particular case.

Mr. McCONNELL. I would ask the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BURKE], to answer that question. I may say to him that the question has been raised whether in the case of a reclamation project which brings large numbers of children to the area—does the local school district get compensation? I answered that if it were a work camp proposition they would not be included.

Mr. BURKE. In the case of reclamation projects, flood-control projects and so forth, temporary provision is made for the education of the children while the project is under construction.

Mr. McCONNELL. What might be considered a work camp.

Mr. BURKE. The Federal employees, provided they come up to the requirements of the qualification sections in the formula, would automatically come under the bill; but labor camps as such—that is, farm-labor camps, are not included in the bill.

Mr. McCONNELL. I would say then that the situation described goes beyond the labor-camp idea and comes under a different set-up, therefore is included under this act. I think that is true. I think you could safely say the group you have mentioned would be definitely included and that the school agency would receive compensation for the education of the thousands of children you have mentioned.

Mr. LOVRE. I am happy to receive that information. I would like to read a brief report from the school district of Pierre, S. Dak., to show the urgency of this legislation, which reads as follows:

> During 1947–48 Lincoln School was 60 percent over normal capacity, McKinley School was 10 percent over normal capacity, and Washington School was 26 percent over normal capacity in number of students attending.
>
> The school census just completed shows an increase of 29.6 percent of 6-year-olds over the 1947 census and an increase of 8.8 percent of 7-year-olds over last year.

I urgently request the passage of this legislation.

I am happy to have the information.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. I am in favor of the general purposes of this bill, but I am a little disturbed in the method that is set up in the bill for determining the amount of payments to be made to the local educational agency.

Mr. McCONNELL. Under what impact?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. On page 31 of the bill there is provided certain children not to be counted.

Mr. McCONNELL. Yes.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. I refer to subparagraph (A).

Mr. McCONNELL. That is for section 4.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Here is the thing that disturbs me. Suppose that we have a local educational agency in Tennessee that has 500 children, and a local educational agency in Pennsylvania with 500 school children, but in the State of Tennessee 200 of those school children are in parochial schools, and in the State of Pennsylvania all 500 are in public schools. This bill as drawn would give the local agency in the State of Tennessee the advantage of 500 children and be paid on that basis, although in fact they only have 300 to take care of, whereas the agency in Pennsylvania has all 500 of the children in the public schools. Does the gentleman not think that is unfair to the local educational agency in Tennessee or any other place in the United States where that situation may exist?

Mr. STEED. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. STEED. May I call the gentleman's attention to the fact that these children are based on average daily attendance and unless they were in the public schools they would not be counted.

Mr. McCONNELL. It applies to educational agencies where they are providing free public education.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. The gentleman has answered that this bill provides for forest areas where the Government acquired those areas and for flood-control reservations after 1938; but in many, many cases and in many States forest areas and in some cases flood-control reservations were acquired prior to 1938. What provision in this bill would be made for assistance to those areas?

Mr. McCONNELL. This applies since 1938.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Although conditions might be similar.

Mr. McCONNELL. The "since 1938" date was really to take care of what has been in this country the main Federal impact. The war really brought us the major impact on our school systems during and since that time. We sought to deal with acquisition of Federal property since the war impact rather than go back and become involved in situations which as a whole produced a minor impact throughout the entire country.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. But millions of acres of forest land were acquired during the depression prior to 1938, and they will not be provided for under the provisions of this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. ELLSWORTH. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that my colleague, the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. STOCKMAN], may be permitted to extend his remarks in the RECORD at the conclusion of general debate on this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. MORTON].

Mr. MORTON. Mr. Chairman, as has been pointed out, this bill comes from the Committee on Education and Labor with a unanimous vote. I wonder if the Members of this body understand the full and complete significance of that action. It might well be O tempora. O mores. Maybe it is the sign of a peace, that we are seeking in this world. If we look at the form sheet, which is the racetrack man's way of talking about past performance, on this distinguished committee for the past year and a half, we will find that our present action is a reversal of form. We have had bills before our committee which have been somewhat controversial. I mention only four: Repeal of Taft-Hartley, minimum wage, FEPC, and Federal aid to education. I do not think you can put four more controversial measures before one committee. It has resulted in a rather interesting performance in that committee. Our votes have been 13 to 12. We are almost a chronic 13–12 Club; not the same 13, not the same 12, but we manage to end up 13 to 12 on every amendment or almost any bill that comes before us. We have what the horse racer terms a lot of early foot. You know, certain colts and fillies have early foot; they stay on top for the first quarter mile and then fold. Our committee is like that. We bring out a bill in a big hurry, then we bring it to the floor, and then we have a substitute for it, and there it goes. This committee has not yet passed a single piece of legislation. I hope this bill that comes to you unanimously will find different treatment here on the floor. We do not want any 13 to 12 finish here. You know, we had a bill up the other day—I do not think it will become law now in view of the world situation—to reduce excise taxes on tickets to South Pacific. It is not the excise tax that bothers one in getting tickets to South Pacific; it is the scalper or the speculator. But, you can save a lot of money if you can get in on an executive session of the Committee on Education and Labor, that would make South Pacific pale, and there is no excise tax there, I assure you. For that reason I am indeed happy to come before you now as a member of that committee with a unanimous bill.

My good friend and colleague from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] and my good friend and colleague from Ohio [Mr. BURKE] have labored tirelessly not for the last 2 or 3 weeks but for the last 8 months in gathering the information that was necessary so that your committee could sit down and objectively approach this problem. It has been an objective approach. It is a difficult approach. About 150 Members of this body have school establishments within their districts that are affected by Federal impact. It has been difficult to take an objective approach because each problem is different, but the committee has attempted to be objective in this and to create legislation that will be permanent and that will discharge the obligation of the Federal Government and that will not favor one against the other.

First, in order to be objective, we have assumed that the Federal impact is against the local taxing unit, not the State. There you see immediately develops a condition that might be considered an unfairness. Certain States contribute more statewide to current operating expenses than other States but, after all, the impact is against the local taxing unit, and we have confined our efforts to that relief.

I argued against the whole idea of this bill when it first came up on the theory that my chamber of commerce or your chamber of commerce wants any Federal installation it can get. They will come up here and lobby and try in every way to get Uncle Sam to build a factory in their town or put an Army post near their town or put in a Navy airfield or something of the kind. I said that if they are that anxious for the installation, why can they not assume the responsibilities that go with that? In the case of the big cities that is true. In the case of the big cities the impact is not enough to bring them under this bill. But in the case of these outlying communities, where half a county, as is the case in a district adjacent to mine, is taken over by the Federal Government, and where hundreds of children are brought in, how can that county meet the obligation of educating those children? The responsibility is right here in the Congress. We pass legislation to accentuate this impact without a thought for the children. We passed the housing measure known as the Wherry-Spence bill, which turns over some of the housing problems on these Government reservations to private enterprise. We thought it was a good thing. It was a good thing. Most of us voted for it. But what about the children who live in Wherry-Spence housing? Where are the tax moneys coming from to educate those children? That is one of the points we have attempted to solve in this bill.

We have been handling this problem on a piecemeal basis for a number of years. I think the last night we were in session last year an emergency stop-gap bill to take care of the situation finally got through. Now we come in with an objective bill that takes care of it permanently and take care of whatever may lie ahead in the next year or two.

As the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] pointed out, he has already had a telegram today from someone that knows there is going to be a new impact in her school district by September as the result of the Korean situation.

Here is a bill that settles the problem once and for all objectively. All of us are not getting what we want, but the measure before us is fair to all, and discharges the normal, natural, and real obligation of our own Government.

Mr. NELSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield.

Mr. MORTON. I yield to the gentleman from Maine.

Mr. NELSON. Does this bill include the children of employees at a Veterans' Administration Hospital that live off the post?

Mr. MORTON. It will if they meet the other qualifications, in other words, if the impact is there. If you put a Veterans' Hospital in my district, which has a consolidated school district covering a large city, it is not going to make a sufficient impact—and there is one there—to bring my district in. But if you put a Veterans Hospital and bring 100 children into a district in which there are only five or six hundred children, then they qualify under what we call category B, living on private property, working for the Federal Government, and the payment is 50 percent of the local school obligation.

Mr. NELSON. Suppose the hospital already exists, with 100 children.

Mr. MORTON. It qualifies, under the bill.

Mr. NELSON. A Veterans' Hospital does not come within your exclusion in section 9 of the real property used to furnish services to the local area; is that correct?

Mr. MORTON. It is my understanding that a veterans hospital, and I ask the chairman of the subcommittee to correct me if I am wrong, is not a service to a local area. In our concept a veterans hospital goes further than being merely a service to a local area.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORTON. I yield.

Mr. KEATING. Would it not be a fair characterization of this piece of legislation to say that it is more scientific in determining the school districts which are to be assisted than the temporary measure which was before us last year? Is there a difference in the method of determining that?

Mr. MORTON. Yes; there is a difference in the method of determining that. There is a distinct difference because in the legislation we had last year it required a local community to show a deficit before they could get any moneys. It might be a good thing if it was carried to the Federal level but in certain of our States it is against the law to show a deficit. If they show a deficit somebody goes to jail. So obviously these districts could not get any benefit.

Mr. KEATING. When the bill was before us last year I was opposed to it. Could the gentleman point out the differences in this measure which would lead one to reach any different conclusion on this bill as compared to the one which was here last year?

Mr. MORTON. It seems to me the major difference is that the bill last year left it as a matter of trading primarily between a government bureau and a local school district. This sets out a specific formula in law, if it becomes law, which directly outlines the responsibility of the Federal Government, and in that way meets the obligation of the Federal Government without making it a matter of trading or bargaining between the Government bureau and the local school districts.

I might also add that the bill last year only took in certain segments of the obligation because for years we have included in our military appropriations for the Army, Navy, and Air Force, Marine Corps, and so forth, the amount which the Secretaries of the various military establishments paid to these school districts to meet their obligations. Then under the terms of the Wier bill, as passed last year, other funds were made available to meet other obligations. The whole thing was a hodgepodge with money coming from five or six different directions, inadequate in some districts and perhaps more than adequate in others. We tried to consolidate all of that into one logical package which recognizes our responsibility as a Federal Government and which does provide for the education of these children who would not otherwise be adequately educated.

Mr. KEATING. Then presumably if this bill were enacted and the authorization contained therein were to become law, it would result in a reduction in the appropriation in the armed services bill for so-called Federal aid to education? Am I correct in that assumption?

Mr. MORTON. It would result in a reduction of about $6,000,000 in the various armed services appropriations bills—yes.

Mr. KEATING. I have not heard the figure stated before, but could the gentleman give us the over-all cost of this bill now before us, that is the annual cost?

Mr. MORTON. The committee's estimate is $32,000,000 per year at present. The Bureau of the Budget estimated $40,000,000. But the Bureau of the Budget fails to take into account the fact that we are excluding the big cities. They multiplied the average cost of local education by the number of students, which cost is about $100. They did not take into account that we are excluding the big cities. So the average cost that we get under this bill is about $70. We took about $75 or $80 to be on the safe side and come up with the figure of $32,000,000. Of course we cannot estimate what that cost will be in the light of present conditions. We do not know how much of an impact there will be the next year in the various districts.

Mr. KEATING. Is the exclusion of the larger communities based upon the fact that they are capable of absorbing the cost of this education, whereas the smaller communities are unable to do so?

Mr. MORTON. To an extent; yes—to a greater extent on the fact that the impact is different.

If you bring 5,000 children into the city of New York, you do not have the same impact as when you bring 500 children into Chitling Switch. There is where you have a real impact.

So, if they meet the formula of impact, then they come under the bill. It so happens that the big cities do not meet the impact formula.

Mr. KEATING. What administrative agency is to determine whether the needs are met or not?

Mr. MORTON. The Commissioner of Education.

Mr. KEATING. Is his decision reviewable by the Federal Security Agency Administrator?

Mr. MORTON. He comes under the Federal Security Administrator.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BURKE].

Mr. SASSCER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURKE. I yield.

Mr. SASSCER. I would like to ask the gentleman one brief question.

As I understand this bill, a military establishment must have been installed subsequent to 1939 in order to qualify under the bill. Is that correct?

Mr. BURKE. Only insofar as it applies under section 2. which is the section that provides recompense for the loss of real-estate tax. No matter where the children intended to be benefited under this bill may live they would be covered if all qualifications are met, for instance if the children live in an establishment that has been in existence since the War of 1812, and if the number of children coming from that reservation amounts to a sufficient percentage to otherwise qualify, the establishment then would qualify and the local district would receive the amount of money provided for according to the formula in the bill.

Mr. SASSCER. Take a concrete case. The Fort Meade Reservation was established prior to 1938 or 1939, or any other installation that may have been a small installation but established prior to that time, but it has expanded since 1938, would they be precluded because the installation was established prior to 1938?

Mr. BURKE. No. They would be qualified to the extent of the expansion of the real estate itself. They would also be qualified if there is a sudden and substantial increase that may have occurred, if they were otherwise qualified under section 4 (a) and (b) of the bill. Or they would be qualified under section 3 if the conditions provided for in that section obtained.

Mr. VORYS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURKE. I yield.

Mr. VORYS. Paragraph 3, section 1, has one requirement that the Agency provide education for children whose parents are employed on Federal property. Also, there must be a sudden and substantial increase in school attendance as a result of Federal activities. That does not mean that all of the sudden and substantial increase in school attendance has to come from the children of parents who are employed on Federal property?

Mr. BURKE. No. The sudden and substantial increase can occur as the result of the establishment of the installation that brought about such sudden and substantial increase.

Mr. VORYS. For instance, we have a school district east of Columbus where, due to the fact that we have a naval installation and the Curtis-Wright factory, a part of which has been leased for other purposes, there has been a sudden and substantial increase in school attendance that has nearly bankrupt the school district, but I am not at all sure that all of the children have parents who are employed on either of those agencies. It would appear to me that unless the bill intends, it is merely to provide for the children whose parents are employed, and we have there a case of a sudden and substantial increase. Am I correct in my interpretation of the bill?

Mr. BURKE. I believe you are.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURKE. I yield.

Mr. MICHENER. I wish to inquire about the Detroit area, Willow Run, the Kaiser-Frazier plant, and that part in my district where we have this real problem. The gentleman, as chairman of the subcommittee, was up there and made an investigation. Is the condition which the gentleman and his committee found existing in that area dealt with in this bill?

Mr. BURKE. Yes; section 4 (b) was written largely to take care of that situation; and I may say that the pattern set not only by the Willow Run but by the Livonia and Warren Township situation on the other side of Detroit was a practical factor in the determination of its writing.

Mr. MICHENER. I thank the gentleman for having taken care of that situation.

Mr. HERLONG. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURKE. I yield.

Mr. HERLONG. I am in favor of this legislation and want to take advantage of this opportunity to commend the gentleman and the entire subcommittee for the excellent work they have done on this bill.

Mr. BURKE. I thank the gentleman.

I want to take the time remaining, short though it is, to say that it is with a great deal of satisfaction that I come before the House recommending this legislation; and I do want to pay tribute to the Members of the House who served on the subcommittee with me, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. WIER], the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. PERKINS], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. MCCONNELL], and the gentleman from California [Mr. WERDEL]. I believe that both subcommittees had a tremendous job to do. We, ourselves, did not realize in the beginning the magnitude of the responsibility with which we were charged. Soon after our hearings began we became fully aware of the great problem with which we were dealing.

I cannot close without paying tribute to the local and State school authorities for their magnificent cooperation with us in our work. The information they furnished us in our hearings and the cordial welcome we received in our various school visitations greatly aided the subcommittees in this arduous work. The Nation owes these people a debt of gratitude for the fine spirit and the great work they have performed in taking care of the educational needs of American children under exceedingly difficult circumstances.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DONDERO].

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Chairman, the subject of education was discussed on this floor on a day long ago in a somewhat humorous vein. While it has no part of what I intend to say, I want to read to you a few lines from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 8, 1866, being a colloquy that took place between a Member from Connecticut and a Member from Maine. This colloquy took place during the debate on a resolution offered by Representative James A. Garfield, of Ohio, to establish the Office of Education. It reads as follows:

Mr. HUBBARD of Connecticut. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. PIKE of Maine. Certainly.

Mr. HUBBARD of Connecticut. I ask the gentleman how many people there are in Maine who can neither read nor write.

Mr. PIKE of Maine. About half as many people as there are in Connecticut.

Mr. HUBBARD of Connecticut. There are none in the State of Connecticut who can neither read nor write except those who come from Maine and other foreign countries.

Mr. HALE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DONDERO. I yield.

Mr. HALE. What reply did the gentleman from Maine make to that remark?

Mr. DONDERO. The gentleman from Maine, Mr. Pike, said:

We educate our foreign population.

Mr. Chairman, I am in favor of this legislation. I think the committee has done a splendid piece of work. Ever since the late years of the war and every year since the war Congress has been called upon to appropriate sums of money to take care of distressed school districts throughout the United States. This bill seeks to remedy that and provides a formula whereby the distressed districts can come before a proper committee of Congress or the Commissioner of Education, make their wants known; and, if their case is just, receive aid and support.

I think we all owe a debt of gratitude. To the committee I want to pay my tribute to the subcommittee headed by the able gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BURKE] who came into my district to study the situation there. The distressed districts were mostly in the metropolitan areas of large cities or centers where the United States Government located or established its greatest effort in the production of war material. Detroit, Mich., was one of those areas. In that area is located a school district known as Livonia Township District where the people exhausted every known remedy to provide the financing of school facilities for the increased number of children who came into the district as a part of the great influx of workers in factories providing munitions of war in the recent conflict. This bill will meet that problem. On page 29 of the bill the remedy is provided for Livonia school district. I believe the Warren Township and Center Line districts in Macomb County, not in my congressional district, will come also under subsections (B), (C), and (D) on page 29 of the bill. Their remedy, I think, exists in those lines of the proposed legislation.

The committee is to be commended. I hope the bill will pass without a dissenting vote. I am supporting the bill. I know it will provide a solution of the problem of education in that great industrial district; the metropolitan area of Detroit.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. JACOBS].

Mr. JACOBS. Mr. Chairman, as a member of the full Committee on Education and Labor I wish to add my voice to the tributes that have been paid to both of these subcommittees that studied this problem. I want to compliment the members of those committees for the objective way in which they approached this matter, their painstaking labor and their skill. They had the answer as to the facts in every section of the country when the full committee met to consider the bill.

I believe that the House can rely upon their judgment and rely upon the provisions of this bill as being near to fitting the needs of the problem we are considering as could possibly have been accomplished. I wish to pay my compliments to the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY], to my colleague from Ohio [Mr. BURKE], and to the members of both subcommittees who have been of great assistance to the members of the full committee.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JACOBS. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Chairman, I strongly support this bill and believe it is much needed legislation, though very frankly it will not help in my district.

As the Representative of the Fifth Indiana District, I take a natural pride in my home district. I represent one of the wealthiest agriculture districts in this Nation. There is not an unfertile acre of land in this large area. Many times we have had the international Corn King within our borders. Also my district is heavily industrial; one of the largest plants that General Motors has is located in my home city of Anderson, Ind. The payroll of industry for my district is one of the heaviest in this Nation. We are served by at least 20 railroads and 4 of the arterial railways of the Nation cross our territory.

Now, just what is my purpose in shouting the praises of my home district; do I have other than a natural pride in its splendor? I will tell you why. If any district in this Nation did not have a school problem, it would be mine. But I can tell you today, Members of this House, that this outstandingly rich and bountiful section of our country has dozens of schools unfit and unsafe for our children. We have schools with outside toilets, we have two- and three-story schools without adequate fire protection and escapes. We have schools with broken window panes covered with cardboard; we have still others that do not have water fit for our children to drink. This, Mr. Chairman, in a rich and powerful section of our country. Disgraceful? Yes; I hang my head in shame. Can we do better? Yes, but with difficulty. The cost of local government has almost reached the saturation point, but something must be done to relieve this situation.

Only last year one of the great metropolitan newspapers of Indiana made a survey of the school situation in rural southern Indiana, a slightly poorer—agriculturally—part of our State. I wish I had these articles to show the Members of the House here today. Typhoid-infected water supply; fire-trap school buildings; poorly paid teachers, yet Indiana ranks at the top in school systems. God pity those States at the bottom of the list. Today, in fact last year, this House should have been enacting a full and complete program of Federal aid to education. This bill today is fine, but it is a poor substitute for a truly needed Federal-aid program for education. Our teachers in this Nation are the poorest paid professional group in the country and yet they do more than even the parents of the child in molding his character.

At a time when we are doing our all to fight communism and its dastardly hold upon nearly one-half of the world today, we refuse to pass legislation that will train our young people to think for themselves. A trained mind can recognize the fallacy of Communist propaganda and ideology. Ignorance breeds hatred, contempt, prejudice, intolerance, and disloyalty. In this great Nation of ours, we have reached the point where an uneducated child in one State is an equal problem to us in another State. We are one Nation united, not 48 separate ones.

The education of your children and mine, I have four, is the responsibility of all of us. This Congress is derelict in its duty in not enacting legislation to relieve this problem. Unfortunately a religious issue has been injected into the fight. This has caused a feeling of disunity and mistrust to generate. I feel that the opponents of Federal aid to education purposely injected this into the fight.

Americans—Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish—lay aside this intolerance of spirit. The problem of our children is one common to all faiths. I believe a program could have been enacted that would have been acceptable to all groups if just a little of the Golden Rule had been applied.

Mr. Chairman, we need trained teachers, paid a far higher wage; we need new schools, we need healthy and strong citizens to face the problems of an uncertain tomorrow.

Mr. MORTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. CASE].

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, I want to add my word of appreciation for the work of the committee and subcommittees which are responsible for this legislation being before us. Some years ago a number of Members of the House introduced identical bills, not identical to this one, but we all introduced a bill which sought to deal with this problem. But we found that the problem was so large and our bill so broad in its scope it was inadvisable to press for its acceptance at the time. We sought to deal with the problem of the children of all employees on Federal reservations, national parks, naval and military establishments, and institutions of various departments and agencies.

Because of the complexities of the problem that developed in the consideration of that legislation we then and since have resorted to the passage of temporary legislation through the years to continue the Lanham Act programs.

Then, in the appropriation bill for the War Department about 3 or 4 years ago on my motion in subcommittee, we inserted a clause that made it possible for a branch of the Military Establishment to contribute as much as $100 per pupil where the resources available to a school district were insufficient to provide adequate schooling in an area where a military installation existed. That amount proved insufficient and in subsequent years, the amount was increased to $120 and $140 per pupil per annum.

The problem was acute in my mind because in my district an isolated ordnance depot placed several hundred school children in a rural school district where there were fewer than 25 taxpayers. Obviously the farmer parents of a very few children should not be required to provide schooling for several hundred—in fact they could not. This was one of two or three instances which made the problem clear to me.

The basic authorizing legislation for the Navy carried an authorization for appropriations schooling in connection with naval establishments. There was no similar authorizing legislation for the Army, except for the clause we wrote into the Army appropriation bill, and that applied also to the Air Force at the time when the Army and the Air Force were together in the War Department.

So, this has been a problem for sometime. And this is the first time we have had an opportunity as a House of Representatives to consider a bill which deals with the comprehensive problem. It is due to the fact that this committee and its subcommittees have held these hearings in various parts of the country that the complexities of the problem could be resolved into a bill that would not be too burdensome for the Federal Government and yet make an honest approach to meeting the problem as it appeared in the different phases of Federal activities. So, I do appreciate what has been done here.

I would, however, like to ask one or two questions about the bill. I have in mind one country school district where 11 out of 17 pupils attending a country school come from the employees of a national park, and where the parents of the 6 children who reside in the school district have to pay the taxes at the present time, or have had up until this year, to provide schooling for three times the children of the taxpayers. Does this bill cover their situation? That land was acquired prior to 1938. If a member of the committee can clarify that point, I would appreciate it. Is there a prospect that that situation will be covered by this bill also?

Mr. STEED. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, if the school district has 10 or more children from a national park, that is, of parents working in a national park, they will be included in this bill.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. In this instance, then, it appears they should come in, since there were 11 according to the last information I had. Of course, the point of merit is that this number was twice the number of children coming from the homes of taxpayers.

Next, may I ask what the bill does in regard to Indian children or children of employees working on a Federal Indian reservation.

Mr. STEED. Indian children are exempt. Employees of the Indian Bureau are considered the same as any other Federal employee.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. That is, whether they are white or Indian children?

Mr. STEED. Yes. The present Indian educational program is not disturbed by this bill.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. I thank the gentleman for the information and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. STEED].

Mr. STEED. Mr. Chairman, from the remarks made up to now I am sure that by this time we are aware of the fact that this is a popular bill and should pass the House without any difficulty. I want to just take a few moments here to add a point or two that I think the RECORD ought to include.

First, I would like to say that while we are passing out all these bouquets, I think it is only fitting and proper that those of us on the majority side pay our respects to our minority members on the committee for the very fine cooperation that we received from them. Their interest in this legislation was equal to ours, and it was through their complete cooperation that made this difficult job more easily accomplished.

I also would like to say that I think the Members of the House would like to know that most of the members of these two subcommittees who worked on this bill are men who have no projects in their districts affected by this bill. Insofar as most of us are concerned, it was a labor of love, and we were trying to carry out a task assigned to us by the committee. I think it is important for you to remember this in your attitude toward this legislation.

This bill, or some similar bill, must become law in this Congress, else there are going to be probably better than 300,000 children, of people either in the Federal service or involved in the Federal service in this country, who will not receive an adequate education during the coming year. The advantage of the morale factor of these families, particularly those in the armed services, of having an adequate school program for their children, needs no explanation by me, because I am sure you are aware how important it is throughout all these establishments for these families to have those facilities.

One point I want to emphasize is that as we traveled throughout the country inspecting these various establishments we found this one thing everywhere we went: The local communities where these establishments are found have made a gallant and a gigantic effort to meet this problem without calling upon the Federal Government. We found communities that are literally bankrupting themselves trying to meet this problem. We found that in no case were the local people trying to shift their burden on the Government. The only reason they were asking for help was because they had problems it was impossible for them to solve. We found that where the coming in of a Federal project brought a great economic advantage to a community, only in the larger cities did it bring enough advantage to offset the damage it did to the school system. Any other subdivision of Government had a different type of impact than the schools. It is for that reason that we think the Government owes an additional responsibility to the local school districts where these establishments have come in.

I want to make clear here that we exempted the present educational program carried on by the Office of Indian Affairs because we felt that that program involved some things that were not strictly in the field of education. There is a welfare program that goes with it. We did not want to disturb at this time what is being done for the Indian citizens of the country through a program that is already working very well.

I think that the factors of cost in this bill, if you would like to know them, are these: The estimate of $32,000,000 for the cost of this bill under the present scope of Federal activity I think is generous. I doubt if the actual cost will be that high.

I should like to call your attention to the fact that already under existing law we are paying something like $17,000,000 to the various local school districts of the country. Most of this increase from the $17,000,000 to $32,000,000 was put into the bill to cover this problem being created now by the Wherry housing program, where we have something like 70 housing projects being built on Government reservations under that program, and where many tens of thousands of children will come into eligibility who have not been up to this time.

I think it ought to be pointed out that this is in a way sort of a Hoover Commission action itself, because here we are trying to join together a type of work already being carried out in one form or another by eight or nine Government agencies. I urge passage of this bill.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Montana [Mr. D'EWART].

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the committee for giving me this time. I am not a member of the Committee on Education and Labor but I am a member of the Committee on Public Lands, which has made a long and extensive study of what to do about taxation where because of ownership of public lands or because of acquisition of land by the Federal Government the local taxing institutions are not able to survive. This bill deals with one phase of that large, over-all problem, and I think the members of this committee will be the first to admit that it is true.

Some of our Western States are owned by the Federal Government up to 60, 70, or 80 percent. In my own State the Federal Government owns 38 percent of the land, thereby causing a very difficult problem with regard to taxation.

This bill does not solve the problem with regard to Indians. It does not solve the problem with regard to roads or the policing problem as a result of loss of taxation and the need still existing to support those functions. It does not solve those problems. In part, however, it does solve the school problem. There is still a great deal more to be done.

The Indian problem, as it has been brought out by the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. STEED], goes beyond the extent of this bill. It is something which will require special legislation. I have been advised by members of the committee, as well as by the staff of the committee, that this legislation, if enacted into law, will not disturb certain legislation which we have passed heretofore, such as a law to provide for education in Yellowstone Park and education of children at Boulder Dam and at Fort Peck. Our committee has considered various bills and dealt with education in certain localities under certain conditions. We have tried to provide, either by building schools or by making funds available to provide education for these children.

It has been the policy of our committee where possible to provide for these schools, such as at Boulder Dam, by using not funds out of the Public Treasury, but rather income from the project. In the case of Boulder Dam and in the case of Fort Peck we use income from power revenue for the purpose of educating these children. In the case of Yellowstone Park we use income obtained as a result of fees charged visitors to the park, for the education of the children there.

Our committee felt, where it was possible to do that, it would be better than to use the funds out of the Treasury.

Under this bill the funds come as a direct appropriation out of the Treasury. I think this bill is necessary, but I think the Congress should recognize that it only solves a part of the over-all problem which we have to face as a result of the lack of a tax base because of Federal ownership and acquisition of lands by the Federal Government.

I hope we can take up that problem in the new Congress and perhaps find an answer which will be more helpful as regards not only the schools, but also the roads and police protection and other matters.

Certainly this is a good bill. It deserves the support of the Congress. But we still have much further to go than this bill. I think the committee has done a good job with this bill. But I hope in the next session we may be able to go on from here and reach other school problems and other problems which come about as a result of loss of the tax base through Federal ownership and Federal acquisition of land.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. WIER].

Mr. WIER. Mr. Chairman, it was my privilege and pleasure to be a member of the Burke subcommittee. We started out on this mission of investigation for the purpose of curing a very, very bad situation so far as the need of Federal help to these impacted districts were concerned. I might say to you that we started out by going up into the area of Boston, Mass., where we had a meeting for 3 days. From Boston, Mass., we came back to Washington and held meetings here for the States of Maryland and Virginia. From here we went to Charleston, S. C., Norfolk, Va., up into the Detroit area, down to Louisville, down to Dayton and down to Atlanta, Ga., and to Jacksonville, Fla.

Those are the centers where there was a really serious problem of Federal impact. We usually spent 3 days in a major city of the area. To the meetings which we held we not only invited the State administrator of education, but we invited all of the administrators of the affected areas of the school districts as well as the military officials that were involved, in the respective school districts. It was by this process that we got down to the grass roots of the problem. We used yardsticks. We attempted to find out the revenue of the school districts, the cost of the school districts, the teacher load. We tried to find out what money, if any, they were getting from any other Federal agencies. It was very discouraging to find that there was an assumption that the three military agencies, the Air Force, the Navy, and the Army, where they had these military reservations, had funds sufficient apparently to make a per capita appropriation to the school district, and so take care of the children off the reservation, but we always found that those sums varied. We found that the Air Force was doing a better job of making contributions to the school district, the Army was second; and in many cases where there was a naval installation, we found that the Navy had not yet made any contribution to the school districts to which they send so many children.

I want to dramatize this fact a little. This bill will offer no relief to the State that I represent or the district that I represent—Minnesota.

Mr. AUGUST H. ANDRESEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIER. I yield.

Mr. AUGUST H. ANDRESEN. It seems to me that in Hennepin County and Anoka County you had a large concentration of people who were engaged in war work. Will the gentleman say whether or not this bill will cover that?

Mr. WIER. In my district, in the city of Minneapolis, during the latter part of the war years we had two school districts affected; one at New Brighton, Minn., where the Federal Cartridge Co. employed about 12,000, and another at Farmington, where the du Pont chemical works was constructed. For about a year and a half those plants participated in the Lanham Act, but since the deactivation of those two plants and the taking over by the University of Minnesota of one of them, it has eliminated them from sustenance, because the State of Minnesota has supplemented somewhat the needs for those school districts. So last year the school districts were supplemented by State educational funds. So there will be none under this act. So I speak here without any hope of any of this help to the State of Minnesota, on the basis of what I now know.

Prior to coming to the Congress, I put in 9 years as a member of the Minneapolis School Board. Living in that little area of education, I thought Minneapolis had had some very great needs for a better standard of education, for better facilities, and more needs for those kids who attended our city schools. But upon going into the field throughout the South and the East I want to say to you I am sure if every Member of the Congress could see some of the educational facilities which our committee witnessed out at the school house, out where they were in session, in addition to the hearings we held in the Federal buildings, I can assure you that I saw more fire traps where the kids were on a temporary basis—had hired a wooden shack in some communities and had taken over some old barracks—it has been an act of God that we have not lost a lot of children being educated in those fire traps that became emergency school houses.

In addition to that, the needs for construction are very important, because that is more primarily needed than maintenance and operation. We have hundreds of schools in this country, impacted by the Federal Government, that are part-time schools—one class in the morning and another in the afternoon, with class loads running from 40 or 50 to 55 children, crowded into these shacks that are unfit for the education of these children. So I join with my colleagues on the committee in the thought that there is going to be great accomplishment; and many unsung heroes in the field of education who will benefit in these Federal impact areas will breathe a sigh of relief when they receive word that President Truman has signed this bill, because this is the only thing that is going to save them from continuing and increasing problems.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. TOLLEFSON].

Mr. TOLLEFSON. Mr. Chairman, at the risk of sounding just a little bit monotonous I want to join with the other Members of the House in expressing my appreciation to the Committee on Education and Labor, and particularly to the members of the subcommittee that handled this legislation. I especially want to pay my tribute to the chairman of one of the subcommittees, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY]. I know that the chairman of the committees and subcommittees of the House have spent a good deal of time and worked hard upon the bills which have been assigned to them for study and consideration. I think I take no credit away from any of them when I say I doubt if anybody in this House has devoted as much time, attention, study, and hard work to a bill assigned to him as has the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] to the bill which was assigned to him and which has been under consideration here.

I think perhaps that in my congressional district there are more school districts affected by Federal activities than there are in other congressional districts in the country. By reason of that fact I have been tremendously interested since coming to Congress in this type of legislation. As a consequence I dare say there has scarcely been a week in this year that I have not talked to the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. BAILEY] about the progress of this legislation. I have talked to him in the committee room or on the way to and from the committee room; and, invariably, he has carried under his arm a whole stack of material dealing with this legislation. I want to compliment him highly. I think he has made a tremendous contribution toward the solution of a problem which has been of great concern to various school districts throughout the Nation. I believe the committee also is deserving of a tremendous amount of credit for finding a workable and a worth-while solution to this problem. As the Members of the House know, we have considered similar legislation for the past 4 years; and while it has afforded a great deal of assistance to needy school districts, it has not been wholly equitable; there have been some inequities. As you know, that legislation was designed and based on the theory that the deficits of the various school districts should be taken care of by the Federal Government in those areas where there has been Federal impact.

As has heretofore been mentioned on the floor, there have been those States which have prohibited deficit financing; and, as a consequence, those schools were not able to obtain assistance. In addition to those areas there are other school districts which did not seek to qualify under that legislation, yet they were just as much entitled to help as some of those which were receiving assistance. This bill, therefore, as I have said, is a contribution, a real contribution toward the solution of a genuine problem; and I want to compliment the committee for the work it has done.

Mr. FERNANDEZ. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TOLLEFSON. I yield.

Mr. FERNANDEZ. I understand that in States that use the equalization system, or in States like mine, where the State distributes money for operation and maintenance or maintenance on an assistance basis, those districts which have an impact would still enjoy this help notwithstanding the fact that the State distributed money statewide for operation and maintenance of schools.

Mr. TOLLEFSON. I may say to the gentleman that the legislation outlines a formula for qualifying for benefits, and if any particular school district meets those qualifications it is entitled to assistance, as I understand the situation. If I am in error the chairman or some member of the committee will correct me, I hope.

I think perhaps for the sake of the RECORD I should state two specific illustrations indicating the need for this type of legislation. I refer to two specific school districts in my area. One of them had a population of some five thousand people just before the outbreak of the war. During the war the population increased to about 16,000. Most of the new people came to work in war industries. There was not sufficient housing to take care of them; and the Federal Government recognizing that fact stepped in and acquired land upon which it erected Federal housing. These workers lived in these housing projects and yet made no contribution to the school district by way of direct tax. The housing projects were tax exempt. The Federal Government clearly had an obligation to assist the school districts which were burdened with additional pupils who sought education in the public schools.

In another school district 80 percent of the pupils who attend its school live upon a military reservation adjoining it. Clearly in that case there is an obligation and a responsibility on the part of the Federal Government to take care of the impact from that Federal activity.

The formula enunciated in this bill, I believe, is a very, very fair one. As one of the gentlemen who preceded me has indicated, if there are any inequities, if there are any errors, surely succeeding Congresses can correct them. This legislation is excellent and is much needed legislation.

I trust that the vote in favor of this bill will be unanimous.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. MURDOCK].

Mr. MURDOCK. Mr. Chairman, I, too, want to join with my colleagues in congratulating the committee for bringing in this splendid piece of legislation. I especially want to congratulate Chairman BAILEY and his colleagues who made studies in the West.

It was a great satisfaction to me to have the subcommittee under the chairmanship of Congressman BAILEY hold hearings at Phoenix, Ariz., on November 8 and 9 last year. Fortunately the entire Arizona congressional delegation appeared the first morning of those hearings in order to impress upon the committee our great interest in your study. The place of holding the hearings was also fortunate, as I remarked at the time to the committee and indicated that the Isaac School on the outskirts of Phoenix was a good illustration of conditions born of war, which the committee had set out to investigate.

You saw that the Isaac School plant was overcrowded and was in the midst of an extensive newly built addition to the city of Phoenix, and I pointed out that 10 years before one might have stood in front of the school administration building and looked toward the south and west without seeing a single residence less than a mile away. The committee saw the conditions and studied the causes of such conditions and we are happy that the bill before us is offered as a legislative remedy for such and similar conditions.

In the State of Arizona we not only have crowded school districts recently built near war plants, but we also have isolated communities on Federal reservations, especially irrigation projects, which the gentleman from Montana mentioned a moment ago. The Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation has been studying the school problems at such dams as Hoover Dam, Grand Coulee, and Parker Dam, and have passed legislation as a remedy. In addition to such school needs on that type of reservation, we also have the problem of education of Indian children at our public schools on the fringes of Indian reservations. While this bill does not furnish an entire solution, I believe it is a beginning and is a step in the right direction. This is a significant measure and may justify the many months of labor which have been put upon it. Not the volume of legislation but the far-reaching effects of even one piece of effective legislation is what really counts.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. SASSCER].

Mr. SASSCER. Mr. Chairman, I have not seen a piece of legislation in recent years come to the floor of this House that has been given more careful and thorough study than this bill. Apparently in their studies the members of the committee have brought forth legislation which under its various chapters encompasses the problems of nearly all counties effected by Government installations. The members of the committee have labored long and carefully and those of us representing impacted areas are indebted to them.

I am for this bill and I am glad to know that it will pass today.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may desire to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. REES].

Mr. REES. Mr. Chairman, I want to commend the committee, and especially the members of the subcommittee in charge of this legislation, for the thorough manner in which they have studied the problems involved. I want to further commend the subcommittee for its explanation of the legislation before the House today.

I am especially interested in section 3 of the bill, which seeks to compensate school districts in reasonable amount for the cost of educating children who, because they reside on tax-exempt Federal property, do not in effect pay their own way.

This legislation does not relieve the local school districts of their full responsibility in the support of education in their respective localities. It is intended to assist the support of education where the Federal Government is the owner of the property where the children reside. The legislation is fair, it is equitable and should be supported.

Mr. STOCKMAN. Mr. Chairman, the situation with respect to those schools which are located in the vicinity where Federal activities are now under way is very acute, and I urge that favorable action be taken on H. R. 7940, which would give greatly needed relief to these areas.

The increased populations which have come to eastern Oregon in connection with the construction of McNary Dam and with the operation of the Army ordnance depot in the same vicinity have placed such a burden on the schools of Hermiston, Umatilla and Stanfield, that these communities are suffering undue hardship under the impact, and the children are not getting the educational advantages to which every American child is entitled. These communities have made every possible effort to carry the educational load themselves. They have bonded themselves to the limit allowed under the law and they have carried on community projects to raise funds to provide buildings and equipment and teachers for the influx of children.

In a letter to me from the superintendent of the Hermiston public schools dated March 9, he advised me that one-third of their 1,400 students are children of Government workers at McNary, or Ordnance, and that this abnormal school condition has been going on for 10 years in these schools. He said, and I quote from his letter:

> Many of these students from juniors on down have not had 1 year of schooling under normal conditions. They have been "church basemented," "double shifted," "hallway classed", "bus standeed", until they actually do not know what a normal educational set-up is.

In a letter from this same superintendent dated February 22, 1950, he states that—

> Our growth in the high school will go from 320 this year to between 425 and 450 next year. It is extremely unsatisfactory to double-shift high-school students. We will require a minimum of from six to eight more rooms to handle this size group. There are no churches or other buildings close by large enough to handle this many classrooms. The only available space anywhere near this size is across town in the new Masonic hall and the old dance pavilion at the fair grounds. Using these would require a shuttle-bus arrangement which will be very expensive.

Many of these children will continue to go to school there after the construction of the dam is completed, as they are children of permanent employees at the dam.

The enrollment at Ordnance is also of a permanent nature, as that plant is activated and with the war situation what it is, it stands to reason the activity there will be increased.

The enrollment at the Umatilla schools has increased from 145 in 1945–46 to 538 in February 1950. Such increases can be taken care of in no way except by aid from the Federal Government, whose activities have caused the increases. It is only just that the Government should make an effort to solve the problem which has arisen because of Government activities, and I urge passage of this bill.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I want to express my gratitude to the members of the committee, to the chairmen of the subcommittees, and also to those who with great pains and care assembled some 2,500 pages of data on this bill. To the ranking minority member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. McCONNELL], I pay my tribute and observe that there is no finer member to work with. Also the minority members have been most cooperative. All of the members of my committee, both Republicans and Democrats, have worked hand in hand and I am grateful to them for the cooperation they have given. I also appreciate the reception the House has given this bill and I hope it will pass by unanimous vote.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair calls attention to the fact that the committee substitute is to be considered as an original bill. All time having expired, the Clerk will read the committee substitute for amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc.—

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SECTION 1. In recognition of the responsibility of the United States for the impact which certain Federal activities have on the local educational agencies in the areas in which such activities are carried on, the Congress hereby declares it to be the policy of the United States to provide financial assistance (as set forth in the following sections of this act) for those local educational agencies upon which the United States has placed financial burdens by reason of the fact that—

(1) the revenues available to such agencies from local sources have been reduced as the result of the acquisition of real property by the United States;

(2) such agencies provide education for children residing on Federal property;

(3) such agencies provide education for children whose parents are employed on Federal property; or

(4) there has been a sudden and substantial increase in school attendance as the result of Federal activities.

FEDERAL ACQUISITION OF REAL PROPERTY

SEC. 2. (a) Where the Commissioner, after consultation with any local educational agency and with the appropriate State educational agency, determines for any fiscal year beginning after June 30, 1950—

(1) that the United States owns Federal property in the school district of such local educational agency, and that such property (A) has been acquired by the United States since 1938, (B) was not acquired by exchange for other Federal property in the school district which the United States owned before 1939, and (C) had an assessed value (determined as of the time or times when so acquired) aggregating 10 per centum or more of the assessed value of all real property in the school district (similarly determined as of the time or times when such Federal property was so acquired); and

(2) that such acquisition has placed a substantial and continuing financial burden on such agency; and

(3) that such agency is not being substantially compensated for the loss in revenue resulting from such acquisition by (A) other Federal payments, or (B) increases in revenue accruing to the agency from the carrying on of Federal activities with respect to the property so acquired, then the local educational agency shall be entitled to receive for such fiscal year such amount as, in the judgment of the Commissioner, is equal to the continuing Federal responsibility for the additional financial burden with respect to current expenditures placed on such agency by such acquisition of property, to the extent such agency is not compensated for such burden by other Federal payments. Such amount shall not exceed the amount which, in the judgment of the Commissioner, such agency would have derived in such year, and would have had available for current expenditures, from the property acquired by the United States (such amount to be determined without regard to any improvements or other changes made in or on such property since such acquisition), minus the amount which in his judgment the local educational agency derived from other Federal payments and had available in such year for current expenditures.

(b) For the purposes of this section—

(1) The term "other Federal payments" means payments in lieu of taxes, and any other payments, made with respect to Federal property pursuant to any law of the United States other than this act.

(2) Any real property with respect to which payments are being made under section 13 of the Tennessee Valley Authority Act of 1933, as amended, shall not be regarded as Federal property.

(c) Where the school district of any local educational agency shall have been formed at any time after 1938 by the consolidation of two or more former school districts, such agency may elect (at the time it files application under section 5) for any fiscal year to have (1) the eligibility of such local educational agency, and (2) the amount which such agency shall be entitled to receive, determined under this section only with respect to such of the former school districts comprising such consolidated school district as the agency shall designate in such election.

CHILDREN RESIDING ON, OR WHOSE PARENTS ARE EMPLOYED ON, FEDERAL PROPERTY

CHILDREN RESIDING ON FEDERAL PROPERTY

SEC. 3. (a) For each fiscal year beginning after June 30, 1950, each local educational agency which provides free public education during such year for children who reside on Federal property shall be entitled to an amount equal to the number of such children in average daily attendance during such year at the schools of such agency, multiplied by the local contribution rate (determined under subsection (c)).

CHILDREN OF PERSONS EMPLOYED ON FEDERAL PROPERTY

(b) For each fiscal year beginning after June 30, 1950, each local educational agency which provides free public education during such year for children who do not reside on Federal property, but who reside with a parent employed on Federal property, shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to the number of such children in average daily attendance during such year at the schools of such agency, multiplied by one-half the local contribution rate (determined under subsection (c)).

LOCAL CONTRIBUTION RATE

(c) The local contribution rate for a local educational agency for any fiscal year shall be computed by the Commissioner of Education, after consultation with the State educational agency and the local educational agency, in the following manner:

(1) he shall determine which school districts within the State are in his judgment most nearly comparable to the school district of the agency for which the computation is being made; and

(2) he shall then divide (A) the aggregate current expenditures, during the second fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which he is making the computation, which the local educational agencies of such comparable school districts made from revenues derived from local sources, by (B) the aggregate number of children in average daily attendance to whom such agencies provided free public education during such second preceding fiscal year.

The local contribution rate shall be an amount equal to the quotient obtained under clause (2) of this subsection. If, in the judgment of the Commissioner, the current expenditures in those school districts which he has selected under clause (1) are not reasonably comparable because of unusual geographical factors which affect the current expenditures necessary to maintain, in the school district of the local educational agency for which the computation is being made, a level of education equivalent to that maintained in such other districts, the Commissioner may increase the local contribution rate for such agency by such amount as he determines will compensate such agency for the increase in current expenditures necessitated by such unusual geographical factors.

LIMITATIONS ON ELIGIBILITY

(d) No local educational agency shall be entitled to receive any payment for a fiscal year under subsection (a) or subsection (b), as the case may be, unless the number of children who are in average daily attendance during such year and to whom such subsection applies—

(1) is 10 or more; and

(2) amounts to 3 percent or more of the total number of children who are in average daily attendance during such year and for whom such agency provides free public education.

Notwithstanding the provisions of clause (2) of this subsection, the Commissioner may waive the 3 percent condition of entitlement contained in such clause whenever, in his judgment, exceptional circumstances exist which would make the application of such condition inequitable and would defeat the purposes of this act.

ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS DURING PERIOD IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING IMPACT

(e) Where—

(1) a local educational agency is entitled under subsection (a) or (b) to receive a payment for any fiscal year with respect to the education of a child; and

(2) under State law, the eligibility of such agency for State aid with respect to the free public education of such child is determined on a basis no less favorable to such agency than the basis used in determining the eligibility of local educational agencies for State aid with respect to the free public education of other children in the State; and

(3) such agency is not yet eligible to receive for such child part or all of such State aid, the payment under subsection (a) or (b), as the case may be, shall be increased by an amount equal to the amount of State aid for which such agency is not yet eligible.

ADJUSTMENT FOR CERTAIN DECREASES IN FEDERAL ACTIVITIES

(f) Whenever the Commissioner determines that—

(1) a local educational agency has made preparations to provide during a fiscal year free public education to a certain number of children to whom subsection (a) or (b) applies; and

(2) such number has been substantially reduced by reason of a decrease in or cessation of Federal activities, the amount to which such agency is otherwis entitled under this section for such year shall be increased to the amount to which, in the judgment of the Commissioner, such agency would have been entitled but for such decrease in or cessation of Federal activities, minus any reduction in current expenditures for such year which the Commissioner determines that such agency has effected by reason of such decrease in or cessation of Federal activities.

CERTAIN FEDERAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO BE DEDUCTED

(g) In determining the total amount which a local educational agency is entitled to receive under this section for a fiscal year, the Commissioner shall deduct (1) such amount as he determines such agency derived from other Federal payments (as defined in section 2 (b) (1)) and had available in such year for current expenditures (but only to the extent such payments are not deducted under the last sentence of section 2 (a)), and (2) such amount as he determines to be the value of transportation and of custodial and other maintenance services furnished such agency by the Federal Government during such year.

SUDDEN AND SUBSTANTIAL INCREASES IN ATTENDANCE

INCREASES HEREAFTER OCCURRING

SEC. 4. (a) If the Commissioner determines for any fiscal year beginning after July 30, 1950—

(1) that, as the result of activities of the United States (carried on either directly or through a contractor), an increase in the number of children in average daily attendance at the schools of any local educational agency has occurred in such fiscal year, which increase so resulting from activities of the United States is equal to at least 10 percent of the number of all children in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency during the preceding 3-year period; and

(2) that such activities of the United States have placed on such agency a substantial and continuing financial burden; and

(3) that such agency is making a reasonable tax effort and is exercising due diligence in availing itself of State and other financial assistance but is unable to secure sufficient funds to meet the increased educational costs involved, then such agency shall be entitled to receive for the fiscal year for which the determination is made, and for each of the 2 succeeding fiscal years, an amount equal to the product of—

(A) the number of children which the Commissioner determines to be the increase in average daily attendance, so resulting from activities of the United States, in the fiscal year for which payment is to be made; and

(B) the amount which the Commissioner determines to be the current expenditures per child necessary to provide free public education to such additional children during such year, minus the amount which the commissioner determines to be available from Federal, State, and local sources for such purpose (not counting as an amount available from Federal sources any payment made under section 2).

The number of children which the Commissioner determines under clause (A) to be the increase in average daily attendance for any fiscal year shall not exceed the number of all children in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency during such year, minus the number of all children in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency during the preceding 3-year period. The determination under clause (B) shall be made by the Commissioner after considering the current expenditures per child in providing free public education in those school districts within the State which, in the judgment of the Commissioner, are most nearly comparable to the school district of the local educational agency for which the computation is being made.

INCREASES HERETOFORE OCCURRING

(b) (1) If the Commissioner determines in any fiscal year ending before July 1, 1955—

(A) that, as the result of activities of the United States (carried on either directly or through a contractor), an increase in the number of children in average daily attendance at the schools of any local educational agency has occurred after June 30, 1939, and before July 1, 1950; and

(B) that the portion of such increase so resulting from activities of the United States which still exists in such fiscal year amounts to not less than 25 percent of the number of all children in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939; and

(C) that such activities of the United States have placed on such agency a substantial and continuing financial burden; and

(D) that such agency is making a reasonable tax effort and is exercising due diligence in availing itself of State and other financial assistance but is unable to secure sufficient funds to meet the increased educational costs involved, then such agency shall be entitled to receive for the fiscal year in which the determination is made, and for each succeeding fiscal year ending before July 1, 1955, an amount determined as follows: For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, 100 percent of the product determined as provided in paragraph (2); for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952, 80 percent of such product; for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1953, 60 percent of such product; for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954, 40 percent of such product; and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955, 20 percent of such product.

(2) The product referred to in paragraph (1) for a fiscal year shall be an amount equal to—

(A) the number of children which the Commissioner determines to be the increase in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency, so resulting from activities of the United States, which still exists in such fiscal year (determined as provided in clauses (A) and (B) of paragraph (1)); multiplied by

(B) the amount which the Commissioner determines to be the current expenditures per child necessary to provide free public education to such additional children during such year, minus the amount which the Commissioner determines to be available from Federal, State, and local sources for such purpose (not counting as an amount available from Federal sources any payment made under section 2).

The number of children which the Commissioner determines under clause (A) to be the increase in average daily attendance which still exists in any fiscal year shall not exceed the number of all children in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency during such year, minus the number of all children in average daily attendance at the schools of such agency during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939. The determination under clause (B) shall be made by the Commissioner after considering the current expenditures per child in providing free public education in those school districts within the State which, in the judgment of the Commissioner, are most nearly comparable to the school district of the local educational agency for which the computation is being made.

CERTAIN CHILDREN NOT TO BE COUNTED

(c) In determining under this section (1) whether there has been an increase in attendance in any fiscal year and whether any increase in attendance still exists in any fiscal year, and (2) the number of children with respect to whom payment is to be made for any fiscal year, the Commissioner shall not count—

(A) children with respect to whom a local educational agency is, or upon application would be, entitled to receive any payment under subsection (a) or (b) of section 3 for such fiscal year, and

(B) children whose attendance is attributable to activities of the United States carried on in connection with real property which has been excluded from the definition of Federal property by the last sentence of paragraph (1) of section 9.

CONSULTATION WITH STATE AND LOCAL AUTHORITIES

(d) All determinations of the Commissioner under this section shall be made only after consultation with the State educational agency and the local educational agency.

METHOD OF MAKING PAYMENTS

APPLICATION

SEC. 5. (a) No local educational agency shall be entitled to any payment under section 2, 3, or 4 of this act for any fiscal year except upon application therefor, submitted through the State educational agency and filed in accordance with regulations of the Commissioner, which application gives adequate assurance that the local educational agency will submit such reports as the Commissioner may reasonably require to determine the amount to which such agency is entitled under this act.

CERTIFICATION AND PAYMENT

(b) The Commissioner shall, for each calendar quarter, certify to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment to each local educational agency, either in advance or by way of reimbursement, the amount which the Commissioner estimates such agency is entitled to receive under this act for such quarter. The amount so certified for any quarter shall be reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum by which he finds that the amount paid to the agency under this act for any prior quarter was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to it for such prior quarter. Upon receipt of such certification, the Secretary of the Treasury shall, prior to audit or settlement by the General Accounting Office, pay to the local educational agency in accordance with such certification.

ADJUSTMENTS WHERE NECESSITATED BY APPROPRIATIONS

(c) If the funds appropriated for a fiscal year for making the payments provided in this act are not sufficient to pay in full the total amounts to which all local educational agencies are entitled, the Commissioner shall reduce the amounts which he certifies under subsection (b) for such year for payment to each local educational agency by the percentage by which the funds so appropriated are less than the total necessary to pay to such agencies the full amount to which they are entitled under this act.

CHILDREN FOR WHOM LOCAL AGENCIES ARE UNABLE TO PROVIDE EDUCATION

SEC. 6. In the case of children who reside on Federal property—

(1) if no tax revenues of the State or any political subdivision thereof may be expended for the free public education of such children; or

(2) if it is the judgment of the Commissioner, after he has consulted with the appropriate State educational agency, that no local educational agency is able to provide suitable free public education for such children, the Commissioner shall make such arrangements (other than arrangements with respect to the acquisition of land, the erection of facilities, interest, or debt service) as may be necessary to provide free public education for such children. To the maximum extent practicable, such education shall be comparable to free public education provided for children in comparable communities in the State.

ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 7. (a) In the administration of this act, no department, agency, officer, or employee of the United States shall exercise any direction, supervision, or control over the personnel, curriculum, or program of instruction of any school or school system of any local or State educational agency.

(b) The Commissioner shall administer this act, and he may make such regulations and perform such other functions as he finds necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

(c) The Commissioner shall include in his annual report to the Congress a full report of the administration of his functions under this act, including a detailed statement of receipts and disbursements.

USE OF OTHER FEDERAL AGENCIES; TRANSFER AND AVAILABILITY OF APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 8. (a) In carrying out his functions under this act, the Commissioner is authorized, pursuant to proper agreement with any other Federal department or agency, to utilize the services and facilities of such department or agency, and, when he deems it necessary or appropriate, to delegate to any officer or employee thereof the function under section 6 of making arrangements for providing free public education. Payment to cover the cost of such utilization or of carrying out such delegated function shall be made either in advance or by way of reimbursement, as may be provided in such agreement.

(b) All Federal departments or agencies administering Federal property on which children reside, and all such departments or agencies principally responsible for Federal activities which may occasion assistance under this act, shall to the maximum extent practicable comply with requests of the Commissioner for information he may require in carrying out the purposes of this act.

(c) Such portion of the appropriations of any other department or agency for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, as the Director of the Bureau of the Budget determines to be available for the same purposes as this act, shall, except to the extent necessary to carry out during such year contracts made prior to the enactment of this act, be transferred to the Commissioner for use by him in carrying out such purposes.

(d) No appropriation to any department or agency of the United States, other than an appropriation to carry out this act, shall be available after June 30, 1951, for the same purposes as this act, except that nothing in this subsection or in subsection (c) of this section shall affect the availability of appropriations for the maintenance and operation of school facilities on Federal property under the control of the Atomic Energy Commission.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 9. For the purposes of this act—

(1) The term "Federal property" means real property which is owned by the United States or is leased by the United States, and which is not subject to taxation by any State or any political subdivision of a State or by the District of Columbia. Such term includes real property leased from the Secretary of the Army, Navy, or Air Force under section 805 of the National Housing Act, as amended, for the purpose of title VIII of such act. Such term also includes real property held in trust by the United States for individual Indians or Indian tribes, and real property held by individual Indians or Indian tribes which is subject to restrictions on alienation imposed by the United States. Such term does not include (A) any real property used by the United States primarily for the provision of services to the local area in which such property is situated, (B) any real property used for a labor supply center, labor home, or labor camp for migratory farm workers, or (C) any low-rent housing project held under title II of the National Industrial Recovery Act, the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935, the United States Housing Act of 1937, the act of June 28, 1940 (Pub. Law 671 of the Seventy-sixth Cong.), or any law amendatory of or supplementary to any of such acts.

(2) The term "child" means any child who is within the age limits for which the applicable State provides free public education. Such term does not include any child who is a member, or the dependent of a member, of any Indian tribal organization, recognized as such under the laws of the United States relating to Indian affairs, and who is eligible for educational services provided pursuant to a capital grant by the United States, or under the supervision of, or pursuant to a contract or other arrangement with, the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

(3) The term "parent" includes a legal guardian or other person standing in loco parentis.

(4) The term "free public education" means education which is provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without tuition charge, and which is provided as elementary or secondary school education in the applicable State.

(5) The term "current expenditures" means expenditures for free public education to the extent that such expenditures are made from current revenues, except that such term does not include any such expenditure for the acquisition of land, the erection of facilities, interest, or debt service.

(6) The term "local educational agency" means a board of education or other legally constituted local school authority having administrative control and direction of free public education in a county, township, independent, or other school district located within a State. Such term includes any State agency which directly operates and maintains facilities for providing free public education.

(7) The term "State educational agency" means the officer or agency primarily responsible for the State supervision of public elementary and secondary schools.

(8) The term "State" means a State, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands.

(9) The terms "Commissioner of Education" and "Commissioner" mean the United States Commissioner of Education.

(10) Average daily attendance shall be determined in accordance with State law; except that, notwithstanding any other provision of this act, where the local educational agency of the school district in which any child resides makes or contracts to make a tuition payment for the free public education of such child in a school situated in another school district, for purposes of this act the attendance of such child at such school shall be held and considered (A) to be attendance at a school of the local educational agency so making or contracting to make such tuition payment, and (B) not to be in attendance at a school of the local educational agency receiving such tuition payment or entitled to receive such tuition payment under the contract.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer a committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendment offered by Mr. BARDEN: On page 29, line 12, after "25 percent", insert "or to not less than 15 percent where the school district of such agency shall have been formed at any time after 1938 by the consolidation of two or more former school districts."

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, this is what might be called a perfecting amendment. We do not want to discourage the consolidation of schools nor do we want to penalize any schools that had been consolidated, and we fixed the date as of 1938. I think the amendment is perfectly proper.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. LANHAM. On behalf of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. HOBBS], and myself, I want to thank the committee for offering this amendment which was suggested by us. I appreciate it greatly.

Mr. BARDEN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I wondered if the gentleman has agreed to accept the amendment I suggested to add the word "or" in line 2 and in line 4 on page 19, just to be absolutely certain. I understand some of the members of the Drafting Service think it is not necessary, but on the other hand some rather able legislative experts and drafting experts think it would be a clarifying amendment, and it certainly cannot in any way injure the bill, but would make absolutely certain the intent of the Congress that any one of these conditions would make a school district eligible.

Mr. BARDEN. I will say to the gentleman having discussed it with counsel for the committee and only part of the members of the committee, I am not in a position to accept it as a committee amendment. I will say this, however, that I can see no harm in the world by accepting it. I do not see why we should not adopt the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROWN of Ohio: On page 19, line 2, after the semicolon, add the word "or" and on page 19, line 4, after the semicolon, add the word "or."

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, just to make this clear, and to be sure we batten down the hatch and have the bill in such shape that no agency of Government can possibly misinterpret the intent of Congress, I offer my amendment. In view of the fact this matter did come up for discussion in executive session of the Committee on Rules, and it has been discussed by different Members as to whether or not this amendment is necessary, and it does not do any harm if it is not necessary and may possibly do a great deal of good if it is necessary, I hope the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. KEATING. Is it intended, may I ask the chairman of the committee, that if a locality qualifies under any one of these four provisions, that they will be entitled to this aid?

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. I can answer by saying that it was made very clear in the hearings before the Committee on Rules and in the discussions with the committee members, that it is the intent and purpose of the committee, and certainly the intent and purpose of the House, to provide that if any one of these qualifications are met, a school district is eligible for this assistance, just to be sure that somebody, in the interpretation of this bill does not say, "A school must have all four of these different situations existing before it can get any aid."

Mr. BARDEN. I have no objection whatever, and all the members around me I have been able to contact have no objection to it.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I am for this bill but I take this time to propound an inquiry to the distinguished chairman of the committee.

In the State of Tennessee, under our State equalization law, every school district is guaranteed a minimum school foundation program by the State. Each school district is required to raise a certain contribution based on enrollment and wealth in the school district. Then the State is required by law to furnish the number of teachers and the school supplies that are necessary.

As I understand, the money under this bill will go direct to any school district that qualifies under the provisions of the bill. I understand that the attorney general of the State of Tennessee is of the opinion that the State must continue its guaranty without receiving any credit for moneys received by the school district under this legislation. Can the distinguished chairman tell me about that situation?

Mr. BARDEN. This matter was brought to my attention and in turn I called the committee together this morning and we considered it before the full committee.

It seems that in the State of Tennessee they passed an act which had in mind the passage of the Federal aid bill, and has something to do with handling all money that might be paid by the Federal Government.

There are two provisions in the Tennessee State law that, in the opinion of the committee and counsel for the committee, would mean that the State of Tennessee could be taken care of all right. The only alternative to the procedure which we adopted would be to take the suggestion that was brought to us by members of the Tennessee delegation, including Mr. MURRAY, that we make payments to the commissioner of education of that State or to the superintendent of schools of that State. The committee was of the opinion that the very minute we started that we would be changing the whole policy of the bill, the policy of the bill being that the relief was going direct to the local district that was suffering the impact. If we changed it, it would go through the State set-up, and that would entail a lot of regulation and would entail some of the objections that, in my opinion, many Members of the House would resent.

Mr. MURRAY of Tennessee. May I ask the chairman if he thinks, then, that under the provisions of this bill the State of Tennessee, under its present law for the school program, could receive credit because of the money that was contributed to the local school areas under this bill?

Mr. BARDEN. Of course, I am not as qualified to pass on the law of the State of Tennessee as the attorney general of that State, but we in discussing it this morning could not see any reason why the State of Tennessee could not take care of this situation, because if the money was paid by the Federal Government to a local district we could see no reason why the State of Tennessee could not withhold the amount of money that would normally go as a supplement to that district and avoid a double payment to that district. If perchance there was a mandatory interpretation given to the Tennessess statute, then there certainly could be no reason why the State of Tennessee could not withhold that money until January 1, when its legislature meets, and correct it. I am satisfied they would do that rather than pay twice as much to any one school district as that school district would be entitled to or could use. So on that information, and after that discussion, the committee decided to let the policy of the bill remain as is.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BROWN].

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the committee substitute as amended.

The committee substitute was agreed to.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may extend their remarks at this point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. BOLTON of Maryland. Mr. Chairman, I am deeply interested in the passage of H. R. 7940 because it will bring considerable relief to the overburdened taxpayers of Harford County, Md., which is in my congressional district.

In that county alone, the Federal Government owns 57,000 acres of ground valued at $100,000,000 which, if taxed on an equal basis with privately owned land would yield the county $710,000 a year in taxes. In addition to this loss of revenue, the people in the county are put to the expense of furnishing educational facilities for 300 children who live on the Government reservations and approximately 2,000 children attending the public schools in the county whose parents are employed on the reservations, but who live outside the reservations. Under the provisions of the current expense bill, the county will be entitled to the county share of the cost of the education of the 300 children, and one-half the county's cost of educating the 2,000 pupils. It is estimated that Harford County should benefit to the extent of $105,000 a year from the current expense bill, H. R. 7940.

This same county should also benefit to the extent of $200,000 to $300,000 under the pending school construction bill, H. R. 8113.

I am sure everyone in this House knows about Aberdeen Proving Ground and Edgewood Arsenal, which are located in this county, and I am sure no fair-minded person thinks the residents of that small county should be expected to bear the cost of educating children whose parents live on Government reservations and who are not subject to any local taxes for school or any other local benefits. I sincerely hope this bill will be passed today.

Baltimore County does not have a sufficient number of students from Government reservations to claim relief under this bill, and the Baltimore City part of my district has not seen fit to file a claim. Carroll County, which is also in my district, has no Government-owned property in the county and therefore has no claim to benefits under this bill.

Had the Public Lands Committee seen fit to report H. R. 3359 which I introduced on March 9, 1949, to provide for local taxation of real estate owned by the United States in the various political subdivisions throughout the United States, it would not have been necessary for Harford County in my district or my own home county of Baltimore to support the children from these Government reservations in our schools nor to burden the taxpayers with the cost of maintaining roads, police and health protection, school buses and other public services for these children. I think it only fair that these counties should be reimbursed for the extra expense of educating these children, as provided in the bill before the House.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. HAYS of Arkansas, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H. R. 7940) to provide financial assistance for local educational agencies in areas affected by Federal activities, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 685, he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Mr. CLEVENGER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. CLEVENGER. In its present form I am, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the bill unqualifiedly.

Mr. CLEVENGER. Mr. Speaker, I am against the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio qualifies. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. CLEVENGER moves to recommit the bill to the Committee on Education and Labor for further study.

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion to recommit.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The motion was rejected.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SPECIAL ORDER GRANTED

Mr. EBERHARTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 15 minutes today, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM AND ADJOURNMENT OVER TO MONDAY

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, I have asked for this time to inquire of the majority leader as to the program.

Mr. McCORMACK. It is the intention when we adjourn today to adjourn to meet on Monday next. I now ask unanimous consent, Mr. Speaker, that when the House adjourns today it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. McCORMACK. Monday is Consent Calendar day. Also there will be six suspensions on the following joint resolutions and House bills:

Senate Joint Resolution 2, election of President and Vice President;

House Joint Resolution 502, to suspend certain import taxes on copper;

H. R. 8763, triple damages antitrust laws;

H. R. 8706, bonds for Federal employees;

H. R. 5863, International Refugee Organization; and

H. R. 10, deportation of aliens.

Tuesday is Private Calendar day.

If the Committee on Rules reports out a rule on Monday, which we hope it will, on the bill (S. 3809) amending the Mutual Defense Assistance Act of 1949, that will be taken up on Tuesday. In any event it will come up the early part of next week.

I might also state that Monday and Tuesday are the last days for the calling of the Consent Calendar and the Private Calendar for this month. I shall confer with the leadership on the Republican side to see if we cannot arrange a day for another calling of the Consent Calendar and the Private Calendar before the end of the month.

Of course, conference reports may be called up at any time.

I know the Members are interested in the status of the social-security bill. The best information I have, which is as reliable as it can be as of a few minutes ago, or at least within the past hour, is that the bill being in conference, the conferees will start work on it Monday. It will probably take a week or 10 days before the conference will be concluded. While I cannot exclude it from consideration next week, it is not a probability.

Any further program for next week will be announced later.

Mr. MICHENER. The suspensions will follow the Consent Calendar?

Mr. McCORMACK. Exactly.

Mr. MICHENER. Senate Joint Resolution No. 2, as to the election of President and Vice President, is what is known as the Gossett amendment?

Mr. McCORMACK. That is the Lodge-Gossett amendment. Yes.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Will the suspensions come up in the order announced?

Mr. McCORMACK. That is the intention, yes.

COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Banking and Currency may have until midnight Saturday to file reports on the bills S. 3105 and S. 2822.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Ways and Means may have until midnight Friday to file a report on House Joint Resolution 502.

Mr. MARTIN of Massachusetts. That is Friday of this week? Tomorrow?

Mr. McCORMACK. Yes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

REQUEST FOR CABINET OFFICERS TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there any objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, on other occasions during war you have asked the Chiefs of Staff to talk to the Members of Congress regarding the status of the war.

I respectfully urge, and urgently urge, that today you ask the Secretary of National Defense, the Secretary of State, the Chiefs of Staff, the National Security Resources Board, and the National Advisory Council to appear before the Congress to talk to us and to tell us why our men were sent to Korea completely unprepared, and what can be done in the future.

The people of the country are thoroughly aroused. They do not want to criticize unjustly, but I feel there should be some sort of system like the English system, whereby the Chiefs of Staff and the Cabinet members are called before the Parliament to explain why there have been reverses and what measures should now be taken. It would be very helpful to the administration and to all of us.

RETIREMENT RIGHTS OF IMMIGRATION INSPECTORS

Mr. ROONEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROONEY. Mr. Speaker, on yesterday I introduced a bill now known as H. R. 9095 which would give the immigrant inspectors of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice, the same retirement rights as those given to Federal Bureau of Investigation employees.

I feel that when Public Law 879 was passed by the Eightieth Congress for the benefit of Federal employees engaged in the investigation, apprehension, or detention of persons suspected or convicted of offenses against the criminal laws of the United States, the Congress intended to include immigrant inspectors. The act delegated to the United States Civil Service Commission the right to decide what Federal officers should be covered thereby and that Commission has now on several occasions ruled that the inclusion of immigrant inspectors was not intended.

I feel it is my duty to introduce this legislation to expressly include within the provisions of Public Law 879 this group of employees who deal with all types of notorious criminals in the enforcement of our immigrant laws. They are frequently subjected to grave physical danger. A very heavy burden of responsibility is carried by these men, many of whom operate over difficult border country without regard to time or hours of employment. We are all familiar with the excellent work and fine morale of our immigrant inspectors and if we expect them to continue to do the loyal, efficient job they have done in the past, we should accord them fair treatment. It is a simple act of justice to give them the same retirement privileges which we have extended to their brothers of the FBI.

My bill would provide more efficient and economical enforcement of our immigrant laws. Those inspectors who have been partially disabled through service-connected injury, or who have developed infirmities brought about by advancing years and the daily strain and tensions of law enforcement frequently lose zeal and enthusiasm due to irregular hours, night duty, and other hardships incident thereto which the resilience of youth disregards. Many such officers would retire under the proposed bill instead of remaining in the service long after their effectiveness begins to decline. They would be supplanted by younger men who would be keen to seek such a career if they were assured of permanent employment with a retirement system deserved by those engaged in such a hazardous occupation.

The SPEAKER. Under previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. JACOBS] is recognized for 40 minutes.

REPLY TO DREW PEARSON

Mr. JACOBS. Mr. Speaker, under date of January 6, 1945, an article in the Saturday Evening Post stated that Drew Pearson was the most hated and feared man in Washington. I was not here in 1945; I do not know whether that is true or not, but I am proud to say as I stand in the well of this House today that I do not hate Drew Pearson nor any other man; and so far as I am concerned I am not conscious of having any fear of Drew Pearson or any other man.

The occasion of my requesting this special order to address the House was that on the third of this month Drew Pearson wrote and published a column concerning me. Now, it is true that he did not say anything disgraceful about me, but it is nevertheless true that he attempted to hold me up to ridicule. I have always believed that when I was ridiculed I at least had a right to ridicule the other fellow a little if he was subject to ridicule; and, believing as I do, that Drew Pearson is subject to considerable ridicule, I intend to point out a few of his weaknesses here today.

I am not too resentful of the fact that I have been listed in "Drew's Who"; in fact, sometimes we might consider it an honor. But I do expect to outline a course of contacts that I had with Drew Pearson, very infrequently, down to a certain point, in fact, down to the point when this column appeared. In order that the Members of the House may understand how this man's mind works I will tell you at the outset the three things that he wrote concerning me, and then I will put the column in the RECORD so that it can be read in full.

First of all, he said that I was a stargazer. Well, I may have been at one time, but after reading Pearson's columns in recent weeks and realizing that he was about ready to fill the heavens chuck full of rubber balloons all with a love note tied to them to Joe Stalin, I came to the conclusion that there was no use to engage in the gentle art of stargazing any more, because the stars would probably be obscured with all these balloons that he is going to send up; and, besides that, if he thought he could reach Joe Stalin by sending notes to him on rubber balloons he is going to be the champion stargazer anyway and there would be no use of my competing with him. I suggest that if we are going to have a balloon barrage that they will probably be hot-air balloons, and Drew Pearson ought to be in charge of it.

Now, the occasion of Mr. Pearson attempting to ridicule me, and it is necessary to understand this before I read the next paragraph, was because I was a candidate for the nomination of United States Senator in the Democratic State convention of Indiana. Mr. Pearson undertook to ridicule me because he favored another candidate, which was his right if he wanted to stick his nose in Indiana politics. But I think there is a little background I should tell you about as to why he was ready to take the first opportunity that came along to ridicule me.

When I was elected to Congress one of the first communications I got after I came here on December 27, 1948, was from Drew Pearson. It is a telegram addressed to me and reads as follows:

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 29, 1948.

Congressman ANDREW JACOBS,
House of Representatives:

I hope you can join Mrs. Pearson and me in meeting some of the new and old Members of Congress at cocktails, the Carlton Hotel, Wednesday, January 5, from 5:30 to 7 p. m. R. s. v. p., 1313 Twenty-ninth Street NW., telephone Michigan 4321.

DREW PEARSON.

I responded immediately, and the following was my answer:

DECEMBER 31, 1948.

MR. DREW PEARSON,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. PEARSON: I regret that I must decline your kind invitation to the party at the Carlton Hotel, January 5, 1949.

By so declining I mean no offense to you, but I have a rather fixed notion that my constituents sent me to Washington to represent them on legislative matters and, as you may suspect, I have plenty to occupy myself with as a freshman Congressman.

I will, nevertheless, be very happy to cooperate with you in your work at any time that it is consistent with my duties.

Very truly yours,

ANDREW JACOBS,
Congressman-Elect, Eleventh Indiana District.

I meant what I said there. I attend no social functions in Washington save an Indiana Society reception once a year. I was willing to cooperate with Mr. Pearson in his work when it was consistent with my duties. In the course of the following several months, as some of you may remember, I headed a subcommittee called the Union Democracy Committee.

Occasion arose whereby I issued a subpena for Westbrook Pegler, the columnist. This became public very shortly. One day one of Drew Pearson's men came to my office and said to me: "Drew would like to talk to you." I said, "Well, that is all right. I will talk to Drew." He said, "Drew will be in his office between 10 and 12 tomorrow." I said, "That is fine. A. JACOBS will be in his office all day tomorrow."

The following day Mr. Pearson came to my office and he talked to me about the impending testimony of Mr. Pegler before the subcommittee of which I was chairman. To make a long story short, and without going into all the details, what he was interested in was that he wanted me to pull some of his chestnuts out of the fire in a current quarrel he was having with Mr. Pegler.

I told him that I had a "crow to pick" with Mr. Pegler myself, but I was going to do that on my own time and in my own private way, and I was not going to mix it up with a committee hearing, and that I certainly was not going to do it for him. I do not know anything about his quarrel with Mr. Pegler at all, except that I gather from what I have heard and read that they are having a lawsuit with each other, and the purpose of the lawsuit seems to be to procure a judicial determination as to which of them is the biggest liar. Therefore, I predict that in that lawsuit there will be a hung jury.

The next contact I had with him was about a week—that is, I had no contact with him direct, but about a week before the Indiana State convention my secretary called me off the floor and said Mr. Pearson wanted to have lunch with me the next day. Well, I said, "That is all right. If he will come over to the Capitol restaurant I will be glad to have lunch with him." But I said, "You know, I live on Capitol Hill, I work on Capitol Hill, and, except under the most extraordinary circumstances, I never go off Capitol Hill, except when I go back to Indiana, and I do not consider it an extraordinary circumstance to have lunch with Mr. Pearson."

The next I knew he wrote this column, and now I am going to read the first two paragraphs of the column in order that I may comment further. He said:

Indiana politicos are amused at what happened to likable stargazing Congressman ANDREW JACOBS—

He is going to find me less likable in the future—of Indiana at the recent Democratic Convention. ANDY, who affects English bulldog pipes and likes to be compared with Abe Lincoln—

I never asked anyone to so compare me, but I certainly do not resent it—confided to a congressional friend not long ago: "Some of my friends are saying that I'm presidential timber."

Now, I never made any such statement as that in my life to anyone. He said I said it to some Member of this Congress. If I made that statement to any Member of this Congress, I would be very happy for him to identify himself. The truth of the matter is that the statement was made out of whole cloth. Now, I could call him a liar, but I always believe in being a little more original than that, and besides, if I should call Mr. Pearson a liar for having said that I inferred that I thought I was presidential timber, he would probably come back and say: "Look, that proves it. He is talking like two Presidents already" and probably accuse me of trying to emulate the whole Congress of the United States, or at least most of the Members. So, I am not going to call him a liar. I am simply going to say upon my honor as a Member of this body that I never made any such ridiculous statement. Now, there is nothing very wicked about that, except that it would betray me as being a rather stupid individual, and I feel warranted in resenting being falsely portrayed as stupid. But, just why would Mr. Pearson—and I have never done him any harm in my life, I never before told these things that I related here today—just why would Mr. Pearson undertake to thus embarrass me and humiliate me in the public mind?

There is another reason, and I am going to explain it to you. I think this is the real reason. I do not think it is because I turned down his cocktail party or his lunch, I do not think that would bother him so much because I am certainly unimportant; but there is another reason, and that is found in that realm of rare politics that we have in the Hoosier State. Out in Indiana the kids cut their teeth on poll books. We take our politics serious just before election, and we forget our politics pretty much after the contests are over; because if we are nothing else in Indiana, we are generally pretty good sports. But that would be something that Mr. Pearson could not comprehend, being the kind of man he is. He naturally assumed that since I was an unsuccessful candidate before the State convention recently those who were contestants in that convention would be at each other's throats, and that if he could ridicule one person who was a contestant in that convention he would naturally curry favor with other contestants.

There was a reason why, and this is the most important reason, and it is going to illustrate Drew Pearson better than anything I have ever heard. This is the most important reason why this column was written. I will have to give you a little background.

It seems that sometime last year Mr. Pearson wrote a column about another Hoosier, a man who used to be in the Department of Justice. That appeared on April 10, 1949, in the Detroit Free Press and a number of other papers. It says:

The Justice Department is casting a quizzical eye on ex-Assistant Attorney General Norman Littell. They have reports that Littell is acting as a propagandist for the Dutch Government, although he failed to register as a foreign agent.

You know, this business of representing foreign governments without registering is "grand jury bait," as we say out in Indiana, or "a penitentiary offense." It is a charge of crime. Mr. Littell is a Hoosier, and we Hoosiers do not usually take those things too lightly. So Mr. Littell sued Mr. Pearson for libel. After he sued him for libel he decided to take his deposition, as was his right under the law. So he got Mr. Pearson in to take his deposition. He said, "Look, Drew, who told you this?" And Drew said, "Now look. I am an ethical journalist. You can draw and quarter me, you can put me on the rack and break my bones, I will endure the tortures of the damned, but never will I break the ethics of my profession."

Mr. Littell said, "I will tell you what, Drew. Maybe we had better go down and see the judge about this." So after some inducements, perhaps a subpena or something, he finally got Drew down to talk the thing over with the judge. The judge said, "Well, now, Drew, I guess you had better tell who told you this." Drew said, "Well, now, Judge, you would not want to make me break the ethics of my profession, would you?" He was not quite as adamant about it as he was the first time. The judge said, "Well, you had better tell us." He kept dragging his feet, and the first thing he knew that judge was breathing down the back of his neck, and the judge's breath kept getting hotter and hotter, and the hotter it got the more it smelled like the old jailhouse. Somehow Drew had a lapse of memory about the ethics of his profession, so what does he do? He turns around and he lays it onto Alex Campbell, former United States district attorney and former Assistant Attorney General of the United States and our Democratic nominee for Senator in Indiana.

I want to say this, now. I made some investigation of the matter before I took the floor, and I think I can say to you with assurance that Alex Campbell never gave him any such information. The truth of the matter is, as I am about to demonstrate to you shortly, Mr. Pearson just did a poor job of deducting from some columns that had been written by another columnist. But what was worse about this, and this is what illustrates the man's character, is that Alex Campbell was a friend of his. It was one thing for him to turn upon me and try to stab me, because I was neither friend nor foe. I considered myself at least a neutral person so far as Drew Pearson was concerned.

But Alex Campbell was his friend, and Alex Campbell had not given him any such information, and, so far as I know and as far as I believe, no other person ever gave him that information. Drew just drew a bum conclusion from some columns of other columnists which I am going to put in the RECORD in just a few moments in order to show you just how it came about.

He laid this onto his friend, Alex Campbell, and I considered it a stab in the back. Then they took Mr. Campbell's deposition and Drew Pearson, as soon as the date was set, hopped into an airplane and flew to Indianapolis and spent 2 or 3 hours there after having stuck the dagger in the back of his friend, to try to talk his friend into leaving the dagger sticking in his back and to back him up in the falsehood that he had already told on the man to whom he had pretended friendship.

Mr. Campbell, who is an honorable gentleman, said, "I did not tell Pearson that. Pearson came and told me," It is in the deposition. It is in the court record. So he certainly was an honorable gentleman to tell the truth and not back Pearson up. And I say Pearson was a dishonorable man for attempting to assassinate his friend.

But at any rate, Drew said that my friend, Alex Campbell, told him, and the proof is that he did not tell him. Therefore, I predict that this same judge will be breathing down Drew Pearson's neck again before long and say, "Look, Drew, who was it that told you this—not who you told it to—you told it to the whole wide world in your column—but who told you?"

And when he does, you will find these facts to be correct.

I shall close the point there by showing that Drew Pearson thought he could write this column ridiculing me and thus please my erstwhile convention opponent, Alex Campbell. But I could have assured him that he was entirely in error in any such supposition. But he being a poor sport himself, like the three peas in a pod who thought the whole world was green because the pod was green, as I say, he being a poor sport, he just figured that everybody else would be a poor sport.

But the facts are substantially as follows: On January 13, 1949, Norman Littell—and I want to say that I have Miss Dorothy Thompson's permission to use her name in this connection or else I would not be doing so—Norman Littell had a dinner party for Miss Dorothy Thompson, at which there were some reputable people in the Government in attendance. That was on January 13.

On January 17 Miss Thompson wrote a column concerning the Indonesian question which I understand Mr. Pearson is largely relying upon now since Mr. Campbell told the truth and said that he did not give Drew any such information concerning Mr. Littell. Miss Thompson's column was favorable to the Dutch Government. That appeared on January 17, 1949. I ask permission to insert a copy of that column in the RECORD at this point.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

(The matter referred to is as follows:)

ON THE RECORD—AN INDONESIAN BUBBLE?

(By Dorothy Thompson)

Inasmuch as the American Government has committed itself to support the Indonesian Republic and a considerable part of the American press and radio are attacking the Dutch as exploiters of the riches of the Indonesian states, it is well to inquire whether all Americans are disinterested.

In this connection, Congress should investigate a trade agreement allegedly made in Habana last January between the Republic of Indonesia, as represented by the Indonesian Trade Commissioner in New York, Dr. D. Soemitro, and three ministers of the Republic—A. K. Gani, A. Maramis, and H. Laoh—and a New York City promoter.

Whether this agreement ever was ratified by the national convention of the Indonesian Government is unknown to me. But the agreement, which I have seen, is perhaps the most scandalous proposition ever made by an up-and-coming promoter to a supposedly sovereign state. If carried out, it practically would put the whole economy of Indonesia into the hands of an American corporation, under conditions whereby the risks would be carried by the Indonesian Republic and a straight 7½-percent profit guaranteed the corporation. This would be on every single transaction within a total and exclusive monopoly over import and export trade between the United States and the Indonesian Republic—not barring other incalculable profits.

It would make the corporation for 15 years the sole and exclusive agent of the Republic in negotiating with American interests regarding all developmental enterprises owned and operated by the Government—including negotiations for loans and other government projects (communications, hydroelectric, etc.) which might require American financial, technical, and other aid, with the corporation, of course, entitled to additional compensation for its services.

Furthermore, in this remarkable agreement the Republic would abdicate many sovereign powers—guaranteeing the corporation against excessive taxation, restrictions on transfers of funds, etc., and issuing it a blank check to form subsidiaries with, in effect, extraterritorial rights.

Under the stock arrangement the corporation would have 51 percent of the voting stock—while the employment of Indonesians in the Executive Staff would be limited to a minority. Inasmuch as the effectiveness of the contract concerning developmental enterprises demands that the Government shall retain mineral and other subsurface rights and resources, the Government is required to pledge the retention of socialization in behalf of an American exploiter-corporation.

Whoever drew up this contract understood, as well as the Russians, how socialization of enterprises may be turned to the profit of foreigners.

In the agreement's preamble, the Indonesian Government recognizing that the dispute between the Netherlands Government and the Republic has resulted in cutting off foreign supplies, finds it urgent to approach farsighted and sympathetic American businessmen. And lo! One is there to lay hands on one of the world's richest raw materials sources, of course, in the name of the rights of man and for the purpose of giving the Indonesians, for the first time, the promise of a prosperous economy.

Presumably, individual Indonesians, party to the agreement, would participate in preferred and nonvoting stock, retailing for a bagatelle, with the entire American import-export trade as a guaranty of profits

Congress, I think, should investigate what has happened to this agreement, and who its American associates were or are. If it did obtain the signatures of Indonesian Ministers, they either need legal guardians or are corrupt.

Such a contract, furthermore, would exact a commission to the corporation not only on all purchases and sales between the Indonesian Republic and the United States by other American or foreign importers and exporters, but also extort a commission on purchases made for stock-piling purposes by the United States Government itself. It is, therefore, clearly within the field of legitimate Government investigation.

Mr. JACOBS. For the purpose of this discussion, suffice it to say, Mr. Pearson deducted, and is claiming that he deducted that because Miss Thompson was out at the Littells at a dinner party shortly before this column appeared, Littell was interested in the Dutch Government. The thing that he forgot was to check the record and learn that on January 5, before the dinner party, Miss Thompson had also written a column along the same lines.

I ask unanimous consent to have this also made a part of my statement.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

The statement is as follows:

ON THE RECORD—THE INDONESIAN SITUATION

(By Dorothy Thompson)

The present temper of our society pushes toward drastic solutions regardless of results. One such "drastic solution" demands a settlement of colonial problems by which, overnight, all human societies must become "free and self-governing."

That the capacity of all tribes, nations, and races to achieve self-government or maintain it never has been demonstrated, is passed over. The faith is that given the liquidation of foreign oppressors, they will emerge into organized states capable of fulfilling the functions of states—namely, to protect their independence, maintain internal order and security and make honest agreements with other states.

But the fact is that in a world of more than 2,000,000,000 people only a small fraction ever has demonstrated capacity for self-government, even when no foreign oppressors existed. Instead, it has suffered either from anarchy or from domestic tyrants more oppressive than many colonial administrators. Except for brief interludes, the history of self-government is confined to western Europe and North America. It never has been enjoyed by Orientals or by the peoples of the Russian empire, except for short times when western groups broke out of it.

Apparently only a certain type of mind and culture creates capacity for self-government. This type, according to William James, is created by "the habit of trained discipline and good temper toward the opposing party," plus "merciless resentment toward every man or set of men who break the public peace." Only thus can be created the necessary combination of freedom and authority, and it is very rare.

But the absence of self-government has not precluded the creation of great civilizations and cultures satisfactory on the whole to the people governed. The great empire of the Khans, though it foundered in Europe, created in the Orient a superb civilization (for its times), and in passing did not give way to self-rule but to other foreign rulers after a period of intolerable anarchy.

The present struggle between the Netherlands and the republic of Indonesia calls this to mind and requires more sober thought and much more information than is reaching us. As far as I know the "Republic," a puppet government installed by the Japanese and handed power when they evacuated Netherlands Indonesia, has proved incompetent to keep the rudiments of order or protect the people against its "armies." These are, for the most part, armed bandits of lawless youth taking orders only from their commanders or partisan leaders.

This government has not proved able to honor its treaties with the Netherlands, in the face of its interior opponents, and the United Nations, instead of demanding that it prove itself a government by keeping its contracts, has urged the Dutch to further compromise with anarchy.

Now, anarchy is a condition where no man is safe in life, home, or property. Even a despotic government, which that of the Netherlands certainly is not, is preferable, from a human standpoint, to murder and pillage. The Dutch attempt to establish order apparently is meeting little, if any, popular resistance, but rather is being hailed with relief by all except ambitious local politicos and the mobs they can inflame.

At any rate, it is odd that we never invoked the United Nations to aid the "resistance" movements in eastern Europe while they were being suppressed by trained terrorists in behalf of a foreign power, while we condemn the Dutch who are suppressing terrorism in behalf of a condition of public peace in which self-government alone can make further progress.

What we need is patient thinking in terms of orderly evolution. But what we are fostering is cataclysmic change, which, whatever it may bring, certainly will not be peace nor self-government.

Mr. JACOBS. Of course, there is not any excuse for Drew Pearson making such mistakes as that. I do not know how many of you will remember that on May 17, 1944, Mr. Pearson announced the discovery of some kind of a Buck Rogers device by which you can listen into people's living rooms miles and miles away. I have a copy of that column here, just to demonstrate to you the deadly accuracy of this columnist, Drew Pearson.

I want to read from the column of May 17, 1944, appearing in the Washington Post:

Very few people know of an incident—

Incidentally, that is the way Mr. Pearson makes his stuff sound important. He will say, "Now, this will be denied, but," or "It has not leaked out yet, but," and you are supposed to think you are really getting in on something rare and important.

Very few people know of an incident which occurred a little over a year ago at Forrestal's Georgetown mansion. But the President did.

The General Electric Co. has developed a new listening device on the principle of a dictaphone, by which outside parties can pick up conversations as far away as 3 miles. The device is extremely sensitive.

He would not have to tell you that.

And does not need to have a dictaphone planted inside the room where the conversation is taking place.

Now, remember this:

General Electric's former president, Charlie Wilson, efficient Vice Chairman of the War Production Board, happened to have one of these devices and, one night, he tuned it in on the Forrestal home.

The man says I am a stargazer. Do not forget that.

It happened to be during the period when the Army and Navy were waging relentless war against the War Production Board, doing their best to oust Donald Nelson and take over WPB's duties themselves. It was a bitter feud, and Forrestal was holding a council of war at his home. Maybe the tuning in on the Forrestal home was pure accident, maybe it wasn't.

Anyway, it so happened that dining with Forrestal that night were Under Secretary of War Patterson, Bernie Baruch, and one or two high-ranking Army officers. The conversation during a large part of the evening consisted of criticism of the administration, especially the War Production Board, and included the President himself.

The transcript was shown to F. D. R. himself.

Bernie Baruch's high voice could be heard dictinctly, taking some rough raps at his old friend, F. D. R. As Baruch is deaf, the others talked in rather loud voices, among them Forrestal, who gave out his share of Presidential criticism.

In fact, the criticism of the Commander in Chief was so vigorous and plans for Army-Navy taking over the War Production Board were hatched in such detail, that Wilson and Donald Nelson took a transcript of the conversation down to the White House.

The President seemed to enjoy the story.

And who would not, if he had any sense of humor at all?

That was on May 17. Thirteen days later a column appeared from Mr. Pearson's hand—just to show you the deadly accuracy, the painstaking care that this man goes to before he publishes anything—in which these statements appeared:

The other day this column carried a story involving Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production Board and a fine public servant—a story which I now find has done him an injustice.

With omissions I go down and read the following:

The main point I want to make here is that I now find Mr. Wilson did not use any long-distance listening device or any other device to listen in on the above conversation.

He certainly glorified Charlie Wilson's ears. They certainly must have been extremely sensitive.

But that, Mr. Speaker, about demonstrates as far as I am concerned how much confidence you can put in this fellow Pearson. Of course, there never was any such Buck Rogers "thingamajig" ever invented, and he knew it; or did he? It is impossible to know whether he is stupid or false or both. I will bet it is both.

I do not particularly resent so much what he has said about me. He said that I was a poor sport because I did not go to the convention platform to move the unanimous nomination of my successful opponent, but he neglected to say that the third man, Dr. Charles Price, did so and specifically stated that he was doing so on behalf of both of us. So his facts were wrong in that regard. I believe I have a right to say that at least. Whatever other issues there are in Indiana are of no interest to the Members of this body generally; we will take care of our own political situation in Indiana. I became a candidate because some people thought I should. I was defeated because my opponent got more votes than I did, and that is enough for this purpose.

I want to say that I am glad that Drew Pearson was unable to say anything degrading about me; that he had to refer to me as a stargazer, he had to tell a falsehood about me by saying that I said something that I had never said, and then referring to me as a poor sport when that in itself is refuted by the facts as some men on this floor here can testify—because there are men on this floor who were there.

Then perhaps I should say that I somewhat appreciate, being just a poor country lawyer up here trying to represent a congressional district, being listed in "Drew's Who." I have just told you some things; there are other things about Drew Pearson that perhaps this House should know, and I will be back again if he wants to protract this argument, because even though some men may fear him, I do not. I appreciate being listed in "Drew's Who." It does so much for a man. But now, in order to show my appreciation for being listed in "Drew's Who" I think I will rush right out and buy an Adam hat; in fact, I think I will try to get for a souvenir the same hat Drew has been talking through.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to place in the RECORD the entire column concerning which I have been addressing myself, and to insert another column by Dorothy Thompson under date of June 6, 1950.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

(The matter referred to follows:)

DREW PEARSON SAYS:

HOW ANDY JACOBS WAS LEFT HOLDING THE BAG

(Washington Merry-Go-Round)

Indiana politicos are amused at what happened to likable, star-gazing Congressman ANDREW JACOBS, of Indiana, at the recent Democratic convention.

ANDY, who effects English bulldog pipes and likes to be compared with Abe Lincoln, confided to a congressional friend not long ago: "Some of my friends are saying that I'm presidential timber."

And taking this seriously, JACOBS had worked on Gov. Henry Schricker, No. 1 Democrat of Indiana, to do some backstage wirepulling to make him the Democratic senatorial candidate against GOP Senator HOMER (Music Box) CAPEHART.

The Governor, a homey Hoosier, whom many Republicans support because they consider the key to the treasury safe in honest Henry's pocket, at first kept on the sidelines. Then, just 1 day before the convention, he put in a call to Democratic Secretary of State Chuck Fleming.

Fleming controls the Democratic county chairmen, and it was presumed that the Governor wanted to work up some support among them for ANDY JACOBS. Fleming however, was not reachable by telephone—perhaps purposely.

Failing to get Fleming, the Governor called Guy Copeland, chairman of the second district, suggested some support for Jacobs. But Copeland was emphatic.

"It's too late, Governor," he said. "This is 1 day before the convention, and JACOBS can't come in at the last minute and try to steal the show."

Schricker drops Jacobs

Then Schricker called another Democratic district chairman, Ura Seeger, who told him the same thing.

"As an old friend of yours, Governor," he said, "I would advise you not to get mixed up in this fight. Alex Campbell is going to win overwhelmingly, and I don't think you should interfere."

Five minutes later, the Governor, taking this advice, passed down the word that he was for Campbell, the fighting former United States Assistant Attorney General who convicted Alger Hiss, the 12 Communist leaders in New York, Judy Coplon, Axis Sally, and various others.

Next day, in convention, the vote went overwhelmingly for Campbell, Congressman JACOBS was snowed under.

Faced with this defeat, JACOBS did an unusual thing. It is customary for the defeated candidate in party conventions to move for the unanimous nomination of the victor. But when friends suggested this to JACOBS, he refused.

Instead, Charles Price, professor of chemistry at Notre Dame University, also a candidate for the Senate, went to the rostrum and moved to make Campbell's nomination unanimous.

Governor Schricker also immediately pledged his support to Campbell and will campaign for him.

[From the Washington Evening Star of June 6, 1950]

ON THE RECORD—RANDOM LIBELS AND RED INSINUATIONS PLAY RIGHT INTO COMMUNISTS' HANDS

(By Dorothy Thompson)

Character assassination is going so far in this country that the outside world can only think we are either cancerous with communism or having a nervous breakdown.

The process of cleansing public life of Communists and Communist sympathizers is highly necessary—and there are plenty to cleanse. Every Communist who escapes detection is a menace. But false accusations serve to cover these by concentrating attention on misleading scents. And confusion becomes internationally confounded when a smeared person then has to deal with foreign representatives.

ALL IN ONE BREATH

On May 21, a prominent radio commentator made the following statement:

"On February 20, Senator MCCARTHY made his first charge that there were 207 card-carrying Communists in the State Department. Yesterday was May 20 and during that time he has produced not one * * * Communist * * * the Senator has not accepted my offer to pay his legal expenses if he waived immunity and repeated, off the Senate floor, his original charge against Owen Lattimore. * * *

"However, it happens that there are some interesting lobbies in Washington and I would like to urge a full investigation of all subversives. * * *

"As a sample I suggest that such a committee look into the attorney for the Communist Polish Embassy * * * that gentleman is Norman Littell."

Now here, in one breath as it were, a widely heard commentator attacks Senator MCCARTHY, exonerates the State Department, and defends Mr. Lattimore, only to throw aspersions upon someone else, whose record, incidentally, is much clearer than Mr. Lattimore's. For if Mr. Littell, whom I know well, has the slightest sympathy for communism or Communists, I am Stalin's secret wife.

Mr. Littell, an able international lawyer, is not the attorney for the Polish Embassy. Along with other prominent law firms he was asked by the Polish Embassy for counsel in several specific measures involving international law. One question was the status of the Polish liner Batory, on which Gerhardt Eisler escaped, and whether the United States Government had the legal right to seize the vessel for harboring a fugitive from justice.

REAL BLAME IN OWN COURTS

It certainly is dubious whether there is any law under which a ship, train, or plane can be seized for transporting a fugitive, and it is a matter in which any diplomatically accepted government may seek legal counsel. Presumably the United States is zealous to uphold international law. And it might be recalled that the British courts, who cannot be suspected of sympathy with Eisler, found they could not, under British law, return Eisler to us. The real blame, to my mind, lies in our own courts, which let this dangerous agent out on bail and permitted him to harangue audiences and then escape.

Contrary to charges made, no attorney representing the Polish Government arranged for Polish Communists to board the ship before the United States Government completed its interrogation of witnesses, officers, and crew. Also, I learn, Mr. Littell consulted the Justice Department and was informed that purely legal counsel as differentiated from political advice is exempt from the provisions covering foreign agents.

The same Polish Government has, in the past, received legal counsel from Mr. Acheson's law firm.

Now Mr. Littell is chairman of the committee on foreign economic cooperation of the international law section of the American Bar Association. He is shortly departing for London to preside over a meeting of a similar committee of the International Bar Association. The work of both committees is to study obstacles to the flow of free investment and trade with a view to expanding the prosperity of the democracies. But, like others before him, Mr. Littell is heralded in advance as a possible subversive.

Of course, such random libels and insinuations play right into Communist hands.

SPECIAL ORDER

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLS). Under previous special order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. BIEMILLER] is recognized for 40 minutes.

(Mr. BIEMILLER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks and include certain letters and telegrams.)

MEDICAL COLLEGES, OTHER INSTITUTIONS TRAINING HEALTH PERSONNEL IN SERIOUS FINANCIAL STRAITS—PASSAGE OF H. R. 8886 OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

Mr. BIEMILLER. Mr. Speaker, the Eighty-first Congress is nearing the end of its existence. We are rapidly approaching that time when this Congress will no longer be able to correct its own errors of commission or make amends for its errors of omission.

The wisdom or folly of what we have done and what we have left undone will be matters for decision by the electorate in November. In many cases there is time enough to wait for that judgment—and to be guided by it in the next Congress. In some matters, however, the delay of months, even 6 or 7, may be more than we can afford. In such matters our failures may be written large and indelibly on the record before the Eighty-second Congress ever convenes.

That is why I speak today. A bill vital to the welfare of this Nation, the health of our Armed Forces and our civilian population alike, is in danger of being left in the debris of the unfinished business of this Congress. H. R. 8886, the Emergency Health Training Act, better known as aid to medical education, is a measure which should be passed now, not 6 or 12 or 18 months from now. And all the stalling, twisting, turning, conniving tactics of the American Medical Association cannot conceal the stark need for this legislation.

The word "emergency" has seldom meant more than it does in the official title of H. R. 8886. This Nation is now involved in an enormously difficult and costly police action in Korea. The evolution of this conflict into a full-fledged modern war is a distinct possibility, a possibility not entirely within the power of this country to control. Even if we should escape a major holocaust, no one believes that the Communist's adventure in Korea will be their last.

Yet, at this moment as at every recent critical moment in our history, we do not have enough doctors or dentists or nurses or public health personnel to meet peacetime requirements, much less the demands of our mobilizing Armed Forces and civilian defense. And we have not taken a single step to end the critical shortages of every kind of trained health personnel.

As a matter of honest and disturbing fact, our national resources for training health personnel are rapidly deteriorating instead of improving. Financial difficulties are forcing our professional health-training schools, particularly our medical schools, to curtail their programs drastically. Both the quality and quantity of training are being slashed. Fewer individuals are receiving training in some schools and the training is falling short of minimum standards in others. Some of our medical schools—and by no means the weakest in an academic sense—are near to closing because of their desperate financial state.

This situation is intolerable in a Nation that may soon need more doctors, nurses, and other trained health personnel than it ever dreamed were necessary before World War II. And even if it were not for the possible demands of war, we would need these people to take advantage of the expanding opportunities for better health in a peaceful world.

The Eighty-first Congress must reverse this trend to neglect and potential disaster by immediate action on Federal aid to medical education. We must, by our action, recognize that you cannot train doctors and their assistants overnight, that we are already far too late in getting a program under way, that our inaction in years and months past has created our present health-personnel shortage, and that inaction now will create shortages for the next crisis.

The minute we moved into Korea—and I believe there is near unanimous support in this House for that move—the Armed Forces started to look for doctors, dentists, and nurses. If the experience of World II is repeated, and it is certain to be because of present shortages, the Armed Forces will never find as many as they need. And the ones they do find and take will be those whose services are fully needed by civilians.

It is proper that the needs of our Armed Forces come first. It is hardly proper for congressional inaction to permit this choice of life and health for one group as against sickness and occasional death for another group when there should be no real need to make the choice. We have it within our power to make adequate care available for all.

For those who may hesitate to believe that our present situation is really so bleak—and I know there are doubters among the Members of this House—I will cite a large number of chapters and verses at a later point in this speech. Most of them will come directly from the best authorities on health education in the Nation—the deans of the Nation's leading medical and dental schools, public and private alike, and the heads of associations of nurses and public-health personnel. It is also worth noting that the American Dental Association is on record for the bill.

Right now, however, I want to discuss the general situation of the bill to aid medical education with particular reference to its only vocal opposition—the American Medical Association.

H. R. 886 is still in the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, scheduled for further consideration August 8, if this House and its committees are still in a position to consider any legislation at that time. This, despite the fact that corresponding legislation passed the Senate last September and shortly thereafter went to the Rules Committee of this House with the blessing of the full Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Who and what are responsible for this sudden reversal in the legislative process. Who is responsible for this inexcusable delay in meeting a vital national need this late in the grim struggle of the free world against the forces of communism? Why do I stand here in July of 1950 and plead for action on a measure which most of us well know should have been law months ago?

The answer is always the same—the American Medical Association.

Until recently I thought I had grown calloused to the AMA's dog-in-the-manger selfishness in its efforts to defeat almost every progressive public health measure offered in this Congress. I thought I had grown used to the double talking, double dealing methods of the AMA and its huckster representatives in their defense of a status quo riddled with inadequacies. I thought I had learned to brace myself against the overwhelming weight of the AMA hierarchy's $3,000,000 advertising and political slush fund.

Well, I was wrong. When the AMA maneuvered to kill by indirection this literally life and death legislation, I lost my calluses. I want the Members of this House to know the whole story of this measure and the AMA's opposition. Perhaps it will furnish an insight into the operations of this organization which some of you have not always displayed in the recent past.

I do not mean to say this is the only story of AMA duplicity and reaction in the face of the health needs of the people of this country. Many others come immediately to mind. There is the slander campaign against national-health insurance which calls it socialized medicine despite the fact that the AMA well knows it is not socialized medicine at all. Part of this campaign is the attempt to use the completely discredited alleged quotation from Lenin that "socialized medicine is the keystone of the arch of the Socialist state." The AMA has been called upon to either document or stop using that quotation many, many times. Its officials have admitted that the quotation cannot be documented. Experts at both the Library of Congress and the University of Chicago have declared there is no such statement in the known works of Lenin. Yet the quotation continues to be used in published material, in public speeches, and in political assaults. The use of such falsehoods is typical of the AMA approach to issues of public health, and they can no longer be defended on the lame grounds of ignorance of the truth. They are willful perversions of the truth.

Then there is the attempt to discredit the Federal Security Agency and its Administrator with completely unfounded and disproved charges that they wish to dictate to American medicine. There is the constant pounding at the slogan, "Keep politics out of this picture," while the AMA tops the Nation's lobbyists in expenditures and publicly prepares a political blast in the Nation's newspapers for next October, while its incoming president, Dr. Elmer Henderson, delivers a violent political tirade against the Fair Deal at the annual AMA convention in San Francisco.

He attacked our Government as "sick with intellectual dishonesty, moral laxity, and with reckless excesses," and charged the administration with a campaign to gain control over all fields of human endeavor to make this a Socialist state. Dr. Henderson ignored his responsible position as head of an organization which says it wants nothing to do with politics to engage in political mud slinging and use of misrepresentations and distortions.

There are many other items. There is the AMA's cooperation in spreading the hate-mongering nonsense of John T. Flynn's book, The Road Ahead, across the country in hundreds of thousands of volumes, volumes which the conservative New York Times has very properly labeled "pernicious flummery."

There is the back-scenes battle against school health measures. There is the long history on voluntary medical insurance plans related in the Harper's magazine article, The Dogged Retreat of the Doctors. There is indeed an overwhelming mass of evidence to show that the hierarchic officialdom of the AMA is one of the most reactionary forces in American life today. But I think the story of the bill to bring Federal aid to medical education is the most devastating illustration of all of the AMA's complete disregard for the national interest when it conflicts with the narrow, selfish interest of the AMA.

The history of the legislation to provide Federal aid to the Nation's medical schools is the story of conflict between two forces. On one side is the desperate need of the medical schools and the health requirements to the Nation, on the other side is the American Medical Association.

In 1946, immediately after the war, it was generally agreed that this country must proceed to make up its deficiencies in medical personnel, to get sorely needed doctors, dentists, nurses, and trained public health technicians into rural and other shortage areas, to make available enough health personnel to put into practice all that we have learned about how to keep people healthy and well. It was recognized that the only way to do this would be to step up the numbers of individuals receiving training and to improve the quality of that training.

Even the American Medical Association permitted official spokesmen to discuss the need. Dr. Herman Weiskotten, dean of the Syracuse University College of Medicine and a member of the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the AMA, declared that approximately half of our medical schools were operating on budgets far below the essential basic minimum required for the conduct of a satisfactory educational program. And in February 1947, he added, and I quote:

> The American people should realize that the first and most important step in improving the health and the medical care of our people is the more adequate support of more than half of the medical schools of this country.

In October 1947, Dr. Anderson, secretary of the same council, told of a study made by the AMA of which he said, and again I quote:

> We are prepared to contend that the maximum deficit that could possibly be forecast for 1960 does not exceed 15,000 physicians.

Only 15,000. When you consider that the average physician's patient list runs between 500 and 1,000, you get some idea of what number of people would get inadequate care with such a shortage. It could not conceivably run below seven and a half million. And this in peacetime. Yet there you have the statement of a responsible AMA official predicting a doctor shortage—and even more astounding, not worrying about it.

Well, the AMA, for all its later denials and present insistence that the Federal Government do nothing to help medical schools, recognized at that time that some help must come if the schools were not to collapse. So in February 1948 its board of trustees decided that it would seek voluntary assistance in order to avoid bringing the Federal Government into the matter. A commendable idea, but it just did not work.

The 1948 report of the Council on Medical Education of the AMA said medical schools required an additional $15,000,000 in support for operations and some $197,000,000 for construction of needed facilities and commented:

> The question that remains is whether the public will provide this support voluntarily or whether it will have to be provided by direct Federal subsidy.

That, indeed, was the question. The trouble was the answer. In July 1948, a meeting authorized by the board of trustees was held in New York City.

Representatives of universities, business, industry, banking, educational foundation, and private philanthropic organizations discussed a national campaign for raising about $15,000,000 a year to support medical education. A lot of hopes were raised by that meeting, but as of this date, 2 years later, no money.

So we have arrived finally at the set of circumstances which led to introduction of the aid to medical education legislation.

Something had to be done—and still does, for that matter. It could not be done privately or through State governments. Only the Federal Government was in a position to act. Did the AMA admit this? Not the AMA. The report of its council on medical education and hospitals on October 30, 1948, as much as declared that if the problem could not be solved the AMA's way, there was no problem. The report was naturally a bit confused, but I will quote it anyway to give you the full flavor:

> These studies have led to the conclusion that there is no need for any great increase in the number of medical graduates and the gradual expansion of facilities for medical education that is taking place will adequately meet the Nation's needs. The council will continue to give close attention to this problem.

Where did that word "problem" come from again? Was there or was not there one? There was one.

Dr. Weiskotten pops up with this admission in a statement in February 1949, in which he points out:

> Paradoxic as it may appear in the face of the present plight of the existing medical schools, there is developing a demand that these schools greatly increase the sizes of their student bodies and that new schools be established.

At this juncture it became clear that only Federal aid could help with this problem, a very real one growing more acute with every evasion and statement of the AMA. So bills were introduced in both the Senate and the House. At the end of the open Senate hearings a group of the most distinguished experts in every sector of the professional health training field, including important AMA representation, agreed on a set of 13 general principles among which were statements that the schools were in a financial emergency, that there are recognized shortages of manpower in the health professions, and that existing private sources of income are not able to meet the needs for either operation or construction. They supported Federal aid and even agreed that scholarships as well as operation and construction grants would be helpful in equalizing and expanding educational opportunities for qualified individuals.

This group also set up a series of guides to the Senate committee for the writing of the bill. The bill conformed to those guides as closely as possible and was passed as S. 1453 in September 1949. Before passage, at an August meeting in Washington, Dr. George F. Lull, of the AMA, told reporters the organization favored aid to medical education.

After Senate passage, the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee took up H. R. 5940, the House companion bill which I sponsored. The committee unanimously approved the bill and sent it to the Rules Committee for a rule. The rule was refused not because of opposition, but because of the press of time just before the close of the first session of this Congress. During this entire process the AMA was almost quiet. Only a few words broke the welcome silence and they were far from ominous. In a report to the AMA House of Delegates in November, the AMA's Council of Medical Education declared, and I quote:

> While the council is not entirely satisfied with the bill, it does incorporate several modifications suggested by the council's representatives and it is a distinct improvement over any other bill for Federal aid to education that has been introduced.

The honeymoon, however, was soon over. In a supplementary report of the board of trustees in December 1949 there was the following statement:

> Since S. 1453 has now passed the Senate and since it appears doubtful that further changes will be made by the House in the companion bill, H. R. 5940, the board of trustees feels it must oppose this bill.

There was no explanation of what happened between November and December.

And so it has gone ever since. Attempts have been made to satisfy the AMA objections which were made after this December declaration. H. R. 8886, a considerably changed version of H. R. 5940, which goes at least half way in compromising both major and minor issues, has been the result. And still the AMA opposition is adamant. There is neither rhyme nor reason in their opposition, but nothing apparently will change it. The Federal Government is involved and while the Federal Government safely makes all other sorts of laws for the United States, the AMA is not going to have it even take note of the health needs of the Nation's citizens.

Despite the AMA's exasperating attitude, despite this long "compromise and then oppose the compromise" period extending way into June, we have done everything possible to write a bill which would get at least the tacit approval of the AMA. We might as well have saved our energy. No matter what was said or done, the AMA stalled and temporized. Typical was a proposal that we wait until still another survey, the survey on medical education of the AMA, be completed.

I asked a participant in the survey, Dr. Joseph C. Hinsey, dean of the Cornell University Medical School and chairman of the executive council of the Association of American Medical Schools, if this request was valid. I will not read his whole reply, but let me give you one paragraph:

> I strongly recommend that you do not hold up action on H. R. 5940 (now H. R. 8886). The final report of the survey committee will be available for the use of the National Council on Education for Health Professions (a group set up by the proposed legislation) before it submits its recommendation on January 1, 1953.

I repeat 1953. Well might Hinsey add later, as he does—

> There seems no reason to wait.

There is only one conclusion. The AMA does not want the Federal Government to help the Nation's medical schools, no matter how desperate their plight. And since there is no other aid forthcoming, it looks very much as if the AMA did not want medical schools and other professional health-training schools helped at all.

As a matter of fact, many of the schools and professions affected are beginning to realize this sad truth and break with the reactionaries of the AMA. This Congress would do well to follow their example.

Earlier I promised to cite chapter and verse on the entire health training situation in this country. We must all know something of the general picture. Time printed a piece discussing the plight of the medical schools recently. The Philadelphia Inquirer carried an editorial the other day which told of the closing of private rooms and wards in voluntary hospitals in New York because of the shortage of nurses. Other newspapers have noted both nursing and public health personnel shortages. The New York Times carried a long, analytic article in one of its Sunday magazine sections asking for urgent action on Federal aid to dental and medical schools.

But to get down to the chapter and verse let us turn to the statements of the best qualified experts in America, the men who run the professional health training schools of all kinds. I am going to read just a few excerpts on the floor, but I ask that the entire communications be made part of the RECORD.

I have already read some of Dr. Hinsey's remarks as head of the organization to which almost all of the medical school deans in the country belong, but I want to quote from another letter written January 12, 1950, in which he discusses this need the AMA denies. First making clear that the AMA acted on aid to medical education without consulting the Association of America Medical Colleges, he goes on to tell the schools' sentiments in the matter. Here I begin to quote:

> Our committee on financial aid to medical education decided unanimously that we should poll the individual medical colleges by telegrams in order to fairly determine our over-all position.
>
> This committee on financial aid to medical education is made up of Dean Arthur C. Bachmeyer, of the University of Chicago; Dean George P. Berry, of Harvard University; Dean Walter A. Bloedorn, of George Washington University; Vice President Ward Darley, of the University of Colorado; and Dean Joseph C. Hinsey, of Cornell University, chairman. After its study and work with this legislation, this committee is unanimous in its support of H. R. 5940. The poll of the membership, with definite returns in from 63 schools, shows 47 favorable to the legislation in H. R. 5940 and 16 opposed. Of the 26 State-owned schools, 14 favored and 12 opposed. Two municipally owned institutions were favorable. Of the 35 private institutions, 31 were favorable and 4 were opposed. Even if the 15 schools not reporting were to be opposed—and I have reason to believe strongly that this would not be the case—there would still be a strong majority in favor of the legislation.

Other letters I have from individual deans support Dean Hinsey. The AMA did not consult them, they point out, and they, after all, are the ones who know the facts of the situation.

Dr. Willard C. Rappleye, dean and vice president in charge of medical affairs at Columbia University, writes:

May we express the earnest hope that your committee will give favorable consideration. * * * This is a matter of great urgency.

Dr. R. S. Cunningham, dean of the Albany Medical College at Union University, writes:

Only if our income is substantially increased can we maintain the high level of medical education from which the public benefits so greatly. In view of these facts, I hope that you will exert your full influence to secure passage of the bill.

Dr. W. E. Brown, dean at the University of Vermont, adds:

I hope we can count on you to help medical education in Vermont and throughout the United States by supporting H. R. 5940 or its substitute House bill for aid to medical education. * * * Most American medical schools, and this includes the University of Vermont College of Medicine, must radically curtail educational programs unless substantial financial support is forthcoming within the next 2 months.

That letter, gentlemen, was dated May 12.

It is the same with the University of Buffalo, Marquette University, Creighton University, Meharry Medical College, the University of Virginia, Loyola University, and dozens of others.

The Association of Urban Universities wired this in October of 1949:

The Association of Urban Universities, whose membership are carrying a large percentage of the burden of medical, dental, and nursing education, voices its approval of the emergency health training bill.

And now that we have begun to hear of the other schools beside the medical schools, let me read you a part of a letter from the deans of all the schools of medicine, dentistry, and public health in Massachusetts. The dentistry, nursing, public health, and other training included in this bill is just as important as the training of doctors. This is what the deans of these varied schools at Harvard, Tufts, and Boston University wrote:

We are convinced that the present desperate plight of our professional schools not only in Massachusetts but throughout the United States, has already interfered with the quality of professional education and is preventing the development of adequate medical and health personnel for the country.

We make this statement in full awareness of the position recently taken by the American Medical Association. We vigorously oppose that position. The American Medical Association in adopting its position was in no way authorized to speak for the professional schools of Massachusetts.

Early passage of H. R. 5940 will enable the professional schools of the United States to start immediately on an expanded, more effective total program of training. We do not believe that this urgent need can be met without such a program.

Then there are the letters from the administrators of huge universities like Chicago and Illinois.

Chancelor Robert Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, also chairman of the committee on Federal aid to medical schools of the American Association of Universities, wired:

President Conant's recent statement on the precarious financial condition of Harvard medical and public health schools is applicable, in my opinion, to every school in the country training personnel for the professions concerned with health. * * * Without operating funds schools will be unable to maintain current enrollments—already dangerously low—and improve present standards of instruction. * * * I therefore urge prompt passage of H. R. 5940.

Dr. A. C. Ivy, vice president in charge of the College of the Health Professions at the University of Illinois—including medicine, dentistry, nursing, and pharmacy—expresses similar sentiments with this interesting statement thrown in for good measure:

Everyone knows that more physicians, nurses, dentists, pharmacists, and public health officers are needed in our State and county. In some places this is true to such an extent that the principle of free enterprise and free choice of a physician is not operative.

That, as the AMA has been telling us all along, is intolerable.

There is much more of the same and I include it all in the RECORD, an editorial from the University of Southern California Medical Bulletin, the statement of need from the joint congressional Committee on the Economic Report which saw many low-income families without proper medical care because of health personnel shortages and the Hoover Commission's task force recommendations.

There is the recent speech by Father Michael I. English, regent of the Loyola University of Medicine in Chicago in which he criticized the AMA for deciding against Government aid to medical schools without consulting medical leaders, calling the organization more than conservative. Among the endorsements of Federal aid to medical education which I am attaching to this record is one from Father English in which he not only endorses the bill despite AMA opposition, but indicates that at least one AMA sponsored amendment would hurt rather than help the bill.

It all adds up and it all adds up to this. H. R. 8886, the latest version of the Emergency Health Training Act, is of vital importance to build our national health defenses for both peace and war. Our health-training schools cannot do the job without Federal aid. The only opponent of Federal aid is the AMA, as the AMA has so often been the only opponent of bills designed to improve the health of the American people.

We must pass H. R. 8886 over the objections of a blindly selfish AMA officialdom which either stupidly or wilfully is interfering with the welfare of our Armed Forces and our civilian population. We must either pass H. R. 8886 or relinquish to the AMA our right to promote the general welfare through health legislation.

As Brig. Gen. James S. Simmons, dean of the Harvard School of Public Health, told the same AMA convention at which Dr. Henderson's disgraceful mangling of the truth took place 2 weeks ago, "all problems of health assume a dominant role" in the present uncertain international situation.

We must, among other things, be prepared to meet the entirely new threat of unannounced atomic war and biologic warfare. What we need most, and again the words are those of General Simmons, is to "shore up our national health defenses."

H. R. 8886 is the first step in that most urgent task. It cannot wait for another Congress.

ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN MEDICAL COLLEGES, OFFICE OF CHAIRMAN OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL,
New York, N. Y., January 12, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
Fifth District of Wisconsin,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: As president of the Association of American Medical Colleges and Chairman of its Committee on Financial Aid to Medical Education, I am writing you regarding H. R. 5940 which your subcommittee has studied and passed. Our association is the one qualified to speak for the medical schools of the United States and to present their needs. We wish to state our position as accurately as we have been able to determine it. Our association is made up of the staffs of our member colleges, representing the ones approved for membership in the United States and affiliate members in Canada and the Philippine Islands. Here we speak for the 78 approved schools in the United States of which 72 are 4-year schools and 6 are 2-year schools. Of these 41 are privately endowed, 34 are State-owned (including 3 schools now in the process of becoming State-owned), and 3 municipally owned.

Because of the variety of our schools with problems peculiar to each, our Association of American Medical Colleges has refrained, up to this time, from taking one stand on the legislation in H. R. 5940 and its companion bill S. 1453. We have encouraged each medical college to communicate with the legislators from their respective districts. Thus the problems inherent in and the criticisms directed at it could be worked out in a democratic manner. We appreciate your sponsorship of this bill and your interest in the problems with which it deals. We are grateful for the fact that our representatives were given the opportunity to appear before you and your colleagues of your committee and to participate in the bipartisan conferences preceding the final writing of the legislation. It was recognized that H. R. 5940 contained imperfections but at the same time, it would go a long way to helping solve the financial problems plaguing some of our institutions in meeting what they deem their obligations in the various health sciences.

The action by the board of trustees, the house of delegates, and the council on medical education and hospitals of the American Medical Association opposing H. R. 5940 after it had passed your committee, and the companion bill S. 1453 after it had passed the Senate, was taken independently of our Association of American Medical Colleges and without a poll of our membership. Our Committee on Financial Aid to Medical Education decided unanimously that we should poll the individual medical colleges by telegrams in order to fairly determine our overall position.

This committee on financial aid to medical education is made up of Dean Arthur C. Bachmeyer, of the University of Chicago, Dean George P. Berry, of Harvard University, Dean Walter A. Bloedorn, of George Washington University, Vice President Ward Darley of the University of Colorado, and Dean Joseph C. Hinsey of Cornell University, chairman. After its study and work with this legislation this committee is unanimous in its support of H. R. 5940. The poll of the membership, with definite returns in from 63 schools, shows 47 favorable to the legislation in H. R. 5940 and 16 opposed. Of the 26 State-owned schools 14 favored and 12 opposed. Two municipally owned institutions were favorable. Of the 35 private institutions 31 were favorable and 4 were opposed. Even if the 15 schools not reporting were to be opposed, and I have reason to believe strongly that this would not be the case, there would still be a strong majority in favor of the legislation.

A number of suggestions were offered to make for improvements in the bill. Two schools strongly urged scholarship aid for needy medical students. Some 14 schools favoring H. R. 5940 expressed hope that the safeguards in section 2, Senate bill 246 (Educational Finance Act of 1949) might be substituted for section 382 of H. R. 5940. However, it is our firm conviction that a strong majority of our medical colleges believe that the general provisions of H. R. 5940 are essential for the maintenance of their programs.

Our committee is prepared to come for discussions or hearings of this bill. We hope that this letter will help clarify the positions of the medical schools. We are aware that this legislation is of vital importance to nursing, dentistry, and to schools of public health, and that the positions of some of these have been made known to you. Likewise, you have heard from our medical colleges, some of whom favor the legislation while others vigorously oppose it. There is nothing in this legislation that would make any institution participate in its benefits against its better judgment.

Respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH C. HINSEY,
Chairman, Committee on Financial Aid to Medical Education.

HARVARD MEDICAL SCHOOL,
OFFICE OF THE DEAN,
Boston, Mass., January 5, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: We, the undersigned deans of the professional schools of medicine, dentistry, and public health in the State of Massachusetts, individually and jointly, urge your strong support of H. R. 5940, the bill proposing an emergency 5-year program of grants and scholarships for education in the medical and health fields. We hope that you will work for early priority for this bill in the Rules Committee and will vote for its passage when it comes on the floor of the House.

We are convinced that the present desperate financial plight of our professional schools, not only in Massachusetts but throughout the United States, has already interfered with the quality of professional education and is preventing the development of adequate medical and health personnel for the country.

We make this statement in full awareness of the position recently adopted by the American Medical Association. We vigorously oppose that position. The American Medical Association in adopting its position was in no way authorized to speak for the professional schools of Massachusetts.

Early passage of H. R. 5940 will enable the professional schools of the United States to start immediately on an expanded, more effective total program of training. We do not believe that this urgent need can be met without such assistance.

Very truly yours,

DWIGHT O'HARA, M. D.,
Dean, Tufts College Medical School.
JAMES M. FAULKNER, M. D.,
Dean, Boston University School of Medicine.
JAMES M. DUNNING, D. D. S.,
Dean, Harvard School of Dental Medicine.
C. D. MARSHALL-DAY, D. M. D.,
Dean, Tufts College Dental School.
GEORGE PACKER BERRY, M. D.,
Dean, Harvard Medical School.
JAMES S. SIMMONS, M. D.,
Dean, Harvard School of Public Health.

JANUARY 23, 1950.

Re H. R. 5940; grants-in-aid for education in the health professions.

I am writing you in my capacity as vice president of the University of Illinois in charge of the colleges of the health professions (medicine, dentistry, nursing, and pharmacy) because one important point for the people of the State of Illinois has not been introduced into the discussions of H. R. 5940.

And, since you represent the people of the State of Illinois on the House Committee considering this bill, I feel it to be my duty to call the point to your attention.

This is the point:

I. THERE IS A SHORTAGE OF HEALTH PERSONNEL IN OUR COUNTRY

1. Everyone knows that more physicians, nurses, dentists, pharmacists, and public health officers are needed in our State (rural areas) and county. In some places this is true to such an extent that the principle of free enterprise and free-choice of a physician is not operative.

II. THE COST OF TRAINING HEALTH PERSONNEL IS VERY HIGH AND MORE PERSONNEL CANNOT BE PRODUCED BECAUSE OF LACK OF PHYSICAL FACILITIES AND OPERATING FUNDS—THE DEFICITS ARE NOW ALMOST INTOLERABLE

2. It is a matter of common knowledge that the cost of medical education in the health professions is very high. This is because much learning and considerable experience must be imparted and acquired in view of the great medical advances, before the student can be released to practice.

3. The majority of medical and dental schools and schools of public health operate on a large annual deficit. This draws money from other areas of university education. And, many university presidents, if they could morally do so, would like to drop their colleges in the health professions because these colleges are such a financial drain and handicap on the other educational functions of a university.

III. LARGE URBAN AREAS MUST PRODUCE THE HEALTH PERSONNEL FOR OUR COUNTY

4. For obvious reasons, medical, dental, and nursing education is most economically and best given in urban areas where there is a concentration of charity or semicharity patients.

5. For this reason it is necessary to have several medical schools and dental schools, etc., in Chicago.

IV. CHICAGO PROVIDES EDUCATION FOR 20 PERCENT OF THE PHYSICIANS WHO PRACTICE IN OUR COUNTRY AND FEDERAL MEDICAL SERVICES

6. Chicago provides some or all of the undergraduate or postgraduate education of 20 percent of the physicians who now are in private practice or practice in Federal governmental medical services.

V. THE COST OF THIS HEALTH EDUCATION PROVIDED IN CHICAGO IS BORNE ALMOST ENTIRELY BY STATE TAXES AND BY ILLINOIS CITIZENS WHO ARE BENEFACTORS OF THE PRIVATELY ENDOWED SCHOOLS

7. Since there is practically no money for the support of these schools in Chicago which train personnel in the health professions not only to take care of the citizens of Illinois but also the citizens of other States in and out of the Federal medical services, the taxpayers of Illinois and the citizens of Illinois, who make gifts to the schools in Chicago, pay more than their share for the training of health personnel.

VI. FROM AN EQUITABLE AND ECONOMIC VIEWPOINT, THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SHOULD DEFRAY APPROXIMATELY 33 PERCENT OF THE COST OF EDUCATING HEALTH PERSONNEL

8. It is not fair, and it is not good economy for the citizens of Illinois to bear the expense of training physicians, dentists, nurses, and pharmacists for other States and the Federal Government.

9. The only fair and economical way to bear this expense equally is for the Federal Government to appropriate for approximately one-third the cost of medical, dental, nursing, and public-health education.

10. This argument not only applies for Illinois but all those States wherein reside medical schools because of the ready availability of charity patients and clinical facilities for training physicians, dentists, nurses, and public-health officers.

11. The claim that this cannot be done by the Federal Government without the Federal Government dictating what should be taught is an unfounded fear and challenge to the democratic representative form of government. The statement does not hold for compulsory health insurance, to which I am opposed, because compulsory health insurance, as shown in Germany and Russia, is conducive to the development of an attitude with rights and dignity.

The Federal Government should awaken to its responsibility and assume its share of the cost of training personnel for the health professions.

I believe that this foregoing point should be kept clearly in mind by the congressional representatives of the people of Illinois; namely, that it is not an economy move to oppose Federal aid to health education but a matter of equity in meeting a humanitarian and a national need.

I should add that the colleges of the health professions of the University of Illinois are not in critical need as regards the anticipation of a deficit in operating expenses, unless wages of employees are increased. However, for 4 years the people of the State have exerted much pressure on us to provide them with more physicians, dentists, nurses, and pharmacists and to accept for admission to our colleges of the health professions more young men and women of the State of Illinois who are qualified. Each year, because of lack of facilities, we must turn away over 400 students qualified to study medicine or dentistry.

So, when I make the foregoing point, I am making it for the people of Illinois and also for the people of other States who have to support colleges of the health professions for the people of States who do not have such colleges.

With best wishes, I am,

Yours sincerely,

A. C. IVY, Ph. D., M. D., D. Sc.,
Vice President.

TASK FORCE REPORT ON FEDERAL MEDICAL SERVICES

[Appendix O]

THE COMMISSION ON ORGANIZATION OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH OF THE GOVERNMENT, JANUARY 1949

* * * * *

1. That an initial survey of the acute emergency needs be made by the Public Health Service, with the aid of advisory groups representing the public, the medical schools, and those philanthropic foundations which have given so generously to medical education. Where financial problems of an emergency nature are found which threaten the survival of medical schools or the maintenance of high standards of medical education, emergency financial aid should be supplied promptly by the Federal Government if it is clear that the schools and their universities themselves are making maximum efforts.

2. That a long-range study of the economics of medical education be made to determine ways and means of insuring the maintenance of current output at present standards and of expanding output and elevating standards. This study, should define the extent to which present facilities can be better utilized and need to be expanded.

3. A plan of fellowships for brilliant men, particularly those who evidence an especial interest in the fields in which there is the greatest shortage including Federal medical service.

These recommendations are predicated on the principle of not diminishing the essential independence of the schools in professional educational policies, or their self-support to the full extent possible, or the private initiative now supporting them.

A sufficient principle on which to justify such Federal aid is that the Government is the largest single customer for medical personnel even in peace, and by far the greatest customer of all in war.

OCTOBER 12, 1949.

Congressman ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
Washington, D. C.:

Appreciate your telegram regarding H. R. 5940. I hope that it will have favorable action in committee and on the floor of the House.

JOHN S. HIRSCHBOECK,
Dean, Marquette University School of Medicine.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE,
Boston, Mass., January 6, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: I hope that H. R. 5940, to provide financial assistance for medical education, will be acted upon promptly and favorably. The financial plight of the medical schools, particularly of the privately supported schools, is so serious as to call for immediate action. I urge your continued support of this bill.

Very sincerely yours,
JAMES M. FAULKNER, M. D.,
Dean, School of Medicine.

HARVARD SCHOOL OF DENTAL MEDICINE,
Boston, Mass., January 6, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: I want to add my individual word on behalf of the Harvard School of Dental Medicine to the joint letter I have just signed as a member of a group of deans of medical and dental schools in the State of Massachusetts. Our school strongly backed House bill 5940 to provide financial assistance to schools of medicine, dentistry, and public health. We have a small school in which we try to give a large amount of individual instruction and an opportunity for students to perform individual research projects in the laboratories. This type of instruction is expensive and our tuition though high, does not begin to cover the cost per student.

As you may know, both the American Association of Dental Schools and the American Dental Association through its house of delegates have endorsed H. R. 5940 in principle. The American Medical Association cannot speak for the dental schools of the country.

Very sincerely yours,
JAMES M. DUNNING, D. D. S., Dean.

TUFTS COLLEGE MEDICAL SCHOOL,
Boston, Mass., January 6, 1950.

Hon. ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: As dean of Tufts College Medical School, I am writing to say that we here at Tufts favor very strongly the passage of House bill 5940. If we are to continue to train medical doctors under the present standards of quality and quantity, we shall need urgently the provisions for aid which are provided in this bill. We hope therefore, that you will do everything you can to bring this bill before the House and to secure favorable action upon it.

With full appreciation of your insight into these matters and all you have done for public health in this country in the past, I am

Sincerely yours,
DWIGHT O'HARA, M. D., Dean.

TUFTS COLLEGE DENTAL SCHOOL,
Boston, Mass., January 6, 1950.

Hon. ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
Fifth Congressional District of Indiana,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: As dean of Tufts College Dental School, I am writing to you to strongly urge your continued support of House bill 5940 for the provision of grants and scholarships for education in medicine, dentistry, and public health.

It was clearly shown during the hearings on this bill that there is a desperate need of funds for our professional schools responsible for training personnel to whom will be entrusted the health of the Nation.

As already noted by the Public Health Subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, the number at present being trained by our professional schools falls far behind the number lost annually by death and retirement, even without consideration of normal population increases. Unless the professional schools are able to obtain the necessary financial assistance, it will be impossible to train sufficient experts to effectively take care of the health of the country. Private beneficence can no longer be relied upon to provide adequate assistance, and the present desperate financial plight of the schools emphasizes the critical need for Federal aid.

As one who has had experience in the administration of Government-aided institutions in other countries, notably in New Zealand and in India, the undersigned has no fear of undue government interference with professional teaching institutions. Furthermore, the present need for an expanded and more effective total health training program is too urgent for such unlikely considerations.

Early passage of House bill 5940 will do much to alleviate the present unfortunate and highly dangerous situation. For this reason I would once again strongly urge that everything possible be done so that high priority may be given to this bill by the Rules Committee.

May I extend my sincere thanks for your cooperation.

Yours very truly,
S. D. MARSHALL-DAY, Dean.

UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT,
AND STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE,
COLLEGE OF MEDICINE,
Burlington, Vt., February 23, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
The House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: As dean of the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College, with the consent of the president of the university, I am sending this memorandum to various Members of the House of Representatives and the Senate urging the prompt passage of H. R. 5940 to give financial aid to professional schools in the field of medicine and health.

The reasons for asking Federal tax support of such programs are as follows:

1. Both privately endowed and State supported medical schools are in desperate need of immediate financial support. Unless funds become available in the near future, some schools may close. Others, like the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont, will be forced to curtail teaching programs and possibly to reduce the number of students accepted. This at a time when pressure is greatest for expansion of schools and the education of more physicians.

2. At the present time the State of Vermont and the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College must add at least $3 to every dollar the medical student pays in tuition charges. Tuition is already higher than is considered compatible with the income of the vast majority of the families of our students.

3. The continual deficit of the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont, like many other university medical schools, has drawn heavily on university funds and has already necessitated serious curtailment of the university funds available for other important activities.

4. Approximately 45 percent of the graduates of the University of Vermont College of Medicine are either admitted as nonresidents of the State of Vermont or, as graduates, practice in States other than the State of Vermont. In this sense, all colleges of medicine are national institutions entitled to some partial Federal support.

5. State appropriations and voluntary gifts in general have not and will not be made in sufficient amounts to meet the costs of medical education. If appropriations from States and gifts from individuals are made, there is no liklihood that they will be available in time to meet the present financial crisis in medical education the country over.

6. Congress has already appropriated for defense upward of sixteen billions of dollars during the current year. This will be spent by the military services for the maintenance of adequate defense.

The Army, Navy, Air Force, and United States Public Health Services, charged with the problems of defense, have already turned to the colleges of medicine to recruit necessary medical personnel. Twenty percent of the graduates of the class of 1949 of the college of medicine of the University of Vermont entered one of these medical services. Vermont paid three-fourths of the cost of educating this personnel.

In the event of another war, there will be an even greater draining off of medical graduates into military services. The demands upon the colleges of medicine will become increasingly greater and will far exceed those of World War II.

7. Unless financial support is forthcoming in the near future, it is unlikely that medical colleges will be able to graduate adequate numbers of properly trained physicians to meet the increasing demands of the country at large, to say nothing of military demands for physicians.

8. The problem of our national health is the most vital. This can only be adequately met by a reasonable increase in the number of well-trained physicians graduated from properly supported colleges of medicine.

In general, the problem of medical education, its proper support and supervision, falls quite properly on the shoulders of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Its committee on financial aid to medical education has already explored the field of increased financial support. The committee has cooperated with the committees of both Houses of Congress in the study of proposed Federal aid. The committee has polled the medical colleges and has gone on record in favor of Federal aid to medical education. The committee has advocated suitable controls to keep medical education free from political or Government interference. All are agreed on the importance of this phase of the problem.

We hope you will support H. R. 5940 and see that it is given a prompt hearing on the floor of the House of Representatives. All medical colleges must in the near future prepare budgets for the year 1950–51. Hence the urgent need for prompt action.

We all hope that a note of false economy may not be used to defeat this important piece of legislation. The best economy in the field of medical education today is adequate support and expansion of the facilities now available in well-established medical colleges.

I will be very glad to answer any questions regarding the urgent need for this important measure.

Very truly yours,

W. E. BROWN, M. D., Dean.

JANUARY 27, 1950.

Hon. ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,

United States House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.:

As chancelor of the University of Chicago and chairman of the committee on Federal aid to medical schools of the American Association of Universities, I want to bear urgent witness to the critical and immediate need of the medical schools of this country. President Conant's recent statement on the precarious financial condition of Harvard Medical and Public Health Schools is applicable in my opinion to every school in the country training personnel for the professions concerned with health. The cost of providing instruction of high quality for doctors and other medical personnel far exceeds the funds available from tuition and other sources. Without operating funds, schools will be unable to maintain current enrollments—already dangerously low—and improve present standards of instruction. Public support in the form of Federal funds is essential if schools are to fulfill their public responsibility, providing enough well-trained personnel to meet the health needs of the Nation. Whatever action may be taken on any other aspect of providing adequate health services, the country cannot afford to let existing shortages of trained health personnel increase in severity. I therefore urge your efforts toward prompt passage of H. R. 5940, feeling convinced that in its present form the bill affords adequate protection of academic and administrative freedom while providing reasonable control of the expenditure of public funds.

ROBERT HUTCHINS,

Chairman of the Committee on Federal Aid to Medical Schools of the American Association of Universities and Chancelor of the University of Chicago.

MARCH 7, 1950.

EXCERPT FROM JOINT CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE ON THE ECONOMIC REPORT, SUBCOMMITTEE ON LOW-INCOME FAMILIES

Senate recommendations, including—

2. Federal assistance in training of doctors and nurses.

3. Federal assistance to existing medical schools and to establish new medical schools where needed.

Majority supporting: Senator SPARKMAN; Senator FLANDERS; Representative WALTER HUBER, Democrat, Ohio; Representative FRANK BUCHANAN, Democrat, Pennsylvania.

RICH opposed to health plan.

[From the University of Southern California Medical Bulletin of April 1950]

Why has the cost of medical education been discussed earnestly at every meeting of the Association of American Medical Colleges held in the past few years? What is the situation in the Nation's medical schools? Is such grave concern justified?

The general rise in costs during and since the war has engulfed medical schools in serious financial difficulties. Engaged in a type of education which has always been highly expensive, they have recently been confronted with 30–50 percent increases in salaries, a 50–150 percent rise in the cost of equipment and supplies, and the added expense of increased enrollments demanded by the public.

Meanwhile, earnings on investments have fallen, and universities have suffered a decline in income which has become critical. To offset this somewhat, tuition has been raised, but in no school to a compensatory level. The result has been a disastrous increase in the proportion of educational expenses not covered by tuition.

The seriousness of this problem is well illustrated by the experience of our own school of medicine, for which the figures in the table below are presented.

The most significant figures are those showing a rise of more than 450 percent in educational costs not covered by tuition and fees. These costs amounted to about $1,054 in the early 1930's for a 4-year medical education for one student. The cost of such an education today, above and beyond that portion met by tuition and fees, is more than five times as great, or about $5,884. On the basis of this figure, each class of 65–67 students requires an expenditure by the university of over $388,000 by the time it has graduated. Such an amount is not easily provided. It represents a considerable sacrifice by the university and is an annual contribution to the medical profession and to the community which deserves to be recognized.

The problem at our institution is not different from that at other medical schools, and the above figures coincide closely with those presented by Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester, in an address to the Association of American Medical Colleges in May 1948. He pointed out that for American schools as a group, tuition and fees covered approximately 70 percent of the cost of medical education in 1910, but less than 30 percent in 1948.

	1933–34	1949–50	Percent increase
Teaching budget [1]	$108,000	$555,175	322
Undergraduate enrollment	158	267	69
Total cost per student per year	$683	$2,079	204
Tuition and fees per year	$420	$608	47
Percent of cost covered by tuition	61	29	−53
Cost not covered by tuition, per student per year	$263	$1,471	458

[1] Not including funds for operation of teaching and research facilities (light, heat, telephones, etc.).

The resulting financial problem is particularly serious for those schools which are maintained by private universities, including those which are heavily endowed, and has obvious implications for the medical profession since for years 66 percent of all American physicians have graduated from private universities.

The medical schools of State universities have not entirely escaped the situation either, for they have been confronted with the same rising costs, and their increasing budgetary requests have been received by State legislatures with growing concern.

It is readily understandable, then, why both private and public medical schools are appealing so earnestly to their alumni for support. It is also clear why these schools, through the Association of American Medical Colleges, have finally turned to the Federal Government for aid, not only to support their research programs, but to provide necessary funds for at least minimal teaching expenses.

On August 3, 1949, the United States Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare reported favorably on a bill to provide Federal subsidies to medical schools. This bill, S. 1453, provides $500 for each medical student up to the school's average past enrollment, and $1,000 for each additional student up to 30 percent of the past average enrollment. Total payments may not exceed 40 percent of the school's budget. These subsidies are not scholarships, and Federal scholarships will not be awarded unless schools are unable to fill their enrollments. Funds under this bill would be provided for 5 years, except scholarship funds which would extend over 8 years. Although as originally proposed this bill contains certain controversial provisions, an acceptable measure providing for such Federal aid may soon become law.

It will be almost impossible to prevent a gradual deterioration of medical education in the United States, and a fall in the standards of medical practice throughout the Nation, unless such Federal aid is provided, or unless markedly increased private philanthropic support can be obtained.

The University of Southern California is a private, nonsectarian institution. It stands for opportunity, individual initiative, and private enterprise. Together with other private educational institutions, it forms a stanch bulwark of our modern society. If its credo is to be better upheld, and if its position in our society is to be strengthened, the greatest proportion of its support must come from private citizens.

The financial need of our medical school is a grave problem. It must be given serious attention by every student, teacher, and graduate of the school, and every layman interested in its welfare. It must be placed before the public as sympathetically, clearly, and forcefully as possible.—R. B. B. and J. N. D.

THE CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY,
SCHOOL OF MEDICINE,
Omaha, Nebr., May 4, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,

Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: I would like to call your attention to the present status of H. R. 5940 which is now under consideration by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

It is believed that if the critical financial condition of most of the privately owned schools of medicine was known by the Members of Congress, the present bill, H. R. 5940, would be approved and passed with very few changes.

The average cost of medical education per student per year in the United States is about $2,500. The average yearly tuition paid by each of these students is about $600. The medical schools are, therefore, required to pay out of their own funds the difference between the cost of education and the tuition which amounts to an average of about $1,900 per year per student.

The Creighton University is opposed to the recommendations of the American Medical Association that Federal aid to medical education is limited to 30 percent of the school's annual cost of instruction. The Creighton University favors that the limit remain at not less than 40 percent of the annual cost of instruction as is shown in the present bill.

Section 372 of H. R. 5940 "Payments to schools for costs of instruction" is entirely acceptable to this school.

The Creighton University is opposed to the payments being made to the various States instead of directly to the schools because, as you can well understand, the private universities would not receive any of the funds because many of these States have laws forbidding the allocation of any funds to private schools.

The Creighton University naturally is opposed to any type of Federal control over medical education, but believes that her interests are adequately protected by both Senate and House bills. However, if provisions similar to those contained in section 2, S. 246, are desired by others interested in medical education these changes would be entirely satisfactory to the Creighton University.

If there is any doubt in the minds of any of the committee members concerning the attitude of the representatives of the privately owned schools of medicine regarding Federal aid to medical education, I recommend that the committee ask each medical school to send a representative to appear before the committee without expense to the Government and explain the stand taken by his school in this matter.

I am sure that it is the general opinion of the administrators of the privately owned medical schools that the matter of Federal aid to medical education is not the problem of the medical schools as the American Medical Association does not provide any funds whatsoever to help in the maintenance of the schools. The medical schools are independent organizations and, as such, their representatives should be asked to appear before the committee to give first-hand information regarding this subject.

Sincerely yours,

P. J. CARROLL, M. D., Dean.

MEHARRY MEDICAL COLLEGE,
Nashville, Tenn.

The Honorable ANDREW J. EIEMILLER,
House Office Building,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: Without unforeseen and seemingly unavailable grants from private philanthrophy and without Federal aid to medical, dental and nursing education as proposed in legislation now pending before Congress, Meharry Medical College of Nashville, Tenn., an institution that continues to train over 50 percent of the Negro physicians and dentists for this country, may be forced to curtail its program in 1950–51 below the standards required for national accreditation.

This would be a staggering blow to an institution that has successfully maintained national standards in the face of almost unsurmountable difficulties since its founding in 1876.

The administration, the faculty, staff, and student body, along with 3,000 loyal alumni urge that you carefully consider the plight of this and other privately endowed institutions when this bill is brought before you for decision.

We hope that aid will be forthcoming from your vote. With a prayer, we leave this important matter in your capable hands.

Sincerely,

M. DON CLAWSON,
President.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA,
DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE,
Charlottesville, May 6, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
Member of the House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: May I urge that you, as a member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, give favorable consideration to the Emergency Professional Health Training Act of 1950, H. R. 5940.

The financial status of many of the finest medical schools in the United States is insecure and it is generally agreed that unless Federal aid is obtained, the quality of instruction will deteriorate or some schools may find it necessary to close. Furthermore, we are under constant pressure to increase enrollment and produce a larger number of physicians to meet the needs of the country, yet cannot do so within the limitations of our existing staffs and facilities.

Certainly, the keystone of the health program is the production of an adequate number of well-trained personnel. I know of no better investment of Federal funds in the fields of health or education than one which would accomplish that objective.

Sincerely yours,

VERNON W. LIPPARD, M. D., Dean.

RESOLUTION OF THE ASSOCIATION OF URBAN UNIVERSITIES, OCTOBER 31, 1949

The Association of Urban Universities, whose membership institutions are carrying a large percentage of the burden of medical, dental, and nursing education, voices its approval of S. 1453, the emergency health training bill, which would provide outright Federal financial aid to institutions supporting education in these health fields.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS,
New York, N. Y., May 19, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: May we express the earnest hope that your committee will have favorable consideration to the bill now before your committee proposing an amendment of the Public Health Service Act and Vocational Education Act of 1946 to provide an emergency 5-year program of grants for professional education.

This is a matter of great urgency in the over-all problem of supplying adequate numbers of well-qualified physicians and other professional personnel to meet the needs of the country. Many of the professional schools are in serious need of financial assistance if they are to maintain their public responsibilities.

Hoping that this important legislation may have favorable consideration, I am,

Respectfully yours,

WILLARD C. RAPPLEYE, M. C.,
Dean and Vice President in Charge of Medical Affairs, Columbia University.

THE UNIVERSITY OF BUFFALO,
Buffalo, N. Y., June 3, 1950.

Hon. ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR CONGRESSMAN BIEMILLER: I am writing to urge you to vote favorably on the passage of H. R. 5940, the bill for the support of medical and other professional education which is to be considered by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce on June 6.

The University of Buffalo, a privately endowed institution, now trains medical students, dental students, and nursing students. Plans have been prepared for the construction of a new medical school which will enable the university to increase by 25 to 50 percent the number of medical and dental students it can train. The University of Buffalo has increased the budgetary support of the medical school very considerably over the last few years, but cannot supply what is really needed to develop the present school to the full. It certainly needs Federal assistance to increase the number of graduates. The problem which faces this school faces all medical schools and universities in some measure. Hence the urgent need for the support of the proposed bill, H. R. 5940, on which I again urge your favorable action.

Sincerely yours,

S. P. CAPEN.

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY,
SCHOOL OF MEDICINE,
Chicago, Ill., May 31, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN: The purpose of this letter is to make a statement with reference to the emergency health training bill, H. R. 5940, providing Federal aid to institutions engaged in training for the health professions. (The companion bill, S. 2246, has already been passed.)

The position of Loyola University, comprising a medical school, a dental school, and a school of nursing education, is as follows:

1. We earnestly favor the passage of H. R. 5940.

2. We understand that the American Medical Association wanted the financial limit of aid set at 30 percent. This, of course, would mean that the schools which most need the aid would get far less help than if the figure had been left at 40 or 50 percent. We think the figure of 40 or 50 percent of the total budget of the school is far more consonant with the purpose of the bill.

Any assistance that you might extend will be noted and appreciated.

Respectfully yours,

MICHAEL I. ENGLISH, S. J., Regent.

MARQUETTE UNIVERSITY, COLLEGE OF NURSING,
Milwaukee, Wis., June 1, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
The House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: We would like you to know that we are interested in bill H. R. 5940, relative to Federal aid to health education. If nursing schools and other schools engaged in health education are to continue to function as educational institutions, it is imperative that they receive Federal aid. We have over 500 students enrolled in our school. Of this number, about 150 are in the basic program, the others are graduate nurses preparing for teaching, supervision and public health positions. We shall appreciate your efforts in behalf of bill H. R. 5940.

Very truly yours,

Sister M. THOMAS, O. S. F.,
Dean, College of Nursing.

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE,
Louisville, Ky., May 31, 1950.

The Honorable ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. BIEMILLER: Thank you for having taken the time and trouble to reply so carefully and thoughtfully to my recent letter to you concerning the mental health legislation. Thank you in particular for going out of your way to call my attention to the present status of H. R. 5940.

I did not know that the latter bill would be up for consideration on June 5, but I had already written Congressman UNDERWOOD in connection with that bill, as you have suggested. With some of the objections to the bill eliminated, as I understand they have been, I do hope that you will see your way clear to support it vigorously so that our medical schools can do the job they should do, but are not now able to, to the end that the welfare of the people will be better safeguarded.

Very sincerely,
J. MURRAY KINSMAN, M. D., Dean.

UNION UNIVERSITY,
ALBANY MEDICAL COLLEGE,
Albany, N. Y., May 11, 1950.

Hon. ANDREW J. BIEMILLER,
House Office Building,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN BIEMILLER: I understand that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce now has before it a substitute bill for H. R. 5940, a bill to aid medical education. I am familiar with the major changes made by the subcommittee and feel that these changes are sound and wise.

I know that you are well aware that the quality of medical care the patient receives from his physician is largely determined by the quality of medical education the physician has experienced. I know also that you are aware of the forces, completely outside the control of medical colleges, which have so greatly increased their costs in the past five or six years. Speaking only for Albany Medical College, although I think you will find similar situations at most other medical colleges, I can say that only if our income is substantially increased, can we maintain the high level of medical education from which the public benefits so greatly.

In view of these facts, I hope that you will exert your full influence to secure passage of the substitute bill to aid medical education.

Sincerely yours,
R. S. CUNNINGHAM, M. D. Dean.

SPECIAL ORDER

The SPEAKER. Under previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CHESNEY] is recognized for 10 minutes.

KOREA

Mr. CHESNEY. Mr. Speaker, the present emergency resulting from the actions of the North Koreans and the intervention of our own country in the country of Korea can be attributed to the lack of understanding of the economic and political revolution that has been taking place in the Far and Near East.

During my service in the past World War II while stationed in India supervising a shipment of arms to the Nationalist Chinese forces before it fell under the onslaught of the Communist hordes, I had occasion to observe those activities which sowed the seeds for the present state of unrest in the world—activities which were carefully planned and carried out by the Kremlin stooges in every nation of the Asiatic sphere.

During the final stages of the war in the Pacific, Communist fifth columns were instigating religious warfare in India between the Hindus and Mohammedans, causing unrest in the large cities of Bombay, Calcutta and Delhi as well as inflaming the people of India for the cause of independence in a manner which was condemned by Mahatma Gandhi, Pandit Nehru and Jinnah, then the Mohammedan leader.

Those who were in India at this time, and that included many contingents of our American authorities as well as those of the British and French, seemingly failed to realize the true significance of these subversive maneuvers. Statements issued at that time usually discounted the fact that these demonstrations were the work of Indian Communists. It seemed that too many were taking these activities too lightly. Reliable newspapermen with such metropolitan publications of Calcutta as the Statesman and the Hindustan Paprika confided secretly that war censorship prohibited them from reporting the truth of the amount of Communist influence behind these planned movements.

In China, Communist activities were planned on a larger scale, with the Chinese Nationalist forces actively fighting the Communists in the areas of North China. The Communists were only waiting for the disorganization of the Kuomintang governmental economy before they moved into the rural areas and the cities. Their communistic fifth-column activities coincided with the movements of General Mao's forces.

On the borders of North China and Manchuria, with the Great Wall separating these areas in some places, there were evident signs that Russian military agents were actually taking active part in the direction of the Chinese Communists. American authorities stationed in this area because of their duties under UNRRA activities and military policing in 1946, stated that Russian troops were bivouacked only a few miles from the lines separating North China and Manchuria. This seemed logical, inasmuch as Russia occupied Manchuria. However, citizens of the village of Cheng Wang Tan reported that on a few occasions Russian military personnel were seen crossing the lines and that when Japan fell contingents of Russian troops were ready to move into this area, but were quickly withdrawn into the interior of Manchuria.

In 1946, with the fall of Japan, military equipment and arms were supplied in great quantities to the Nationalist Armies under lend-lease, to fight the organized groups of the Communist puppet force.

Incidents happened at that time which, under normal conditions, could easily set off the spark for another war.

Off the port of Dairen, an American plane was shot down. The port villages of North China were repeatedly attacked by Communists. In many instances American Marine personnel had to be called in to repel the invaders. In the village of Chiang Kai Kwan, two American marines were ambushed by Communist raiders.

In Shanghai it was openly known, but not considered factual in the influential circles of Chinese society, that Russian influence would some day have the upper hand in the direction of the Asia communities.

These actual experiences added to the series of events that have been taking place in the East, not only at the end of World War II but before the last world conflict, tend to give us a clearer understanding of what is now facing us.

It is difficult to realize that these events were not fully comprehended by many authorities who were considered to be experts in far- and near-eastern affairs.

To place the blame on any individual or political party is not the answer, as all must share the responsibility. The real fault lies in our mistake of not knowing or recognizing the Asiatic conception of life, whether it be economic, political, or social. We know that we have an excellent authority in General MacArthur, who has had lifelong experience with Asia. MacArthur together with a few others who can be considered as experts in this matter, have been influential in convincing the Western World of the true state of affairs in that part of our globe.

The SPEAKER. Under previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBERHARTER] is recognized for 15 minutes.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, the Social Security Act was passed in 1935 after long and careful study by the Congress. In the present session we have given careful consideration to proposals to improve the old-age and survivors insurance provision of that act. Amendments improving the insurance provisions have been passed by both the Senate and House by overwhelming majorities. Other amendments also were adopted. One of these, the Knowland amendment, is a provision, added on the floor of the other body, which might substantially affect, not old-age and survivors insurance, but the unemployment compensation program. The bill is now in the committee of conference, where its ultimate content will be decided.

The unemployment compensation program has been in operation for 15 years. The Knowland amendment was considered by the Senate for less than 15 minutes. It has not been considered by the House at all, and no hearings on the amendment have been held by either the House or Senate. The House is entitled to know just what the effect of this amendment would be. In my opinion, the amendment is so ambiguous, and such scant consideration has been given to it, that no one can safely predict what its effect will be.

Under the Federal social-security statute as it now stands, no State law can be certified for offset against the Federal tax if the State law has been so changed that it no longer contains the safeguards enumerated in section 1603 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code. The Knowland amendment would delete the words "changed its law" and insert the words "amended its law." Does this mean that a change in the State law which is not the result of legislative action must be ignored? I do not have to remind this body that the interpretation given to a law by the administrative body which applies the law and by the courts which review that administrative action is a vital part of the law and cannot be ignored. The sponsor of this amendment has said on the floor of the Senate that its scope is very limited and that the changes it makes are more of a clarifying and procedural than of a substantive nature. He has stated that the amendment in no way affects the requirement of the Federal law that the standards enacted by Congress must be met before an offset against the Federal tax is granted. But, at the same time, the Senator stated that the purpose of the amendment was to make it clear that only State legislative action shall be deemed to change the State law. If the amendment means that the construction given to the law is to be ignored, then I could only conclude that the effect of the standards enacted by Congress may be seriously curtailed. These standards were enacted in 1935 to insure that credit against the Federal tax would be granted only if the law enacted by a State was a genuine unemployment-compensation law, contained provisions safeguarding the solvency of the fund collected to pay unemployment-compensation benefits, and insured that the fund would not be used to pay benefits contrary to basic standards set by the Congress. These standards are something of a guaranty to each State against unfair competition from other States, because they tend to insure that all will have laws of the same general type.

If the effect of the Knowland amendment is to encroach upon the standards which the Congress of the United States adopted after much deliberation and full consideration, I am sure that none of us favor the enactment of such legislation, at least without having an opportunity first to adequately consider the full significance of such an amendment.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I cite the deletion of the words "changed its law" and the insertion of the words "amended its law" as one example of the provisions of this amendment which might have far-reaching effect. Any change in the unemployment compensation provisions of the Social Security Act is entitled to the same detailed consideration as has been given to the other provisions of this bill. When we are dealing with a highly technical amendment in a highly technical field it is doubly essential that we adhere to orderly legislative process so that the full effect of a proposal can be ascertained. I hope the conference committee will not place its stamp of approval on an amendment on which we have not had the opportunity to hold hearings, and regarding which we have not had time to fully consider and weigh its effect.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. ZABLOCKI. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 5 minutes and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. ZABLOCKI. Mr. Speaker, recently a drama of industrial statesmanship was unfolded before the people of the State of Wisconsin and of the Nation. The signing of the 5-year labor contract between the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., the largest single employer in the State of Wisconsin and in my district, and Local No. 248, UAW-CIO, the largest union in the State, covering approximately 10,000 production employees at the West Allis, Wis., plant, and the ratification of this contract by the union membership, made history in the field of labor relations. Both the company and the union declare that the far-sighted provision of this fine agreement should assure harmonious labor relations and attitudes over the next 5 years.

I am certain, with this evidence of good faith, the give and take on the part of both management and union, that harmony will prevail in the Allis-Chalmers organization for more than 5 years. This agreement represents the maturest form of collective bargaining, worked out by a union whose development to this maturity is evidenced by the skill and understanding with which it achieved its goals. This maturity is likewise demonstrated by the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.'s realization of the need for long-range thinking on the part of American management, and for full recognition of the place at the bargaining table of the representatives of the employees.

The 5-year agreement is of incalculable benefit to the people of my district, to the people of metropolitan Milwaukee, to the people of the State, and to the people of the Nation. Indeed, the full significance of this fine example of labor-management statesmanship can only be seen when it is realized that the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., in peace and in war, is a key cog in our national industrial production.

I wish to congratulate and compliment on the floor of the House Mr. Walter Geist, the president of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., and his associates, who have arrived at this momentous decision. I wish to extend my congratulations and commend the efforts of the officials of local No. 248, UAW-CIO, who, under the able stewardship and leadership of its president, Mr. Charles Schultz, have proven at the Allis-Chalmers that well-managed unions can achieve their goals at the bargaining table by negotiation. My sincerest congratulations are also extended to the negotiating committees of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. and of local No. 248, UAW-CIO, which included Messrs. Harry Ladwig, E. W. Bonness, E. F. Ohrman, John Waddleton, Fred Worley, K. C. Flory, and Kenneht Haagensen on the part of the company, and Messrs. Charles Schultz, Joseph Glynn, Harvey Kitzman, Lawrence Carlstrom, Anthony Audia, Carl Sage, Richard Jones, Doug Bennett, and Ray Maxim, on the part of the union. This is truly a magnificent achievement on the part of both the company and the union.

Contract provisions include—

First. A unique mutual securities clause providing for a modified union shop similar in many respects to that at General Motors.

Second. A 3-cents per hour general wage increase effective immediately and another 3 cents at the beginning of the second year of the contract. At the end of the second year, the parties may continue the 3 cents per hour for each of the three remaining years, or either party may ask that the contract be opened for wage negotiations.

Additional wage adjustments for certain skilled occupations.

A cost-of-living formula providing an adjustment of 1 cent per hour for each 1.25 change in the Bureau of Labor Statistics cost of living index. Adjustments under the formula are to be made semiannually.

Creation of a joint study committee on rates of pay with a fund equal to 2 cents per hour per employee to be used for rate adjustments in the area of inequities.

Third. An increase in the group insurance minimum from $2,000 to $3,000 with the premium reduced from 60 cents per $1,000 per month to 45 cents.

Fourth. An amended vacation plan which provides a 3 weeks' vacation for employees with 15 or more years of continuous service.

Fifth. A previously-announced master pension plan offering $100 per month maximum pensions, including Federal benefits, to employees retiring at age 65 with 25 years of service. This plan covers employees represented by the UAW-CIO at West Allis; La Crosse, Wis.; Springfield, Ill.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Gadsden, Ala., plants.

Sixth. Grievance machinery changes providing for increased participation of union bargaining committeemen, on company time, and the international representative in grievance processing.

Seventh. The company agreed to continue to match employee contributions to the Mutual Aid Society on the basis of the increased health and accident insurance benefits made available to employees through the Mutual Aid Society earlier this year.

Eighth. Changes requested by the UAW in contract sections relating to discipline, seniority, and layoff procedures.

The contract may be reopened at the end of 2 years for negotiations only on wages and on the right of the arbitrator to modify discipline. A no-strike clause prohibits work stoppages except following a strike referendum during the one reopening period.

The mutual securities section provides financial and membership security for the union with the following union shop provisions:

First. Employees who are not now members of the union are not required to join.

Second. Present members of the union may resign during the period of five working days following the effective date of the agreement. But employees who do not so resign must thereafter remain members of the union and pay union dues and general assessments as a condition of employment.

Third. Each new employee must join the union within 90 days after hiring and pay the initiation fee, union dues and general assessments as a condition of employment.

A democratic processes section affords the following guaranties to employees:

First. Democratic processes within the union are assured with respect to elections of union officials and participation of members in the conduct of the affairs of the union. This provides a positive method whereby union members can prevent control of their union by a subversive group. The company agreed that such elections will be held on company time and premises and without loss of pay.

Second. The freedom of action of employees in relation to union activities is insured against any interference.

Third. Assurance against interference with the right to work is provided.

Fourth. In the event of a strike, employees are guaranteed a secret ballot vote referendum, which will be held on company premises during working hours at company expense.

The following statements, made after the contract was negotiated, illustrate why I believe that industrial peace will reign for more than 5 years at Allis-Chalmers:

Mr. Walter Geist, the president of Allis-Chalmers, said:

An agreement on a contract has been reached that marks a new era for our employees, the union, stockholders, and customers.

It is gratifying to learn that at the bargaining table there were mutual respect and natural, courteous consideration of the other fellow's position.

We believe that through the mutual securities clause and other contract provisions, we have taken a constructive approach in offering our contribution to industrial peace and uninterrupted production.

Mr. Charles Schultz, president of local No. 248, UAW-CIO, termed the contract—

The most outstanding agreement, insofar as personal security and union security are concerned, ever to be negotiated between the company and our local union.

We hope to prove that our local is worthy of the trust that the management has placed in us as demonstrated by this agreement.

Mr. Harvey Kitzman, UAW-CIO region 10, director, praised the new Allis-Chalmers contract won by local 248, UAW-CIO:

Most of us realize that it took a good union to win this contract. GM agreement served as an ice breaker, and the union took full advantage of the trend.

It is the first 5-year contract in the region.

Mr. John W. Livingston, vice president of the UAW-CIO and director of the agricultural-implement division, said that the agreement affords an opportunity for the building of mutual respect between the parties. I believe that it may be the foundation of a strong and lasting peace.

The escalator clause, based on the cost of living, plus the wage increase recognizing the annual improvement factor in production, can mean more and better goods will be available at lower cost. This serves as a bulwark to American labor and industry in our cold war economy.

It is in keeping with our system of free enterprise that workers who participate in the benefits of this contract will also be able to participate in an increasing standard of living.

With this kind of spirit on the part of both the union and the company, Allis-Chalmers cannot fail to continue to march toward ever-increasing industrial harmony.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. JACKSON of Washington (at the request of Mr. MANSFIELD) was given permission to extend his remarks and include several articles from various newspapers.

Mr. DINGELL (at the request of Mr. O'BRIEN of Michigan) was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include quotations in each.

Mr. WHITE of California asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a speech he made in California.

Mr. BOYKIN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a speech by Ben May.

Mr. SMITH of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and include extraneous matter.

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska asked and was given permission to extend his remarks on the subject of meat in the human diet.

Mr. BYRNES of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include an editorial.

Mr. MARTIN of Massachusetts asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include a speech by ex-Governor Landon before the Foreign Policy Association.

Mr. HORAN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks and include an editorial from the Country Gentleman.

Mr. McCORMACK (at the request of Mr. EBERHARTER) was given permission to extend his remarks and include a statement made by Mr. McCORMACK addressed to the fifty-third annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America.

Mr. WAGNER (at the request of Mr. ZABLOCKI) was given permission to extend his remarks and include an editorial from the Cincinnati Post.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 4 o'clock and 50 minutes p. m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until Monday, July 17, 1950, at 12 o'clock noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

1555. A letter from the Under Secretary of the Navy, transmitting a report of all claims paid pursuant to section 2673 of title 28, United States Code; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

1556. A communication from the President of the United States, transmitting supplemental estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1951 in the amount of $89,000,000 for the Department of State and the General Services Administration (H. Doc. No. 641); to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

1557. A letter from the Secretary of the Army, transmitting a letter from the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, dated February 28, 1949, submitting a report, together with accompanying papers and illustrations, on a review of reports on the Kansas River and tributaries, Colorado, Nebraska, and Kansas, made pursuant to the several congressional authorizations listed in the report (H. Doc. No. 642); to the Committee on Public Works and ordered to be printed, with two illustrations.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. BATES of Kentucky: Committee of conference. H. R. 8568. A bill making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District; without amendment (Rept. No. 2540). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. DAWSON: Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. S. 2018. An act to authorize advancements to and the reimbursement of certain agencies of the Treasury Department for services performed for other Government agencies, and for other purposes; with amendment (Rept. No. 2541). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DAWSON: Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. S. 2357. An act to amend the act of May 26, 1936, authorizing the withholding of compensation due Government personnel; without amendment (Rept. No. 2542). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DAWSON: Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. H. R. 8621. A bill to facilitate the settlement of the accounts of certain deceased civilian officers and employees of the Government; without amendment (Rept. No. 2543). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DAWSON: Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. H. R. 8662. A bill to provide for financing the operations of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Treasury Department, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2544). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DAWSON: Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. H. R. 9038. A bill to authorize the President to determine the form of the national budget and of departmental estimates, to modernize and simplify governmental accounting and auditing methods and procedures, and for other purposes; with amendment (Rept. No. 2556. Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. PETERSON: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 8975. A bill to amend the Synthetic Liquid Fuels Act, as amended; with amendment (Rept. No. 2557). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DOUGHTON: Committee on Ways and Means. House Joint Resolution 489. Joint resolution to permit articles imported from foreign countries for the purpose of exhibition at the Mid-Century International Exposition, Inc., New Orleans, La., to be admitted without payment of tariff, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept.

No. 2561). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. DOUGHTON: Committee on Ways and Means. House Joint Resolution 496. Joint resolution to permit articles imported from foreign countries for the purpose of exhibition at the International Food Exposition, Inc., Chicago, Ill., to be admitted without payment of tariff, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2562). Referred to the Committee on the Whole House on the State of the Union.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. Senate Concurrent Resolution 90. Concurrent resolution favoring the suspension of deportation of certain aliens; without amendment (Rept. No. 2545). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. Senate Concurrent Resolution 95. Concurrent resolution favoring the suspension of deportation of certain aliens; with amendment (Rept. No. 2546). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FELLOWS: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 6832. A bill for the relief of Choko Nishida; with amendment (Rept. No. 2547). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 7370. A bill for the relief of Kiyoko S. Barr and Harue Barr; with amendment (Rept. No. 2548). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GRAHAM: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 7919. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Yukiko Yoshii French; with amendment (Rept. No. 2549). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FEIGHAN: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8383. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Gerald Goodwin; without amendment (Rept. No. 2550). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FELLOWS: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8473. A bill for the relief of Kimiko Tomita; without amendment (Rept. No. 2551). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GRAHAM: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8558. A bill for the relief of Kimiko Yamaguchi; without amendment (Rept. No. 2552). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GOSSETT: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8684. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Yumiko Kawai Misanin and her daughter, Maria Mari Misanin; with amendment (Rept. No. 2553). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. FEIGHAN: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8742. A bill for the relief of Mrs. Tokiko Amano Roloson; without amendment (Rept. No. 2554). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GRAHAM: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 8826. A bill for the relief of Yaeko Nakajima; without amendment (Rept. No. 2555). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. WALTER: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 7563. A bill for the relief of Dr. Nicola Di Palma; with amendment (Rept. No. 2558). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. MORRIS: Committee on Public Lands. H. R. 6697. A bill authorizing the issuance of a patent in fee to Howard H. Moran; with amendment (Rept. No. 2559). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. PETERSON: Committee on Public Lands. House Joint Resolution 487. Joint resolution to confirm title in fee simple in Joshua Britton to certain lands in Jefferson County, Ill.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2560). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. PACE:

H. R. 9109. A bill to amend the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended; the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act; Public Law 74, Seventy-seventh Congress; the Agricultural Act of 1949; and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BRAMBLETT:

H. R. 9110. A bill to donate the Salinas Dam and Reservoir to the county or city of San Luis Obispo, Calif.; to the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments.

By Mr. GAMBLE:

H. R. 9111. A bill to incorporate the United States Olympic Association; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H. R. 9112. A bill to amend section 3 of the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946 in certain respects, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. WEICHEL:

H. R. 9113. A bill to prevent the shipment in interstate commerce of undersized fish; to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. CASE of New Jersey:

H. R. 9114. A bill to amend subchapter A, chapter 15, Internal Revenue Code, relating to cigarette tax, by exempting from taxation cigarettes purchased by veterans' organizations for distribution as gifts to hospitalized present or former members of the Armed Forces of the United States; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LYNCH:

H. R. 9115. A bill to incorporate the United States Olympic Association; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BRYSON:

H. R. 9116. A bill to amend certain titles of the United States Code, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. FORAND:

H. R. 9117. A bill to amend section 3268 (a), Internal Revenue Code, relating to tax on bowling alleys and billiard and pool tables, by tax-exempting certain veterans' organizations and their local posts or chapters; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

H. R. 9118. A bill to amend section 22 (b) (2), Internal Revenue Code, act of February 10, 1939 (53 Stat. 10), relating to income-tax exemption of certain employees, by including certain veterans' organization employees, and others; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

H. R. 9119. A bill to amend subchapter A, chapter 15, Internal Revenue Code, relating to tax on cigarettes, by tax-exempting cigarettes purchased by veterans' organizations for distribution to hospitalized veterans and servicemen; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. EBERHARTER:

H. R. 9120. A bill to amend section 322 (b) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WALTER:

H. R. 9121. A bill to amend the War Contractors Relief Act with respect to the definition of a request for relief, to authorize consideration and settlement of certain claims of subcontractors, to provide reasonable compensation for the services of partners and proprietors, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DEANE:

H. Con. Res. 233. Concurrent resolution increasing the compensation of employees of the Government Printing Office engaged in the preparation of the indexes of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD; to the Committee on House Administration.

By Mr. JUDD:

H. Con. Res. 234. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific Pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. JAVITS:

H. Con. Res. 235. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific Pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. EATON:

H. Con. Res. 236. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. FULTON:

H. Con. Res. 237. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. LODGE:

H. Con. Res. 238. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. MERROW:

H. Con. Res. 239. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific Pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. RIBICOFF:

H. Con. Res. 240. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific Pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. SMATHERS:

H. Con. Res. 241. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific Pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. ZABLOCKI:

H. Con. Res. 242. Concurrent resolution to favor a Pacific Pact and United States participation therein; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 1 of rule XXII, private bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. HOFFMAN of Michigan:

H. R. 9122. A bill for the relief of Miss Maria Sarandrea; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LANE:

H. R. 9123. A bill for the relief of Miyoko Hori; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. NORRELL:

H. R. 9124. A bill for the relief of Mitsuko Gotou and her minor son; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. RAMSAY:

H. R. 9125. A bill for the relief of Ciro Mazzella; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mrs. ST. GEORGE:

H. R. 9126. A bill for the relief of Guiseppe Biolzi; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. THOMAS:

H. R. 9127. A bill for the relief of John C. Crossman; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of rule XXII,

2258. The SPEAKER presented a petition of Hebden Porteus, secretary, Hawaii State Constitutional Convention, Honolulu, T. H., requesting the Postmaster General, upon the admission of Hawaii as a State of the Union, to cause a 6-cent air-mail stamp to be designed, embodying therein the proposed seal of the State of Hawaii and commemorating the admission of Hawaii into the Federal Union, which was referred to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

SENATE

FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1950

(Legislative day of Saturday, July 1, 1950)

The Senate met at 12 o'clock meridian, on the expiration of the recess.

The Chaplain, Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Father of all mercies, in the toils and troubles of time Thou hast set vistas of eternity in our hearts. Save us, we beseech Thee, from the supreme hypocrisy of making this holy moment of communion with the unseen and eternal but a conventional gesture of unfelt piety. At this high altar of the national life preserve us from praying with our lips only and not with our hearts and minds.

As we come in a high hour of human destiny solemnized by the tangled tragedy in which all human life is caught, help us in these trying days, rising above all that is base and small, to work together in glad and eager harmony for the honor, safety, and welfare of our Nation and of all the peoples of this stricken earth who unite in mutual good will with a ruling passion to open the gates of a new life for all mankind. We ask it in the dear Redeemer's name. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

On request of Mr. MAYBANK, and by unanimous consent, the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of Thursday, July 13, 1950, was dispensed with.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT—APPROVAL OF BILLS

Messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Miller, one of his secretaries, and he announced that on July 13, 1950, the President had approved and signed the act (S. 2596) relating to education or training of veterans under title II of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act (Public Law 346, 79th Cong., June 22, 1944).

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had passed the following bills, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H. R. 7670. An act to regulate the height, exterior design, and construction of private and semipublic buildings in the Georgetown area of the National Capital;

H. R. 7940. An act to provide financial assistance for local educational agencies in areas affected by Federal activities, and for other purposes;

H. R. 8710. An act to provide for the improvement of stadium facilities at the Eastern Senior High School in the District of Columbia; and

H. R. 8909. An act to authorize the District of Columbia government to establish an Office of Civil Defense, and for other purposes.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

On request of Mr. MAYBANK, and by unanimous consent, Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina was excused from attendance on the sessions of the Senate through Tuesday of next week.

On his own request, and by unanimous consent, Mr. MUNDT was excused from attendance on the sessions of the Senate from the end of the session today until 1 o'clock on Tuesday, July 18.

On request of Mr. HILL, and by unanimous consent, Mr. SPARKMAN was excused from attendance on the sessions of the Senate on Monday and Tuesday of next week, because of official business.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. MAYBANK. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The roll was called, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Anderson	Hendrickson	Maybank
Brewster	Hickenlooper	Millikin
Bridges	Hill	Morse
Butler	Hoey	Mundt
Byrd	Holland	Murray
Capehart	Humphrey	Neely
Chapman	Ives	O'Conor
Chavez	Jenner	O'Mahoney
Connally	Johnson, Colo.	Pepper
Cordon	Johnson, Tex.	Robertson
Darby	Kem	Russell
Donnell	Kerr	Saltonstall
Douglas	Kilgore	Schoeppel
Dworshak	Langer	Smith, Maine
Eastland	Leahy	Smith, N. J.
Ecton	Lehman	Sparkman
Ellender	Lucas	Stennis
Ferguson	McCarran	Thomas, Okla.
Frear	McCarthy	Thomas, Utah
Fulbright	McClellan	Thye
George	McFarland	Tydings
Gillette	McKellar	Watkins
Graham	McMahon	Wherry
Green	Magnuson	Wiley
Gurney	Malone	Williams
Hayden	Martin	Young

Mr. LUCAS. I announce that the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. BENTON] and the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. MYERS] are absent on public business.

The Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HUNT] and the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. KEFAUVER] are absent on official committee business.

The Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR], and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. WITHERS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the Senator from Vermont [Mr. AIKEN], the Senator from Washington [Mr. CAIN], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY], and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The junior Senator from Ohio [Mr. BRICKER], the Senator from Vermont [Mr. FLANDERS], the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE], and the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. TAFT] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from California [Mr. KNOWLAND] is absent because of illness in his family.

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present.

TRANSACTION OF ROUTINE BUSINESS

By unanimous consent, the following routine business was transacted:

DISPOSITION OF EXECUTIVE PAPERS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the Archivist of the United States, transmitting, pursuant to law, a list of papers and documents on the files of several departments and agencies of the Government which are not needed in the conduct of business and have no permanent value or historical interest, and requesting action looking to their disposition, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to a Joint Select Committee on the Disposition of Papers in the Executive Departments.

The VICE PRESIDENT appointed Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina and Mr. LANGER members of the committee on the part of the Senate.

COMPULSORY HEALTH INSURANCE—RESOLUTION OF MARYLAND STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Mr. O'CONOR. Mr. President, comprising as it does in its membership, outstanding practicing attorneys in the State, the Maryland State Bar Association, in its formal pronouncements, voices the considered opinion of a great number of well-informed, civic-minded, and patriotic leaders of our citizenry.

At this year's annual convention, held in Atlantic City, N. J., on June 29, 30, and July 1, the association went formally on record in opposition to the adoption of a program of compulsory health insurance, thus adding to the weight of public expressions on this point from within Maryland, which have been almost too numerous to recall.

In an accompanying letter from the chairman of the committee on laws the views of the association and of the committee were expressed as opposed to the adoption of a program dealing with this general subject. In this connection, I think it timely to reiterate my oft-declared opposition to socialized medicine, in the conviction that American medical knowledge and ingenuity can better assure to the people of our country adequate medical services and facilities than could possibly be had under Federal regimentation.

I present the resolution for appropriate reference, and ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Whereas the President of the United States has recommended to the Congress the adoption of a health program which includes, among other things, provision for compulsory health insurance, sometimes referred to as socialized medicine; and

Whereas the Congress of the United States has such recommendation under consideration; and

Whereas the Maryland State Bar Association in convention assembled has considered such proposal; and

Whereas the medical profession of the United States has, through private practice, established the world's highest standards for medical care and has provided a larger number of doctors per capita than any other nation; and

Whereas the adoption of such a program would destroy the present relationship between doctor and patient and would create a need for another governmental bureau for the administration of such program with resulting increase in the Federal budget; and

Whereas the present system of medical care and the rapid increase in voluntary health insurance and hospitalization plans is providing, in a democratic way, better medical service to the people of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Maryland State Bar Association declares that it is opposed to the adoption of a program of compulsory health insurance, sometimes referred to as socialized medicine, by the Congress of the United States; and it is further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to each member of the Maryland delegation in the Congress of the United States.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. HOLLAND, from the Committee on Public Works:

H. R. 7722. A bill to provide for the acquisition and preservation, as a part of the National Capital Parks System, of the Old Stone House in the District of Columbia; with an amendment (Rept. No. 2043).

By Mr. McCLELLAN, from the Committee on Public Works:

H. R. 7941. A bill to amend and supplement the Federal-Aid Road Act, approved July 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 355), as amended and supplemented, to authorize appropriations for continuing the construction of highways, and for other purposes; with an amendment (Rept. No. 2044).

By Mr. McCARRAN, from the Committee on the Judiciary:

H. R. 4601. A bill for the relief of Jeannette Passayanni-Copodistria; without amendment (Rept. No. 2045).

INVESTIGATION OF CAUSE OF INCREASING UNEMPLOYMENT IN COAL AND OTHER INDUSTRIES—REPORT OF A COMMITTEE (REPT. NO. 2042)

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, in pursuance of Senate Resolution 274, I present from the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare a report of an investigation of the cause of increasing unemployment in the coal, oil, railroad, and certain other industries, together with a statement of the supplemental views of the Senator from Ohio [Mr. TAFT]. I ask that both the report and the statement be printed.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The report together with the supplemental views will be received and printed as requested by the Senator from West Virginia.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PERSONNEL AND FUNDS

Pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eighteth Congress, first session, the following reports were received by the Secretary of the Senate:

JULY 13, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EXPENDITURES IN THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eighteth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Walter L. Reynolds, chief clerk and staff director	$10,846.00	$5,422.98
Ann M. Grickis, assistant chief clerk	5,979.34	2,989.62
Mollie Jo McCarthy (Mrs.), clerical assistant	4,154.38	2,077.14
Emily I. Tennyson (Mrs.), clerical assistant	4,154.38	2,077.14
Velda Blanche Holder, clerical assistant	4,067.49	2,033.70
Ray Barnett, clerical assistant	3,719.87	1,816.44
Glenn K. Shriver, professional staff member	9,102.55	4,551.24
Miles Scull, Jr., professional staff member	9,683.21	4,827.75
Herman C. Loeffler, professional staff member	10,846.00	5,422.98
Brewster H. Marshall (terminated Feb. 15, 1950), professional staff member	8,024.17	1,003.02
Thomas A. Sappington (from Feb. 16, 1950), professional staff member	8,024.17	3,009.06

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure (81st Cong.)	$10,000.00
Amount expended to date	4,387.81
Balance unexpended	5,612.19

JOHN L. McCLELLAN,
Chairman.

JULY 13, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EXPENDITURES IN THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

SUBCOMMITTEE ON RELATIONS WITH INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS (S. RES. 51)

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eighteth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to February 15, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Eli E. Nobleman, counsel	$8,521.88	$1,065.22
Mrs. Katharine M. Ellis, secretary	3,980.56	497.57

Total funds authorized or appropriated for subcommittee expenditure under S. Res 51	$18,000.00
Total amount expended	13,100.82
Balance unexpended	4,899.18

HERBERT R. O'CONOR,
Chairman, Subcommittee.

JULY 13, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EXPENDITURES IN THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

SUBCOMMITTEE ON RELATIONS WITH INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS (S. RES. 205)

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eighteth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from February 16, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Eli E. Nobleman, counsel	$9,019.59	$3,382.33
Katharine M. Ellis (Mrs.), secretary	3,980.56	1,492.69

Funds authorized or appropriated for subcommittee expenditure under S. Res. 205	$18,000.00
Amount expended	4,889.94
Balance unexpended	13,110.06

HERBERT R. O'CONOR,
Chairman, Subcommittee.

JULY 13, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EXPENDITURES IN THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

SUBCOMMITTEE ON INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS (S. RES. 51)

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eighteth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to February 15, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Paul H. Menk, Jr, staff member	$9,019.59	$1,127.44
Mary A. Feiman (from Jan. 24, 1950), clerical assistant	3,806.78	232.63

Total funds authorized or appropriated for subcommittee expenditure under S. Res. 51	$15,000.00
Total amount expended	9,313.77
Balance unexpended	5,686.23

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY,
Chairman, Subcommittee.

JULY 13, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON EXPENDITURES IN THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

SUBCOMMITTEE ON INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS (S. RES. 205)

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eighteth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from February 16, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Paul H. Menk, Jr., staff member	$9,019.59	$3,382.34
Mary A. Feiman, clerical assistant	3,806.78	1,427.53

Funds authorized or appropriated for subcommittee expenditure under S. Res. 205	$15,000.00
Amount expended	5,039.70
Balance unexpended	9,960.30

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY,
Chairman, Subcommittee.

JULY 15, 1950.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned committee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it and its subcommittees for the period from January 1, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it and its subcommittees:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Francis O. Wilcox, chief of staff	$10,846.00	$5,422.98
Thorsten V. Kalijarvi, staff associate	10,846.00	5,422.98
Carl M. Marcy, staff associate (from Feb. 1, 1950)	10,846.00	4,519.15
C. C. O'Day, clerk	9,351.40	4,675.68
Pat M. Holt, associate clerk (from Feb. 15, 1950)	9,019.59	3,407.39
Emmett M. O'Grady, assistant clerk	5,110.31	2,555.12
Isabel M. Smith, assistant clerk	4,588.89	2,294.40
Morella R. Hansen, assistant clerk:
Jan. 1 to Apr. 15	4,241.29	2,183.38
Apr. 15 to June 30	4,588.89

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure during 81st Cong	$20,000.00
Amount expended during 81st Cong	15,183.07
Balance unexpended June 30, 1950	4,816.93

TOM CONNALLY,
Chairman.

JULY 15, 1950.

REPORT OF SUBCOMMITTEE OF THE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS, UNDER AUTHORIZATION OF SENATE RESOLUTION 231 AND SENATE RESOLUTION 237

To the SECRETARY OF THE SENATE:

The above-mentioned subcommittee, pursuant to Senate Resolution 123, Eightieth Congress, first session, submits the following report showing the name, profession, and total salary of each person employed by it for the period from March 15, 1950, to June 30, 1950, together with the funds available to and expended by it:

Name and profession	Rate of gross annual salary	Total salary received
Margaret B. Buchholz, clerk	$4,502.00	$930.08
Bernice J. Farmer, assistant clerk	3,806.78	31.72
Robert L. Heald, assistant counsel	9,683.21	1,990.42
Helen Karpowicz, assistant clerk	3,806.78	919.96
William J. Klima, assistant counsel	9,683.21	2,851.15
Edward P. Morgan, chief counsel	10,846.00	3,193.53
Robert Morris, assistant counsel	9,683.21	2,151.81
Lyon L. Tyler, Jr., assistant counsel	9,683.21	2,824.25

Funds authorized or appropriated for committee expenditure during 81st Cong	$35,000.00
Amount expended during 81st Cong	19,492.47
Balance unexpended June 30, 1950	15,507.53

M. E. TYDINGS,
Chairman.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Bills were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred, as follows:

By Mr. GREEN:

S. 3918. A bill for the relief of Richard F. Harvey; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HUMPHREY:

S. 3919. A bill for the relief of Teresa Leopando Lucero and her minor son, Luis Vicente Lucero; and

S. 3920. A bill for the relief of Rev. Thomas K. Sewall; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. KILGORE:

S. 3921. A bill to provide for the temporary appointment of referees in bankruptcy, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LANGER:

S. 3922. A bill to amend title VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma:

S. 3923. A bill for the relief of Anthony Koutroulis, Katena Koutroulis, his wife, and their children, Paul Koutroulis, Thomas Koutroulis, James Koutroulis, and George Koutroulis; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS—AMENDMENT

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma (for himself and Mr. KERR) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them, jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. MAGNUSON (for himself, Mr. BENTON, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. GREEN, Mr. HUMPHREY, Mr. IVES, Mr. LANGER, Mr. LEHMAN, Mr. PEPPER, Mr. MURRAY, Mr. NEELY, Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma, Mr. THOMAS of Utah, and Mr. SPARKMAN) submitted amendments intended to be proposed by them jointly, to House bill 7786, supra, which were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred as indicated:

H. R. 7940. An act to provide financial assistance for local educational agencies in areas affected by Federal activities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

H. R. 7670. An act to regulate the height, exterior design, and construction of private and semipublic buildings in the Georgetown area of the National Capital;

H. R. 8710. An act to provide for the improvement of stadium facilities at the Eastern Senior High School in the District of Columbia; and

H. R. 8909. An act to authorize the District of Columbia government to establish an Office of Civil Defense, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF COLOR TELEVISION (S. DOC. NO. 197)

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed as a Senate document, a report, with illustrations, entitled "The Present Status of Color Television," prepared by a Special Advisory Committee of the Bureau of Standards, under the direction of Dr. Edward U. Condon.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Colorado? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

A CALL TO REVITALIZE THE GOP—EDITORIAL FROM THE BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

[Mr. HENDRICKSON asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an editorial entitled "A Call To Revitalize the GOP," published in the July 10 issue of the Buffalo Evening News, which appears in the Appendix.]

MEDICAL CARE FURNISHED BY PRIVATE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE—ESSAY BY MISS THELMA SIPE

[Mr. MARTIN asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an essay on the subject Why the Private Practice of Medicine Furnishes This Country With the Finest Medical Care, written by Miss Thelma Sipe, of Oakland, Pa., which appears in the Appendix.]

RACE RELATIONS—LETTER BY F. H. MEBANE

[Mr. HOEY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD a letter written by F. H. Mebane, of Washington, D. C., addressed to the editor of the Washington Evening Star, and published in that newspaper under the heading "FEPC danger," which appears in the Appendix.]

THE CIVIL-RIGHTS PROBLEM—ARTICLE BY DAVID LAWRENCE

[Mr. HOEY asked and obtained leave to have printed in the RECORD an article on the civil-rights problem, written by David Lawrence, and published in the Washington Evening Star of July 13, 1950, which appears in the Appendix.]

THE WAR CRISIS IN KOREA—EDITORIAL FROM THE WASHINGTON EVENING STAR

Mr. HENDRICKSON. Mr. President, throughout America today there is grave concern in respect to the war crisis in Korea. In this connection, a thought-provoking editorial which appeared in the Washington Evening Star on yesterday offers a very pertinent suggestion, namely, that "the President should tell the people the truth about this business." I commend its reading to every Member of this body, and to that end I ask unanimous consent to have it inserted at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WHAT'S WHAT IN KOREA

One week ago today General MacArthur's headquarters announced in a formal communiqué that the situation of the American ground forces in Korea "is not serious in any way."

An official Army spokesman said at the same time that "our forces now hold a strong defensive position." And at his press conference last Thursday the President declared he was confident the situation will work out all right.

Since those cheery statements, our forces in Korea have met with one reverse after another. From that "strong defensive position" of a week ago they have been driven back of the Kum River. Where the line will be a week from now is something that is not pleasant to think about. After listening to a full report from General Bradley, Chairman TYDINGS of the Senate Armed Services Committee told reporters on Tuesday: "I don't think things are desperate, but they are very serious and it would be a disservice to our people not to say so."

In the light of this, what possible justification could there have been for the announcement last week that the situation was not serious in any way? In the Star's judgment, as it has said before, the President should tell the people the truth about this business. It has been officially announced that General Bradley gave the Senate committee an account of what has taken place in Korea from the beginning, what is contemplated for the immediate future, and what the plans are to meet certain possible contingencies.

Obviously, much of this touches upon military security and cannot be made public. But it is equally obvious that the substance of the picture can be given to the people without trespassing upon security, and there certainly is no excuse for official announcements that are misleading if not actually false. The people will have to bear the brunt of whatever lies ahead and they should not be kept unnecessarily in ignorance of the facts. It is the President's responsibility to inform them.

ISSUES OF THE WISCONSIN 1950 CAMPAIGN—PEACE AND FREEDOM

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a statement which I have prepared with reference to the Wisconsin political campaign may be printed in the body of the RECORD.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR WILEY

ISSUES OF THE WISCONSIN 1950 CAMPAIGN—PEACE AND FREEDOM

On Tuesday, September 19, Wisconsin will hold its primary election for United States, State, and other officers. I will indeed be grateful for the continuing support of Wisconsinites who have kindly pledged their help in my primary fight and in the November election battle.

This, after all, is not just the battle of any one individual—it is your battle—the battle of 3,500,000 Badgers for peace and freedom.

THANKS TO SIGNERS AND CIRCULATORS OF NOMINATION PAPERS

Right now I should like to express my sincere appreciation to the tens of thousands of Wisconsinites who graciously signed my official nomination papers for another term in the United States Senate.

If it were humanly possible, I would write individual letters to each of you expressing my gratification at your wonderful response. I would like, too, to say a word of particular thanks to the many industrious Badgers who circulated these nomination sheets—men and women who took time out from office duties, from farm tasks, from housekeeping, from a thousand occupations in order to collect the necessary 20 signatures on each nomination sheet, and have the papers notarized and forwarded to me.

Every American realizes today that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. The American Government, your Government, is only as strong as its people's interest in it. By the determined action of these thousands of Wisconsinites, you have evidenced that you are interested in the maintenance of good government in our State and Nation.

WE MUST SHOW THAT WE LOVE FREEDOM FOR WHICH OUR MEN ARE DYING

The current war crisis in Korea gives a particular urgency to the need for maintenance of a strong check and balance in the United States Congress. Voters want a strong Senate and a strong House of Representatives, an independent Congress which will not serve as a rubber stamp to the President, and which will not write him a blank check.

American boys are dying in muddy fox holes in Korea, dying for the cause of world freedom, and it is essential, therefore, that we get the largest possible vote turn-out in September and then in November so as to evidence that we here on the home front cherish the freedom for which our heroes are sacrificing so much.

The American people know that the bungling policy of appeasement of Red Russia has led us to this terrible situation. The American people are disgusted at the atrocious series of failures and blunders which resulted in our men being unprepared for the battle in the Far East. We didn't have the planes, we didn't have the tanks, we didn't have the artillery, we didn't have the intelligence service, we didn't have the ships, we didn't have the marines. The only thing we did have was the guts of the American fighting man who was willing to take a stand with his rifle against tanks, with his heart against the onslaught of the merciless aggressor.

WE MUST TRY TO PREVENT ATOMIC WAR

My paramount aim will, of course, be to try to localize the Korean crisis, to try to put out the fire where it is rather than seeing it spread. Countless Wisconsinites have written to me saying in effect:

"Senator WILEY, we recall your efforts for peace. We know that for many years, you have fought for a Cabinet Department of Peace in the United States Government. We know therefore that you will continue to do everything you can to help prevent a third terrible world war."

Yes, I for one will indeed do all I can to spare the lives of our sons and of Europe and Asia's sons from global war.

Meanwhile, however, we must be adequate to the challenges on the home front.

PEOPLE WILL FIGHT BACK AGAINST THE LABOR CZARS

The November United States Senate election will determine whether the people of Wisconsin will rule or whether a handful of autocratic, power-hungry labor czars will dictate to the Badger State. These ruthless labor czars or labor bigsters have handchosen their candidates, steam-rollered them through trumped-up conventions and meetings. These labor czars have high-pressured rank-and-file workers into making so-called voluntary contributions of $1 and $2 to defeat their senior Senator.

This isn't the first such effort of the labor Fuehrers. They tried this in 1944. They spent hundreds of thousands of dollars of the hard-earned savings of Wisconsin labor. They printed hundreds of thousands of smeary pieces of hate literature. But the rank and file workers of Wisconsin knew that when they entered the ballot booth, they were free men. They did not listen to the orders of the labor czars of Wisconsin. The rank and file workers voted to maintain our free birthright. They know that I have been a laboring man all my life, that for over 34 years I have owned a dairy farm which my father owned before me; that I have worked as a mill hand, house painter, carpenter, cub reporter, insurance salesman, attorney, that my heart and soul are dedicated to the interests of Mr. and Mrs. Average Man—the interest of the general welfare.

Which will it be? The labor czars whose goons recently in Eau Claire threatened to beat up and smash the skulls of supporters of other candidates—the labor czars or the honest American people? Which will it be? Every single vote counts in this election and in the primary. I know that I can count on the people of Wisconsin to maintain their birthright.

The Republican ticket in Wisconsin is, I humbly believe, a ticket of which our party and any independent voter may be proud.

I personally am grateful for the official unanimous endorsement of the Republican State Convention held in June. I hope to be worthy of the great honor which the party of our State has conferred on me in thrice supporting me for the high office of United States Senator.

ELECTION BATTLE OF IDEAS WILL RAGE EVERYWHERE

As my friends and supporters know, the battle has just begun insofar as the November campaign is concerned. From here on the election battle will rage in every home, in every office, in every factory, on every farm, in every precinct, in every ward, in every city, in every county, in every district, and every region of our State. Wherever two individuals contact one another and discuss political affairs, wherever individuals pick up newspapers, wherever individuals work or play, or eat, that is where the election battle will rage—a battle for the minds of men and women. Lies cannot win in Wisconsin.

CONVEYING THE TRUTH ABOUT CANDIDATES

It is up to Americans who believe in constitutional government, in economical government, in sound government, to help fight the battle by spreading the truth about their candidates, not only for the office of United States Senator, but for the office of Member of the House of Representatives, for the office of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, State treasurer, members of the Wisconsin senate, members of the Wisconsin assembly, and so on down the line to important county and local offices.

It is up to Americans who believe in good government to stand up and be counted, to put posters in their windows, stickers on their cars, pamphlets in the mail boxes of their fellow apartment house dwellers, literature in the mails. It is up to them to make telephone calls, write letters and postal cards, in order to fight for the free system which they hold dear.

This election campaign will not be won on the basis of "Let George do it." It will not be won by the next fellow. It will be won by you, yourself, speaking to your next door neighbor, speaking to your office associates, to the stenographer, to the mailman, to the barber, the butcher, candy store man, the groceryman, to the druggist, speaking to your customers, to your friends, and to your acquaintances.

These are as Thomas Paine wrote over 175 years ago, "times that try men's souls." These are times when the "summer soldier" and the "sunshine patriot" shrink from their obligations, but the alert citizen, the vigilant citizen, will stand up and be counted on behalf of good government.

THE DEAR PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH YOU AND I FIGHT

The election battle in November is not just for any single individual for United States Senator or Congressman. Rather it is for the principles for which we stand:

The principle of sound labor relations.

The principle of economical American government.

The principle of promotion of the system of private initiative.

The principle of equitable tax burdens among our citizens.

The principle of nonappeasing foreign relations.

The principle of an effective farm program.

The principle of fairness to the consumer.

The principle of real conservation of resources.

For these principles we, you and I, will take our stand for God and country.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, as I understand, the unfinished business is consideration of the appropriation bill, and that this morning we shall begin with chapter IV, dealing with the Treasury and Post Office Departments.

The VICE PRESIDENT. That is correct. The Secretary will state the next amendment.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Chapter IV—Treasury and Post Office Departments—Title I—Treasury Department—Office of Administrative Services—Salaries," on page 107, line 5, after the word "thereof", to strike out "$1,160,000" and insert "$1,207,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, are we discussing the amendment on page 107, line 5?

Mr. MAYBANK. We had not started to discuss anything. I have a short statement which I wish to make first.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, other amendments went through with such rapidity yesterday that I wanted to be prepared today.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I assure the Senator from Illinois that so far as I am concerned, he will have ample opportunity to discuss each amendment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk has stated the first amendment in chapter IV of the bill.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, at this time I wish to express my sincere appreciation to all members of my subcommittee, for their attendance at meetings and their earnest efforts toward economy. As the report shows, the full committee approved the subcommittee's proposal to sustain the House figure for Post Office Department appropriations, and to allow only a small increase—about 1 percent—over the House allowance in certain appropriations for the Treasury Department. The subcommittee took more than 550 pages of testimony covering every item in the bill, between the period January 25 and March 7, 1950. The members of the subcommittee, of which I am chairman, are the Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN], the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KILGORE], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. MCCLELLAN], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. MCKELLAR], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from Virginia [Mr. ROBERTSON], the Senator from Oregon [Mr. CORDON], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES], the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL], and the Senator from California [Mr. KNOWLAND].

Also, on Post Office items, the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], and the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. LANGER].

This chapter provides a total sum of $2,760,305,360 in cash appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Department's 1951 operating expenses. This sum is only $6,200,360 over the House allowance, is $53,073,740 under the budget estimates, and only $149,608,360 over the 1950 appropriations, and the increase is related only to Treasury appropriations. The committee approved the House recommendation for the Post Office Department, except to delete the postal deficiency language limitation which placed a ceiling on the amount payable from general funds of the Treasury.

As to the $6,200,360 increase recommended for the Treasury items, over 85 percent of the amount is in two items, namely, $3,964,000 to defray the costs for replacing six Coast Guard aircraft, which amount, added to the House allowance of $8,665,000, will provide $12,629,000, the budget estimate for replacing 29 aircraft; $1,335,000 for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, of which $900,000 is to meet wage-board increases granted under law to unclassified employees, and $435,000 to print urgently needed currency.

The remaining 15 percent concerned, in the main, the following items: $306,360 for the Customs Service, which will provide $148,860 to retain the 1950 personnel strength, and $157,500 to fill about 45 of the 93 new positions requested to cope with the increased workload of 6 percent in imports over the 1949 level, and an additional 10 percent anticipated in 1951, and an increase of about 10 percent in receipts over 1950. Records show that $416,719,146 was collected between July 1, 1949, and June 27 in the 1950 fiscal year, as compared to $379,316,866 for the same period in the prior year; $158,000 for the Bureau of Narcotics, which will permit the employment of 8 new agents in addition to the House allowance of 4, and will restore to $150,000 the estimate for purchase of much needed evidence; $150,000 for the Secret Service, which will permit the filling of about 19 of the 25 positions reduced by the House, and will provide additional funds for other obligations, all urgently needed to help reduce the huge backlog of over 19,000 pending cases.

The committee approved the House figure, which allowed 1,000 more enforcement agents, making a total of 7,000 since 1949, and $1,000,000 for the Reserve training program in the Coast Guard.

SHIPMENTS OF BRITISH GASOLINE AND OILS TO CHINA—SUPPORT OF UNITED NATIONS IN KOREAN WAR

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, a special dispatch to the New York Times, dated July 13, states:

Sale of British gasoline and oils from here to China is booming as a result of the suspension of petroleum exports to Communist China by local United States companies.

At the behest of the State Department Socony and Caltex shut down completely on the supply of petroleum products to the China mainland early this month.

London decided that the British Shell agencies, which with Socony and Caltex comprise the big three of the Far East oil business, would not be required to follow suit.

The British Asiatic Petroleum Co. here not only is now filling its own normal quota of exports to China but also is moving into the gap left by the elimination of United States supplies. Communist government agencies in China are clamoring for maximum cargoes and local middlemen as well are buying up gasoline and oil wherever they can for profitable resale to mainland China.

The dispatch proceeds:

With no imports coming in to convert into cash, these representatives may have to depend on the home office for remittances to keep going. The Communists have refused exit permits and the right to make Chinese staff cuts in keeping with the reduced business.

Mr. President, I ask, how long are we to continue to supply funds to ECA countries, the basic reason and foundation for which is to stop the expansion of communism, but at the same time permit those countries to furnish strategic materials to Red China, which in turn, no doubt filters them to the very countries which are fighting our soldiers on the Korean front? I ask that question.

I expect to make some further observations upon this subject when the item providing appropriations for the ECA comes before the Senate for consideration.

Mr. President, the expansion of communism cannot be stopped by appeasing communism in China while at the same time we are fighting a war against Red Communists in Korea. If we are right in what we are doing in Korea, we ought to see to it that the countries which are receiving aid from us do not ship strategic materials to the enemy, at the fighting line, to be used by the enemy to kill American boys. That is what is happening this very morning.

Another item was published today in the Baltimore Sun which interests me. It is an Associated Press dispatch from London, as follows:

Government sources reported today Britain will try to stay out of the ground fighting in Korea as long as she can.

The Government's view was said to be that Britain already is making a big contribution to western security in the Far East by holding the Malayan and Hong Kong sectors of the western line in Asia.

Britain, they said, has neither offered nor been asked by the United States to send ground forces to Korea.

I ask unanimous consent that the two articles from which I have read may be printed in the RECORD at this point as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the New York Times of July 14, 1950]

BRITISH OIL SALES TO RED CHINA BOOM—UNITED STATES BAN AIDS SHELL CONCERN, BUT PEIPING STILL GETS LESS THAN IT DID MONTH AGO

HONG KONG, July 13.—Sale of British gasoline and oils from here to China is booming as a result of the suspension of petroleum exports to Communist China by local United States companies.

At the behest of the State Department Socony and Caltex shut down completely on the supply of petroleum products to the China mainland early this month.

London decided that the British Shell agencies, which with Socony and Caltex comprise the big three of the Far East oil business, would not be required to follow suit.

The British Asiatic Petroleum Co. here not only is now filling its own normal quota of exports to China but also is moving into the gap left by the elimination of United States supplies. Communist Government agencies in China are clamoring for maximum cargos and local middlemen as well are buying up gasoline and oil wherever they can for profitable resale to mainland China. The British company is abiding by the Anglo-United States agreement not to sell aviation fuels to the Chinese mainland. The only gasoline that is known to have gone to the mainland through here recently resulted from a deal made in a South American country.

Before this month's shutdown of American sales Socony, Caltex, and Asiatic Petroleum were sending to the Chinese mainland about 12 percent of the amounts of gasoline and oil sold to China in pre-Communist days. It was considered that this took care of restricted civilian needs and involved the sale of about 2,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 50,000 barrels of Diesel oil monthly.

Asiatic Petroleum at present is not in a position to take over the business dropped by the United States companies. The Chinese mainland, consequently, is receiving considerably less than a month ago, but the fear in American quarters here is that whatever amounts are acquired may go either to the Chinese Communists or the North Korean military machine. One aspect of the situation that is worrying Socony and Caltex is the position of their representatives in Shanghai. Three Socony and four Caltex American employees are being held by the Communists as virtual hostages. Delivery of oil has been one of the means of easing Communist pressure and of paying the Chinese staff and other expenses.

With no imports coming in to convert into cash these representatives may have to depend on the home office for remittances to keep going. The Communists have refused exit permits and the right to make Chinese staff cuts in keeping with the reduced business.

[From the Baltimore Sun of July 13, 1950]

FEELS TROOPS ARE NEEDED IN OTHER AREAS—BUT GOVERNMENT WOULD REVIEW POLICY IF UNITED STATES SENT AN SOS

LONDON, July 12.—Government sources reported today Britain will try to stay out of the ground fighting in Korea as long as she can.

The Government's view was said to be that Britain already is making a big contribution to western security in the Far East by holding the Malayan and Hong Kong sectors of the western line in Asia.

Britain, they said, has neither offered nor been asked by the United States to send ground forces to Korea.

The Government's policy would, of course, be reviewed if an American SOS did come along.

BUILDING UP ARMED FORCES

This information came after Defense Minister Emmanuel Shinwell told the Commons three times this afternoon that the Korean situation had produced a state of "grave anxiety."

Shinwell told questioners Britain, because of world tension, is both building up its armed forces and rearming them as quickly as possible.

He said he was not complacent about what has been achieved and added: "There is still a great deal to be done."

APPRECIATES ROLE

The Government sources who are in a position to know what goes on between London and Washington, say the American administration fully appreciates the role Britain is playing now in Asia.

American leaders were said to understand this country's military resources already are overstrained by her commitments in the rich Malayan Federation (where it is fighting a Red-led resistance movement) and in strategic Hong Kong (where a 40,000-strong garrison is being maintained off the mainland of Red China).

The American decision to cordon off Formosa has, in British eyes, indefinitely postponed an attack on the strategic fortress island by Chinese Communists.

EXPECT RED PRESSURE

British military experts reportedly think that the Chinese Reds will have men enough and energy enough to exert military pressure against the West elsewhere.

One obvious place would be Hong Kong, the informants suggested.

The British, therefore, argue it would be crazy for them to pull troops out of Hong Kong and send them to Korea.

The same, they claim, applies to Malaya where a much strengthened garrison has been able to make little impression on the hard core of the guerrillas after 4 years of fighting.

Mr. WHERRY. The President of the United States says we are flying the United Nations flag in South Korea and that the general in charge is General MacArthur. If that be true, there ought to be United Nations support in this action. I should like to know why the United States has not called upon the United Nations to send ground troops to Korea. Certainly we need help in Korea. I think a demand ought to be made not only for British troops but it ought to be made immediately for any troops under the United Nations, because, as I understand, the President of the United States is operating under the resolution adopted by the Security Council of the United Nations, which he says is now in force, in an attempt to put down the difficulty in Korea.

I ask the question, Mr. President: Why has not the administration asked for the support in Korea of other members of the United Nations to enforce this so-called police action?

STATEMENTS BY SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE AFFECTING SENATOR WILEY

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, yesterday I inserted in the RECORD a letter which I addressed to Hon. Charles Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The letter appears at page 10046 of the RECORD. The date of the letter was July 11. Up to the present time I have received no answer to the matters contained in that letter. So today I am making a few remarks in addition to those I made yesterday on the subject discussed in my letter.

Mr. President, the Secretary of Agriculture, Charles Brannan, recently visited the State of Wisconsin. Among other things, he tried to convince the farmers of that great Commonwealth that their senior Senator voted against their best interests when he voted on June 26 of this year to send the so-called commodity credit bill, H. R. 6567, back to conference. In my humble judgment, the Secretary misrepresented the facts in an effort to seek political advantage.

I may say that I recently read a biography of Secretary Brannan. I gathered from it that he was a fine, outstanding Christian gentleman. But when I read what the Secretary was reported to have said in Wisconsin, which misrepresented the facts, the idea being, of course, to influence the farm folks of Wisconsin, I felt that I should first write him and call his attention to the statement he had made and ask him why he made and how he could make such a misrepresentation.

My own philosophy, Mr. President, is that if I cannot say something particularly good about a person, I do not indulge in unwarranted and unjustified statements. In this particular instance, because our country is now engaged in battle, it seems more important than ever that persons in high places should follow that technique.

On the occasion referred to, Mr. President, as the vote will show, I voted for a measure which was sponsored by the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE], and was for the purpose of protecting the farm interests of the United States. However, the statement to which I now refer was made to confuse the thinking of that great segment of the people in my State.

Although it probably is of no great consequence so far as I personally am concerned, it does indicate that into our country has come what we have known as psychological warfare, a method which through the centuries certain elements of society have used, and in regard to which they have said, "If we think the end in view is desirable, that will justify any action we may take."

Mr. President, in this case the end in view, of course, is to eliminate the Senator from Wisconsin. Accordingly, in line with that point of view, any lies or misrepresentations which are made are, I suppose, considered justifiable, on the basis of that kind of fallacious reasoning. However, I had a higher concept of Secretary Brannan than that, because of what I had read about him.

I have consulted with those who participated in that vote. As I remember, the vote on the floor of the Senate was about evenly divided on this particular measure. So the Democrats and the Republicans have rather gotten mixed up on this subject. On the other hand, everyone agrees that the Magnuson amendment, as adopted by the Senate, was in favor of the farm interests of the United States. However, when that amendment went to conference, the conferees voted to delete it. Thereafter, when the conference report came before the Senate, the issue was whether we should stick by our former convictions. The vote on that question again was almost evenly divided.

The point I make is that, instead of explaining the situation accurately, as should be done by a man in high Government office, the Secretary of Agriculture went to Wisconsin—as indicated in the letter which I addressed to him, and which appears in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on the page stated—and misrepresented the entire picture.

So, Mr. President, I am saying that in my humble judgment Secretary Brannan misrepresented the facts in an effort to gain political advantage. The vote to reject the conference report on the Commodity Credit Corporation bill and to request a further conference was not a vote against the farmers of the country; it was a vote in favor of the farmers, as I shall demonstrate, and was equally important for the taxpayers.

For more than 3 years the senior Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], a distinguished Member of this body and a distinguished member of the Democratic Party and many others among us have sought to secure the enactment of legislation which will protect the price-support program and similar farm programs from excessive and ruinous imports. The only issue at stake in the vote to reject the conference report and to request a further conference was whether the farmers who cooperate with their Government through marketing agreements, acreage allotments, and price supports, are to have the continuance of those programs threatened by imports. The only question at issue was whether it was sound policy to support prices, on the one hand, but to deny the President an effective tool with which to deal with agricultural imports, on the other hand. Secretary Brannan must have known that. If he did not, he was ignorant; and as Secretary of Agriculture he should not be so ignorant. If he knew that to be so, then he knew he was misrepresenting the fact when he made the statement he did make. My basis for that statement is to be found in the remarks made by my Democratic colleagues.

To illustrate that point, I wish to quote from a speech made in the Senate by the distinguished Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], the chief sponsor of the amendment in controversy, and a Democrat. I shall quote from the statement he made on the subject of rejecting the conference report and requesting a further conference. I quote now from page 9161 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for June 26, 1950; this is what the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] said then:

> Mr. President, before presenting further arguments for rejecting the report I want to clarify two important points which are involved. The so-called commodity credit bill, House bill 6567, as passed by the House, was a very simple and short bill. It merely increased the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation by $2,000,000,000. Sections 1 and 2 of the Senate bill conform exactly to the House version, both in language and in purpose.
>
> The question of increasing, by $2,000,000,000, the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation, therefore, was not in controversy when the bill went to conference. Both House and Senate were in complete agreement that the CCC's borrowing authority should be increased.
>
> In consequence, any Senator who votes with me to reject this conference report cannot be accused, by that action, of being against the farmers of this country. Irrespective of whether we send this bill back to conference, a $2,000,000,000 increase in the CCC's borrowing authority is assured.
>
> The only question before the conferees had to do with section 3 of the Senate version of House bill 6567. Section 3 is the so-called Magnuson-Morse amendment. In reality, section 3 is in the nature of a substitute for section 22 of the Agriculture Adjustment Act as it now stands. If we reject the conference report today, section 3, the Magnuson-Morse amendment, again will be the only issue before the conferees.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WILEY. I yield for a question.

Mr. MUNDT. Is the Senator from Wisconsin aware that he is not the only Senator on the Republican side of the aisle who is being accused of having voted against the Commodity Credit Corporation—and in being accused of that is being accused maliciously and inaccurately—as a result of having supported the amendment submitted by the Senator from Washington, a good member of the Democratic Party, in order to stop imports of certain agricultural products?

I am sure the Senator recalls, as I do, that on page 8171 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the Senator from Wisconsin is listed, in the yea-and-nay vote, as having voted in favor of the authorization of $2,000,000,000 for the Commodity Credit Corporation. That was clear then. However, apparently there has been a Nation-wide program on the part of the Democratic high command to smear unjustifiably and maliciously those who tried to protect against such imports. Is the Senator from Wisconsin aware of that?

Mr. WILEY. Yes, I am. However, I did not know that in other States Secretary Brannan had made attacks similar to the one which occurred in my State. There he named me, and he falsified the record.

I am very sorry to see a man in high position act in such a way. As Secretary of Agriculture, he should have known the true facts. If he did know them, he should not lie about them; he should not go before the country and speak in the way he did.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. WILEY. I yield.

Mr. MUNDT. In Secretary Brannan's entirely unwarranted political attack upon the Senator from Wisconsin, did the Cabinet officer attack with equal vehemence the author of the amendment, the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], a member of his own party?

Mr. WILEY. Of course not; he never even mentioned him, nor did he bring out in any way whatever in his statement the relationship of the Senator from Washington to the amendment. The whole idea was, as I have already stated, to misrepresent, as anyone who reads the RECORD can see.

However, of course the difficulty we face in connection with the propaganda war which some persons have learned so well from Hitler is that the truth never catches up with a lie. In my State of Wisconsin the whole purpose is to capture the farmers' vote, as occurred in 1948, by misrepresenting the facts in connection with the bill to which I have referred. The farmers were scared then, and they are scared now. The Democratic Party has handed us the oleo package, with the result that today in Wisconsin milk is selling for less than $3 a hundred, which is a little more than 5 cents a quart. The farmers cannot produce milk on that basis, and so they are in a mood to reach out for anyone who, I suppose, they think has succor for them. However, we never expect that men in high places will stoop to such tactics as this, even in a pre-primary campaign. Certainly I did not expect that of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. YOUNG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from North Dakota?

Mr. WILEY. I yield for a question.

Mr. YOUNG. Is the Senator aware that this is a Nation-wide smear campaign? The same type of propaganda is today being directed against me in North Dakota, and I am one of the authors of the Commodity Credit Corporation bill itself, and as one who voted for increasing the borrowing power of that Corporation.

Furthermore, is the Senator from Wisconsin, who has always been very close to the farmers and fought their battles all the way, aware of the fact that the Magnuson amendment, so far as one of the major commodities of Wisconsin is concerned—and I speak of rye—was more important than money itself, in affording support to that program. We have imported more than half as much rye from Canada as we ourselves produced. Canadian rye has been supplying almost all our domestic needs. Is the Senator aware that the Magnuson amendment in itself would have prohibited the importation of this Canadian rye, and that there would have been no need whatever of a price-support program, so far as that commodity is concerned, if we had stopped imports, or perhaps stopped only half the imports?

Mr. WILEY. I know that the purpose of the Magnuson amendment was to benefit the Nation at large. It would have given to the President the power, which he could have used efficiently and effectively, to stop imports which are demoralizing the farm market. I know that to be the case. I also have knowledge, now, as I have been assured by the Senator from North Dakota, that this misrepresentation has gone much further than my own State. I did not know that it had been directed specifically against any other Senator because I did not know that Secretary Brannan was in the other States hammering away with false statements.

Mr. YOUNG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield further to the Senator from North Dakota?

Mr. WILEY. I yield for another question.

Mr. YOUNG. Is the Senator aware of the fact that the Magnuson amendment would also have applied to potatoes, of which, during the past year, when we had a 50,000,000-bushel surplus, we imported more than 12,000,000 bushels of Canadian potatoes? Is it not true that the importation of the 12,000,000 bushels of potatoes had a more depressing effect on our market than possibly our own surplus, and that the Magnuson amendment would be an effective means of stopping Canadian imports?

Mr. WILEY. I am satisfied that, had the Magnuson-Morse amendment become the law of the land, and had this tool or mechanism been made available to the President, and he had used it effectively, it would have been beneficial to the general welfare, and particularly to the welfare of the farm segment of the population.

Mr. President, I had finished quoting the language of the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON], found on page 9161 of the RECORD, when I yielded for questions by my distinguished associates. I now resume the reading of the statement which I have prepared.

I have just quoted what the sponsor of the Magnuson-Morse amendment said on the floor of the Senate when he urged rejection of the conference report on the commodity credit bill. I now quote a few more statements to illustrate further the real problem that was before us—the real significance of the vote alluded to by the Secretary of Agriculture when he visited Wisconsin recently.

The senior Senator from Washington at another point in his remarks said:

> Some reasonable machinery for preventing destruction of domestic farm programs must be assured, otherwise the taxpayers of this country will resist and ultimately eliminate both the farm program and the reciprocal trade program.

It was to insure against that very real danger that the senior Senator from Wisconsin supported the Magnuson-Morse amendment originally, and voted to send the commodity credit bill back to conference when he became convinced that the conferees had compromised the Magnuson-Morse amendment out of the bill entirely. They had emasculated it, indeed, they had eliminated that vital instrument, which should have remained in the bill as it was passed by the Senate. But the Senate conferees reneged on it.

Most of the great farm organizations of the United States supported the position of the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE] I emphasize that point, and I hope that my people back home will realize that a lie was told, and that the truth may now serve as an antidote.

I repeat that most of the great farm organizations supported the position of Senators MAGNUSON and MORSE, along with that of the rest of us who voted to return the bill to conference. At this point I ask that there be printed in the RECORD as a part of my remarks the vote, as it appears in the RECORD of that date, showing the names of Senators who voted for and those who voted against the Magnuson amendment, as shown, in reverse, by the vote on agreeing to the conference report.

There being no objection, the statement of the vote in question was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The VICE PRESIDENT. A quorum is present. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. MORSE. A vote of "yea" would be a vote in favor of the conference report, and a vote of "nay" would be a vote against the conference report?

The VICE PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. WHERRY and other Senators requested the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD (when his name was called). On this vote I have a pair with the senior Senator from Illinois [Mr. LUCAS], who is absent by leave of the Senate because of a death in his family. Were the Senator from Illinois present, he would vote "yea." Were I permitted to vote, I would vote "nay." I withhold my vote.

Mr. O'MAHONEY (when Mr. HUNT'S name was called). My colleague the junior Senator from Wyoming [Mr. HUNT] is absent on official business. If present and voting, he would vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. MCFARLAND. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ] is necessarily absent.

The Senator from California [Mr. DOWNEY] is absent because of illness.

The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. EASTLAND] and the Senators from North Carolina [Mr. GRAHAM and Mr. HOEY] are absent on public business.

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. GEORGE], the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR], and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. THOMAS] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KILGORE] is unavoidably detained on official business.

The Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'CONOR] is absent by leave of the Senate on official business, attending the sessions of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, Switzerland, as a delegate representing the United States.

The Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. MYERS] is absent because of illness in his family.

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. GEORGE] is paired on this vote with the Senator from Maine [Mr. BREWSTER]. If present and voting, the Senator from Georgia would vote "yea" and the Senator from Maine would vote "nay."

The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. HOEY] is paired on this vote with the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ]. If present and voting, the Senator from North Carolina would vote "yea" and the Senator from New Mexico would vote "nay."

The Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. MYERS] is paired on this vote with the Senator from Iowa [Mr. HICKENLOOPER]. If present and voting, the Senator from Pennsylvania would vote "yea" and the Senator from Iowa would vote "nay."

The Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. THOMAS] is paired on this vote with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. TAYLOR]. If present and voting, the Senator from Oklahoma would vote "yea" and the Senator from Idaho would vote "nay."

I announce further that if present and voting the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. EASTLAND], the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. KILGORE], and the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG] would vote "yea."

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I announce that the senior Senator from Vermont [Mr. AIKEN], the junior Senator from Vermont [Mr. FLANDERS], the Senator from Iowa [Mr. HICKENLOOPER], the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. LANGER], the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] are absent by leave of the Senate.

The Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART] is necessarily absent.

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. DWORSHAK] is absent on official business.

The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. THYE], who is absent by the leave of the Senate, is paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. YOUNG], who is also absent by leave of the Senate. If present and voting, the Senator from Minnesota would vote "yea," and the Senator from North Dakota would vote "nay."

The Senator from Maine [Mr. BREWSTER], who is necessarily absent, is paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GEORGE]. If present and voting, the Senator from Maine would vote "nay," and the Senator from Georgia would vote "yea."

The Senator from Iowa [Mr. HICKENLOOPER] is paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. MYERS]. If present and voting, the Senator from Iowa would vote "nay," and the Senator from Pennsylvania would vote "yea."

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 35, nays 35, as follows:

Yeas—35: Anderson, Benton, Chapman, Connally, Douglas, Ellender, Fulbright, Gillette, Green, Hayden, Hill, Holland, Humphrey, Johnson of Colorado, Johnson of Texas, Kefauver, Kerr, Leahy, Lehman, McCarran, McClellan, McKellar, McMahon, Maybank, Murray, Neely, O'Mahoney, Pepper, Robertson, Russell, Sparkman, Stennis, Thomas of Utah, Tydings, Withers.

Nays—35: Bricker, Bridges, Butler, Cain, Cordon, Darby, Donnell, Ecton, Ferguson, Frear, Gurney, Hendrickson, Ives, Jenner, Kem, Knowland, Lodge, McCarthy, McFarland, Magnuson, Malone, Martin, Millikin, Morse, Mundt, Saltonstall, Schoeppel, Smith of Maine, Smith of New Jersey, Taft, Tobey, Watkins, Wherry, Wiley, Williams.

Not voting—26: Aiken, Brewster, Byrd, Capehart, Chavez, Downey, Dworshak, Eastland, Flanders, George, Graham, Hickenlooper, Hoey, Hunt, Johnston of South Carolina, Kilgore, Langer, Long, Lucas, Myers, O'Conor, Taylor, Thomas of Oklahoma, Thye, Vandenberg, Young.

The VICE PRESIDENT. On this question the yeas are 35, the nays are 35. Under the Constitution the President of the Senate, having the right to vote in case of a tie, casts his vote in the affirmative. The conference report is agreed to.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Illinois?

Mr. WILEY. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. Will the able Senator name the farm organizations to which he has referred?

Mr. WILEY. Yes; I am coming to that.

On page 9168 of the June 26 RECORD, the text of two telegrams quoted by the senior Senator from Washington appear. Let me read them:

National Council of Farmer Cooperatives strongly urges your support of original text Magnuson amendment CCC bill when it reaches Senate floor. We believe language suggested by conferees is not adequate to give United States farmers protection they urgently need against injurious imports.

JOHN J. RIGGLE,
Assistant Secretary, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

I continue quoting:

The National Grange appreciates and hopes you will continue to insist on the Magnuson amendment in the CCC bill. We feel it is vital to any program of price supports.

ALBERT S. GOSS,
Master, the National Grange.

Here the National Grange and the National Council of Farm Cooperatives are supporting to the hilt our insistence that the commodity credit bill go back to conference. Certainly no one will accuse Albert S. Goss and John J. Riggle of being against the farmers of the country.

The people and the farmers of Wisconsin are directly interested in milk production. We are the greatest milk-producing State in the Nation. What did the National Milk Producers Federation think about our insistence that the commodity credit bill go back to conference? In floor debate the senior Senator from Louisiana, a Democrat, quoted from a letter addressed to him by that organization on June 26. The text of the letter will be found on page 9170 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Let me quote:

At the thirty-third annual meeting in November 1949, the federation adopted a resolution with respect to import controls, which reads as follows:

We had in mind the impact of all these imports upon the farmers of America. That is the issue. I continue the quotation:

We recommend as permanent legislation the repeal of subsection (f) of section 22 of the AAA. In the enactment of legislation to provide that no international agreement shall hereafter be entered into by the United States or renewed, or permitted to extend beyond its earliest permissible termination date which would be in contravention of said section 22.

Parenthetically, Mr. President, I wish to point out that the language which I have just read is almost word for word the language of the Magnuson-Morse amendment. That amendment was in practically the same language. I continue to quote:

Our people believe the original language of the Magnuson-Morse amendment accomplishes the original objective of speeding procedure and yet safeguarding it in the hands of the Agriculture Department, which is informed and prepared to act as rapidly as inquiries into the problem may indicate.

On the other hand, we believe the conference report version is not clear enough for us to predict the interpretation which may later be put on paragraph (f).

Mr. President, here is a great farm organization, the National Milk Producers' Federation, saying precisely what the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] and the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE] and those who supported them contended. It was for this reason that I voted to send the bill back to conference.

In closing, Mr. President, I invite the attention of the Secretary of Agriculture, and of anyone else interested, to the hearings on the bill increasing the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation before the Senate Committee on Agriculture. Anyone who will read the statements of farm organizations' representatives contained at pages 379 to 389 will become convinced that a vote to send the Commodity Credit bill back to conference was not a vote against, but a vote for, the farmers of the Nation.

Here are some organizations which endorsed the Magnuson-Morse amendment:

National Grange, National Council of Farm Cooperatives, National Milk Producers Federation, National Renderers Association, Western State Meat Packers Association, California Fruit Growers Exchange, Northwest Nut Growers, American Hop Growers Association, National Apple Institute, Northwest Horticultural Council and the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association. In addition, the Farm Bureau Federation endorsed that part of the amendment dealing directly with control of agriculture imports which threatened a price-support program.

In view of all this, it seems incredible—and I weigh my words—that even in a political campaign, which apparently is on for the farm vote not only in Wisconsin, but throughout the Nation, anyone, in an attempt to confuse the voters and get them to go the wrong way again, could make such an irresponsible statement as that the vote of the senior Senator from Wisconsin to send the commodity-credit bill back to conference for clarification of the Magnuson-Morse amendment was a vote against the farmers of the country.

If they want to argue that issue, I have no objection; but when men in high places, holding positions in the Cabinet of the President of the United States, go into a State and misrepresent and misstate the facts, as was done in this instance, it is going pretty far. Again I say parenthetically, that in the 12 years I have been a Member of this body I have never risen to criticize. I do not believe in it. But this was a direct attack upon my action. It was unprovoked, and it misrepresented my action to the group of people to whom for 12 years I have sought to give the best that is within me.

Mr. President, the milk industry of Wisconsin represents 50 percent of the economic lifeblood of Wisconsin. Those engaged in that industry are small farmers, and they are going through their second Gethsemane at this time. As I stated before, anyone who is in poor economic health is generally looking for a rope to catch hold of. If Mr. Brannan had argued his plan and had told them about his contemplated plan, it would have been a different matter.

As everyone knows, a bill can be introduced into the Senate looking like a canary bird; it can be amended in committee until it looks like a chicken hawk; and, finally, it may look like a jackass after it has been in conference and returns to the Senate floor.

We have no Brannan plan before this body or before the House. There are six or seven plans contemplated. Many efforts have been made to get people to think that economic laws can be changed by legislation.

So, Mr. President, in view of all the facts, it seems incredible that anyone, especially a member of the Cabinet, could reach the conclusion that the vote of the senior Senator from Wisconsin and the votes of the other Senators indicated in the RECORD, who represent farming sections of the Nation, to send the bill back to conference for clarification of the Magnuson-Morse amendment, was a vote against the farmers.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WILEY. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. Assuming that the motion to send the bill back to conference had been agreed to, and the committee would not again report the bill, what would the Senator say as to whether the farmers of Wisconsin would have been injured in any way by the failure of the Congress to provide additional borrowing power to the Commodity Credit Corporation?

Mr. WILEY. There are too many "ifs" in that question, as was said by the late President Roosevelt. The Senator from Illinois knows that the Congress could not have adjourned under any circumstances until that bill was passed. We were voting on one issue, as was said by the Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] on the floor and reechoed by the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MORSE] and other Senators. We were fighting for one issue, and that was to stop the disintegrating influence of imports upon the markets of this country. The majority leader knows that was the issue. I do not want him to go off the deep end now by attempting to apologize indirectly for the direct misrepresentation of the facts.

Mr. LUCAS. I am not going off the deep end, but the Senator from Wisconsin is already off the deep end as a result of what he has said. What we were attempting to do in that bill was to give the Commodity Credit Corporation additional borrowing power. That was the big issue, not the issue with respect to the amendment offered by the Senator from Washington and the Senator from Oregon. That was incidental to the proposal which came from the Secretary of Agriculture. In truth and in fact, the amendment offered by the Senator from Washington was a separate and distinct matter and should have been so considered, but he sought to tack it to the bill to increase the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation, thereby, in my opinion, attempting to injure the Commodity Credit Corporation.

I say that those Senators who voted to send the bill back to conference were doing something extremely unfair and injurious to the American farmers. If the Senator wants to fight out the Magnuson amendment on its merits, that is one thing; but do not tack it onto a measure involving additional borrowing power for the Commodity Credit Corporation, and involving the lifeblood of the farmers. That is exactly what the Senator was doing when he voted to send the bill back to conference.

Mr. WILEY. I now understand where the Secretary of Agriculture got his misrepresentations. I should not say it, but I am ashamed that the Senator from Illinois, who represents a great agricultural State, should make such a statement as the one he has made. He knows very well that under no circumstances could Congress have adjourned until the Commodity Credit Corporation bill was ready for action.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President——

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, I have the floor.

Mr. LUCAS. I shall have it very soon.

Mr. WILEY. I do not like these autocratic methods, even on the part of the majority leader. That is what we find has been going on—the Hitlerian technique or the Stalin technique of misrepresenting the facts. The Senator is coming to the rescue of Mr. Brannan whose plan at first the President would not approve, and then went into a number of States and approved it. Yet the Senator from Illinois is now trying to justify Mr. Brannan's nefarious conduct toward fellow Senators. I would not do that if I were he.

Mr. LUCAS. Will my distinguished friend yield?

Mr. WILEY. Yes.

Mr. LUCAS. I do not know what the Senator is talking about.

Mr. WILEY. It is not the first time that the Senator has refused to register.

Mr. LUCAS. I do not know what the Senator is talking about when he says that I am defending someone. The only thing I am trying to point out, Mr. President, in connection with the argument which the Senator has made, is that there was before the Senate a bill the purpose of which was to increase the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Surely the Senator will not say that the Magnuson amendment was the chief issue involved. The issue was whether we would increase the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation for the benefit of the farmers of America, including the farmers of Wisconsin. Certainly the farmers of Wisconsin are directly concerned with certain mandatory support-price programs, which the Congress provided for the benefit of the farmers last year when it passed the Anderson bill.

The Brannan plan has nothing to do with what I am talking about now. I am not misrepresenting anything. The Senator can charge me with making misrepresentations if he wishes to do so. However, the fact of the matter is that he is becoming a little bit excited. Probably Secretary Brannan went into his State and made a speech. The Senator is a candidate for reelection, and I do not blame him for making an address for home consumption. That is agreeable to me. However, the point I am making is that one must either believe that the Magnuson amendment was the chief issue involved, or that the question of increasing the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation was the principal issue. Senators who voted to send the bill back to conference were striking a blow at the Commodity Credit Corporation. So far as I am concerned, there cannot be any argument about it. I am not trying to misrepresent anything. I am not trying to take advantage of my good friend from Wisconsin. I would not do that. However, I think we should keep the record straight.

Mr. WILEY. I have followed what I call the sophistry of my good and distinguished friend from Illinois. In doing so I have in mind the approach to this very serious matter which the Senator from Illinois has made. The Senator from Illinois knows as well as I do that his distinguished colleague [Mr. DOUGLAS] and half of his group in the Senate voted in favor of the Magnuson amendment. They were convinced that the Magnuson amendment involved a very vital factor in the protection of the economic health of the farm segment of the country. The conferees eliminated the amendment. As I have already stated, there was no dispute about the $2,000,000,000 for the Commodity Credit Corporation. That was not in issue. We are ready to prove it. The question was whether the report should go back to conference, to see if the Senate conferees would not fight for what we had determined was in the interest of the farmers and in the interest of the country as a whole. That was the issue.

I said that it ill behooves the Senator from Illinois to rise on the floor of the Senate and slander the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. He knows that throughout the whole debate there was no question about the $2,000,000,000. It was a question of whether the amendment should be reinstated. Therefore I am sorry that the distinguished Senator from Illinois indulges in that kind of political tactic. It is a tactic, Mr. President, which is being indulged in entirely too often. Would to God that we could play the political game on as high a level as the British. They do not do things like that. They do not go forth and smear anyone. In that respect we have a statute in Wisconsin which has teeth in it. We shall see to it that the issues are argued in Wisconsin, and we will not permit any of this nefarious Brannan conduct to be repeated.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I do not care to take up much time on this matter. However, the Senator from Wisconsin seems to think I have slandered someone. He has made some very unusual remarks in the course of the debate. That is perfectly all right so far as the Senator from Illinois is concerned. I understand what the Senator is trying to do when he talks about the sophistry of the Senator from Illinois. He should know what sophistry is, judging by some of the speeches he has made on the floor of the Senate since I have been a Member. So far as I am concerned, it is not a question of politics at all. I entered the argument only in the hope of trying to keep the record straight.

It is not a question of smearing anyone. I would not do that to the Senator from Wisconsin. I repeat what I said a moment ago. Every Senator who voted to recommit the bill to the conference committee was certainly much more interested in the Magnuson amendment than he was in the continuation of the Commodity Credit Corporation with respect to its additional borrowing power. In other words, there was no Magnuson amendment in the bill when it was first introduced by the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. That amendment was introduced later. The sole question was whether or not the corn farmers, wheat farmers, peanut farmers, and dairy farmers, and all other farmers throughout the United States were to have the benefit of the Commodity Credit Corporation's additional borrowing power. The bill called for a $2,000,000,000 increase in its borrowing authority, and that was the sole issue. That was the only issue that we should have been voting on.

Whenever a bill affecting the Commodity Credit Corporation comes before the Senate someone attempts to tack onto it an amendment with a view of emasculating or impairing the operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation. I know that some persons are not in favor of the present farm law. One of the ways to injure that law is to cripple the Commodity Credit Corporation. I say the Magnuson amendment had no business and no place in the Commodity Credit Corporation bill. The purpose of the amendment is important, of course. I do not deny the importance of what the Magnuson amendment seeks to do. However, that issue should be fought out on its merits. It should not be used as an attempt to scuttle the Commodity Credit Corporation or to impair its effectiveness. That would have been the effect of attaching such an amendment to the Commodity Credit Corporation bill. No one can tell me, Mr. President, that Senators who voted to send the bill back to conference were not more interested in the Magnuson amendment than they were in attempting to see that the Commodity Credit Corporation received additional borrowing power to carry on the whole farm program. That is my position. Other Senators may take a different position if they wish; but no one will fool the American farmer as a result of such a situation.

It is true that I represent many farmers in my State of Illinois. I do not know how they feel about the Magnuson amendment. I do not know that they have communicated with me on that point. However, it would not make any difference whether a farm organization was in favor of or against the Magnuson amendment because in my view the amendment had no place in the Commodity Credit Corporation bill.

That is the situation in a nutshell, Mr. President. I do not know what happened in Wisconsin, and I care less, with respect to what Secretary Brannan said there. I am not defending Secretary Brannan. I am not defending his plan. It has nothing to do with what the Senator from Illinois is talking about. I am talking about the fundamental and basic principle involved in our farm program, and I shall always defend that principle.

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. LUCAS. I shall be glad to yield for a question. I hope the Senator will not slander me, though.

Mr. WILEY. I could say, as someone has said, that that would be impossible. However, I will not say that.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I wish the Senator would proceed with his question; then I shall answer him.

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, I merely wish to say that when the majority leader takes the position which he has taken, after the Senate of the United States adopted the amendment—and, mind you, after the voice of the Senate had spoken—it seems to me he is taking an autocratic position when he says that the amendment has no place in the bill. We have too many symptoms of that kind in Government, Mr. President. This is a government of the people. After all, a majority rules in the Senate. The Senate had spoken on the subject. That is the only retort I wish to make to the Senator's sophisticated manner of replying in this case.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. Mr. President, will the Senator from Illinois yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield to the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. I note that the distinguished majority leader made some reference to those who voted for or supported the Magnuson amendment having had other or different views from those of the Senator from Illinois. Coming from a great agricultural State, which I am trying to represent in the United States Senate, I should like to observe that the distinguished Senator from Illinois can put any inference he desires on my position, but I wish to say for the RECORD, and I will say it publicly or otherwise that so far as my support of the Magnuson amendment is concerned, which is pretty well understood in my State, there was no intention of injuring in any way the Commodity Credit Corporation or of interfering with the proposal to increase its borrowing power. But the farmers throughout the length and breadth of the State of Kansas believed that the farming interests should be protected, and that the Magnuson amendment was a fundamentally sound amendment.

I do not intend to sit silent in the United States Senate and have words put into my mouth, or implications made as to my attitude. I thought that in fairness I should say something about this question.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator for the statement he has made. I did not attempt to put any words in his mouth or to draw any inferences.

Let me follow this matter a little further. Everyone who understands the position of the President of the United States must be aware that he would have vetoed the Commodity Credit Corporation bill if the Magnuson amendment had been attached to it. Every day we delayed action on the bill we delayed the Commodity Credit Corporation from fixing support prices upon all the commodities which are produced in this country.

Mr. WILEY. That is a new argument.

Mr. LUCAS. It is a new argument, but it is a good argument, and I know what I am talking about, because I was interested in a particular product, namely, honey, and the officials of the Department would not put any support price on honey until the bill was passed.

Mr. WILEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. No; not for the moment. I am sure that if we had passed the bill with the Magnuson amendment attached to it the bill would have been vetoed, and I suppose, under the argument made by the Senator from Wisconsin and the Senator from Kansas, notwithstanding that fact, if it had come back to the Senate, they would have voted to override the veto, notwithstanding the basic legislation dealing with the Commodity Credit Corporation. In other words, we could have used dilatory arguments causing delay and delay until no additional borrowing power at all would have been provided for the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Mr. President, that is the position I take, and I shall continue to maintain it. I say that the action on the part of Senators who sought to attach to the Commodity Credit Corporation bill an amendment which really had no business being there was unjust to the fundamental and basic principle involved in the Commodity Credit Corporation measure, and certainly an injustice to the American farmer.

FULTON LEWIS, JR.—ARTICLES BY CHARLES VAN DEVANDER AND EDITORIAL FROM THE NEW YORK POST

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, on June 21 and June 22 I inserted in the Appendix of the RECORD two articles by Mr. Charles Van Devander and an editorial from the New York Post referring to certain official documents of the Nazi government which were said to have been found in Berlin by the United States Army and said now to be in the possession of this Government.

The articles attracted my attention, Mr. President, because of their serious allegations with regard to the activities of Mr. Fulton Lewis, Jr., a national radio commentator on the Mutual network. The documents are alleged to show that Mr. Lewis had close relations with the Nazi government and its representatives here in America in 1940, a very critical moment in world history.

In view of the importance and seriousness of the charges, I wrote on June 22 to the Secretary of Defense, Louis Johnson, and to the Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, asking whether the story in the New York Post was accurate and whether the documents did actually exist and were in the possession of our Government. It was my strong feeling that if the story was inaccurate the newspaper should be severely reprimanded and Mr. Lewis' reputation cleared. On the other hand, I felt that if the documents did exist and were in our Government's possession they should not be kept secret from the American people.

My letters to the Secretaries, the texts of which were the same, I ask to have incorporated at this point in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HILL in the chair). Is there objection?

There being no objection, the text of the letters was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEAR MR. SECRETARY: The New York Post has quoted extensively in the past 2 days from what are asserted to be German Government documents relating to the pre-Pearl Harbor activities of Fulton Lewis, Jr., the radio commentator.

These documents, if they are genuine, indicate that Mr. Lewis secretly approached a member of the German Embassy staff in the summer of 1940. He is said to have suggested to this Nazi agent that Hitler seek the aid of President Roosevelt in an effort to persuade Mr. Churchill to end his senseless and pig-headed resistance to a complete Nazi victory in Europe. This, you will recall, was at a time when Hitler and Stalin were in alliance and when Great Britain was facing the Nazis alone.

In the published reports the documents in question are described as messages which were sent in code to Berlin from Habana and Washington. It is stated that they were found by the United States Army in official files in Germany after the war, and are now in the possession of this Government.

If such documents actually exist and are in the possession of the United States Government, I am amazed that they are being kept secret from the American people. I consider it the clear duty of the agency which has control over them to make them public so that this very serious charge against a widely heard radio commentator can be discussed in the open. According to the New York Post, Mr. Lewis has denied to a representative of that newspaper that any such incident occurred.

The charge that a prominent radio commentator secretly collaborated with Nazi agents and offered free advice to Hitler is a shocking one. It is equally shocking to me that this Government, if it has information of this sort, should withhold it from the American people.

I cannot conceive of any reason why the full truth about this matter should not be promptly revealed. I therefore am inquiring of you whether to your knowledge such documents were found in the German files and whether they are now in your possession. If they are, I request that you make the copies available to me.

Sincerely yours,

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, on June 28 and on July 7 I received replies from Secretary Johnson informing me that after a search within the Department of Defense, the documents had not been found in his Department's files and that a further search would be made in Germany.

On July 30 I received the following reply from Assistant Secretary of State, Jack K. McFall:

DEAR SENATOR HUMPHREY: This is in reply to your letter of June 22.

I am enclosing a copy of a certificate made by Dr. G. Bernard Noble, Chief of the Division of Historical Policy Research. This certificate is self-explanatory, and I believe answers your question.

Sincerely yours,

JACK K. MCFALL,
Assistant Secretary.

The certificate which was mentioned in and attached to Mr. McFall's letter reads as follows:

CERTIFICATE

This is to certify that the dispatch quoted in the attached entry in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 21, 1950, is an accurate translation from a document captured by the Allied forces in Germany. The microfilm of the original of this document is now in the joint custody of the United States and British Governments. This document is part of a collection of captured German documents which are now being edited under a joint British-American program and will be published in due course.

G. BERNARD NOBLE,
Chief, Division of Historical Policy Research, Department of State.

I have asked the State Department to make the original German documents available to me for public information, and I trust the Department will soon do so.

In the meantime, however, I am appending to these remarks and as a part of the record translations of all three of the documents as published by the New York Post, which are exhibits 1, 2, and 3. I ask that they may be made a part of the RECORD.

There being no objection, the exhibits were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXHIBIT 1

[Translation from the German. Telegram (secret code process)]

Habana: July 26, 1940, 00:40 o'clock.
Arrival: July 26, 1940, 15:05 o'clock.
No. 140 of July 25.

Press Adviser Washington Embassy, Sell, transmits following memorandum, which I am [two words illegible on microfilm] relaying as is:

"Habana conference gave opportunity for unrestrained conversation with large number of North American delegates and journalists, of whom one, if not a larger percent, did not stand unconditionally hostile to Germany."

Many a one was susceptible to our arguments, but universal, and thus somewhat staggering, was the fatalistic conviction that there will soon be war, and that, because two systems so opposed as [are] Germany and United States of America could not exist side by side, and [that] America must strike before Germany would be sitting so firmly in the saddle in Europe and Latin America that the United States of America would be so isolated and compelled to give up hitherto-existing standard of living. One Washington journalist, who asserts he has good information, told me quite positively Roosevelt will declare war on Germany in October. A pretext will certainly be found, be it within the framework of the proposals brought up here by the United States of America, or be it through the whipping-up (group garbled) in the United States of America as a consequence of German air attacks on English cities, or the like. Others considered this as unlikely, even if admitting that now already very effective propaganda concerning "German war against English women and children" and "German trampling of British culture" is at work (cf. also Hull's speech of Monday).

In full recognition of this actual or presumed situation, Fulton Lewis approached me yesterday, [Lewis] who has been friendly with me for 12 years, highly respectable, an American journalist, admiring Germany and the Fuehrer, a political commentator with Mutual Broadcasting, and who, a few months ago, received 60,000 enthusiastic letters in response to one single radio talk. Lewis, who travels about a great deal, and on the occasion of Republican and Democratic Conventions, came together with Americans of all strata and regions, declared that the people wanted no war, but were rather defenseless against Roosevelt's refined tactics, especially now that he has made Congress a yes apparatus without a will of its own, by means of the cornucopia of gigantic contracts to all individual States. He requests therefore to be allowed to expound the following idea, which he has discussed with several serious-minded people—have the Fuehrer send a telegram to Roosevelt of not more than 200 words (recent speech of the Fuehrer was too long for the average American and by describing the events of the war, etc., had deviated somewhat from the theme especially important here), of approximately the following content: "You, Mr. Roosevelt, have many times turned to me with appeals, and have constantly expressed the wish to see a bloody war avoided. I have not declared war on England, but on the contrary have constantly emphasized that I do not wish to destroy the British Empire. My repeated invitations to Churchill to be reasonable and to arrive at an honorable treaty of peace have been stubbornly refused by Churchill. I know that it will go very hard with England if I really order total war against the British Isles. Therefore, I request you, for your part, to approach Churchill and to talk him out of his senseless pigheadedness." Lewis added, Roosevelt would naturally answer with incivility and animosity; that didn't matter. But upon the North American people, and above all, upon South America, the appeal will make a deep impression and in no case would be interpreted in serious-thinking circles as weakness.

TAUCHNITZ.

EXHIBIT 2

Ref.: GK. Dr. Sohring.
Berlin, June 8, 1940. Diplogerma. Washington. No. 863, telegram (secret code).

According to the report of the Minister in Habana, Sell has given him the memorandum which, among other things, contained the proposal of Fulton Lewis, that the Fuehrer should direct an appeal to Roosevelt with a view to his mediation with Churchill. Although execution of this proposal is out of the question, it would nevertheless be of interest to obtain your views, in particular concerning the importance of Fulton Lewis.

SCHMIDT.

EXHIBIT 3

[Telegram (secret code)]

Washington, August 8, 1940, 9:51 p. m.
Received, August 8, 1940, 8:50 a. m.
No. 1669 of July 8.

Your telegram of the 6, No. 863.

1. The following may be said concerning the importance of Fulton Lewis, Jr.:

L. is one of the younger news announcers of the well-known radio company, the Mutual Broadcasting Co., has enjoyed a particular success of late, and is a close personal friend of Sell. He attempts to support the isolationist line in his commentary on foreign affairs. He takes an attitude toward Germany which is factual and unprejudiced, so that the proposal in question was certainly well meant. On the other hand, L. does not have as much political significance as some leading American commentators. The proposal in question, therefore, probably arises mostly from a desire on the part of the personalities involved to gain attention. Similar proposals are frequently made to the embassy by well-meaning but uninfluential persons.

2. On the question of an appeal by the Fuhrer to Roosevelt for mediation with Churchill the following may be said: Since the Havana conference attacks by Roosevelt and his administration against all Germans and against alleged German plans of conquest, also in the Western Hemisphere, have continually increased; the aim is to further Roosevelt's reelection, to prepare public opinion for the introduction of at least limited military service, and to divert the attention of American voters to the international situation during the political campaign. In view of the internal political situation and the atmosphere of hatred against us a mediation appeal to Roosevelt at this time would be exploited primarily as a sign of German weakness and of a fear to undertake a military assault against England. Moreover, Roosevelt would be made to appear in the eyes of the American voters as the best qualified international mediator, recognized even by the Fuhrer himself, and this would likewise strengthen his chances for election.

THOMSEN.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I also ask to be made part of this RECORD a radio broadcast by Mr. Fulton Lewis, Jr., on the evening of June 23, in which he gives his explanation of the documents and of the incidents reported by the New York Post, which is exhibit 4, and which I ask to have printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the broadcast was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXHIBIT 4

BROADCAST OF FULTON LEWIS, JR., FRIDAY, JUNE 23, 1950

I have a story to lay before you that is quite unusual. Therefore I am not going to interrupt this broadcast for a middle announcement.

You can well understand that a program of this kind which attempts to expose evils in government and the activities of subversive groups, and which exposes un-Americanism without fear or favor, wherever it shows itself, makes enemies of those who feel the pinch, or who are afraid that they will feel it. One Communist-front organization is now in the course of a Nation-wide fund-raising campaign to intimidate sponsors, in the vain hope of getting this program off the airwaves. Some newspapers and some magazines and some radio commentators and some columnists have carried scurrilous and slanderous articles designed to discredit and destroy me. Of those enemies, I am abundantly proud, believe me.

I want to give you a demonstration of just how low they will stoop in their efforts to accomplish their ends. The case involves a minor New York newspaper of extreme left-wing tinge, the New York Post. It involves certain elements in the State Department; it involves Senator HUBERT HUMPHREY, the radical Democrat from Minnesota, and it involves a former German newspaper correspondent in Washington, by name Kurt Sell.

Day before yesterday the New York Post carried a big headline across page 1, saying "Nazi Files Say Fulton Lewis, Jr., Offered Advice to Hitler in 1940."

The article, which is labeled "Exclusive," is signed by one Charles VanDevander, who did a series of articles about Fulton Lewis, Jr., in the same newspaper last December, consisting chiefly of distortions, misrepresentations, quotations taken out of context, and downright falsehoods. Considering the source, however, I ignored them and still do. The article begins as follows:

"Fulton Lewis, Jr., top Washington commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System, is pictured in official records of the Nazi foreign office as a volunteer adviser of Hitler in 1940, the Post learned today.

"The German documents relating to Mr. Lewis are among a mass of official papers captured by the United States Army in 1945. They are now in the possession of this Government.

"One report, written by Kurt Sell, then press adviser to the German Embassy in Washington, transmitted a suggestion, attributed to Mr. Lewis, as to how Hitler might bring the war to a quick and satisfactory end. Sell, who was head of the Washington bureau of DNB, German news service, identified the Mutual broadcaster to his superiors as a close personal friend and as 'an admirer of Germany and the Fuehrer.'

"The time was late July 1940. France had been knocked out of the war. England, left to face the Nazi wehrmacht alone, was recovering from the Dunkerque evacuation and preparing against the threat of imminent invasion. Winston Churchill had just become Prime Minister.

"Lewis' reported suggestion, as transmitted to Berlin by Sell, was that Hitler should publicly appeal to President Roosevelt to bring pressure on Churchill to end his 'senseless' and 'pigheaded' resistance."

The article then goes on to say that I denied any such role, which I did, but quotes a decoded German cablegram from the German consul in Habana at the time of the Pan-American Conference of 1940. It begins with the following line: "Press Adviser Washington Embassy Sell transmits following memorandum which I am (two words illegible on microfilm) relaying as is."

It then goes on to say that I had proposed that Hitler send a telegram to President Roosevelt of not more than 200 words—because previous messages had been too long for the American public to absorb—with the following specific suggestion, in quotes, attributed to me.

This is what I am supposed to have proposed that Hitler say to Roosevelt in the message:

"You, Mr. Roosevelt, have many times turned to me with appeals, and have constantly expressed the wish to see a bloody war avoided. I have not declared war on England, but on the contrary have constantly emphasized that I do not wish to destroy the British Empire. My repeated invitations to Churchill to be reasonable and to arrive at an honorable treaty of peace have been stubbornly refused by Churchill. I know that it will go very hard with England if I really order total war against the British Isles. Therefore, I request you, for your part, to approach Churchill and to talk him out of his senseless pigheadedness."

The New York Post article then quotes the German cablegram further, as follows:

"Lewis added that Roosevelt would naturally answer with incivility and animosity; that didn't matter. But upon the North American people and above all on South America, the appeal will make a deep impression and in no sense would be interpreted in serious thinking circles as weakness."

I might mention that the beginning of the message purporting to come from Kurt Sell, reads as follows:

"Fulton Lewis approached me yesterday. Lewis, who has been friendly for 12 years, highly respectable and an American journalist admiring Germany and the Fuehrer; a political commentator with Mutual Broadcasting, declared that the people want no war but are rather defenseless against Roosevelt's refined tactics, now that he has made Congress a yes-apparatus, without a will of its own, by means of a cornucopia of gigantic contracts to all individual States. He therefore requests to be allowed to expound the following idea which he has discussed with several serious minded people."

That was the New York Post article. And the day it appeared, Senator HUMPHREY inserted it into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. He inserted also, yesterday, a follow-up article by the same writer, on the same subject, about a telegram which Hans Thomsen, the German Chargé d'Affaires in Washington sent to Berlin a couple of weeks later, stating that Fulton Lewis was "a respectable and fair-minded individual, but not of any political importance."

This afternoon, Senator HUMPHREY gave to the press a letter which he sent to Secretary of State Acheson, and Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, taking note of the Post articles and saying:

"These documents, if they are genuine, indicate that Mr. Lewis secretly approached a member of the German Embassy staff in the summer of 1940.

"In the published reports, the documents in question are described as messages that were sent in code to Berlin from Habana and Washington. It is stated that they were found by the United States Army in official files in Germany, after the war, and are now in the possession of this Government.

"If such documents actually exist and are in the possession of the United States Government, I am amazed that they are being kept secret from the American people. I consider it the clear duty of the agency which has control over them, to make them public so that this very serious charge against a widely heard radio commentator can be discussed in the open. According to the New York Post, Mr. Lewis has denied to a representative of that newspaper that any such incident occurred. The charge that a prominent radio commentator collaborated with Nazi agents and offered free advice to Hitler is a shocking one."

The letter then concludes with a request that the two Secretaries search their files, and if such documents are found, that they be turned over to Senator HUMPHREY.

(He could have saved one of the letters, because the Army states officially that no such documents are in its possession.)

Now for a little background. Kurt Sell, who was a much beloved figure in Washington for many years before the war, died about 18 months ago. So he is not here to speak out and tell what he knows of the story. That's convenient, isn't it?

Except that sometimes dead men do speak, and this is one of those times.

It so happens that this story was no news to me. I have known about it since May of 1947. About a year ago a Washington reporter informed my assistant that the State Department had a document which was very damaging to me, and it was waiting for the proper moment to place that document. I have been waiting ever since for the document to appear, and so it has.

The reason I say that dead men do speak sometimes is that in late May of 1947 I received a letter from Kurt Sell, who was then in Portugal. He'd been trying to get back in the United States, because everything he had in Germany had been lost. He had spent the war in Lisbon, Portugal, during which time he said he had been collaborating closely, but secretly, with the American diplomatic force.

It was quite a bulky envelope and contained some documents, notably a letter from columnist Drew Pearson, which reads as follows:

"DEAR KURT: I am sorry to have been so slow in answering your last letter, which I very much appreciated. Please advise me what the situation is regarding your entry visa and how I can help. I shall be glad to make it a point to talk to someone at the State Department, if you think that would be of any service.

"I was interested in running across a document the other day which the United States Army had picked up in Germany, and which mentions your name. I am enclosing a translation. I would be interested in knowing for my own information whether this correctly reports Fulton Lewis' views. With best wishes, Sincerely, Drew Pearson."

There also was included a copy of the Habana message, on which the New York Post based its story, and most important of all, a carbon copy of Kurt Sell's reply to Drew Pearson.

I have it before me. This is what it says:

"I am going to believe you, Drew, that you really want this only for your own information, and that you are not going to use it, and so I will give you the full dope.

"I know the telegram very well, because I caught hell from the German Embassy in Washington. So I remember that the two illegible words in the first paragraph were 'tel quel'—the words used in the diplomatic language for 'as is.'

"I never saw the telegram at Habana, nor did I know while I was there that such a telegram had been sent. I saw it about 2 to 3 weeks later, when Berlin cabled it back to Washington, asking 'Who is Fulton Lewis?'

"In order to understand the origin of the telegram you must know the 'ambiente' of Habana, or rather of the German legation there, presided over by Tauchnitz, the chargé d'affaires. Tauchnitz, who at the time weighed about 230 pounds, was very fond of whisky and other drinks, comes from a fine publisher's family, but did not inherit the mental capacities of his forefathers and, therefore, had been sidetracked into the diplomatic service. (The German foreign service had quite a few of these false alarms like Resenberger in Washington.) Even in the foreign service he could not make any headway and finally landed as consul in Panama, a third-rate post before the war. Then the German Minister at Habana got in bad with the AO (the Nazi organization in foreign countries) and had to be recalled. This was just as the war broke out in 1939 and Tauchnitz was sent to replace him, being the only one available at the time. Tauchnitz, whom I saw almost daily at lunch (he had a marvelous cook) during the 3 weeks of the Pan American Conference, grieved very much because he had never become a full-fledged Minister. He tried desperately to achieve this during his heaven-sent diplomatic conference by sending innumerable telegrams to Berlin and trying to draw Berlin's attention to his diplomatic faculties. So we talked politics incessantly, when he had champagne cocktails before the lunch, hock and champagne with lunch, whisky-soda after lunch. He continued this heavy drinking in the evening, after a long siesta (though I saw him only once or twice at night, I heard this from the clerks who were pressed into service as extra waiters, bringing soda and ice).

"During our conversations he used to ask me about my American colleagues. I mentioned Fulton Lewis as a very nice man and a fellow broadcaster. I said that Lewis was an isolationist and hoped that America would stay out of the war. I added that quite a few people shared this view, but that the balance was going steadily to the other side. The only way that both Lewis and I felt that a terrific catastrophe involving the whole world could be avoided was that Hitler should end the war now. We did not discuss nor did we care much about conditions.

"This was all Tauchnitz had to go on, but he made it into a beautiful story. This was his opportunity to be the bearer of important tidings and so he made up this telegram, throwing in nice words about the Fuehrer, as well as the well-known Nazi propaganda words against FDR. This telegram, which he did not show me, and of which neither Fulton nor I knew a word (Fulton never met Tauchnitz) came back to Washington and Thomsen and Strempel were very sore because Tauchnitz had gone out of his jurisdiction and meddled in United States affairs which only the Embassy was entitled to judge, and to report on. They reproached me for having inspired Tauchnitz but I told them that I had nothing to do with the telegram. Of course, I felt it my right to talk about the war with Tauchnitz being in his district for all those weeks. It would have been silly if we hadn't. But Fulton Lewis had not talked to Tauchnitz, nor suggested any telegram.

"So the Embassy sent a reply to Berlin, saying that the telegram was not based on the opinion of really influential people.

"As to Fulton Lewis: I have known him for years and think he is a very decent man. Some of the boys, I know, didn't like him because (a) he made a somewhat juvenile impression; (b) he was an isolationist. That does not make him un-American. A country which has fought for democracy among other things for freedom of thought and speech should not condemn a man because his opinions are different from those of the majority. In particular:

"1. Lewis did not suggest this or any telegram at all;

"2. Lewis did not admire the Fuhrer. Tauchnitz made that up being well aware of the fate of his predecessor;

"3. Lewis never said anything to me about Congress being a 'yes-apparatus.' I think this idea of Tauchnitz is particularly silly. The whole telegram patently is the work of a man who has never been in the United States of America and who just listened to Fritzsche's broadcasts as Tauchnitz, I know, regularly did.

"4. Lewis is one of the few former colleagues who never answered my letter when in 1946 I tried to interest them in my return to America.

"5. As far as I am concerned: I never was a 'press adviser' in fact: Strempel knew it all better, and I was kept in the dark about all the telegrams they sent and the things they did. The advisers were Hopp and Viereck.

"Now, Drew, I have been very frank, and I do hope that you keep your word and make no use of this."

That letter was written in May of 1947, and it has been in my files ever since. It tells the story of whether or not the article of the New York Post is true. It tells the story of exactly what happened; that I never knew anything about any such telegram; that it was a figment of the imagination of a drunken German consul in Havana. It further is a little case of a dead man being able to come back, appear on the witness stand and tell the truth even though people never expected that he would be able to do it.

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, in that connection I wish to make a part of this record a photostat of the letter sent to Mr. Lewis by Mr. Kurt G. Sell, press adviser to the German Embassy in Washington, D. C., in 1940, which is exhibit 5, and which I ask to have printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXHIBIT 5

LISBON, June 4, 1947.

DEAR FULTON: Something very unpleasant has happened: Pearson has got hold of a telegram from Havana in which Tauchnitz quotes you and me. I have done my best to kill the thing as far as you are concerned. It was an awful shock to me, but in fairness to you I think you should know about this. But please, Fulton, keep it to yourself, do not tell anyone, and above all do not tell Pearson that I sent this to you. Otherwise he would haunt me all over the earth. You may know that I succeeded in getting a visa at the end of September 1946, and had made all preparations to sail by the end of the year, as soon as passage by boat was available. I had 4 months to make use of the visa, and I wanted to take my luggage along, the rest of what I had left after everything I had stored in Germany was stolen or destroyed. Then on December 1st, Pearson told the world in his Sunday broadcast that I had received permission to return to the States, and on December 5 my visa was stopped by wire from a State Department shaking in fear of some powerful group as my American friends later told me. How this group works you may see from the enclosed clipping of the New York Herald-Tribune of April 26. It is a fiendish trick to discredit me and to prevent my return. Of course nobody saw me. The story is made up of whole cloth. Those people had learned that my visa was in order again, and so they conceived this lousy story. Well, I know now that I cannot return to the United States of America though in all those 15 years there I never spoke or wrote a piece of propaganda. The article shows that they would hunt me and would have had neither peace nor a job. Pearson's offer to speak to someone for me of course is only a pretext to get from me a confirmation of that telegram. I hope I have scotched that plan thoroughly. My funds getting to an end, I have accepted a job at a German-language paper in the American zone and shall leave for Germany by the middle of June. Of course it will be hard: No more relatives to go to, no home, no coal, little food, all this at my age and after all these years in America and Portugal will be very hard, but at least it is a job, and it will mean educating people in the American way, a thing I like. As soon as I am settled I shall write to you and I hope you will then send me "Care" parcels once in a while to eke out my meager rations. I was 60 in March.

Sincerely yours,

KURT.

P. S.—We get Life International here, and I was tickled to death to see the remark about you in the number of April 20: Congressman TABER, New York, said about the State Department broadcasts: "not as good as Fulton Lewis, but better than Gram Swing." Congratulations. Can I send you articles from Germany?

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, with these letters and these documents, the facts are now public and available for examination and judgment by the American people. I know these documents will be of interest to the Members of the Congress. I have no further interest, nor shall I take further time.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment on line 6, page 107.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, last year there was appropriated for this purpose $1,150,000. The House bill raised the amount by $10,000. The Senate committee has now proposed to raise it by more than $47,000, to the same amount as was requested by the Bureau of the Budget. In view of the fact that the Secretary of the Treasury was given the power to affect internal consolidation within his department and therefore to carry into effect the economies promised by the Hoover Commission, it seems to me we should stick to the House provision. I hope the Senate committee amendment will be rejected.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, the only answer I desire to make to the statement made by the Senator from Illinois is that in the past 3 years a reduction of $170,450 has been made. Because of that reduction the subcommittee unanimously agreed to the amount requested, and the full committee agreed to it also.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment on line 6, page 107. [Putting the question.] The "ayes" appear to have it——

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I ask for a division.

On a division, the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next committee amendment will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Miscellaneous expenses", on page 107, line 14, after the word "Department", to strike out "$300,000" and insert "$308,500."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Accounts—Salaries and expenses," on page 107, line 19, after the word "binding", to strike out "$1,875,000" and insert "$2,209,000."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment. [Putting the question.] The "ayes" appear to have it——

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I appreciate the desire of the Presiding Officer to get through quickly with a very crowded schedule, but I should like to say that last year the Bureau of Accounts was given $1,725,000. The House bill increased it to $1,875,000, or an increase of $150,000. The Senate committee is now increasing the amount to $2,209,000, or an increase of $334,000 more. While it is quite possible that the Bureau of the Budget may have come forward in recent weeks with a proposal for a further increase, in its original estimate it asked for only $1,919,000. If we are going to make economies, Mr. President, we must make them item by item, because I know that when we come to propose general cuts it will be said that the time to have made such proposals was when specific items were being considered.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, by reason of the increase in the cost of handling social-security accounts it was the unanimous decision of the subcommittee, as well as of the full committee, that the increase in question should be made. I hope the action of the committee will be sustained.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 107, line 19.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask for a division.

On a division the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next committee amendment will be stated.

The next amendment was, on page 108, after line 12 to strike out:

RECOINAGE OF SILVER COINS

For reimbursement of the Treasurer of the United States for the difference between the face value of subsidiary silver coins of the United States and the amount the same will produce in new coins, $150,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Distinctive Paper for United States Currency and Securities", on page 110, line 9, after the word "Department", to strike out "$1,745,000" and insert "$1,845,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS Mr. President, this amendment provides an increase of $100,000 for the purchase of the paper on which are printed bank notes and paper money of the United States. I believe this paper comes from one of the large companies, the Crane Co., of Pittsfield, Mass. I wonder if an explanation was given as to why the costs should go up by $100,000.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I am not interested in what company prints the sheets, and I do not care. I know we absolutely need more such paper because of the enormous amount of old money which has been returned for redemption by the Federal Reserve Board, and the United States Government must print money to take its place.

Mr. LUCAS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll and the following Senators answered to their names:

Anderson	Cordon	Frear
Brewster	Darby	Fulbright
Bridges	Donnell	George
Butler	Douglas	Gillette
Byrd	Dworshak	Graham
Capehart	Eastland	Green
Chapman	Ecton	Gurney
Chavez	Ellender	Hayden
Connally	Ferguson	Hendrickson
Hickenlooper	McCarthy	Robertson
Hill	McClellan	Russell
Hoey	McFarland	Saltonstall
Holland	McKellar	Schoeppel
Humphrey	McMahon	Smith, Maine
Ives	Magnuson	Smith, N. J.
Jenner	Malone	Sparkman
Johnson, Colo.	Martin	Stennis
Johnson, Tex.	Maybank	Thomas, Okla.
Kem	Millikin	Thomas, Utah
Kerr	Morse	Thye
Kilgore	Mundt	Tydings
Langer	Murray	Watkins
Leahy	Neely	Wherry
Lehman	O'Conor	Wiley
Lucas	O'Mahoney	Williams
McCarran	Pepper	Young

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. STENNIS in the chair). A quorum is present.

The Senator from South Carolina is recognized.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Illinois. I understand he wishes to make a short statement.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I should like to say that last year, in dealing with the appropriation bills, when those of us who wished to put into effect economy measures would rise at the conclusion of the debate and propose a general cut, we were told we should have made our objections to specific items as they were being considered. It was to remove that criticism, and in no sense to impede the progress of the Senate, that some of us have raised questions regarding individual items.

I may say that I shall not demand yea-and-nay votes except on very important items, nor shall I ask for quorum calls except on important items, although I may occasionally ask for a division. So there is no purpose to delay the proceedings of the Senate.

Coming to the particular matter under consideration, the item calls for an increased appropriation of $100,000, apparently to print Government money. It may be that the committee cast its eye on the coming deficit and found it necessary to print more money. That necessity could be removed by balancing the budget so that there will be less need for the operation of the printing press. So I hope that this increase will be rejected.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I should like merely to say that the $100,000 is to purchase additional paper for printing money to be put into the Federal Reserve System in place of the old money.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, I should like to add a few words to the statement of the chairman of the subcommittee. The increase from $1,745,000 to $1,845,000 has all but a handful of small items in one single package. I want the record to show exactly what the breakdown is of this particular item of $1,845,000.

The personal service item is $69,565. That is all that goes for the hiring of persons.

Travel, $100.

Transportation of things, $81,870. That includes freight.

Communication service, $75.

Other contractual services, $100.

Services performed by other agencies, $2,000.

The balance of the $1,845,000 goes solely for the purchase of distinctive paper to print the currency and the obligations of the United States. If there be one item in this bill that should not be cut, this is it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The next committee amendment will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Customs—Salaries and expenses," on page 112, line 5, after "(19 U. S. C. 1525", to strike out "$36,500,000" and insert "$36,806,360."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, last year Congress appropriated for salaries and expenses of the Bureau of Customs $35,150,000. The House bill provided $35,500,000, or an increase of $1,350,000. The Senate committee proposes to increase the House figure by a further $306,000. It would seem to me that in view of the fact that the Bureau has already been given an increase by the House, a further increase should be unnecessary.

I hope the amendment will be rejected.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Internal Revenue—Salaries and expenses," on page 113, line 9, after "(26 U. S. C. 3792)", to strike out "$245,600,000" and insert "$245,547,500."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Narcotics—Salaries and expenses," on page 114, line 15, after the word "justice", to strike out "$1,750,000" and insert "$1,908,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, last year Congress appropriated $1,610,000 for the Bureau of Narcotics. The House bill calls for $1,750,000, or an increase of $140,000. The Senate committee provides for an additional increase of $158,000. I know that the Bureau of Narcotics is doing extremely good work, but it would seem to me that in view of the increase granted by the House no further increase should be necessary.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I should like to have the attention of the distinguished Republican member of the subcommittee, the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES]. I should like to say that the Senator from New Hampshire and I very carefully went over this item, and we thought that in view of the narcotic situation in this country the increase should be granted in order to enable the Bureau to obtain evidence to convict violators, and for other purposes.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, I may say that if we go back over a period of 20 or 30 years this appropriation has been approximately the same during all that time. The problem of narcotics and drugs generally is becoming increasingly acute. The situation is getting to be very serious in some of our cities. In view of the illegal importation of narcotics from abroad and the situation in connection with the use of domestic narcotics, such as marihuana, we are faced with an increasingly serious problem. I am for economy all along the line. However, among the appropriations which can be justified from the point of view of the general good of the country, certainly the protection of the public against the rapidly increased use of narcotic products is of vital importance.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment on page 114, line 15.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Engraving and Printing—Salaries and expenses," on page 115, line 13, after the word "investigations", to strike out "$15,500,000" and insert "$16,835,000."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, the House appropriated $15,500,000 for salaries and expenses of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which was an increase of $350,000 over the current appropriations. The Senate has raised this amount by a further $1,335,000. I am somewhat puzzled. Possibly one reason may be that with the anticipated Federal deficit there would be need for additional paper money. That threat could be removed by balancing the Federal budget. By doing so, we would spend less money and there would be less need for Government bills and Government notes. I realize there is a certain amount of sardonic humor in what I am trying to say. But I oppose the committee amendment because the Bureau has already been given an increase by the House.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, one reason for the increase is due to the action of the Congress last year in passing laws which put unclassified workers on a different wage scale. If we pass laws, we must appropriate money to pay the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment on page 115, line 13.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Secret Service Division—Salaries and expenses," on page 116, line 19, after the word "criminals", to strike out "$2,100,000" and insert "$2,250,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Coast Guard—Acquisition, construction, and improvements," on page 121, line 9, after the word "government", to strike out "$15,000,000" and insert "$18,964,000."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title II—Post Office Department," on page 122, line 3, after the word "amount", to strike out "(not to exceed $401,500,000"; in line 7, after the word "specified", to strike out "(which latter amount" and insert "and the sum needed", and in line 9, after the word "Postmaster", to strike out "General)" and insert "General."

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, this is a very important amendment. Under the original wording as it came from the House the Government would make good only $401,500,000 of the postal deficit. The postal deficit last year was about $550,000,000. It is anticipated that unless greater efficiencies are effected, or unless postage rates are increased, the deficit will be at least $550,000,000 this year.

In making its recommendation the House proceeded on the assumption that the postal rate increase bill, which had been passed by the House, would become law. The postal rate bill as it passed the House provided for revenue of approximately $125,000,000. A similar bill (S. 1103) was on the calendar of the Senate until January. In January, on motion of the distinguished Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON], who is chairman of the committee, it was taken off the calendar and recommitted to the committee. The committee has not reported the bill. Mr. President, we can see that the effect of striking out the limitation of $401,000,000 would be to provide no limit on the amount of the postal deficit which would be underwritten by the Treasury, and, furthermore, it would remove the incentive for passing a postal rate increase bill. This is true because it would not be absolutely necessary in order to pay postal expenses. However, if there is retained in the bill the provision that not more than $401,000,000 shall be underwritten by the Government—and we hope it will be less—there will be an absolute necessity to pass a postal rate increase bill.

We know what the situation is with respect to the cost of postal services. We know that first-class mail pays its own way. We know also that approximately $150,000,000 worth of unpaid services are performed by the post office for Government business and subsidies, for which the private users should not be asked to pay. Therefore, we have approximately $400,000,000 which would have to be met from two sources, namely, an increase in postal efficiency and an increase in the postal rates.

The groups which are getting service for less than cost are newspapers and magazines on second-class matter, direct-mail advertising on third-class matter, and the users of parcel post on fourth-class matter. If we were to allocate the postal deficit of $400,000,000 amongst these three users, we would find that newspapers and magazines are, in effect, receiving a subsidy of approximately $200,000,000 a year, or half the deficit. We would find that the third-class users of the mails, the advertisers, are getting a subsidy of about $120,000,000, and that the fourth-class-mail users are getting a subsidy of about $80,000,000.

Mr. President, these are the very groups in America which are demanding more vehemently than any other group that the budget be balanced. If we keep this provision in the bill and obligate the Government to pay not more than $401,500,000 of the postal deficit, we should force the postal-rate-increase bill through this session. If we do not do so, we give a complete excuse to anyone who wants to prevent the passage of a bill providing for an increase in postal rates. I think it is time, in common language, that we "cut bait."

Mr. MAYBANK. Certainly I could not quarrel with what the Senator from Illinois has said. However, if we would leave the limitation in the bill, we would still have quite a postal deficit. In other words, with the increase of $125,000,000 over the House figure of $401,000,000 we would have in the Post Office Department a deficit of $526,000,000, which would be payable from general funds of the Treasury. The Appropriations Committee cannot legislate on postal rates. All that the Appropriations Committee can do is to appropriate sufficient money to cover operating expenses of a department.

I think that if this language of the House bill is not deleted it might cause suffering to some people of whom the Senator might not think of, because already the deliveries have been reduced to one a day, as the Senator knows.

As chairman of the Subcommittee on Appropriations, I wish to say that it is not up to us in the Committee on Appropriations to legislate, and I am fearful that if we impose a limitation it is going to hurt somebody other than those of whom the Senator speaks.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I appreciate the Senator's high motives and the purpose behind what he is doing, but I point out that if we keep this limitation there will then be a great stimulus to act upon the postal-rate-increase bill and get it passed at this session of Congress.

Mr. FREAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield to the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. FREAR. I believe the junior Senator from Delaware agrees with the junior Senator from Illinois that the postal-rate-increase bill should be acted upon by the Senate. I do not concur with him that the method he suggests is the proper way of getting that bill before the Senate. I also am in favor of balancing the budget, though I am rather conservative in some of the methods I would follow. I wonder if the junior Senator from Illinois, if his amendment is agreed to, would be agreeable to reducing the force of the Post Office Department, providing the rate-increase bill is not passed and the Post Office Department does not secure the funds with which to pay the personnel.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, this Post Office business is a case of ring-around-the-rosy. We face a postal deficit, and various interested parties say economy should be brought about somewhere—that is, anywhere that it will not affect them. The Postmaster General says the deficit should be cut by an increase in rates. The publishers say it should be made up in improvements and efficiency in the Post Office. Congress says to the Postmaster General, "Reduce the deficit," so the Postmaster General reduces the service. Whether that action is planned with the idea that we will hear from our constituents who will tell us that they want the service maintained, and that we will therefore give orders to the Postmaster General, I will not say. The effect is that everyone passes the buck to someone else, and in the process the Post Office Department is in the red five hundred or five hundred and fifty million dollars a year.

Mr. President, the able Senator from Delaware suggested that this was not the proper method of forcing the postal-rate bill to the floor of the Senate for action. It may not be a proper method, but it is a sure method of forcing it to the floor. If we keep this limitation, Senators can be certain that a postal-rate bill will come out to the floor before the end of this session, in order that the salaries of the postal employees may be paid. This is really a way of getting action. At the present time that bill is buried in the subcellar. It came to light for a short time, but then it was put down in the subcellar, away from the sunlight.

Mr. FREAR. I dislike to disagree with the Senator from Illinois, but I do not believe that bill is in the cellar at the moment. I think it is very much alive, and I entertain great hope that it will be brought before the Senate before adjournment.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Rejecting the committee amendment and keeping the limitation is a sure way of getting it to the floor.

Mr. FREAR. I wonder if the Senator from Illinois would go along with a bill which would eliminate all penalty and franked mail, and let each department bear its own mail costs.

Mr. DOUGLAS. I would be for that.

Mr. FREAR. I call particular attention of the Senator to the fact that I included franked mail in my statement.

Mr. DOUGLAS. That is all right. As a matter of fact, I think that the people should realize that of the $73,000,000 cost for franked mail, only about $1,100,000 may properly be charged to Senators and Representatives; $72,000,000 of it is chargeable to the departments.

Mr. FREAR. I believe that to be true, and that is properly called "penalty" mail. I believe the Senator from Illinois also recognizes the fact that all the money spent by the Post Office Department is not controlled by the Postmaster General. Congress fixes the wages of the postal employees. The Interstate Commerce Commission establishes the rates which may be charged by the railroads for carrying the mail. The CAB sets the rates for airplane mail carriage, whereby a subsidy is paid to the air lines. A very small fraction of the money allotted to the Postmaster General is under his control, relating to activities in which he can perhaps bring about some increased efficiency.

Mr. DOUGLAS. In the first place, this has nothing to do with rate increases. In the second place, the Postmaster General does have control over the number of employees. He does not have control over the rates which they may be paid, but he does have control over the number of employees and the efficient use of personnel. But now we are talking about postal rates, and I say that if we retain this limitation of $401,000,000, we can be pretty certain that the postal-rate bill will come to the floor of the Senate, in order that the employees, railroad and air line, may be paid.

Mr. FREAR. I wish I could be as sure as is the Senator from Illinois that if the provision were retained the postal-rate bill would be brought to the floor. I believe I might be more inclined to go along with him if that were the case.

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Mr. President, will the Senator from Illinois yield?

Mr. DOUGLAS. I yield to the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Will the Senator state what his amendment is, and on what page it is to be inserted?

Mr. DOUGLAS. On page 122, lines 3 and 4. The amendment is to eliminate the maximum sum of $401,500,000 which the House provided was to be the amount advanced to the Post Office Department from the General Treasury. The committee amendment, as I understand, proposes to eliminate that limitation, so that, no matter how large the deficit, the Treasury will underwrite it.

Mr. MAYBANK. That is correct.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The amendment is to retain the language as it was passed by the House and to reject the committee deletion.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, I think there are one or two misunderstandings with reference to this item. The amount appropriated is not set forth in the figure on page 122. The amount of the appropriation follows in a series of figures. The language on page 122 does nothing but provide that the amount of money appropriated shall be met, first, by postal receipts, and the balance by an appropriation. But nowhere in the bill is there a provision for expending more money than is appropriated, and the figures for appropriation are definite and certain.

PROTECTION OF GOVERNMENT AGAINST COMMUNISTS AND SUBVERSIVE GROUPS—MUNDT BILL

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, notice has been given that soon after the completion of the consideration of the pending bill a motion will be made to call up the Hawaiian statehood bill. I was chairman of the subcommittee which held hearings on the Mundt-Johnson-Ferguson bill. The matter of Hawaiian statehood can wait, and I desire to give notice now that when the motion is made to call up the Hawaiian statehood resolution, I shall offer as a substitute a motion to call up the Mundt bill.

Mr. President, recently I happened to pass the White House, and in front of the White House was a group of pickets, headed by one Paul Robeson. This country needs the machinery to put Communists and other traitors under lock and key. Today, when we are fighting an undeclared war, the enactment of the Mundt bill is absolutely necessary, absolutely essential, for the defense of the United States.

I noticed in the press a few days ago that on the Pacific Coast there was organized agitation, led by a well-known Communist to prevent loading ships containing war supplies destined for Korea. All over the world there has been a Communist drive against the unloading of ships carrying arms which the United States is sending to its Allies. If we become involved in a major war there will be widespread sabotage from Maine to California, and there is not a scintilla of authority on the books by which these traitors can be handled. I do not think the Congress could consider more important legislation than the Mundt bill. It is necessary that the bill be passed for the defense of the country.

Mr. President, I read from an editorial published in the Brooklyn Eagle of July 6, 1950. Speaking of the Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde character of Communists it says:

> This new determination to draw the line now, backed by a hope that only through action can another major war be averted, assumes a Jekyll and Hyde character at home. It is time we cracked down. Membership in the Communist Party must be branded illegal. It must be made a matter of record that party members are traitors. It is not enough to be satisfied that this is true. Legislation must back the knowledge.

Mr. President, I certainly agree entirely with that statement in the editorial. From the study I have made of the bill sponsored by the distinguished Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MUNDT], the distinguished Senator from South Carolina [Mr. JOHNSTON] and the distinguished Senator from Michigan [Mr. FERGUSON], I know it is a bill which, if enacted, will place Americans on guard and give them the machinery to protect their country.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. EASTLAND. I yield.

Mr. MUNDT. May I first of all express gratification over the attitude being exemplified by the Senator from Mississippi. I wish to ask him if he noticed in the morning's newspaper a story quoting the Director of the FBI, J. Edgar Hoover, the man who has probably done more to protect the security of this country against saboteurs and subversive activities than any other individual in the history of the Republic? Under the heading of "Red Underground Activities Rising, FBI Says," the story appears in this morning's Washington Post, beginning as follows:

> United States Communists have increased their underground operations during the past year, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said yesterday. The result, he said, is the heaviest work load his agency has ever handled.

I wonder whether the Senator notes the emphasis J. Edgar Hoover has placed upon the underground nature of this conspiracy, and the fact that the only legislation now before the United States Congress for changing this underground activity into an activity where it is to be open is the so-called Mundt-Ferguson-Johnston bill.

Mr. EASTLAND. The Senator from South Dakota is entirely correct. Everyone knows that we have in the United States Communists who are operating underground. Unless the Senator's bill is enacted into law, neither the Justice Department nor any other department of the Government can claim that we have the legal machinery to cope with such activities.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. EASTLAND. I yield.

Mr. FERGUSON. I also am delighted that the distinguished Senator from Mississippi has taken the stand he has, and that he has given such notice as he has today. I want to ask him whether it is not a fact that today the underground activity of the Communist Party is a legal activity, and that we cannot strike at it with any law now on the statute books?

Mr. EASTLAND. That is true.

Mr. FERGUSON. If the bill the Senator has spoken of is enacted into law the underground conspiracy will be compelled to come out into the open, where we can see it and where we can cope with it. If the conspiracy does not come out into the open it will be illegal. The Communists by remaining underground will be guilty of an illegal act, and the FBI will be enabled to render highly important service to the country under the proposed statute, by bringing the conspiracy out into the open light so everyone may know that it exists, so everyone may know how the money used by the conspirators is raised, what the money is used for, and if they do not disclose the source of the money they use, such failure also will constitute an illegal act.

Mr. EASTLAND. I agree with the Senator.

Mr. President, the Communist traitors in the United States are today free members, in good standing, of a free society. We have absolutely no machinery with which to protect ourselves from them. They are free to come and go and do as they will. They are free to conspire to injure this country.

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. EASTLAND. I yield.

Mr. McMAHON. I have just sent for the bill referred to, which I intend to study if we are going to have quick action on it. The Senator from Mississippi stated that we have no machinery with which to attack the Communist conspiracy in this country and that we have no law on the statute books by which we can reach them. I ask the Senator under what law were the 11 men convicted in New York and sentenced to jail, a conviction on which an appeal is now pending? I am somewhat puzzled by the Senator's statement.

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, the Senator knows that there is a chance to get a few of the leaders under such a procedure as was used in the case the Senator referred to. The Senator is also bound to know that the Department of Justice and the Central Intelligence Agency have come before us crying for additional authority. The statutes we have today are totally inadequate to deal with the question.

Mr. McMAHON. I am not debating that.

Mr. EASTLAND. Let me finish. The laws now on the statute books are totally inadequate. There is on the calendar the bill dealing with internal security, which should follow the bill now under consideration. The point I was making is that it is absolutely necessary to pass both bills for the defense of the United States and we should not take up the Hawaii statehood bill, which is not a war measure, now, but should take up measures whose purpose is to protect the United States.

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. EASTLAND. I yield for a question.

Mr. McMAHON. I do not intend to debate the provisions of the bill with the Senator at this time. I simply wanted some clarification and information respecting the Senator's statement, in view of the conviction in New York; that is all. Now I have obtained it, and I am satisfied.

Mr. EASTLAND. I am glad the Senator from Connecticut is satisfied. We are trying to fill gaps in the law which are necessary to be filled, and so far as the internal-security bill is concerned it has been requested by the Department of Justice.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. EASTLAND. Yes; I yield for a question.

Mr. FERGUSON. In view of what the distinguished Senator from Connecticut has just said, the Senator from Michigan would like to state that the record distinctly shows, and the charge by Judge Medina to the jury in New York distinctly shows, that the conviction of the 11 Communists under the Smith Act was obtained solely by reason of the fact that the prosecution was able to prove a certain kind of conspiracy, to prove that the 11 individuals were seeking to overthrow the Government by force and violence. That is what a prosecution under the Smith Act requires.

The Communist conspirators in this country are now trying to have eliminated from any record of their activity all evidence which would point to their advocacy of force and violence. Barring such evidence they can claim their activities are perfectly legal and beyond the reach of law, even though their activities are nonetheless a conspiracy against the Government and institutions of the United States.

The Senator from South Dakota referred to the article appearing in this morning's newspaper quoting J. Edgar Hoover. If today war should break out between the United States and Russia it would be necessary for J. Edgar Hoover and his men to seize literally thousands of Communists who are now working underground, who would sabotage America to the *n*th degree. But that would be purely a wartime security measure. While we are living in this period of "no war, no peace," it is necessary and proper that we should have enacted into law a measure to make it illegal for the Communists to operate underground, whether their conspiracy against the United States would result in overthrow of the Government by force and violence or in sabotage.

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, I do not think the Department of Justice would even claim that it has sufficient legal machinery to handle the situation.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HILL in the chair). Does the Senator from Mississippi yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. EASTLAND. I yield.

Mr. MAYBANK. I wish to associate myself and join with the Senator from Mississippi, in the interest of having considered, when we have completed action on the appropriation bill, bills in the interest of the security of the country, rather than measures for the admission of additional States or anything of that sort. Certainly I hope the security of the country will be the first order of business.

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, I was reading from a very appropriate editorial appearing in the Brooklyn Eagle. I read further from it:

> Certainly while decent Americans are fighting and dying, in some instances, because communism must be contained, there is no reason why the Red termites here should be free members of a free society and in good legal standing. In time of war we should not provide platforms for the enemy, nor should we permit him to roam at will and sabotage the minds of the gullible and the industries that will be called on to support the troops at the front. What are we waiting for?

That is the end of the editorial.

Mr. President, again I say that the Communists, who are undertaking to overthrow our Government, should be locked up. The Mundt bill provides machinery for that purpose. As chairman of the subcommittee handling the Mundt bill, I serve notice now that when a motion is made to consider the Hawaiian statehood bill, I shall move as a substitute the consideration of the bill of the distinguished Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MUNDT].

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. EASTLAND. I yield the floor.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota is recognized.

Mr. MUNDT. I desire to comment very briefly on the subject which is before us at the moment.

First of all, I wish to say that I am highly gratified by the assurance given us by the Senator who handled the long hearings on Senate bill 2311 that there will be a vote in the Senate on that bill at this session. Of course, each Senator will now study carefully the proposed legislation, as he should; and each Senator is now aware of the fact that he will have a chance to vote either "yea" or "nay" on the question of the passage of that bill.

Mr. President, I do not propose to discuss S. 2311 at length at this time, for the very good reason that, of course, we should proceed with our handling of the appropriation bill.

However, I should like to focus attention for a moment on an argument which has not yet been mentioned. We have been discussing the possibility of sabotage on the part of the Communists if we go to war with Russia, but we have not said much this afternoon about the fact that we are now at war with communism. Casualty lists are coming back from the front in that war against communism. American boys are dying in a war against communism in Korea. American boys are there fighting, in some instances almost with their bare hands, against armaments and tanks made by the Communists in Russia—against mighty tanks and powerful artillery. I can think of nothing the Senate could do next week that would give greater encouragement to the American heroes who now are fighting communism in Korea, than for the Senate to take action which would result in having our troops in Korea hear over the radio or read in their press dispatches that we have finally taken action to control the Communists in America who are doing everything they can to sabotage the war effort being made by American armies in Korea.

Mr. President, let me call attention to a typical headline in the Communist Daily Worker, a paper financed and published by the enemies of America in our midst. In the copy of that paper which I now hold in my hand—the issue for July 6—there appears the headline: "Youth group gets 100,000 to sign for peace since Truman invasion."

Mr. President, I assure you that those who would allege that there is politics on the part of those of us who are trying to do something legislatively against communism, should not make that accusation against members of the Republican Party who, along with members of the Democratic Party, resent a headline such as the one I have just read, in which the effort of the American boys who are dying in Korea is termed a "Truman Invasion" or a "Wall Street War," or an "Imperialistic War."

I am happy to have this demonstration on the floor of the Senate this afternoon by the distinguished Senator from Mississippi [Mr. EASTLAND] and the distinguished Senator from South Carolina [Mr. MAYBANK]; and I hope other Senators will join them—members of the great Democratic Party—in standing up and saying that they, too, will insist on having a vote in the Senate on the only measure before the United States Congress by which an attempt is made to do something effective at home about this growing menace of communism.

Mr. President, this afternoon in my office I had an opportunity to read an advance issue of the Communist Daily Worker for next Sunday. Senators will be interested in knowing that in large part it is devoted to a deliberate effort to create disunity in America, to destroy the almost unanimous support which this country has so rightfully given to the American effort in the war in Korea, to libel and slander and misrepresent every effort by the Congress and the country and the Army and the President and his Cabinet to turn back the Communist forces of tyranny at the battle line, where American heroes are giving their blood and in some cases their lives in the same cause.

Americans should be advised of this Communist propaganda. S. 2311 will force the Communist conspiracy to disband or to come out into the open where innocent and gullible Americans will no longer be misled by it.

So, Mr. President, next week, or at the first opportunity, we are going to ask the Senate of the United States to consider and to vote on the only measure before the Congress which would put a stop to the traitorous actions of Communists here at home. I submit that the time has come for us to face this challenge like men, and to get that bill out of the pigeonhole and on to the floor of the Senate, not to permit any committee or any Senator to invoke a type of cloture which locks behind the committee door a bill which has been approved by a vote of 12 to 1 in the great Senate Judiciary Committee, a bill which the country is clamoring to have considered and acted upon by the Congress, a bill which has the approval of practically every outstanding patriotic organization in this country, including the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Catholic War Veterans, the National Educational Association, the DAR, the United States Chamber of Commerce, and many other fine, splendid organizations. Those organizations are requesting us, as representatives of the people, to consider and take action on that bill.

Mr. IVES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MUNDT. I am happy to yield.

Mr. IVES. Is it a fact that the American Bar Association has also endorsed this proposal?

Mr. MUNDT. Yes; it is a fact that the American Bar Association has twice endorsed it and is actively supporting it. A statement in support of it by the American Bar Association will be found in the hearings on Senate bill 2311.

Mr. President, I ask Senators to determine, over the week end, in their own minds and consciences, just how we are measuring up on the home front, as compared with what we did after Pearl Harbor in World War II. We took action then; we saw to it that the German-American Bundists—who were no more and no less traitors than are the Communists now—were stopped; we did not coddle them; we did not court their votes with favor; we did not damn them with faint praise; we did not act toward them in a way similar to that in which certain persons who today call themselves anti-Communists are acting toward the Communist traitors in the United States today. There are in our country, today, various persons in public life who will speak ill of the Communists, will castigate them in their speeches, will denounce them and criticize them and cry out against them, but who are opposed to every piece of proposed legislation which would make the Communists' activities impossible in America, which would strip the mantle of secrecy from them, which would force them out into the open, which would give the American people every opportunity to identify them and to help curtail their activities, and which would by law deny them Government jobs and Federal passports.

So, Mr. President, I am gratified by the fine demonstration this afternoon from Senators on the other side of the aisle, which shows conclusively that the effort to secure the enactment of this measure is not a political effort, but is a patriotic call to do something now, before it is to late, before communism in America has destroyed the effectiveness of our work in a great effort for peace abroad, before efforts can successfully be made to bewilder and befuddle the public and to destroy the support of the people for the great American effort now being made in Korea.

Mr. President, I shall not say more at this time, other than to state that I am grateful for the fact that we now know there is a bipartisan effort at home to support the bipartisan effort abroad against communism. I hope it will never again be referred to as a partisan matter, because these challenges by communism are too great to be played on a party organ or to be discussed in political terms.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. McCARTHY. I should like to ask the Senator whether he is aware of the fact that, in addition to the other arguments which he has advanced in favor of his proposed legislation, it also is very necessary legislation for the guidance of the President's Loyalty Board. In that connection I wonder whether the Senator is aware of the fact that I received from the chairman of the Loyalty Board, Mr. Seth Richardson, several months ago, a request to submit to the Board any information I had which might reflect upon the loyalty of certain individuals named in his letter. I replied to the chairman, pointing out that it would be necesary for me to know what he considered to be evidence of disloyalty, before submitting my material to him. I said, for example:

No. 1. Do you consider membership in Communist-front organizations evidence of disloyalty?

No. 2. Do you consider a man disloyal if he belongs to the Communist Party?

I set forth various other questions. I wonder whether the Senator is aware of the fact that I received a letter from the Chairman of the Loyalty Board saying in effect that these were not questions which could be answered "Yes" or "No." Does the Senator follow me?

Mr. MUNDT. I do.

Mr. McCARTHY. I wrote and, in effect, said, "Before I give you evidence, I must know whether you would consider membership in the Communist Party on the part of a Government employee evidence of disloyalty." The Chairman wrote me in reply, sending me a bunch of documents about a foot high, and saying, "I cannot answer that question. You may be able to find the answer in these documents."

I wonder whether the Senator is aware of the fact that the President's own Loyalty Board is badly in need of the Senator's bill in order that the Board may have a bit of guidance.

Mr. MUNDT. I was not aware of that rather strange and bizarre answer to the question of whether the head of the Loyalty Board would consider membership in the Communist Party evidence of disloyalty. Certainly if he does not consider membership in the Communist Party evidence of disloyalty, the Board had better be abolished. The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, as well as, I think, everyone on this floor, recognize that membership in the Communist Party is automatically evidence of allegiance and a badge of loyalty to Soviet Russia, with whom we are engaged in a bloody contest in Korea at this moment. If it is not disloyalty, then we shall have to change the definition of the term.

I think many Americans are also not aware of this, Mr. President: At the moment, there is not a single scintilla of legislation on the books which in any way would punish, for example, an underground Communist who might have smuggled himself into some department or agency of our Government, who deliberately appoints other Communists to important Government posts as part of his job, in order to establish a cell, and who gets caught in the act. There is not a single law that he would have violated, and not one penalty that can be leveled against him. He might accidentally lose his job after a while, but if he does, it is because somebody over him, by executive fiat, removes him. He has not violated the law.

Mr. President, we need this legislation if we are to make an all-out effort to deter such acts of godless conspiratorial communism.

It does not make very much sense to a large number of good Americans who belong to the organizations I have mentioned to be spending billions of dollars throughout the world against communism; to be drafting young Americans as of this moment to be sent to Korea, to give their lives against communism; and to have Senators duck and dodge the slings and arrows of political disapproval here at home, because we do not want to measure up and stand up and be counted for or against a bill to do something about communism here and now.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. President, will the Senator again yield?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. McCARTHY. I wonder whether the Senator has ever seen the photostat of the document which I now give him, dated April 3, 1950. It is a photostatic copy of the secret minutes of a meeting of the President's Loyalty Board, containing very lengthy deliberations, at the time the President called upon that Board to pass upon some 81 cases, which I have heretofore called to the attention of the Senate. If the Senator has not yet seen that, and I assume he has not, I call his attention to page 3 of the report, showing that the members argued at some length as to whether they should inquire into the question of bad security risks. The Senator will find the argument was put forth that, even though such information were not given to the public and to the Senate, it should be given to the President, so that he, himself, would know who were considered by the Loyalty Board to be bad security risks.

If the Senator will turn to the bottom of page 2, he will find that the Board discarded the idea of even reporting to the President those who were bad security risks. If the Senator will refer to the last three or four lines, he will find that the reasoning was certainly unusual. They stated that if they were to go into the question of bad security risks, even though no report were made thereon, there would be danger of the information's leaking out, so that the general public might know that certain individuals were bad security risks.

The Senator may not be able to answer some of the questions I have in mind, but I wish he would take that report in its entirety—it is the only photostat I have, so I shall appreciate it if the Senator will handle it carefully—and go through it. I am sure that when he gets through with the secret minutes of the President's own Loyalty Board he will be convinced that there is another very important reason why his bill should be passed, and that is, for the guidance of the misnamed Loyalty Board.

Mr. MUNDT. I appreciate the Senator's suggestion. I have never before seen this document. If the Senator desires to leave it with me for a while I shall be happy to examine it over the coming week end.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from South Dakota yield to the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. MUNDT. I yield.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, I do not desire to delay at any length consideration of the appropriation bill, but we do have a stopgap resolution in effect which enables each and every one of the agencies of the Government to function until the first of the month, and that gives us an opportunity to pause for other matters of paramount concern. Because I believe that this question of communism in America and what we shall do about it is as vital as is appropriating money to fight it in other countries, and realizing that, as indicated by the distinguished Senator from South Dakota and also as indicated in the past by the junior Senator from Michigan, and, today, by the distinguished Senators from Mississippi and South Carolina, I want to call attention to certain facts.

First, I think those who are interested in legislation of this kind will want to know that other countries, such as Australia, have been vitally interested in this same question.

A bill was recently introduced in the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia by the Prime Minister, the Right Honorable R. G. Menzies, entitled "A bill for an act to provide for the dissolution of the Australian Communist Party and other Communist organizations, to disqualify Communists from holding certain offices, and for purposes connected therewith." The bill would even bar Communists from employment in vital industry. I want to read the whereas clauses of that bill, in order that we may become familiar with what Communists are doing in other countries, similar to what they are doing in our country. I read:

Whereas the Australian Communist Party, in accordance with the basic theory of communism, as expounded by Marx and Lenin, engages in activities or operations designed to assist or accelerate the coming of a revolutionary situation, in which the Australian Communist Party, acting as a revolutionary minority, would be able to seize power and establish a dictatorship of the proletariat; and

Whereas the Australian Communist Party also engages in activities or operations designed to bring about the overthrow or dislocation of the established system of government of Australia and the attainment of economic, industrial or political ends by force, violence, intimidation, or fraudulent practices; and

Whereas the Australian Communist Party is an integral part of the world Communist revolutionary movement, which, in the King's dominions and elsewhere, engages in espionage and sabotage and in activities or operations of a treasonable or subversive nature and also engages in activities or operations similar to those, or having an object similar to the object of those, referred to in the last two preceding paragraphs of this preamble; and

Whereas certain industries are vital to the security and defense of Australia (including the coal-mining industry, the iron and steel industry, the engineering industry, the building industry, the transport industry, and the power industry); and

Whereas activities or operations of, or encouraged by, the Australian Communist Party, and activities or operations of, or encouraged by, members or officers of that party and other persons who are Communists, are designed to cause, by means of strikes or stoppages of work, and have, by those means, caused, dislocation, disruption, or retardation of production or work in those vital industries; and

Whereas it is necessary, for the security and defense of Australia and for the execution and maintenance of the constitution and of the laws of the Commonwealth, that the Australian Communist Party, and bodies of persons affiliated with that party, should be dissolved and their property forfeited to the Commonwealth, and that members and officers of that party or of any of those bodies and other persons who are Communists should be disqualified from employment by the Commonwealth and from holding office in an industrial organization a substantial number of whose members are engaged in a vital industry.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that this proposed bill be inserted in the RECORD at the end of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, the State of Michigan is vitally interested in the question of Communists in industry. Yesterday a committee of four Michigan State senators, who constitute a committee to investigate the establishment in Michigan of a loyalty program, came to the seat of the government of the United States, in Washington. The junior Senator from Michigan had conferred with their counsel the day before, and he conferred with the committee yesterday. They said they learned—and I have heard him testify to the fact—that the FBI Director, Mr. Edgar Hoover, had stated that there are approximately 1,200 Communists in the State of Michigan. The committee wanted to know whether they could secure a list of persons who are members of the Communist Party and who reside and operate in the State of Michigan. Naturally, they were told by the FBI that no such information could be given. Why? Because, Mr. President, it is not illegal in this country to be a member of the Communist Party, and, therefore, the FBI could not and would not give the names of such persons.

If the bill which is proposed to be brought up for consideration be passed, then, Mr. President, the State of Michigan, the State of New York, the State of Illinois, and every other State will be able to know who are the Communists, because if they are members of the Communist Party they must register.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. FERGUSON. I shall be happy to yield.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I appreciate what the Senator has said, and he knows that we have before us the problem of peacetime disloyalty as to which our laws are very inadequate. Of course, the bill deals with the Communist problem, and the Senator knows we have appointed a subcommittee of the Committee on the Judiciary to give the question some study, because, during wartime, we have power to take care of treasonable acts, but our peacetime laws on the question of disloyalty, whether it be communistic disloyalty or any other kind, are woefully inadequate. There is no crime involved in most cases. It is high time we reviewed the whole subject of acts of disloyalty in peacetime. I know the Senator from Michigan and I feel very keenly about it. It will require a great deal of legal study, but I hope we can attack the problem in a broad way.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. FERGUSON. I yield.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, I think the Senator from Washington has put his finger on a very important point which we should consider very seriously between now and the time we vote next week.

If we were in a war declared by Congress, there would be many ways in which we could deal with disloyalty and espionage. But we are not officially at war; there has been no declaration of war. There is shooting going on, many American boys are dying, and many serious consequences are flowing from the battle in which we are engaged, but there is no declared war. So we should have legislation in order to deal with these peacetime situations.

I wonder if the Senator from Michigan will permit me to ask unanimous consent to have inserted in the RECORD at the conclusion of his remarks an editorial which has just been brought in by messenger, appearing in the National Tribune—The Stars and Stripes, of Thursday, July 13. I think it is a very significant editorial, because it comes from one of the great newspapers of the United States.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 2.)

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, it is true, as pointed out by the Senator from Washington, that there is a subcommittee of the Committee on the Judiciary appointed to study further details with regard to subversive activities. But, Mr. President, this bill of which we speak has received the careful attention not only of committees in the Eighty-first Congress, but in the Eightieth Congress. It has received days and weeks of careful attention not only of Senators who are members of the Judiciary Committee and are students of the law, but of very distinguished outside counsel, in order that we might offer within the framework of the Constitution, a law which can cope with the situation.

As I said before, Mr. President, the State of Michigan and every other State, and all the possessions of the United States, are interested in this question. It should and must be taken care of on a national basis, so that when registration is complete the State of Michigan or the city of Detroit will be able to know who are the Communists, who are the conspirators, that reside in that State or in that city.

Mr. President, it is a well known fact that a few months ago there was in operation in the city of Detroit a sabotage school receiving money from the Communist Party. The time has come to bring out on the surface the fact as to who is furnishing money for such education to destroy America. An article from the Daily Worker has been read today. The coming Sunday edition will be used to sabotage the effort of the United States of America. That newspaper is not supported by the advertising which it carries. Who supports the Daily Worker? We need to know the facts, such as the facts of financing, that lie behind the Communist movement in America. This bill will do that.

I will say that this bill is on a par, in importance, with the appropriation bill. The reason why I make these remarks today and have asked to place in the RECORD the Australian proposal, at the expense of time spent considering the appropriation bill, is in order that the Members of the Senate may examine it in detail before the bill is brought to the floor, so that they may be able, without undue debate, to pass the bill, and that it may be sent to the House, passed by the House, signed by the President, and become the law of the land in this very critical period. It will enable us to cope with this critical situation, and to meet the domestic aggression of the Communists, whose international aggression our boys are fighting today in Korea. In this fair land of ours, Mr. President, there is actual aggression by the Communists, and we would be better prepared to fight that aggression if we have this law on our statute books. We were caught short-handed in Korea. We did not have our big guns near the front. Mr. President, we are warned, though, concerning the situation in America. Let us assume that our Intelligence Agency did not say when the North Koreans were going to come across the thirty-eighth parallel. I want to warn America that our Intelligence Agency says that the enemy is now in America. Why can we not pass this bill? Why can we not roll this bill up as one big gun, as one big bomber? Yes, Mr. President, I say the enactment of this bill would be the atomic bomb to the Communists in America. It would destroy them at the very roots. Therefore, I have taken this time to speak on it even though I am delaying consideration of the omnibus appropriation bill.

EXHIBIT 1

[From the Parliament of the Commonwealth, House of Representatives, April 27, 1950]

(Brought in by the Prime Minister, the Right Honorable R. G. Menzies)

An act to provide for the Dissolution of the Australian Communist Party and of other Communist Organizations, to disqualify Communists from holding certain Offices, and for purposes connected therewith.

PREAMBLE

Whereas the constitution empowers the Parliament to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of the Commonwealth with respect to the naval and military defence of the Commonwealth and of the several states; and

Whereas under the constitution the executive power of the Commonwealth is vested in the King and is exercisable by the Governor-General as the King's representative, and extends to the execution and maintenance of the constitution and of the laws of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas the constitution also empowers the Parliament to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of the Commonwealth with respect to matters incidental to the execution of any power vested by the constitution in the Parliament of the Commonwealth or in the government of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas the Australian Communist Party, in accordance with the basic theory of communism, as expounded by Marx and Lenin, engages in activities or operations designed to assist or accelerate the coming of a revolutionary situation, in which the Australian Communist Party, acting as a revolutionary minority, would be able to seize power and establish a dictatorship of the proletariat; and

Whereas the Australian Communist Party also engages in activities or operations designed to bring about the overthrow or dislocation of the established system of government of Australia and the attainment of economic, industrial, or political ends by force, violence, intimidation, or fraudulent practices; and

Whereas the Australian Communist Party is an integral part of the world Communist revolutionary movement, which, in the King's dominions and elsewhere, engages in espionage and sabotage and in activities or operations of a treasonble or subversive nature and also engages in activities or operations similar to those, or having an object similar to the object of those, referred to in the last two preceding paragraphs of this preamble; and

Whereas certain industries are vital to the security and defense of Australia (including the coal-mining industry, the iron and steel industry, the engineering industry, the building industry, the transport industry, and the power industry); and

Whereas activities or operations of, or encouraged by, the Australian Communist Party, and activities or operations of, or encouraged by, members or officers of that party and other persons who are Communists, are designed to cause, by means of strikes or stoppages of work, and have, by those means, caused dislocation, disruption, or retardation of production or work in those vital industries; and

Whereas it is necessary, for the security and defense of Australia and for the execution and maintenance of the constitution and of the laws of the Commonwealth, that the Australian Communist Party, and bodies of persons affiliated with that party, should be dissolved and their property forfeited to the Commonwealth, and that members and officers of that party or of any of those bodies and other persons who are Communists should be disqualified from employment by the Commonwealth and from holding office in an industrial organization a substantial number of whose members are engaged in a vital industry:

Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, the Senate, and the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Australia, as follows:

SHORT TITLE

1. This act may be cited as the Communist Party Dissolution Act, 1950.

COMMENCEMENT DEFINITIONS

2. This act shall come into operation on the day on which it receives the royal assent.

3. (1) In this act, unless the contrary intention appears "authority of the Commonwealth" includes a body established by or under a law of the Commonwealth; "authorized person" means a peace officer appointed under the Peace Officers Act of 1925 or a person declared by the attorney general to be an authorized person for the purposes of this act; "branch," in relation to an industrial organization or an unlawful association, includes a section of the organization or association and a local, regional or subsidiary body forming part of the organization; "Communist" means a person who supports or advocates the objectives, policies, teachings, principles or practices of communism, as expounded by Marx and Lenin; "industrial organization" means an organization of employers or employees associated for the purpose of protecting and furthering their interests in relation to terms and conditions of employment or for purposes including that purpose; "office," in relation to an industrial organization or branch of an industrial organization, means (a) the office of a member of the committee of management or other governing body of the industrial organization or branch; (b) the office of an executive officer of the industrial organization or branch; (c) the office of a person holding, whether as trustee or otherwise, property of the industrial organization or branch, or property in which the industrial organization or branch has a beneficial interest; or (d) every office within the industrial organization or branch for the filling of which an election is conducted or an appointment is made within the industrial organization or branch; "officer," in relation to an unlawful association, means (a) a member of the committee of management or other governing body of the unlawful association or of a branch of the unlawful association; or (b) a person working for the unlawful association or for a branch of the unlawful association; "property" includes money, goods, things in action, land and every description of property, whether real or personal; "the Australian Communist Party" means the organization having that name on the specified date, notwithstanding any change in the name or membership of that organization after that date; "the specified date" means May 10, 1948, being the last day of the National Congress of the Australian Communist Party by which the constitution of the Australian Communist Party was adopted; "unlawful association" means the Australian Communist Party or a body of persons declared to be an unlawful association under this act.

(2) For the purposes of this act, the property of an unlawful association includes all property of a branch of that association and all property held by a person for or on behalf of, or in trust for, that association or a branch of that association.

DISSOLUTION OF AUSTRALIAN COMMUNIST PARTY

4. (1) The Australian Communist Party is declared to be an unlawful association and is, by force of this act, dissolved.

(2) The Governor-General shall, by instrument published in the Gazette, appoint a receiver of the property of the Australian Communist Party.

(3) Upon the day upon which that instrument is so published, the property of the Australian Communist Party shall, by force of this act, vest in the receiver named in the instrument.

(4) Where any land to which this section applies is subject to the provisions of any law providing for the registration of title to land, the vesting of the legal estate in that land in the receiver shall be subject to compliance with the provisions of that law.

AFFILIATED ORGANIZATIONS MAY BE DECLARED UNLAWFUL

5. (1) This section applies to any body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, not being an industrial organization registered under the law of the Commonwealth or a state—

(a) which is, or purports to be, or, at any time after the specified date and before the date of commencement of this act was, or purported to be, affiliated with the Australian Communist Party;

(b) a majority of the members of which, or a majority of the members of the committee of management or other governing body of which, were, at any time after the specified date and before the date of commencement of this act, members of the Australian Communist Party or of the central committee or other governing body of the Australian Communist Party;

(c) which supports or advocates, or, at any time after the specified date and before the date of commencement of this act, supported or advocated, the objectives, policies, teachings, principles or practices of communism, as expounded by Marx and Lenin, or promotes, or, at any time within that period, promoted, the spread of communism, as so expounded; or

(d) the policy of which is directed, controlled, shaped, or influenced, wholly or substantially, by persons who—

(i) were, at any time after the specified date and before the date of commencement of this act, members of the Australian Communist Party or of the central committee or other governing body of the Australian Communist Party, or are Communists; and

(ii) make use of that body as a means of advocating, propagating, or carrying out the objectives, policies, teachings, principles, or practices of communism, as expounded by Marx and Lenin.

(2) Where the Governor General is satisfied that a body of persons is a body of persons to which this section applies and that the continued existence of that body of persons would be prejudicial to the security and defense of the Commonwealth or to the execution or maintenance of the constitution or of the laws of the Commonwealth, the Governor-General may, by instrument published in the Gazette, declare that body of persons to be an unlawful association.

(3) A body of persons so declared to be an unlawful association may, within 28 days after the publication of the declaration in the Gazette, apply to the high court to set aside the declaration, on the ground that the body is not a body to which this section applies.

(4) If, upon the hearing, the applicant satisfies the high court that it is not a body to which this section applies, the high court shall set aside the declaration.

(5) If the applicant does not so satisfy the high court, the high court shall dismiss the application and the declaration shall remain in force.

UNLAWFUL ASSOCIATIONS TO BE DISSOLVED

6. (1) Subject to this section, a body of persons in respect of which a declaration has been made under this act shall, by force of this act, upon the expiration of 28 days after the publication of the declaration in the Gazette, be dissolved.

(2) Where the body applies to the high court to set aside the declaration, the body shall not be dissolved upon the expiration of 28 days after the publication of the declaration in the Gazette, but, if the high court dismisses the application, the body shall, by force of this act, be dissolved upon the day upon which the high court dismisses the application.

OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF UNLAWFUL ASSOCIATIONS TO CEASE

7. (1) A person shall not—

(a) become, continue to be, or perform any act as, an officer or member of an unlawful association;

(b) carry or display anything indicating that he is or was an officer or member, or is or was in any way associated with, an unlawful association;

(c) contribute or solicit anything, as a subscription or otherwise, to be used directly or indirectly for the benefit of an unlawful association; or

(d) in any way take part in any activity of an unlawful association or carry on, in the direct or indirect interest of an unlawful association, any activity in which the unlawful association was engaged, or could have engaged, at the time when it became an unlawful association.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 5 years.

(2) Nothing in this section prohibits an officer or member of an unlawful association from performing any act on its behalf which is reasonably necessary for the purposes of an application by the unlawful association to the high court under section 5 of this act.

PROPERTY OF UNLAWFUL ASSOCIATIONS TO VEST IN RECEIVER

8. (1) The instrument under this act declaring a body of persons to be an unlawful association shall appoint a receiver of the property of that body.

(2) Upon the day upon which that instrument is published in the Gazette the property of that body shall, subject to this section, vest in the receiver named in the instrument.

(3) If the high court sets aside the declaration, all sales or dispositions of property, payments made and acts done by the receiver (or by a person acting under his authority) shall be valid, but the property of the body shall revert to the body for its estate or interest therein on such terms and subject to such conditions, if any, as the high court orders.

(4) Where any land to which this section applies is subject to the provisions of any law providing for the registration of title to land, the vesting of the legal estate in that land in the receiver shall be subject to compliance with the provisions of that law.

DECLARATION OF COMMUNISTS AND MEMBERS OF UNLAWFUL ASSOCIATIONS

9. (1) This section applies to any person—

(a) who was, at any time after the specified date and before the date upon which an unlawful association is dissolved by this act, a member or officer of that unlawful association; or

(b) who is, or was at any time after the specified date, a Communist.

(2) Where the Governor General is satisfied that a person is a person to whom this section applies and that that person is engaged, or is likely to engage, in activities prejudicial to the security and defense of the Commonwealth or to the execution or maintenance of the constitution or of the laws of the Commonwealth, the Governor General may, by instrument published in the Gazette, make a declaration accordingly.

(3) A person in respect of whom a declaration is made under the last preceding subsection may, within 28 days after the publication of the declaration in the Gazette, apply to the high court to set aside the declaration on the ground that he is not a person to whom this section applies.

(4) If, upon the hearing, the applicant satisfies the high court that he is not a person to whom this section applies, the high court shall set aside the declaration.

(5) If the applicant does not so satisfy the high court, the high court shall dismiss the application and the declaration shall remain in force.

(6) The Governor General may at any time, by instrument published in the Gazette, revoke a declaration made under this section.

DISQUALIFICATION OF PERSONS DECLARED

10. (1) A person in respect of whom a declaration is in force under this act—

(a) shall be incapable of holding office under, or of being employed by, the Commonwealth or an authority of the Commonwealth;

(b) shall be incapable of holding office as a member of a body corporate, being an authority of the Commonwealth; and

(c) shall be incapable of holding an office in an industrial organization to which this section applies or in a branch of such an industrial organization.

(2) For the purposes of this section and of the next succeeding section, a member of the defense force shall be deemed to be a person employed by the Commonwealth.

(3) Where the Governor General is satisfied that a substantial number of the members of an industrial organization are engaged in a vital industry, that is to say, the coal-mining industry, the iron and steel industry, the engineering industry, the building industry, the transport industry, or the power industry, or in any other industry which, in the opinion of the Governor-General, is vital in the security and defense of Australia, the Governor General may, by instrument published in the Gazette, declare that industrial organization to be an industrial organization to which this section applies.

(4) If the Governor General is satisfied that an industrial organization in respect of which a declaration has been made under the last preceding subsection no longer has a substantial number of members engaged in a vital industry, the Governor General shall, by instrument published in the Gazette, revoke that declaration.

DISQUALIFIED PERSONS TO VACATE OFFICE

11. (1) If, upon the making of a declaration in respect of a person under this act, that person holds any office referred to in subsection (1) of the last preceding section or is employed by the Commonwealth or by an authority of the Commonwealth, that person shall, by force of this act, be suspended from the office or employment.

(2) Unless an application has been made to the high court to set aside the declaration, the office held by that person shall, by force of this act, become vacant, or that person shall cease to be so employed, as the case may be, upon the expiration of the twenty-eighth day after the day upon which the declaration was published in the Gazette.

(3) If an application is made to the high court to set aside the declaration, the suspension effected by subsection (1) of this section shall continue until the making of an order by the high court upon the application.

(4) If the high court sets aside the declaration, the suspension of the person concerned shall cease, but if the high court dismisses the application, the office held by that person shall, by force of this act, become vacant, or that person shall cease to be so employed, as the case may be, upon the day upon which the high court dismisses the application.

(5) A person whose office so becomes vacant, or who ceases to be so employed, shall, for the purpose of the determination of his rights in respect of superannuation or other retirement benefit, be deemed to have resigned.

INJUNCTIONS

12. (1) The high court shall have jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining a person who, under section 10 of this act, is incapable of holding an office in an industrial organization or branch of an industrial organization from performing any act, duty, or function, or exercising any right, as the holder of an office in the industrial organization or branch.

(2) The attorney general may apply for an injunction under the last preceding subsection, but this subsection does not prejudice any right any other person has to apply for such an injunction.

CONTRACTS NOT TO BE MADE WITH DECLARED PERSONS

13. A contract or agreement shall not be made by the Commonwealth or by an authority of the Commonwealth with a person in respect of whom a declaration is in force under this act under which a fee or other remuneration is payable in respect of the services of that person.

DUTIES AND POWERS OF RECEIVER

14. (1) It shall be the duty of the receiver of an unlawful association to take possession of the property of the association, to realize that property, to discharge the liabilities of the association, and to pay or transfer the surplus to the Commonwealth.

(2) For the purpose of performing his duties under this act in relation to an unlawful association the receiver of that association shall have power—

(a) to receive, collect, get in, and control property of the association;

(b) to take proceedings in his own name to recover possession of the property of the association or to obtain payment of moneys owing to the assciation;

(c) to sell or dispose of any of the property of the association;

(d) to make any arrangement or compromise which he thinks expedient in relation to the property of the association;

(e) to reimburse himself all expenses incurred in or about the execution of his powers; and

(f) to take possession of, collect, and dispose of books, papers, documents, and records relating to, or in the possession or under the control of, the association; and shall have such other powers as are prescribed.

DETERMINATION OF QUESTIONS BY HIGH COURT

15. (1) The receiver of an unlawful association may make an application to the high court to determine any question relating to the property or liabilities of the association or to the performance of his duties or the exercise of his powers under this act.

(2) The determination of the high court shall be binding on the receiver and on the association and on such other persons as are affected by the determination.

RECEIVER NOT TO BE PERSONALLY LIABLE IN RESPECT OF HIS ACTS

16. The receiver of an unlawful association shall not be under any personal liability for or in respect of any act or thing done or omitted to be done in the exercise or purported exercise of any of the powers conferred by or under this act or for or in respect of any of the liabilities of the unlawful association of which he is receiver.

RECEIVER MAY AVOID CERTAIN DISPOSITIONS

17. The receiver of an unlawful association may direct that any disposition of property of the association within 1 year before the date upon which the association was dissolved shall be void as against the receiver and the disposition shall be so void accordingly, but nothing in this section affects the rights of a purchaser, payee, or encumbrance in good faith and for valuable consideration.

INSOLVENT UNLAWFUL ASSOCIATIONS

18. If the receiver of an unlawful association determines that the association is insolvent, the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1924–48, relating to proof of debts and priority of payments of debts shall, subject to the regulations, be applicable in relation to the association.

OBSTRUCTION OF RECEIVER BY DESTROYING PROPERTY, ETC.

19. (1) A person shall not, with intent to delay or obstruct the performance by the receiver of an unlawful association of any of his functions, or the exercise of his powers, under this act—

(a) destroy or alter, or withhold from the receiver (whether a demand has been made therefor or not), any of the property of the unlawful association, or any book, paper, document, record, or security relating to, or in the possession or in the control of, that association; or

(b) send or attempt to send, or conspire with any other person to send, out of the Commonwealth any such property, book, paper, document, record, or security.

Penalty: Imprisonment for 5 years.

(2) If, in any prosecution for an offense against this section, it is proved that the person charged with the offense—

(a) has destroyed, altered, or withheld from the receiver any of the property of the unlawful association, or any book, paper, document, record, or security in the possession of or under the control of that association; or

(b) has sent or attempted to send or conspired to send out of the Commonwealth any such property, book, paper, document, record, or security, the onus of proving that in so doing he did not act with intent to delay or obstruct the performance by the receiver of any of his functions, or the carrying out of any of his powers, under this act shall be upon the person charged.

POWERS OF SEARCH, ETC.

20. An authorized person shall at all times have full and free access to, and may, if need be by force and with such assistance as is necessary, break open, enter, and search, any house, premises, or place in which he suspects that there is any property of, or documents or papers relating to, an unlawful association and may search any person found in the house, premises, or place and may take possession of, remove, and impound any property, books (including documents or papers) in the house, premises, or place which the authorized person is satisfied belong to that association.

JURISDICTION OF HIGH COURT

21. (1) The high court shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine any application under sections 5, 9, or 15 of this act.

(2) The jurisdiction of the high court under this section shall be exercised by a single justice, and the decision of that justice shall be final and conclusive.

(3) The Commonwealth shall be the respondent to any application to the high court under section 5 or section 9 of this act.

EVIDENCE

22. (1) In any proceedings under this act, proof that, at any time after the specified date and before the date upon which an unlawful association is dissolved by this act, a person—

(a) attended a meeting of that association or of a branch of that association, or of a committee of that association or of such a branch;

(b) spoke publicly in advocacy of that association or of its objects;

(c) distributed literature of that association or in advocacy of its objects; or

(d) wrote, issued, or published, or caused to be written, issued, or published, a document in advocacy of that association or of its objects, shall be evidence that that person was, during that period, a member or officer of that association, as the case may be.

(2) Without prejudice to the operation of the next succeeding subsection, proof in any proceedings under this act that the name, initials, or other means of identification of a person appear—

(a) on a document found at the offices or premises of the Australian Communist Party at Marx House, George Street, Sydney, on the 8th day of July, 1949, being a document—

(i) which purports to show; or

(ii) from which, in the opinion of the court, it may, in the circumstances, reasonably be inferred, that that person was a member or officer of the Australian Communist Party; or

(b) on a list, roll, or other record found at the offices or premises of the Australian Communist Party at Marx House, George Street, Sydney, on the 8th day of July, 1949, being a list, roll, or record which purports to be, or appears to the court, in the circumstances, to be, a list, roll, or record of members or officers of the Australian Communist Party, shall be evidence that that person was, after the specified date and before the date upon which the Australian Communist Party is dissolved by this act, a member or officer of the Australian Communist Party, as the case may be.

(3) Proof in any proceedings under this act that the name, initials, or other means of identification of a person appear—

(a) on a document which was kept or found—

(i) at any office or premises of an unlawful association or of a branch of an unlawful association, or at any office or premises under the control of a member or officer of an unlawful association; or

(ii) in the custody of a member or officer of an unlawful association, being a document—

(iii) which purports to show; or

(iv) from which, in the opinion of the court, it may, in the circumstances, reasonably be inferred, that that person was a member or officer of that unlawful association or of a branch of that association; or

(b) on a list, roll, or other record which was kept or found—

(i) at any office or premises of an unlawful association or of a branch of an unlawful association, or at any office or premises under the control of a member or officer of an unlawful association; or

(ii) in the custody of a member or officer or an unlaful association, being a list, roll, or record which purports to be, or appears to the court in the circumstances to be, a list, roll, or record of members or officers of that unlawful association, or of a branch of that association, shall be evidence that that person was, after the specified date and before the date upon which that unlawful association is dissolved by this act, a member or officer of that unlawful association, as the case may be.

23. The Governor-General may make regulations, not inconsistent with this act, prescribing all matters which by this act are required or permitted to be prescribed or which are necessary or convenient to be prescribed for giving effect to this act and in particular for prescribing penalties not exceeding £500 or imprisonment for 6 months for any offense against the regulations.

EXHIBIT 2

[From the National Tribune—the Stars and Stripes]

We wish it were possible to delay preparation of this article until later this week because fireworks were promised in the United States Senate on Monday, but we must meet our deadline for composition and the subject matter of this comment is so important to the country that we cannot let any time slip by. The Senate might adjourn by early August and there is work to be done.

On Monday, Senator KARL E. MUNDT, of South Dakota, was to pay his respects to certain Senate leaders who have attempted to sabotage the bill he is cosponsoring in an effort to put a stop to Soviet activities in the United States. The measure has been pending for many months. It is a gesture as American as the grass roots from which the Senator hails, but pussyfooting interests and Red propagandists have so far prevented consideration of this bill which belongs on the working agenda of the Upper House, particularly in view of the ever developing threat to the existence of our institutions and our freedoms.

Senator MUNDT attempted to call up the Mundt-Ferguson-Johnson-Nixon bill over a week ago after his desires—and those, incidentally, of many millions of our citizens—had long been frustrated. He did so in accord with Senate rules when nothing else was under consideration. His efforts met with scathing rebuke by World War I Senate Leader SCOTT W. LUCAS, of Illinois, who is doubtless a staunch and loyal American but who takes his orders from the White House and is in the corner of those who oppose action on the antisubversive bill at this time. On Monday MUNDT was to take his turn in lecturing the Illinoisan. We anticipate that the job will have been done thoroughly by the time we go to press, and all right-thinking veterans hope the oratory will be so all-encompassing that the smoke will roll out of the windows of the sedate old Senate Chamber.

What the proposed measure calls for is a requirement, under penalty of law, that all Communist political organizations and Red-front groups register with the Attorney General and maintain accurate lists of members, deny use of the mails or radio-broadcast facilities to them unless definitely labeled as Communist-inspired, and forbid such persons to hold Government jobs or obtain passports. Why anybody who believes in the American system could object to such registrations and restrictions is baffling, particularly in view of the Korean situation. But they do, and vigorously. The one fault we find in the entire scheme is that it does not go nearly far enough. We think that Communists as such should be outlawed entirely, and, in any emergency, they should be treated as the traitors they are and be lined up against the wall. That is exactly what would happen if anybody did in their beloved Russia what they do in the United States.

The Reds in this country, and their followers, have entered into a criminal conspiracy to destroy America. They are knowingly supported by the only nation on earth that is committed to the overflow of our people by force and violence, and yet failure to curb such activity is fought by the administration leadership. While admitting a need to strengthen antisubversion laws, they oppose all attempts to do so by suggesting that the Mundt bill might place under suspicion some "innocents" who have at one time or another affiliated with a society now listed as subversive. They and their backers suggest the measure would create the new crime of contributing to the establishment of a totalitarian dictatorship, and they ask that it be put over for calmer consideration. The trouble is that it has been put off too long already. If in force, it would have the effect of making those innocents think twice, and as for a dictatorship, that issue can be met, if it comes, in exactly the same manner as this exigency.

Every possible obstacle has been erected to prevent investigation of subversives since way back in the thirties. The Dies committee and its successor groups have been thwarted and ridiculed regardless of the positive evidence they have unearthed. While hundreds of alien-minded public servants have been fired or have been permitted to resign, some are still being held on the payrolls by stubborn officials even though qualified and patriotic individuals have been forced to quit in protest. In almost every instance, when charges are preferred, politicians term them partisan activity and every effort is employed to hamper inquiries. So brazen have been the enemies of the American way of life that they have filtered into the Government, and even into congressional membership, and they are permitted to be coequals with citizens who think first of the country that gives them refuge. Daily newspapers tolerate their views in the name of liberalism while they knife the public in the back. Atom spies are afforded protection beyond the limits of due process of law. The enemy underground thrives on American generosity, and our people's tolerance allows the foes of American ideals to continue in the dastardly work of undermining the institutions for which our manhood has fought for generations and for which it has died in war.

Hostile world elements are on this very day testing the strength of this Nation. Committed wholeheartedly to its complete destruction, they seek to determine what weapons they will face if it is forced into total warfare, and yet there are among us those who temporize when our safety hangs in the balance and our defenses are imperiled. It is beyond the comprehension of men, who have bled in war to maintain our liberties, to recognize the opposition of others against bringing out of hiding and labeling for what they are the very subverts who make our position more difficult. There is nothing mad or vicious about an endeavor to put a stop to foreign attempts to destroy us. It is not an exhibition of abnormal patriotism to try to fetch the skeletons out of the closet and expose them for the insidious influence they are. Those are merely temperate moves to protect our citizenry against the loss of everything they possess, and Senator MUNDT and his cosponsors are aiming solely at preventing the defeat of this Nation through complacency. He and those who support him are being far more liberal than they should be with a type of liberalism that is laden with dynamite.

The Communists in the United States have been declared to be conspirators. They are outlaws, fugitives without right to legal protection making every possible illegitimate effort to proscribe the statutes that were enacted to protect believers in democracy. Some of the lower Federal courts have made such a determination and there is basis, therefore, to challenge those who assert that outlawing such conspirators would be unconstitutional. The Communist Party, and all of those who aid and abet it by word or deed, teach and spread criminal doctrine when they propagate a system of terror. It is our inherent belief that the Constitution of our country bears the power to defend itself, and that is one reason why, among others, we believe that the Reds should be outlawed. They hide behind a party label, abuse constitutional rights delegated to others and attract to their ranks craven followers who suggest that suppression of their ultimate motives means dictatorship.

Unfortunately the Mundt bill does not seek to make outlaws of Communists and followers of the party line. It is only a partway means of keeping a finger on them and of punishing offenders for infractions of lesser laws. However, it is recognized that it is the most that could be accomplished at the present moment, and that is why the veterans of this country are solidly behind it. It is a patriotic endeavor to save our people from the machinations of sworn enemies within our gates. This is a time for realism. We are, as a Nation, faced with making crucial decisions in a desire to avoid world conflict. We must complete the task to which the country is dedicated. For want of a better means to stamp out insurrection at home, the Congress should pass the Red registration bill now, before it winds up its lawmaking for the year.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I do not propose to sit on the floor of the Senate and hear two or three Senators pretend to have all the patriotism within their own hearts. Insofar as the bill introduced by the distinguished Senator from South Dakota is concerned, I want every Senator to know that as a member of the Committee on the Judiciary I filed minority views. I submit that when the proper time comes it will be shown that this bill, instead of being a good bill, as a matter of fact would deprive the people of this country of their liberty under the guise of trying to put subversive elements in prison.

Mr. President, let me call attention to the fact that the distinguished Senator from Michigan has said that for two years this bill has been in committee, originally as the Mundt-Nixon bill and now as the Mundt-Ferguson-Johnston bill. This bill has been carefully studied. Surely every Senator within the sound of my voice knows that the American Federation of Labor cannot be called subversive. During the World War what did they do? With 21 percent fewer employees on the railroads, and with 21 percent fewer employees in nearly every other industry, they did almost twice as much work as before. They did it at a time when their youngest men were in the armed services. Certainly, Mr. President, the fathers and mothers who constitute this great organization, the American Federation of Labor, would not come out in opposition to this bill, patriotic as they are, unless in the bottom of their hearts they felt there was something wrong with it.

Another great organization is opposed to it, an organization of laboring people—the CIO. They are on record as being unalterably opposed to the enactment of this measure. That is the same CIO which time after time in their annual conventions have barred Communists from membership. They have thrown Communists out right and left. They realize that this bill is an attack, in a time of hysteria, upon the principles of true democratic government. It would take from the American people the liberty for which our forefathers fought 150 years ago. Our country has grown great under present laws and the Constitution. These organizations would not be in opposition to the measure unless they had good reason for it.

There is another great organization, Mr. President, which is opposed to this bill. It is the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, which is made up of conductors, firemen, and engineers. It is an organization composed of hundreds of thousands of men. They are also on record against the bill. Those are the same men who during the last World War, with 21 percent less labor on the payroll, did twice as much work and hauled twice as much freight than ever before in the history of the United States. They are opposed to the bill.

Mr. President, there is another great organization which is opposed to the bill. It is the National Farmers Union. The National Farmers Union, with its enormous membership of farmers stretching from one end of the United States to the other, is opposed to the bill.

Then the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, made up of some 14,000,000 members with an active membership of hundreds of thousands of people, are also in opposition to the bill.

Then there may be mentioned the American Civil Liberties Union and the National Lawyers Guild both of which are opposed to the bill.

More than that, Mr. President, I ask every Senator on the floor to read carefully the opinion of Charles Evans Hughes. Was he a Communist? Was he advocating communism? Let us take the opinion of John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee for President in 1924. Is there any Senator who would charge that John W. Davis is a Communist? Would anyone say that John W. Davis sympathizes with Communists?

We have heard mentioned on the floor of the Senate the President's Loyalty Review Board. It was referred to by the distinguished Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MCCARTHY]. I happen to know the Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board unusually well. He happens to be Seth W. Richardson. For 20 years, he practiced law in my own State. Under President Hoover he was an Assistant Attorney General of the United States of America. Before a vote is taken on the so-called Mundt bill I suggest that Mr. Richardson's opinion, which he gave to the Judiciary Committee, be studied very carefully. Here is a man who for many years was a United States district attorney in a great State of the Union. I know of no more patriotic man in the entire United States than Seth W. Richardson. He was chosen by the President of the United States to be the Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board. Of course there is also the opinion of Mr. Chaffee, Jr., of Harvard University.

Mr. President, I rise to make it clear that this is not a one-sided proposition. A few minutes ago Senators said that this bill could be disposed of very quickly. If they think for a single moment that this bill will be decided without a fight on the floor, I wish to serve notice on them now that they are very much mistaken.

It is true that I alone signed the minority views. I filed them on a Friday. What happened? The next day the distinguished junior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. KEFAUVER] announced that he was in sympathy with those views. A short time later another Senator, the distinguished Senator from Washington [Mr. MAGNUSON] announced that he was opposed to paragraph 4 of the bill.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LANGER. I decline to yield. I did not interrupt the Senator from South Dakota, and I do not propose to be interrupted at this time. A short time after that two other Senators announced that they were opposed to certain paragraphs of the measure. That accounts for at least 5 members of a committee of 13 Senators. I understand that another distinguished member of the committee, who had been absent, said that if he had been present he would have voted with the minority, which would have made a vote of 7 to 6. Mr. President, it is not so simple as one would be led to believe by the eloquence of the distinguished Senators from South Dakota and Michigan. We are dealing with a very, very serious matter. I say that this bill, if enacted, would constitute the greatest threat to American civil liberties since the alien and sedition laws of 1798.

I do not propose to sit here and have Senators rise and talk about the fighting in Korea when some of them are just as responsible for it as those in actual control of the Government. If some of us had been listened to, the Government today might not be finding itself in the sad situation in which it is.

Oh, the question of patriotism is raised. How men like to take the American flag and wrap it around themselves and say, "Here is a bill. If you pass this bill, we are going to wipe out communism." If anyone objects to a single line, a single sentence, a single paragraph, it is said he sympathizes with Communists, and sympathizes with those who are opposed to American free enterprise and the American way of life.

No, Mr. President, that is too serious a matter for one to sit idly by and watch it being put over. I say this bill is a product of hysteria and frantic, unthinking fear, and that it strikes at the very foundations of our democratic institutions. As the debate starts, and is proceeded with, I do not think there will be very much trouble in proving that to any fair Senator on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. President, I have not the bill before me now, but I would need to take up only one or two paragraphs of it to show what it is and what it does. I am not going to quote either John W. Davis or Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., or any of the witnesses at this time because we can do that when the proper time comes.

I call attention to what the head of the Loyalty Board, Seth W. Richardson, appointed by President Truman himself, said, as appears on page 9 of my minority views:

> Seth W. Richardson made a similar point. When discussing similar provisions of H. R. 5852, he said that trial in a proper court in the first instance is a question of guilt of the citizen.

Under Anglo-Saxon law, we have never convicted anyone in this country unless the man first performed an overt act of some kind, did something the prosecuting attorney could get hold of and present to a jury.

Here is proposed a political board, composed of three men appointed by the President of the United States. Their judgment apparently is to be final. Oh, there is a provision at one place for an appeal. If the distinguished present Presiding Officer, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. HILL], for instance, belonged to an organization in his State, and in that organization there happened to be a few Communists, less than 1 percent, and out of a clear sky this board said the Presiding Officer was a Communist—mind you, without any trial—who is there to say the Senator had not been hurt, that he had not been ruined in his business?

Suppose one lived in the great State of Washington, or in California, or in Hawaii, or Alaska. Do Senators know where he would have to come for trial under the bill? He would have to come to Washington, in the District of Columbia, two or three thousand miles away from home.

Mr. President, when the proper time comes, when the motion is made which it is said is to be made, I simply say to those who are to make it that when they state it will take but a very short time to pass the measure, in my opinion they are woefully mistaken.

Let there be no mistake about this: I am 100 percent opposed to any subversive organization and to any man or woman who is a subversive. However, I cherish the Constitution of the United States and the liberties it guarantees. These liberties, under my oath as a Senator, I am sworn to protect. I want to make it clear that I am for this bill only if proper amendments are adopted to protect the liberties of the American people.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert in the RECORD the letter from the John W. Davis firm on the bill under discussion. The Senator from Michigan does not want to comment on the letter, except to say that when he read it he did not find that in the letter there was objection to the bill. There was some language which it was thought should be changed. An amendment was offered in committee, and the amendment was made.

Mr. President, I should like also to have appear in the RECORD the fact that Charles Evans Hughes did not see this bill, has never read the bill. He was deceased at the time the bill was being considered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Michigan?

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DAVIS, POLK, WARDWELL,
SUNDERLAND & KIENDL,
New York, N. Y., February 10, 1950.

Hon. PAT MCCARRAN,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR: I apologize for my delay in answering your letter of January 17 in reference to Senate bill 2311. I can only plead in excuse the constant pressure of other matters. On several occasions I have undertaken to make response only to be diverted by demands which were more instantly compelling.

Undoubtedly S. 2311 is an improvement over the predecessor bill, H. R. 5852. The term "Communist political organization" is now, as I think, adequately defined by the two criteria which are set up, to wit: (a) That it is substantially dominated or controlled by the foreign government or foreign governmental or political organization controlling the world Communist movement; (b) that it operates primarily to advance the objectives of such world Communist movement. These are both criteria capable of being made certain by the introduction of adequate proof. So also as to the "Communist-front organization" which is (a) under control of a Communist political organization, or (b) is primarily operated for the purpose of giving aid and comfort to a Communist political organization, a Communist foreign government, or the world Communist movement. Whatever the difficulties of proof, these are facts susceptible of ascertainment. I think these provisions comport with the legal maxim, "Id certum est quod certum reddi potest."

Section 4 (a) raises, by its language, certain questions which are not entirely free from doubt. Indeed the charge of indefiniteness may be leveled against it. The bill does not purport expressly to forbid Communist political organizations or membership in them. On the contrary, there is provision for registration of the organization and, second, for registration of its members who are called on to come forward in their own names if the organization fails to do so. Ventilation rather than prohibition seems the primary purpose. Section 4 (a) however forbids one to combine, conspire, or agree with any other person to perform any act which would substantially contribute to the establishment of a totalitarian dictatorship under foreign domination or control. Would mere membership in a Communist political organization which is duly registered or required to register, constitute an act such as section 4 (a) proscribes? If so, is there not inherent contradiction between these sections, and might not a person called on to register as a member claim that he would involuntarily incriminate himself by so doing? In the other hand, it is possible that the courts would interpret the words "perform any act which would substantially contribute to the establishment" etc., etc. as synonymous with the familiar phrase "aid, abet, and assist," membership aside. The cardinal words of the section seem to be "the direction and control of which is to be vested in or exercised by or under the domination or control of any foreign government, foreign organization or foreign individual." It seems unlikely that the section is intended to forbid public advocacy of a totalitarian form of government in the United States, absent foreign domination or control. Perhaps these questions of construction can be avoided by revision of the section or even by its omission entirely.

As a matter of draftsmanship, I question a phrase employed in section 14 (e) of the bill, page 27 printed copy. The board is directed to take into consideration the "extent to which" etc. The use of this phrase implies, does it not, that the attention of the Board is to be directed, not to the performance of specific acts but to their spread or frequency. Would it not improve the definiteness of the criteria if they read, for instance, (1) whether its policies are formulated, etc., etc.? The substitution of the word "whether" for "the extent to which" might be worth consideration by your committee.

The other constitutional questions which might be raised seem to me to be adequately answered by the memorandum of July 29, 1949, of Mr. Ogleby of the American Law Section, which you were good enough to send me. I have nothing to add to the review which he makes.[1]

Again, I express no opinion on the policy or the necessity of such an act. I note the Attorney General's reservations concerning it. If, however, it is enacted in its present form, I think the act, in its main features will survive constitutional attack.

I am sure you join me in lamenting the untimely death of Mr. Charles Evans Hughes, Jr.

Believe me,
Very sincerely yours,
JOHN W. DAVIS.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, I wish to make just a brief remark with respect to the so-called Mundt-Ferguson bill. We are at war today. We are fighting Communists, and I cannot conceive of anyone who would be opposed to passing the legislation necessary to control the Communists within our own ranks, particularly at a time when we are at war. How are we to handle the situation unless we enact some new legislation?

I am not going to argue today the merits or demerits of the Mundt bill, but I am satisfied in my own mind that we very badly need some new legislation to enable us to handle such situations as that with which we are faced at present.

Much has appeared in the newspapers in Indianapolis recently about Communists and their activities. Some Communist activities have been found in the Indiana State Welfare Department. I am not too familiar with the details, and I do not vouch for the authenticity of what has been written, but the people of Indiana, and particularly of Indianapolis, are very much concerned about it.

Mr. President, we are at war. What we are engaged in is not a police action, but it is war. We are fighting Communists. We are told that the Korean war is inspired by Communist Russia, that they are furnishing materials and men, that they are furnishing the brain power to carry on the war. It looks very much as if this struggle will develop into a full-scale war, and if it does, is there one Senator who will sit on the floor of the Senate and not join in passing the necessary legislation to stop Communists in our own country, to stop giving them an opportunity to sabotage the war effort, to sabotage the Nation?

[1] Memorandum by Robert Ogleby, Legislative Reference Section, Library of Congress, which was used as the basis of the constitutional discussions in this report.

Mr. President, an attitude of do nothing simply does not make sense to me. If the bill we are discussing is not as it should be, let us correct it, let us amend it, but before this session of Congress adjourns or recesses, in my opinion we should pass whatever legislation is necessary to deal with Communists within our own ranks, to reduce to the very minimum the opportunity of any sabotage among those who think as they do.

I see nothing un-American about that. It seems to me it is the most American thing we can do. I know of nothing more American than to protect America. I am confident that the great majority of the people of my State are for some sort of legislation which will put a stop to the undermining of our Government by those who would overthrow it, and if I understand the philosophy of communism correctly, it is to overthrow our Government and to overthrow the governments of all other countries.

Mr. President, I want to say in closing that I shall support any piece of legislation that looks to the control of saboteurs in the United States, and particularly in the face of the fact that we are now at war. It is not a police action. We are at war, and we are fighting those who hold to the philosophy of what we commonly know as communism.

So far as I know there are no good Communists. They are just Communists. I hope that Congress, before it adjourns, will take a good look at our laws, and makes certain that before we go home, if we do, there will be passed legislation which will properly protect the Government of the United States and properly protect and back up the boys who are giving their lives in Korea, who are face to face with and fighting the philosophy we know as communism.

CONVEYANCE OF FORT RUCKMAN MILITARY RESERVATION TO TOWN OF NAHANT, MASS.—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, I submit a conference report on House bill 7477, providing for the conveyance to the town of Nahant, Mass., of the Fort Ruckman Military Reservation, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HILL in the chair). The report will be read for the information of the Senate.

The report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 7477) providing for the conveyance to the town of Nahant, Mass., of the Fort Ruckman Military Reservation, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: "That, upon payment to the United States of the sum of $23,000, the Administrator of General Services is authorized and directed to convey by quitclaim deed to the town of Nahant, Mass., all of the right, title, and interest of the United States in and to all lands constituting the Fort Ruckman Military Reservation, situated within the town of Nahant, together with the buildings and other improvements thereon: Provided, however, That the instrument of conveyance shall contain such terms and conditions which will allow the recapture of the property in the event said property is not used for educational, recreational, or other public purposes: Provided further, That the instrument of conveyance shall reserve to the United States, for so long as it is necessary for governmental purposes, that certain 15-foot easement for the maintenance, repair, and replacement of a cable and its appurtenances, and at such time as it shall be no longer required for governmental use, said easement may be abandoned and upon such abandonment will automatically terminate, and that certain temporary easement, terminating June 30, 1954, covering one and eight-tenths acres of land used in connection with the Turf Drainage Investigation Program, with right of access thereto, both easements being more particularly described in WAA Form 1005 dated June 22, 1948, Reporting Agency No. WD–1299, as amended by WAA Form 1005 dated December 15, 1948, Reporting Agency No. WD–1299–B, which are filed in the office of the General Services Administration"; and the Senate agree to the same.

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY,
WM. BENTON,
MARGARET CHASE SMITH,
Managers on the Part of the Senate.
WILLIAM L. DAWSON,
HERBERT C. BONNER,
ROBERT F. RICH,
Managers on the Part of the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the report was considered and agreed to.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. BRIDGES obtained the floor.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me so I may make a unanimous consent request?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield to the Senator from Washington.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I have on the desk some four amendments to the pending bill. I also intend to propose, on Monday, a further amendment to the bill. I am obliged to go to a committee meeting this afternoon, and I ask unanimous consent that if my amendments are reached in the course of consideration of the bill today I may be privileged to bring them up on Monday when the Senate convenes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator state what the amendments are?

Mr. MAGNUSON. One amendment, Mr. President, is on page 61, one is on page 179, one amendment, submitted by me and some 20 other Senators, is on page 329; one amendment is on page 247, and the amendment I propose to submit on Monday is to the cancer, heart and mental diseases section.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Washington? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, on behalf of myself, the senior Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD], the junior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. MCCLELLAN], the Senator from Oregon [Mr. CORDON], the Senator from California [Mr. KNOWLAND], the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL], the junior Senator from Virginia [Mr. ROBERTSON], the Senator from Michigan [Mr. FERGUSON], the senior Senator from South Dakota [Mr. GURNEY], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. CAPEHART], the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. HOEY], the Senator from Florida [Mr. HOLLAND], the Senator from Montana [Mr. ECTON], the Senator from Delaware [Mr. WILLIAMS], the Senator from New York [Mr. IVES], the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. HENDRICKSON], the Senator from Colorado [Mr. MILLIKIN], the junior Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MUNDT], the senior Senator from Kansas [Mr. SCHOEPPEL], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. THYE], the senior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. BUTLER], the Senator from Iowa [Mr. HICKENLOOPER], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. DWORSHAK], the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MCCARTHY], the senior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH], the junior Senator from Kansas [Mr. DARBY], the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. TAFT], the junior Senator from Indiana [Mr. JENNER], the Senator from Missouri [Mr. KEM], the Senator from Nevada [Mr. MALONE], the Senator from Maine [Mr. BREWSTER], the Senator from Utah [Mr. WATKINS], the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. MARTIN], and the junior Senator from Ohio [Mr. BRICKER], I submit an amendment intended to be proposed by us, jointly, to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950, and for other purposes, and request that the amendment be stated, after which I shall discuss the amendment for a moment or two.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. In lieu of the matter proposed to be stricken on pages 444, 445, and 446 by the committee amendment, insert the following:

CHAPTER X–4—GENERAL REDUCTIONS IN APPROPRIATIONS AND CONTRACT AUTHORIZATIONS

SEC. 1001. Except as hereinafter provided, each appropriation, reappropriation, and contract authorization or reauthorization, made by this act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, to any department or agency in the executive branch of the Government (including funds of Government corporations authorized by this act for administrative expenses), is hereby reduced by 10 percent.

SEC. 1002. In order to provide for the most effective use of appropriations and contract authorizations reduced by this chapter, the head of each department and agency in the executive branch of the Government is hereby authorized to make adjustments and transfers between such appropriations, and between such contract authorizations, within his department or agency; but no such appropriation or contract authorization shall be increased under the authority of this section to an amount in excess of that provided in other chapters of this act.

SEC. 1003. The reductions provided for in this chapter shall not apply to the following:

(a) Title II of chapter IV; chapter X; so much of title I of chapter X–B as is contained in the paragraph headed "Mutual defense assistance"; and the amount appropriated to the General Services Administration for carrying out the provisions of the Strategic and Critical Materials Stockpiling Act of July 23, 1946;

(b) Appropriations in title I of chapter VIII for the Executive Office of the President under the headings "Compensation of the President," "The White House Office," "Emergency fund for the President," and "Executive Mansion and Grounds";

(c) Appropriations and contract authorizations for the atomic energy program;

(d) Trust funds;

(e) Funds of Government corporations excluding those made available in this act (1) for administrative expenses and (2) by appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury;

(f) Amounts (other than under the Veterans' Administration) for furnishing medical and hospital services and domiciliary care, excluding (1) administrative expenses not directly connected with the operation of a specific hospital, dispensary, or clinic, and (2) expenses for employee health service programs;

(g) Amounts provided in this act for payment of obligations incurred under prior appropriations or authorizations, and obligated balances of reappropriations;

(h) Appropriations of, or measured by, receipts;

(i) Amounts appropriated by this act for the operation of law enforcement agencies, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Bureau of Customs, Immigration and Naturalization Services, and the Secret Service; or for the payment of compensation and expenses of agents and auditors of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and such other officers and employees of other agencies whose duties primarily pertain to intelligence operations (including funds transferred pursuant to section 6 (a) of the act of June 20, 1949; 63 Stat. 211) or to the investigation, apprehension, prosecution, or detention of persons suspected or convicted of offenses against the criminal laws of the United States;

(j) Amounts provided for any program of the Veterans' Administration, excluding (1) administrative expenses not directly connected with the operation of a specific hospital, dispensary, clinic, or facility, and (2) expenses for employee health service programs;

(k) Amounts provided for payments to States or political subdivisions thereof;

(l) Amounts provided to make payment of or contributions toward pensions, retirement and disability annuities and benefits, employees' death or injury benefits, or other items of a similar nature;

(m) Appropriations for refunds, awards, and indemnities.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, the amendment has been prepared by Senators from both sides of the aisle as an economy amendment to be substituted for the Thomas-Taber amendment found in the House appropriation bill.

This amendment has been most carefully worked out by a group of Senators who have met many times in drafting the amendment. The group has been in close consultation with our own legislative counsel of the Senate and with representatives of the General Accounting Office and the Bureau of the Budget.

It is the opinion of our legislative counsel and of the downtown agencies that this amendment is technically correct to do the job of reducing appropriations in this 1951 omnibus bill.

Mr. President, only twice in the last 21 years has the Federal budget been in balance. The fiscal year just past has been one of deficit financing. The fiscal year we are entering will be one of deficit financing. We would incur a deficit in fiscal 1951 even if the Korean crisis had not developed.

The advocates of deficit spending always harp back to the cost of wars, past and future. The fact of the matter is, Mr. President, that the cost of war is not the sole cause of the continuing Federal deficits. Excluding the cost of national defense, Mr. President, excluding the cost of international aid, excluding the interest on the public debt, excluding the cost of the Veterans' Administration—all other costs of the Federal Government have increased from $2,000,000,000 in 1946 to an estimated $12,700,000,000 in the President's budget estimate for 1951.

Today, Mr. President, this Nation is faced with a crisis as severe as any that has confronted this Nation in its history. We do not know what the immediate future will ask of us. We do know that we may be called upon to exert every last measure of strength. Events of the past few weeks ought to have convinced every American of the need for military and industrial preparedness to match the hour.

We cannot spend our substance today on projects not directly related to the requirements for national defense and the minimum needs of Government operation.

This amendment which is submitted today, Mr. President, will not balance the budget.

I do not promise that it will stop all unessential operations of the Government. I know there are many members of the Senate who do not believe this amendment goes far enough. But I would remind you, Mr. President, that it is an amendment in the nature of a compromise, worked out by several different Senators representing several different sections of the country and representing both major political parties.

The amendment proposes to reduce most appropriations for nondefense items by 10 percent.

The directive given in the amendment to the executive branch of the Government is clear and unmistakable.

There is no surrender of authority from the legislative branch to the executive branch of the Government. If this amendment carries, the President will know exactly how much is appropriated under each title of the bill.

Because the sponsors of this amendment are aware that there may be some appropraition titles which cannot stand a cut of 10 percent, we have written into the amendment the power to transfer between appropriations within departments and independent agencies.

In practical effect, Mr. President, this transfer authority makes the cuts department-wide.

The amendment carries sensible exemptions.

National defense, everything having to do with the war effort, atomic energy, and related programs are exempted.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I have just entered the Senate Chamber. Has the Senator's amendment been printed and does it lie on the table?

Mr. BRIDGES. I will say to the Senator from Tennessee that I have just submitted it.

Mr. McKELLAR. Has the Senator a copy of the amendment which he can let me see?

Mr. BRIDGES. Yes. I send a copy of it to the Senator's desk.

The Post Office, already operating on a deficiency basis, is exempted.

Payments of pensions and benefits to veterans and other personnel are exempted.

The fixed commitments of trust funds and existing contracts are exempted.

I would like at this time, Mr. President, to give a firm estimate of the amount that this amendment would reduce appropriations and reappropriations found in the 1951 bill. I am informed that the Director of the Budget currently is preparing such an estimate, which should be available within the next day or so.

Pending an estimate from the Bureau of the Budget, I believe this amendment may reduce the bill by approximately $600,000,000.

Mr. President, the amendment is a workable amendment. If it is adopted, appropriations and expenditures for nondefense items will be reduced.

Of course, Mr. President, this amendment is going to lessen some of the operations of Government. The number of employees in the executive branch will be reduced. I would remind the Senate, however, that defense agencies already are building up their employee list and that a manpower shortage in Washington is beginning to threaten.

The amendment, also, will reduce appropriations for programs not directly related to defense. If it is adopted, we will put off for another year some of the construction and development which we had proposed to do this year.

It is my hope, Mr. President, that the members who urged so strongly putting off construction of a badly needed Senate Office Building will be consistent and support the amendment.

I can anticipate the arguments that will be forthcoming in support of some of the nondefense programs which the amendment is going to reduce. But this is a critical period and many worth-while things must be put off. I, personally, would favor a deferment of all nonessential public works at this time. The amendment calls only for a 10 percent reduction in such spending.

The people of America, Mr. President, already are called upon to sacrifice their sons in battle. They know that, should the international situation become worse, they will be called upon for many sacrifices of civilian requirements. The people of America will stand behind Congress, Mr. President, if we have the courage to cut from the President's budget some of the funds not necessary for national defense.

In closing, Mr. President, let me say that I was very much impressed with a statement made a few years ago by a legislator in the State of Vermont, on the question of building an executive mansion for the Governor of Vermont. That question came up, and it had very popular support from the civic groups in the State. Finally one veteran legislator from a small town rose and turned the tide by making this statement: "I am not for voting money that we ain't got for something we don't need."

Mr. President, I think that very practical, humble statement could well be applied to the situation in our country today. I, too, am not in favor of spending what we do not have—for today we are operating on a deficit—for things we do not need.

That is the purpose of this amendment.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAPMAN in the chair). Does the Senator from New Hampshire yield to the Senator from New Jersey?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. I am very much impressed with the statement which has just been made by the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire, and I feel that I should like to identify myself with the proposal he is making. I should like to ask him a question, if I may.

Mr. BRIDGES. Certainly.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. At the time when I was studying the ECA program this year, and when I was discussing the matter with Mr. Hoffman, I asked him about the estimates of the funds needed by the ECA to carry on its work. He said that he was perfectly willing to take his cuts across the board, if he had to, but he hoped they would not be imposed upon the ECA after its funds had already been cut.

So I wish to ask the Senator whether he thinks it would be fair, after the funds for ECA already have been cut, to make a further cut of 10 percent in the ECA funds or commitments, which I feel are a part of our defense program.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, I say to the Senator from New Jersey, who is a great student of international affairs, and who I know has a great interest in the ECA, as I have, that this amendment does not exclude the ECA. It does exclude arms implementation or other military aid. We would be delighted to have the Senator from New Jersey join with us in sponsoring the amendment, and have him reserve the right on his part to take a different position on the ECA item, if he chooses to do so.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. I think I would check with those in the ECA with whom I have been studying this matter, and see what position they would take in regard to the ECA program which is the bedrock of our operations in regard to European aid; and I believe that I would reserve the right, when the matter comes up on the floor of the Senate, to try to restore the part of the ECA funds which then might be missing, if a 10-percent cut had already been made in the ECA funds, or if one was then proposed.

Mr. IVES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. IVES. Is it not a fact that if the ECA funds are found to be insufficient by the end of the calendar year, we very possibly can provide for the ECA by means of a deficiency appropriation before the next calendar year?

Mr. BRIDGES. Of course, that will be possible, particularly in view of the fact that, of course, it was not possible for the ECA to make exact estimates. Under those circumstances, the Congress was generous enough to appropriate more than ample funds for the ECA, and the ECA was efficient enough to conduct its operations in such a way as to have a carry-over of $277,000,000.

It is quite understandable that it was impossible for exact estimates to be made of the funds required by ECA. However, the situation would be as the Senator says, and the representatives of ECA would be able to come before the congressional committees at such a time when we would know more definitely about the world situation.

Mr. IVES. I thank the Senator.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. FERGUSON. The Senator from New Jersey has raised questions about the ECA. Is it not true that in the amendment, of which the junior Senator from Michigan is a cosponsor, provision is made that the 10-percent cut shall be on the amount stated in the bill as it is finally passed by both Houses of Congress and is signed by the President?

Mr. BRIDGES. That is correct.

Mr. FERGUSON. So the conferees will be able to determine what, in their opinion, is the amount which is to be cut 10 percent; is not that a correct statement?

Mr. BRIDGES. Yes; that is correct.

Mr. FERGUSON. As also indicated, is it not true that if an emergency arises, and if the President feels he needs money with which to take care of such an emergency—whether in regard to the ECA or otherwise—it is possible for a deficiency or supplemental appropriation to be requested?

Mr. BRIDGES. Of course.

Mr. FERGUSON. So the purpose of this amendment is to attempt to have the Congress cut the civilian, nonmilitary, nonfighting budget 10 percent; is that correct?

Mr. BRIDGES. That is correct.

Mr. FERGUSON. When we are at war, even if it is termed a police action, and we are going to supply the men at the front and those who are engaged in arming Europe, then most certainly the time has come when we must save something from the least essential operations of Government in order to be able to give sufficient assistance and make sufficient appropriations for activities which are vital and essential.

Mr. BRIDGES. That is the philosophy of the amendment, and I think it is the best possible approach which can be devised at this time.

Mr. President, we have not had an opportunity to invite Senators generally to join in sponsoring the amendment, but I should like to say that any Senator—regardless of political party—is invited to become a cosponsor of the amendment. If Senators will notify us of that desire on their part, their names can be added to the amendment before it is printed this evening.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. LANGER. I have not seen the amendment, but under the circumstances I should like to know whether the proposed cut would apply to the rural mail carriers. Would they be cut 10 percent, under the provisions of the amendment?

Mr. BRIDGES. The amendment excludes the Post Office Department in its entirety.

Mr. LANGER. How about the Veterans' Administration?

Mr. BRIDGES. The amendment excludes it in its entirety.

Mr. LANGER. What does the amendment include?

Mr. BRIDGES. It includes all the civilian components of the Government which do not directly apply to the military, to veterans, to arms implementation aid, to the FBI, to the Secret Service, to the Immigration Service, to grants in aid to the States, and so forth.

Mr. LANGER. How many Government employees, or what percent, would be affected by the amendment?

Mr. BRIDGES. I do not know that I can state the exact percentage of Government employees who would be affected by the amendment, but I would say to the distinguished Senator from North Dakota that the amendment has been worked out very carefully so that it would not have the effect of injuring any program which is vital or essential at this time.

Mr. LANGER. Do I correctly understand from the distinguished Senator—if he will yield further—that the conferees will be able to determine which of the Government departments the amendment will affect and which ones it will not affect?

Mr. BRIDGES. No; they are stated in the amendment. What the Senator from Michigan said was that the conferees, of course, will determine the exact amount of the bill—as between the amount of the bill as passed by the House and the amount of the bill as passed by the Senate. So the amendment will apply to the amount arrived at in that way, rather than to the amount carried in the bill as passed by the Senate. That was the point the Senator from Michigan made, I believe.

Mr. LANGER. I thank the Senator.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the Senator from New Hampshire has made a splendid presentation of it, and I shall not attempt to cover the ground he has covered; as a cosponsor of this amendment, I desire to discuss it briefly. When the appropriation bill passed the House of Representatives it contained the Thomas-Taber amendment providing for reductions by formula in addition to those specifically set forth in the various appropriation items.

This over-all formula reduction to provide further economy was adopted on the floor of the House by a vote of more than 2 to 1. The predominating criticism of the House provision has been with respect to the technical difficulties which would arise in its administration.

The Senate committee amendment, which is offered as an amendment to the Thomas-Taber amendment in the House, has been drafted with the benefit of assistance by technicians from the Bureau of the Budget, the General Accounting Office, and the Senate Legislative Drafting Counsel. The Bureau of the Budget is now preparing a careful estimate of the savings.

For myself, I should not hesitate at this time, in this perilous condition of the country, to vote for much larger reductions in domestic civilian expenditures.

We are virtually in a state of war and from recent experience we know what military operations cost. This amendment applies no reduction to appropriations for the Military Establishment or for direct activities in support of our military defense.

In the current circumstances of international crisis abroad with its fiscal and physical requirements at home, I vigorously urge that nonessential domestic civilian expenditures should be cut to the absolute minimum.

This amendment does not go that far. I wish it did. I wish it did. I would feel much better about the security of the Nation.

I realize, of course, that much of the appropriations in this bill are tied to long-term commitments made by law which cannot be remedied in an appropriation bill. I take this occasion to repeat what I have been saying for years: We should proceed with caution toward the enactment of basic legislation which in effect commits the Federal Government to virtually permanent spending programs, and I hope that before the next appropriation bill reaches the Senate, the Senate Appropriations Committee will be able to advise us as to these programs and how much each of them costs in terms of requested appropriations.

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES], the ranking minority member of the Appropriations Committee, has explained in great detail, as I have said, the provisions of the amendment. It suffices for me to say that we do not propose by this amendment to reduce any appropriation essential to our national defense. The nonessentials which would be reduced would be cut by only 10 percent and there are few who would argue that there is not more than 10 percent of fat in every appropriation which comes before Congress. In addition, I am confident that we have had the benefit of the best technical advice available in the drafting of this amendment so that it simply raises the question as to whether, in the face of war conditions, we choose to retrench by 10 percent in nonessential Federal expenditures which involve neither the military defense of the Nation nor legal and moral commitments to individuals, corporations, or political subdivisions.

I repeat, it is my sincere belief that a 10-percent reduction can be absorbed at this time on every budget expenditure item with the exception of interest on the debt and national defense.

As a cosponsor of this amendment, I shall support it in the belief that it represents the very least that we can do in an effort to make secure the fiscal position of the Government of the United States. For myself, as I have said, I should like to do much more in the direction of reducing nondefense expenditures, and I believe more may have to be done if conditions develop as it now appears they will, requiring large additional expenditures for our military defense.

Mr. WHERRY, Mr. CAPEHART and Mr. LANGER addressed the chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Virginia yield, and if so, to whom?

Mr. BYRD. I yield first to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I desire to ask the distinguished Senator from Virginia a question, but before doing so, I should like to state that I have worked with the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations for many years, and with the entire minority membership, and I am well satisfied that all the Senators who have joined in offering this amendment to the appropriations bill have done so after careful study and consideration. If adopted, I feel satisfied that it will work mechanically in a very satisfactory way. That is a difficult thing to do, when an attempt is made either by way of rescission or by limitation or restriction in an appropriation bill.

I wish to say for the record that I regret that a greater reduction in the appropriations bill cannot be brought about this year. I feel satisfied that the Appropriations Committee, prior to the development of the Korean situation, had done a splendid job, and I wish to compliment the chairmen of the various subcommittees upon the bill which has been reported to the Senate. After nearly 8 years service in the Senate, with most of the time membership on the Appropriations Committee one of my regular assignments, I am satisfied that the Appropriations Committee has given a great deal of conscientious effort and study to the appropriations for individual items. But I must say that, in view of the emergency which confronts us, there can be no doubt of the absolute necessity of making every possible savings, to the end that military items for the defense of the country and trust fund items, which must be protected, are given adequate supplies of money, when and if the demand comes.

I should like to ask the distinguished Senator from Virginia and the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire whether they have made any estimate of the saving which would be effected by this amendment. I do not know whether the figures have been worked out to the last detail, but I wonder whether the Senator can give us an estimate.

Mr. BYRD. The Senator from New Hampshire, I believe, estimated the saving at about $600,000,000.

Mr. BRIDGES. From $600,000,000 to $700,000,000.

Mr. BYRD. A very careful estimate will be made by the Budget Bureau within the next few days.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. BYRD. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. Can the Senator give us an estimate of the total amount of reductions made by the House and the Senate, without the adoption of this amendment, and of the total amount of reductions that would be made with it?

Mr. BYRD. As a rough estimate, I should say that the reductions made by the House and the Senate without the adoption of this amendment would be about $1,200,000,000. I should say that the reductions, including the reductions proposed by this amendment, would approximate $2,000,000,000.

Mr. WHERRY. I thank the distinguished Senator from Virginia, and to join with him wholeheartedly in his observations, in the course of which he has stated—and I agree—that this certainly is a step in the right direction. I hope the Senate will look with favor upon the amendment, and that it will have the support of the Senate as an effort to save money where money can be saved, and to make it possible to use money where it must be used, if and when occasion arises.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BYRD. I yield.

Mr. LANGER. I should like to inquire of the distinguished Senator how the proposed 10-percent cut under this amendment would be applied. Would it apply pro rata?

Mr. BYRD. It would be applied to each department of the Government, to be broken up by each of the departments for specific application within the department.

Mr. LANGER. For example, would it mean, if the amendment is adopted, that travel expense could be cut 10 percent?

Mr. BYRD. It would.

Mr. LANGER. Would it mean that the supplies could be cut 10 percent?

Mr. BYRD. It is left to the discretion of the heads of the departments. The appropiation for the department itself would be cut, and that cut would have to be distributed within the department.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. BYRD. I yield.

Mr. LANGER. I am reminded of a speech made some months ago, possibly a year ago, by the distinguished Senator, showing that in one department there was enough paper on hand to last for 78 years, and that another department had certain supplies on hand sufficient to last for 287 years. Under this amendment, I take it, it would not be necessary to cut those supplies 10 percent, but they could be cut out entirely.

Mr. BYRD. The Senator is correct.

Mr. LANGER. I should like to ask one more question, if I may. If the amendment should be adopted, how would it affect the Byrd-Langer amendment?

Mr. BYRD. It would not affect the Byrd-Langer amendment, because that provides for a limitation upon employment. It would not be affected at all.

Mr. LANGER. In other words, the Bureau of the Budget would still have to reduce personnel?

Mr. BYRD. Yes.

Mr. LANGER. I thank the Senator.

IMPORTANCE OF RETAINING OUR SURPLUS WAR MATERIALS

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, I hold in my hand an article appearing in today's issue of the Washington Daily News, by Jim G. Lucas, entitled "GI's Could Use Tanks We Let Go." I do not rise to talk about it in a spirit of criticism, but, rather, to make a suggestion after I have read the article:

American GI's, fighting a losing battle against Russian-made heavy tanks in Korea, could use some of those Uncle Sam lost, sold, or gave away a few years back.

It wasn't too long ago that Uncle Sam was peddling surplus tanks to all takers at a few cents on the dollar. In July 1947, for instance, we sold 10 light tanks, worth $270,000, to Belgium for $10,000. In December, we disposed of 21 more, worth $568,000, to Canada for $17,000.

In January 1948 we sold nine tank engines, track assemblies, and spare parts, worth $166,000, to Venezuela for $8,000. In March, $49,000 worth of engines and spare parts went to Guatemala for $2,000. In April, we closed a deal with Ecuador for 21 tank engines and spare parts, worth $400,000, for $20,000. In September of that year, we sold Mexico 12 tank engines, worth $291,000, for $14,000.

NINE THOUSAND AND EIGHTY-FIVE TANKS LOST

The Hoover Commission's national security task force said we made 86,000 tanks during World War II. Army statistics indicated we had 25,045 at the end of the war. In 1948, the task force said, the Army could account for 15,960 tanks. The task force said the Army was unable to state what had become of the others.

The task force said it believed the Army didn't know how many tanks it had. The task force charged that the Army was asking for money to modernize more tanks than were in stock. The Army overlooked the fact, the task force said, that 102 had been sold to the Marines, and asked for money to modernize them, too.

Moreover, the task force said, the Army couldn't account for the vast quantities of matériel on hand at the end of hostilities. The Army says it has matériel sufficient to equip only 18 divisions, although at the end of the war it had 89 fully equipped divisions and great additional quantities of matériel in the pipeline.

Mr. President, in order to save the time of the Senate, I ask unanimous consent to have the remainder of the article printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the remainder of the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

"Loss of easily replaceable matériel is easily understood, but the loss of complicated, hard-to-produce military equipment is another matter, especially as the military was put on notice 6 months after the end of the war as to the seriousness of the international situation."

HOOVER REPORTED IT

The case of the missing tanks was first told to Congress by ex-President Herbert Hoover on April 11, 1949. The next day, ex-Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall said Mr. Hoover was totally incorrect.

Mr. Royall said 7,170 tanks were found to be obsolete and were transferred, sent abroad as military aid or lost for similar reasons. He said the tank transfer to the Marines was discovered and adjusted accordingly.

Mr. Royall said equipment for 35 divisions was sold to civilian, destroyed, demilitarized, given to the Red Cross or UNRRA, salvaged or made part of the Greek-Turkish aid program. Equipment for another 23, he said, was out of balance as to quantity, or needed repair.

The rug was pulled out from under Mr. Royall the next day. Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, at his first press conference, agreed with Mr. Hoover, who later said his facts were "taken from their original source, confirmed by officers in charge, and rechecked with independent sources."

The Hoover Commission task force said that—whatever the reason—it was evident we no longer had the tanks or the equipment for 71 demobilized divisions.

"Whether or not the equipment was perfect," the task force said, "its possession today would be of great comfort and value to the peaceful countries of the world."

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, when World War II ended, I urged as strongly as I could that the Government should not dispose of any war matériel. I even urged that it should dispose of no factories. I recommended that it dispose only of that which was perishable, on the theory that the best we could do was to receive from 10 to 15 percent of the value of the surplus war matériel, and that we might need it again sometime.

The argument against that suggestion, of course—and there was some merit to it—was that war matériel become obsolete.

My answer then was, as my answer is today, that it is better to have obsolete material than to have no material at all.

The purpose of my rising, Mr. President, was to urge upon the President of the United States that if we are disposing of any war material at the moment, such disposal be immediately discontinued and; that we keep such material, even though it be obsolete. I feel that my recommendation when the war ended was sound, and I think it is sound today, that we not dispose of any of our surplus war material. If we had today the tanks which we had at the end of the war they would be very helpful to the boys who are fighting in Korea.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CAPEHART. I shall be very happy to yield to the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. SCHOEPPEL. Is it not true that some material which might be classified as obsolete consists of critical material which is not available at this time, and might it not be very well for us to consider it from that angle and to keep and preserve what we have?

Mr. CAPEHART. There is no question but that the Senator is correct.

As I said a moment ago, Mr. President, I am making these remarks not in any spirit of criticism, because we are at war, but only to urge upon our Government that it not dispose of any war materials, because even that which looks like scrap is made of steel, copper, and other materials which in an all-out war effort become scarce.

I strongly urge that the Government immediately stop disposing of any so-called surplus war material, because, frankly, I do not think there is any such thing as surplus war material. It may have become obsolete, but obsolete material is better than no material at all.

I think we made a mistake, and I so stated 5 years ago, in disposing of our war plants and of surplus war material. I know it is easy for one's hindsight to be better than his foresight, and I am not trying to be critical in this instance, because we are at war, and it behooves every American to support his Government in time of war. I think it behooves us as Members of the United States Senate to offer constructive suggestions. I believe the suggestion which I have just offered, that the Government discontinue the disposal of even one penny's worth of war materials at this time, until the war in Korea is over, is a good suggestion. When that war is over, let us keep our war material, because obsolete material is always better than no material at all.

STATEHOOD FOR ALASKA—H. R. 331

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, I desire to speak for a few minutes on a very important matter that is to come up for Senate consideration soon after we complete the consideration of the Appropriations bill, now before this body. I refer to the statehood bill for Alaska, House bill 331. The chairman of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, on Monday last, made a similar short statement at the time he submitted the report of the majority for inclusion in the RECORD.

The original version of House bill 331 was, no doubt, pretty well circulated in Alaska both before and after its passage by the House, but I doubt if a dozen copies of the bill as finally reported by the Senate committee have reached Alaska. I personally airmailed four or five copies to the daily newspapers of Alaska as soon as I obtained printed copies of the bill as revised by the Senate committee. To date, I have heard from only one or two persons in Alaska with reference to the contents of the revised bill. I am certain that the revised Senate bill is a tremendous improvement over the House version, but I also feel that it may be wise to take more time to perfect the Senate bill, as evidenced by the editorial from the Juneau Daily Alaska Empire, which I shall insert in the RECORD with this statement. If more people in Alaska were given the opportunity of reading the Statehood bill, as now proposed, I feel certain there would be many protests, not only with reference to the public lands provision, but also with regard to the provisions affecting the mining and fishing industries of the Territory.

At this point, Mr. President, I ask that the editorial above referred to be made a part of my statement.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

IT WILL BE TOO LATE

When the original Alaska statehood bill, H. R. 331, after having passed the House, came to the Senate, and a hearing was had before the Senate Committee on Territorial and Insular Affairs, it was brought to the attention of the committee that this bill had not been given any circulation in the Territory, so that very few persons were familiar with its contents.

It was also pointed out that the provisions of the bill relating to the transfer of public lands to the new State were wholly inadequate. Apparently most of the proponents of statehood agreed to that and so did the members of the committee, for the bill has been amended in the Senate committee, and the chief amendments deal with section 5, relating to the transfer of public lands to the new State. We have received a copy of the bill as it now stands and as it was amended by the committee on June 21 and 23. Section 5 (b) of the latest bill reads as follows:

"After 5 years from the admission of Alaska into the Union, the State, in addition to any other grants made in this section, shall be entitled to select not to exceed 20,000,000 acres from the vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved public lands in the State. Such selections shall be made in reasonably compact tracts: Provided, That valid, existing rights shall not be affected by any such selections or grants. Where the lands desired are unsurveyed at the time of selection, the Secretary of the Interior shall survey the exterior boundaries of the area requested without any subdivision thereof and shall issue a patent for such selected area in terms of the exterior boundary survey. Such lands may be granted or sold by the State in tracts of not more than 640 acres for any purpose, but with a reservation to the State of a royalty of not more than 12½ percent on all minerals produced therefrom. The lands granted to the State of Alaska pursuant to this subsection, and income therefrom and the proceeds thereof when said lands are sold, shall be held by said State as a public trust for the support of public schools and other public educational institutions."

In the first amendment made by the committee the provison "that valid existing rights shall not be affected by any such selections or grants" was not included. However, the inclusion of that in section 5 (b) would seem to add very little protection for the new State in acquiring public lands.

As the section reads, the State shall be entitled after 5 years to select not to exceed 20,000,000 acres from vacant, unappropriated and unreserved lands in the State. As the tracts are selected the Secretary of the Interior shall survey the exterior boundaries of the areas requested and shall issue a patent for such selected area in terms of the exterior boundary survey.

Now, let us suppose that the new State after 5 years begins to select areas to be transferred to it by patent from the United States. Let us say it selects an area containing three or four thousand acres in one locality. The new State is not likely to select mountain peaks or tundra, but it may be assumed that it will try to select the best lands available, and it is difficult to conceive of any considerable tracts of land which might be so selected which would not contain within their exterior boundaries some unpatented mining claims and some other unpatented ground held by settlers for one purpose or another.

In the first place, since the State is authorized to select only from vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved public lands, it could hardly be said that tracts which include unpatented mining claims and other unpatented claims would be either vacant or unappropriated; therefore, according to the strict letter of the law, the Secretary would refuse to make the survey and issue the patent to the State.

If he should attempt to make the survey and issue the patent, just how would the valid existing rights of any person be protected? Furthermore, there might be existing rights which the Secretary or the new State might consider not to be valid.

This would surely cause litigation in case the Secretary should consider the lands to be vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved and issue the patent to the new State.

The very best he could do would be to survey the lands selected and issue a patent which would contain a reservation in the language of the statehood bill that all valid existing rights on the land are unaffected. No one would know what those valid existing rights were, how many claims were involved, their area or extent, or what other rights might be affected, and there is no machinery set up in the bill for determining these things.

This is a most serious matter, and one which might well prevent the new State from ever getting any public lands or if it did acquire any, there would be endless law suits to determine who had valid existing rights on those lands prior to their transfer. Who would be the judge as to what was a valid existing right? In all cases it would require litigation.

Another objectionable feature in section 5 is the provision for the sale of State lands in tracts of "not more than 640 acres for any purpose." The meaning of that phrase is certainly obscure. We do not know whether it means that not more than 640 acres may be sold to any person or corporation—but if it doesn't mean that, it is meaningless.

If it does mean that any one person or corporation is limited to 640 acres, what would happen in the case of a mining company like the Alaska-Juneau Gold Mining Co. which operated before the war a large low-grade property on a very narrow margin requiring a very considerable acreage of land exceeding 640 acres? A mining property such as the Alaska-Juneau requires a very large investment, requires a large number of claims and millsites, power plant sites, land for transmission lines, dam sites, etc. How could it ever operate if it is restricted to owning 640 acres?

Another very objectionable provision in section 5 (b) is that which provides that when the State acquires lands and sells them it must reserve a royalty on minerals of not more than 12½ percent. The mining industry in Alaska and generally throughout the United States has always been strongly opposed to royalties, yet the statehood bill, for some reason which we cannot fathom, requires that the State must reserve a royalty on minerals, whether the people desire it or not. In our opinion this would further discourage mining in the new State.

A royalty is on gross production and again let us illustrate by taking the case of the Alaska-Juneau mine. It was a large low-grade mine and it was necessary to operate on a very extensive scale, mining 13,000 to 14,000 tons of ore a day on account of the very low grade of the ore. The mining in the prewar days was on a scale which required a gross production, we believe, of between five and six million dollars a year. The profit, in years when there was a profit, was very slim, and even if a royalty of 1 percent on the gross production had been in effect, that is to say, if such a mine were operated on lands acquired from the State, the royalty alone could well mean the difference between profit and loss.

It is difficult to see how such provisions were inserted in the statehood bill by the committee and we repeat what we said before, that if statehood is to be granted to Alaska, it is certainly of sufficient importance to permit the people of the Territory to express some opinion as to the public lands provisions of the bill.

We think the bill as amended by the Senate committee should be generally distributed throughout the Territory in order that the people may read and consider and comment upon section 5 before it is enacted. It will be too late afterward.

Mr. BUTLER. An Associated Press dispatch from Seattle, under date of July 10, quotes a member of the International Fisheries Commission to the effect that the fisheries provision in the amended statehood bill would encourage foreign entanglements. I personally feel that we already have enough troublesome international entanglements without adding to them with a hasty passage of this bill. Since I assume, Mr. President, that there will be considerable debate on this and similar provisions of the Alaska statehood bill, I will not take the time of the Senate now to elaborate further, except to request that the press release referred to above be made a part of my remarks at this point.

There being no objection, the dispatch was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

IFC PROTESTS TO PROPOSED CHANGE, STATEHOOD BILL

SEATTLE, July 10.—An International Fisheries Commission member today charged the fisheries provision of the amended Alaska statehood bill would encourage foreign entanglements.

Edward W. Allen, a member of General MacArthur's fisheries mission to Japan, said the amended bill "threatens to sacrifice an important food asset of this country."

Allen contended the bill should be rewritten to state specifically what fishery control is to be vested in the proposed new State (Alaska).

"At least it should be redrafted to provide expressly for the repeal of the present fishery laws relating to Alaska," he said.

The Federal Government has been regulating salmon fishing for many years.

"It is the only power which can protect salmon runs in the future against destructive fishing by Russians and Japanese," Allen said.

Allen said the amended statehood bill does not repeal the present Federal laws protecting Alaska fishing, but does take away all facilities for enforcing them.

Mr. BUTLER. I also request that a news article entitled "Query Asked Into Palmer Airport Deal," published in the Daily Alaska Empire on July 10, be made a part of my remarks at this point.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

QUERY ASKED INTO PALMER AIRPORT DEAL—DICKER TO GET MATCHING FUNDS FROM FEDERAL AGENCY UNDER FIRE, NEWS-MINER

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA, July 10.—The Fairbanks Daily News-Miner has proposed a Federal inquiry into a $150,000 land transaction for an airport project at Palmer, in the Matanuska Valley.

The newspaper said its own investigation showed an attempt was being made to place a disproportionate value on the land to get matching funds from the Federal Government.

About 128 acres of land at Palmer are involved. The newspaper said the estimated construction cost of the airport was $120,000.

To acquire the land, the News-Miner said, the Territory paid the Palmer Airport Association $150,000, which was $1,172 an acre. The paper said official records of the Territory at Juneau show that the Palmer Association shortly thereafter repaid $145,000 to the Territory.

The News-Miner said the transaction created a situation in which the Territory might try to recover from the Federal Treasury a payment of $37,000 in matching funds (25 percent of the land-acquisition cost) to offset expenditures on Palmer airfield facilities prior to 1949. It was in 1949 that the legislature took action that made the Territory eligible to benefits under the Federal act.

In response to a reporter's inquiry at Juneau, Governor Gruening commented: "I am not familiar with details of the Palmer Airport deal, but I know it was necessary to set the price of land at $150,000 in order to permit the Territory to receive matching funds for moneys spent prior to passage of the enabling act."

A meeting of the aviation board has been called for Tuesday in Anchorage.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, my reference to the Palmer Airport deal is mentioned only to indicate a condition prevailing in Territorial finances that certainly is not encouraging for statehood. Under date of July 8 there appeared an article about the same airport deal in the Anchorage Daily News. I ask that this article also be made a part of my remarks at this point.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NEWS-MINER DECLARES HUGE PAYMENT NICKED TAXPAYERS

Gov. Ernest Gruening, commenting on the Fairbanks News-Miner story, said, "I am not familiar with details of the Palmer Airport deal, but know it was necessary to set the price of land at $150,000 in order to permit the Territory to receive matching funds for moneys spent prior to passage of Enabling Act."

A meeting of the four-man aviation board has been called for Tuesday in Anchorage to discuss the airport situation.

Charges that there were irregularities in payments made by the Territory of Alaska to the Palmer Airport Association for Federal airports were hurled today in Fairbanks by the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner.

The statements were made in a front-page story and in an editorial in today's edition of the newspaper.

Held in question by the newspaper was payment of $150,000 for land on which the new Palmer Airport is being built, and shortly thereafter the return to the Territory by the Palmer Airport Association of $145,000 of this sum.

Editorially, the News-Miner charges that the transaction was arranged specifically to enable the Territory to collect from the Federal Government matching funds against money spent by the Territory on the old Palmer Airport before the Federal airport act became effective in Alaska.

The newspaper charges that by this transaction Alaskans, as Federal taxpayers, are required to pay another $37,500 (25 percent of the $150,000-land-acquisition cost), thus duplicating their earlier expenditure, as Territorial taxpayers, of $50,000 for financing the existing airport.

The paper has demanded a congressional investigation of "this bizarre method of financing public improvements."

Published in the newspaper today was a photostat showing that the $150,000 payment was made by warrant No. 283540, issued April 11, 1950, for 127.94 acres of land, or at the rate of $1,172 per acre. An accompanying photostat of the Palmer Airport Association's minutes, dated April 15, 1950, discloses that the payment to the association of $150,000 and its repayment to the Territory of $145,000 was made to enable the Territory to claim 25-percent matching funds, or $37,500 from the Federal Government, based on the $150,000 valuation of the land.

The minutes state: "In order to receive credit under said act for moneys already expended it would be necessary for the Palmer Airport Association to place a value of $150,00 on the present premises and sell the same to the Territory at such a figure, thereby allowing the Territory to receive 25-percent credit in matching funds for land acquisition, an allowable cost under said act."

The Federal moneys thus yielded, the minutes state, would offset Territorial expenditures of $50,000 made on the old Palmer Airport before the Federal Airport Aid Act became effective in Alaska. The balance of $150,000 retained by the association after payment to the Territory of $145,00 was used to purchase extra land for the new Palmer Airport.

Purchases included 11 acres from Harold Thuma for $2,640, 23 acres from Snodgrass and Newcomb for $1,600.

E. G. Fisher, assistant director of the CAA for Alaska, said that the Territory has not yet applied for payment of the matching funds.

Records in the CAA office at Anchorage show that the cost for the airport was estimated at $5,500 in the original request for Federal aid of November 1949. The project application of March 1950 estimates the land cost at $150,000.

The News-Miner charges that the meeting of the airport association, at which a price of $150,000 was placed on the land, took place on Apil 15, or 8 days after the voucher for the $150,000 payment was presented to the Territory, and 4 days after the warrant for payment was issued.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, much has been said about the urgency of granting statehood to Alaska and Hawaii because they are important in our defense system. Mr. President, this is pure sentimental poppycock. Those who advance such silly arguments to be consistent should demand that South Korea be made a part of the United States, and given statehood, before we defend that country. Those sentimentalists also say "denial of statehood would be capitalized by Communist propagandists everywhere." Mr. President, this is more silly poppycock. Who thinks we will overcome the Communist move, here or elsewhere, by throwing out sops, by granting statehood to keep them off our backs? I have complete confidence in the patriotism of Hawaii and Alaska. Those good people are going to defend our Union the same as did the people of Nebraska and many other States that were in Territorial status at the time of our own Civil War. Neither Nebraska nor any other Territory that I know of based its request for statehood on the fact that it helped to defend the Union. The full resources and power of America will go to the defense of either Hawaii or Alaska whenever occasion requires.

Mr. President, there is no Member of this body who will defend the rights of minority groups more ardently than the senior Senator from Nebraska. But, Mr. President, I also feel that I have a responsibility to defend the majority from being a victim of minority propaganda. Big plane loads of witnesses were flown here to testify for statehood recently, almost entirely at public expense, but not one person was permitted to come to appear as a witness to testify against statehood, unless he came at his own expense. Statehood hearings should be held in the Territories where both sides can be heard.

Mr. President, I ask that my minority views on H. R. 331 be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, Mr. BUTLER'S minority views were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MINORITY VIEWS OF SENATOR HUGH BUTLER ON ALASKA STATEHOOD BILL, H. R. 331

Statehood for Alaska at this time might well spell financial ruin for that vast area of 365,481,600 acres.

Instead of strengthening national defense as its proponents claim, passage of H. R. 331, by bringing economic chaos to an important, strategic area, might in fact weaken our military position.

No military authority has at any time held that Alaska statehood is necessary for defense. I refer you to the testimony of Rear Adm. Ralph Wood, retired, appearing on pages 369 to 371 of the hearings before the committee. He said:

"It has been stated that statehood for Alaska is now going to bolster somehow the national defense. In my opinion it makes no difference whether Alaska is a State or a Territory as far as national defense is concerned."

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has stated that a stable local government aids defense. I feel that statehood for Alaska at this time would not result in a stable government. Instead, it would saddle that vast area with unbearable financial handicaps.

FINANCIAL BURDENS

In addition to granting rights, statehood imposes responsibilities and financial burdens. It would be unwise to grant statehood to a population that cannot carry the attendant burdens. If we should make Alaska a State under the provisions of H. R. 331, the financial burden will prevent the economic development of that area.

It is unprecedented for a State to be unable to carry the cost of statehood but I am afraid that may happen to Alaska if this bill passes. What would be the consequences? Education would suffer, public services would deteriorate, highways and other means of communication would fall into disrepair. Industry, struggling under an unreasonable tax burden, would migrate from Alaska, and the population would decline rather than increase.

That is the prospect that may face the people of Alaska if H. R. 331 passes. We shall be doing them no service by thrusting statehood upon them before they are in a position to support it.

Would a substandard State be what Territorial Governor Gruening called for in his message to the nineteenth legislature when he referred to Alaska as a "shining exemplar in these northern latitudes of what the American way of life should and can be * * * across Bering Strait another way of life, which contrasts wholly with American ideals of freedom, is strongly entrenched?"

SPARSE POPULATION

If Alaska is granted statehood, it will be far the largest in area. But despite the recent vast immigration of Government employees and persons working on Government projects, it would have the smallest population of any State in the Union. For each 10 square miles of land in Alaska there is but one settler. This is important because today a certain minimum of population and industry is essential to provide the necessary tax revenue to maintain certain public facilities, particularly roads. Alaska—even counting the Government employees—does not have that minimum.

Proponents of statehood for Alaska have tried to give the impression that territorial status is the only obstacle to a rapid development of Alaska resources and a growth of her population. Such an impression is false. The failure fo Alaska to develop more rapidly is due to a combination of climatic and geographical handicaps, plus a gigantic superstructure of stifling regulations and restrictions upon the use of its resources by various bureaus of the Federal Government. Foremost among these restrictions is the Federal policy of withdrawing vast areas of Alaska's most promising resources from development and use.

Although H. R. 331 as amended is somewhat superior to the original Alaska statehood bill passed by the House, its provisions, as will be pointed out, still fail to correct the evils that are thwarting Alaska's growth.

To grant statehood at this time is to put the cart before the horse. Alaska's great problem is the development of its resources. Rather than pass this bill, we cculd best help Alaska's development by investigating thoroughly the restrictive policies now hampering the exploitation of Alaska and insisting they be removed.

If statehood is granted under H. R. 331, these restrictions still must be removed if Alaska is to develop. How much better to remove these obstacles first.

GOVERNMENTAL BOOM

Those sponsoring this legislation try to create the impression that Alaska is simply an additional frontier which our pioneers have finally reached and are about to bring into productive use rapidly. This amounts to a complete misunderstanding of Alaska's recent history and current situation.

Since our purchase of Alaska from the Russians, it has had two population booms. The first occurred between 1890 and 1900 when gold was discovered. The population increased sharply from about 30,000 to approximately 60,000 during that decade. Gold discovery did not lead to a steady, solid, permanent growth. As a matter of fact, the population of Alaska actually declined between 1900 and 1930.

The second spurt in population occurred between 1930 and 1950 but this did not result from increased use of Alaska's natural resources. It was due almost entirely to something else—the growth of Federal Government activities.

The increase of Alaska's population closely paralleled the increase in Federal spending and in the number of Federal jobs. Federal expenditures specifically earmarked for Alaska in 1950 amounted to $71,000,000; in the 1951 budget estimates, $112,000,000. These figures do not include a great part of the military spending there.

As of December 1948, the latest date available, there were 11,536 Federal employees in Alaska, most of whom it is safe to assume went there after 1930. To this figure must be added the employees of companies having Federal construction contracts in the Territory.

During the 20 years since 1930, it is estimated that the population of Alaska has increased to approximately 130,000. It is clear that substantially all of this increase can be accounted for by the increase in Federal job holders, employees of Government contractors, their families, and the trade and service establishments dependent upon them.

What will happen to this increased population if the Army follows its announced policy of evacuating its civilian employees from Alaska?

On the other hand, military expenditures in Alaska depend entirely on the international situation. Eventually, Alaska must look forward to a sharp decrease in military activity there.

DECLINING INDUSTRIES

During this artificial boom created by Government spending, the basic industries of the Territory, instead of expanding, declined.

Gold mining, the principal industry of the interior, has fallen off sharply. In 1941 gold production amounted to approximately $28,000,000. By 1949 this production had fallen to less than $8,000,000. Statehood cannot improve the condition of this industry. Increased production costs and a fixed selling price have crippled it. Unless the price of gold is changed, there can be no relief for the gold-mining industry in the foreseeable future.

The story of the fishing industry is similar, although not quite so bad. Production of canned salmon on the average during the past 5 years (1945–49) has been less than the average production for any 5-year period since 1910–14: Those familiar with Alaska conditions agree that the salmon and most of the other fishing industries in the Territory have about reached their peak on a sustained-yield basis. Even the most ardent proponent for statehood will admit that passage of H. R. 331 will not increase the annual run of salmon.

Take away military expenditures and Alaska's entire economy must depend entirely on the fishing industry. This means that the economy of the new State would depend on this resource's conservation and protection. The fishery resource, in turn, is affected by imports of foreign products. Furthermore, the conservation and protection of the industry are dependent to a large extent on the establishment of international treaties extending protective measures beyond the 3-mile limit.

OTHER INDUSTRIES

What are the prospects for other industries which are supposed to develop with such amazing speed once statehood is granted?

There are still only about 600 farms, including fur farms, in the entire Territory—less than in the average agricultural county in the continental United States. For years we have been hearing about the possibilities of agricultural expansion in Alaska. But thus far the combination of climate, geography and Federal red tape has prevented any substantial additional settlement there. Furthermore, there is no reason to believe that statehood will remedy this situation.

We have also heard glowing, optimistic reports about the future of timber and pulp in Alaska. High transportation and production costs plus foreign competition have halted development of these resources.

One large contract for wood pulp production has been signed. But the contractor has been hesitant about going ahead with his plans and making the large investment required. Reports are that the prospect of excessive taxes under statehood has been a dominant factor in causing this delay.

Instead of hastening the development of the timber and pulp industry in Alaska, passage of H. R. 331 might well thwart it.

In short, there is no evidence of any industry that will appear and develop once statehood has been granted. The only industry—if such it can be called—which has developed at a rapid pace during recent years has been Federal bureaucracy. A Federal bureaucracy is hardly a fit basis on which to erect a structure of statehood.

It must be remembered that Alaska's climate is unfriendly to many ventures—that it necessitates that all industries be of seasonal nature because of severe winters in the interior and heavy rainfall on the coast. Outside work is difficult for many months under these conditions. Construction, for example, is limited to summer months in most parts of Alaska.

FEDERAL RESERVATIONS

Alaska has been preserved for many years as a sort of happy hunting ground for Federal bureaus which have withheld its resources from development. Either that, or they have tried to control its development according to plans drafted 5,000 miles away in Washington, D. C.

Passage of H. R. 331 will not cure these ills.

Of the vast land area, 99.7 percent is owned by the Federal Government; 99.3 percent of Alaska has never even been surveyed by the Interior Department. Some surveying is being done from year to year, but only at a snail's pace. During the past 5 years, surveys have proceeded at an average rate of only 27,494 acres annually. At that rate, it will be about 13,000 years before the surveying of Alaska is completed.

Nor is that all. Much of the best land and most valuable resources of the Territory have been reserved or withdrawn from use by private industries or corporations. Over 20,000,000 acres have been withdrawn in forest reserves. Almost 50,000,000 acres have been withdrawn in the oil and gas reserves.

On the island of Kodiak, substantially all the useful land outside the limits of the city of Kodiak has been withdrawn as wildlife reserves. Strips of land of at least 100 feet on each side of even the feeder roads (300 feet on each side of the Alaskan Highway) have been withdrawn. Bombing ranges, Indian reservations, colonization withdrawals and a variety of other withdrawals add to a system which has taken most of the best lands and available resources away from any possible development by private enterprise.

There are so many land reserves and withdrawals that there has never been any complete, accurate tabulation of them all. One tabulation, which may be reasonably complete, shows a total of 98,500,000 acres in withdrawals out of the 365,481,600 acres in Alaska (p. 421, Senate hearings). This area is about the size of the State of California and represents about 27 percent of Alaska's total area. More important, it comprises almost all of the best and most valuable resources known to exist in the Territory.

In our system of government, the States are sovereign within their own jurisdiction. How can a State government be sovereign in an area where most of its resources are owned by a different sovereignty—the Federal Government? Statehood under such circumstances would be a mockery. The new State would simply be the puppet of its dominant landholder. It would not have the resources to live on and it would have no prospects for development except to the extent that Federal bureaus permitted such development. Every important decision of its career would be controlled by the decisions of its landlord, the Department of the Interior.

No action at all is taken or proposed by the committee in this bill with respect to the vast Federal reservations in Alaska. This probably is Alaska's most pressing problem. The pending measure may not be the proper place to take such action, but certainly this problem should be faced frankly and solved before statehood is considered. As of today, there is no reason to expect that with or without statehood any of the present reservations will be relinquished to any material degree for private use. In fact, there is every reason to assume that more and more reservations will be created from time to time as new resources are discovered for the Federal bureaus to reserve.

The extreme difficulty created by the existence of these Federal reservations is illustrated by the committee's attempt to provide additional land on the outskirts of the various Alaskan cities for the development of those cities. At present many of the towns and cities of southeast Alaska are sharply limited in their expansion, since all the land on all sides, right up to the city boundary, is included within the Tongas National Forest. The committee bill attempts to meet this situation by granting 200,000 acres from the national forest to the State for city development.

This device does not meet the problem. Lands to be granted are subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture. He has it in his power to thwart the intent of this provision by refusing to grant any of the land selected as suitable by the cities. Even without this bill, he could open the way to city development if he chose to do so by restoring such land to the public domain and thus opening it up for use. He has not chosen to do so heretofore and there is nothing in this bill to require him to approve the grant of any particular land which may be desired by the cities or the new State.

THE CLOUD OF INDIAN TITLES

For some years the persistent determination of the Department of the Interior to recognize and uphold the claims to vast tracts of land by various tribes of Alaska natives has thrown a cloud on the title of a great proportion of the real estate in the Territory.

These claims are based on the so-called possessory rights of the natives (Indians, Aleuts, and Eskimos). It is the consensus of legal authorities familiar with this problem that any such rights the natives once possessed were extinguished by the treaty of annexation and subsequent acts of Congress. This view has been upheld consistently in the Federal courts. The natives, of course, have the same rights to homestead or to acquire title to land by other means as do other United States citizens, and many of them have done so.

Nevertheless the Department of the Interior, under section 2 of the Wheeler-Howard Act, has already given recognition to some of these tribal claims. It is currently engaged in trying to establish numerous additional reservations so as to bring as many of the native tribes as possible within the reservation system. Originally and until recently there were no reservations for natives in Alaska. Under that situation, free from the restrictions of the reservation system, the natives of Alaska have made more rapid progress toward acquiring the ways of civilized man than have the Indians in the continental United States.

From the standpoint of the natives, it would be a terrible mistake to establish the reservation system in Alaska. But the results would be even worse from the point of view of developing the Territory. The sweeping claims of the Bureau of Indian Affairs on behalf of the natives have the effect of throwing a cloud on titles of the settlers all over the Territory. No property owner in Alaska can be sure that his title is valid, since at any time he fears his property may be snatched away and vested in the United States in trust for some small native group. No greater deterrent to the development of the Territory's resources can be imagined.

Considerable testimony on this question was received by the committee during the course of the hearings, and committee amendments have changed the language of the bill somewhat with respect to the problem. However, it is not clear that the committee amendments represent much, if any, improvement over the present situation.

The eminent legal firm of Bogle, Bogle & Gates, of Seattle, Wash., has expressed this opinion of the amended section:

"It is our opinion that section 3 and particularly subsection second thereof in H. R. 331 is so uncertain and ambiguous as presently amended by the Senate committee that it is difficult to specifically determine what its effect would be. However, we think that if it is enacted in present form and the courts are called upon to construe it, there is a strong probability that it will be held to constitute an affirmative recognition of aboriginal rights not only to beaches and uplands but also the ocean in view of its reference to fishing rights. You will note that the section covers lands presently owned by the United States as well as lands or other property which may be held by natives. Thus the section opens the door to native claims to all of Alaska except patented lands which presently constitute less than 2 percent of the total area with the result that the mere enactment of the bill would immediately cast a cloud upon the future ownership of 98 percent of the Territory as well as to the beaches, the marginal seas, and the open ocean. Moreover, if the bill should be construed as suggested then under the decisions in the cases of Duwamish Indians v. U. S. (79 Court of Claims 530) and U. S. v. Santa Fe Pacific Railroad (314 U. S. 339) the native rights thus recognized by the bill would be protected by the Fifth Amendment and would not thereafter be subject to modification or extinguishment by Congress without payment of full compensation, whereas ordinary aboriginal rights may be so dealt with by Congress with or without compensation. In other words, once this provision is enacted and construed as suggested then because of the constitutional guaranty Congress cannot later change its mind."

Thus, it appears that even with its amendments, H. R. 331 provides no real security to owners of real property in Alaska and will seriously hamper settlement there.

The way to clear up this problem definitely is to take permanently from the Secretary of the Interior the right to establish reservations in Alaska. Legislation to that effect has been introduced from time to time, but it has not yet been possible to get final action on it. The committee in section 5 (1) has temporarily forbidden the establishment of additional native reservations, but for such a short time that it is hardly worth while. The only way to get proper legislation through settling this problem is to include specific language in this bill. Otherwise the new State and its Representatives in Congress, immediately after the granting of statehood, would be forced to start all over again in an attempt to push through legislation clearing up this threat to the land titles of the settlers there. Without handling this problem, it is foolish to talk about encouraging settlers and investors, developing resources, or granting statehood to Alaska.

THE PATTERN OF BUREAUCRATIC CONTROL

Altogether, the picture is clear that the control of Alaskan resources by the various Federal bureaus has been Alaska's greatest draw-back and will continue to be so even if statehood is granted. The cloud of Indian title, Federal ownership of virtually all the land, the reservation from use of the principal resources, and the "controlled development" psychology of the Federal bureaus have combined to throttle the exploitation and use of such potentialities as Alaska has. They have kept the Territory in a semifeudal status to date.

In this bill the committee has, I believe, made an honest effort to meet some of these problems. It has largely failed, however. Even if this bill should pass in its present form, all the Federal reservations would remain, the cloud of native titles would remain, Federal ownership of almost all the land would remain. In short, Alaska's great problem would remain as before—the control of almost all its resources by a Federal bureaucracy.

ALASKA'S FINANCIAL PROBLEM

Closely tied in with this bureaucratic control is the financial problem that would confront the new State. The excessive concentration of power in the hands of the Federal bureaus over all these resources naturally results in a lack of taxable wealth from which to draw revenue for State purposes. Federal ownership not only hinders the development of Alaska's resources, but it exempts from taxation many of those resources which are developed.

Without adequate tax revenue, Alaska cannot take care of its local needs either as a Territory or as a State. In the Territorial status, tax revenue from productive wealth is replaced by subsidies from the Federal Government. Under statehood, these subsidies would largely disappear. The new State would have to supply and pay for its governmental services now being paid largely by the Federal Government. There would be no means of doing this except by laying a double burden of taxation upon those few sources of wealth which are taxable.

To date Alaska has not even been able to carry properly those limited expenses which are imposed on it as a Territory. Recently Alaska has gone through a succession of financial crises which have involved the "freezing" of Territorial appropriations, monthly deficits and bank financing to cover those deficits, a judicial decision that the recently enacted Territorial real property tax is unconstitutional, and the misapplication of funds.

An insight into the Territory's financial situation is given by the following extracts from a news article appearing in the Juneau Empire for June 10, 1950, describing an address given by Mr. Henry Roden, treasurer of the Territory:

"With the Territory's going costs of operation—schools, salaries, welfare, Pioneers' Home, University of Alaska—amounting to $750,000 a month, the Territory is running behind monthly," Mr. Roden said.

"The tax commissioner and the legislative finance committees during the last session of the legislature had figured income from Territorial taxes to be about $24,000,000 for the biennium, and the Territory's budget was based on this figure.

"From April 1, 1949, to April 1, 1950, the income was about $8,500,000, but of this earmarked funds from the gas tax (about $1,750,000 for the biennium) and the tobacco tax ($500,000 earmarked for the construction of schools) cannot be used for general Territorial costs.

"While anticipated revenue for the current year, April 1, 1950, to April 1, 1951, is $10,000,000, it might in turn be less than last year," Mr. Roden said.

"Last year the fisheries paid a tax of 2 percent of the total value of the pack. But pink salmon last year brought $23 a case, and today the wholesale price is $14.50," Mr. Roden said. "And there is a question also of some canneries not operating this year."

Under statehood, the financial problems of Alaska would be multiplied, as the cost of the State government would be approximately twice that of the Territorial government. The estimated costs of operating the new State have been carefully worked out by Mr. W. C. Arnold and appear on pages 359 and 360 of the hearings. They are based on the present expense to the Federal Government of carrying on functions which would automatically become the responsibility of the State as soon as statehood is granted. Those additional revenues would have to be raised by increased taxation. At present, taxable resources are largely limited to the fishery and mining industries, and, as indicated above, both have already passed the peak of their development.

Many Alaskans do not realize the extent to which their Territorial function is subsidized by the Federal Government. Proponents of Alaska statehood are fond of raising the old cry of taxation without representation. The actual situation is completely opposite. Alaskans escape taxation because of the Territorial status. They receive subsidies they could not hope to receive as a State. They are relieved of a tax burden that they otherwise would have to carry.

For example, some Alaskans complain that as residents of a Territory they are not eligible for funds under the Federal Highway Act. They do not realize that under this act they would be required to match the Federal grants with funds from local taxation. As a matter of fact, Federal funds spent for highways in Alaska are now as great as they would be if Alaska were eligible for Federal highway grants. In other words, Alaska today now receives all the benefit that it could hope to receive under the Federal Highway Act, without being required to put up its share of the funds.

The Territory's only railroad, the Alaska Railroad, is subsidized by the Federal Government as are the Alaska Signal Corps, a large number of cooperative stores, and several canneries operated by the Office of Indian Affairs—all tax free. Its shipping communications with the States are indirectly subsidized by the Federal Government. Some of its airports have been built directly by the Federal Government, instead of requiring the Territory to match Federal funds under the Federal Airport Act as the States are required to do. The same is true with some of the other Federal grants-in-aid programs. Alaska receives many things free from the Federal Government, because it does not have the revenue to put up its share of the cost.

DEFECTS IN BILL

A bare handful of copies of the amended statehood bill has been circulated in Alaska or the States. Those who have read H. R. 331, raise serious objection and have asked both privately and in the press that congressional action be delayed until such time as they can point out obvious defects in the measure. Criticism of the bill is concentrated on the fisheries provision and land-grant sections.

Edward W. Allen, Seattle attorney, member of the International Fisheries Commission, and MacArthur Fisheries Mission to Japan, has this to say about the fisheries provision:

"Alaskan coastal fisheries constitute such a huge and increasingly important food supply that their conservation is not a local Alaska matter but is of vital interest to all the people of this Nation. The Supreme Court itself in recent years has decided that the Federal Government has the right and power to control such fisheries even though they are within the waters of a State. The largest of these fisheries, that for salmon, is partly in national, partly in international waters. The Federal Government has been completely regulating this fishery for many years and is the only power which can give it complete conservation regulation as well as protection against destructive fishing by Russians or Japanese.

"The committee amendment section 5 (g) does not repeal the present Federal laws protecting these fisheries but does expressly take away all the facilities for enforcing them. When the court decisions referred to are considered, it is apparent that the amendment is so ambiguous that no one can safely say what it means. But whether, as its advocates claim, it actually turns over that part of these fisheries which are within national waters to the new State, or whether, as seems more probable, the amendment simply paralyzes all conservation of these valuable fisheries, in either event, the amendment threatens to sacrifice an important food asset of this country and to encourage foreign entanglements.

"The amendment should be completely rewritten so as to retain the present full Federal control of these food fisheries, but if this is not done, it should at least be so redrafted as to provide expressly for the repeal of the present Federal fishery laws relating to Alaska and state specifically what fishery control is to be vested in the new State. It is unfair, both to the people of Alaska and the rest of the country, to enact the present amendment with all its confusion. It is almost as bad as the proposal in the original bill which even overlooked this country's treaty obligations."

LAND GRANT SECTION

If statehood is granted to Alaska the new State will be forced to construct various facilities essential to a state government immediately. The cost of doing so will immediately throw a heavy financial burden on the new State. It has been customary in connection with the admission of other States to grant them a large proportion of unoccupied land to meet such costs. This system has worked out satisfactorily with most of the other States.

In the case of Alaska, however, the system we have usually followed has turned out to be virtually unworkable. In most of the other States, the land was largely surveyed at the time of statehood, or soon after, and it was simple enough to grant the new State a certain proportion of the unoccupied, newly surveyed sections of land. In Alaska, however, considerable less than 1 percent of the land has been surveyed. To grant to Alaska, for school purposes, only a small proportion of this tiny percentage, would appear ridiculous.

As an alternative, the committee has proposed a direct grant of 20,000,000 acres to be selected by the new State 5 years after statehood. This proposal does not solve the problem, however, and has led to serious objection from those who have read the amendment.

First, the new State would receive none of these school lands for a 5-year period. No provision is made to take care of the situation for the intervening 5 years.

Under this section, the State would be entitled after 5 years to select not to exceed 20,000,000 acres from vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved lands. As these tracts are selected, the Secretary of the Interior shall survey the exterior boundaries of the areas requested and shall issue a patent for such selected area in terms of the exterior boundary survey.

Discussing this provision in an editorial on July 10, 1950, the Juneau Alaska Empire pointed out:

"Now, let us suppose that the new State after 5 years begins to select areas to be transferred to it by patent from the United States. Let us say they select an area containing three or four thousand acres in one locality. The new State is not likely to select mountain peaks or tundra, but it may be assumed that it will try to select the best lands available, and it is difficult to conceive of any considerable tracts of land which might be so selected which would not contain within their exterior boundaries some unpatented mining claims and some other unpatented ground held by settlers for one purpose or another.

"In the first place, since the State is authorized to select only from vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved public lands, it could hardly be said that tracts which include unpatented mining claims and other unpatented claims would be either vacant or unappropriated; therefore, according to the strict letter of the law, the Secretary would refuse to make the survey and issue the patent to the State. If he should attempt to make the survey and issue the patent, just how would the valid existing rights of any person be protected? Furthermore, there might be existing rights which the Secretary or the new State might consider not to be valid.

"This would surely cause litigation in case the Secretary should consider the lands to be vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved and issue the patent to the new State. The very best he could do would be to survey the lands selected and issue a patent which would contain a reservation in the language of the statehood bill that all valid existing rights on the land are unaffected. No one would know what those valid existing rights were, how many claims were involved, their area or extent, or what other rights might be affected, and there is no machinery set up in the bill for determining these things. This is a most serious matter, and one which might well prevent the new State from ever getting any public lands, or if it did acquire any, there would be endless lawsuits to determine who had valid existing rights on those lands prior to their transfer. Who would be the judge as to what was a valid existing right? In all cases it would require litigation."

The Empire pointed out still another objectionable feature in section 5. This newspaper referred to the provision for the sale of State lands in tracts of "not more than 640 acres for any purpose." The meaning of that phrase is obscure. Does it mean that not more than 640 acres may be sold to any person or corporation?

"If it does mean that any one person or corporation is limited to 640 acres, what would happen in the case of a mining company like the Alaska-Juneau Gold Mining Co., which operated before the war a large low-grade property on a very narrow margin requiring a very considerable acreage of land exceeding 640 acres" asked the Empire.

Actually, the Alaska-Juneau Gold Mining Co. now has over 2,000 acres, every bit of it necessary to its operation. This includes the mining claims, dock sites, oil-tank sites, carpenter machine shops and foundry, power plant, water-storage sites, etc. How could it ever operate low-grade lode mining on the necessary large scale if it were restricted to 640 acres? Other mines in Alaska would be similarly affected.

ROYALTY ON MINERALS

Alaska mining men are up in arms over the provision of section 5 (b) which provides that when the States sells any of its acquired lands, it must reserve a royalty on minerals of not more than 12½ percent. Talk of a royalty revives memories of the ill-fated gross tax on gold which was in effect in Alaska a few years ago. It lasted for a period of 10 years and was then repealed because of its disastrous effect on the development of the mining industry.

As pointed out above, the gold mining industry in Alaska has declined sharply during recent years, and is still struggling desperately to keep alive.

Additional taxation on an industry which has declined about 70 percent in the last 8 years is the surest way to kill that industry entirely.

Yet Alaska, under statehood, may well be driven to even more desperate expedients in an attempt to raise sufficient revenue to maintain the basic, essential public services on a minimum basis.

NO OIL ROYALTIES

Section 5 (k) seems to contemplate that some oil royalties would be paid to the State. But the bill contains no specific provisions to that effect. Some 50,000,000 acres of oil lands are completely reserved by the Federal Government. Under the terms of this bill, no part of them would ever go to the State.

During the committee hearings several members expressed the view that the State should receive some royalty in lieu of oil lands. Although section 5 (k) contemplates such a provision, none is contained in the bill.

SUMMARY

The principal problem for Alaska is not statehood but rather the system of Federal reserves and controls which is hampering the development of the Territory. I believe Congress can be of most assistance to Alaska by having the whole problem thoroughly studied, and a policy set which will free the Territory from these controls and restrictions. Until that is done, I do not believe Alaska should be granted statehood.

In short, we must decide whether we want a fully self-sustaining State free to develop its own possibilities and able to carry its share of the burdens and responsibilities of maturity, or, as an alternative, whether we want a Federal reserve with most of the wealth kept in a nontaxable status and with Federal subsidies replacing tax revenues.

The committee has attempted to grant statehood without breaking up this Federal reserve or providing taxable sources of wealth. That attempt is bound to fail whether statehood is granted or not. If statehood is granted under this bill, it will simply mean that the new State will struggle under unsurmountable burdens.

ALTERNATIVE

It is my belief, however, that the Congress should do everything possible to further the development of the political institutions of Alaska and to broaden its opportunities for self-government. The people of Alaska are competent to manage their own local affairs. There is no reason why the Governor should be selected by Washington or why the Alaskans should have to come to Washington every time they want some change in their basic law. I propose, therefore, that as a substitute for statehood, the people of Alaska should be given the right immediately to select their own Governor and other Territorial administrative officials. I would also be glad to sponsor and support legislation granting to the people the right to draft their own constitution in place of the present organic act.

If such legislation is enacted, we will be following the pattern already set for Puerto Rico. Several years ago Puerto Rico was granted the right to select its own Governor, and it has just recently been granted authority to write its own constitution. That experiment in Puerto Rico has proved very successful to date.

In the case of Alaska, however, the right of selection of a Governor might well be a step toward full statehood at a later date. Selection of their own Governor might well give Alaskans a democratically selected spokesman against the disabilities under which the Territory labors. If a start can also be made toward breaking down the reservation system and opening up the wealth of the Territory for development, then Alaska may well be started on the road toward statehood through the adoption of my substitute amendment.

THE COURT OF CLAIMS

Mr. HENDRICKSON. Mr. President, there is now on the Senate Calendar a bill, S. 638, to amend title 28 of the United States Code. The bill is identified as Calendar No. 1652.

A basic objective of this legislation is to make the Court of Claims a constitutional court under article III of the Constitution. In view of the implications which appeared to be involved in the bill, I interposed objection to its passage by unanimous consent on the calendar call of June 8, 1950, simply that I might give the measure further study.

Because of the relationship of the Department of Justice to the Court of Claims, I felt that the views of that Department would be of considerable value in appraising the merits of the bill. These were not set forth in the report of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary accompanying the bill, and I have since ascertained that no report thereon was submitted by the Department of Justice. However, a report was submitted on companion legislation, H. R. 6975, to the House Committee on the Judiciary. With the assistance of the Senate Judiciary Committee, I was enabled to obtain for my personal study copies of recent correspondence on the House side in which the views of the Justice Department and the Court of Claims were exchanged with respect to this legislation. The correspondence was addressed to the House committee, not to me, and the legislation is still pending there. Accordingly, I do not feel free to comment thereon, other than to state that, as a result of my preliminary study, I determined to seek from the American Law Section, Library of Congress, an objective analysis of the pending bill, in the thought that it might be helpful in the Senate's appraisal of its merits. The reply of the Library of Congress is now at hand, in the form of a memorandum to me, dated June 28, 1950. I have examined it in some detail and I believe its contents may be of interest to the Senate in connection with its consideration of this legislation.

I therefore ask unanimous consent to insert the memorandum in the body of the RECORD following these remarks:

There being no objection, the memorandum was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
Washington, D. C., June 28, 1950.

To: Senator ROBERT C. HENDRICKSON.
From: American Law Section, Legislative Reference Service.
Subject: Constitutional and Other Problems With Respect to S. 638, Eighty-first Congress.

In response to your request for an analysis of certain problems raised by S. 638, Eighty-first Congress, it may be said that the chief purpose of the bill is to recreate the present Court of Claims as a constitutional court of the United States, and to make certain conforming changes in title 28 of the United States Code consonant with that purpose.

The present Court of Claims is generally regarded as a legislative court, created by Congress by virtue of the authority of article I, section 8, clause 1 of the Constitution to pay the debts of the United States, and also by virtue of the general legislative authority to determine when and under what conditions the Government may be sued. Ex parte Bakelite Corp. ((1929) 279 U. S. 438); Williams v. U. S. ((1933) 289 U. S. 553); Harris, the Judicial Power of the United States (1940) 198–201. As such a court it may be and is given nonjudicial functions and duties. Ibid.

The language of section 1 of S. 638 provides that the Court of Claims "shall constitute a court of record established under article III of the Constitution of the United States. * * *" Thus the Court of Claims is sought to be established as a constitutional court of the United States by virtue of the judicial power contained in article III, section 2, clause 1. This raises, at the outset, one important question. Article III, section 2, clause 1 of the Constitution states that the judicial power of the United States is extended, among other things, "to controversies to which the United States shall be a party." Yet, in Williams v. U. S., supra, the broad language of the decision suggests that any case involving a claim against the United States as a defendant is not within the judicial power just quoted. See also Rottschaefer on Constitutional Law (1939) 433 (pointing out that the matter thus is not left altogether clear). The Williams case, however, quoting Murray's Lessee v. Hoboken Land & Improvement Co. ((1856) 18 How. 272, 284), also said:

"At the same time there are matters, involving public rights, which may be presented in such form that the judicial power is capable of acting on them, and which are susceptible of judicial determination, but which Congress may nor may not bring within the cognizance of the courts of the United States, as it may deem proper."

Moreover, in Miles v. Graham ((1925) 268 U. S. 501), dealing with an income tax levied upon the salary of a Court of Claims judge and following Evans v. Gore ((1920) 253 U. S. 245), the Supreme Court said that under article III, section 1 of the Constitution, it is the duty of Congress definitely to declare the amount which a Federal judge shall receive from time to time out of the public funds, and the times of payment, and the amount thus specified becomes his compensation which is protected against diminution during his continuance in office. In Ex parte Bakelite Corp., supra, it was said by way of dictum, however, that this decision was "not to be taken as disturbing the earlier rulings or attributing to the Court of Claims a changed status."

These inconsistencies as to the status of the Court of Claims were not resolved in National Mutual Insurance Co. v. Tidewater Transfer Co., Inc. ((1949) 337 U. S. 582). There Mr. Justice Jackson, speaking for himself and two other members of the Court, said:

"Congress is given power by article I to pay debts of the United States. That involves as an incident the determination of disputed claims. We have held unanimously that congressional authority under article I, not the article III jurisdiction over suits to which the United States is a party, is the sole source of power to establish the Court of Claims and of the judicial power which that court exercises, Williams v. United States (289 U. S. 553). In that decision we also noted that it is this same article I power that is conferred on district courts by the Tucker Act which authorizes them to hear and determine such claims in limited amounts. Since a legislative court such as the Court of Claims is 'incapable of receiving' article III judicial power, American Insurance Co. v. Canter (1 Pet. 511, 546), it is clear that the power thus exercised by that court and concurrently by the district courts flows from article I, not article III."

But Mr. Justice Rutledge, speaking for himself and Mr. Justice Murphy, although agreeing as to the result of the case, expressly disagreed with this line of reasoning and said:

"Comfort is sought to be drawn * * * from this court's rationale in Williams v. United States (289 U. S. 553), which, in sanctioning salary reductions for judges of the Court of Claims, held that that court did not derive its jurisdiction from article III. That conclusion stemmed in part from the proposition that suits against the United States are not 'controversies to which the United States shall be a party,' within the meaning of article III, section 2. Hence, it is said, the permissible inference is that the long-established concurrent jurisdiction of district courts over claims against the United States is likewise not derived from article III. We need not today determine the nature of district court jurisdiction of suits against the United States. Suffice it to say that, if such suits are not 'controversies to which the United States shall be a party,' they are presumptively within the purview of the Federal-question jurisdiction to which Mr. Justice Frankfurter's opinion directs our attention—the article III, section 2, grant of power over 'cases * * * arising under * * * the laws of the United States.' This is, at least, the conventional view of district court jurisdiction under the Tucker Act (2 Moore, Federal practice (2d ed., 1948) 1633).

"But, in any event, to rely on Williams as dispositive of the present case is to rely on a bending reed: Williams and O'Donoghue were companion cases, argued together and decided together; and the opinions were written by the same Justice. Accordingly, what was said in one must be read in the light of what was said in the other. O'Donoghue, as has been observed, expressly rejected the proposition today announced—that Congress can vest in constitutional courts outside the District of Columbia jurisdiction derived from * * * article I."

Since, in this case, four justices dissented altogether, and two of the dissenters also agreed with Justice Rutledge, it is apparent that to what extend a majority of the Court as now constituted would support either of the views thus advanced above is open to question.

On the other hand, in a long line of decisions the Supreme Court has upheld the grant of jurisdiction to the district courts of the United States (which are constitutional courts) to determine certain claims against the United States. (See e. g., U. S. v. Sherwood ((1941) 312 U. S. 584); Bates Manufacturing Co. v. U. S. ((1938) 303 U. S. 567).) Nor has this jurisdiction been challenged under the Federal Tort Claims Act. (See e. g. Brooks v. U. S. ((1949) 337 U. S. 49).) Accordingly, unless the Supreme Court is prepared to repudiate its position in these cases, it must be assumed that on some basis Congress validly can create an inferior constitutional court of the United States and confer upon it jurisdiction to determine claims against the United States. But whether the power thus asserted is article I, article III or some other power is not altogether clear. Consequently, it may well be that the reference in section 1 of S. 638 to article III alone would create certain difficulties. Perhaps the section would be better constructed to withstand challenge if all reference to article III were omitted, leaving it to the Supreme Court to find the exact basis for the creation of such a constitutional court. It is axiomatic that the question of the constitutionality of action taken by Congress does not require recitals of the power which it undertakes to exercise. (See Woods v. Cloyd W. Miller Co. ((1948) 333 U. S. 138).)

Another problem may be noted. Section 8 of the bill repeals Twenty-eighth United States Code, section 1493, which now provides for reports by the Court of Claims on matters referred to it by the heads of executive departments. This proposed repeal is consonant with the purpose of the bill to create a constitutional court. But the bill does not appear to repeal Twenty-eighth United States Code, section 1492, which in part gives the Court of Claims jurisdiction to report to either House of Congress on any bill referred to the court by such House. Nor does the bill appear to revise or repeal Twenty-eighth United States Code, section 2509, which provides that whenever any bill is referred to the Court of Claims by either House "such court shall proceed with the same in accordance with its rules and report to such House, the facts in the case, including facts relating to delay or laches, facts bearing upon the question whether the bar of any statute of limitation should be removed, or facts claimed to excuse the claimants for not having resorted to any established legal remedy" and that the court "shall also report conclusions sufficient to inform Congress whether the demand is a legal or equitable claim or a gratuity, and the amount, if any, legally or equitably due from the United States to the claimant."

It has been said that "a duty to give decisions which are advisory only, and so without force as judicial judgments, may be laid on a legislative court, but not on a constitutional court established under article III." Ex parte Bakelite Corp., supra. Moreover, it is well settled that constitutional courts may not be given nonjudicial functions or duties of an administrative or legislative character. U. S. v. Ferreira ((1852) 13 How. 40); U. S. v. Todd ((1794) 13 How. 52, note); Hayburn's case ((1792) Dall. 409); Muskrat v. U. S. ((1911) 219 U. S. 346); Keller v. Potomac Electric Power Co. ((1923) 261 U. S. 428); Postum Cereal Co. v. California Fig Nut Co. ((1927) 272 U. S. 675). It is possible, therefore, that the failure of S. 638 to remove or revise the provisions above mentioned would be taken as indicative of the fact that the Court of Claims remained a legislative court regardless of any supposed congressional intent to the contrary. The distinction as to whether a tribunal is a constitutional or legislative court * * * is a tenuous one and depends for its existence not upon the tenure by which the judges of a court hold office, or upon the organization of the court, or yet upon the will or intention of Congress. Harris, op. cit, supra, 202. "The true test of the status of a court lies in the power under which the court was created and in the jurisdiction conferred." Harris, op. cit. supra, 202–203; Ex parte Bakelite Corp., supra.

The question has also been raised whether under section 1 of the bill it would be necessary to have new judicial appointments by the President and confirmations by the Senate. Judges of constitutional courts are secure against dimunition of compensation and hold office during good behavior by virture of article III, section 1 of the Constitution. Booth v. U. S. ((1934) 291 U. S. 339). Judges of legislative courts, however, do not have such protection. Williams v. U. S., supra; see also Harris, op. cit. supra, 200–201; but cf. Miles v. Graham, supra. In Pope v. U. S. ((1944) 323 U. S. 1), the Court pointed out that Congress has conferred on the Court of Claims nonjudicial functions of an administrative or legislative character to be exercised as a mere agency of Congress to aid it in the performance of its constitutional duty to provide for payment of the debts of the Government. The Court said further: "We have no occasion to consider what effect the imposition of nonjudicial duties on the Court of Claims may have affecting its constitutional status as a court and the permanency of tenure of its judges. Cf. Williams v. United States (289 U. S. 553)." Accordingly, it could be contended that when the present judges of the Court of Claims were appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate those appointments were of a substantially different nature and to different positions than those envisioned by S. 638. In this view, as the result of the creation by S. 638 of a different kind of court, it could be asserted that new appointments and new confirmations, therefore, would be necessary and that any attempt by Congress to retain the incumbents in office without such appointments would be an unconstitutional interference with the Executive power of appointment. Congress may not impose limitations on the exercise of the executive power of decision in this regard, Meyers v. U. S. ((1926) 272 U. S. 52); Byers v. U. S. ((1887) 22 C. Cl 59); Foote v. U. S. ((1888) 23 C. Cl. 443); Wood's case ((1879) 15 C Cl. 151, aff'd 107 U. S. 414)), and any such infringement violates the doctrine of separation of powers (Meyers v. U. S., supra ((1860) 9 Op. Atty. Gen. 462)).

Section 7 of the bill seeks to empower the newly constituted Court of Claims in the exercise of its jurisdiction, to "grant any redress against the United States, or its officers and agents, which would be proper in a court of law or equity" and, for such purpose, "to summon as a party defendant, for the purpose of making effective such orders as the court may deem proper, any officer or agent authorized to act for the United States in the premises." Aside from questions of policy, or of administrative convenience or practicability, as to which we express no opinion (although it may be supposed that a constitutional court would be given the ordinary powers of process of such courts), a further question arises if the quoted language were to be interpreted as authorizing an execution or writ in the nature of mandamus or the like against an officer or agent of the United States to pay or discharge a money claim adjudged against the United States. In Reeside v. Walker ((1851) 11 How. 271), a mandamus was asked for by the plaintiff to direct the defendant, as Secretary of the Treasury, to enter a certain sum on the books of the Treasury Department to the credit of the plaintiff and to pay such sum. The Supreme Court said:

"No officer, however high, not even the President, much less a Secretary of the Treasury or Treasurer, is empowered to pay debts of the United States generally, when presented to them. If, therefore, the petition in this case was allowed so far as to order the verdict against the United States to be entered on the books of the Treasury Department, the plaintiff would be as far from having a claim on the Secretary or Treasurer to pay it as now. The difficulty in the way is the want of any appropriation by Congress to pay this claim. It is a well-known constitutional provision, that no money can be taken or drawn from the Treasury except under an appropriation by Congress. See Constitution, article 1, section 9 (1 Stat. at L., 15).

"However much money may be in the Treasury at any one time, not a dollar of it can be used in the payment of any thing not thus previously sanctioned. Any other course would give to the fiscal officers a most dangerous discretion.

"Hence, the petitioner should have presented her claim on the United States to Congress, and prayed for an appropriation to pay it. If Congress after that makes such an appropriation, the Treasury can, and doubtless will, discharge the claim without any mandamus. But without such an appropriation it cannot and should not be paid by the Treasury, whether the claim is by a verdict or judgment, or without either, and no mandamus or other remedy lies against any officer of the Treasury Department, in a case situated like this, where no appropriation to pay it has been made. The existence of this other and ordinary mode of redress, by resort to Congress, may be another reason against a mandamus, as that lies only when no other adequate remedy exists."

One further point may be noted. Section 4 of S. 638 seeks to amend 28 United States Code section 792 (a) so as to authorize the appointment of 15 commissioners for the Court of Claims, instead of the 7 now provided for in the section. No mention is made, however, of a statutory provision now contained in 41 United States Code, section 114, as amended, which authorizes the appointment of not more than 20 additional commissioners for the court. This provison was unaffected by the recent revision and reenactment of title 28. See section 2 (d) of the act of June 25, 1948 (62 Stat. 985). It would be open to interpretation, therefore, whether this provision would be regarded as impliedly repealed by section 4 of the bill (a very doubtful construction), or whether the two provisions together would be regarded as authorizing the appointment of a maximum of 35 commissioners. This latter result was apparently intended, since Senate Report No. 1568 on S. 638 refers briefly to the present maximum of 27 commissioners.

ROBERT S. OGLEBAY,
American Law Section.

JUNE 28, 1950.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendments on page 122, beginning on line 3.

The amendments were agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Transportation of Mails," on page 124, line 4, after the word "including", to insert "current and prior fiscal years."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title III—Government corporations—Reconstruction Finance Corporation," on page 126, line 12, after the word "exceed", to strike out "$26,000,000" and insert "$26,700,000."

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, I certainly hope that the Senate will not accept this committee amendment. This is an increase of $700,000. I hope the amendment will be rejected. I notice that a substantial part of the money would be used to provide additional automobiles for the RFC. They now have 94 cars. Last year we gave them 40 additional cars. The cars, therefore, should be in good shape. There is an investigation going on at the present time with respect to this Corporation, and the Senate is undecided whether this agency should be continued. Therefore I urge that the committee amendment be rejected. When the next amendment is taken up I shall move to strike out the number of automobiles.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I do not desire to discuss the number of automobiles. If the Senator wishes to strike out the provision with reference to automobiles, that is one matter. However, I should like the Senate to know what the additional money is for. The $300,000 is to defray the cost of keeping the securities of the Corporation, at the rate of $50,000 a month. This money is paid to the Federal Reserve bank for custodial and fiscal services in the safekeeping of securities. If the RFC does not get this amount, we shall have to appropriate it to the Federal Reserve bank.

I may say, further, that the international situation has already caused the reopening of three synthetic plants for the manufacture of rubber. These plants had been placed in mothballs, but they are now being reopened on the request of the military authorities.

Mr. FERGUSON. Do I understand correctly that the custodial services with respect to the papers, bonds, and so forth, are being rendered by the Federal Reserve bank? Will the Senator from South Carolina explain to the Senate who is taking care of them at the present time?

Mr. MAYBANK. The Federal Reserve bank. They are the custodian for the RFC. There is to be a transfer and a new undertaking. It is a matter of making the transfer, which will be largely accomplished by December 31.

Mr. FERGUSON. Why make the transfer? Why do the papers not stay in the same custodial place they are today? Why should we spend $300,000 so as to take care of the transfer?

Mr. WILLIAMS. I should like to say to the Senator from South Carolina that since the House authorized $26,000,000 the Senate has accepted one of the President's reorganization plans which took away a substantial part of the work of the corporation.

Mr. MAYBANK. It does not take effect until December 29. I have before me a record of the discussion between the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. SALTONSTALL], representatives of the RFC, and myself. If the Senator wishes to have me read it, I shall do so.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. MAYBANK. I yield.

Mr. FERGUSON. When the transfer of the Federal Home Loan Agency was proposed one of the objections raised on the Senate floor was that the activities would be transferred to a new agency, and that the same employees who are now doing the work on the so-called "Fannie May" mortgages would still remain on the payroll of the RFC, because the employees would not be transferred. Is that a correct statement?

Mr. MAYBANK. The FNMA mortgages have so increased, by leaps and bounds, in the last few months, that anything that might have been said on the Senate floor prior to last August would not apply to the situation as of today.

Mr. FERGUSON. The Senator said the transfer would be completed in December. On the day of the transfer, will the employees be transferred from the RFC to the new agency which takes charge of the FNMA mortgages?

Mr. MAYBANK. It is my judgment that they will be. It is an administrative matter, and I understand is covered by the Reorganization Act.

Mr. FERGUSON. Then why should we appropriate this increase of $700,000?

Mr. MAYBANK. These funds would be transferable, along with the employees.

Mr. FERGUSON. Why should not the new agency come forward and ask for a deficiency appropriation? Why should we transfer these funds to a new agency? As I understand, when such transfers are made from one agency to another, it is done for the purpose of saving money or increasing efficiency, or both. Is not that a fact?

Mr. MAYBANK. It is my opinion that at least some of the reorganization plans were supposed to save money.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MAYBANK. I yield to the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I shall like to point out to the Senator from Michigan that the Department of Commerce asked for an appropriation which is sufficient to take care of their items, and in addition to that, the RFC is asking for an increase, and I see no reason for the increase.

Mr. MAYBANK. Four million and seven hundred thousand dollars was the Budget Bureau's estimate for the FNMA account.

Mr. WILLIAMS. That function has been transferred to the RFC since the House authorized the $26,000,000.

Mr. MAYBANK. The Senator is absolutely correct.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Based on that, I wonder if we should not reduce the $26,000,000 appropriation.

Mr. MAYBANK. Somebody has to carry on the work.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I would be willing to let it go through temporarily as the House fixed the amount, but I certainly am opposed to any increase whatever to an agency which is or should be in the process of reduction.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, will the Senator from South Carolina yield?

Mr. MAYBANK. I yield to the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. CORDON. Is it not a fact that as to the $600,000, a portion of it represents payments for services to be rendered by the Federal Reserve Bank?

Mr. MAYBANK. Fifty thousand dollars every month, of $600,000 in all.

Mr. CORDON. For such period of time as is necessary in order that a transfer of the custody of documents, most of them evidences of debt, can be made to the new receiving agency.

Mr. MAYBANK. The Senator is correct.

Mr. CORDON. And that the balance represents the necessary cost of setting up the records in the receiving agency, which could not be taken from the Federal Reserve Agency itself.

Mr. MAYBANK. The Senator is correct.

Mr. CORDON. When that transfer is made then the sole custody, so far as that portion of the business to be handled by the RFC is concerned, will be in RFC. The Federal Reserve will have none of it. As to the portion that was transferred out of RFC, the custody will go, and the share of the appropriation necessary to administer that custody will go with it.

Mr. MAYBANK. The Senator is correct. That is the situation under Reorganization Plans 22 and 23.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MAYBANK. I yield to the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Will the Senator point out where there is anything in the bill which would prevent the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from paying the $300,000 out of the $26,000,000 appropriated for it? Assuming the amendment providing the $700,000 additional is adopted, why could it not be paid out of the $26,000,000? I see nothing to prevent it.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, will the Senator from South Carolina yield?

Mr. MAYBANK. I yield to the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. CORDON. I suggest that there is nothing in the bill which, as a legal proposition, would prevent it. The only thing that might prevent its being done is that there is not enough money to go round.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I should like to offer a substitute for the committee amendment, on line 12, page 126, to strike out "$26,700,000" and substitute, "$20,000,000", a cut of $6,700,000. Four million seven hundred thousand dollars of this would be accounted for as a transfer of "Fannie May" funds from the RFC to the Home Finance Agency. I believe much inefficiency has been disclosed on the part of the RFC in the investigation which we are making, which would justify a further cut. So I hope the Senate will strike out "$26,700,000" and insert "$20,000,000."

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, I hope the amendment of the Senator from Illinois will not prevail. If it does prevail and the bill finally becomes a law, for the period of time between the enactment of the bill and the necessary enactment of another to provide funds to handle FNMA mortgages, there will be no funds for handling them in the hands of their new custodian.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, I call the attention of the Senate to the fact that this agency, in fiscal year 1950, had an average employment of 4,600 persons. The estimate is for 4,690 for the fiscal year 1951. In other words, they ask for an increase of 90 persons, and for an increase of $100,000. This matter was before the House. The House saw fit to cut the appropriation down to $26,000,000. The Senate committee has increased it by $700,000.

I hope that the Senate will not increase the amount allowed by the House. On the side slips it is indicated what this money will be used for. There is no doubt, in the opinion of the junior Senator from Michigan, that this agency can operate with the amount allowed by the House, $26,000,000, and that they will be able to pay for the custody of the papers referred to, which have been in existence in the past and are at present, out of the $26,000,000. I hope the committee amendment will not be agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DOUGLAS] to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Are we now about to vote on the committee amendment which would increase the House figure by $700,000?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Yes.

Mr. WILLIAMS. And a vote "no" would leave the House figure of $26,000,000 in the bill, $700,000 less than the Senate committee figure?

The VICE PRESIDENT. If a sufficient number of Senators vote "no" it would mean that the committee amendment would be defeated.

The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 126, line 12. [Putting the question.] The "noes" seem to have it.

Mr. MAYBANK. I ask for a division.

On a division the amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next committee amendment.

The next amendment was, in the item for automobiles, on page 126, in line 17, after the word "exceed", to strike out "twenty" and insert "sixty-one."

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, I do not wish to discuss the pending amendment, but I do desire to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that the amendment which was submitted today and which will be voted on some time next week, which is a substitute for the Bridges amendment which was submitted today, is a little different in its application from the Bridges amendment. The Bridges amendment provides for most personnel agencies a 10-percent cut below the budget estimate. The other amendment we will vote on calls for a 10-percent cut of what is in the pending Senate bill.

Some of the subcommittees used the pruning knife very liberally in the preparation of their subcommittee reports. The item I have in mind now, and which I think would be cut very dangerously by this provision, is ECA, and perhaps all of the foreign aid.

Those who are on the committee will recall that when we reached the ECA appropriation, which became a part of the military assistance chapter of the bill, there was a division of opinion among the members as to how much should be appropriated. Several members of the committee favored the sum of $2,600,000,000, plus the carry-over. Finally a motion was made to fix the sum at $2,500,000,000. One member of the committee proposed $2,450,000,000. The amendment calling for $2,500,000,000 was adopted by a majority of one. I voted for that amendment. The amendment was offered by the distinguished Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN].

When I found that the committee had so evenly divided on a difference of $50,000,000, I suggested to the Senator from Arizona that he move to reconsider the vote by which that amendment had been adopted, to see if we could not secure a unanimous vote on the smaller amount of $2,450,000,000. The Senator from Arizona moved to reconsider the vote, and the motion was adopted. Then we voted on the figure $2,450,000,000, plus the carry-over, and that proposal was adopted by a vote of 17 to 3. When the full committee considered the complete military assistance chapter, including the foreign cooperation, an amendment was offered by the distinguished Senator from Michigan [Mr. FERGUSON] to cut items in the military assistance chapter, other than strictly military items, by 10 percent below the budget estimate.

It will be recalled that when the authorization bill was before the Senate, there was a tie vote on the question of reducing the authorization by $500,000,000. Then the motion to reduce it $250,000,000 was carried. So when we first acted on ECA and appropriated $2,450,000,000, plus the carry-over, we were within $50,000,000 of the proposal which was lost in the Senate by a tie vote on the authorization bill.

Then, as I said, the distinguished Senator from Michigan [Mr. FERGUSON] offered the amendment to cut that chapter, exclusive of the strictly military items in it, 10 percent below the budget estimate. That amendment was adopted by a vote of 12 to 11. When the motion was offered, several Senators, in discussing it, said that if we are going to cut the whole domestic program 10 percent below the budget we should also cut foreign cooperation 10 percent. The Ferguson amendment cut foreign cooperation $67,000,000, and $58,000,000 of it came off of ECA. But when the proposal was made to apply the same percentage cut to the domestic program it was defeated. So we came out of committee on an almost equally divided vote, one majority, to apply a certain theoretical percentage reduction to foreign aid which we then did not apply to the domestic program.

I call attention to the fact that the same theory is not followed in the Bridges amendment, which is to be voted on next week, but that amendment provides for a 10-percent cut of what is now in the bill, which means that what we have in the bill now, which I think is $58,000,000 below the absolute minimum that should be provided for ECA, will be cut another 10 percent.

I wanted to call that to the attention of my distinguished colleagues, Mr. President, so that next week, when we reach this matter, I hope very much that the committee amendment will not be adopted, which will leave the ECA program as we originally fixed it by a vote of 17 to 3 in the committee, at $2,450,000,000, and then if the final amendment should be adopted the total would then be cut not quite $58,000,000, but approximately that, but it would not be cut $58,000,000 twice. I do not think there is any Member of the Senate who, even if we did not have the terrible world conditions which have developed in the past few weeks, would want to cut ECA below the point where it could operate efficiently.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. CORDON. I may say that I join with the junior Senator from Virginia in his position, and shall support his position when the item in question comes up for consideration on the floor.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, I appreciate that statement very much. The distinguished Senator from Oregon and I have worked together. We have done what we could in behalf of proper economy. But we do not want to be parties to an improper economy which would hurt our foreign program in these critical days.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, as the majority leader of the Senate, I have taken little or no part in the discussion of the various phases of the appropriation bill up to this time. On the whole I am willing to go along on practically all items that have been submitted by the Appropriations Committee in the way of cuts, however, I want to commend the Senator from Virginia for the position he is taking with respect to the European recovery program.

Mr. President, I cannot understand how under present world conditions the Senate can afford to cut ECA below the amount that was recommended in the committee by a vote of 17 to 3. When that item comes to the floor of the Senate the Senator from Illinois is certainly going to do everything within his poor power to see that sufficient money is appropriated to carry out our international obligations.

The conditions in Korea today are such that we under no circumstances or contingencies should permit any reduction in the appropriation to meet our international obligations. Such a reduction would further give aid and comfort to the Kremlin in Moscow, and do quite the opposite for our allies and our friends in Europe whom we are attempting to help at this particular time. We need to do everything we can to continue to bolster the courage and the morale of those who are in the European democracies, who are on our side in this battle against the poisonous ideology of communism which seeks to sweep over the earth.

Mr. President, it is simply false economy for the Senate to cut the ECA program below what was recommended by the committee on the basis of a vote of 17 to 3. If the Senator does not follow the suggestion made by my friend the Senator from Virginia, we shall rue the day.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I appreciate that expression by the distinguished Senator from Illinois, the majority leader.

I wish to add that last fall when Mr. Hoffman prepared his estimate of the cost of the ECA program, and when the budget estimate was sent to us, it was based on the prices existing last November. However, in recent months there has been a steady increase in the prices of everything the ECA will have to buy. About a month ago Mr. Hoffman informed me that price increases already had added $200,000,000 to the cost of the ECA program—an increase which was not anticipated when the ECA budget was prepared. We have cut the ECA budget estimate which was submitted to us, which was prepared on the basis of the lower prices, nearly $500,000,000; and the price increases which had occurred up to a month ago have resulted, in effect, in cutting the ECA budget estimate another $200,000,000. Of course, no one knows whether the current price inflation will get so out of hand that before the year is over Congress will be compelled—I say "compelled," because all Members of Congress will be reluctant to do so—to put the economy of the Nation on a strictly war basis in order to keep profiteers and gougers from ruining the consumers.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield to the distinguished chairman of the committee.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, the Senator will recall that in the Appropriations Committee, I suggested for the ECA appropriation the sum of $2,450,000,000. After a very considerable argument and debate, the committee reached the compromise sum of $2,391,930,000. That figure was reported by the committee, as the Senator from Michigan has just stated.

I wish to say that I took what I thought was a proper step in endeavoring to bring about economy as far as I could. However, the committee had a different notion about the matter. We finally decided, by our vote in the committee, to report the figure I have just stated. I think the vote was either 17 to 3 or 17 to 4, as I recall.

I wish to say to the Senator from Virginia that although I am and I have been as much in favor of economy as is anyone else, nevertheless, I think the amount reported by the committee, as a result of the decision it reached, is the proper amount; and I hope very much that the Senate will agree to that amount. It has been very carefully gone over and debated, and the amount has been compromised. After all, that is a fairly good way to arrive at legislation.

I wish to call the Senator's attention to a further fact, namely, that the budget estimate for the entire bill was $33,900,208,648, and the amount of the total appropriation carried in the bill as reported by the committee is $32,504,972,672—showing that the total amount of appropriations carried by the bill as reported by the committee is below the budget estimate by the enormous sum of $1,395,235,976, representing a very great saving. The amount carried by the bill as reported by the committee is greatly below the amount for last year.

In percentages, the bill is 4.1 percent under the estimates.

The committee's bill is $5,158,259,008 over the House bill, but this is due largely to approval of $4,861,724,664 of budget estimates not considered by the House.

In contract authority, the committee's bill is $77,813,500 under the estimates.

Mr. President, as experienced legislators, I think we should know that we are obliged to settle these matters after a most thorough examination of the facts. All of us realize that the amount reported by the committee comes about as a result of the compromise I have stated.

I certainly join the Senator from Virginia and all other Senators, including our distinguished Democratic leader, in saying that I sincerely hope that the amount reported by the committee will be agreed to. Let me point out that the committee has done excellent work; excluding myself, I wish to say that every other member of the committee, either Democrat or Republican, has done wonderful work on this bill. So I sincerely hope that the amount of the bill as reported by the committee will be agreed to by the Senate.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Then, Mr. President, as I understand the distinguished chairman of the committee, he does not want another cut made in the ECA funds—a cut which would reduce its funds below the amount reached by the committee as its final action.

Mr. McKELLAR. I wish to stand by the committee's report.

Mr. ROBERTSON. That is my position, too, Mr. President. The only way we can do so is to vote down the Ferguson amendment when it is reached, because the next amendment, if adopted, will cut 10 percent from the ECA's funds.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield.

Mr. FERGUSON. The Senator from Virginia has indicated that the prices stated by the ECA in connection with its budget estimate were the prices as of last year.

Mr. ROBERTSON. They were the prices as of last November; that is when the ECA made its estimates.

Mr. FERGUSON. However, is it not also true that today we here in the United States in civilian life—and the ECA program is a civilian program—face a shortage of steel and iron and various other products?

If we examine page 9 of the side slips, we find a statement of the number of millions of dollars' worth of materials that are to be sent from the United States, as civilian products drained from our domestic economy, to build up the various European countries. I have gone along with the ECA program, but I feel that this amount can be cut at this time, because we shall never be able to furnish all the products stated in connection with this matter.

For instance, let us consider for a moment the list of products which it is proposed that we send to the European countries under the ECA program: Solid fuels; petroleum and petroleum products; industrial raw materials; iron and steel raw materials; iron and steel crude, semicrude, and finished materials; nonferrous ores and concentrates; aluminum; copper; lead; zinc; other nonferrous metals; lumber; paper and pulp; raw hides and skins; industrial chemicals; capital equipment.

The total would be the difference between $301,000,000 and $494,000,000—which is $193,000,000—for that item alone.

In the next group we have agricultural machinery and industrial machinery and equipment. Industrial machinery and equipment alone are provided for in the amount of $453,000,000.

For other manufactured and raw materials, $65,000,000.

Also, leather, rubber, textiles, miscellaneous, and so forth. The amount for them is approximately $65,000,000.

So, Mr. President, as I have previously indicated here on the floor of the Senate, if we make this cut in the funds, later, at the beginning of the next session of Congress, the representatives of the ECA can request a deficiency appropriation, if at that time it is possible for the materials wanted by the ECA to be manufactured.

Why should we undertake to go into the red at this time, and why should we invite the expenditure of these funds, which would be spent in competition with our own preparations for war—in fact, in competition with our own preparations for war in behalf of the very countries which are to receive these civilian aids?

Will not it be essential for the countries which are receiving these civilian aids and for our own country, which is fighting at the battlefront today, to take action to make a reduction in some of the civilian items previously carried under the ECA program, so that we may be, in a material sense, strong and prepared to do battle against the common enemy?

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, I may say to my distinguished colleague that he proposed his cut when we were not at war, and I grant that there might be an argument as to where steel would do us the most good, whether by sending it to our allies in western Europe, to help stem the tide of aggression, or by building more homes and other things for which steel is used. But in my opinion, if we decide to cut the heart out of the European cooperation program and to use the steel at home, we had better go to the valley of Virginia and use the steel to reinforce the Luray Caverns and the Endless Caverns and all the other caverns to be found there, because few of us will want to be living above ground when world war III starts. If the ECA program is not designed to ward off and to stop perpetually the threat of world war III, it has no validity. We cannot justify it merely because we have certain surplus farm products that we want to get rid of. We are sacrificing in behalf of the people of Europe for a definite purpose. We believe that our assistance will be a contribution to peace. That is why I am supporting it. That is why I say it would be false economy of the most disastrous character if we were to cut this program below the point where it would be effective.

I have called attention to the fact that the appropriation is nearly $500,000,000 below the budget estimate. Since the budget was prepared, increased prices have cut it $200,000,000 more. Prices are now increasing by leaps and bounds. I do not think increased prices are justified. I read in a New York newspaper that it was said we were buying 1,000 tons of sugar from the Philippines for delivery in August and September, and paying 6 cents a pound for it. Everyone knows there is plenty of sugar. Everyone knows that Cuba has a million tons of surplus sugar which, up to this point, she has not known what to do with. Either such statements are merely false propaganda to start a run by housewives to get sugar or else the 1,000 tons of sugar are being purchased in order to raise the price of the other thousands of tons which are already here, and which are owned in Cuba, to be unloaded at an unconscionable price.

I note that the steel companies, with no increase in the cost of steel, were operating at full capacity, with full employment. I saw where the manufacturers had advanced the price of stainless steel, which is in sharp demand, thus taking advantage of this situation to gouge the public. I read that cotton advanced $10 a bale in 1 day, although the crop reports show that the coming cotton crop will be more than can be used domestically. Certainly we have a big surplus which the Government owns. I read that the price of hogs went up in Chicago $1 a hundred in 1 day, although but a few days before, the crop report showed a great increase in the prospective corn crop, and there has been a great increase in the number of hogs moved to market, farmers taking advantage of the war psychology.

Mr. President, I am on the Senate committee which must consider another OPA if it comes. I am on the committee which must consider allocations of scarce materials, if it comes. I am on the commitee which must consider all questions affecting war controls, if the Congress is forced by the greed and selfishness of producers and distributors, because of war psychology, to impose controls for the protection of the consuming public, and to put our economy in a straightjacket. Nothing could please the Kremlin more than that. We do not get maximum production under Government control—we never have, and we never will. But if prices are pushed up and up and up, Congress may be forced to impose controls, and the men in the Kremlin will smile, because they know that our production will be reduced, that our inflation will be increased, and they will then lift the war cloud and say, "Well, let us have some peace; we really were not interested in Korea, anyway; that was the fight of the North Koreans; we did not have anything to do with it." We shall then be plunged into the worst depression we ever saw, and will play right into the hands of the Kremlin.

I beg the American people not to be stampeded by the threat of war. I beg the manufacturers of this country not to be selfish. They have had the best dividends, in spite of high taxation, they have ever had. They are looking forward now to full employment.

I have just heard that the Armed Services Committee has been requested to recommend an authorization of $6,000,000,000 more for military expenditures. Just how much of that we would authorize and how much of it we would appropriate, I do not know, but that is the request which I understand has already gone to the Armed Services Committee—the authorization of $6,000,000,000 above the amount provided by the bill we are now discussing.

Mr. CAPEHART rose.

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield to the Senator from Indiana.

Mr. CAPEHART. I should like the floor in my own right.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Virginia has the floor.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I desire to obtain the floor in my own right, also.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Virginia still has the floor.

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. President, I shall conclude these extemporaneous remarks by saying that when we reach the military-assistance program next week and come to the Ferguson amendment, amendment to the ECA appropriation, I hope the Senate will not adopt the amendment but will wait to see what action may be taken on the other amendment, which, if adopted, would place a 10 percent cut on what is carried in the bill for ECA.

Mr. CAPEHART, Mr. FERGUSON, and Mr. MAYBANK addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Virginia still has the floor.

Mr. FERGUSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. ROBERTSON. I yield the floor.

Mr. FERGUSON. Will the Senator yield for a question?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, a motion has been made to strike out the provision for a certain number of automobiles——

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question before the Senate now is on agreeing to the committee amendment on page 126, lines 17 and 18.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I wish to say, as chairman of the subcommittee, that I have no intention of pressing for the adoption of that amendment. It would be entirely agreeable to me to have it stricken out, if it is agreeable to the other members of the committee.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the committee amendment.

FOREIGN EXPENDITURES

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, I desire to speak briefly about foreign expenditures. I think possibly this is a good time to do it. It seems to me that our foreign policy is a one-way street. Certain of the questions which are being asked me by the people of Indiana are rather difficult to answer. For the last 5 years we have been appropriating billions of dollars for different forms of aid to foreign countries. We have been appropriating that money in the hope that it would keep us out of war. Unfortunately we are at war today. Evidently the appropriations have not kept us out of war.

The question which I think is uppermost in the minds of the American people today is this: Are we going to furnish not only the materials and money, but also the manpower? Is it not time—in fact, is not the time long past, though perhaps it is not too late—for us to have an understanding and to tell the American people exactly how much help we are going to get when a war breaks out—if it does—at different points throughout the world?

We are fighting the Korean war alone. When are we going to have an understanding that we shall receive manpower help from the nations which we are helping? Is this going to be a one-way street? Why do not England, France, and all the other nations we have been helping offer ground troops to fight side by side with our boys in Korea? So far as I know, and I think I can speak for the American people, we are fighting the Korean war alone. If war breaks out tomorrow in Iran, are we going to fight that war alone? If war breaks out at some other point, are we going to fight it alone? Are we going to furnish materials, money, and manpower?

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CAPEHART. I shall be happy to yield.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Is the Senator aware of the fact that the public press carried a few days ago the offer of Chiang Kai-shek to send several thousand highly trained Chinese troops to save some of the American lives that are going to be lost, and that the administration would not accept the offer?

Mr. CAPEHART. I am aware of the fact that the General offered some 20,000 troops, and that the administration rejected his offer.

I think a majority of the American people are in favor of the help which we are giving, but I believe they question whether it was the proper thing to do. Now that war has broken out, and they find we are standing alone, after having furnished billions upon billions of dollars and a large amount of materials, and are having to fight the war with our own boys, it seems to me the people are beginning to wonder.

Is it not possible to have an understanding? Or is there an understanding at the moment with England, France, and the 16 ECA nations, and is there an understanding with the 45 nations which are members of the United Nations, that they will furnish X number of ground troops to help in case war breaks out in Korea or in any other spot in the world? Is there an understanding? Is there a blueprint? Can anyone, including the President of the United States, tell the American people tonight that if war should break out in Iran tomorrow members of the ECA nations and members of the United Nations would furnish troops to help us fight such a war? Have we been appropriating billions of dollars and giving away billions of dollars worth of materials with absolutely no understanding, possibly on the same basis on which we took over the responsibility of governing one-fourth of Berlin, and then forgot to have a corridor into Berlin so that our troops could enter?

Mr. CONNALLY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CAPEHART. I yield.

Mr. CONNALLY. Does the Senator approve or disapprove the action of the Government, through the President, concerning Korea?

Mr. CAPEHART. I approve of it.

Mr. CONNALLY. If we called on the other nations for help and they did not respond, would the Senator from Indiana have us quit and get out of Korea?

Mr. CAPEHART. Have we called on the other nations to do it?

Mr. CONNALLY. The United Nations has. This is a United Nations project. The United States is just one member of the United Nations. We are carrying the load now, it is true, but I am not in favor of throwing up my hands and surrendering if the other nations do not furnish assistance. Is the Senator from Indiana in favor, under those circumstances, of surrendering and quitting the fight?

Mr. CAPEHART. Will the Senator let me answer?

Mr. CONNALLY. If he will.

Mr. CAPEHART. I am not criticizing the President. I am certainly not in favor of pulling out, but I want to know whether we are going to get anything in return for the billions upon billions of dollars worth of help we have given other nations. The Senator said that this is a United Nations project and that we have called upon the United Nations for help. How many nations have offered to help, and how many troops are on the way this afternoon to Korea to help out our soldiers in Korea?

Mr. CONNALLY. The Senator answers his own question. If the Senator has kept up with it from the first, he knows that a great number of nations have pledged their aid.

Mr. CAPEHART. Have any of them pledged any foot soldiers to move to the front and carry guns?

Mr. CONNALLY. I do not know how many foot soldiers they have approved, how many rifles they have approved, or how many cannon they have approved. We all know that Great Britain has furnished ships.

Mr. CAPEHART. How many ships?

Mr. CONNALLY. I do not know how many. There are more now than there were yesterday, I am sure. Why does not the Senator from Indiana go there and see about this business on the ground? Let him inspect the arrangements and say to General MacArthur, "Look here, General, you are not running this show correctly. You do not know anything about it. Let me show you how to run this war."

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, the vaudeville act of the able Senator from Texas at the moment is typical of the vaudeville act which has been going on——

Mr. CONNALLY Since the Senator from Indiana rose.

Mr. CAPEHART. Through the Secretary of State for many years. There are boys dying in Korea this afternoon, and the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in trying to make a clown out of me, makes a clown out of himself by throwing his feet up into the air when the world is at war.

All I rose to do was to ask a question, and I think it is an appropriate question to ask on the floor of the Senate this afternoon. My question was, When we are voting on two and one-half billion dollars to help other nations, is it a one-way street? Can we not have an understanding in advance as to what help we shall receive in case of war? We are at war today. The able Senator from Texas, who is chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, should know, but he evidently does not know. His only answer to the question is to act the part of a clown. I do not think American mothers appreciate that sort of attitude on the floor of the United States Senate. To me this is a serious matter, because I am just as much aware of what will happen to this Nation in world war III as is anyone else. I also know that we cannot win wars with money. Wars can be won only with manpower. That is being proved in Korea today.

I again put to the United States Senate, to the President of the United States, and to the Secretary of State the question, Is this a one-way street? Why is it not possible under the United Nations Charter, clause 43, which was approved by the respective nations, for each nation to say what it will furnish in case of war? So far as I know, outside of a few ships which have been offered by Great Britain, and a ship or two offered by the Netherlands, no other nation has offered to help the United States.

I think it is time the question should be answered. I think it is what the American people want to know. The American people are good sports. They are generous. However, Mr. President, I will say that this afternoon they have a big question mark in their minds. It is whether or not our foreign policy and our spending and our help to the world are not a one-way street. What I want to know, what every other Senator should want to know, what every American wants to know, and what every mother who has a boy of the age to get into this war wants to know, is how much help are we going to get from the members of the United Nations, and how much help we are going to get from other nations? They are entitled to know how much help we are going to get. There is nothing wrong about asking that question. It is a simple matter. It is as simple as two and two make four.

Mr. President, my opinion this afternoon is that there is not one in our Government who can tell us whether any other nation is going to support our troops. If I am wrong about it, let someone come forth and give us the agreement. Let them come forth and show us exactly what has been offered. Mr. President, I think the time has arrived when the Senate and the American people should know whether or not this is a one-way street.

Mr. CONNALLY. Mr. President, I am not at all surprised by the address which the Senator from Indiana has made. He says he has approved of what the President has done. In the next breath he hits the President in the ribs and kicks him in the seat of his pants.

Oh, yes, Mr. President; we all want to get all the help we can from the United Nations. Forty-six members of the United Nations have approved the President's action, and have pledged their support. I have no doubt that the United Nations has called upon them. I do not know the details, but I know that Great Britain has furnished ships, and that other countries have furnished ships. I know that Australia has furnished ships and airplanes. They are cooperating. There are men on those ships, Mr. President. Talk about not having foot soldiers. I would rather be a foot soldier than an air soldier, with someone shooting at me from a high-powered jet plane. Other nations have furnished soldiers and they have furnished ships. We were in a better position to furnish troops than the other nations were. We had troops in Japan. General MacArthur is located in Japan. The troops there could be more expeditiously moved into Korea than could troops from Europe, or from some other distant point.

Of course we want help from other nations. However, if they do not help us, I am not going to surrender. I am not going to vote to lie down and do nothing because they do not help us. If I cannot get any help, I am not going to quit. That is my attitude. I know that is the attitude of the people of Indiana.

Oh, the Senator is not in sympathy with the furnishing of arms to other countries. As I recall, he voted against the arms aid bill. I do not hear any response. I do not hear any denial. I suppose I was correct in saying what I did. That is my recollection. I do not have the record before me. He did not want us to contribute anything for the protection of western Europe against the infiltration of totalitarianism. Now he wants other nations to come in and help us. He is demanding that they come to our rescue, although he was unwilling to go to their rescue. He voted against aid to them. The record does not make any mistake about that. The record is before us. He is talking for the people of Indiana. I imagine the people of Indiana know that record. They will know more about it between now and November. I do not blame the Senator for running to cover and trying to show how enthusiastic he is for the program which is now being undertaken in Korea.

Of course we welcome all the aid we can get. General MacArthur has been made the commander in chief of all the United Nations forces operating in Korea. He is a capable officer and gentleman. He knows the situation there better than any other important military figure, because he has been on the scene for 4 or 5 years. We are trying to do the best we can. The kind of speeches the Senator from Indiana has been making, speeches behind the lines, do not help us. It is a sample of infiltration and sabotage to tell the world, "Oh, yes, we are for it, but we are not so hot for it. We are for it, but if we cannot get a lot of other people to come forward and help us do the fighting, we will throw up our hands."

Mr. President, that is the inevitable reaction which will take place in the minds of people.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CONNALLY. I yield.

Mr. CAPEHART. No one has said anything about throwing up anything. The Senator is injecting that into the debate. The Senator knows it is not true. No one has said anything about that.

Mr. CONNALLY. I said something about it.

Mr. CAPEHART. The Senator has said something about it. The Senator knows it is not true.

Mr. CONNALLY. What is not true?

Mr. CAPEHART. No one has said anything about throwing up anything. I simply asked the question, "When are we going to get help from those other nations?" The Senator cannot answer that question. There is no answer to it, because no arrangements have been made.

Mr. CONNALLY. Mr. President, the Senator knew there was no answer to the question when he asked it. He merely wants to rawhide the President.

Mr. CAPEHART. No one has been able to get an answer from the Secretary of State. No one has been able to get an answer from the administration. We have the same people running the Government today and carrying on the Korean war who have been carrying on for many, many years. They are the same people who made the deal in Berlin, when they forgot to get a corridor into Berlin.

Mr. CONNALLY. Mr. President, first the Senator talks about Korea, and then he talks about Berlin. Oh, we do not want to talk about Korea now. We have had enough of that. Let us talk about Berlin. The only thing the Senator has not mentioned is Yalta. What is wrong with Yalta? Why do we not talk about Yalta?

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CONNALLY. I do not yield now. I will do a little talking now.

Mr. CAPEHART. The Senator asked a question.

Mr. CONNALLY. I do not yield for anything until I get through answering my own question. [Laughter.]

Mr. CAPEHART. The Senator is afraid to yield.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Texas declines to yield. When a Senator declines to yield, another Senator has no right to interrupt him.

Mr. CONNALLY. I want to talk about Yalta. I want to talk about Berlin. We handled Berlin pretty well with the airlift. We did not leave. We did not run off. We did not quit. We did not do any of that because other nations did not come to our rescue. We stood up and maintained our position. We won. We will win in Korea, if the barkers at our heels let us alone, and do not keep shooting at us in the rear or flanking us. Oh, yes, Mr. President, I am talking about what we are doing in Korea, but I do not like it a bit. The Senator says he does not have the answer. He says he does not have the answer as to whether other countries are going to furnish troops, what kind of troops and how many troops, when they are going to get there, or on what ships they are going there. Of course, no one knows that. No one can answer that question at this time. It is all dependent upon developments and circumstances. If the Senator were acting in good faith he would not ask such a question. He would not want to advertise to the world that we are in the dark, that we are ignorant, that we do not know anything about what is going on, and so forth. That is the attitude of the Senator. That is the attitude which is reflected in his expressions. They are expressions of not knowing. We all know that. Those are expressions which a good many people have.

Mr. President, we are going to win in Korea. We are going to win alone, if we have to. I hope we will not have to do it alone. I hope we will have other nations fighting with us, as some are now fighting with us. Australia, Great Britain, and some other nations are fighting with us. I hope other nations will fight with us. However, whether or not they fight with us, we are not going to lie down. We are not going to surrender. We are not going to sheathe our sword until we drive the enemy into defeat, humiliating defeat, in order to maintain the high principles which actuated the United States when the President took the action in that area.

Mr. WHERRY and Mr. CAPEHART addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. I wish to say in behalf of the distinguished Senator from Indiana——

Mr. CONNALLY. Oh, yes.

Mr. WHERRY. Does the Senator from Texas wish me to yield to him? I shall be glad to yield to him so that he may make another speech.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. WHERRY. The Senator from Texas has interrupted me.

The VICE PRESIDENT. A Senator has no right to make observations.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I have the floor, and I have a right to make any observations I want to make so long as I keep within the rules of the Senate.

Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Indiana has brought to the attention of the Senate this afternoon a thing which I think the American people want to have, and what I think the Congress wants to have, namely, a report from the President of the United States or a review of what has happened, the facts in the case, and his recommendations.

I submit to the Members of the Senate and my distinguished friend from Texas that that is constructive. There is nothing wrong about it. Up to this minute Members of the Senate or of the Congress, with the exception of a few invited to the White House, have had to rely solely upon press releases and newspaper reports of what has happened. I say that in all constructiveness. I happened to be invited to the White House at one time. I appreciated it very much, and said so. When I got there I was asked if I desired to ask any questions, and I said, "Mr. President, I want to ask you, when are you coming before the Congress of the United States? I think the Congress, the Senators and Representatives, ought to know the facts of the situation."

I submit in all fairness, as a constructive suggestion, that I believe if the President would come before the Congress and review the facts, reveal what has happened and what the plans are for the future, it would answer questions which many Members of Congress are asking today.

I deeply respect the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations. It has been some time since he has castigated the Senator from Nebraska, and I hope that I may be permitted to escape that operation being performed upon me, if possible, because I respect the Senator. But I do say that while as chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations he may know all the facts, yet the Congress as a whole does not know them, and in my opinion the Members of the Congress are entitled to them. When appropriations are being considered, certainly we must have the facts, and I think the time has come for us to know them.

I say constructively, without any animosity, straight from my heart, that

I believe, regardless of what one's position might have been in the past or what it is to be in the future, if the Congress is to have unity, it must know the facts. I think the Congress is entitled to that much.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nebraska yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield to the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Does the Senator from Nebraska think it would be proper to ask the administration to state what has happened to over $53,000,000,000, the equivalent of one-fifth of the entire national debt, which has been spent for the Military Establishment of the United States in the fiscal years beginning with 1947 and ending with fiscal year 1950?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, in answer to the distinguished Senator's question, I think it would not only be fitting, but the time has arrived when the answer should be made. As a member of the Committee on Appropriations I have tried to find out all I could about that, and I certainly believe the time has arrived when questions similar to this one should be answered.

These things cannot be laughed off, and the motives of a Senator cannot be impugned because he did this or did that in the past, or because of what he may do in the future. I have offered to support efforts to secure unity, but I certainly have a right constructively to criticize. I certainly believe we should act as a unit, but if we are to do so, such questions as were propounded by the Senator from Indiana, such questions as have been propounded by the Senator from Iowa, such questions as have been propounded by many of my colleagues on both sides of the aisles, should be answered.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield so that I may ask the able Senator from Texas whether or not he agrees with the statement I am going to read?

Mr. WHERRY. I would have to have unanimous consent to enable the Senator to do that. If he does not mind, I should like to finish my remarks, and then the Senator from Indiana can take the floor in his own right, and can ask the Senator from Texas any question he desires to propound to him.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nebraska declines to yield.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, this morning I rose on the floor of the Senate and read from a newspaper account a statement, which is in the RECORD, and I asked a question, because, as a Member of Congress, I think I have a right to know about what appeared in the article. The press release might not have been authoritative, it might not be correct, I realize, but it was an Associated Press dispatch, which stated explicitly that the British would refuse to furnish ground troops in Korea unless an S O S call were made by the United States. That is an entirely different thing from suggesting that we have to ask the United Nations to supply this, that, or the other. I should like to know whether that report is true. I should like to know whether the United States has asked any other member nation to furnish troops in Korea. If the action there is United Nations action, and General MacArthur is the commander, the United States has a right to know whether other troops are to be supplied, and the question of the Senator from Indiana ought to be answered, and it ought to be answered now, if it can be, by those who know.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I am glad to yield to the Senator from New York.

Mr. LEHMAN. The Senator from Iowa made a statement, with which the able minority leader agreed, that he thought the President of the United States, or the Government of the United States, should make public now in what way the military appropriations, amounting to over $50,000,000,000 since 1947, have been used. I ask the distinguished minority leader, whether he would want the Government of the United States at this time, in the midst of not only a cold war, but a hot war—in the making, at least—to give an inventory of what we have in the way of arms, munitions, and other implements of war. I cannot conceive of anything more unwise.

Mr. WHERRY. I will answer the question. If the Senator desires to make an observation, I shall be glad to have him make it in his own time.

Mr. LEHMAN. I ask the question.

Mr. WHERRY. I shall answer the question. The Senator has a perfect right to ask a question, and I yielded to him, and I desire to answer.

I think it behooves every Member of the United States Senate, especially those who are members of the Committee on Appropriations, to inquire into all appropriations, how they have been spent, whether it is on a hot war or a cold war or any other kind of war. That is how I feel about it. I think that if there ever was a time when we needed to inquire into appropriations, and how they are being spent, it is now.

I am a member of the Committee on Appropriations, and my record shows that I have stood for economy. I have always voted for appropriations backing up the military, for practically everything they have ever asked for, both in war and peace. I was one who believed in a 70-group Air Corps. So I cannot be charged with not supporting the military or the defense of the country. I have been right behind them.

But I say if there ever was a time when we should get a dollar's worth of defense for every dollar spent, it is now. The Appropriations Committee is the only one I know of that has been able to get information, and that is because that is the committee's business. We find that out of the $10,300,000 we appropriated for Korea last year, only $200 has been actually used to provide anything like a military program in Korea. I believe we should know why the policy set by the Congress was not carried out. I believe that is the result of the Acheson policy in the Pacific. I am glad the President repudiated it, but we found that this Administration had not spent a dime in Korea to do the thing the Congress authorized it to do. And, by the way, I supported those appropriations.

Mr. LEHMAN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I supported the appropriation for the ECA after it was once authorized, and I supported the appropriations for the military after they were authorized.

Mr. LEHMAN and Mr. CAPEHART addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nebraska yield; and if so, to whom?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield to one Senator at a time. I yield first to the Senator from New York, then I shall yield next to the Senator from Indiana.

Mr. LEHMAN. The Senator from Nebraska has not answered my question. The only way to account for the appropriations of $56,000,000,000 or $57,000,000,000 which have been made by the Congress of the United States during the past 4 years for the purposes of acquiring arms and ammunition and for defense generally is by giving an inventory. I again ask the distinguished Senator from Nebraska whether he would want the Government of the United States to give such an inventory, which would be made public.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I think we ought to have a complete inventory of our military equipment. We should be told what has been done with it, and what is to be done with it. That is one of the things which I think the President should announce to the Congress. What is our equipment? What has become of it? Where is it scattered throughout the world?

The distinguished Senator from Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, spoke of the feats we had accomplished in Germany. The Berlin airlift did a good job. But I should like to know what the policy of the administration is in western Europe; whether the corridor of 700 miles in Germany is to be protected. I should like to know what the judgment of the military is if that corridor is not protected. I should like to know why it is that the administration refuses to recognize Spain, whose recognition is recommended by the military because it is one of the most strategic points in Europe, and would be necessary to us if we are going to do what we ought to do to protect Germany against attack. I should like to ask not only about what we have in the way of military equipment, and what our policy is with respect to Spain, but what our whole foreign policy is. Some of our policy has been repudiated and needs to be repudiated if we are to protect Germany against attack.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I cannot yield to the Senator all afternoon. I yield now to the Senator from Indiana, who has asked me to yield.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Nebraska whether he agrees with the statement made on Wednesday last by the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. JOHNSON], who is a member of the Armed Services Committee. I shall read the statement from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of yesterday, and ask the Senator from Nebraska whether he agrees with it:

> But I sincerely believe that never before, during my experience, has the Nation been in such grave peril as it is at this moment.
>
> We are outnumbered—outnumbered seriously. There is little likelihood that this numerical superiority can be overcome, or even that the odds can be equalized, at least for many months to come.
>
> Our equipment—our tanks, our guns, our planes—is plainly inadequate in quantity, it is not the right kind, and it is not at the right place.
>
> Our problem of supplying our troops in South Korea is overwhelming. The prospects for correcting this situation are bleak.

That statement was made on the floor of the Senate on Wednesday by the able junior Senator from Texas, a member of the Armed Services Committee. Does the able Senator from Nebraska agree with that statement?

Mr. WHERRY. The testimony we had before the Appropriations Committee would indicate that that statement is correct. The situation in Korea is bleak. It is a question of getting military equipment into Korea. It is a question of getting men there. I realize the situation which exists. To be perfectly frank, and getting down to brass tacks, we were caught flat-footed in Korea. We found out something about the CIA, the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for another question?

Mr. WHERRY. I should like to continue, if the Senator will permit me. In view of the facts which have been presented, which the Senator has mentioned, and in view of the questions which are being asked, I believe that the Congress of the United States is entitled to have a complete review, a complete statement of the facts by the President of the United States. We should have his recommendations with respect to where the United States shall go from here relative to our foreign policy, our military appropriations, and whatever is needed in order to go overseas and do the job the distinguished Senator from Texas, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, talked about.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, will the Senator now yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield.

Mr. CAPEHART. Does the able Senator from Nebraska agree with the statement the junior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY] made on Wednesday last as follows:

> The American people are wondering what has happened with all the money which has been appropriated for these purposes—
>
> Meaning military purposes.
>
> Undoubtedly it has been used for good purposes, but I do not think we can permit supersecrecy about this matter. I think the people want to know what has happened to these funds, this $13,000,000,000 or $14,000,000,000.

Does the Senator agree with that statement?

Mr. WHERRY. I do. I thought it a very able statement.

While I did not hear all the remarks made by the distinguished Senator from Texas, I thought he made a very forceful address to the Senate on Wednesday. I believe the suggestions which have come from both sides of the aisle make it mandatory that the Congress be advised with reference to the matters we have spoken of. I hope that will be the future course that will be taken. I believe that if unity is to be had in the United States Senate the questions must be answered.

I do not want to say anything derogatory of the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, but I am quite satisfied the answers the Congress wants are not the answers the distinguished chairman gave this afternoon. I say that in all sincerity. I am not in any way deriding the Senator, nor do I in any way mean to make a statement derogatory of him. I believe it is necessary that we be given the cold facts of the situation.

We should have an entire review, I will say to my distinguished friend from New York, of our military equipment. I believe that to be necessary, because when we shall be called upon to make appropriations we must know where we can place a dollar so it will do the most good and secure for us the greatest amount of defense. If it is found from that inventory that there has been waste, that fact might be of help to us in preventing waste in the future. I say that in all sincerity, because I feel that such an inventory is necessary. I believe the Senator will agree with me that the Senate should do its level best to cut domestic expenditures so we can provide the sums necessary to provide military equipment and carry out our objective of winning the struggle in Korea.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a brief observation?

Mr. WHERRY. I should be glad to do so, but I must ask unanimous consent that the Senator may make an observation without my losing the floor thereby.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the Senator from Nebraska yielding to the Senator from New York so that the Senator from New York may make an observation, and not ask a question? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, I am very much interested in the remarks of the distinguished minority leader. Of course, I can fully understand his wish that he and the entire country, including the Congress of the United States, should be given an inventory of our military equipment. It would be fine if that could be done and if it could be kept within our family circle as Americans. But unfortunately, any inventory of military equipment which would now be given publicity would inevitably fall into the hands of our enemies and be of very great assistance to them. I would strongly regret any such action.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator permit me to interrupt him?

Mr. LEHMAN. Yes.

Mr. WHERRY. Of course, I would not want any inventory to be submitted to us which could not be kept secret. I would want such information to be given on the same basis as we are acting now. Any such information should not, of course, be given to the public. It should be given in executive session, as is done in the Appropriations Committee and in the Armed Services Committee. That is the way I should want the matter handled.

Mr. LEHMAN. May I continue my observation?

Mr. WHERRY. I would not want any information given out to the public that might affect the national security or our defense.

Mr. LEHMAN. Mr. President, as a very junior Senator, I have been surprised at, and I regret very much, some of the matters that are being openly debated and discussed on the floor of this House. Only 2 or 3 weeks ago, in a colloquy between the distinguished minority leader and the chairman of the Committee on Armed Services [Mr. TYDINGS], the minority leader pressed very hard for an answer as to what part of the $1,200,000,000 which we proposed to vote for arms aid to our friends and allies would be used for aircraft. The Senator from Maryland at first withheld that information, but he was pressed and again pressed by the able Senator from Nebraska, and finally Senator TYDINGS made the statement that one-third of all this money——

Mr. WHERRY. Will the Senator permit me to interrupt him?

Mr. LEHMAN. May I finish this one sentence, and then I shall be very glad to yield to the Senator.

Mr. WHERRY. Yes.

Mr. LEHMAN. The Senator from Maryland was pressed, and finally came forward with the answer, reluctantly, it is true, that one-third or one-fourth—I do not remember the exact percentage—of this $1,200,000,000 would be used for aircraft. I think it was unfortunate that that information was made available to our enemies.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, has the Senator concluded his observation?

Mr. LEHMAN. Oh, yes; and I thank the Senator for permitting me to make it.

Mr. WHERRY. The Senator is quite welcome.

Mr. President, to reply briefly to the distinguished Senator from New York, let me say that I recall most distinctly the colloquy I had with the Senator from Maryland. On each occasion, my question was prefaced by the remark that if an answer to the question would reveal any matter which should be kept secret, then I would not want the Senator from Maryland to give the information. If the Senator from New York was on the floor at that time, I am sure he heard me make that remark, and I am sure he will agree that the question I asked was asked in that spirit.

Of course no one wants to have secret information revealed. It is surprising how secret information sometimes gets out, of course. However, I take second place to no one in keeping confidential any information which is of a confidential character or nature and has anything to do with the national defense.

Mr. President, to sum up my remarks, I wish to say that I sincerely hope that before the Congress adjourns, the facts and a review of the situation will be given to Congress. I think it is important that that be done. I think that will answer many of the questions being asked by Members of Congress who do not really know what the situation is.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I doubt that we have ever experienced a more serious situation than the one facing our country at this very moment.

I can understand how very anxious Senators and citizens of the United States generally are to obtain correct information in regard to what is occurring. I have no hesitancy in saying that in due course the President of the United States will make his report to the people.

Mr. President, the only question in regard to making a report to the Congress or the people is one of timing. Everyone must agree that in the unusual and grave circumstances which now exist in the Far East, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, General Bradley, the President, and the Secretary of State, and others close to the facts, who are daily advised in regard to what is occurring in the Far East and, in fact, all over the world, probably are in a somewhat better position to make that decision than is a Member of the Senate.

I understand how easy it is for a Senator in a speech on the floor of the Senate to demand that the President do this or do that. However, I think that in a crisis of this kind we must have an unusual amount of confidence in the President. I do not believe that there is a Senator on either side of the aisle, regardless of political affiliation, who does not believe that Harry Truman is one of the most patriotic men who ever lived in this country of ours. His record in World War I demonstrates beyond peradventure of doubt not only his patriotism but his ability. He is not keeping anything from the American people deliberately or stealthily. When the proper time comes, he will make a full report to the people—whether through the Congress or directly from the White House. I do not know when he will do so, but I know he will do it. It is his duty to do it.

I doubt that he could have given the American people the correct information one week after this crisis developed. If he had done so then, there would have been a demand on the floor of the Senate, a week later, for him to give further information, because of reverses which occurred in Korea.

So, Mr. President, it seems to me that the Congress should not be too hasty in demanding this or demanding that, at a crucial hour in which we are experiencing a rather difficult time—and no one will deny that.

For Senators now to demand practically an investigation of the way money has been spent in the past 4 years, seems to me to be the most unusual demand I have ever heard—for everything else to be laid aside, and for a committee to be appointed, and for that committee to begin an investigation, after 3 weeks of serious trouble in the Far East, to determine how the money has been spent.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. LUCAS. Yes; in view of the fact that the Senator from Iowa raised that question.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. At this time of emergency, when we find through the public press and through the admissions of responsible Government officials that we cannot put an adequate force into the peninsula of Korea, and that we have virtually nothing with which to fight over there, does the Senator from Illinois think it is unusual or unfair for a Member of the Senate to ask what we have been doing with the more than $53,000,000,000 which the Congress has appropriated for the Armed Forces, beginning with and including the fiscal year 1947, through the fiscal year 1950—in those 4 years?

Is it unreasonable to ask why we do not have equipment that we can put into Korea to stop the alleged bandit raid—as it was alleged to be when it first started.

Is there anything unusual in asking that; or is it beyond the responsibility of a Senator of the United States to ask for some replies to the questions as to what has been done with the $53,000,000,000, when we find our ability to put even one full combat division in the field highly questionable, according to the statements in the public press.

Mr. LUCAS. I observe that my friend is having some difficulty in speaking. I do not want him to choke in my time.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. I think it is enough to make a great many of the American people choke.

Mr. LUCAS. I am sorry the Senator from Iowa cannot go on. I was enjoying his speech very much, although I believe he is absolutely wrong.

Mr. HICKENLOOPER. I am delighted to go on now, if the Senator will yield further. [Laughter.]

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I simply disagree with my very distinguished friend with respect to calling on the Government at this particular time for a thorough investigation. If that occurred, all the men who have anything to do with the Army, the Navy, and the Air Corps, who now are engaged in devoting all their time to trying to get out of the mess in Korea, would have to journey to Capitol Hill, listening to Senators bombard them with all kinds of questions and inquiries, not only for 30 days, but perhaps for as long as a year. That is what would occur if there were to be the kind of investigation the Senator from Iowa is talking about.

I do not know anything about what has happened at this particular time; but if an investigation is due, now is certainly not the time. An investigation would only result in delay of our present operations and disunity among our people. It seems that some persons would like, for some reason or other, to have disunity develop.

Mr. President, the Senator from Nebraska has said that the Secretary of State and the President have repudiated the policy we have had in Asia. Of course they did change their policy; after conditions in Korea changed, they changed their policy in the Far East.

However, the Senator from Nebraska, too, changed his position on the military-assistance program, after conditions changed in Korea. He had a right to do that, and I think he was correct in making the change that he did, and in voting for that program, although he had voted against it last year.

So, Mr. President, when someone is charged with changing the entire policy in the Asiatic theater—which occurred—I undertake to say that it was done because the conditions existing in Korea had changed as a result of the invasion of South Korea by the aggressive forces of North Korea.

The Senator from Nebraska asks about our foreign policy in Europe? Why, Mr. President, we have a foreign policy there. We have always had one. The thing that was always the subject of complaint was that we did not have a foreign policy in Asia. Now, my good friend asks what the foreign policy is in Europe at the present time. Everyone knows what the Marshall plan is, as a part of our foreign policy. Everyone knows about our aid to Turkey, Greece, and Iran, as a part of our foreign policy. Everyone knows about the Atlantic Pact, as being a part of our foreign policy, and about the implementation of the Atlantic Pact with the mutual-assistance program to aid the western democracies. Everyone knows that an attack upon one of the signatories to the Atlantic Pact, whether the United States or some other signatory, is an attack upon all. That is the foreign policy laid down in the European theater.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. I appreciate the remarks of the distinguished majority leader. The part of the foreign policy which I questioned has to do with Germany. What are we going to do with Germany? I have been on the Appropriations Committee. I have done my level best to find out what provision is made to defend the German border. For the life of me, I have been unable to get that information. There is a 700-mile corridor there which is wide open. The idea of appropriating money is one thing, but what we propose to do is another. I ask the distinguished Senator, What is the program for the defense of Germany? What is the foreign policy with respect to Spain? Favorable recommendations as to both have been made by the Military Establishment.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, so far as Germany is concerned, everyone knows what our foreign policy has been there. Everyone knows what we did in connection with the Berlin airlift. We stood there, with few troops, in Berlin, and practically defied the Communists across the way. We called their bluff, as the Senator from Texas has said. What will happen to the corridor? What will happen to western Germany? I presume that if Russia wanted to march tomorrow, if the Kremlin ordered the Communists to go through Germany, they would not have much trouble in doing it, because everyone knows that they have 300,000 trained troops in eastern Germany. It has been recognized by practically all military men and by practically all Senators who have been in Europe or who have discussed it upon the floor of the Senate, that the Russians could overrun those countries if they so desired. They have the manpower and armaments with which to do it. So far, they have not done it, and I do not think they are going to.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for another question?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Illinois yield to the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. How does the Senator feel about arming Germany? What is the policy of the Defense Department in that regard?

Mr. LUCAS. The question of arming Germany has been discussed, I think, pro and con. The Senator knows very well the position of France with respect to the arming of Germany. If he were living in France, he could understand that position, which is the result of a number of previous wars. France has been invaded three times in less than a hundred years, so it is possible for one to understand the French reaction. But I have a feeling that, before long, that situation will be worked out to the satisfaction of all the Allies. It is a difficult thing to do. The same thing may be said with respect to Japan. I know that the German soldier is one of the best fighters on the continent of Europe today, as the Japanese soldier was one of the best fighters in the Far East. If German and Japanese soldiers were armed they would give a good account of themselves.

Mr. President, while I am on my feet, I should like to refer to another thing. It is the question of publicity given to troop movements. We read the reports in the press from day to day. They practically tell where our troops are going, what the outfit is, the total number of troops, their equipment, when they are to sail, and the port of their destination. I do not understand that, Mr. President. I cannot understand it, to save my life. I do not want to say that we should have rigorous censorship, but there certainly should be a voluntary censorship of information of that sort. In my opinion, the President should request it. It seems to me that we are giving the enemy every opportunity to do whatever may be desired with respect to the destruction of our ships, or attempts to destroy our troops on their way to the Far East. I shudder to think what might happen through a submarine attack as a result of this bold and unnecessary publication of information.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. On that point, I should like to say to the distinguished Senator from Illinois that I agree with him. I think the line taken by the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES] was to the same effect. What I wanted to say was that a dispatch has just come over the ticker, which begins as follows:

SAN DIEGO.—The combat-loaded transports Pickaway, George Clymer, and Henrico steamed out of port today carrying thousands of First Division marines to the far eastern war zone.

The dispatch continue in four or five paragraphs to describe similar troop movements. I do not know who gave out the information. That, I believe, is the point the Senator is talking about. I think the point is well taken.

Mr. LUCAS. That is what I am talking about.

Mr. WHERRY. I ask unanimous consent to have this dispatch printed in the RECORD at this point, as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the dispatch was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SAN DIEGO.—The combat-loaded transports Pickaway, George Clymer, and Henrico steamed out of port today carrying thousands of First Division marines to the far eastern war zone.

Nine destroyers got under way shortly before the attack transports cast off from San Diego Naval Station docks where they have been loading for a week. The destroyers were believed slated to escort the three larger ships.

Two LST's, also ferrying units of the First Division, put to sea 2 days ago.

The famed marine command which stormed Pacific World War II beaches from Guadalcanal to Okinawa was the first organized ground unit dispatched to the Far East during the present crisis.

Mr. LUCAS. Obviously, Mr. President, when troops are congregating in a port, newspapermen are present who cannot help seeing them. There is nothing we can do, unless we get a voluntary censorship on information of that kind, or else get legislative censorship—which no one wants. But we have got to have censorship, Mr. President, either voluntary or required. We must have it soon, if we want to protect the lives of American soldiers. It seems almost criminal for commentators, columnists, and other newspapermen to tell the world exactly where our troops are congregating, where they are going, and the total amount of their equipment, especially in view of the great emergency which exists at the present time.

Mr. President, during this crisis it is not my disposition ever to quarrel with anyone upon these very serious questions. In this critical situation, I want, as majority leader of the Senate, to exercise all the restraint possible in order that we on the floor of the Senate may remain in unity. I do not say that simply because I want to defend the administration in any way. I am pleading for our American boys who are fighting for liberty and justice against a vicious foe. There will be plenty of opportunity for criticism, but let us give as little encouragement as possible to the enemy, when our boys are en route to foreign lands. That is my plea, Mr. President, as majority leader of this great body.

GENERAL APPROPRIATION, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. DWORSHAK. Mr. President——

Mr. LUCAS. I was going to move that the Senate go into executive session.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I yield.

Mr. MAYBANK. May I ask if we cannot come to some agreement on the pending amendment?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, I do not want to speak to the amendment, but it is my understanding that the Senator from South Carolina is agreeable to rejecting the committee amendment.

Mr. MAYBANK. Yes; so as to leave the provision as passed by the House.

Mr. HAYDEN. That does not reduce the amount of money appropriated in the bill. The number of automobiles which may be purchased is fixed in the bill, but the amount of money appropriated is not changed.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment on page 26, line 17.

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, does this conclude the chapter on the Treasury and Post Office Departments?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair understands that it concludes the chapter on the Treasury and Post Office Departments.

IMPORTANCE OF MAINTAINING RESERVOIR OF TRAINED MILITARY PERSONNEL

Mr. DWORSHAK. Mr. President, during the fiscal year which ended on June 30, approximately $15,000,000,000 was appropriated for the armed services of the Nation. We read almost daily in the press that questions are asked as to what has been done with those many billions of dollars which were appropriated in order to build up our national defense. We also read that responsible officials of Government, particularly in the armed services, offer an alibi because we do not have the ships, the aircraft, the tanks and other matériel, and the military equipment which we probably should have with which adequately to defend our country in the face of an upheaval throughout the world.

I shall not direct these brief remarks to an attempt to point out what has been done with the many billions of dollars which have been appropriated, but I should like to invite the attention of the Senate to what I consider to be the neglect and deliberate disregard by the armed services of the importance of maintaining as a component part of our military personnel a vast reservoir of manpower which has been available following the end of World War II.

Last spring, when I visited my State capital, Boise, I was asked by representatives of many hundreds of men who had served in uniform in World War II as to the reason for the lack of interest, particularly on the part of the Air Force, in maintaining an adequate training program for hundreds of men in Idaho and thousands of veterans throughout the United States. Those men had received valuable experience during World War II, and, as patriots, they wanted to be prepared to meet any emergency which might confront our country.

So, Mr. President, when I returned, about the 2d of May, I addressed an inquiry to the Air Force Command. I wanted to know what was being done with the volunteer reserve of the Air Force. I addressed a letter to the Commanding General, and, under date of May 22—and I point out, Mr. President, that I am not discussing any developments which have occurred since the Korean outbreak—on May 22 I received a letter from Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, United States Air Force, commanding Mitchell Air Force Base, New York, in reply to my inquiry.

I should like to read the letter, which is as follows:

DEAR SENATOR DWORSHAK: In the absence of General Whitehead, your letter of May 6 wherein you requested information concerning Air Force Reserve training at Boise, Idaho, has been referred to me.

At the present time, the 9094th Volunteer Air Reserve Training Group is located in Boise. This group is part of the Volunteer Air Reserve Training Program which offers training of a classroom nature in general military subjects and is designed to provide training facilities for those Air Force Reservists who are unable to participate in the Organized Air Reserve training program. In addition to the 9094th Volunteer Air Reserve Training Group, the 190th Fighter Squadron, Idaho Air National Guard, is also stationed at Boise. As you know, this is an excellent fighter organization and an integral part of our programed M-day force.

It is regrettable that Organized Air Reserve training cannot be provided in many areas where Air Force Reservists exhibit an interest in and desire for such training. However, the scope and extent of Organized Air Reserve training is limited by the amount of funds allotted to the Air Force by Congress for this purpose. In order to achieve maximum Air Reserve training for each dollar spent, the Organized Air Reserve training bases have been located in areas where large populations can provide extensive long range support to the program. Any enlargement of the Organized Air Reserve training program will depend upon future allocations of funds by Congress and subsequent action by Headquarters United States Air Force.

I wish to express my appreciation for your interest in the Air Reserve training program which is vital to our national defense.

Mr. President, having served upon Appropriations Committees in both the House and the Senate, and knowing the usual alibi presented by officials of the Government whenever they are confronted with some policy which they seek to defend, that the Congress has failed miserably to provide adequate funds for the specific program—knowing that fact, I requested the Senate Appropriations Committee to get some information concerning the Air Reserve training program of the Air Force, and I should like to read at this time the reply which was given by the Department of the Air Force under date of May 26, 1950:

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE,
Washington, May 26, 1950.

Subject: Request of Senate Appropriations Committee.

1. In compliance with your request, the following information is forwarded:

(a) Funds in the amount of $82,000,000 under "Appropriation, Air Force Reserve" were requested from Congress for fiscal year 1950. Congress appropriated funds in the amount of $77,630,000.

I should like to point out that while the Air Force tried to alibi by saying that adequate funds had not been provided by Congress for this specific training program, Congress had provided within 5 percent of the amount of money which had been requested. I contend that in view of the fact that the Bureau of the Budget usually requests more funds than it expects to receive, certainly there was little, if any, justification on the part of the Air Force officials for saying the Congress did not provide adequate funds for the Air Reserve training program.

I continue reading from the memorandum:

(b) Of the $77,630,000 appropriated, $77,050,000 is programed for the support of Organized Air Force Reserve units (T/O&E Units and Mobilization Assignees) and $580,000 is programed for the support of the Volunteer Reserves.

(c) Air Force Reserve funds are allocated from Headquarters, USAF, to major air commands; major air commands issue suballocations to the numbered air forces, and numbered air forces issue allotments to the appropriate operating location under the jurisdiction of the numbered air force.

(d) (1) There are no Organized Air Force Reserve activities in the State of Idaho; therefore, no funds have been allocated for this purpose.

(2) (a) There are three Volunteer Air Force Reserve units located in Idaho as follows: One group headquarters and one squadron at Boise, and one squadron at Pocatello.

(b) The locations made available for the training of these units have been made available on a rent-free basis by the local community; therefore, funds have not been allocated for this purpose.

(c) Personnel of the Volunteer Air Reserve are not authorized to participate in active and inactive duty training in a pay status; therefore, no funds have been allocated for this purpose.

DON S. BURROWS
(For Eugene M. Zuckert, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force.)

Mr. President, I am making no personal comment on this situation. I deem it my duty, however, to point out that in Idaho, as probably in every other State of the Union, there are hundreds and thousands of young men who served in the armed services of World War II who are eager to maintain the training and the experience which might prove vital in case of an international crisis, such as the one which confronts our country today. Yet when inquiry is made as to why our Air Force and armed services as a whole during the past year or two have not seen fit to maintain an adequate Reserve training program, the answer has been that Congress has been niggardly in providing the funds which are essential for the conduct of such a program.

We know that the draft has been invoked and that our armed services are far below authorized strength. Today people are wondering why we do not have the essential and adequate personnel to implement the military services so that they may defend the country in this time of great peril and stress. I do not know what kind of programing has been in the minds of the officers in our armed services who have been responsible for this indefensible personnel program, but I should like to point out that Congress appropriated in the past year approximately $15,000,000,000 for the armed services. When we are wondering what has been done with all this money, surely it seems to me that if there had been the kind of planning which we recognize as being essential, advantage would have been taken of the experience of the thousands of patriotic young men who served in World War II and who have been eager to maintain the alertness which could be utilized by the Republic in time of great peril.

In the Eightieth Congress, which was a Republican Congress, steps were taken to instruct the military services and the President of the United States, who is still the President now, on the basis of building up a 70-group air force. What does the record show as to that? It shows that, although appropriations were made for the implementation of 55 air groups, the Commander in Chief of the armed services of our country saw fit, notwithstanding whether or not he had the authority, to impound about a half billion dollars of the appropriation because he disagreed with the Congress and thought that we did not need a 70-group air force, or a 55-group air force, for which appropriations had been made, but that we needed only a 48-group air force.

It is not my purpose to pose as a military expert and say that he erred or defied Congress, and therefore the personnel in our armed services are far below the authorized strength. I point out, however, that it is entirely and completely indefensible that those who have been charged with the responsibility of planning for the defense of the country during the past year or two saw fit to ignore completely the thousands of veterans of World War II who wanted to cooperate with the Government. Today we are drafting young men. We find inadequate personnel in every branch of our armed services. Yet the record shows that Congress has provided $15,000,000,000 in the past fiscal year. Notwithstanding that fact—and I think the Vice President will agree that that is a large sum of money, and is 10 times the amount of the appropriations for the armed services in the year preceding World War II—there faces the Nation today a situation which is extremely difficult because thousands and thousands of young men have been denied the right to train themselves and to be ready to answer the call of their country in any emergency.

I point out this situation on behalf of the several hundred volunteer reservists in Idaho who feel that they have not had proper recognition. In the face of this great crisis we do not have adequate strength in the armed services because of the tragically inept planning of those in charge of our military services.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations, which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(For nominations this day received, see the end of Senate proceedings.)

EXECUTIVE REPORT OF A COMMITTEE

The following favorable report was submitted:

By Mr. GREEN, from the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Executive O, Eighty-first Congress, second session, a convention on road traffic, which was open for signature from September 19, 1949, until December 31, 1949, and during that period was signed on behalf of the United States of America and 20 other states, with a related protocol concerning occupied countries or territories which was open for signature at the same time as the convention (Ex. Rept. No. 10).

The VICE PRESIDENT. If there be no further reports of committees, the clerk will state the nomination which has been newly reported.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER COMMISSION

The legislative clerk read the nomination of E. F. Salisbury to be a member of the Mississippi River Commission.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, the nomination is confirmed. The other nominations on the calendar go over.

RECESS TO MONDAY

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, as in legislative session, I move that the Senate take a recess until 12 o'clock noon Monday next.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 6 o'clock and 6 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until Monday, July 17, 1950, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate July 14 (legislative day of July 1), 1950:

UNITED STATES MARSHAL

Thomas P. O'Donovan, of Illinois, to be United States marshal for the northern district of Illinois. He is now serving in this office under an appointment which expires July 15, 1950.

IN THE ARMY

The following-named officers for promotion in the Regular Army of the United States, under the provisions of sections 502 and 510 of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947. Those officers whose names are preceded by the symbol (×) are subject to physical examination required by law. All others have been examined and found physically qualified for promotion.

To be colonels

James Harold Banville, [redacted].
Paul Dunn Berrigan, [redacted].
×Charles Pennoyer Bixel, [redacted].
Charles Brundy Brown, [redacted].
Frederic Joseph Brown, [redacted].
John Milton Burdge, Jr., [redacted].
Jack P. Campbell, [redacted].
Willard Burton Carlock, [redacted].
Elmer Joseph Collins, [redacted].
×Reynolds Condon, [redacted].
Raymond Wiley Curtis, [redacted].
Edward Grow Daly, [redacted].
William Joseph Darmody, [redacted].
James Pooley Davis, [redacted].
George Townsend Derby, [redacted].
Glenn Gilmer Dickenson, [redacted].
Fred Dixon, [redacted].
Leander LaChance Doan, [redacted].
Edward Doherty, [redacted].
×Henry Gordon Douglas, [redacted].
×Ernest Glenn Doyel, [redacted].
×Parmer Wiley Edwards, [redacted].
Edward Gilbert Farrand, [redacted].
×Russell Bruce Fontaine, [redacted].
Francis Scoon Gardner, [redacted].
Joseph Howard Gilbreth, [redacted].
×Edward James Francis Glavin, [redacted].
Clarence Quarles Graham, [redacted].
Frederick Andrew Granholm, [redacted].
Ernest Benjamin Gray, [redacted].
Lewis Hinchman Ham, [redacted].
John Frederick Harlan, [redacted].
Burleigh Follett Hillman, [redacted].
John Leonard Hines, Jr., [redacted].
Henry Joseph Hoeffer, [redacted].
Jeremiah Paul Holland, [redacted].
Hans William Holmer, [redacted].
Bertram Arthur Holtzworth, [redacted].
William Nelson Hornish, [redacted].
Francis Elliot Howard, [redacted].
William Hamilton Hunter, [redacted].
Charles Richard Hutchison, [redacted].
Harold Stanley Isaacson, [redacted].
Harvey Albert Johnson, [redacted].
×Max Sherred Johnson, [redacted].
Walter Morris Johnson, [redacted].
×William Francis Kirby, [redacted].
John Harold Kochevar, [redacted].
Ottmar Frank Kotick, [redacted].
Francis Anthony Kreidel, [redacted].
Fred Wallace Kunesh, [redacted].
Harold Albert Kurstedt, [redacted].
Olaf Helgesen Kyster, Jr., [redacted].
Cecil Winfield Land, [redacted].
×Paul Otto Langguth, [redacted].
Aloysius Joseph Lepping, [redacted].
Gerald Francis Lillard, [redacted].
Robert Graham Lowe, [redacted].
×Robert Murray Mann, [redacted].
George Edward Martin, [redacted].
Nathan Alton McLamb, [redacted].
William Lewis McNamee, [redacted].
Charles H. McNutt, [redacted].
×John Bruce Medaris, [redacted].
Alexander Macomb Miller 3d, [redacted].
John Kenneth Miller, [redacted].
Marlin Sheridan Moody, [redacted].
Robert Hammiell Naylor, [redacted].
Melville Freeman Noyes, [redacted].
Frank Thomas Ostenberg, [redacted].
Harry Oliver Paxson, [redacted].
×Loren Davis Pegg, [redacted].
George Fenton Peirce, [redacted].
William Perry Pence, [redacted].
Victor Woodruff Phelps, [redacted].
George Lucien Richon, [redacted].
Shayer Oswin Lancelot Robinson, [redacted].
Adolph Edwin Schonberger, [redacted].
Herman Walter Schull, Jr., [redacted].
×Lawrence Edward Shaw, [redacted].
×Carl William Siegert, [redacted].
Thomas Herman Sills, [redacted].
Arthur Edwin Solem, [redacted].
×Harold Taber, [redacted].
James Virgil Thompson, [redacted].
Thomas John Hall Trapnell, [redacted].
Robert Griffith Turner, [redacted].
Russell Oscar Utke, [redacted].
×William Jordan Verbeck, [redacted].
×Thomas Morgan Watlington, [redacted].
×Charlie Wesner, [redacted].
Theodore Addison Weyher, [redacted].
Willis Webb Whelchel, [redacted].
Robert Curtis White, [redacted].
Alex Norwood Williams, Jr., [redacted].
Stuart Wood, [redacted].
×Henry Magruder Zeller, [redacted].

The following-named officers for promotion in the Regular Army of the United States, under the provisions of sections 502 and 509 of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947. Those officers whose names are preceded by the symbol (×) are subject to physical examination required by law. All others have been examined and found physically qualified for promotion.

To be lieutenant colonels

Russell Franklin Akers, Jr., [redacted].
Ralph Alspaugh, [redacted].
John Denton Armitage, [redacted].
×Edward Thorndike Ashworth, [redacted].
William Harold Bach, [redacted].
William Agin Bailey, [redacted].
Roy Charles Baker, [redacted].
James Wilbur Barker 2d, [redacted].
Valentine Motte Barnes, Jr., [redacted].
×William Gordon Bartlett, [redacted].
Joseph Edward Bastion, Jr., [redacted].
Robert Harrold Bayne, [redacted].
×Thomas Herbert Beck, [redacted].
×George Wood Beeler, [redacted].
Charles Pearce Bellican, [redacted].
Lyle William Bernard, [redacted].
Robert Moore Blanchard, Jr., [redacted].
William Orin Blandford, [redacted].
Edward Bodeau, [redacted].
×James Orr Boswell, [redacted].
Claude Leslie Bowen, Jr., [redacted].
James Noel Brewer, [redacted].
×Francis Clay Bridgewater, [redacted].
John Roosevelt Brindley, [redacted].
Albert Sidney Britt, Jr., [redacted].
Edwin Martin Cahill, [redacted].
Charles Anthony Cain, [redacted].
William Roberts Calhoun, [redacted].
Paul Thomas Carroll, [redacted].
George Allen Carver, [redacted].
Emmanuel Salvador Cepeda, [redacted].
Ethan Allen Chapman, [redacted].
George Hobart Chapman, Jr., [redacted].
Gerald Chapman, [redacted].
Charles Henry Chase, [redacted].
×Peter Demosthenes Clainos, [redacted].
Ernest Mikell Clarke, [redacted].
John Abell Cleveland, Jr., [redacted].
Frederick William Coleman 3d, [redacted].
Hughe Doyle Coleman, [redacted].
×Theodore John Conway, [redacted].
Avery John Cooper, Jr., [redacted].
Dabney Ray Corum, [redacted].
Ira Whitehead Cory, [redacted].
Joseph Brice Crawford, [redacted].
Donald Cameron Cubbison, Jr., [redacted].
William Francis Curren, Jr., [redacted].
Arthur Robert Cyr, [redacted].
×Chester Arthur Dahlen, [redacted].

John Joseph Dalton, [redacted].
William Fant Damon, Jr., [redacted].
William Joseph Daniel, [redacted].
Carl Darnell, Jr., [redacted].
Hoy D. Davis, Jr., [redacted].
Joseph Franklin Decker, [redacted].
Chester Braddock Degavre, [redacted].
John Phil Dicks, [redacted].
Edgar Collins Doleman, [redacted].
Cyrus Abda Dolph 3d, [redacted].
Robert Hulburt Douglas, [redacted].
Ellsworth Barricklow Downing, [redacted].
Walter Adonis Downing, Jr., [redacted].
William Field Due, [redacted].
×Charles Golding Dunn, [redacted].
Morris Oswald Edwards, [redacted].
Edward Spalding Ehlen, [redacted].
Frank Laurence Elder, [redacted].
William Jonas Ely, [redacted].
Jean Evans Engler, [redacted].
×Graydon Casper Essman, [redacted].
Roy Colella Evans, [redacted].
Roy Tripp Evans, Jr., [redacted].
×Thomas Bowes Evans, [redacted].
John William Ferris, [redacted].
×Kenneth E. Fields, [redacted].
Randolph Whiting Fletter, [redacted].
Marshall Woodruff Frame, [redacted].
Robert Beall Franklin, [redacted].
William York Frentzel, [redacted].
William George Fritz, [redacted].
Harold Armand Fulton, [redacted].
James Hensley Fulton, [redacted].
Stephen Ogden Fuqua, [redacted].
Amaury Manuel Gandia, [redacted].
×Samuel Edward Gee, [redacted].
×Frederick William Gibb, [redacted].
David Parker Gibbs, [redacted].
Douglas Graver Gilbert, [redacted].
Paul Nelson Gilon, [redacted].
William James Given, [redacted].
David Warren Gray, [redacted].
Duff Green, Jr., [redacted].
Fay Kenyon Green, [redacted].
George Rushmore Gretser, [redacted].
Melville Hulbert Griffith, [redacted].
Alston Grimes, [redacted].
Patrick William Guiney, Jr., [redacted].
Robert Worman Hain, [redacted].
Duncan Hallock, [redacted].
Ben Harrell, [redacted].
Benjamin Thomas Harris, [redacted].
William Allen Harris, [redacted].
William Ernest Harrison, [redacted].
Frederick Otto Hartel, [redacted].
×Morris King Henderson, [redacted].
Frank Sherman Henry, [redacted].
Edward George Herb, [redacted].
Marcus William Heskett, [redacted].
John Thomas Honeycutt, [redacted].
×Ferdinand Marion Humphries, [redacted].
Walter Abner Huntsberry, [redacted].
Oren Eugene Hurlbut, [redacted].
David Thomas Jellett, [redacted].
Walter August Jensen, [redacted].
Harold Keith Johnson, [redacted].
Beverly DeWitt Jones, [redacted].
Clyde Lucken Jones, [redacted].
Herman Henry Kaesser, Jr., [redacted].
Maurice Evans Kaiser, [redacted].
Frank Kellers, [redacted].
Edgar Haskell Kibler, Jr., [redacted].
John Roberts Kimmell, Jr., [redacted].
Russell Roland Klanderman, [redacted].
Anthony Frank Kleitz, Jr., [redacted].
Walter August Kneyse, [redacted].
Paul Elton LaDue, [redacted].
John Joseph Lane, [redacted].
Robert John Lawlor, [redacted].
Alanson Tyler Leland, [redacted].
Robert Crain Leslie, [redacted].
Cyril Joseph Letzelter, [redacted].
Richard Leroy Lewis, [redacted].
Charles Ellsworth Leydecker, [redacted].
Lawrence Joseph Lincoln, [redacted].
George Frederick Linthwaite, [redacted].
William Bruce Logan, [redacted].
×Cam Longley, Jr., [redacted].
Stanley Nelson Lonning, [redacted].
×Melvin Delos Losey, [redacted].
Guy Cecil Lothrop, [redacted].
Earl Jacob Macherey, [redacted].
Norman Kemp Markle, Jr., [redacted].
William James Marquette, [redacted].
Victor Edward Maston, [redacted].
John Douglas Matheson, [redacted].
Arthur Alfred McCrary, [redacted].
Francis Joseph McMorrow, [redacted].
×Robert Wolcott Meals, [redacted].
Lauren Whitford Merriam, [redacted].
Richard Davis Meyer, [redacted].
Richard John Meyer, [redacted].
Marvin Arrington Middlebrooks, [redacted].
×Charles Harlow Miles, Jr., [redacted].
Austin Andrew Miller, [redacted].
Edwin Taylor Miller, [redacted].
Gus Hugh Montgomery, [redacted].
Rafael Montilla, [redacted].
×Robert Benton Neely, [redacted].
Wallace Jay Nichols, [redacted].
Thomas Joseph O'Connor, [redacted].
Hardin Leonard Olson, [redacted].
Joseph Henry O'Malley, [redacted].
×John Daniel O'Reilly, [redacted].
Dulaney Lee O'Roark, [redacted].
×Samuel Edward Otto, [redacted].
×Richard Park, Jr., [redacted].
Daniel Parker, Jr., [redacted].
Ivan Walter Parr, Jr., [redacted].
Charles Goyer Patterson, [redacted].
James Pugh Pearson, Jr., [redacted].
Richard Henry Peter, [redacted].
Joseph Menzie Pittman, [redacted].
Herbert Charles Plapp, [redacted].
James Hilliard Polk, [redacted].
Phillip Henshaw Pope, [redacted].
Gardner Wellington Porter, [redacted].
Gwinn Ulm Porter, [redacted].
Ernest Warner Posse, [redacted].
Charner Weaver Powell, [redacted].
George Thomas Powers 3d, [redacted].
James Rhoden Pritchard, [redacted].
Ralph Harper Pryor, [redacted].
William Wilson Quinn, [redacted].
Edson Duncan Raff, [redacted].
Lamar Cecil Ratcliffe, [redacted].
Claude Elbert Ray, [redacted].
John Francis Reed, [redacted].
Joseph Anthony Remus, [redacted].
Royal Reynolds, Jr., [redacted].
×Curtis Theodore Ricketts, [redacted].
Richard Allen Risden, [redacted].
Gerald Lorenzo Roberson, [redacted].
Henry Harper Rogers, [redacted].
Franklin Gibney Rothwell, [redacted].
×William Francis Ryan, [redacted].
John Frederick Schmelzer, [redacted].
Edson Schull, [redacted].
John Newman Scoville, [redacted].
Albert Lewis Seeger, [redacted].
Frank Harris Shepardson, [redacted].
John Gardner Shinkle, [redacted].
Alden Kingsland Sibley, [redacted].
×James Henry Skinner, [redacted].
Franklin Guest Smith, [redacted].
Kimball Clay Smith, [redacted].
×Maddrey Allen Solomon, [redacted].
Herbert George Sparrow, [redacted].
Robin George Speiser, [redacted].
Frederick Miller Sperry, [redacted].
×Alfred Dodd Starbird, [redacted].
Andrew Donald Stephenson, [redacted].
Joseph Warren Stilwell, Jr., [redacted].
Harry William Sweeting, Jr., [redacted].
Marcus Tague, [redacted].
Ralph Talbot, [redacted].
Robert Penn Thompson, [redacted].
William Vernard Thompson, [redacted].
Edward Philip Thomson, [redacted].
John Frederick Thorlin, [redacted].
George Zinn Traeger, [redacted].
Robert Campbell Tripp, [redacted].
×Harry Sheldon Tubbs, [redacted].
×Robert Amrine Turner, [redacted].
Arthur Wilson Tyson, [redacted].
George Leon Van Way, [redacted].
Humbert Joseph Versace, [redacted].
David Wagstaff, Jr., [redacted].
Neil Merton Wallace, [redacted].
Paul Rudolf Walters, [redacted].
×John Edward Watters, [redacted].
Alvin Charles Welling, [redacted].
William Paul Whelihan, [redacted].
Sherburne Whipple, Jr., [redacted].
George Warren White, [redacted].
×John Luther Wilkin, Jr., [redacted].
John Mary Woestenburg, [redacted].
Frank Joseph Zeller, [redacted].
Frederick Robert Zierath, [redacted].

To be majors, Veterinary Corps

George Dallas Batcheldor, [redacted].
Carl Frederick Brenner, [redacted].
Thomas Joseph Wheelin, [redacted].

To be captains, Medical Service Corps

Dudley Page Cook, [redacted].
Jordan Lee Epperson, [redacted].
×John Joseph Erb, Jr., [redacted].
Jack Lewis Flora, [redacted].
Joseph Stanislaus Foley, [redacted].
Bernard Anthony Hart, [redacted].
×Matthew Sebastian Heep, Jr., [redacted].
James Wilbert Keenan, [redacted].
Reginald Sanders LaFrankie, [redacted].
Andre Raymond Pascal, [redacted].
Lawrence Joseph Pfeiffer, [redacted].
William Olva Prettyman, Jr., [redacted].
×John Redmond, Jr., [redacted].
×Forrest Harvey Stanley, [redacted].
Frederick Myers Wells, [redacted].
×John Raymond Williams, [redacted].
Harry Robert Zielazinski, [redacted].

To be lieutenant colonels, chaplains

Edward Joseph Burns, [redacted].
Silas Edward Decker, [redacted].

To be majors, chaplains

Lewis Minyon Durden, [redacted].
Andrew Lincoln Johnson, [redacted].
Edwin John Kozak, [redacted].
Robert Stanley McCarty, [redacted].
Harmon David Moore, [redacted].

The following-named officers for promotion in the Regular Army of the United States, under the provisions of sections 502 and 509 of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, as amended. All officers are subject to physical examination required by law.

To be majors, Women's Army Corps

Victoria Pearl Dunn, [redacted].
Muriel Alice Foster, [redacted].
Margaret Helen Harlow, [redacted].
Margot Lorraine Harris, [redacted].
Rosemary Hart, [redacted].
Kathlyn Clara Hilton, [redacted].
Olive Ellen Mills, [redacted].
Muriel Outwater, [redacted].
Margot Reis, [redacted].
Mary Willia Stephenson, [redacted].

IN THE COAST GUARD

Capt. Kenneth K. Cowart, United States Coast Guard, to be Engineer in Chief of the United States Coast Guard, for a period of 4 years, with the rank of rear admiral, effective August 1, 1950.

CONFIRMATION

Executive nomination confirmed by the Senate July 14 (legislative day of July 1), 1950:

MISSISSIPPI RIVER COMMISSION

E. F. Salisbury to be a member of the Mississippi River Commission.

REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

In compliance with Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, title III, Regulation of Lobbying Act, section 308 (b), which provides as follows:

(b) All information required to be filed under the provisions of this section with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate shall be compiled by said Clerk and Secretary, acting jointly, as soon as practicable after the close of the calendar quarter with respect to which such information is filed and shall be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate jointly submit their report of the compilation required by said law and have included all registrations and quarterly reports received for the first calendar quarter of 1950.

To carry out the provisions of the Lobbying Act, three forms were originally printed and used in making detailed statements (Form A), registrations (Form B), and filing quarterly reports (Form C).

Beginning with the current quarter, a new composite form to take the place of the three forms heretofore in use by each office was prepared and made available. The following registrations and quarterly reports were submitted on the old forms, the outlines of which are reproduced below:

FORM B

REGISTRATION (IN DUPLICATE) WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND SECRETARY OF THE SENATE UNDER THE LOBBYING ACT

(Public Law 601, 79th Cong.)

Name _____
Business address _____

INFORMATION REQUESTED FROM PERSONS REGISTERING

(1) The name and address of the person by whom employed:
(1) _____
(2) In whose interest he appears or works:
(2) _____
(3) The duration of such employment:
(3) _____
(4) How much he is paid and is to receive:
(4) _____
(5) By whom he is paid or is to be paid:
(5) _____
(6) How much he is to be paid for expenses:
(6) _____
(7) What expenses are to be included:
(7) _____
See form C for quarterly report to be filed.

OATH OF REGISTRANT

[Omitted in printing]

FORM C

QUARTERLY REPORT OF PERSONS REGISTERING UNDER LOBBYING ACT TO BE FILED, IN DUPLICATE, WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND SECRETARY OF THE SENATE

(Public Law 601, 79th Cong.)

Name _____
Business address _____
Employed by _____ Address _____

INFORMATION REQUIRED IN QUARTERLY REPORT

Each such person so registering shall, between the 1st and 10th day of each calendar quarter, so long as his activity continues, file with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and Secretary of the Senate—

(1) A detailed report under oath of all money received and expended by him during the preceding calendar quarter:
(1) _____
(2) To whom paid:
(2) _____
(3) For what purposes:
(3) _____
(4) The names of any papers, periodicals, magazines, or other publications in which he has caused to be published any articles or editorials:
(4) _____
(5) The proposed legislation he is employed to support or oppose:
(5) _____

OATH OF REGISTRANT FILING QUARTERLY REPORT

[Omitted in printing]

REGISTRATIONS

The following registrations were received for the first calendar quarter, 1950, and filed, using Form B, with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate.

(NOTE.—In order to reduce space, the questions in Form B (see above) are not repeated. Only the answers to questions are printed and are indicated by numbers in parentheses.)

American Pulpwood Association,[1] 220 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (1) The association is a voluntary unincorporated association, not for profit, and is composed of producers, suppliers, and consumers of pulpwood within the United States. Its principal objective is the promotion of the welfare of the industry at large and protection of its interests. It is principally concerned with improved logging, production, and transportation methods, conservation of resources, betterment of operations, safety and fire prevention programs, development of mechanical equipment, and other problems peculiar to the industry which it represents. Its only concern with legislation or legislative action of any character arises when some legislative proposal is made which appears to have some direct effect upon the industry, its members, or their business and operations. Such occasions rarely arise, but when they do the association acts by itself and is not, therefore, "employed" by anyone in the ordinary sense of that word. (2) The association works solely in the interest of the pulpwood industry in the United States as represented by its membership. (3) As above stated, the association is employed by no one. Such legislative activities as it may undertake will presumably be continued when and as the need therefor is apparent as long as the association's organization continues to exist. (4) The revenue of the association is derived entirely from dues and assessments collected from its members. It is not conducted for profit and no part of its income inures to the benefit of any member. Its funds are used exclusively for the objectives above described, only a small portion being allocated from time to time for legislative activities as the actual necessities of each individual problem may require. No specific contributions are received for such purposes nor any specific appropriations made therefor, all such expenses being charged as made against the general funds of the association. (5) See (4). (6) See (4). (7) The expenses paid or incurred by the association in legislative activities consist generally of that proportion of its secretary's compensation of $13,000 annally as the time devoted by him to such activities bears to his total working time, together with the out-of-pocket expenses of the secretary in such activities. There are also the expenses of holding meetings from time to time and the rarely occasional publication and distribution of educational and informative literature. There may be other expenditures of an unusual or emergent character which are not possible of general classification.

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.

Atkins, Edward, 51 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (1) National Association of Shoe Chain Stores, Inc., 51 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (2) National Association of Shoe Chain Stores, Inc., and its members. (3) Permanent. (4) $500, which amount is an estimate of the proportion of total salary per year that is allocated to activities regulated by this act. (5) National Association of Shoe Chain Stores, Inc. (6) To be reimbursed for approved out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Transportation expenses, hotel bills, etc.

Barker, Creighton, M. D., 160 St. Ronan Street, New Haven, Conn. (1) Connecticut State Medical Society, 160 St. Ronan Street, New Haven, Conn. (2) Connecticut State Medical Society. (3) I am not employed for the purpose of influencing legislation, and therefore I do not believe that I am required to register under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. However, I am filing this registration voluntarily to remove any doubt. I have been employed by the Connecticut State Medical Society since 1939 and since February 1, 1940, as its full-time executive secretary, subject to reelection once a year. (4) I am paid an annual salary as a full-time executive officer of the society. Legislative work is estimated to require about 1 percent of my time and no part of my salary is specifically allocated for that purpose. (5) Connecticut State Medical Society. (6) Out-of-pocket expenses only. (7) Travel and lodging.

Barnes, James T., 203 Capital Club Building, Raleigh, N. C. (1) Medical Society of the State of North Carolina, 203 Capital Club Building, Raleigh, N. C. (2) Medical Society of the State of North Carolina. (3) September 15, 1947, with continuing tenure to May 1, 1952, under present election. (4) This is to state that my annual salary in the amount of $7,000 is paid to me specifically as executive secretary of the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina and said sum is neither appropriated or expended to cover services related to lobbying. As executive secretary my entire time will no doubt be fully occupied by the performances of duties that will have no connection with any so-called lobbying activities and my compensation is paid to me for the performances of these regular duties; however, with reference to my present and future duties and responsibilities, this registration is being filed out of an abundance of caution, as I do not regard my position and activities as being covered by the act. (5) Medcal Society of the State of North Carolina. (6) Annual budgetary allocation of $2,100 expendable as earned in the course of performing official duties. (7) Travel and personal maintenance.

Bell, C. Jasper, 904 Bryant Building, Kansas City, Mo. (1) Philippine-American Committee, 1035 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Philippine-American Committee, which committee is a voluntary committee formed in order to present the views of the Philippine-American interests in connection with the desirability of increasing the authorized appropration for Philppine war damages. (3) This session of Congress. (4) $25,000 plus necessary expenses of traveling to Washington and stays in Washington for him and his wife. (5) Philippine-American Committee. (6) An amount not to exceed approximately $6,000. (7) Travel expenses between Kansas City, Mo., and Washington, D. C., and hotel, meals and incidentals on visits to Washington.

Bolton, Paul H., 708 Ring Building, Washington, D. C. (1) National Association of Wholesalers, Inc., 708 Ring Building, Washington, D. C. (2) National Association of Wholesalers, Inc. (3) Beginning March 15, 1949, I was elected executive vice president of National Association of Wholesalers, Inc. (4) Executive salary at present is based upon $10,000 per year, which covers full executive and administrative duties. (5) The above salary amount is from the treasury of National Association of Wholesalers, Inc. (6) No defined budget for expenses. Present expenses consist solely of rent, secretarial expense, printing, postage and administrative. (7) The above items cover the only items of expense at present anticipated.

Boorde,[1] Thomas E., 945 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) General Welfare Federation of America, Inc., 945 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (2) In behalf of a Federal old-age pension for the aged citizens. (3) Indeterminate. (4) Actual expenses, travel, hotel, postage, wires, etc. (5) General Welfare Federation, Inc. (6) Actual expenses. (7) Travel, hotel, postage, etc.

Bowden, Benjamin Edward, 10 Independence Avenue SW., room 313, Washington, D. C. (1) American Train Dispatchers Association, 10 East Huron Street, Chicago, Ill. (2) American Train Dispatchers Association. (3) Temporary, approximately 2 months. (4) $19.50 per day, not exceeding 5 days per week and actual living expense in Washington, D. C. (5) American Train Dispatchers Association, 10 East Huron Street, Chicago, Ill. (6) Actual living expenses (approximately $11 per day). (7) Hotel lodging, meals, transportation, communication, United States postage, laundry.

Breed, Arthur H., Jr., and Hahn, James D., associates, 1111 Jackson Street, Oakland, Calif. (1) Pacific American Steamship Association, 16 California Street, San Francisco, Calif. (2) Pacific American Steamship Association, 16 California Street, San Francisco, Calif. (3) Indefinite. (4) $200 a week during continuation of employment. (5) Pacific American Steamship Association, 16 California Street, San Francisco, Calif. (6) Actual expenses incurred. (7) Telephone, telegraph, stationery, postage, traveling, living expense while away from home.

Brinckerhoff,[1] H. E., 220 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y., (1) American Pulpwood Association, 220 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (2) The pulpwood industry in the United States as represented by the membership of American Pulpwood Association. (3) At the pleasure of the board of directors of American Pulpwood Association. (4) That portion of his annual compensation of $13,000 as is represented by the proportion which is working time devoted to activities covered by the Lobbying Act in any year shall bear to his total working time in such year. No fixed sum can be estimated in advance. (5) American Pulpwood Association, 220 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (6) Actual out-of-pocket expenses paid or incurred while actually engaged in activities covered by the Lobbying Act. No accurate estimate can be given in advance. (7) Traveling and hotel expenses, subsistence, meeting space, luncheons, cab hire, and other expenses incidental to group meetings and conferences held in connection with activities covered by the Lobbying Act and the preparation and editing of literature pertaining thereto.

Brown, Ethel G., 1134 North Orange Drive, Los Angeles, Calif. (1) The registrant is chairman of the standing committee on legislation of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. The registrant expressly disclaims any activities constituting lobbying within the purview of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, and files this registration under protest. (2) The National Congress of Parents and Teachers. (3) The term of office of the registrant is 3 years. (4) The registrant receives no compensation for her services. (5) Not applicable. See item (4). (6) The registrant is reimbursed periodically by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for her out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with her activities as chairman of the standing committee on legislation. The expenses for which the registrant is reimbursed together with the out-of-pocket expenses of the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation (whose activities are directed by the registrant) are estimated at not to exceed $250 per calendar quarter. (7) Special secretarial services (except as paid for directly by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers), telegrams, telephone, postage, transportation, and similar miscellaneous items.

Bryan,[2] James E., as agent for the Medical Society of New Jersey, 315 West State Street, Trenton, N. J. (1) The Medical Society of New Jersey, 315 West State Street, Trenton, N. J. (2) The Medical Society of New Jersey, 315 West State Street, Trenton, N. J. (3) Since September 1, 1947. (4) Proportionate amount of total salary for proportionate time devoted to lobbying within the meaning of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, $2,000 annually. (5) The Medical Society of New Jersey, 315 West State Street, Trenton, N. J. (6) For actual expenses incurred, covering travel and incidental expenses; average reportable under this act not exceeding $15 per month. (7) Travel.

Bugbee, H. C., 1631 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) W. S. Lockwood, Inc., 1631 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Natural Rubber Bureau, 1631 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (3) Calendar year basis. (4) Not applicable (see letter of February 16, 1950, attached[3]). (5) Not applicable (see letter of February 16, 1950, attached[3]). (6) Not applicable (see letter of February 16, 1950, attached[3]). (7) Not applicable (see letter of February 16, 1950, attached[3]).

Callaghan, Edna, 2032 Belmont Road NW., Washington, D. C. (1) The registrant is the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. The registrant expressly disclaims any activities constituting lobbying within the purview of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, and files this registration under protest. (2) The National Congress of Parents and Teachers. (3) Indefinite. The registrant serves as chairman of the Washington committee on legislation at the pleasure of the executive committee of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. (4) The registrant receives no compensation for her services. (5) Not applicable. See item (4) above. (6) The registrant is reimbursed periodically by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for her out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with her activities as chairman of the Washington committee on legislation. The expenses for which she is reimbursed together with the expenses reimbursed to Ethel G. Brown, chairman of the standing committee on legislation are estimated at not to exceed $250 per calendar quarter. (7) Special secretarial services (except as paid for directly by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers), telegrams, telephone, postage, taxi fares, meals, and similar miscellaneous items.

Campbell,[2] Wallace J., 726 Jackson Place NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Cooperative League of U. S. A., 343 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. (lobbying activities if there be any are incidental to information and research activities of the Washington office). (2) Cooperative League of U. S. A. and its constituent organizations. (3) Permanent. (4) $7,500 per year. (5) Cooperative League of U. S. A. (6) About $200 a year if needed. (7) Taxis, meals, and other transportation.

Carson, Henderson H., 640 Shoreham Building, Washington, D. C., 600 First National Bank Building, Canton, Ohio. (1) East Ohio Gas Co., Cleveland, Ohio. (2) East Ohio Gas Co. as a client in the general practice of law. (3) Unknown. Have been one of the attorneys for said company for over 27 years. (4) $12,000 annual retainer which primarily covers nonlegislative service. (5) The East Ohio Gas Co. (6) Unknown; issue itemized bills for expenses quarterly. (7) Travel and out-of-pocket expenses.

Carter, Horace, 9 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, Borough of Manhattan, city of New York. (1) To be filed accordingly. (2) To be filed accordingly. (3) To be filed accordingly; indefinite. (4) To be filed accordingly. (5) To be filed accordingly. (6) To be filed accordingly. (7) To be filed accordingly.

Casey, Joseph E., 1025 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Radio Manufacturers Association, 1317 F Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Radio Manufacturers Association, 1317 F Street NW., Washington, D. C. (3) For the remainder of the calendar year 1950. (4) To receive $5,000 retainer and $1,000 a month, and expenses, beginning March 1, 1950, for the balance of the calendar year. (5) Radio Manufacturers Association, 1317 F Street NW., Washington, D. C. (6) As incurred. (7) Undetermined.

Clucas, W. Frank, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Association of Master Plumbers, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) National Association of Master Plumbers, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (3) Permanent. (4) Nothing; part of regular activity as executive secretary of the association and paid by annual salary. (5) National Association of Master Plumbers, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (6) None. Reimbursed for out-of-pocket expense. (7) Telephone, telegraph, postage, other miscellaneous expense.

Coles,[2] Marvin J., Ingoldsby, Coles & Wright, attorneys, 813 Washington Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Employed as attorneys by the Wisconsin & Michigan Steamship Co., 2489 Detroit National Bank Building, Detroit, Mich. (2) Wisconsin & Michigan Steamship Co. (3) Indefinite. (4) Registrant's compensation is for legal services and will be dependent upon the amount of time required to perform such services. (5) Wisconsin & Michigan Steamship Co. (6) Registrant will be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Long-distance telephone and telegraph charges, mimeographing, printing, entertainment, travel, payments to associate counsel or economist.

Cooper, J. Milton, attorney at law, room 544 Washington Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Thomas D. Griffin, 105 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill., acting for an informal group of licensed small-loan companies affected by section 501 (b) (6) of the Internal Revenue Code. (2) Clients mentioned in (1) above. (3) Indefinite. (4) Reasonable fee to be determined and paid when employment is terminated. (5) Clients mentioned in (1) above. (6) None. (7) None.

Corwin, Harold B., 1616 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Retired Officers Association, Inc., 1616 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. Not maintained for the principal purpose, nor does it solicit, collect, or receive funds principally for the purpose of influencing legislative action. (2) Retired Officers Association, Inc., whose membership is retired officers, warrant officers, and nurses of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard,

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.

[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

Coast and Geodetic Survey, and Public Health Service, and of Reserve components of those services. (3) Indefinite. (4) $300 per month, no part of which is paid or received specifically for attempting to influence legislative action. (5) Retired Officers Association, Inc. (6) Nothing. (7) None.

Counihan, Donald N., attorney at law, 1420 New York Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Class Room Periodical Publishers Association, 132 North Main Street, Dayton, Ohio. (2) See (1) above. (3) 6 months. (4) $500 per month. (5) Class Room Periodical Publishers Association. (6) Out-of-pocket expenses as required. (7) Out-of-pocket expenses.

Courtney, John J., 843 Continental Building, 1511 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Catholic Press Association, Inc., Fordham University, New York, N. Y. (2) Catholic Press Association, Inc. The association as a whole and its individual members are opposed to any increase in postal rates on religious publications. (3) Indefinite. (4) Reasonable value of services, as and when billed. The activities of the association, its individual members and of the registrant are not believed to come within the purview of section 308 (a) of the act in question since all activities are normally confined to publishing information, committee hearings, and the like. However, registrant is interested in all phases of legislation without differentiating between that which does and that which does not come within the purview of the act; accordingly all moneys received will be reported quarterly without any attempt at apportionment so that employer and registrant will comply with both the letter and the spirit of the act. (5) Catholic Press Association, Inc. (6) No specific agreement except that out-of-pocket expenses will be reported when, as and if incurred. (7) Only those referred to in answer 6.

Crowley, Frederick T. M., 1424 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Associated in the general practice of law with Douglas L. Hatch at 1424 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (who is also registered under Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress). (2) Will assist Douglas L. Hatch in matters involving his client, James Stewart & Co., Inc., 230 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. (3) Indefinite. (4) No amount stipulated. (5) By James Stewart & Co., Inc., through Douglas L. Hatch. (6) Out-of-pocket expenses such as taxi fares, etc. (7) Out-of-pocket expenses.

Cummings, Stanley, Truitt & Cross, 1625 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Kansas City Board of Trade, Board of Trade Building, Kansas City, Mo. (2) Kansas City Board of Trade, Board of Trade Building, Kansas City, Mo. (3) Indefinite. (4) Not yet determined. (5) Kansas City Board of Trade, Board of Trade Building, Kansas City, Mo. (6) No fixed amount; reasonable out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Transportation, communication, reproduction of documents, etc.

Disney, Wesley E., 434 Southern Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Engaged in general law practice. (2) Eastern Magnesia Talc Co., Inc., Burlington, Vt.; W. H. Loomis Talc Corp., Gouverneur, N. Y.; International Talc Co., Inc., 41 Park Row, New York, N. Y. (3) Indefinite. (4) I have been employed by the companies named in the interest of the talc industry to represent the producers of talc before the Congress in connection with retaining their present percentage depletion allowances under the Internal Revenue Code. It has not yet been determined which other talc companies will participate in this employment. The three listed companies have agreed to pay me $3,000 each with a maximum total fee for services to the industry of $15,000. No expenses will be paid me other than any necessary travel and incidental expenses in connection with this employment. (5) See (4). (6) See (4). (7) See (4).

Donovan, Thomas J., 10 East Fortieth Street, New York, N. Y. (1) Tax Council of the Alcoholic Beverage Industries. (2) Tax Council of the Alcoholic Beverage Industries. (3) Indefinite. (4) No compensation paid for services rendered to this organization. (5) See (4). (6) Actual expenditures made on behalf of Tax Council of the Alcoholic Beverage Industries. (7) Traveling and expenses incidental to travel such as hotel, meals, cab fares, etc., and printing.

Eaton, George S., 1412 Union Commerce Building, Cleveland, Ohio. (1) National Tool and Die Manufacturers Association, 1412 Union Commerce Building, Cleveland, Ohio. (2) National Tool and Die Manufacturers Association, 1412 Union Commerce Building, Cleveland, Ohio. (3) Indefinite. Am employed year by year as the executive secretary and operating head of the National Tool and Die Manufacturers Association. Lobbying activities will be a very minor part of my work, and it does not seem probable that registration is really required. However, I am registering, in view of the uncertainty as to the meaning of title III of Public Law 601, in order to make sure that I am complying with its terms. (4) Pay as executive secretary is $10,000 a year. It is impractical to allocate any specific share of this as pay for lobbying; if it were, it would be only a small part. (5) National Tool and Die Manufacturers Association, 1412 Union Commerce Building, Cleveland, Ohio. (6) Actual amount spent. (7) Transportation, hotel, meals, entertainment (if any), incidentals.

Ellison,[1] Newell W., 701 Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Ray W. Britton, 1416 Cherry Street, Erie, Pa. (2) See No. (1). (3) Indefinite. (4) No fee yet determined. (5) See No. (1). (6) Not yet determined. (7) Usual disbursements customary in legal work.

Erickson,[1] Oliver F., 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Association of Master Plumbers, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) National Association of Master Plumbers, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (3) Permanent. (4) Nothing. Part of regular activity as assistant executive secretary of the association and paid by annual salary. (5) National Association of Master Plumbers, 1105 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (6) None; reimbursed for out-of-pocket expense. (7) Telephone, telegraph, postage, other miscellaneous expense.

Esman,[2] Mrs. Sherly Goodman, 134 East Thirty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (1) Americana Associates, 134 East Thirty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (2) People of the United States of America and their foreign affairs. (3) Permanent; I am the director of the above company whose field is international industrial relations through cultural projects. (4) Nothing. (5) Expenses only by Americana Associates. (6) Whatever it takes to do the job right. (7) Living, telephone, and other communications, travel, and entertainment when necessary.

Falk, Albert S., Wheaton, Minn. (1) Self. (2) My own. (3) [Blank.] (4) No payment. (5) None. (6) Nothing. (7) None.

Federline, Andrew Paul, 1833 Jefferson Place NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Bureau of Salesmen's National Associations (Marshall J. Mantler, managing director), Bona Allen Building, Atlanta, Ga. (2) The outside commission salesmen in the men's, women's, and children's apparel and the shoe fields, who are members of the national salesmen's association that support the bureau. (3) Indefinite. (4) Registrant receives regularly a legal retainer of $200 per month for serving on a part-time basis as Washington counsel on legal, administrative, and legislative matters of interest to bureau members. Am entitled to an additional fee on matters involving litigation or formal legal appearances (such as before the Interstate Commerce Commission, etc.). (5) Bureau of Salesmen's National Associations (including its association members, which are the National Association of Men's Apparel Clubs, Inc., the National Shoe Travelers' Association, and the National Association of Women's and Children's Apparel Salesmen, Inc. (6) Reimbursement for actual expenditures on bureau business only. (7) Necessary travel; telephone and telegraph; per diem for attending conventions and formal hearings (principally outside of Washington); and lunches on bureau business.

Fillius, Maurice W., 703 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. (1) National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers, Inc., 700 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. (2) National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers, Inc. (3) Indefinite. (4) $1,500 annually. (5) National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers, Inc. (6) Reimbursement for ordinary out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Taxis, travel, and similar expenses.

Finley, Forrest E., 211 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Sam O'Neal, 211 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. (2) Symphony orchestras. (3) Indeterminate. (4) $250 monthly, plus $500 initial retainer. (5) Sam O'Neal. (6) Nothing. (7) None.

Finley, Forrest E., 211 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Committee of a small number of educational and religious magazines. (2) Committee of a small number of educational and religious magazines. (3) Undetermined. (4) Undetermined; not to exceed $2,000. (5) Committee of a small number of educational and religious magazines. (6) None. (7) None.

Fitts, Joseph C., 1250 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. (1) Heating, Piping, and Air Conditioning Contractors National Association, Inc., 1250 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. (2) Heating, Piping, and Air Conditioning Contractors National Association, Inc. (3) On yearly basis. (4) $10,000 per year for services as secretary, including many other duties in addition to legislative work. (5) Heating, Piping, and Air Conditioning Contractors National Association, Inc. (6) Reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses on itemized bills. (7) Travel, maintenance, etc.

Fitzgerald, Stephen E., doing business as the Stephen Fitzgerald Co., and Raymond C. Baker, as employee, 502 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) National Association of Electric Companies, 1200 Eighteenth Street, Washington, D. C. (2) National Association of Electric Companies. (3) Undefined; beginning January 1, 1950, to last until any termination of agreement. (4) An annual fee of $50,000. (5) National Association of Electric Companies. (6) Up to $10,000 annually, in accordance with expenses actually incurred. (7) Production costs such as mimeographing and printing; telephone tolls, telegrams, miscellaneous incidentals.

Fleming, David A., 610 Ring Building, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Electrical Contractors Association, Inc., 610 Ring Building, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (A national nonprofit membership association of firms engaged in electrical contracting.) (2) The registrant works in the interests of the National Electrical Contractors Association, Inc., which was organized in 1901 to promote the interests of electrical contractors in the installation, servicing, and maintenance of electrical wiring appliances and equipment and to further ethical business practices and to improve products and services. (3) The registrant has been continuously employed since August 1947. (4) The registrant is paid at the rate of $7,300 per year as director of the line constructors section and of governmental affairs of the National Electrical Contractors Association, which includes substantial duties and activities that are not covered by this act. (5) The registrant is paid exclusively by the National Electrical Contractors Association. (6) The registrant is furnished an office, secretarial, telephone, and telegraphic service, but no fixed expense allowance. Out-of-pocket expenses are reimbursed on itemized vouchers. (7) The holding of meetings, meals, entertainment, taxis, travel out of Washington, D. C., for both activities covered and not covered by this act.

[1] Registration with the secretary only.
[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

Foutz, Dave, 300 New Jersey Avenue SE., Washington, D. C. (1) Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, 306 West Third Street, Los Angeles, Calif. (2) Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, on H. R. 934, H. R. 935, and S. 75. (3) Twenty days. (4) $100 per day. (5) Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. (6) Out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Travel, if any, and phone or telegraph toll.

Friedman, Seymour, Continental Building, Washington D. C. (1) Association of Petroleum Re-Refiners, 2201 North Oak Street, Arlington, Va. (2) See (1). (3) Indefinite. (4) $500 per month, of which $250 per month is for general legal services for the association. (5) Same as (1). (6) Actual expenses. (7) Travel, telephone, miscellaneous office expenses.

Fulton, Walter & Halley,[1] 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N. Y.; 1411 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Fulton, Walter & Halley, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N. Y.; 1411 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mount St. Joseph, Ohio. (3) No specified duration. (4) Firm has represented Sisters of Charity in general matters for 2 years at annual retainer of $2,500. No additional fee specified for our representation in present matter. (5) See question 2. (6) No agreement as to expense. (7) [Blank.]

Geddes, Bond, 1317 F Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Radio Manufacturers Association, 1317 F Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) See above. (3) Association's fiscal year ending July 31, 1950, or until terminated. (4) Registrant is executive vice president and general manager, also secretary, of the Radio Manufacturers Association, and in that capacity administers its affairs and in so doing performs a general and wide variety of services of which those of the nature covered by the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act are purely minor and incidental. No additional nor separate compensation for such services covered by said act is paid to registrant. (5) See (1) above. (6) None except minor incidental and actual out-of-pocket expenditures reimbursable to registrant and no fixed amount determined. (7) Only the customary and usual travel, taxicab, and other minor miscellaneous expenses incurred in connection with minor and incidental performance of services covered under the act.

Goldberger, Marvin L., 729 Ninth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) AMVETS (American Veterans of World War II), congressionally chartered veterans' organization. (2) AMVETS (American Veterans of World War II). (3) Indefinitely. (4) $5,000 per year. (5) AMVETS (American Veterans of World War II). (6) Actual expenses. (7) General administrative expenses, including office, transportation, and other necessary costs of operation of legislative department.

Gorn, Elmer J., Raytheon Manufacturing Co., Waltham, Mass. (1) Raytheon Manufacturing Co., Waltham, Mass. (2) Raytheon Manufacturing Co., Waltham, Mass. (3) October 1930 to date. (4) $12,000 per annum. (5) Raytheon Manufacturing Co., Waltham, Mass. (6) Only actual travel and sustenance. (7) Same as (6).

Grant, Robert A.,[2] 624 Associates Building, South Bend, Ind. (1) Grant, Ploeser, Dixon & Murphy, 111 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill. (2) The excise tax applying to the manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers of pianos, band, and other musical instruments. (3) Until December 31, 1950. (4) Necessary expenses. (5) Grant, Ploeser, Dixon & Murphy, 111 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill. (6) Necessary travel, hotel, telephone, etc. (7) Only necessary expenses such as stated above.

Groner, Duncan C., 1430 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Federation for Railway Progress, 1430 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Federation for Railway Progress. (3) Indefinite. (4) $5,500. (5) Federation for Railway Progress. (6) As incurred. (7) Travel and other costs incurred in connection with job.

Gunn, James S., 10 Independence Avenue, Washington, D. C. (1) Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, 318 Keith Building, Cleveland, Ohio. (2) Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. (3) Temporary, until relieved of assignment. (4) $12.50 per day. (5) Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. (6) $12.50 per day. (7) Hotel room, meals, and personal expenses while in Washington.

Guy, David J., 1615 H Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Chamber of Commerce of the United States, 1615 H Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) See attached statement.[3] (3) Permanent full-time employee. (4) See attached statement.[3] (5) Chamber of Commerce of the United States. (6) Reimbursement only for proper business expenses. (7) Routine business disbursements such as transportation, telephone, and other proper business expenses.

Hall, Radford, 515 Cooper Building, Denver, Colo. (1) American National Livestock Association, 515 Cooper Building, Denver, Colo. (2) Livestock industry. (3) Permanent. (4) Annual salary, $3,600; average time to be spent in Washington (the only part of my work which could be considered as lobbying), about 2 weeks out of the year. (5) American National Livestock Association. (6) Actual transportation and living expenses while out of Denver. (7) Same as (6).

Handwerk,[1] Robert C., attorney at law, 327 Southern Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Tampa Shipbuilding Realty Corp., a corporation, 3301 Bayshore Boulevard, Tampa, Fla.; Tampa Shipbuilding & Engineering Co., a dissolved corporation, Ernest Kreher, Max Kreher, Paul Kreher, et al., trustees, 3301 Bayshore Boulevard, Tampa, Fla. (2) The Tampa Shipbuilding Realty Corp. and the trustees of the above-mentioned dissolved corporation. (3) Until recovery is had or the claim dismissed. (4) Paid nothing. I am to receive 10 percent of amount of recovery. (5) By the above-mentioned clients. (6) Only actual out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Traveling, hotel, and such incidental expenses.

Hansen, Harry, 305 Royal Union Building, Des Moines, Iowa. (1) Self. (2) For self. (3) Indefinite. (4) Without pay. (5) No one. (6) None. (7) [Blank.]

Hanson,[2] Murray, 1625 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Investment Bankers Association of America, 1625 K Street NW., Washington, D. C.; also 33 South Clark Street, Chicago, Ill. (2) Investment Bankers Association of America and its membership. (3) Indefinite; at the pleasure of the board of governors, the governing body of the association. (4) The undersigned is paid as general counsel (and chief paid executive officer) of the association and not specifically for any legislative activities. An estimate of compensation to be received for, based upon a projected estimate of time likely to be expended on, activities which might be construed as falling within the purview of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, would not exceed a maximum of $2,400 annually. (5) Investment Bankers Association of America. (6) Indefinite. (7) Out-of-pocket disbursements for expenses incident to travel on association business such as transportation, hotel bills, meals, telephone, etc., and out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with association business in Washington, such as expenses for committee meetings, business luncheons, dinners, and the like.

Hardy, Ralph W., 1771 N Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Association of Broadcasters, 1771 N Street NW., Washington, D. C. (See rider A attached[3] hereto and made a part hereof.) (2) National Association of Broadcasters. (3) Indefinite. (4) Annual salary $17,500, for services performed as director of the radio division of the National Association of Broadcasters. (5) National Association of Broadcasters. (6) No specific amount is paid for legislative expenses. General expense account is provided. (7) No specific expenses are to be included.

Harper, Elsie Dorothy, 600 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations, 600 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. (2) National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations. (3) Annual. (4) $1,700 (annually). (5) National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations. (6) $1,360. (7) Stenographic help, travel, printing, stationery, postage, telephone, and telegraph.

Hatch, Douglas L., 1424 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) James Stewart & Co., Inc., 230 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. (2) James Stewart & Co., Inc. (3) Indefinite. (4) Counsel fees based on services and to be agreed upon, including $2,500 retainer. (5) James Stewart & Co., Inc. (6) Incidental out-of-pocket expenses such as telephone costs, taxi fares, etc. (7) Only incidental out-of-pocket expenses.

Hayes, Anna H., Twin Falls, Idaho. (1) The registrant is president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. The registrant expressly disclaims any activities constituting lobbying within the purview of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, and files this registration under protest. (2) The National Congress of Parents and Teachers. (3) The term of office of the registrant as president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers is 3 years. (4) The registrant receives no compensation for her services. (5) Not applicable. See item (4). (6) The registrant is reimbursed by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for her expenses incurred in connection with her activities as president. Her budget for expenses is $6,000 per annum. Not more than 5 percent of such budget will represent expenses in any way connected with the legislative activities of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. (7) Transportation, hotels, meals, telegrams, telephone, postage, and similar items incurred by the registrant in the discharge of duties of her office.

Heer,[1] Leo J., 666 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill. (1) National Retail Furniture Association, 666 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill. (2) Retail furniture stores. (3) Permanently employed by National Retail Furniture Association with sporadic attention to legislative interests. (4) An allocation of $1,000 annually of his salary is being made

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.
[2] Registration with the Clerk only.
[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.
[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

for report purposes but in ration it is in substantial excess of the percentage of his time devoted to legislative interests. (5) National Retail Furniture Association. (6) Actual out-of-pocket expense. (7) Travel, if any.

Hicks, Heber C., 2201 North Oak Street, Arlington, Va. (1) Association of Petroleum Re-Refiners, 2201 North Oak Street, Arlington, Va. (2) Executive secretary. (3) Yearly. (4) $2,000 per annum. (5) Association of Petroleum Re-Refiners. (6) Only necessary expenses. (7) Transportation, meals, hotel, and incidentals, etc.

Hill, Herbert R., 923 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va. (1) Registrant is a nonsalaried trustee and committee chairman of the National Association of Life Underwriters, a nonprofit incorporated association, whose sole office is at 11 West Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. Registrant does not believe, and does not consent, that this registration shall be construed as an admission that his activities as such officer and committee chairman in connection with legislation in Congress bring him within the application of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, second session. However, pending clarification of the application of the said law, and in order that there may be no question as to his good faith, registrant has filed this statement and will attempt to estimate, in the quarterly reports, what portion, if any, of the expenses for which he is reimbursed might come within the purview of the said law. (2) [Blank.] (3) As a trustee and committee chairman, registrant is subject respectively to periodic election by the association members and appointment by its president. (4) All services are without remuneration other than reimbursement of expenses. (5) Nothing paid. (6) Out-of-pocket expense in connection with association activities. (7) Travel, meals, lodging, telephone tolls, etc.

Hobbie, Edgar V. H., 1731 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Milk Producers Federation, 1731 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) National Milk Producers Federation, 1731 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (3) The employment of the above registrant by the federation terminated March 31, 1950, and this amended registration is filed for the purpose of showing the termination of such employment. (4) [Blank.] (5) [Blank.] (6) [Blank.] (7) [Blank.]

Hoen, John L., 1233 Thirty-first Street NW., Washington, D. C. (temporary address). (1) Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., 40 Centre Street, Boston, Mass. (2) Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc. (3) Indefinite. (4) $15,000 per annum. (5) Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc. (6) Only necessary expenses. (7) Travel, office expenses, entertainment.

Hofmann, B. H., national secretary, 2627 West Fond du Lac Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis. (1) American Relief for Germany, Inc., 2627 West Fond du Lac Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis. (unsalaried). (2) American Relief for Germany, Inc. (3) Indefinite on per diem basis. (4) $25 per diem. (5) American Relief for Germany, Inc. (6) Reimbursement of actual expenditures. (7) Travel, hotel, conference, and office.

Hummel,[2] C. A., 122 West Washington Avenue, Madison, Wis. (1) Wisconsin Railroad Association, 122 West Washington Avenue, Madison, Wis. (2) All class I Wisconsin railroads. (3) Indefinite. (4) $29 per day ($750 per month, 26 days per month). (5) Wisconsin Railroad Association. (6) Necessary traveling and living expenses away from home. (7) See above.

Hurja, Emil, 612 Albee Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Republic of Finland. (2) Republic of Finland. (3) 1 year. (4) $10,000. (5) Republic of Finland. (6) $2,500. (7) Traveling, hotel, office, telephone, and postage.

Ingles, William, 1624 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Acme Steel Co., Chicago, Ill. (2) Acme Steel Co., Chicago, Ill. (3) Indefinite. (4) Not definitely fixed. (5) Acme Steel Co., Chicago, Ill. (6) Nothing, except when and as authorized. (7) See paragraph 6 above.

Ingles, William, 1624 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Ahlberg Bearing Co., Chicago, Ill. (2) Ahlberg Bearing Co., Chicago, Ill. (3) Indefinite; month to month. (4) Not definitely fixed. (5) Ahlberg Bearing Co., Chicago, Ill. (6) Nothing, except when and as authorized. (7) See paragraph 6 above.

Ingles, William, 1624 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Armstrong-Blum Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill. (2) Armstrong-Blum Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill. (3) Indefinite. (4) Not definitely fixed. (5) Armstrong-Blum Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill. (6) Nothing, except when and as authorized. (7) See paragraph 6 above.

Ingles, William, 1624 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Clayton Mark & Co., Evanston, Ill. (2) Clayton Mark & Co., Evanston, Ill. (3) Indefinite; month to month. (4) Not definitely fixed. (5) Clayton Mark & Co., Evanston, Ill. (6) Nothing, excepting authorized out-of-pocket traveling expenses as necessary. (7) See paragraph 6 above.

Ingles, William, 1624 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Kensington Steel Co., Chicago, Ill. (2) Kensington Steel Co., Chicago, Ill. (3) Indefinite; month to month. (4) Not definitely fixed. (5) Kensington Steel Co., Chicago, Ill. (6) Nothing, excepting authorized out-of-pocket traveling expenses as necessary. (7) See paragraph 6 above.

Ingles, William, 1624 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) United Specialities Co., Chicago, Ill. (2) United Specialties Co., Chicago, Ill. (3) Indefinite. (4) Not definitely fixed. (5) United Specialties Co., Chicago, Ill. (6) Nothing, except when and as authorized. (7) See paragraph 6 above.

Jamieson, William J., care of Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc., 116 Newbury Street, Boston, Mass. (1) Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc., 116 Newbury Street, Boston, Mass. (2) Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc., 116 Newbury Street, Boston, Mass. (3) Hired from month to month. (4) Regular salary only. (5) Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc. (6) [Blank.] (7) [Blank.]

Jerome, Edward, 7501 Empire State Building, New York, N. Y. (1) National Economic Council, Inc., 7501 Empire State Building, New York, N. Y. (2) National Economic Council, Inc. (3) Part time, monthly. (4) Monthly retainer, $425. (5) National Economic Council, Inc. (6) Actual, travel and incidentals. (7) See No. (6).

Johnson,[2] Vernon A. (amended registration), Lockheed Aircraft Corp., 1000 Vermont Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif. (2) Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif. (3) Indefinite. (4) $12,000 per year salary plus business expenses. (5) Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif. (6) Indefinite amount or as expenses occur. (7) Normal business expenses such as travel, entertainment, telephone and telegraph, hotel, etc.

Jones, Stephen E., 808 Continental Building, Fifteenth and K Streets NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Slick Airways, Inc., San Antonio, Tex., 808 Continental Building, Fifteenth and K Streets NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Slick Airways, Inc., only. (NOTE.—It is considered that registrant as a vice president of Slick Airways, Inc., may not be subject to the provisions of the Lobbying Act; however, registration is being effected on advice of counsel and purely as a precautionary measure.) (3) Indefinite. (4) $7,200 per year. (5) Slick Airways, Inc. (6) To be reimbursed for proper out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Transportation, away-from home expenses, and reasonable entertainment for company business or benefit.

Klaunberg, Dr. Henry J., 1708 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Washington Institute of Medicine, 1708 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Washington Institute of Medicine, 1708 Massachusetts Avenue NW, Washington, D. C. (3) Permanent. (4) $10,000 per year. (5) Washington Institute of Medicine, 1708 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (6) To be reimbursed only for actual expenses incurred in the normal course of the conduct of the affairs of the Washington Institute of Medicine. (7) As stated in (6).

Laughlin,[1] G. W., 823 King Avenue, Florence, S. C. (1) Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 1118 Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Building, Cleveland, Ohio. (2) Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. (3) Temporary assignment on amendment to the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944. (4) As salaried officer of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, entire salary for year is $13,120. (5) Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. (6) Yearly salary is $13,120. (7) All expenses.

Littell,[1] Norman M., 1422 F. Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Twenty bands of Mission Indians of southern California, Adam Castillo, president, Mission Indian Federation, San Jacinto, Calif. (2) [Blank.] (3) [Blank.] (4) None received. (5) None. (6) No specific legislation, but registrant is to represent the above Mission Indian bands as requested at any hearings when legislation affecting them is being considered. (7) [Blank.]

Lockwood, Warren S., 1631 K. Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) W. S. Lockwood, Inc., 1631 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Natural Rubber Bureau, 1631 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (3) Calendar-year basis. (4) Not applicable. (See letter of February 16, 1950, attached.[3] (5) Not applicable. (See letter of February 16, 1950, attached.[3]) (6) Not applicable. (See letter of February 16, 1950, attached.[3]) (7) Not applicable. (See letter of February 16, 1950, attached.[3])

Ludwick, Frank M., 901 Barr Building, 910 Seventeenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) G. F. Heublein & Bro., Inc., Hartford, Conn.; Taylor Wine Co., Hammondsport, N. Y.; Finger Lakes Wine Growers Association, Hammondsport, N. Y.; Bottle Fermented Champagne Producers, Inc., 901 Barr Building, Washington, D. C. (2) [Blank.] (3) Annual retainer. (4) Registrant states that he is an attorney at law and represents the above clients on an annual retainer. He advises clients of pending legislation which would affect their business and it is probable that from time to time he might be requested to intercede in their behalf. The amount of effort involved would determine the amount of his compensation. (5) Employers. (6) None. (7) None.

Macdonald,[1] David G., 1511 K Street NW., Washington D. C. (1) Refrigerated Carriers Association, 1206 Sylvan Road SW., Atlanta, Ga. (2) Refrigerated Carriers Association. (3) Indefinite. (4) $400 per month. (5) Refrigerated Carriers Association. (6) Actual expenditures. (7) Payments for travel, publications, duplication of materials, and entertainment.

McDonald, E. L., 524 Governor Building, Portland, Oreg. (1) The Townsend Plan for National Insurance, 6875 Broadway, Cleveland, Ohio. (2) Elderly people and general public. (3) Indefinite. (4) Total gross,

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.

[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

$1,065.63. (5) Townsend plan. (6) None. (7) None.

Malmberg, Mrs. Margie Sornson, Hotel Congressional, Washington, D. C. (1) American Library Association, John Mackenzie Cory, executive secretary, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, Ill. (2) Membership of the association and the library profession. (3) End of session. (4) $450 per month. (NOTE: Month of January paid on consultant basis, $25 per day and expenses.) (5) American Library Association. (6) Room to be paid $200 a month; suite doubles as Washington office of association; $100 for food; limited travel expense when needed. (7) Details of office have not been worked out. Secretary will be paid at rate of $225 a month, and there will be postage, phone, and office supplies. Legislative activity takes only portion of time of Washington office.

Mantler,[1] Marshall J., 604 Bona Allen Building, Atlanta, Ga. (1) Bureau of Salesmen's National Associations. (2) The bureau and its three supporting members, as follows: National Association of Women's and Children's Apparel Salesmen, Inc.; National Association of Men's Apparel Clubs; National Shoe Travelers' Association. (3) Indefinite. (4) $1,800 per year. (5) The bureau. (6) Actual Travel expenses limited to $1,500. (7) Travel, telephone, telegraph.

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.

Marenberg, Philip P., Esq., 710 Kass Building, Washington, D. C. (1) A group of 50 young men presently employed as customs inspectors at the port of New York customhouse, Treasury Department. (2) This group of 50. (3) Until a decision is reached concerning their status. (4) $500 monthly until decision is reached. Represents $10 per person. (5) This group of 50. (6) Nothing. (7) None.

Martin, Guy, and Robert A. Saltzstein, B. F. Saltzstein, of counsel, 1015 Ring Building, Washington, D. C. (1) The Emergency Committee of Small and Medium-Size Magazine Publishers, 347 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. (2) The Emergency Committee of Small and Medium-Size Magazine Publishers. (3) Indefinite. (4) Fees for legal services as rendered. (5) The Emergency Committee of Small and Medium Size Magazine Publishers. (6) All necessary expenses incurred for telephone, telegraph, transportation, travel, secretarial services, etc., in connection with services rendered. (7) Same as (6) above.

Maxwell, Cyrus H., M. D., 1523 L Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) American Medical Association, 535 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. (2) American Medical Association. (3) Annual. (4) $10,000 per annum. (5) American Medical Association. (6) For out-of-pocket expenses incurred. (7) Travel expenses, hotels, meals, local transportation, and miscellaneous.

Mehren, Edward Walsh, 202 South Hamilton Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. (1) The applicant is chairman of the board of the American Institute for Intermediate Coinage, and serves in this capacity without remuneration. (2) American Institute for Intermediate Coinage, 202 South Hamilton Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. (3) Board chairman reelected yearly. (4) Serves without remuneration. (5) Serves without remuneration. (6) As chairman of the board he draws on institute funds for travel, educational, research, and other expenses. Since institute funds have been inadequate for these expenses, he has paid major portion of expenses from his own personal funds. (7) See answer to question (6).

Mercier, Lucien H., 402 Metropolitan Bank Building, Washington, D. C. (1) I am general counsel in the United States for the Benguet Consolidated Mining Co., the Balatoc Mining Co., and the Heald Lumber Co., all Philippine companies; Banguet Consolidated Mining Co. being engaged in the mining of gold and chrome, Balatoc in gold mining, and Heald Lumber in lumbering. I am also chairman of the executive committee of the Philippine American Committee, 1035 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (2) In behalf of the above-named companies. (3) I have been general counsel of the above companies for over 15 years, and I am a member of the board of directors of the Benguet Consolidated Mining Co. I have been a member of the Philippine American Committee for about 10 months. (4) I have no understanding with anyone under which I am to be paid any compensation in connection with my work relating to an increase in the Philippine war-damage appropriation, which is the reason why I am registering under the Lobbying Act. I have been on a general retainer from the above companies for a great many years, and my retainer is not to be increased by any work which I do in this matter, nor would the retainer be diminished if I did not undertake the work. (5) By no one. (6) All of my expenses incident to any work for the above companies are always paid in whatever amount they happen to be. I know of no expense which I will incur for which I am to be repaid because of any work which I may do in the matter of an increased Philippine war-damage appropriation. (7) See (6) above.

Miller,[2] Joseph S., executive secretary for Columbia Valley Administration, 3015 Sixty-third Avenue SW., Seattle, Wash. (1) League for Columbia Valley Administration, a nonprofit organization governed by officers and an executive board (chiefly they are leaders in farm and labor organizations) and supported by contributions of those organizations and of interested citizens. (2) As spokesman for those organizations and individuals who support proposed legislation for a Columbia Valley Administration. (3) Presumably until Columbia Valley Administration legislation is enacted by the Congress. (4) Monthly salary of $170. (5) Contributions to the League for Columbia Valley Administration by individual and organizational members finance all salaries and all activities of the league. (6) Whatever incurred while engaged in activity on behalf of the League for Columbia Valley Administration. Operating expenses will seldom exceed $100 monthly. (7) Office maintenance; travel expenses.

Morgan, Jo. V., attorney at law, 605 Southern Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Linen Supply Exchange of the District of Columbia, 2400 Sixteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (2) Linen Supply Exchange of the District of Columbia. (3) Indefinite. (4) A fair amount as may be determined by the undersigned and the client, having in mind the results obtained. (5) Linen Supply Exchange of the District of Columbia. (6) $500. (7) Taxi fares, stenographic help, use of office and help, traveling (if any incurred), meals, notary fees, etc.

Munro, Howard E., Care of W. C. Hushing, American Federation of Labor, 901 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Canal Zone Central Labor Union, Balboa, C. Z.; Canal Zone Metal Trades Council, Balboa, C. Z. (2) Canal Zone Central Labor Union, Balboa, C. Z.; Canal Zone Metal Trades Council, Balboa, C. Z. (3) Year of 1950. (4) Not to exceed $850 per month while away from Canal Zone. (5) Canal Zone Central Labor Union and Canal Zone Metal Trades Council. (6) See (4). (7) All.

Northam, Harry E., 360 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. (1) By the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, a voluntary association of dues-paying physicians and surgeons, having members throughout the United States. The headquarters office is at 360 North Michigan Avenue, suite 704, Chicago, Ill. (2) I work for the medical profession in general and for the said association in particular. Possibly no more than 10 percent of my total time for the association is devoted to legislative activities affecting the medical profession. (3) Indefinite, from year to year, under contract. (4) $10,000 per year. (5) Association of American Physicians and Surgeons. (6) No specific amount is fixed. See answer to succeeding question. (7) Active expenses of individual—travel, hotel and subsistence. I am not allowed any entertainment expenses.

O'Neal, Sam, 211 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Arthur Gaines, manager of Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, as chairman of a committee representing symphony orchestras of the United States. (2) Symphony orchestras. (3) Indefinite. (4) $1,500 retainer fee and $500 monthly. (5) Arthur Gaines, representing symphony orchestras. (6) Expenses to be borne by registrant. (7) Registrant has employed Forrest Finley to assist, with Mr. Finley to share equally in fee after all expenses are paid.

Owens, William W., 100 Broadway, New York, N. Y. (1) Edward E. Black, as executor of the estate of Francois L. Church, deceased, 70 Pine Street, New York, N. Y. (2) I am a member of the firm of Dwight, Royall, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, 100 Broadway, New York, N. Y. This is firm business in behalf of the above-mentioned estate and the particular work that I am doing at present is trying to get a bill passed which will result in a refund of the taxes paid by the estate by reason of the decision of the Supreme Court in Commissioner v. Church (335 U. S. 632). (3) Until the estate is finally closed. (4) There is no agreement as to compensation; the estate will be billed for services rendered. (5) By Edward E. Black, as executor of the estate of Francois L. Church, deceased. (6) Whatever the actual out-of-pocket disbursements are. (7) All expenses; generally speaking, these are traveling expenses, telephone expenses, hotel expenses while outside New York City on the business of the estate.

Pilpel, Harriet F., Esq., 285 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) Walter Field Co., 600–614 Fulton Street, Chicago, Ill., and National Bellas Hess, Inc., 475 Tenth Avenue, New York, N. Y. (2) Walter Field Co., 600–614 Fulton Street, Chicago, Ill., and National Bellas Hess, Inc., 475 Tenth Avenue, New York, N. Y. (3) The employment of Harriet F. Pilpel is terminable at will. (4) The retainer agreement between Walter Field Co. and National Bellas Hess, Inc., provides for a fee of $2,500. Possible additional compensation dependent upon time spent and amount of work involved. (5) Walter Field Co., 600–614 Fulton Street, Chicago, Ill., and National Bellas Hess, Inc., 475 Tenth Avenue, New York, N. Y. (6) Reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Traveling, long-distance telephone calls, hotel, research, etc.

Pittman & Roberts, 815 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, 306 West Third Street, Los Angeles, Calif. (2) The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. (3) March 1, 1950, to December 31, 1950. (4) $15,000. (5) The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. (6) None. (7) None.

Ploeser,[2] Walter C., 8008 Forsyth Boulevard, Clayton, St. Louis, Mo. (1) Not employed for this purpose. (2) Mississippi Valley Association. (3) None. (4) None. (5) No one. (6) None. (7) Expense borne by self.

Plumley, Fletcher, attorney at law, 421 Tower Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Reynolds Metals Co., Washington executive office, Barr Building, Washington, D. C. (2) Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va. (3) Month to month. (4) Monthly retainer,

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.

[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

$416.66. Under provision of retainer some legislative activity may be taken, i. e., conveying to Members of Congress attitude of principal on pending or proposed legislation. (5) Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va. (6) No fixed amount. (7) Taxis, telephone calls, etc.

Poletti, Diamond, Freidin & Mackay, attorneys, 598 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) Registrant is a law firm which receives an annual retainer from American Federation of Musicians of the United States and Canada, 570 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y., for professional services. Registrant does not believe it is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. (2) American Federation of Musicians of the United States and Canada. (3) See answer to (1). (4) There cannot be determined in advance the portion of the annual retainer which, based on an allocation of the time expended, may be considered attributable to registrant's legislative activities. However, such activities constitute only a minor and incidental part of registrant's duties. (5) See answer to (1). (6) Registrant will be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses incurred by members or associates of the firm. (7) See answer to (6). The disbursements will be those customary in legal work.

Rand, Harry I., 917 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Burlap Bag Dealers Association, Inc., 60 Bolivar Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. (2) National Burlap Bag Dealers Association, Inc., 60 Bolivar Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. (3) Terminates January 15, 1951. (4) $5,000 per year. This is an annual retainer for services as general counsel. Such services only incidentally, and by no means principally, require representation of the association before the Congress. This registration statement is, therefore, probably not required by the act, but is being filed nevertheless for informational purposes. (5) National Burlap Bag Dealers Association, Inc., 60 Bolivar Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. (6) No fixed sum; all costs and disbursements defrayed. (7) All costs and disbursements defrayed, such as postage, telephone, telegraph, etc.

Reilly, Gerard D., 1401 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Foremanship Foundation, 512–20 Harries Building, Dayton, Ohio. (2) Foremanship Foundation. (3) One year. (4) $6,000. (5) Foremanship Foundation. (6) Reimbursement for out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Telephone and travel.

Rodes, Robert Emmet, 2 Route de Bouskoura, Casablanca, Morocco. (1) Not applicable. (2) Morocco Post, No. 1, American Legion; American Trade Association of Morocco. (3) Indefinite. (4) No arrangement. (5) No arrangement; it is expected that expenses will be reimbursed by the organizations represented, as and when they are in a position to do so. However, there is no prior understanding. (6) See (5). (7) Arrangement indicated under (5) takes effect, expenses will be all costs of mission.

Rozzell, Forrest, field secretary, Arkansas Education Association, 503 Union Life Building, Little Rock, Ark. (1) Arkansas Education Association, 503 Union Life Building, Little Rock, Ark. (2) Arkansas Education Association. (3) During the time S. 246 is being considered by the Congress. (4) Paid at the rate of $575. (5) Arkansas Education Association. (6) Refund of actual expenses. (7) Travel, meals, cabs, hotel bills, tips, and usual personal expenses.

Russell, Albert R., Empire Building, 162 Madison Avenue, Memphis, Tenn. (1) National Cotton Council of America, Empire Building, 162 Madison Avenue, Memphis, Tenn. (2) National Cotton Council of America, an organization of cotton producers, ginners, merchants, warehousemen, spinners, and cottonseed crushers; industry-wide organization, sole objective of which is to increase consumption of American cotton and cottonseed products. (3) Permanent. (4) Receive a fixed salary for all duties associated with position as assistant to executive vice president. No portion of salary specifically earmarked for work related to legislation. Will report on Form C at end of each quarter portion of salary which will represent amount of time devoted to legislative activity during that quarter. (5) National Cotton Council only. (6) In addition to salary as indicated above am reimbursed for legitimate out-of-pocket expense. (7) Legitimate expense items, such as out-of-town travel, hotel, taxis, telephone and telegraph, and meals for guests.

Ryan, Elmer J., 200 Grand Building, South St. Paul, Minn. (1) Josten Manufacturing Co., Owatonna, Minn. (2) Same. (3) Thirty to sixty days. (4) $1,000–$1,500, depending on time consumed. (5) Josten Manufacturing Co. (6) Actual expense. (7) Hotel, travel, and all incidentals.

Savage, H. A.,[1] 815 Helm Building, Fresno, Calif.; Hotel Mayflower, Washington, D. C. (1) American Tungsten Association, a nonprofit California corporation, 415, Brix Building, Fresno, Calif. (2) Tungsten mine owners and operators of United States of America known as domestic tungsten mining industry. (3) Indeterminate; probably for 1 year. (4) What board of directors may allow; expenses and reasonably for time, probably $500 per week. (5) American Tungsten Association. (6) Actual on detailed statement. (7) Ordinary hotel, stenographic, and traveling; nothing for entertainment.

Schoene, Freehill, Kramer & Davis, a law partnership composed of Lester P. Schoene, Joseph H. Freehill, Milton Kramer, and John F. Davis, 1625 K Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Charles T. Douds, 598 Ridgeland Terrace, Englewood, N. J. (2) Charles T. Douds, 598 Ridgeland Terrace, Englewood, N. J. (3) Mutually at will. (4) To be determined. (5) Charles T. Douds, 598 Ridgeland Terrace, Englewood, N. J. (6) Reimbursement for actual out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Out-of-pocket costs directly attributable to this work, such as travel, telegrams, long-distance telephone calls, etc.

Scott, Byron N., 1025 Vermont Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, 306 West Third Street, Los Angeles, Calif. (2) Same; in opposition to S. 75, H. R. 934, and H. R. 935. (3) Until March 20, 1950. (4) $100 per day. (5) The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. (6) Actual out-of-pocket expense, exclusive of office expenses. (7) Only out-of-pocket, including telephone, telegraph, travel, etc.

Sheridan, George P., 911½ Pacific Avenue, Tacoma, Wash. (1) International Chiropractors Association, 838 Brady Street, Davenport, Iowa. (2) International Chiropractors Association. (3) Indefinite. (4) $400 per month and expenses. (5) International Chiropractors Association. (6) Actual expenses. (7) Travel, meals, lodging, communications, and other necessary expenses.

Shively, Earl C., 16 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio. (1) The Ohio Railroad Association, 16 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio. (2) All steam railroads having main trackage rights in Ohio, except the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad Co. A list of members of the Ohio Railroad Association is hereto attached.[2] (3) Indefinite; has been with the Ohio Railroad Association since 1934. (4) Expenses only. (5) By member roads of the Ohio Railroad Association, as shown on attached list. These roads are assessed on a mileage basis for support of the Ohio Railroad Association. (6) Reimbursement for actual expenses. (7) Pullman expenses, hotel bills, taxicabs, and entertainment.

[1] Registration with the Secretary only.
[2] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

Strackbein, O. R., 815 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Labor-Management Committee on Foreign Trade Policy. (2) In the interest of labor and management groups in the following industries: Pottery, glassware, glass containers, fishing, fish canning, aluminum, book manufacturing, photoengraving, kaolin, hats and millinery, wallpaper, hothouse vegetables, red-cedar shingles, gloves, matches, scientific apparatus. (3) Indefinite. (4) Not yet determined; preliminary compnsation, $1,000. (5) By the National Labor-Management Committee above named. (6) No fixed amount. (7) Reimbursement for expenses out of pocket for meals, taxicabs, etc.; also, rental, office supplies, telephone and telegraph service, etc.

Sullivan,[2] Gael, 1501 Broadway, New York, N. Y. (1) Theatre Owners of America, Inc., 1501 Broadway, New York, N. Y. (2) Theatre Owners of America, Inc. (3) Annual contract, starting June 1, 1948. (4) Nothing in addition to annual salary. (5) Theatre Owners of America. (6) Transportation and hotel bills. (7) See (6) above.

Thompson, Donald J., 1739 De Sales Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) National Small Business Men's Association, Inc., Akron, Ohio. (2) National Small Business Men's Association, Inc. (3) Employed by the National Small Business Men's Association, Inc., as of this date, March 20, 1950. (4) $7,500 per year. (5) National Small Business Men's Association, Inc. (6) Necessary expenses such as traveling, hotel, taxi, lunches, etc. (7) Same as No. (6).

Todd,[2] John H., (supplemental), 1037 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C. (1) National Cotton Council of America, 165 Madison Avenue, Memphis, Tenn. (2) National Cotton Council of America. (3) Year to year. (4) $10,000 per year. (5) National Cotton Council of America. (6) Reimbursement of actual expenses incurred on behalf of National Cotton Council of America. (7) All actual expenses incurred on behalf of National Cotton Council of America.

Vance, C. W., Labor Building, 10 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, D. C. (1) Order of Railway Conductors of America, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. (2) Order of Railway Conductors of America, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. (3) Assigned by the president of the Order of Railway Conductors to assist at intervals in the handling of legislative work in Washington, D. C. (4) $14 per day. (5) Order of Railway Conductors of America, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. (6) While in Washington, D. C., $8 per day for hotel, plus incidentals such as taxi fare, telegrams, and telephone calls. (7) Such as outlined in item No. (6).

Vandercook, Roy C., 801 Prudden Building, Lansing, Mich. (1) The Michigan Railroads' Association, 801 Prudden Building, Lansing, Mich. (2) The railroads in the State of Michigan. (3) Occasional. (4) Salary paid for work in State legislative matters, public relations, and labor relations. Work in Federal legislative matters is incidental and a minor feature of employment. In view of this minor apportionment of work to Federal matters, it is not possible to allocate salary in such matters. Compensation will depend on amount of time spent on work and will be shown on quarterly reports filed hereafter. (5) The Michigan Railroads' Association. (6) Actual expenses. (7) Travel, hotel, restaurant, etc.

Walter, Willard, 1010 Vermont Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) American Pacific Steamship Co. and its affiliate, North American Shipping & Trading Co., Inc., 52 Broadway, New York, N. Y. (2) American Pacific Steamship Co. and its affiliate, North American Shipping & Trading Co., Inc., 52 Broadway, New York, N. Y. (3) Indefinite. (4) Registrant is executive vice president of

[2] Registration with the Clerk only.

Earley-Walter, Inc., steamship brokers and owners' agents, which, as charter agent for American Pacific Steamship Co. and North American Shipping & Trading Co., Inc., is paid the customary brokerage commissions for such services. Compensation for additional services is not fixed. (5) American Pacific Steamship Co. and/or North American Shipping & Trading Co., Inc. (6) Not fixed. (7) Normal disbursements only such as taxis, long-distance telephone calls, stenography, etc.

Williams, Martin B., 618 Mutual Building, Richmond, Va. (1) Life Insurers Conference, whose sole office is 618 Mutual Building, Richmond, Va. (2) Life Insurers Conference. (See supplementary statement attached.[3]) (3) Unlimited. (4) The registrant receives no remuneration identifiable with matters within the purposes of the act. At the close of each ensuing calendar quarter an estimate and report will be made by the registrant with respect to such portion of his annual salary, if any, as may have been paid within the contemplation of the act. The annual salary of the registrant is payable for numerous services in connection with the several purposes of the conference as generally described in the supplementary statement attached. (5) Life Insurers Conference. (6) The registrant will be reimbursed his out-of-pocket expenses. (7) Travel, meals, lodging, telephone and telegraph charges, etc.

QUARTERLY REPORTS

The following quarterly reports were received for the first calendar quarter, 1950, and filed, using Form C, with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate:

(NOTE.—In order to reduce space the questions in Form C (see p. 10179) are not repeated. Only the answers are printed and are indicated by numbers in parentheses.)

American Pulpwood Association,[4] 220 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (1) The sum of $897.58 allocated from the funds of the association for the purposes stated below. (2) H. E. Brinckerhoff, secretary; Chan Associates; Bachman Reproduction Service; Perry Printing & Stationery Co.; Hotel Washington; American Airlines; B. & O. Railroad, and miscellaneous. (3) Salary, transportation, hotel and living expenses, printing, publicity, and miscellaneous. (4) The association has published a small pamphlet entitled "A Rude Awakening," dealing with proposed amendments to the social-security laws. (5) Portions of the definitions of "employee" as contained in H. R. 6000. The association opposes the proposals.

Amundsen, Paul A., secretary-treasurer, the American Association of Port Authorities, Washington Building, Washington, D. C.; the American Association of Port Authorities. (1) Received $900 (salary, January 1–March 31). (2) Self. (3) Salary. (4) Independently employed as editor of World Ports, a monthly trade journal. (5) Merely keep membership advised on legislative development for their own individual or collective action, with recommendation. Tidelands, Government reorganization, legislative changes in Merchant Marine Act known current interests.

Arnold, W. C.,[5 6] Alaska Salmon Industry, Inc., 200 Colman Building, Seattle, Wash. (1) None. (2) See above. (3) See above. (4) None. (5) None.

Associated Third Class Mail Users,[5 6] 1010 Vermont Avenue NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Income, $160; expenses, $5,789.29. (2) Scott G. Rigby, Mary H. Rawlings, John H. Smith, Jr., and Posner, Berge, Fox & Arent, plus miscellaneous operating expenses. (3) The general purpose of the association is to foster more efficient use of third-class mail by those enterprises employing the use of it. (4) None. (5) All legislation relating to postal laws and regulations.

Atkins,[5 6] Edward, National Association of Shoe Chain Stores, Inc., 51 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (1) $500. (2) Railroad, airlines, and hotels. (3) Transportation, lodging, and meals. (4) National Association of Shoe Chain Stores, Inc. (bulletins to its members). (5) Legislation regarding labor laws, handbag excise tax law, wage-hour law.

Babcock,[4] Charles E., route 4, box 73, Vienna, Va.; National Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics of the United States of North America, 3027 North Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pa. (1) Received $1,000 salary and expenses per year, paid in 12 monthly installments. (2) Expended very little, the salary and expenses were mostly salary for my own use. Expenditures in connection with work at the capitol were only out-of-pocket payments for transportation, telephones, and meals. (3) See above. (4) The Junior American, the official organ of the Junior Order. (5) Immigration, naturalization, and deportation; the free public schools; other legislation of national interest and of special interest to the members of the Order.

Baldrige, H. M., 408 American Building, Washington, D. C., and 115 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y.; United States Cane Sugar Refiners Association, 408 American Building, Washington, D. C., and 115 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y. (1) $2,000 per month or $6,000 for the quarter; no money expended on any legislative activity. (2) None. (3) None. (4) None. (5) Opposition to House Joint Resolution 426.

Baldwin and Mermey,[2 5 6] 205 East Forty-second Street; Bureau of Education on Fair Trade, an Illinois corporation; New York address: 205 East Forty-second Street; Chicago address: 205 West Wacker Drive. (1) Received, retainer from Bureau of Education on Fair Trade, $12,000; reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses, $22,695.51. (2) Various, as per attached rider.[2] (3) Public relations counsel, telephone, postage, mimeographing, travel. (4) [Blank.] (5) Fair trade.

Barker,[5] Creighton, M. D., Connecticut State Medical Society, 160 St. Ronan Street, New Haven, Conn. (1) None. (2) None. (3) None. (4) None. (5) None.

Barta, A. K., the Ethanol Committee, 810 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Received $100. (2) Various. (3) Taxis and miscellaneous expenses. (4) None. (5) Bills relating to the nonbeverage use of ethyl alcohol.

Barta, A. K., the Proprietary Association, 810 Eighteenth Street NW. (1) Received during quarter, $617.15; expended, $75; salary (salary reported is for proportionate time devoted to Federal legislation), $542.15. (2) Various. (3) Travel, subsistence, and miscellaneous for the quarter, $75. (4) None. (5) All bills affecting the proprietary medicines industry endorsed or opposed by the Proprietary Association.

Beirne,[5 6] Joseph A., Communications Workers of America, CIO, 917 G Place NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Expenses, $983.03; salary, $3,300. (2) Normal living expenses plus railroads, airlines, hotels, restaurants, taxicabs, and other incidentals and related expenses. (3) To perform to the normal functions of my positions with the Communications Workers of America, none of which were related to legislative activities. (4) None. (5) Any proposed legislation which would affect the Communications Workers of America or its divisions.

Beiter,[5 6] Alfred F., National Customs Service Association, 8503 Longfellow Place, Chevy Chase, Md. (1) Registrant received regular salary shown in registration statement. (2) No payment made to any other person. (3) [Blank.] (4) The Customs Service News is the official publication of the National Customs Service Association. Through its medium membership is kept informed of pending legislation affecting customs employees. (5) Have appeared before congressional committees to present views of the association on legislation affecting customs employees.

Bell, Jones & Taylor (final report) (a partnership consisting of Luther K. Bell and O. A. Taylor), 350 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) This amendment to report, previously filed on January 9, 1950, is to advise you that that report was a final report. (2) See (1). (3) See (1). (4) None. (5) See (1).

Benson, Ernest H., national legislative representative, 10 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, D. C.; Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees, 61 Putnam Avenue, Detroit, Mich. (1) Salary at rate of $12,000 per annum; no expense account. (2) Ernest H. Benson. (3) Activities in connection with legislative matters. (4) None. (5) Legislation directly or indirectly affecting the interests of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Emloyees.

Benson,[5 6] Judd C., Union Central Life Insurance Co., Union Central Building, Cincinnati, Ohio. (1) See registration Form B; no expenses, other than reimbursement of telephone tolls and postage totaling $281.25. (2) None. (3) None. (4) Life Association News, 11 West Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (5) see registration Form B; registrant is paid no salary by, and does not hold office in, registrant National Association of Life Underwriters for purposes of Public Law 601; items of interest during dates cited were amendments to Social Security Act.

Berckes,[5 6] Herbert C., secretary, Southern Pine Industry Committee, 520 Canal Building, New Orleans, La. (1) Received for services as secretary, $750; expended for travel expense, $1,003.54. (2) Travel expenses, transportation, and per diem. (3) Legislation. (4) None. (5) Any legislation affecting the southern pine lumber industry.

Berckes,[5] Herbert C., secretary, Southern Pine Industry Committee, 520 Canal Building, New Orleans, La. (1) Received for services as secretary, $750; expended for travel expense; $875.83. (2) Travel expenss, transportation, and per diem. (3) Legislation. (4) See attached copy [3] Fight Fire with Fire. (5) Any legislation affecting the southern pine lumber industry.

Bethge,[5 6] Charles A., Aldens, Inc., 511 South Paulina Street, Chicago, Ill. (1) $465.84 from Aldens, Inc., 511 South Paulina Street, Chicago, Ill. (2) New York Central Railroad; Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C.; Roosevelt Hotel, New York, N. Y., miscellaneous service stations, garages, and hotels en route between Chicago, New York, and return. (3) Automobile transportation expenses to and from Chicago, Washington, New York, and return; hotels, meals, entertainment, telephone calls, and incidental ex-

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.
[4] Filed with the Secretary only.
[5] Filed with the Clerk only.
[6] Filed for fourth quarter 1949.

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.
[4] Filed with the Secretary only.
[5] Filed with the Clerk only.
[6] Filed for fourth quarter 1949.

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.
[5] Filed with Clerk only.
[6] Filed for fourth quarter, 1949.

penses; railroad transportation. (4) Postal Service bulletins issued by National Council on Business Mail, Inc. (5) Postal legislation.

Biorn,[5 6] Norman E., Minnesota Associated Businessmen, Inc., 520 Endicott Building, St. Paul, Minn. (1) Salaries from Minnesota Associated Businessmen, none; received for actual expenses, $244.91; spent for legislative activities, none. (2) M. Knowlton, $150; Northwest Bell Telephone, 24 cents; United States Government, $14.75; Brady-Margulis, $4.18; miscellaneous, $75.74. (3) Stenographic services, telephone, postage, stationery, and necessary travel expenses. (4) None. (5) Elimination of inequality in tax legislation.

Blanchard,[5] Helen, 1034 Warner Building, Washington, D. C.; Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, 15 Union Square, New York, N. Y. (1) Received salary of $1,110; received $829.84 to reimburse actual expenses incurred. (2) Hotels, railroads, restaurants, cab drivers, airlines, living expenses in Washington; hotel, meals, cab drivers, $562.29; railroad and air lines, $267.55. (3) Personal expenses and travel. (4) CIO News and the Advance. (5) Support all legislation favorable to the national security, peace, democracy, prosperity, and general welfare; oppose legislation detrimental to these objectives.

Bodary, D. A., national legislative and general representative, Brotherhood Railway Carmen of America, 10 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, D. C.; Brotherhood Railway Carmen of America, 4929 Main Street, Kansas City, Mo. (1) Annual compensation of $6,000 and $12 per diem for expenses—hotels, meals, etc. (2) D. A. Bodary. (3) As national legislative and general representative, Brotherhood Railway Carmen of America, my duties include handling of legislative matters and handling and progressing of grievances and other activities of my organization. (4) None. (5) Legislation directly and indirectly affecting the interests of the Brotherhood Railway Carmen of America.

Boggs,[5 6] Maywood, 825 Bowen Building; International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders, and Helpers of America, 570 New Brotherhood Building, Kansas City, Kans. (1) No money received except regular salary and expenses; no money expended for the purpose of attempting to influence passage or defeat of any legislation; total salary for quarter, $2,700; total expenses for quarter, $1,865.50. (2) No one. (3) None. (4) None. (5) Incidental to other duties which take major portion of my time, all legislative proposals of concern to labor generally.

Bohannon, John N., Asheville, N. C. (1028 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C.); Consolidated Natural Gas Co., 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N. Y. (1) Personal remuneration, including expenses, during the preceding calendar quarter, $4,500; money expended, see (3) below. (2) See (3) below. (3) Personal subsistence, transportation, routine and other customary expenses only; also see (6) Form B heretofore filed. (4) None. (5) Any legislation that might affect producing, gathering, transportation, distribution, or sale of natural gas.

Bolz,[5] Sanford H., 927 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; Fraser, Morris & Co., Inc., and British-American Trading Corp., 119 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York, N. Y., and 437 Eleventh Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) No activity this quarter. (2) [Blank.] (3) [Blank.] (4) [Blank.] (5) [Blank.]

Bolz,[4] Sanford H., 927 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; Fraser, Morris & Co., Inc., and British-American Trading Corp., 119 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York. N. Y., and 437 Eleventh Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) No activity this quarter. (2) [Blank.] (3) [Blank.] (4) [Blank.] (5) [Blank.]

Bowden, Benjamin Edward, room 313, Labor, 10 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, D. C.; American Train Dispatchers Association, 10 East Huron Street, Chicago, Ill. (1) Received, wages or salary, $731.62; received, for expenses, $443.05. (2) Hotels, restaurants, Pullman Co., taxi and street car Company, telephone and telegraph, United States postage. (3) Lodging, meals, transportation, communication, valet, and postage. (4) None. (5) All legislation affecting railway labor, particularly legislation for aded safety on the Nation's railroads.

Breed, Arthur H., Jr., and Hahn, James D., Associates,[5] 1111 Jackson Street, Oakland, Calif.; Pacific American Steamship Association, 16 California Street, San Francisco, Calif. (1) January 1, 1950, through March 31, 1950: retainer, $2,600; miscellaneous office expense, $126.79; transportation, $176.70; living expenses in Washington, D. C., $2,161.25; total, $5,064.74. (2) Expenditures made for miscellaneous office expenses, transportation, living expense as above, $2,464.74. (3) Legislation relative to Panama Canal tolls. (4) [Blank.] (5) Panama Canal tolls.

Brewbaker, James M., National Association of Manufacturers, 623 Investment Building, Washington, D. C. (1) Receipts: salary, $2,375; expenses reimbursed by employers, $799.47; expenditures, $799.47. (2) Various restaurants, hotels, taxicabs, railroad companies. (3) Traveling and attending meetings to discuss general conditions in Washington of interest to business and industry. (4) NAM News. (5) All bills affecting our national labor policy, tax policies, Federal expenditures.

Bright, O. O., 1302 Eighteenth NW., Washington, D. C.; Southern Pine Industry Committee, New Orleans, La. (1) Salary, $1,200; expenses, $52.58. (2) Hotels and cab drivers. (3) See above. (4) None. (5) Any legislation affecting the lumber manufacturing industry.

Brinckerhoff,[4] H. E., 220 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y.; American Pulpwood Association, 122 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. (1) The sum of $326.14 received from American Pulpwood Association in reimbursement of expenses necessarily made for the purposes described below. (2) Hotel Washington, American Airlines, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and miscellaneous. (3) Transportation, hotel, and living expenses, telephone, telegraph, and miscellaneous. (4) None except as reported by American Pulpwood Association. (5) Certain amendments in the definition of "employee" as proposed in H. R. 6000; the association is opposing the proposals.

Brinegar, David F., Central Arizona Project Association, 510 Goodrich Building, Phoenix, Ariz. (1) $3,100 gross amount (there will be some returns in my final accounting to my own employer, but this amount is more than I actually will have spent when all balances are cleared on this quarter of 1950). (2) National transportation companies and Washington and other merchants, restaurateurs, hotel keepers, professional men, and businessmen. (3) Actual business expenses and for supplies incident thereto. (4) None. (5) S. 75 and H. R. 934 and H. R. 935.

Brown,[5 6] Ethel G., 1134 North Orange Drive, Los Angeles, Calif.: the registrant is chairman of the standing committee on legislation of the National Congress of Parents, and Teachers, 600 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. (1) The registrant received $120.09 from the National Congress of Parents and Teachers during the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1949, in reimbursement for miscellaneous out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with her services as chairman of the standing committee on legislation of said organization. (2) Retained by registrant to reimburse out-of-pocket expenses. (3) Special secretarial services, taxi fares, meals, telephone, telegrams, postage, transportation, and similar items. (4) National Parent Teachers', the official magazine of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. (5) Various measures affecting welfare of children and youth in fields of education; social and economic well-being; child labor and environmental situations; Federal research agencies in education, health, juvenile protection, and home making; world understanding and peace among nations.

Brown, Paul W., Sears, Roebuck & Co., 925 South Homan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. (1) $203.56, traveling expense funds. (2) Hotels, airlines, railroads, taxis, restaurants, telegraph company, telephone company. (3) Personal transportation and living expenses while traveling. (4) None. (5) Not employed to support or oppose legislation; as company operating executive, responsible for transportation costs, am interested in postal-rate legislation.

Bryan, James E.,[5 6] as agent for the Medical Society of New Jersey; the Medical Society of New Jersey, 315 West State Street, Trenton, N. J. (1) Expenditures, $291.28. (2) Various. (3) In opposition to legislation for national compulsory health insurance. (4) Membership news letter of the Medical Society of New Jersey. (5) S. 1679.

Bulow, William J., Jr., Munsey Building, American Nurses' Association, 1790 Broadway, New York. (1) Money received, none; money expended, none. (2) None. (3) None. (4) None. (5) Legislation relating to nurses, nursing, or health, in which the American Nurses' Association is interested.

Bulow, William J., Jr., Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.; National Postal Committee for Books, 62 West Forty-seventh Street, New York. (1) Money received, none; money expended, $82.05. (2) Various transportation, telephone, and telegraph companies, and United States post office. (3) Customary business expense for transportation, telephone calls, telegrams, and postage. (4) None. (5) Postage-rate legislation.

Burnham,[4] George B., 111 First Street NE., Washington, D. C.; various stockholders of the Burnham Chemical Co., 5653 College Avenue, Oakland, Calif. (1) The sum of about $578 was received from numerous stockholders from January 1, 1950, to March 31, 1950, to be used on lobby work; the same amount was expended during that period. (2) G. B. Burnham. (3) Salary of secretary, printing and mailing literature, and other miscellaneous expenses to promote favorable interest in bills S. 1910 and H. R. 4985 to amend the antitrust laws. (4) None. (5) Supporting the bills S. 1910 and H. R. 4985 to amend the antitrust laws.

Burke,[5] Harold, United States Cane Sugar Refiners Association, 115 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y. (1) Salary for 3 months at $708.33⅓ per month equals $2,125; no expenses received or expended on any legislative activity. (2) No one. (3) None. (4) None. (5) None.

Burke, Harold, United States Cane Sugar Refiners Association, 115 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y. (1) Salary for 3 months at $708.33⅓ per month equals $2,125; no expenses received or expended on any legislative activity. (2) None. (3) None. (4) None. (5) None.

[4] Filed with the Secretary only.
[5] Filed with the Clerk only.
[6] Filed for fourth quarter, 1949.

[4] Filed with the Secretary only.
[5] Filed with the Clerk only.
[6] Filed for fourth quarter, 1949.

[4] Filed with the Secretary only.
[5] Filed with the Clerk only.
[6] Filed for fourth quarter, 1949.

Burrows, Orrin A., International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, A. F. of L., 1200 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) Annual salary of $8,268 at rate of $689 per month. (2) None. (3) None. (4) The Electrical Workers Journal. (5) All legislation affecting the electrical workers in particular and labor in general.

Caffrey, Charles G.,[5 6] room 403, 1026 Seventeenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, Inc., 203A Liberty Life Building, Charlotte, N. C. (1) None. (2) No payments were made to anyone by Charles G. Caffrey for any purpose during the quarter in question (normal out-of-pocket expenses excepted). (3) None. (4) None, however, I might state for the record that I spent about $75 during the quarter for cab fares and lunches; most of the expense was for trips to and from the Capitol to get and make studies of bills. (5) I am not hired to support or oppose any particular legislation, but do report to my members bills which I think might have some effect upon the cotton-textile industry.

Callaghan,[5 6] Edna, 2032 Belmont Road NW., Washington, D. C.; the registrant is chairman of the Washington committee on legislation of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, 600 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. (1) The registrant received $84.66 from the National Congress of Parents and Teachers during the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1949, in reimbursement for miscellaneous out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with her services as chairman of the Washington committee on legislation of said organization. (2) Retained by registrant to reimburse out-of-pocket expenses. (3) Special secretarial services, taxi fares, meals, telephone, telegrams, postage, and similar items. (4) None. (5) Various measures affecting welfare of children and youth in fields of education; social and economic well being; child labor and environmental situations; Federal research agencies in education, health, juvenile protection, and home making; world understanding and peace among nations.

Campbell,[5 6] Wallace J., 726 Jackson Place NW., Washington, D. C.; Cooperative League of U. S. A., 343 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. (1) $65.94. (2) Wallace J. Campbell. (3) Transportation and meals. (4) Cooperative News Service and papers served threby. (5) Legislation affecting the interests of the Cooperative League and its constituent organizations.

Carey,[5 6] John L., American Institute of Accountants, 270 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. (1) Salary received, $8,250 (less than 10 percent of time devoted to legislative work). (2) I have paid no money to anyone for any purposes related to legislative work. (3) [Blank.] (4) The Journal of Accountancy, the Certified Public Accountant. (5) Legislation relating to rights of certified public accountants to practice before Federal agencies, or other legislation relating to accounting or auditing.

Carson,[4] Henderson H., 640 Shoreham Building, Washington, D. C.; East Ohio Gas Co., 1405 East Sixth Street, Cleveland, Ohio. (1) Received from East Ohio Gas Co., one-fourth annual legal retainer fee, $3,000; expenses incurred, $298.30; total, $3,298.30. (2) Hotel and restaurants, $91; taxicab companys, $52.95; publications and daily reports, $130; postage, $8.50; telegraph and telephone, $15.85. (3) See above section (2). (4) None. (5) Conferences and reports on legislation affecting the natural gas industry.

Carter, Asa L., 325 Ashland Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; employed by petitioners and their due successors and joining associates at and after War Department file No. 7040, April 7, 1933 (287 U. S. 929). (1) I received and expended only $90.40, costs and disbursements herein, divided: petty cash, clerical work, searching records, and addressing mail, $54.16, and for postage, printing, telephoning, bus and carfares, etc., $36.24. (2) It was paid to postmasters, printers, public service companies, and standard clerical help at Pittsburgh, Pa. (3) See (1) and (2). (4) I publish nowhere except by first-class mail to abutters and contributors and their due and immediate representatives. (5) Everything for or against B-line respectively.

Case, Ralph H., 889 National Press Building, Washington, D. C.; Three Affiliated Tribes of Fort Berthold Reservation, N. Dak., under attorney's supplemental contract approved December 10, 1946, by Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Garrison Dam project, Elbowoods, N. Dak. (1) Receipts, $1,000 compensation for services rendered under attorney's contract for period October 1, 1949–December 31, 1949; expenditures, none. (2) [Blank.] (3) [Blank.] (4) None. (5) Public Law 437; S. 3303.

Case, Ralph H., 889 National Press Building, Washington, D. C.; Sioux Tribe of Indians, Cheyenne River Reservation, S. Dak. under attorney's contract approved May 20, 1948, by Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Oahe Dam project, Cheyenne Agency, S. Dak. (1) Receipts, $500 compensation for services rendered under attorney's contract for period August 20–November 19, 1949, and $500, same, for period November 20, 1949–February 19, 1950; disbursements, none. (2) [Blank.] (3) [Blank.] (4) None. (5) H. R. 5372, S. 1488.

Case, Ralph H., 889 National Press Building, Washington, D. C.; Sioux Tribe of Indians, Standing Rock Reservation, N. Dak. and S. Dak., under attorney's contract approved May 12, 1949, by Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Oahe Dam project; address, Fort Yates, N. Dak. (1) Receipts, $500 compensation for services rendered under attorney's contract for period August 20–November 19, 1949, and $500, same, for period November 20, 1949–February 19, 1950; disbursements, none. (2) [Blank.] (3) [Blank.] (4) None. (5) H. R. 5372; S. 1488.

Casey, Joseph E., Committee for Equalization of Tobacco Taxes, 1025 Connecticut Avenue, Washington D. C. (1) $10,000 received by Mr. Casey as fee. (2) None paid out by Mr. Casey. (3) [Blank.] (4) [Blank.] (5) H. R. 2016, which provides for a fair and equitable tax on cigarettes depending upon the price at which these cigarettes are sold.

Casey, Joseph E., 1025 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C.; Radio Manufacturers Association, 1317 F. Street NW., Washington, D. C. (1) $5,000 received as retainer; $1,000 received for services for March 1950. (2) None paid out by Joseph E. Casey. (3) [Blank.] (4) None. (5) Proposal to impose new 10-percent excise tax on television.

